(k) Whitehead v. Clifford, 5 Taunt. 518. The notice of quitting not having been delivered to the plaintiff himself, he afterwards took the key and put up a bill in the window, upon an understanding that it was to be for the benefit of whoever might be entitled according as the demise might be held as under a lease, or only from year to year; held, that it was for the jury to say whether the key was accepted or not upon those terms, and if so, it was no answer to the action. Wilson v. Chisholm, 4 C. & P. 476. The tenant paid the rent for two years after the payment of land-tax, without claiming it to be deducted; held, that he could not recover it back as money paid, without proof of an express agreement that it was to be paid by the landlord. A broker distraining for the rent, and deducting the land-tax, cannot be held to allow it, but from want of knowledge, to consent only to receive the money without it. Saunderson v. Hanson, 3 C. & P. 314.

(l) Bull v. Sibbs, 8 T. R. 327. And see Conolly v. Baxter, 2 Starkie's C. 527; Dingley v. Angrove, 2 Smith, 18.

(m) Neal v. Swind, 2 C. & J. 377.

(n) Naish v. Tatlock, 2 H. B. 319. See Gibson v. Courthope, 1 D. & R. 205.

(o) Naish v. Tatlock, 2 H. B. 319. But the bankrupt would be liable for the whole under his agreement or covenant to pay rent, although the assignees had occupied

Where a woman before her marriage held as tenant from year to year, the rent being payable half-yearly, it was held that an action was not maintainable against the husband alone in respect of rent which had accrued at the end of the half year during which the marriage took place (p), for he was not the occupier in the interval between the commencement of the half-year and the marriage; and the action is given in respect of the occupation, and the remedy is not co-extensive with the action of debt for rent. Proof of occupation.

An entry by one of two executors of a tenant for years does not enure as the entry of both, so as to make them both liable for use and occupation (q). An executor of a tenant from year to year, holding on paying rent, holds on the terms of the former tenancy, and is personally liable (r).

Although the situation of the premises need not be stated, a variance in the description would be fatal (s). As in the name of the parish where the premises are described to be situate (t).

2dly. The statute contemplates the relation of landlord and tenant, and therefore it seems that a stranger cannot try his title in this form of action (u). The plaintiff must therefore prove an occupation by his permission of the premises by the defendant. This may be proved directly by the production and proof of a written agreement (x), if any has been entered into, in the usual way, by the evidence of the attesting witness, if there was one, or if not, by proof of the signature of the defendant. An agreement is evidence, although it contain no terms of present demise (y). If the instrument be merely a prospective agreement for a lease, it must be stamped as an agreement; and if the agreement contain words of present demise, it must be stamped as a lease (z). If there be no written agree- Plaintiff's permission.

during part of the time, for the contract is not discharged by the certificate. Boot v. Wilson, 8 East, 311. And now see the stat. 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 75; supra, 188; 4 T. R. 94. The Insolvent Act, 7 G. 4, c. 57, contains a similar clause.

(p) Richardson v. Hall, 3 Moore, 207; 1 B. & B. 52. A. having contracted for the lease of a house, permits a mistress to occupy it. It is afterwards agreed that she shall take up bills which he has accepted in part payment of the purchase-money, and that the lease shall be assigned to her; she remains in possession, and does not take up the bills, and marries the defendant, who occupies the house. A. cannot, without any communication upon the subject of rent, maintain an action for use and occupation against the husband. Keating v. Bulkly, 2 Starkie's C. 419.

(q) Nation v. Tozer, 1 C. M. & R. 179. 4 Tyr. 561, S. C.

(r) Buckworth v. Simpson, 1 C. M. & R. 834.

(s) Wilson v. Clark, 1 Esp. C. 273; King v. Frazer, 6 E. 348; Pool v. Court, 4 Taunt. 700; 13 East, 9; Guest v. Caumont, 3 Camp. 235. But see Kirkland v. Pounsett, infra, note (t). And Vol. I. tit. VARIANCE.

(t) But it is sufficient to describe the parish by the name by which it is ordinarily known, unless it appear that some ambiguity is occasioned by such description. See Kirkland v. Pounsett, 1 Taunt. 570; Taylor v. Williams, 3 Bing. 449; Goodtitle v. Walter, 4 Taunt. 672; Taylor v. Hooman, 1 Moore, 161; and Vol. I. tit. VARIANCE.

(u) Morgan v. Ambrose, cor. Wilm. J. Monmouth Sum. Ass. 1756; Peake's Ev. 255, 5th edit. And see Lord Mansfield's observations in Powell v. Milbank, 7 T. R. 401.

(x) Supra, 55.

(y) Elliott v. Rogers, 4 Esp. C. 59. An agreement by A. to let, and B. to take, for the whole remaining term of the lease at a yearly rent, payable quarterly, the first payment for the half quarter at the then next Christmas, B. agreeing to insure, the lease and counterpart, to be prepared at the expense of B., and to contain all the clauses, covenants, &c. which A. entered into in the lease to him, amounts to a legal demise, with a right to immediate possession and not to a mere agreement for a lease. Doe d. Pearson v. Ries, 8 Bing. 179.

(z) Where the words are sufficient to explain the intent of the parties, that the one shall divest himself of the possession, and the other come into it for a determinate time, such words will in construction of law amount to a lease for years. Bac. Ab. Lease (K.) If the instrument be so far prospective in its operation as to express the intention of the parties as to the terms

Plaintiff's permission.

ment, oral evidence of the terms is admissible; but if it appear that there is a written agreement between the parties on the subject, oral evidence is inadmissible; and if the agreement be not produced, or cannot be read in evidence for want of a stamp, the plaintiff will be nonsuited (a).

Indirect proof.

If there be no direct proof of the occupation by the plaintiff's permission, the plaintiff may resort to presumptive evidence of the fact; as, by proof of an admission on the part of the defendant of the payment of former rent by the defendant in respect of the same premises; and for this purpose notice should be given to the defendant to produce his receipts for such former rent, if any have been given; or the plaintiff may show that the defen-of a future lease, it is an agreement only, although it contain a contract for present possession, unless it also provide as to the terms of such possession in the interval, or contain actual words of present demise, for then it evidently operates as an agreement in respect of the future lease, but as a lease quousque. Thus, an agreement to demise and let copyhold premises to C. on the death of B. with a covenant to procure a license from the lord to let the premises, operates as an agreement only, and not as an absolute demise. Doe d. Coore v. Clare, 2 T. R. 739. So where the instrument set forth the conditions of a future lease of lands and rent, and of the times of entry, and it was agreed that a lease should be executed on those conditions with the usual covenants. Tempest v. Rawling, 13 East, 18. So where the terms were that the lessee should take possession immediately, and that a lease should be executed in future. Goodtitle d. Estwick v. Way, 1 T. R. 735. Where A. agreed to let her house to B. during her life, supposing it to be occupied by B. or by a tenant agreeable to A., and it was provided that a clause was to be added in the lease to give A.'s son an option to possess the house when of age; it was held that the latter clause showed that it was merely an agreement for a lease. Doe d. Bromfield v. Smith, 6 East, 530. Otherwise where the contract is for present possession, with a provision as to the terms quousque. As where the landlord agreed to let, and upon demand to execute to the tenant a lease of a farm, and the tenant agreed to take, and upon demand to execute a counterpart of the lease of the said farm, on a day specified, containing the usual covenants, &c. and the agreement was to bind until the lease was made, it was held that the contract amounted to a lease, and that the provision as to a future lease was but for better security. Doe d. Walker v. Groves, 15 East, 244. So, where one agreed to let, and the other to take, land for sixty-one years at a certain rent, for building, and the tenant agreed to lay out 2,000 l. within four years in building five or more houses, and when five or more houses were covered in the landlord agreed to grant a lease or leases, &c., but this agreement was to be considered as binding till one fully prepared could be produced; it was held to operate as a lease. Poole v. Bently, 12 East, 168. See Sturgeon v. Painter, Noy, 128. So, where the instrument contains actual words of present demise, as "be it remembered, that J. B. hath let, and by these presents doth demise, &c." although the instrument contained a further covenant for a future lease, 5 T. R. 165, n. And see Fenny d. Eastham v. Child, 2 M. & S. 255. And words in an agreement that A. shall hold and enjoy, &c. if not accompanied by restraining words, operate as words of present demise. Otherwise, if the intention of the parties to execute a future lease can be collected from the subsequent words. Doe d. Jackson v. Ashburner, 5 T. R. 163. Where the terms are doubtful the effect must depend upon the intention of the parties, as collected from the whole instrument. Ibid. And see Morgan d. Dowding v. Bissell, 3 Taunt. 65. Dunk v. Hunter, 5 B. & A. 322. A. agrees to take and hire of B. premises at a yearly rent, no time being mentioned for the commencement or determination of the interest, A. agreeing to take goods at a valuation; this (semble) is not a lease, for it contains no words binding on the demising party. Clayton v. Burtenshaw, 5 B. & C. 41. A lease containing a stipulation to take stock at a valuation, a lease stamp is not sufficient, for the agreement is not accessory to the subject of the demise. Ib. See further Hope v. Booth, 1 B. & Ad. 498. App. ii. 835.

(a) Brewer v. Palmer, 3 Esp. C. 213; Hodges v. Drakeford, 1 N. R. 270; R. v. St. Paul, Bedford, 6 T. R. 452; Ramsbottom v. Martley, 2 M. & S. 445; R. v. Padstow, 4 B. & Ad. 208. Supra, tit. ASSUMPSIT—PAROL EVIDENCE. In order to exclude parol evidence, it is not sufficient to show merely that there is some written agreement relative to the holding, unless it appears to have been entered into between the parties as landlord and tenant, and to have been in force at the time to which the parol evidence applies. Doe v. Morris, 12 East, 237. Although the continuing to hold according to the terms of an expired lease may be presumed, the lease itself must be produced properly stamped. Wallis v. Broadbent, 4 Ad. & Ell. 877.

dant, on a distress being made for former rent, paid the demand; and for this purpose the notice of distress should be proved, and notice should be given to the defendant to produce it as well as the receipt (b). Plaintiff's permission.

Proof that the defendant, on an ejectment being brought without previous notice to quit, produced in his defence a letter from the plaintiff, treating him as tenant, and claiming rent, is conclusive evidence of the tenancy(c).

So the permission to occupy may be an inference of law founded on the legal title (d). Thus, the grantee of an annuity, after recovering in ejectment against a tenant in possession under a demise from year to year, may maintain an action for use and occupation against him, in respect of all the rent in his hands at the time of notice to pay the rent to the grantee, and which has accrued from that time down to the time of the demise in the ejectment (e). So trustees may, without attornment, recover in this form of action from a tenant who has had notice from the cestui que trust to pay the rent to him, before he paid it over to his original landlord, although the tenant had no notice that the legal title was in the plaintiffs (f). If a landlord let the premises and mortgage them in fee, the mortgagee is entitled, after notice, to recover the rent which has accrued since the mortgage; and if he afterwards convey to A., to whom the landlord has previously conveyed the equity of redemption, A. can afterwards recover that part only of the rent which became due after his legal estate accrued (g). Where a trespasser has occupied the lands, the plaintiff may waive the tort, and recover in this action upon an implied contract (h).

Where A. having agreed to sell premises to B., the latter resold to C., who entered into possession, and A., after refusing to perform his contract, got possession from B. by availing himself of a misrepresentation that B.'s suit to enforce the contract had failed, but afterwards conveyed according to the contract; it was held that C. might recover from A. for use and occupation of the premises (i).

Evidence of payment of rent by third persons to the plaintiff, is evidence of title, although the defendant does not claim under them (k).

Where the defendant has taken possession under a contract of sale, which cannot be completed through a defect in the plaintiff's title, the latter cannot, it seems, recover as on an implied contract for use and occupation (l).

A surviving owner cannot recover for the use and occupation of premises upon his own permission and sufferance, where they were demised jointly by himself and another owner since deceased (m).

(b) Panton v. Jones, 3 Camp. 372.

(c) Townsend v. Davis, Forrest, 120.

(d) Where the legal estate of trustees of a term ceased upon the death of the tenant for life, but they supposing their term still alive, continued to receive the rents, and entered into an agreement to reduce the rents; held, that acting for all who had any interest, the plaintiff, who was but one of several parties interested, could not treat them as his agents, and maintain the action for an occupation in his own name; no tenancy can be implied under a party who has not the legal estate. Morgell v. Paul, 2 M. & R. 303.

(e) Birch v. Wright, 1 T. R. 378. But he cannot recover for subsequent rent, for the defendant cannot be both a tenant and a trespasser.

(f) Lumley v. Hodgson, 16 East, 99.

(g) Cobb v. Carpenter, 2 Camp. 13, n.; Lumley v. Hodgson, 16 East, 99.

(h) This however has been doubted. See Hambly v. Trott, Cowp. 375; Foster v. Stewart, 3 M. & S. 199; Bennett v. Francis, 2 B. & B. 554; Birch v. Wright, 1 T. R. 387.

(i) Hull v. Vaughan, 6 Price, 157.

(k) Doe v. Stacey, 6 C. & P. 139.

(l) Kirtland v. Pounsett, 2 Taunt. 145. Unless, as has been said, the occupation has been beneficial. Hearn v. Tomlin, Peake, 192. Hall v. Vaughan, 6 Price, 169; infra, 1183.

(m) Israel and others v. Simmons, 2 Starkie's C. 356. Richards v. Heather, 1 B. & A. 29.

Plaintiff's permission.

Where the possession is continued after the determination of the lease, whether it be by efflux of time, or by the death of a tenant for life, and consent of the remainder-man, a tenancy from year to year is usually presumed. A.'s lease having expired at Midsummer, he refused to give up the possession, insisting on his right to notice to quit, and paid rent at Michaelmas and Christmas; it was held that this was conclusive evidence of a tenancy, and that the landlord was entitled to recover rent due at Lady-day (n). If there be a lease for a year, and by consent of both parties the tenant continue in possession afterwards, the law implies a tacit renovation of the contract (o). And if after the death of a tenant for life, who has granted a lease which is void, the remainder-man accept rent as rent from the lessee, it is an admission of a tenancy (p) by the lessee, but the rent must have been paid by him in the capacity of tenant (q).

Payment of money into court in an action for use and occupation, admits the contract and precludes the defendant from questioning the plaintiff's title, or alleging the non-joinder of another as co-plaintiff, although the defect appear on the plaintiff's case (r).

Proof of value.

3dly. In the absence of an express agreement, the plaintiff must prove the value of the premises occupied.

Where the lessee took possession under an agreement which he did not sign, and the terms of which the lessor had failed to fulfil, it was held that the jury might ascertain the value without regard to the rent specified in the agreement (s); for the rent reserved by an agreement is evidence of amount in those cases only where the defendant has enjoyed the premises according to the agreement. But though a parol agreement for the use and occupation of land be void under the Statute of Frauds, recourse may be had to it to ascertain the amount of rent (t).

The plaintiff is entitled to recover for use and occupation, notwithstanding a recovery in ejectment, up to the day of the demise laid in the declaration (u).

Defence.

It is a general rule that a tenant shall not be allowed to dispute his landlord's title (x). Thus, in an action for the use and occupation of glebe lands, the defendant having paid rent to the plaintiff, cannot go into evidence to show that the presentation of the plaintiff to the living was simoniacal (y), (n) Bishop v. Howard, 2 B. & C. 100. Note, that it was left to the jury to say, whether a tenancy was created, or whether there was a mere holding over by the defendant; but the Court held that the payment and receipt of rent were conclusive.

(o) Per Lord Mansfield, in Right v. Darley, 1 T. R. 159.

(p) Doe v. Watts, 7 T. R. 83. See also Doe v. Weller, 7 T. R. 478.

(q) Strahan v. Smith, 4 Bing. 21.

(r) Dolby v. Iles, 3 Perr. & D. 287.

(s) Tomlinson v. Day, 2 B. & B. 680. 5 B. Moor, 558, S. C.

(t) De Medina v. Polson, Holt's C. 47.

(u) Birch v. Wright, 1 T. R. 178. An action lies for double value under the 4 Geo. 2, c. 19, after a recovery in ejectment. Soulsby v. Nevin, 9 East, 310. A tenant holding over, after notice to quit, is liable to double rent during his possession only; he need not give fresh notice to get rid of his liability. Booth v. Macfarlane, 1 B. & Ad. 904.

(x) Say. R. 13. Morgan v. Ambrose, cor. Wilmot, J., Monmouth, 1756; Peake's L. E. 242. And nil habuit in tenementis, is no plea in such a case. Lewis v. Willis, Hil. 25 G. 2. Richards v. Holditch, Hil. 13 G. 1, cited in Sullivan v. Stradling, 2 Wils. 212. Nor to an avowry for rent, under 11 G. 2, c. 19. Sullivan v. Stradling, 2 Wils. 208. Newsom v. Dugdale, Mich. 30 G. 2, cited ibid. And see Rennie v. Robinson, 1 Bing. 147.

(y) Cooke v. Loxley, 5 T. R. 4. Phipps v. Sculthorpe, 1 B. & A. 50. So, where an occupier of lands has entered into an agreement for a composition for tithes, he cannot, in defence of an action on the agreement, show that the presentation was simoniacal. Brookesby v. Watts, 6 Taunt. 333; 2 Marsh. 38. Hall v. Vaughan, 6 Price, 157.

or that he had no title to the premises (z). So it is no defence to show that the plaintiff was mere tenant at will (a), or that the plaintiff had previously demised the premises to a third person whose interest has not expired (b). Still the defendant may show that the plaintiff's interest was but temporary, and that it has since expired (c); as that he has, since the demise, mortgaged the premises to another, who has given the defendant notice to pay his rent to him (d). Defence.

If the defendant has not come into possession under the plaintiff, or recognized his title, the plaintiff can only recover rent from the time when his legal title accrued (e).

And where the defendant was not let into possession by the plaintiff, he may dispute his title, notwithstanding an acknowledgment of his title (f), which is not in itself binding.

So the defendant may prove that the tenancy has been determined (g), (z) Morgan v. Ambrose, Peake's L. E. 242.

(a) Atkinson v. Pierpoint, cor. Denison, J., Esp. D. 30.

(b) Phipps v. Sculthorpe, 1 B. & A. 50. The premises had been let by A. to B., and pending the term C. agreed with A. to stand in B.'s place, and offered to pay rent; and it was held, that in an action brought by A. against C. for use and occupation, the latter could not insist that the title of B. had not been determined by a notice to quit, or a note in writing.

(c) Morgan v. Ambrose, Peake's L. E. 242. England d. Syboarn v. Slade, 4 T. R. 682. Supra, tit. REPLEVIN. So the defendant is not estopped from disputing the continuance of the landlord's title, where the latter has acquiesced for a considerable time in the payment of rent to another. Neare v. Moss, 1 Bing. 360.

(d) Holmes v. Pontin, Peake's C. 99. In Waddilove v. Barnett, 2 Bing. N. C. 538, it was held that the defendant might show, under the plea of non-assumpsit, that previous to the demise the plaintiff had mortgaged the premises, and that the mortgagee had given notice not to pay to the plaintiff any rent accruing after notice, but that a special plea was necessary as to rent which had accrued before such notice. See also Pope v. Biggs, ib. 572. But see the doubts expressed by Littledale and Patteson, Js. in Partington v. Woodcock, 6 Ad. & El. 690, as to the right of a mortgagee, under a mortgage prior to the demise, to rent accruing under the demise. Littledale, J. intimates an opinion, that in such case the mortgagee's sole remedy is by ejectment. See also Rogers v. Humphries, 4 Ad. & El. 299. In the case of Balls v. Westwood, 2 Camp. 11, Ld. Ellenborough held that it was no defence to show that the plaintiff's title had expired, without further proving that the defendant had disclaimed to hold under the plaintiff, and had re-entered under a new landlord.

(e) Cobb v. Carpenter, 2 Camp. 13 (n).

(f) A. being tenant to B. under a lease, agrees to become tenant to sequestrators under a sequestration against B. out of Chancery; and it was held, that as the defendant had not received possession of the premises from the sequestrators (who were the plaintiffs), he might dispute their title, and that the lease unsurrendered was an answer to the action. Cornish v. Searell, 8 B. & C. 471. So where the attornment was made under a mistake. See Gravenor v. Woodhouse, 1 Bing. 38; supra, 973. And see Rogers v. Pilcher, 6 Taunt. 202. Secus, where the defendant has been let into possession by the plaintiff. A tenant, taking premises from A. and B., as trustees of C. and D., is estopped from the objection that they are the trustees of C. only. Fleming v. Gooding, 10 Bing. 549. But see Phillips v. Pearce, 5 B. & C. 433; supra, 717.

(g) A tenant continues to be liable until he can show a determination of the tenancy. Harland v. Bromley, 1 Starkie's C. 455; Harding v. Crethorne, 1 Esp. C. 57; Ward v. Mason, 9 Price, 291. But where A. held as tenant from year to year under B., and B. under a lease from C., which expired at Christmas, and A. continued in possession till Lady-day, when he paid a quarter's rent, and then quitted the premises; it was held that C. was not entitled to recover for use and occupation to a later time; for the only evidence of a new tenancy was the payment of a quarter's rent, which was as much applicable to a mere agreement for the quarter as to a supposed new tenancy from year to year. Freeman v. Jury, 1 M. & M. 19. See 1 Mo. & R. 215. Woodcock v. Nuth, 8 Bing. 170. If H. holds lands at will, rendering rent quarterly, the lessor may determine his will when he pleases: if within a quarter, he shall lose his rent for that quarter; if the lessee determine the tenancy within the quarter, he shall pay for the whole quarter. Leighton v. Theed, 2 Salk. 413.

Defence, determination of tenancy.

and that subsequently to the determination he has ceased to occupy the premises. As, that the tenancy has been determined by a regular notice to quit (h), or by mere lapse of time according to the terms of the original agreement, or by a subsequent agreement (i), or that the term has been surrendered actually (k) or in law (l), or that he has actually delivered up the premises to the plaintiff, who has taken possession under an agreement to put an end to the tenancy (m), or that he has become bankrupt, (h) Vide supra, 413.

(i) Where the rent, by express contract, was for a year from December 25th, payable quarterly, and in the middle of the April quarter, upon a dispute the tenant said, "I shall quit;" to which the landlord assented, and accepted the keys: it was held, first, that the jury might presume the original contract between the parties to be rescinded; and secondly, that as there was an express contract, the law would not imply a contract to pay rent for any period less than a quarter. Grimman v. Legge, 8 B. & C. 324.

(k) An actual surrender must be in writing; supra, 474; and the statute extends to tenancies from year to year. Botting v. Martin, 1 Camp. C. 317. A mere parol agreement to determine the tenancy is insufficient, and the tenant is liable to an action for use and occupation, notwithstanding a parol service to quit. Supra, 475. Thompson v. Wilson, 2 Starkie's C. 379. Johnston v. Huddleston, 4 B. & C. 922. Mollett v. Brayne, 2 Camp. C. 103. Matthews v. Stowell, 8 Taunt. 270. Johnstone v. Huddlestone, 4 B. & C. 922. A recital in a second lease of the surrender of the first, is not a sufficient note within the statute. Roe v. Archbishop of York, 6 East, 36. Words from which an intention to surrender may be inferred, will operate as an express surrender. But an agreement to surrender at a future time will not operate as a surrender when the time arrives. Parsons' Case, Dyer, 374, b. The cancelling of a lease of land does not destroy the continuance of the lease. Maginnis v. M'Culloch, Gilb. R. 235. Churchwardens of St. Saviour's, Southwark, 10 R. 66. Roe v. Archbishop of York, 6 East, 90. Sceus, in the case of an incorporeal hereditament lying in grant; supra, 382. An acceptance by the surrenderee is essential. Leach v. Thompson, 1 Show. 296. And an acceptance will not be presumed from the circumstance of rent having been paid to the landlord by a third person. Copeland v. The Executors of Gubbins, 1 Starkie's C. 96. It is essential to a complete surrender, that the landlord should have given up his old tenant and accepted a new one. Graham v. Wickelo, 1 C. & M. 188. The landlord received rent from A., tenant for a term of cottages and a stable, to the day when A. assigned them, being in the middle of a quarter; the assignee took possession of the stable, the cottages being occupied by sub-tenants to A.; on their quitting, the cottages were relet by the landlord: the whole were decreed to have been surrendered by operation of law. Reere v. Bird, 1 C. M. & R. 31; 4 Tyr. 612, S. C.

(l) It has been seen, that the taking a new lease, though by parol, operates as a surrender in law, on the principle of giving effect to the intention of the parties, which could not otherwise take effect so long as the former lease subsisted. Supra, 475. And therefore a second lease, void because by parol only, will not operate as a surrender of a former valid lease. Wilson v. Sewell, 4 Burr. 1980. Darison v. Stanley, ib. 2210. But although an agreement be by a parol, yet if both parties act upon it, the tenant is discharged; as where the premises are given up, and the landlord takes possession. Supra, 475; and see Whitehead v. Clifford, 3 Taunt. 518; Mollett v. Brayne, 2 Camp. 103. Secus, where the landlord merely placed a bill in the window, in order to have the premises let. Redpath v. Roberts, 3 Esp. C. 225. So if a third person be substituted as tenant by consent of all parties. Thomas v. Cooke, 2 B. & A. 119. Stone v. Whiting, 2 Starkie's C. 235. Walls v. Acheson, 3 Bing. 462. And the substituted tenant is liable. Phipps v. Sculthorpe, 1 B. & A. 50. In an action for use and occupation of a house for six months, it is sufficient for the landlord to show an occupation for the preceding six months as tenant; and it is not sufficient for the defendant to prove that the keys had been previously delivered to a servant at the plaintiff's house, and a declaration on the part of the plaintiff that the keys had been lost or mislaid. Harland v. Bromley, 1 Starkie's C. 465. The defendant, who occupied under a lease which expired at Lady-day 1829, paid a quarter's rent at Midsummer 1829, deducting something for repairs; he was not afterwards seen on the premises, but the rent was paid at irregular intervals by L., who was in occupation for the ensuing two years; held, that it was correctly left to a jury to find whether the lessor had accepted L. as a tenant, and the jury having found for the defendant, the Court refused to set aside the verdict. Woodcock v. Nuth, 8 Bing. 170.

(m) Whitehead v. Clifford, 5 Taunt. 518.

and that his assignees have accepted the lease or agreement, or that they declined it, and he delivered it to his lessor within fourteen days (n). Defence.

But it is no defence to show that the defendant has abandoned the actual possession, if the tenancy still remain undetermined (o). Thus, if a tenant from year to year neglect to give notice that he will quit, he will be liable to an action for use and occupation after the end of the year, although he actually quitted at the end of the year (p), and although the plaintiff, upon the abandonment of the premises by the defendant, advertised them to be let by putting up a bill in the window (q).

So the defendant may show in defence that his occupation of the premises originated in fraud or misrepresentation, and that he has in fact derived no benefit from such occupation; as, that he entered in the capacity of vendee, and gave up the possession on discovering that the vendor had no title (r).

So it is a good defence that the defendant, through the plaintiff's default, has had no beneficial occupation (s).

Where the action is brought by the assignee of the reversion, the defendant may show that he paid the rent to the assignor previous to the notice (t).

If the landlord evict (u) the tenant from parcel of the premises let at an (n) Under the stat. 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 75. Supra, tit. BANKRUPT.

(o) Supra, 475. 1176. 1181.

(p) Redpath v. Roberts, 3 Esp. C. 225.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Hearn v. Tomlin, Peake's C. 192, cor. Lord Kenyon. In that case the plaintiff representing that he had a longer term than he really had, agreed with the defendant to assign it to him, and the defendant took possession, and the occupation was rather injurious than beneficial to him; and Lord Kenyon held, that the vendor could not, on the vendee's rescinding the contract and giving up the premises, maintain this action to recover for the time during which he was in possession. In the case of Kirtland v. Pounsett, 2 Taunt. 145, the Court seemed to be of opinion, that the vendor could, in no case where the purchase went off for defect of title, maintain this action. The case was not, however, ultimately decided upon that ground, but on the consideration that the plaintiff had derived a sufficient compensation for the occupation from the interest of the defendant's money. In the subsequent case of Hull v. Vaughan, 6 Price, 169, the Court of Exchequer held, that where the contract had failed without any fault on the part of the vendor, and the occupation had been beneficial to the purchaser, the vendor might support the action, inasmuch as a title on the part of the plaintiff was not necessary to support the action, the declaration merely alleging an occupation by permission of the plaintiff. In that case, however, the action was against the vendee, who had obtained possession by fraud. It seems to be difficult, on legal principles, to say on what grounds the vendor is entitled to recover from the vendee where the title of the former turns out to be defective. He must recover, if at all, either on an express or an implied contract. The question then is, whether the law will imply a contract of one kind where the parties have themselves entered into an express contract of a different nature, and wholly inconsistent with the contract to be implied. Where the defendant has derived no benefit from the occupation, it would be contrary to justice and equity that he should be liable in respect of such occupation; and it would be a very precarious test to make the right to sue to depend upon a nice calculation of the quantum of benefit received. The statute, it is true, contemplates an occupation by the permission of the plaintiff, and is silent as to his title; but the statute also contemplates the relation of landlord and tenant, a relation which the parties never intended to constitute, and in fact never did constitute. It may be productive of great hardship to the defendant that the plaintiff, who is or who must be taken to be cognizant of his own title, should be able, upon a breach of his own agreement, to bind the defendant by a contract of an entirely different nature. See Hegan v. Johnson, 2 Taunt. 148; Neale v. Viney, 1 Camp. 471; supra, 974; Keating v. Bulkeley, supra, 1147. Hope v. Booth, 1 B. & Ad. 498.

(s) Edwards v. Etherington, R. & M. 268, supra. Where the premises have become unwholesome, for want of sufficient drainage and cannot be repaired without extravagant and unreasonable expense, the tenant may quit without notice. Collins v. Barron, 1 Mo. & R. 112, although he be bound to repair. Ib.

(t) Birch v. Wright, 1 T. R. 378. Moss v. Gallimore, Doug. 282; and see Lumley v. Hodgson, 16 East, 99.

(u) Where the defendant occupied

Defence.

entire rent, the latter, if he quit the residue, is discharged from the whole rent (x); but if he continue in possession of the remainder, he is liable pro tanto (y).

But it is no defence that the defendant quitted without notice, through fear of a distress by the superior landlord (z).

Where the defendant is charged on his own account, he may show in defence that he took possession merely in his representative capacity, and that he offered to deliver up the possession, having derived no benefit from the occupation; as, that he took possession as administrator, and that the premises being productive of no profit to him, he offered by parol, eight months after the death of the intestate, to deliver up the possession (a).

It is no defence that the plaintiff has brought an ejectment to recover the same premises, and has laid the demise on the day when the alleged tenancy commenced (b).

Or that the landlord has distrained goods of the full value of the rent if they have in fact been sold for less (c).

The plaintiff cannot recover if it appear that the premises were let for an illegal purpose (d). But an action is maintainable for the rent of a Jewish synagogue, such establishments not being prohibited by any law (e).

apartments of the plaintiff, and after complaint made of nuisances, which the jury found to be such as to render the occupation uncomfortable, and that the defendant quitted bonâ fide for such reason, held, that the plaintiff could not recover in use and occupation for the time between the quitting and the period of notice expiring. Cowie v. Goodwin, 9 C. & P. 378.

(x) Smith v. Raleigh, 2 Camp. 515. Supra, 48.

(y) Stokes v. Cooper, 3 Camp. 514, n. If A. lets to B., who underlets to C. and D., and A. give notice to C. and D. to quit, and C. quits accordingly, and the premises occupied by him lie vacant for a year, after which they are re-let by B., A. cannot recover against B. in respect of the premises held by C. for the time during which they were unoccupied. Burn v. Phelps, 1 Starkie's C. 94. Where the lessee took a farm under an agreement, which he did not sign, and the lessor failed to fulfil part of his agreement, as to allowing the lessee certain sporting privileges, it was held that the lessor could not recover the stipulated rent, but only according to the value of the land as found by the jury. Tomlinson v. Day, 2 B. & B. 680. The plaintiff, having underlet to defendant from year to year, with his consent put workmen in to repair a party-wall a short time before quarter-day, but the danger and inconvenience therefrom became so great, that the defendant, with his family and lodgers, were obliged to leave the premises before the quarter-day, and take lodgings elsewhere; the defendant, however, after paying his rent up to Midsummer, occupied the shop until the 5th July, when he quitted without any notice to the plaintiff; it was left to the jury to say, if the defendant had had any beneficial occupation of the premises; having found for the defendant, the Court refused a new trial, on the ground of misdirection. Edwards v. Hetherington, 7 D. & R. 117; and 1 Ry. & M. C. 265. See also Smith v. Raleigh, 3 Camp. C. 513; Hall v. Burgess, 5 B. & C. 332; Stokes v. Cooper, 3 Camp. C. 514, n.; Tomlinson v. Day, 2 B. & B. 680; Walls v. Atcheson, 3 Bing. 362.

(z) Rickett v. Tullieh, 6 C. & P. 66.

(a) Remmant v. Bremridge, 2 Moore, 94.

(b) Cobb v. Carpenter, 2 Camp. 13, n. But it would furnish a ground of application to the Court. And see Cowp. 246. But see the observations of Buller, J. 1 T. R. 386. And it would be otherwise after a recovery in ejectment, 1 T. R. 378; and see Bridges v. Smyth, 5 Bing. 410.

(c) Efford v. Burgess, 1 Mo. & R. 23. If they have been sold at too low a rate, the remedy is by action. Ib.

(d) As for the purpose of prostitution. Crisp v. Churchill, 1 B. & P. 340—1, n. Girarday v. Richardson, ibid. 1 Esp. C. 13; Selw. 65. Appleton v. Campbell, 2 C. & P. 347. Jennings v. Throgmorton, R. & M. 251. But see Lloyd v. Johnson, 1 B. & P. 340. A party cannot recover in use and occupation for weekly rent of premises occupied for purposes of prostitution, after he has become acquainted with the character of the party, and mode of living, although originally ignorant of it.

(e) Israel and others v. Simmons, 2 Starkie's C. 356.

Where the tenant has not occupied the premises, paid rent, or done any act from which a tenancy can be inferred, for six years, the Statute of Limitations is a good defence, though no notice to quit has ever been given (f). Limitation.

Where a witness was called by the plaintiff, who stated that he held the premises of one of the plaintiffs, it was held that he could not be asked whether he had not given them up to the defendant, without being released, and that the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 42, did not apply (g).

USURY.

To constitute usury (h) there must either be a direct loan, and a taking of more than legal interest for the forbearance of payment, or there must be some device for the purpose of concealing or evading the appearance of a loan, and forbearance, which really existed (i). What constitutes.

The offence imports a contract, a forbearance, and a taking of usurious interest (k).

Jennings v. Throgmorton, 1 Ry. & M. C. 251. In an action for board and lodging, it appeared that the defendant was a prostitute, and had boarded and lodged with the plaintiff, who kept a house of ill fame; and who, besides what she received for board and lodging, partook of the profits of her prostitution; and Lord Kenyon was of opinion that such a demand could not be heard of in a court of justice. Howard v. Hodges, Sel. N. P. 67, 4th ed.

(f) Leigh v. Thornton, 1 B. & A. 625.

(g) Hodson v. Marshall, 7 C. & P. 16.

(h) The stat. 12 Ann. st. 2, c. 16, enacts, that no person shall take, directly or indirectly, for loan of any monies, wares, merchandize, or other commodities whatsoever, above the value of 5 l. for the forbearance of 100 l. for a year, and so after that rate, &c.; and that all bonds, contracts, and assurances whatsoever, for payment of any principal or money to be lent, or covenant to be performed, upon or for any thing whereupon or whereby there shall be received or taken above the rate of 5 l. in the 100 l., shall be utterly void: * and that every person who shall take, accept and receive, by way or means of any corrupt bargain, loan, exchange, chevisance, shift, or interest of any wares, merchandize, or other thing or things whatsoever, or by any deceitful way or means, or by any covin, engine, or deceitful conveyance for the forbearing, &c., shall forfeit and lose for every such offence the treble value of the monies, wares, merchandizes, and other things so lent, bargained, exchanged, or shifted.

(i) Barclay v. Walmesley, 4 East, 56.

(k) An agreement to give more than its value for stock in the public funds belonging to a retiring partner, to remain in possession of the firm, is usurious, it being manifest that the difference was intended to be given for forbearance. Parker v. Ramsbottom, 3 B. & C. 257. So is a loan of stock to be repaid, at the option of the lender, by replacing the stock, or by the produce, with 5 l. per cent. interest. White v. Wright, 3 B. & C. 272. And see Chippendale v. Thurston, 1 M. & M. 421. Although the contracts be contained in different instruments. 3 B. & C. 257. It is usury in the discounter of a bill of exchange to stipulate for a premium to be paid to the agent who procured the discount, though he himself took no more than the legal discount. Meago v. Simmons, 1 M. & M. C. 121. An agreement to reinvest the sum in consols, at a price not exceeding —— l. or repay the amount in bank-notes, on the lender giving six months' notice, is usurious, as the option was with the lender, and he could not receive less than five per cent., and might receive much beyond the sum lent, if the funds rose above the stipulated amount. Chippendale v. Thurston, 1 Mo. & M. 421; and 4 C. & P. 98. An annuity was granted for a specific number of years, payable half-yearly, and for the payments promissory notes were given, payable respectively when the annuities would become due, the total amount being equal to the consideration and 12 per cent. interest; held that the transaction was plainly usurious. Fereday v. Wightwick, 1 Russ. & M. 50. Where an annuity was granted for four lives, with a covenant that the grantor would insure the principal and assign the policy to the grantee, within 30 days after the expiration of the third life; held not to be usurious. In re Naish, 7 Bing. 150. And see Grigg v. Stoker, Forr. 4. A loan, by way of mortgage, was secured by a deed executed 9th Sept. 1826, payable at the end of one year, and reserving five per cent. payable half-yearly on 8th March and 8th September, and the bonus alleged as the usurious transaction

* This provision is now modified by the stat. 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 41, s. 2, supra, 246.

Usury will not be presumed (l).

Proof of the contract.

The usurious contract, like any other contract, must be proved as alleged; and a variance as to the quantum of usurious interest will be fatal. In this respect, an indictment for usury differs from an indictment for taking more than 10 s. in the pound for brokerage (m); for there the offence consists in the simple excess, and the quantum of that excess being immaterial, a variance from it in evidence will not be material (n).

Contract Variance.

If the declaration state an absolute agreement, and the proof be of an agreement in the alternative to forbear to the one or other of two days, at the option of the borrower, the variance will be fatal (o).

But it is sufficient to prove the loan or forbearance according to its substance and legal effect (p).

A forbearance by C. to A. is proved by evidence that A. is debtor to B., and B. to C., and of an agreement for an usurious consideration to be paid to C. that he shall take A. as his debtor (q), although B. join A. in the security to C. (r). So it would be by evidence of a loan by C. to B., and the giving a note as security by A. to C., more than legal interest having been taken for forbearance on the note (s).

An allegation of a loan of a specific sum of money is satisfied by evidence of a loan to that amount, part in money, and part in uncoined gold of a certain definite value, which the borrower agreed to take as cash (t).

On a count for usury in discounting two bills of exchange, one of which is described to have been drawn by B. on a certain person, to wit, John K., evidence of a bill drawn on Abraham K. is a fatal variance (u).

In an action at the suit of an indorsee against the maker of a promissory note, a letter written by the payee to the maker, cotemporary with the making of the note, is evidence to prove usury (x).

Usurious interest.

The offence is completed in the county where the usurious interest is received, and the offence should be laid there (y).

Where usurious interest has been taken by means of an agent, it is not essential to call the agent himself; such a rule, it has been observed, would be very inconvenient (z).

A. lends money to B. at usurious interest, B. gives A. a bill for the principal and interest; A. lends money to B. to take up the bill; the usury is complete on B.'s taking up the bill (a).

was paid in January 1827: held that upon the payment of the first half-year's interest on the 8th March following, the offence of usury was complete, for which an action for penalties might have been brought, and that the Court would not, in order to subject a party to a penalty, presume that part of the bonus applied to the payment of interest in September; no part therefore of the usurious interest having been received within the year, the action was too late. 7 Bing. 150.

(l) Ferguson v. Spring, 1 Add. & Ell. 576.

(m) Under the stat. 17 Geo. 3, c. 26, s. 7.

(n) R. v. Gilham, 6 T. R. 265.

(o) Tate v. Wellings, 3 T. R. 531.

(p) In order to constitute usury there must be a loan (or forbearance) of money by one to another. And consequently an agreement of partnership which provides for an advance of money by one, which is to become joint-stock, cannot, if made bonâ fide, be usurious, although the partner advancing the money, 20,000 l., is to take 2,000 l. per annum out of the profits, or out of the principal if the profits be insufficient, and 20,000 l. at the end of the term. And it is for the jury to decide whether the agreement was bonâ fide with a view to a partnership, or a mere cloak for usury. Gilpin v. Enderby, 5 B. & A. 954.

(q) Wade v. Wilson, 1 East, 195.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Manners v. Postan, 3 B. & P. 343.

(t) Barbe v. Parker, 1 H. B. 283.

(u) Hutchinson v. Piper, 4 Taunt. 810.

(x) Kent v. Lowen, 1 Camp. C. 177.

(y) Supra, 848, K. B. Hil. 1825; vide infra, tit. VENUE.

(z) Per Chambre, J., 1 N. R. 103.

(a) Wright v. Laing, 3 B. & C. 165.

In an action for penalties for having deducted more than legal interest in discounting a bill of exchange, in order to prove the actual receipt of the amount of the bill, it was proved that a demand had been made on the acceptor by a person of the name of Brown, and that proceedings had been instituted by him to compel payment; in consequence of which, a person on behalf of the acceptor paid to Brown the amount of the bill and the costs of suit, on his producing the bill, for which Brown gave his receipt as the agent for Barrow, the present defendant; and it was held that this was sufficient evidence of the fact to go to a jury, although the proceedings were not produced, and although it was not proved that Brown was in fact the attorney for the defendant (b). Usurious interest.

Whether the sum taken under the name of commission be a reasonable remuneration for trouble, or be but a cloak for usury, is a question of fact for the determination of the jury (c). And where there is conflicting evidence upon the subject, the Court will not grant a new trial unless it be manifest that the jury have decided erroneously (d).

A fresh contract made by parties privy to an usurious agreement, and in furtherance of it, is void (e). But a fresh contract made between the same parties in repudiation of the original usury, or with an innocent party who was not privy to the usury, is binding: thus, a fresh security given for the balance of a debt originally usurious is void (f); and a subsequent usurious contract does not vitiate a former one which was legal. A bargain is made for the return of stock which at the time is worth 10,000 l.; a subsequent agreement is made, when the same stock is worth but 8,000 l., for a return of 10,000 l. and 5 per cent.; the latter contract is illegal, but the former remains valid (g). Where usurious securities have been destroyed by mutual consent, a promise by the borrower to pay the principal and legal interest is binding (h). If A. for an usurious consideration give his promissory note to B., who transfers it to C. for value, without notice of the usury, and afterwards A. gives a bond to C. for the amount, the bond is valid (i). But it would be otherwise if A. gave the bond to B. (k). Effect of usury.

A bonâ fide debt is not extinguished by being mingled with an usurious transaction (l).

The borrower of money at usurious interest is a competent witness for the plaintiff, in an action to recover penalties from the lender (m). Competency.

(b) Owen v. Barrow, 1 N. R. 101. The circumstance upon which the Court appear to have principally relied was the possession of the bill itself by Brown. Where usury is committed by the wife, who lends money which is secured by bond to her husband, the bond is void, for the husband is liable civiliter, though not criminaliter, for the act of the wife. Barnet v. Tompkyns, Skinn. 348.

(c) Corstairs v. Stein, 4 M. & S. 192. See also Doe d. Grimes v. Gooch, 3 B. & A. 664.

(d) Ibid.

(e) A party cannot recover on a new instrument which operates as a security for any usurious interest, although it is founded on a new settlement of the account between the borrower and the lender, and the original securities have been cancelled. Preston v. Jackson, 2 Starkie's C. 237. A debt, though usuriously contracted, is still a debt; the statutes merely preclude the remedy, and a court of equity will not relieve but on the terms of paying what is really due. Stanton v. Knight, 1 Sim. 482.

(f) Pickering v. Banks, Forrest, 72; Cuthbert v. Haley, 8 T. R. 390.

(g) Parker v. Ramsbottom, 3 B. & C. 357.

(h) Barnes v. Headley, 2 Taunt. 184. See also Wright v. Wheeler, 1 Camp. C. 165.

(i) Cuthbert v. Haley, 8 T. R. 390.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Gray v. Fowler, 1 H. B. 462. If a bond be given without usury, the taking usurious interest afterwards will not avoid the bond. Dalton's Case, Noy, 171; Vin. Ab. Ev. T. b. 124.

(m) Abrahams v. Bunn, 4 Burr. 2251; Smith v. Prager, 7 T. R. 60; supra, 10.

Competency.

By the statute 2 & 3 Vict. c. 37, bills of exchange, &c. payable at or within twelve months after date, or not having more than twelve months to run, and contracts for the loan or forbearance of money above the sum of 10*l.*, are not to be affected by the statutes against usury, provided that the statute shall not extend to the loan or forbearance of any money upon security of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any estate or interest therein (n).

VENDOR AND VENDEE.

Action by the vendor of real property.

The vendor of a real estate, in an action against a purchaser for not completing the contract according to his agreement, must prove, 1st, the agreement; 2dly, the performance of conditions precedent; 3dly, damage, if he seek to recover more than nominal damages.

The contract to be valid must be in writing (o), and a sale by auction is within the statute (p).

Conditions precedent.

2dly. The performance of conditions precedent (q).—The vendor must prove, either that he has executed the conveyance, or that he has offered to do so, unless the vendee has discharged him from so doing (r).

Where A. agreed to sell an estate to B. before a particular day, for the sum of —l., in consideration whereof B. agreed to pay that sum on that day, and on failure, to pay the sum of 21 l., it was held that A. could not recover the 21 l. without showing that he had conveyed the estate to B., or that he had tendered a conveyance properly executed (s).

And where the plaintiff covenanted to sell a house to the defendant, and to convey the same before the 1st of August, and to deliver possession of the same on a previous day, and the defendant in consideration thereof covenanted to pay the plaintiff 120 l. on or before the 1st day of August, it was held that the plaintiff could not maintain an action for the 120 l. without averring that he had conveyed or tendered a conveyance to the defendant (t).

The purchaser may refuse to accept a conveyance executed under a power of attorney (u).

But if on tendering a draft to the defendant he refuse to read it, and dis-Spenceley, q. t., v. De Willott, 7 East, 108. Vol. 1. tit. Witness.

(n) See Appendix, 1188.

(o) 29 C. 2, c. 3, s. 4; supra, 475.

(p) Supra, 479.

(q) In agreements, the question whether covenants be dependent or independent, depends upon the intention of the parties. They are usually considered to be dependent, unless a contrary intention appear. See 1 Will. Saund. 320; 2 Will. Saund. 352, b.; Smith v. Woodhouse, 2 N. R. 233; Havelock v. Geddes, 10 East, 555; supra, tit. Assumpsit. Agreement for the purchase of premises, to pay a deposit, and sign an agreement to pay the remainder on a stated day on having a good title made; after which, and part of the purchase-money paid, a further agreemant was made as to payment for certain disputed articles, and to pay the residue of the purchase-money with interest upon the vendor's making a good title, "or otherwise, if such title was not then completed, that the vendor should execute a bond to complete such title, and to convey the estate as soon as the same could be completed;" held that such clause did not dispense with the engagement to make a good title, but was intended only to guard against supineness and delay in doing it, and that the question of title was therefore properly referred. Clark v. Faux, 3 Russ. 320.

(r) Jones v. Barkley, Dougl. 684: Phillips v. Fielding, 2 H. B. 123; 3 East, 443. But it is no defence to an action on a bill of exchange, given as a consideration for an estate, that the vendor has refused to convey. Moggeridge v. Jones, 14 East, 436; 3 Camp. 38. Swan v. Cox, 1 Marsh. 176.

(s) Goodison v. Nunn, 4 T. R. 761.

(t) Glazebrooke v. Woodrow, 8 T. R. 366. Supra, 69. See also Morton v. Lamb, 7 T. R. 129. Mason v. Corder, 7 Taunt. 9; 2 Marsh. 332. Ferry v. Williams, 8 Taunt. 62.

(u) Coore v. Callaway, 1 Esp. C. 115, cor. Lord Kenyon; Richards v. Barton, 1 Esp. 268. See Baxter v. Lewis, Forrest, 61.

charge the plaintiff from executing it, it is sufficient to prove this; it is not incumbent on the plaintiff to go on and do a nugatory act (x). And where by the terms of the agreement the vendee is to prepare the conveyance, the vendor may maintain an action without tendering a conveyance (y); and if the conveyance is to be executed at the expense of the vendee, the latter is bound to tender it (z). Conditions precedent.

Where the defendant agrees to pay the whole or part of the purchase-money on having a good title, it is necessary for the vendor to allege what title he had, and to prove it accordingly (a). But where the vendor averred that he was seised in fee, and made a good and satisfactory title to the purchaser by the time specified in the conditions of sale, it was held to be sufficient, and that it was unnecessary for him to show how he deduced his title to the fee (b).

And even where the title is set out, it has been held by Lord Kenyon to be sufficient to produce the title deeds at the trial, without proving their execution (c). He said, that where the question was respecting a title he would never allow that the party should be called upon to prove the execution of all the deeds deducing a long title; that it was never mentioned in the abstract, or expected, in making out a title in the case of any purchase, more particularly where possession has accompanied them. Yet in a later case Mansfield, C. J., held at Nisi Prius, that the vendor of the residue of a term, being the third or fourth assignee, was bound to prove all the mesne assignments (d). But it has since been held that in the absence of an express stipulation to the contrary, the vendor of a lease impliedly undertakes to make out the lessor's title to demise (e). And the vendee may insist on defects which he has discovered in the lessor's, although by the conditions of sale it is stipulated that the vendor should not produce the lessor's title (f).

The plaintiff sold a lease, and by the conditions "was not to produce any (x) Jones v. Barkley, Dougl. 684; 5 East, 502. Phillips v. Fielding, 2 H. B. 123. Wilmot v. Wilkinson, 6 B. & C. 506. A., the patron of a living, in consideration of the sum of 7,000 l., agrees to present B.'s nominee to a living on the next avoidance, and to furnish an abstract and execute a conveyance. A. afterwards, with the assent of B., agrees to sell the presentation to C., and to convey such title as he (A.) had received, in consideration of 7,500 l., of which 500 l. was to be paid to B. on a day appointed. A. furnished an abstract of such title as he had, but B. refused to take it, and no conveyance was tendered. Held that there was a sufficient consideration to entitle B. to recover the 500 l. from C., and that it was not necessary to tender a conveyance. Wilmot v. Wilkinson, 6 B. & C. 506.

(y) Hawkins v. Kemp, 3 East, 410.

(z) Seward v. Willock, 5 East, 198. Qu. whether it be not a general rule, in the absence of any express stipulation, that the purchaser ought to prepare and tender the conveyance. See Sugden's Law of Vendor and Purchaser, 222. And it was so held in Baxter v. Lewis, 1 Forrest, 61. And see Martin v. Smith, 2 Smith, 543; 6 East, 555. But see Heard v. Wadham, 1 East, 627; Lord Eldon's opinion, in Seton v. Slade, 7 Ves. jun. 278; Sir A. Macdonald's, in Growsock v. Smith, 3 Anstr. 877; Lord Rosslyn's, in Pincke v. Curteis, 4 Bro. C. C. 332. Where it is stipulated that a lease shall be prepared at the expense of the lessor, in the absence of any explanation to the contrary, it is to be intended that the lessor is to prepare it also. Price v. Williams, 1 M. & W. 6. And see Sug. V. & P. 222.

(a) Phillips v. Fielding, 2 H. B. 123. See the Duke of St. Alban's v. Shore, 1 H. B. 270. And where a good title is to be made out by a certain day, the vendee is not bound to make any application before the day. Berry v. Young, 2 Esp. C. 640, n. cor. Lord Kenyon.

(b) Martin v. Smith, 6 East, 555.

(c) Thomson v. Miles, 1 Esp. C. 184. Sug. V. & P. 216. Contra, Crosby v. Percy, 1 Camp. 303.

(d) Crosby v. Percy, 1 Camp. 303. But Lord Kenyon's decision was not cited. See Sugden's V. & P. &c. 216.

(e) Souter v. Drake, 3 N. & M. 40.

(f) Shepherd v. Keatley, 1 C. M. & R. 117; 4 Tyr. 571.

Conditions precedent.

title prior to the lease;" it was held that he was bound to produce and prove the lease in the ordinary manner (g).

The vendor of a leasehold interest is not, without express stipulation, bound to prove the title of the lessor (h).

Although it is unnecessary to notice in the declaration, representations contained in the particulars of sale as to the state of repair, and other collateral matters, yet it is essential to prove at the trial that the plaintiff can make title to the several matters as sold (i). Thus, where the particulars of sale state a right of cart-way to be appurtenant to a house, it is sufficient to set out so much of the agreement as relates to the house, without stating that part which relates to the cart-way, but still the title to the cart-way must be proved on the trial (k).

What are usual covenants in a lease seems in doubtful cases to be a question of fact (l). In such a case, a general statement by the witness that in six cases out of ten such covenants were contained in leases, was held to be admissible without producing the leases (m).

The purchaser of a lease under a contract, describing it as containing none but the usual covenants, is not bound to accept an assignment if the lease contain an unusual covenant, although it be bad in law (n).

A defendant who has never applied for a title is not allowed to set up the want of it against the plaintiff who has obtained one (o), after the commencement of the action.

But upon an undertaking by the vendor to convey a new inclosure to the vendee, he must convey the legal estate; it is not sufficient for the vendor to substitute the vendee's name for his own, to entitle him to an assignment from the commissioners (p).

Title.

It is not sufficient to show by mere presumptive evidence that the premises have been discharged from an incumbrance to which they were formerly subject.

Where a leasehold was sold as subject to a ground-rent, which was said to have been apportioned out of a larger rent, but such an apportionment was not evidenced by any existing deed, but only by presumptive evidence, it was held that the purchaser was not bound to accept the title (q).

(g) Laythorpe v. Bryant, 1 Bing. N. C. 421; 5 M. & S. 327. Tindall, J., founded his opinion on the ground that having alleged his possession of a lease, he was bound to prove it.

(h) George v. Pritchard, 1 Ry. & M. C. 417. And see Sugden's V. & P. 301, 7th edit. Gwillim v. Stone, 3 Taunt. 433. Purris v. Roger, 9 Price. 488. Fielder v. Hooker, 2 Meriv. 424. Temple v. Browne, 6 Taunt. 60.

(i) Thomson v. Miles, 1 Esp. C. 184. Where the vendee agreed to purchase two leases, and to accept an assignment without requiring the vendor's title, it was held that he was precluded from objecting to the lessor's title, in an action by him to recover the deposit. Spratt v. Jefferey, 10 B. & C. 249.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Where the vendee of the lease of a public-house had notice of the net rent reserved, and that the lease contained the usual covenants, it was held that this included a covenant on the part of the lessee to pay sewers-rate and land-tax. K. B. Hil. 1828.

(m) K. B. Hil. 1828.

(n) Hartley v. Pchall, Peake's C. 131, cor. Lord Kenyon. See also Waring v. Hoggart, R. & M. 30.

(o) Per Lord Kenyon, in Thomson v. Miles, 1 Esp. C. 184. But if a good title be not made out, on the defendant's application, on the day appointed for the completion of the purchase, or afterwards, he may, it seems, abandon the contract. Cornish v. Rowley, 1 Sel. N. P. 175. Berry v. Young, 2 Esp. C. 640. See also Sugden's V. & P. 355, 7th ed. Lang v. Gale, 1 M. & S. 111. Haydorn v. Laing, 1 Marsh. 514. Wilde v. Fort, 4 Taunt. 344. Barlett v. Tuchin, 6 Taunt. 259.

(p) Cane v. Baldwin and others, 1 Starkie's C. 65.

(q) Barnwell v. Harris, 1 Taunt. 430. Where a title under a conveyance is forti-Conditions precedent. Title.

Where the objection to a title was that it was doubtful whether the wife of a party to a deed thirty years old, was barred by that deed of her dower, it was held that it was no answer to prove upon the trial that the wife was dead, no such proof having been given before (r).

It seems that a court of law will take notice of equitable objections to titles. It would be fruitless to compel the defendant to pay money which a court of equity would order him to refund (s).

Where the words of the condition were, that the vendor should make out a good title, it was held that he must make out a title good both at law and in equity (t), for the question is, whether the condition has been complied with.

Ejectment by a vendor.

A vendor who has let the intended vendee into possession cannot recover the premises by ejectment without proof of a demand of possession, for till then the possession is lawful (u), unless the defendant agreed to quit possession on a day previous to the day of the demise, for then, on non-performance, ejectment will lie (x).

A vendor who has let the vendee into possession, but who can make no title, cannot recover for growing crops which were to be taken at a valuation, the contract being entire (y); neither, as it seems, can he recover for use and occupation (z).

Action by vendee.

Where the contract has been broken by the vendor, the purchaser may either proceed to recover damages for the breach of contract, or where the contract may be rescinded in toto (a), may recover his deposit.

fied by sixty years' possession, the loss of a recited deed throws no reasonable doubt upon the title. Prosser v. Watts, 6 Madd. 59.

(r) Wilde v. Fort, 4 Taunt. 344.

(s) Maberly v. Robins, 1 Marsh. 258; 5 Taunt. 625; and per Ld. Alvanley, in Elliott v. Edwards, 3 B. & P. 181; Sug. V. & P. 219. But in the case of Allpass v. Watkins (8 T. R. 516), Ld. Kenyon held that a court of law could not enter into equitable objections to a title where the purchaser is plaintiff. And see Romilly v. James, 1 Marsh. 600. R. v. Toddington, 1 B. & A. 560; 2 Phill. Ev. 101; Roscoe on Ev. 190.

(t) Maberly v. Robins, 1 Marsh. 258. And the Court will adjudge a title to be good or bad, and decide accordingly, without considering whether it is a marketable title. Maberly v. Robins, 5 Taunt. 625. Camfield v. Gilbert, 4 Esp. C. 221. Romilly v. James, 6 Taunt. 263. The plaintiff cannot in such case recover when he has not so exclusive an interest as he has contracted to sell. Farrer v. Nightingale, 2 Esp. C. 639; Hibbert v. Shee, 1 Camp. 113. Or where the premises are subject to an incumbrance of which no notice has been given. Turner v. Beaurain, cited Sugden's V. & P. 261. Barnwell v. Harris, 1 Taunt. 430. Where property is sold in lots, the sales will, in the absence of some stipulation to the contrary, be regarded as distinct, and a defect as to the title to one will not affect the question as to the rest. Poole v. Shergood, 2 Bro. C. C. 118. Emmerson v. Heelis, 2 Taunt. 38. Supra, tit. FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.

(u) Right v. Beard, 13 East, 210; Doe v. Lawder, 1 Starkie's C. 308. See Hegan v. Johnson, 2 Taunt. 148. If the party were lawfully in possession at the time of the action brought, it is an answer to the action, whatever be the time of the demise. Doe d. Newby v. Jackson, 1 B. & C. 448.

(x) Doe v. Sayer, 3 Camp. 8. And if a third person under such circumstances has come into possession, ejectment may be maintained against him without notice. Doe v. Bolton, 6 M. & S. 148. So where a man got into possession of a house without the privity of the landlord, and the parties having entered into a negotiation for a lease differed about the value of fixtures, it was held that at most this was a tenancy by sufferance, and that a notice was unnecessary. Doe v. Quigley, 2 Cowp. 105; and see Doe v. Pullen, 2 Bing. N. C. 749. And see Doe v. Smith, 6 East, 530. Doe v. Breach, 6 Esp. C. 106. Note, That the tenant had entered under an agreement for a lease which had not been granted, and the ejectment was for a breach of a covenant in the intended lease.

(y) Neale v. Viney, 1 Camp. 471; supra, 1183.

(z) Hearn v. Tomlin, Peake's C. 172; supra, 1183.

(a) Supra, tit. ASSUMPSIT.—MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED. The action may be brought in the name of the principal against the vendor.

Action by vendee of real estate.

Where the purchaser is to prepare the conveyance he cannot maintain an action for breach of contract, or to recover the deposit, without proving a tender of a conveyance, unless he be discharged by the act of the vendor; or unless the preparing a conveyance would be a nugatory act for want of title in the vendor(b); or where he has otherwise disposed of the estate(c).

Particular of objections.

Where the vendee objects to the abstract of title, as insufficient, defective and objectionable, the Court will, at the instance of the defendant, require the plaintiff to deliver a particular, specifying the matters of fact which he intends to rely upon at the trial, as being the cause of his not being able to complete the purchase(d); but he is not bound to state any objection in point of law arising from the abstract(e). And where no such particular has been obtained, the plaintiff is not confined at the trial to those objections which he has stated to the vendor, but may rely on any other(f).

But where on rescinding the contract a particular objection to the abstract was inscribed on it, it was held that the plaintiff could not at the trial insist on other objections which were not taken, and which, if taken, might have been removed(g).

Where the vendee in a special action for breach of contract relies on a defect in title, he must prove the defect; it is not sufficient to prove the mere opinions of conveyancers(h).

Where an auctioneer does not disclose the name of his principal, an action lies against him for breach of contract(i). Where the purchaser recovers the deposit only from the auctioneer, he may, in a special action against the vendor, recover interest and the expense of investigating the title(k).

Damages.

The plaintiff is entitled to recover as damages, not merely the expenses which he has incurred in consequence of the non-performance of the contract, but in general for the loss sustained in consequence of the defendant's failure to complete the contract, even although the defendant is unable to complete the contract in consequence of the default of another(l).

He is entitled to recover as damages, on counts properly framed, not only the amount of his deposit, but also interest upon it, and even interest on the residue of the purchase-money, which has been lying ready to be paid without making interest(m). It seems that he may also recover the expenses incurred in investigating the title(n). And where the vendor

(b) Seaward v. Willock, 5 East, 198. Lowndes v. Bray, cor. Ld. Ellenborough, Sitt. after Trin. Term, 1810; Sugden's V. & P. 223, 6th edit.

(c) Knight v. Crockford, 1 Esp. C. 189. See the Duke of St. Alban's v. Shore, 1 H. B. 270.

(d) Collett v. Thompson, 3 B. & P. 246.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Squire v. Todd, 1 Camp. 293. Collett v. Thompson, 3 B. & P. 246. Todd v. Hoggart, M. & M. 128.

(g) Todd v. Hoggart, 1 M. & M. C. 128. See Squire v. Todd, 1 Camp. C. 293.

(h) Camfield v. Gilbert, 4 Esp. C. 221.

(i) Hanson v. Roberdeau, Peake's C. 120; and see Owen v. Gooch, 2 Esp. C. 567, and supra, tit. AGENT.

(k) Farquhar v. Farley, 7 Taunt. 492.

(l) Hopkins v. Grazebrooke, 6 B. & C. 31. But note that in this case the vendor was in fault in representing himself to be the owner of the property, when in truth he was not so. See 10 B. & C. 420.

(m) Flureau v. Thornhill, 2 Blackst. 1078. Sugden's V. & P. 221. 504, 7th edit. De Bernales v. Wood, 3 Camp. 258. Richards v. Barton, 1 Esp. C. 268. If the purchase-money has been lying ready without interest being made of it, it seems that such interest cannot be recovered. Sweetland v. Smith, 1 C. & M. 585; 3 Tyr. 491.

(n) Kirtland v. Pounsett, 2 Taunt. 145; Turner v. Beaurain, cor. Lord Ellenborough, Guildh. 2d June 1806. But see Camfield v. Gilbert, 4 Esp. C. 221; and Wilde v. Fort, 4 Taunt. 344, where Mansfield, C. J. held the contrary, and ruled also, that interest on the deposit was not recoverable. Unless the purchaser can establish the contract of sale, he cannot recover the expenses of investigation. Gosbell v. Archer, 4 N. & M. 485. As to misrepresents the charges affecting the estate, the purchaser may recover the interest of money procured to complete the purchase, as well as the expenses of investigating the title and completing the conveyance(o); as where the intended grantor of an annuity represents that there are no judgments against him, in consequence of which the intended purchaser does not search until the transaction is ready to be completed (p). And if the action be brought against an agent who sold without sufficient authority, the plaintiff may also recover the costs of a suit against the principal for a specific performance (q). Damages.

The purchaser is not entitled to recover expenses incurred previously to entering into the contract, nor the expense of a survey made before he knows whether the title is good or not, nor the expense of a conveyance drawn under the expectation of making the purchase, nor the extra costs of a suit in equity by the vendor in which he is defeated, nor losses sustained on the resale of stock for the farm (r).

Where the vendee relies on a defect in the vendor's title, and no fraud is imputable to the vendor, the plaintiff does not usually recover damages (s). Action by vendee.

If on breach of contract by the vendor the vendee elect to disaffirm the contract in respect of the supposed goodness of his bargain (t), and to recover the deposit as money had and received to his use, he must prove the circumstances, and show that the contract is wholly unexecuted (u) by the vendor's default; but if there has been a part execution of the con- Money had and received.

interest, see ib. and the st. 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 28; and supra, tit. INTEREST.

(o) Richards v. Barton, 1 Esp. C. 268; Turner v. Beaurain, Sugden's V. & P. 221. 504, 7th edit. Coore v. Callaway, 1 Esp. C. 115. See Lord Kenyon's observations. The expenses of investigation are not recoverable under the count for money payments. Camfield v. Gilbert, 4 Esp. C. 221.

(p) Coore v. Callaway, 1 Esp. C. 115. Richards v. Burton, 1 Esp. C. 268.

(q) Jones v. Dyke, Sugden's V. & P. App. No. 8.

(r) Hodges v. Earl of Litchfield, 1 Bing. N. C. 492.

(s) See 3 B. & P. 107; Flureau v. Thornhill, 2 Blackst. 1078; Brig's Case, Palm. 364. Walker v. Moore, 10 B. & C. 416. In the case of Bratt v. Ellis, (C. B. Mich. & Hil. T. 45 Geo. 3, cited in Mr. Sugden's Treatise, App. No. 7,) where an auctioneer having a lien on property, sold it after the expiration of the authority given him by the owner, who refused to complete the contract, the Court is stated to have held that the purchaser was not entitled to more than the deposit, with interest, the costs of investigating the title, and the costs of the action, as between attorney and client; although the jury, on the execution of a writ of inquiry, after judgment by default, had given a verdict for 350*l.*, allowing 250*l.* as damages for the loss of the bargain. Where the purchaser upon a bonâ fide sale of lands, before he had examined the abstract with the original deeds, resold the greater portion, but upon a subsequent discovery of a defect in the title the purchasers refused to complete their contracts; held that the original purchaser having prematurely offered the premises for sale, before he had ascertained whether the abstract was correct or not, he was not entitled to recover by way of damages for loss of the bargain, nor for expenses incurred on such estate, and the costs of the sub-purchasers in examining the title. And semble, it is against the policy of the law that a party should offer an estate for sale before he has obtained possession and a conveyance. Walker v. Moore, 10 B. & C. 416.

(t) The vendee may rescind the contract when a material fact affecting the contract is omitted in the conditions of sale. Waring v. Hoggart, R. & M. 39. Ballard v. Wray, M. & W. 320. So where from an abstract of title, delivered before the time when the conveyance was to be made, the vendor appears to have no title. Roper v. Coombes, 6 B. & C. 535. Waring v. Hoggart, R. & M. 39. Ballard v. Wray, 1 M. & W. 520.

(u) Hunt v. Silk, 5 East, 449. Squire v. Todd, 1 Camp. 293; 2 Barr. 1011. Farrer v. Nightingale, 2 Esp. C. 639. Levy v. Haw, 1 Taunt. 65. The vendor is bound to make out a good title on the day on which the purchase is to be completed. If he deliver an abstract, setting out a defective title, which the vendee objects to, or does not verify the title according to the abstract delivered, the vendee is entitled to rescind the contract. Berry v. Young, 2 Esp. C. 640 (n). Cornish v. Rowley. Sel. N. P. 170.

Action by vendee. Money had and received.

tract, such that it cannot be wholly rescinded, so as to place the parties in statu quo, the party must resort to his action for breach of the special contract (v). But the plaintiff will be entitled to recover his deposit where the agreement has been vacated by the mutual default of the parties, although it contain stipulations for liquidated damages in case of nonperformance (w).

The purchaser may recover the deposit as money had and received to his use, though the agreement for sale be unsigned and unstamped (x).

This action may be maintained by the principal who has paid the money, although his agent made the purchase, and signed the contract in his own name and was considered to be the principal by the vendor (y). But although the principal may sue where the agent has contracted in his name, the converse of the proposition is not true; and where a man describes himself as contracting in the character of an agent, it seems that he cannot shift his situation, and declare himself to be the principal, and the supposed principal to be a mere creature of straw; at all events, to enable himself to sue as principal, it is necessary that he should give previous notice to the defendant of his real situation, otherwise he cannot recover (z). But one who has signed the contract as agent for another, may maintain the action against the vendor, where the contract is rescindable, if the principal has denied that he gave authority and has repudiated the contract (a).

The plaintiff in this form of action cannot recover more than the money paid, although the estate has risen in value; but it seems that he may recover the money actually paid, although the estate has been diminished in value, but this has been doubted (b). He cannot recover the expenses of conveyancers' opinions, and other expenses incurred in investigating the title on the money-counts (c).

And where the original contract is void by the Statute of Frauds, for want of an agreement in writing, the plaintiff, it seems, can recover no more than his deposit without interest (d).

An auctioneer is considered as a stakeholder (e), and should not part with the deposit until the sale has been carried into effect (f), and he cannot discharge himself by paying over the amount to the vendor (g). At all events he cannot do so after notice.

(v) Where A. agreed to let B. into immediate possession of a house, and to repair it, and execute a lease within ten days, in consideration of which B. paid 10*l.* and took possession, and A. neglected to execute the lease, and make the repairs beyond the ten days, and B. continued in possession after the ten days, it was held that B. could not afterwards rescind the contract. Hunt v. Silk, 5 East, 449.

(w) Clarke v. King, 1 Ry. & M. C. 394.

(x) Adams v. Fairbairn, 2 Starkie's C. 277.

(y) The Duke of Norfolk v. Worthy, 1 Camp. 337. See Edden v. Read, 3 Camp. 338. The payment of the deposit to the agent who made the contract with the plaintiff on behalf of the owner, is a payment to the vendor.

(z) Bickerton v. Burrell, 5 M. & S. 383. The action will lie against an auctioneer, to recover a deposit on a contract of sale, in which the plaintiff had signed himself "J. Bickerton for C. Richardson." And semble, an unnamed principal ought to give the like notice. Ib.

(a) Langstroth v. Toulmin, 3 Starkie's C. 145.

(b) See Sugden's Treatise, 212, 6th edit.

(c) Camfield v. Gilbert, 4 Esp. C. 221.

(d) Walker v. Constable, 1 B. & P. 306.

(e) An auctioneer is not liable for interest, unless the contract be rescinded, and a demand of the deposit be made. Where the treaty with the auctioneer was kept open, and no demand made, it was held that he was not liable for interest. Maberly v. Robins, 5 Taunt. 625. Edwards v. Hodding, 5 Taunt. 515. Farquhar v. Farley, 7 Taunt. 594. Lee v. Munn, 8 Taunt. 45. Sug. V. & P. 487. See above tit. INTEREST.

(f) Borrough v. Skinner, 5 Burr. 2639; Berry v. Young, 2 Esp. C. 640; Spurrier v. Elderton, 5 Esp. C. 1.

(g) Jones v. Edney, Sudgen's V. & P. 37, cor. Ld. Ellenborough, 1812. Edwards v. Hodding, 5 Taunt. 515.

Where the auctioneer was also the attorney of the vendor, and paid over the money after he knew that objections had been raised to the title, he was held to be liable to the vendee for his deposit (h). Money had and received.

Where there was evidence to show that a party was in rightful possession of a term, which the sheriff had subsequently seized and sold under a fi. fa. against him, it was held, that in an action by the vendee to recover possession from him, it was sufficient to produce the writ only, without proving the judgment (i). Sale from the sheriff.

The vendor of a personal chattel brings his action either on a special contract of sale, or for goods sold and delivered, or for goods bargained and sold. Vendor of a chattel.

In a special action on the case for not accepting the goods, he must prove, 1st. The contract of sale; 2dly. Performance of conditions precedent on his part; 3dly. The amount of damage.

1st. The contract of sale.—It has been seen that a contract for the sale of goods (k) of the price of 10*l.* or upwards (l) is not binding, under the Statute of Frauds, unless the buyer accept part of the goods and actually receive the same (m), or give something in earnest to bind the bargain (n), or in part

(h) Edwards v. Hodding, 5 Taunt. 815. Note, that he was held to be liable also on another ground, inasmuch as he had misled the plaintiff as to the facts, and induced him to bring his action as he did. Where an auctioneer signed a contract for the sale of a house in his own name, and received the deposit, his principal being present, and after the purchaser had left the room paid it over to the principal, it was held that an action lay against the auctioneer to recover the deposit. Wray v. Gutteridge, 3 C. & P. 40.

(i) Doe v. Murless, 6 M. & S. 110.

(k) A. agrees to sell B. timber (the trees being then standing on the land of A.) at so much per foot; this is a contract for the sale of goods within the statute. Smith v. Surman, 9 B. & C. 561; and neither an offer on the part of B. to dispose of part to another person, or a letter in answer to one from A. demanding payment, in which B. refuses payment on the ground that the trees were not such as were contracted for, is sufficient to take the case out of the statute. Ib.

(l) Supra, 487.

(m) Supra, 488. See the next note.

(n) Supra, 488. According to the civil law, the marking of goods by the buyer was an ambiguous act, which might or might not amount to a delivery, according to the intention of the parties. Si dolium signatum sit ab emptore Trebatius ait traditum id videri; Labeo contra; quod et verum est, magis enim ne summutetur signari solere quam ut tradere tum videatur. Dig. 18. 6. 1, 2. And it is very possible that cases may occur where the acts of the parties being ambiguous, or the fact of actual delivery being doubtful, it may be a question of mere fact for the jury. But notwithstanding this, it is usually a question of law, as it must necessarily be, whenever the Court can apply the law to the mere facts as found by the jury (supra), Vol. I. tit. Law & Fact). It seems to be now fully settled, that so long as the vendor retains his lien for the price, there is no actual receipt within the statute. In the late case of Baldey v. Parker (2 B. & C. 37; supra, 487), where the defendant bought several articles at a shop, and marked some, and assisted in severing others from the bulk, it was held that there was no transfer and actual acceptance within the exception of the statute. It was observed by Holroyd, J. that upon the sale of specific goods for a specific price, by parting with the possession the owner parts with his lien. The statute contemplates a parting with the possession, and therefore as long as the seller preserves his control over the goods so as to retain his lien, he prevents the vendee from accepting and receiving them as his own, within the meaning of the statute.

The doctrine, that there can be no acceptance or actual receipt so long as the vendor's lien for the price subsists, was also laid down in the case of Carter v. Toussaint (5 B. & A. 855). A horse was sold by oral contract, and no time appointed for payment; the horse was to remain with the vendor for twenty days without charge to the vendee; at the expiration of that time the horse was sent to grass by the direction of the vendee, and by his desire entered as one of the horses of the vendor; and it was held that there was no acceptance of the horse within the statute. And the case was distinguished from that of Elmore v. Stone (1 Taunt. 458; supra, 610), on the ground that in that case there was a change of possession. So in Tempest v. Fitzgerald (3 B. & A. 680), where a horse was sold, to be taken away at a time specified, and paid for in ready money; and at the expiration of the time the purchaser rode him, but requested that he

Contract of sale.

of payment, or that some note or memorandum in writing of the said bargain be made and signed by the parties to be charged by such contract, or their agents lawfully authorized.

An auctioneer at a sale of goods by auction, is the agent of both parties, for the purpose of binding them by his signature (o); but he may maintain an action against the vendee in his own name, even although the name of the principal be declared at the time of sale (p); but if he brings the action his signature will not be sufficient within the Statute of Frauds to bind the purchaser (q). Having sold under a supposed executrix, having no title, he cannot recover after the real executor has claimed the amount from the buyer (r). A bidder may retract his bidding at any time before the knocking down of the hammer (s).

The printed conditions of sale, pasted on the auctioneer's box, are sufficient notice of the terms to a purchaser (t).

If A. sell goods to B. who is unable to pay for them, and they are transferred to C. by consent, this is a new contract between A. and C. and not a mere promise on the part of C. to pay the debt of B. (u).

By broker.

With respect to contracts made through a broker (x) it is now perfectly well settled that the bought and sold notes are, if they correspond, evidence to bind the bargain, although the broker has not signed a formal entry in his book (y); secus if they do not correspond (z). Although it be clear that an entry signed by the broker is not essential to the validity of a contract where formal bought and sold notes have been delivered, it is another might remain for a longer period in the vendor's possession; and the horse died before the time when the purchaser was to take him, and to pay the price; the Court held that the vendor could not recover the price. See also Howe v. Palmer, 3 B. & A. 321.

(o) See above, tit. STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

(p) Williams v. Millington, 1 H. B. 81; Coppin v. Walker, 7 Taunt. 237; Coppin v. Craig, 7 Taunt. 243; Athyns v. Batten, 2 Esp. C. 493. An action may be brought either in the name of the party who actually made the bargain, or in the name of the party really interested. Skinner v. Stocks, 4 B. & A. 437.

(q) Farebrother v Simmonds, 5 B. & A. 333.

(r) Dickenson v. Paul, 4 B. & Ad. 638.

(s) Payne v. Cave, 3 T. R. 148. And qu. whether, as the auctioneer is the agent of the bidder, the latter may not retract where a memorandum is required by the Statute of Frauds at any time before the written entry is actually made by the auctioneer.

(t) Mesnard v. Aldridge, 3 Esp. C. 271. An auctioneer's oral declaration at the time of sale is not admissible in evidence to vary the printed conditions either against a purchaser at the sale, or for the latter, against one who purchases during the sale from him, and whose name is inserted as purchaser in the auctioneer's book. Shelton v. Livius, 2 Tyr. 420.

(u) Browning v. Stallard, 5 Taunt. 450.

(x) Evidence is admissible to show that a broker's authority, by the custom of the trade, expires on the day on which it is given. Dickenson v. Lilwall, 1 Starkie's C. 128. Where goods are sold in London by a broker, to be paid for by a bill of exchange, it seems that the seller has a right, within a reasonable time, to annul the contract, if he be dissatisfied with the purchaser, and that five days is a reasonable time for this purpose. Hodgson v. Davis, 2 Camp. 530. A. and B. being jointly interested in a cargo of oil, A. directs the broker to sell it; the sale-note is a sufficient memorandum within the Statute of Frauds, although B. does not assent till after the sale. Soames v. Spencer, 1 D. & R. 32.

(y) Goom v. Aflalo, 6 B. & C. 117. Thornton v. Meux, 1 M. & M. 143. Cumming v. Roebuck, 1 Holt's C. 172. Hinde v. Whitehouse, 7 East, 559. 569. Rucker v. Cammeyer, 1 Esp. C. 105. Cooper v. Smith, 15 East, 105, 8. Blagden v. Bradbear, 12 Ves. 466. 472. Buckmaster v. Harrop, 13 Ves. 456. Dickenson v. Lilwall, 1 Starkie's C. 128. It seems that a mere inaccuracy in the description of the names, which occasions no prejudice to the parties, would not vitiate the sale. Mitchell v. Lapage, Holt's C. 254.

(z) Grant v. Fletcher, 5 B. & C. 436; Goom v. Aflalo, 6 B. & C. 117. Thornton v. Meux, 1 M. & M. 43. But a vendee is bound by a note of the contract signed by him and delivered to the vendor by the broker, although it may differ from the note sent to the vendee. Rowe v. Osborn, 1 Starkie's C. 140.

Contract of sale. By broker.

question whether the broker's entry of the contract, signed by him, would be sufficient in the absence of sufficient bought and sold notes.

In the case of Heyman v. Neale (a), Lord Ellenborough said, that "the entry made and signed by the broker, who is the agent of both parties, is alone the binding contract. What is called the bought and sold note is only the copy of the other, which would be valid and binding although no bought or sold note was ever sent to the vendor or purchaser; the defendant is equally liable in this case as if he had signed the entry in the broker's book with his own hand;" and in that case the plaintiff recovered accordingly. In the later cases on the subject, although it does not appear to have been expressly ruled that the entry in the broker's book, signed by him, would not be in itself sufficient to bind the contract, yet it has been held in strong terms that the copies delivered to the parties were the proper evidence of the contract (b).

Where A. agreed to buy, and B. to sell, a quantity "of St. Petersburgh clean hemp," and the broker delivered a bought-note to A., in which by mistake he inserted "Riga Rhine hemp," instead of "St. Petersburgh clean hemp," and delivered a correct sale-note to B.; it was held that the variance was fatal, and that B. could not recover against A. for breach of contract (c). But where the broker, in both the bought and sold notes, made a mistake in describing the sellers' firm to be A., B. and C., which had in fact, without the knowledge of the broker, been changed to A., D. and E., it was held that the purchaser could not set up the mistake in answer to an action, without showing that he was excluded from a set-off, or otherwise prejudiced by it (d).

A material alteration made in the sale-note by the broker, after the bargain has been made, at the instance of the seller, without the consent of the purchaser, precludes the seller from recovering on the contract (e).

Where the invoice is silent as to the terms of sale of goods, parol evidence is admissible to prove the terms. Where an offer is made by letter to sell goods, the contract is complete from the time of acceptance. And where the offer was by A. to sell goods to B. receiving an answer by return of post, and a letter of acceptance, being mis-directed, arrived two days later than it ought to have done had it been properly directed, it was held that the bargain was complete from the moment that the offer was accepted (f).

Where goods are ordered for a club, by A. one of the members, every member who either concurs in the order or assents to it, is liable, although

(a) 3 Camp. 337. Note, that in this case bought and sold notes had been sent, but the vendee on receiving the copy objected to it.

(b) In Cumming v. Roebuck, 1 Holt's C. 172, Gibbs, Ld. C. J. intimated that the entry in the broker's book was not to be regarded as the original contract, and said that the case in which it had been so held had been contradicted. In Thornton v. Meux, 1 M. & M. C. 43, Abbott, L. C. J. said, "I used to think at one time that the broker's book was the proper evidence of the contract; but I afterwards changed my opinion, and held, conformably to the opinion of the rest of the Court, that the copies delivered to the parties were the evidence of the contract they entered into, still feeling it to be a duty on the part of the broker that the copies should correspond." See also his Lordship's judgment in the case of Goom v. Aflalo, 6 B. & C. 117.

(c) Thornton v. Kempster, 1 Marsh. 355.

(d) Mitchell v. Lapage, Holt's C. 253.

(e) Powell v. Divett, 15 East, 29. Note, that the alteration was made in the buyer's note; and it was held that this was so vitiated by the interpolation, that it was not evidence even of the original contract. And the Court relied on Master v. Miller, 4 T. R. 320.

(f) Adams v. Lindsell, 1 B. & A. 681.

Contract. A. be made debtor in the plaintiff's books, unless it appear that the plaintiff meant to give credit to A. only (g).

By agent. An agent who buys or sells for another is always liable where he buys in his own name, or where credit is given to him (h); so if he order goods for another, but the seller refuses to deliver to that person's credit, but delivers on the credit of the agent only; so, as is said, if having ordered goods in the name of another, he afterwards refuses to inform the seller who the person is, in order that he may sue him (i). But if he declare himself to be merely an agent, he is not liable (k). But if a factor here buy or sell goods for a foreign principal, he will be personally liable, for it will be presumed that credit was given to him (l); but the contract is, it seems, in all cases with the principal when discovered.

A vendor may sue the principal, when discovered, although the agent bought in his own name; but if, where the name of the principal is known at the time of sale, the vendor elect to give credit to the agent, he cannot, it has been seen, afterwards resort to the principal (m). But if the name be not disclosed at the time, the vendor may afterwards sue the principal, although the agent professed to purchase in the character of agent, and the vendor, without asking the names of the principals, debited the agent with the price (n). Where the sale is made by a factor known by the purchaser to be such, the vendor may sue for the amount (o).

2dly. The performance of conditions precedent (p).

(g) Delauney v. Strickland, 2 Starkie's C. 439.

(h) Per Ld. Kenyon, in Owen v. Gooch, 2 Esp. C. 568; Morgan v. Corder, Paley's P. & A. 250.

(i) Ibid.

(k) Ibid. Where L., an auctioneer, signed an agreement, as agent for A., and afterwards A. signed the agreement in these terms, "I approve of L. having signed this on my behalf," it was held that the auctioneer was not personally liable. Spittle v. Lavender, 2 B. & B. 452. See Benson v. Morris, 2 Taunt. 374. A broker who declares in his own name against a vendee for not accepting goods, cannot recover on a contract deseribing him as a broker selling for his principal. Rayner v. Linthorne, 1 Ry. & M. C. 325; for the note shows him to be a broker and not a principal, and if the note were out of the question, there would be nothing to satisfy the Statute of Frauds. Abbott, L. C. J. distinguished the case from that of Atkyns v. Amber, 2 Esp. C. 493, on the ground that in the latter case there had been a delivery. In that case there was a sale-note of timber sold by the plaintiff on account of Hippins, for a bill at two months; the declaration averred a sale by the plaintiff; the plaintiff in fact had a lien on the goods, and authority to sell; it was held that he was entitled to recover. Cor. Eyre, C. J.

(l) Gonzales v. Sladen, B. N. P. 130. See the observations of Eyre, C. J., in De Gaillon v. Victoire Harel L'Aigle, 1 B. & P. 368.

(m) Paterson v. Gandasequi, 15 East, 62. Addison v. Gandasequi, 4 Taunt. 574. Railton v. Hodgson, and Peele v. Hodgson, 4 Taunt. 576. After giving credit to one person, the vendor cannot afterwards resort to another; and it is for the jury to say to whom credit was given. Leggatt v. Read, 1 Carr. C. 16. The plaintiff sold cattle to M., a bailiff of the defendant, employed in purchasing cattle for him, having always money in hand, and never authorized to buy on credit; the cattle were paid for by bills drawn on M., which the plaintiff afterwards renewed; held, that it was properly left to the jury to say whether the cattle were sold upon the credit of M, or of the defendant, and that it made no difference that M. was a known agent of the defendant's; the jury having found for the defendant, the Court refused to disturb the verdict. Edwards v. Smith, 12 Moore, 59.

(n) Thompson v. Davenport, 9 B. & C. 78.

(o) Hornby v. Lacy, 6 M. & S. 166. Morris v. Cleasby, 4 M. & S. 574. Although the factor acted upon a del credere commission, and bills had been drawn for the amount, which had never been paid. The giving such commission is in order to obtain an additional security, and not to substitute one for another, nor to vary the rights of third parties. Hornby v. Lacy, 6 M. & S. 166. And see Morris v. Cleasby, 4 M. & S. 574. See above, tit. SET-OFF.

(p) Supra, 67, note (e). Bordenave v. Gregory, 5 East, 107. Though there be mutual promises, yet if one thing be the consideration of the other, a performance is necessary to be averred, unless a special day be appointed for performance. Callonel Goods. Condition precedent.

If the goods were to be delivered at a particular place, a tender there, or that which is equivalent to a tender in point of law, must be proved, as that the defendant dispensed with the necessity of a formal tender, by a refusal to complete his contract (q).

The tender of a larger quantity than was agreed for is not sufficient, unless the defendant might have had and the plaintiff was ready to deliver that which the defendant was bound to take (r).

It is incumbent on the vendor to show that the goods correspond with the description in the contract. If they be described in the sale-note as of a particular quality, it is not sufficient to show that the quality, though inferior to that described, corresponded with a sample previously delivered (s).

In an action for the price of goods sold by sample, it is necessary to prove that they corresponded with the sample at the time of the sale (t); it is not sufficient to prove an usage of trade where samples are drawn without fraud, for the buyer to take the goods on receiving a compensation for the difference (u).

On an agreement to purchase 300 tons of Campeachy logwood, of real merchantable quality, at 35*l.* per ton, and that such as might be determined to be not of real merchantable quality might be rejected, it was held that the vendee was bound to take so much as was of the sort described, at the contract price, although 16 out of 300 tons were not Campeachy logwood (x).

Where a purchaser orders several things at the same time, though at separate prices, he may, it seems, consider the contract as entire, and refuse to accept some of the articles without receiving the rest (y), but if he accept

v. Briggs, 1 Salk. 112. On a general contract, neither party is bound to do the first act. Rawson v. Johnson, 2 East, 203.

(q) Glazebrook v. Woodrow, 8 T. R. 366. Jones v. Berkely, Doug. 687. If there be no stipulation as to the place of delivery, it will be intended that the vendee was to fetch the goods.

(r) Dixon v. Fletcher, 3 M. & W. 146. Where the defendant is to take the goods, it is sufficient to allege and prove a readiness to deliver. Rawson v. Johnson, 1 East, 203. Wilkes v. Atkinson, 1 Marsh. 412.

(s) Tye v. Fynmore, 3 Camp. 462. See also Haydon v. Haywards, 1 Camp. 180; infra, tit. WORK AND LABOUR.

(t) Hibbert v. Shee, 1 Camp. 113.

(u) Ibid.

(x) Graham v. Jackson, 14 East, 498.

(y) Champion v. Short, 1 Camp. 53; supra, 487. Where the purchaser of lands took the growing crops at a valuation, and the purchaser entered, but the vendor could make no title to the land, it was held that the contract being entire, he could not maintain indebitatus assumpsit for the crops (Neale v. Viney, cor. Lord Ellenborough, 1 Camp. 471). So it has been held that a purchaser of two houses in distinct lots at an auction, may refuse to take one, if no title can be made to the other (Chambers v. Griffiths, 1 Esp. C. 150). But qu.; for where different lots are bought at an auction, the agreements are separate, and cannot be declared on as one contract (James v. Shore, 1 Starkie's C. 426. And see Poole v. Shergold, 2 Bro. C. C. 118; 1 Cox, 273, S. C.; 6 Ves. 726; Sugden's Treatise, 5th edit. 247). It is a distinct contract on each lot. See Roots v. Ld. Dormer, 4 B. & Ad. 77. On the other hand, where an agent for the sale of horses sold to A. in one lot, and at an entire price, a horse belonging to A., and also a horse belonging to B., warranting both to be sound, it was held that A. could not maintain assumpsit against B. for the unsoundness of the horse belonging to him, declaring as upon a sale of that horse, for the contract is entire. Symonds v. Carr, 1 Camp. 361. Hort v. Dixon, Selw. 101.

Where the plaintiff sold 60 coombs of rye to the defendant, at 14*s* per coomb, to be delivered at or before Michaelmas, and the money to be paid on the delivery of the last rye, and the proof was that 50 coombs were delivered before Michaelmas, it was held, that though the agreement was entire for 60 coombs, yet that the parting it in the delivery made it in the nature of several contracts; for the one party sent it in, and the other accepted it, in pursuance of their agreement; and that if no other contract could be proved, it should be understood to be a partial agreement as to the 50 coombs; for the subsequent acts of the parties so expounded their contract, that it should be understood that the rye might be delivered by parts (Gilb. L. Ev. 191, cites

Conditions precedent.

one singly he severs the contract, and cannot object to receiving another of the remaining articles (z).

Where there is an entire contract for the delivery of goods at different times, and part are delivered according to the contract, and the vendor makes default in delivering the remainder, the vendee cannot before the expiration of the time maintain an action for the part delivered; for the purchaser may, if the vendor fail to complete his contract, return the part delivered; but if the vendee retain the part delivered after the vendor has failed to complete the contract, the latter may recover the value of the goods which he has so delivered (a).

Stock.

In an action for not accepting stock, the plaintiff, in addition to the contract, must prove that he was possessed of the stock in question (b), by the production of the Bank books, or of an examined copy. Also that he either made an actual transfer, or attended at the Bank for the purpose, on the day appointed for the purpose, until the Bank books were closed (c); and also (where the stock has not been transferred to the defendant) that it has been transferred to some other person (d) within a reasonable time afterwards (e).

In an action for not replacing stock, the plaintiff must prove the contract, his possession of the stock, his sale of it, and the advance of the product to the defendant; and he will be entitled to estimate his damages either at the current price of such stock on the day appointed for re-payment, or on the day of the trial, for had the defendant kept his promise the plaintiff might have received that price (f).

Damage.

The plaintiff, in an action for not accepting goods, should also be prepared with evidence to show the amount of the loss which he has consequently sustained.

Trials per Pais, 400). And where the plaintiff sold to the defendant 100 sacks of flour at 94*s*. 9*d* per sack, and the plaintiff delivered part, but refused to deliver the residue, the Court of K. B. is said to have held (contrary to the decision at Nisi Prius), that the vendor was entitled to recover for the part delivered. Walker v. Dixon, 2 Starkie's C. 281.

Where the defendant bargained and sold to the plaintiff 100 quarters of barley to be delivered between harvest and Candlemas where the plaintiff should appoint, at 16*s*. per quarter, and 2*s*. 6*d*. was paid at the bargain, and the residue to be paid at the times of delivery, according to the quantity; and upon the delivery of 19 quarters and a half (which were delivered for 20 quarters), the plaintiff paid 10*l*. only, but afterwards paid the other 6*l*. before action brought, it was held by Parker, C. J., that an action was maintainable for non-delivery of the residue; for delivering 19 quarters and a half without full payment was a dispensation by the defendant as to that quantity, and this did not excuse him from a delivery of the rest according to the agreement. Peenam v. Palmer, Gil. L. E. 194.

(z) Ibid. Contract for the sale of trees to be paid for according to certain conditions; the purchaser took away part, but refused to take away the remainder; held that he had thereby abandoned the entirety of the contract, and that the executors of the vendor might recover the value of the trees taken. Bragg v. Cole, 6 Moore, 114.

(a) Oxendale v. Wetherell, 9 B. & C. 386. Or set off the value. Shipton v. Casson, 5 B. & C. 378.

(b) Bretton v. Cope, Peake's C. 39. See the stat. 7 G. 2, c. 8.

(c) Bordenave v. Gregory, 5 East, 107. Heckscher v. Gregory, 4 East, 607. Callonel v. Briggs, 1 Salk. 112.

(d) By the stat. 7 G. 2, c. 8, s. 6.

(e) Bordenave v. Gregory, 5 East, 107. Callonel v. Briggs, 1 Salk. 112. Heckscher v. Gregory, 4 East, 607. Some of the Judges in Bordenave v. Gregory expressed a doubt whether the transfer ought not to be made at the next transfer day after the contract has been broken; but a majority were of opinion that it was sufficient to transfer within a reasonable time afterwards; but that if the stock bore a higher price at any intermediate transfer day, then that higher price should be the measure of damages.

(f) Shepherd v. Johnson, 2 East, 211. But see M'Arthur v. Lord Seaforth, 2 Taunt. 257. Qu. whether he is entitled to recover the price on any intermediate day.

Damage.

Where a person who had contracted for a certain quantity of oil to be delivered to him at a future day, at a certain price, became bankrupt before that day arrived, and obtained his certificate, held that he was nevertheless liable to an action for not accepting and paying for the oil, and that the proper measure of damages was the difference between the price which he had contracted to pay for the oil, and the market-price at the time when the contract was broken (g).

The goods, on a refusal to accept them, may it seems be re-sold, and the defendant will be liable to the loss arising from the re-sale of them (h). If a vendee omit to remove goods within a reasonable time, the vendor may recover for warehouse room (i); or he may recover damages for not removing them, when he is prejudiced by the delay (k).

Where the goods were to be paid for by a bill, the vendor is entitled to recover interest from the day on which the bill would have become due (l).

Goods bargained and sold.

Indebitatus assumpsit will lie for goods bargained and sold where the vendee refuses to accept them, on a false assertion that the quality does not correspond with that which is specified in the contract (m). And in this form of action the plaintiff will be entitled to recover the full price; whilst on a special count for not accepting the goods, he could not recover more than the damages proved to have been sustained (n). And it seems that the action for goods bargained and sold may be supported even after a re-sale of the goods by the vendor (o), although the plaintiff would be liable as for a wrongful conversion (p).

To support this count it is necessary to prove a contract by which the property passed (q). The maker of a machine by order cannot recover on this count until there has been an appropriation of the machine assented to by the purchaser (r); nor in general is the count available in the absence

(g) Boorman v. Nash, 9 B. & C. 145.

(h) 1 Salk. 113; infra, 1221, note (t).

(i) 3 Camp. 426.

(k) Greaves v. Ashlin, 3 Camp. 426. It has been said that he cannot re-sell them. Ibid. Noy's Max. 87, 88. Alexander v. Comber, 1 H. B. 20. But see Langfort v. Tiler, Salk. 212.

(l) Boyce v. Warburton, 2 Camp. C. 480.

(m) Hankey v. Smith, Peake's C. 42, n. Secus, where there has been an acceptance of the goods. Elliott v. Pybus, 10 Bing. 512.

(n) Hankey v. Smith, Peake's C. 42, n.

(o) Mertens v. Adcock, 4 Esp. C. 251, cor. Ellenborough, C. J.; contrary to Hore v. Milner, Peake's C. 42, a. cor. Lord Kenyon, C. J. But see Hagedorn v. Laing, 6 Taunt. 162. Such re-sale does not bar an action for non-acceptance of the goods. Acebal v. Levy, 10 Bing. 384. Maclean v. Dunn, 4 Bing. 722.

(p) Ibid. And qu. whether indebitatus assumpsit for goods bargained and sold is maintainable where, by the conditions of sale, the vendor is entitled to re-sell them in case the vendee does not remove them before a day certain. Hagedorn v. Laing, 6 Taunt. 162.

(q) See therefore the cases decided under the Statute of Frauds referable to this head, and below, tit. GOODS SOLD AND DELIVERED.

(r) Atkinson v. Bell, 8 B. & C. 277; 2 M. & Ry. 292. There K., a patentee, received orders for machines from the defendant, and employed the plaintiff to make them, which he did, and delivered them on K.'s premises; they were subsequently altered to a newer plan, and other machines, intended by K. also for the defendant, were by K.'s direction altered to correspond, and the whole, after being packed in boxes for the defendant, remained on the plaintiff's premises, and the defendant was subsequently required to take them, but refused so to do; held, that although the goods were intended for the defendant, yet until his assent given, or even actual delivery, no property vested in him, and therefore the action for goods bargained and sold was not maintainable against him by the plaintiff; held also, that as the work and labour was bestowed on articles which had never become the property of defendant, it could not be said to have been done for his benefit to render him liable. Semble, a count for refusing to accept the goods might have been supported.

of such a contract and such a dealing with the subject-matter as are sufficient to vest the property in the chattel (s).

Goods sold and delivered.

In an action for goods sold and delivered, the plaintiff (t) must prove, 1st. The contract of sale; 2dly, the delivery of the goods; and 3dly, their value (u).

Contract express.

1. The contract of sale. The evidence of a contract of sale is either express, as where proof is given of an order for the goods, either written or oral, or it is presumptive. Where there has been a delivery, an agreement in writing is unnecessary, but where there has not been a complete delivery, and the action is brought either on a special contract for not accepting the goods, or generally for goods bargained and sold, it is frequently necessary to prove a contract in writing, or part-payment, or part-acceptance of the goods (x).

The evidence to prove a contract for the sale of goods has already been considered (y).

A master is not liable for goods ordered by his servant, without some proof of authority given by the master (z).

Contract by agent.

Proof that a master has on former occasions empowered his servant to take up goods on credit, will be evidence of the authority of the servant to take up goods on a subsequent occasion, in an action against the master for goods sold and delivered (a), although he has in fact supplied the servant with money to pay for them; but the master may rebut the inference as to the authority of the agent, by proof that he has always supplied the servant with money for the purpose (b), or that he had previously given notice that he would in future pay ready money; but in such case notice to a man-servant of the tradesman is not sufficient (c).

Proof of contract. Implied.

It seems that in general proof that the goods have been delivered to the defendant, and that he has used them, is primâ facie evidence of a contract, without proving any order (d).

In general, where an agent sells goods for his principal, the contract in point of law is between the principal and the buyer, and the former may maintain the action (e); but where the agent sells the goods as his own, concealing the name of his principal, and the principal brings an action against the buyer, the latter has a right to consider the agent as the principal for (s) See the cases above, tit. TROVER. The proof in this respect seems to be the same as in an action for goods sold and delivered, with the exception, of course, of the fact of delivery. Where the plaintiffs sold to the defendants a quantity of butter expected from Sligo, to be paid for by bill at two months from the landing, and the defendants accepted the invoice and bill of lading, it was held that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover on this count, although the butter was lost by shipwreck. Alexander v. Gardner, 1 Bing. N. C. 671; and semble, they were entitled to recover for goods sold and delivered.

(t) The action may be maintained by the auctioneer who sold the goods. Williams v Millington, 1 H. Bl. 81. The right is, of course, subject to that of his principal, who may intervene and claim the value.

(u) These particulars are put in issue by the plea of non assumpsit. Cousens v. Paddon, 2 C. M. & R. 566.

(x) Supra, FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.

(y) Supra, tit. ASSUMPSIT.—FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.

(z) Maunders v. Conyers, 2 Starkie's C. 281.

(a) Rusby v. Scarlett, 5 Esp. C. 76; 1 Show. 95.

(b) Ibid. and 3 Esp. C. 214.

(c) Gratland v. Freeman, 3 Esp. C. 85.

(d) Bennett v. Henderson, 2 Starkie's C. 550, where the plaintiff sent goods to the defendant abroad, on the order of a London merchant, and the defendant received and used the goods. In an action for the price of cloth, a written order by the plaintiff to deliver back the cloth to bearer, being in the defendant's possession, is presumptive proof of the re-delivery. Shepherd v. Currie, 1 Starkie's C. 454.

(e) Cowp. 255; 2 Camp. 24.

all purposes, and may set off any claim which he had against the agent, or rely upon any payment which he has made to him in due course, without notice that he was not the principal (f). So where an agent purchases on behalf of a principal, whose name he conceals, the buyer may, on discovering the principal, support an action against him (g); and he is not affected by the state of accounts, or by any private agreement between the vendee and his agent (h); but if the seller let the day of payment pass without calling on the principal, and the latter is thus induced to suppose that the buyer looks to the broker for payment, and on this supposition pays the price to the agent, the principal is discharged (i); and if the seller, knowing that the buyer, who deals in his own name, is the agent of another, elect to give credit to the agent, and debit him with the amount, he cannot afterwards recover from the principal (k). Proof of contract. Implied.

Goods having been supplied for the use of the poor of a parish, on orders signed by some of the overseers separately, but all of whom have on different occasions promised to pay, it is evidence of a joint contract, and all, including the assistant overseer who had signed, are liable (l). Where a wife ordered goods to be delivered to her mother, saying, her husband would pay for them, which he did, and other goods were supplied in like manner, it was held, that there was evidence to go to a jury of the wife's authority as to the latter goods (m). The father of an infant is not liable for goods supplied to the latter, except upon an express contract, or where one can be implied from circumstances (n). He is not liable even although he desert an infant child, where he had reasonable ground for supposing that the child was provided for (o).

It is usually a question of fact for the jury to decide to whom credit was given (p).

The plaintiff may in this as in other cases, waive a tort, and in some instances (q) treat the defendant, who has fraudulently possessed himself Waiver of tort.

(f) George v. Claggett, 7 T. R. 359. Rabone v. Williams, Ibid. 360; Str. 1182; B. N. P. 130. And see tit. VENDOR AND VENDEE.

(g) Kymer v. Suvereropp, 1 Camp. 109. Speering v. Degrare, 2 Vern. 643.

(h) Precious v. Abel, 1 Esp. C. 350. Rich v. Coe, Cowp. 636. Waring v. Favene, 1 Camp. 85.

(i) Kymer v. Suvereropp, 1 Camp. 109. Speering v. Degrare, 2 Vern. 643.

(k) Paterson v. Gandasequi, 15 East, 62. It was observed in argument, in that case, that there were many instances where the principal is not liable, as in the case of building contracts; and Lord Ellenborough cited the case of Bramah v. Lord Abingdon, as having been lately decided, where the defendant had contracted with a surveyor, who ordered goods from the plaintiff for the use of the defendant's house, and yet he was held not to be liable.

(l) Kirby v. Banister, 5 B. & Ad. 1069.

(m) Fisher v. Lynn, 4 N. & M. 559. See tit. HUSBAND AND WIFE.

(n) Baker v. Keen, 2 Starkie's C. 501. Rolfe v. Abbott, 6 C. & P. 286.

(o) Urmston v. Newcomen, 4 Ad. & Ell. 899; and see Law v. Wilkin, 6 Ad. & Ell. 718.

(p) Leggatt v. Reed, 1 Carr. C. 16. But where a tradesman makes out an account for goods sold to a particular person, it is deemed to be conclusive, unless it be shown by unequivocal evidence that credit was given to another. Storr v. Scott, 6 C. & P. 241. Thompson v. Davenport, 9 B. & C. 86. See Eden v. Titchmarsh, 1 A. & E. 691. The plaintiff dealt with Thomas Fox, the defendant; the defendant gave up the business to his son, Thomas Samuel Fox, who carried it on upon different premises, but dealt with the plaintiff under the name of Thomas Fox; he was known by the name of Samuel Fox. Parke, J. held that the defendant was not bound to give notice to the plaintiff of his having given up the business to his son, and that it was incumbent on the plaintiff to show, either that the son acted for the father by his authority, or that the father had done something to authorize that belief. Beckwith v. Fox, cor. Parke, J., York Summ. Ass. 1832. And see Edwards v. Smith, 12 Moore, 59.

(q) It is not in all cases where the party has converted the goods of another to his own use, that the tort may be waived and of the goods, as the purchaser. The defendant by fraud procured the plaintiff to sell goods to an insolvent, and took possession of them, and it was held that the defendant, upon an action of assumpsit brought to recover the value of the goods, could not set up the sale, because it had been fraudulently procured by him, and that the mere possession unaccounted for raised an assumpsit to pay (r); so if a father fraudulently and falsely represent that he is about to decline business in favour of his son, a minor, and thereby obtain possession of goods, of which he disposes, he is liable to the vendor as for goods sold to himself (s).

Waiver of tort.

The vendor of cyder juice to be made on his premises, in his own vessels, lent to the vendee for the purpose, may recover their value on their being seized through the vendee's default for breach of the excise laws, as goods sold and delivered (t). So if goods be lent or be delivered on the terms of sale or return, and they are retained an unreasonable time (u). So where the consideration for the goods is not merely money, e.g. where it is to consist partly in the delivery of goods, yet if the purchaser refuse to perform his engagement, it seems that a contract to pay in money results (x).

But where the owner of property taken away by another waives the tort, and brings assumpsit for their value, he must prove a clear title to the property (y).

Special contract.

Where there is a special contract as to the time of payment for goods, the plaintiff may recover on the general count, when the time of credit has expired, and use the contract as evidence of the stipulated value (z). Where the vendee is to pay in three months, by bill at two months, the credit is for the transaction changed into a contract for goods sold and delivered; but if the goods be converted into money, the plaintiff may waive the tort and recover the money. Bennett v. Francis, 2 B. & B. 554.

(r) Hill v. Perrott, 3 Taunt. 274. But see B. N. P. 130, where it is laid down, that if the defendant, by a corrupt agreement with the plaintiff's servant, obtain the plaintiff's goods at half price, which the servant is to have for his own use, no assumpsit lies, any more than it would against one who had stolen the goods; tam. qu. unless the action has actually merged in the felony. The defendant fraudulently induces the plaintiff to sell goods to A. who could not pay for them, and on a nominal re-sale by A. obtains the money; the plaintiff may, in an action for money had and received, recover the amount unpaid by A. Abbotts v. Barry, 2 B. & B. 269; and see Bennett v. Francis, 2 B. & P. 554; 4 Esp. C. 30. Read v. Hutchinson, 3 Camp, 352.

(s) Per Gibbs, C. J., Biddle v. Levy, 1 Starkie's C. 20.

(t) Studdy v. Sanders, 5 B. & C. 628.

(u) Bianchi v. Nash, 1 M. & W. 545. Beverley v. Lincoln Gas Co. 6 Ad. & Ell. 831. Bayley v. Gouldsmith, Peake's C. 56; Coleman v. Gibson, 1 Mo. & R. 168. And see Stone v. Rogers, 2 M. & W. 443. So where a musical snuff-box was lent, on the understanding that, if it was damaged, the defendant was to retain and pay for it. Bianchi v. Nash, 1 M. & W. 545.

(x) Sheldon v. Cox, 3 B. & C. 420. Forsyth v. Jervis, 1 Starkie's C. 437; Ingram v. Shirley, 1 Starkie's C. 185; and see Hands v. Burton, 9 East, 349. But in the case of Harris v. Fowle, cited 1 H. Bl. 287, on an agreement to pay for goods in money and buttons, Buller, J. held a special count to be necessary. See Talver v. West, Holt's C. 179.

(y) Per Abbott, L. C. J., in Lee v. Shore, 1 B. & C. 94. The plaintiff proved that certain spar had been removed by the defendant from land occupied 20 years by Bond as tenant from year to year to Hurd; the plaintiff had made an agreement in writing with Hurd for a lease of the spar, which agreement was not produced; the plaintiff proved that he had sold spar to several persons, who took such spar away, but no contract with the defendant was proved; it was left to the jury to say whether the plaintiff had proved any title to the spar, and they found for the defendant, and the Court afterwards held that there was no sufficient proof of title.

(z) Mussen v. Price, 4 East, 147; Miller v. Shaw, Ibid. 149. Brooke v. White, 1 N. R. 330. It seems to be now fully settled, that the defendant, under the plea of non-assumpsit, may object that the action has been brought before the expiration of the time of credit. Broomfield v. Smith, 1 M. & W. 542; Webb v. Fairmaner, 3 M. & W. 473; Gardner v. Alexander, 3 Dowl. P. C. 146. Although this has been doubted, and the case of Edmunds

five months, and the vendee cannot maintain his action after the expiration of three months, although the vendee has neglected to give the bill (a). But the vendor cannot recover in assumpsit before the time of credit has expired, although the defendant was guilty of such a fraud as would have entitled the plaintiff to recover in trover (b). Special contract. Time of payment

Where a bill given for goods is dishonoured, the vendor may sue immediately (c), provided he retain the bill in his own hands (d).

Where goods are to be paid for by a bill at two months, and the vendor drawing upon the vendee, the latter refuses to accept, it seems that the vendor cannot bring his action for goods sold and delivered till the expiration of the two months (e). Upon the sale of goods at six or nine months' credit, the vendee, by not paying at the end of six months, makes his election to take credit for the nine, and cannot be sued till the nine have expired (f). The plaintiff may show by the memorandum upon the record, that the action was commenced after the cause of action accrued.

If from the contract, as compared with the memorandum on the record, it appear that the credit had not expired at the commencement of the suit, as evidenced by the memorandum (g), which is general, the plaintiff may, by the production of the writ, show that the action was commenced after the first day of the term to which the memorandum relates; but if the defendant produces the writ to show that the term of credit had not expired at the commencement of the action, the plaintiff may resort to the special memorandum on the record (h); for he may consider the filing the declaration as the commencement of the action.

Where there is a contract to deliver different parcels of goods within a specified time, the vendor cannot recover for part delivered before the expiration of the time; for if he do not complete his contract the vendee may return the part delivered; but if the vendee retain the part delivered after failure by the vendor to complete his contract, the latter may recover the value of the part delivered (i).

2dly. It is essential to prove either an actual or a constructive delivery (k) of the goods; the plaintiff must prove that he has either delivered the goods, or that he has enabled the defendant to remove them (l). Delivery.

v. Harris, 2 Ad. & Ell. 414, was decided to the contrary. In the case of Webb v. Fairmaner, it was held, that in calculating the credit, the day of sale must be excluded.

(a) Mussen v. Price, 4 East, 147. Miller v. Shaw, Ibid. 149. See Dutton v. Solomonson, 3 B. & P. 582. Lee v. Risdon, 2 Marsh. 495.

(b) Ferguson v. Carrington, 9 B. & C. 59. And see De Symmons v. Minchwick, 1 Esp. C. 430. Read v. Hutchinson, 3 Camp. 352. Strutt v. Smith, 1 C. M. & R. 312.

(c) Hickling v. Hardy, 7 Taunt. 312. Mussen v. Price, 4 East, 151. Goodwin v. Coates, 1 Mo. & R. 221.

(d) Kearslake v. Morgan, 5 T. R. 513. Burden v. Halton, 4 Bing. 455.

(e) Dutton v. Solomonson, 3 B. & P. 582.

(f) Price v. Nixon, 5 Taunt. 338. Helps v. Winterbottom, 2 B. & Ad. 431. Here the option was given absolutely to the vendee; but where goods were sold at three months' credit, the vendee agreeing to take the vendee's bill at the end of the three months, if he wished for further time, and at the end of the three months the vendee did not give the bill, it was held that the vendor might proceed immediately. Nickson v. Jepson, 2 Starkie's C. 227, cor. Lord Ellenborough.

(g) i. e. in K. B. by bill, where the memorandum is intitled of the term in which the plaintiff declares.

(h) Swancott v. Westgarth, 4 East, 75. And see tit. TIME, and B. N. B. 127, and tit. JUSTICES.

(i) Oxendale v. Wetherell, 9 B. & C. 386; Walker v. Dixon, 2 Starkie's C. 283; Shipton v. Casson, 5 B. & C. 383.

(k) It seems that this form of action is (l) Smith v. Chance, 2 B. & A. 753. See the preceeding note.

Proof of delivery.

Proof that the vendor has recovered the value of the goods in an action against the carrier, is conclusive evidence of delivery (m).

Where the defendant, who had bought a stack of hay from the plaintiff, was prevented by a third person from removing it on account of an omission on the part of the plaintiff, it was held that the plaintiff could not recover (n). And where A. agreed to sell goods to B., and earnest was paid, and the goods were packed in cloths belonging to B., but deposited on the premises of A. till B. should send for them, but A. declared that they should not be removed until he was paid, it was held to be no delivery to B. (o).

A delivery to some person unknown, at a wharf, is not sufficient evidence of a delivery to bind the vendee, without showing a delivery to the wharfinger, or his agent, or that the goods were booked, or receipt taken, or that the goods were delivered in such a way as to render the wharfinger liable in case of loss (p).

Where the goods are of a moveable nature it is necessary to prove a delivery or tender previous to the action, or the vendee must have been placed in a situation to take possession of them (q). Where the vendee of goods directs them to be sent by a particular carrier, a delivery to the carrier is a delivery to the vendee (r). And even where the vendee directs goods to be sent generally, without mentioning any particular mode of conveyance, and the vendor sends them by the best practicable conveyance, it seems that a delivery to the carrier is a delivery to the vendee (s). Where the vendee at Aberystwith gave an order for goods to the plaintiff in London, but nothing was said about carriage, it was held that it was to be presumed that they were to be sent in the most usual and convenient way (t); and therefore that a delivery to a carrier in London was a delivery to the defendant there. Proof that goods were left in an inn-yard from which the carrier set out is not evidence of a delivery to the carrier (u). Where the goods have been delivered to a third person by order of the defendant the buyer, the evidence will support an allegation of delivery to the defendant; for a delivery to his agent or appointee is a delivery to himself (x). Where the defendant ordered goods, and directed them to be delivered to Wood, his agent, it was held at Nisi Prius that a written not maintainable unless there has been such a delivery as would constitute an acceptance within the Statute of Frauds. Where goods were made to order, and part were delivered, it was held that an action for goods sold and delivered was not maintainable as to the residue. Thompson v. Maceroni, 3 B. & C. 1.

(m) Groning v. Mendham, 1 Starkie's C. 299.

(n) Smith v. Chance, 2 B. & A. 753.

(o) Goodall v. Skelton, 2 H. B. 316. See Simmons v. Swift, 5 B. & C. 857; So in Boulter v. Arnott, 1 C. & M. 333; where goods had been packed in boxes of the vendee and for him, but remained at his request on the premises of the vendor.

(p) Buckman v. Levi, 3 Camp. 414.

(q) Per Holroyd, J., Smith v. Chance, K. B. Trin. 1819. MS. 2 B. & A. 753. See VENDOR AND VENDEE, and supra, FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

(r) Dawes v. Peck, 8 T. R. 330. Dutton, v. Solomonson, 3 B. & P. 582.

(s) Anderson v. Hodgson, 5 Price, 630. Paterson v. Gandasequi, 15 East, 62; Gilb. L. E. 189; B. N. P. 130.

(t) Copeland v. Lewis, 2 Starkie's C. 33, cor. Lord Ellenborough.

(u) Selway v. Holloway, Lord Raym. 46. And qu. whether a mere delivery to a carrier on an oral contract be sufficient, where the goods have not been received by the vendee. See FRAUDS, STAT. OF, supra.

(x) Bull v. Sibbs, 8 T. R. 327. But see Dutton v. Solomonson, 3 B. & P. 582, where goods having been sold to be paid for by bill at two months, and the vendor drawing on the vendee, the latter refused to accept, it seems to have been held that the vendor could not recover for goods sold and delivered before the expiration of the two months. But it is not unusual to allege specifically a delivery to such third person.

acknowledgment by Wood of the receipt of the goods was evidence of a delivery (y). Proof of delivery.

It has already been seen, that entries made in the hand-writing of an agent usually employed in the delivery of goods, and made in the ordinary course of business, of the delivery of particular goods to the defendant, are evidence of the fact after his death, provided it be shown that such entries were contemporary with the supposed deliveries (z).

Under a count for goods sold and delivered, the plaintiff cannot recover for the sale of fixtures to a house (a), nor for the sale of standing trees (b); but the plaintiff may recover for trees which the defendant has purchased, felled, and carried away (c). An admission by the defendant that so much was to be paid for the sale of standing trees, made after the trees had been felled and carried away by the defendant, will support the count upon an account stated (d).

3. Value.—Where goods are sold without any stipulation as to price, the plaintiff must prove their value at the time of delivery (e). If the plaintiff prove the delivery of goods, but give no evidence as to value, it will be presumed that the articles were of the lowest price of goods of that description (f). Where the plaintiff sold a bowsprit to the defendant, which at the time of the delivery appeared to be good and perfect, and after a voyage to Madeira, upon being cut up was found to be rotten, it was held, that since there was no fraud, and the defendant had an opportunity of inspecting the bowsprit, the plaintiff was entitled to recover the apparent value of the article at the time of delivery (g). Value.

If a machine be ordered at a stipulated price, and the vendor introduce materials more costly than those contracted for, the purchaser is not bound either to return the article, or pay more than the stipulated price (h). Some doubt has occurred on the question, whether the defendant in this action may adduce evidence in reduction of the stipulated value of the article sold; where there has been no such stipulation, the parties must be presumed to have contracted upon a quantum valebant for goods, or quantum meruit for labour, and the plaintiff must prove his case accordingly (i).

Where there has been a special contract as to the nature, quality and price of goods, and those which have been delivered do not correspond with the contract, it is clear that the vendee has a right to repudiate goods so

(y) Biggs v. Lawrenee, 3 T. R. 454. But qu. and vide supra, 57.

(z) Supra, Vol. I. tit. PRIVATE ENTRIES. Price v. Ld. Torrington, 1 Salk. 285; 2 Ld. Raym. 875. Pitman v. Maddox, Ld. Raym. 732; 2 Salk. 690.

(a) Lee v. Risdon, 7 Taunt. 188. Nutt v. Butler, 5 Esp. C. 176. Horn v. Baker, 9 East, 215. But it was held in a late case, that a declaration in trespass for goods, chattels and effects, was supported by evidence of taking fixtures under a distress for rent. Pitt v. Adam, K. B. Hil. Term, 1 Geo. 4.

(b) Knowles v. Michel, 13 East, 249.

(c) Bragg v. Cole, 6 Moore, 114. The value of growing crops may be recovered under a count for crops bargained and sold. Parker v. Staniland, 11 East, 362. See also Poulter v. Killingbeck, 1 B. & P. 397, and see Mayfield v. Wadsley, 3 B. & C. 364, as to crops to be taken by an incoming from an outgoing tenant.

(d) Ibid. and Teale v. Auty, 2 B. & B. 99.

(e) And the defendant is of course entitled to dispute the value. Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 479; Farnsworth v. Garrard, 1 Camp. 48; and this he may do under the plea of the general issue, since the new rules. Cousins v. Padden, 2 C. M. & R. 547.

(f) Clunns v. Pezzy, 1 Camp. 8. Hayden v. Hayward, 1 Camp. 180.

(g) Bluett v. Osborne, 1 Starkie's C. 384, cor. Lord Ellenborough; and afterwards the Court of K. B. refused a rule nisi for a new trial.

(h) Wilmot v. Smith, 3 C. & P. 455.

(i) See Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 479; and the observations of Grose and Lawrence, Js.

Value.

delivered in toto; for having contracted for one thing, the vendor cannot substitute a contract for something else; and therefore, if he return the goods, or give notice to the vendor to take them back, it is clear that the vendor cannot recover, for he has not done that which is the consideration for the defendant's promise to pay (j), and the consideration fails. If, however, the vendee in such case choose to keep the goods, he cannot reduce the special contract to a mere quantum valebant; he may either wholly adopt, or wholly renounce, the contract, but he cannot, it should seem, adopt it in part, by keeping the goods under the contract, and reject it in part, by refusing to pay the stipulated price (k), without giving the vendor an opportunity, which in some instances might still be open to him, of performing his contract by the delivery of other goods within the stipulated time. Besides, the neglect to return them when it was in his power to do so, affords a strong presumption that the goods correspond with the contract.

Where the contract cannot be rescinded.

Another predicament still remains; the goods may have been used before their inferiority has been discovered, or other circumstances may have rendered it impracticable, or at least inconvenient, for the vendor to rescind the contract in toto (l). In such a case it seems to have been the practice formerly to allow the vendor to recover the stipulated price, and the vendee recovered, by a cross-action, damages for the breach of contract (m).

(j) See the observations of Lawrence and Le Blanc, Js., 7 East, 484; and Ellis v. Hamlin, 3 Taunt. 55. Grimaldi v. White, 4 Esp. C. 95. Fisher v. Samuda, 1 Camp. 190. Groning v. Mendham, 1 Starkie's C. 257. Obell v. Smith, ib. 107. Pereival v. Blake, 2 C. & P. 514; and supra, 137.

(k) Where an artist exhibits specimens of his art and skill as a painter, and affixes a certain price to them, and a person is induced to order a picture from an approbation of such specimens, and the execution of it, when delivered, is inferior to the specimen exhibited, he has a right to refuse to receive it, or return it as not being conformable to that performance which the painter undertook to execute; but if he mean to avail himself of that objection, he must return the picture; he must rescind the contract totally. Having received it under a specific contract, he must either abide by it, or rescind it in toto, by returning the thing sold; he cannot keep the article received under a specific contract, and for a certain price, and pay for it at a less price than that charged in the contract. Per Lawrence, J., Grimaldi v. White, 4 Esp. C. 95.

In the case of Fisher v. Samuda (1 Camp. 190), the seller had supplied the buyer with beer, in the month of July, for the purpose of being exported to Gibraltar; the buyer exposed the casks containing the beer in an open court-yard, and gave no notice to the seller to take it back till the month of December: Lord Ellenborough held that it was the duty of the purchaser of any commodity, immediately on discovering that it was not according to order, and unfit for the purpose for which it was intended, to return it to the vendor, or give him notice to take it back; and that, under the circumstances of the present case, it was to be presumed that the purchaser had acquiesced in the due performance of the contract. And it was held, in consequence, that the purchaser, after having suffered the vendor to recover the price without making any defence, could not maintain a cross-action against him founded on the nonperformance of the contract.

See also Groning v. Mendham (1 Starkie's C. 257), where, in an action for the amount of a quantity of clover-seed, the defendant insisted that the goods did not answer the order, which was for seeds of the finest quality; but was not permitted to go into such evidence, for want of proof of notice to the plaintiff of his intention to rescind the contract, on discovering the inferiority of the article.

(l) The same observations apply to cases of work and labour; as, where a wall or house has been built on the defendant's premises, and the parties cannot be placed in statu quo by a return of the subject-matter of the contract.

(m) Broom v. Davis, Taunt. Lent Ass. cor. Buller, J. cited 7 East, 480, in the note. Assumpsit, for erecting a booth on Bath race-ground. The booth was to be built of certain dimensions for the sum of twenty guineas, five of which had been paid. The defendant proved that the booth fell down in the middle of the races, owing to bad materials and bad workmanship; Buller, J. ruled that this was no defence to the action, especially as a particular sum was specified, and part of it paid. It does not appear that in the

But according to the later and more convenient practice, the vendee in such a case is allowed, in an action for the price, to give evidence of the inferiority of the goods in reduction of damages, and the plaintiff who has broken his contract is not entitled to recover more than the value of the benefit which the defendant has actually derived from the goods; and where the latter has derived no benefit, the plaintiff cannot recover at all. For in strictness, the plaintiff, who has not performed that which he engaged for, is not entitled to recover at all; if he contracts to build a dwelling-house, he is not entitled to recover for building a stable (n). But still, if the defendant be benefited to a certain extent, and does not repudiate the contract in toto, it seems to be a rule of policy and convenience, as well as of equity and justice, that the plaintiff should be allowed to recover to the extent of the benefit derived by the defendant, and no further; it would be hard upon the plaintiff to preclude him from recovering at all, because he had failed as to part of his entire undertaking (o); it would be equally so upon the defendant to compel him to pay the whole sum, when he had received but a partial benefit, and to oblige him to seek his remedy by a cross-action. Where the contract cannot be rescinded.

The general inference seems to be this, that where there is a specific bargain as to price, but no warranty, and goods inferior in value to those contracted for have been delivered, the vendee must, where it is practicable to do so without prejudice, return the goods, and thus rescind the contract in toto, and if he does not, must be taken to have acquiesced in the performance of the contract (p); but that, if from the nature of the case it be no longer practicable so to rescind the contract by returning the goods, the defendant may either by proper notice renounce the contract altogether, or if he derive any benefit from it, may reduce the plaintiff's claim on the quantum meruit for labour, or quantum valebant for goods, to the amount of the benefit actually derived (q). Where the defendant means to deny the General rule.

above case the defendant had given any notice to the plaintiff of his intention to dispute the value of the work. The case of Morgan v. Richardson has also been cited in support of the above doctrine, but there a bill of exchange had been given for the amount of the work, and money had been paid into court on the count upon the bill.

(n) In Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 484, Lawrence, J. observed, "if the works stipulated for at a certain price were not properly executed, the plaintiff would not have done that which he engaged to do, the doing of which would be the consideration for the defendant's promise to pay, and the foundation on which his claim to the price stipulated for would rest." And Le Blanc, J. observed, "in either case (i.e. whether a specific sum be or be not stipulated for) the plaintiff must be prepared to show that his work was properly done; if a man contracted with another to build him a house for a certain sum, it surely would not be sufficient for the plaintiff to show that he had put together such a quantity of bricks and timber in the shape of a house, if it could be shown that it fell down the next day, but he ought to be prepared to show that he had done the stipulated work according to his contract; and it is open to the defendant to prove that it was executed in such a manner as to be of no value at all to him." In Allen v. Cameron, 1 C. & M. 832, where the agreement was to pay 200*l.* for young trees for a plantation, to be kept in order, the Court held, that if trees of an inferior quality were sent, or were not kept in order, the purchaser was entitled to a reduction.

(o) Supra, 137.

(p) Supra, 876; and Hunt v. Silk, 5 East, 449. In an action for the price of a threshing-machine, the defence was, that it did not properly answer the purpose, and was of no value, but as the defendant had never returned it nor given notice to the plaintiff to take it away, and it had been kept for several years, it was held that he had thereby waived all objection to its goodness, and was liable to pay for it. Cash v. Giles, 3 C. & P. 407.

(q) In the case of Farnsworth v. Garrard, 1 Camp. 36, where the plaintiff had built a wall for the defendant, and declared on a quantum meruit for work and labour, and quantum valebant for materials, the defendant was allowed to prove how ill the work had been executed, and Lord Ellenborough said, "This action is founded on goodness or value of the work or materials, it is usual and proper to give notice of his intention to the plaintiff. Where, however, the plaintiff declares on a quantum meruit, and there has been no stipulation as to price, such notice is clearly unnecessary; the defence can be no surprise upon him, since he must come prepared to show the value of the work done (r). Where a particular price has been agreed for, the plaintiff may have greater reason to complain of surprise if evidence of this kind be insisted upon, for otherwise he may not be prepared to prove more than the agreement and the work done, and therefore such notice should be given (s).

General rule.

Notice of disputing the value.

In case of warranty.

Where the article of sale is warranted, it seems that the vendee is entitled to prove the inferiority, and the breach of the warranty, in diminution of the damages, although a specific price has been agreed for. This is not open to the objection, that the defendant ought to have rescinded the contract in toto, for from the very nature of the contract of warranty, he has a right to keep the goods, and recover damages for the breach of warranty (t); a claim for meritorious service; the plaintiff is to recover what he deserves. It is therefore to be considered how much he deserves; or if he deserves anything. If the defendant has derived no benefit from his services, he deserves nothing, and there must be a verdict against him. There was formerly considerable doubt upon this point; the late Mr. J. Buller thought (and I, in deference to so great an authority, have at times ruled the same way) that in cases of this kind a cross-action for the negligence was necessary; and that if the work was done, the plaintiff must recover for it. I have since had a conference with the Judges on the subject, and I now consider this to be the correct rule,—that if there has been no beneficial service, there shall be no pay; but if some benefit has been derived (though not to the extent expected), this shall go to the amount of the plaintiff's demand, leaving the defendant to his action for negligence. Here, then, has there been any benefit, and to what amount? If the wall will not stand, and must be taken down, the defendant has derived no benefit from the plaintiff's service, but has suffered an injury. In that case, he might have given him notice to remove the materials; retaining them, he is not likely to be in a better situation than if the plaintiff had never placed them there; but if it will now cost him less to rebuild the wall than it would have done without those materials, he has some benefit, and must pay some damages." And in the subsequent case of Okell v. Smith, 1 Starkie's C. 107, where the action was brought for the price of pans, to be made for the purpose of the defendant's manufactory, of the best materials, at a stipulated price, Bayley, J. held that if the defendants, after giving them a reasonable trial, found them insufficient for the purposes for which they were intended, and gave notice to that effect to the plaintiff, he was bound to take them away, and they remained at his risk; but that if no notice was given, but the defendants retained the pans, they were liable to pay as much as the materials were worth; and see the observations of the Court in Street v. Blay, 2 B. & Ad. 463.

(r) Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 479. And that used to be the practice in Mr. J. Buller's time. Per Lord Ellenborough, Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Fielder v. Starkin, 1 H. B. 17. Dr. Compton's Case, cited by Buller, J., 1 T. R. 136. Buchanan v. Parnshaw, 2 T. R. 745. There the horse was warranted sound, and six years old, and by the conditions of sale was to be deemed sound if not returned within two days; the buyer, ten days after the sale, discovered that he was twelve years old, and offered to return him, but the seller refused to take him, and the buyer sold him, and recovered on the warranty. In the case of Curtis v. Hannay, 3 Esp. C. 83, Lord Eldon said, "I take it to be a clear law, that if a person purchases a horse, which is warranted, and which afterwards turns out to have been unsound at the time of the warranty, the buyer may, if he pleases, keep the horse, and bring an action on the warranty, in which case he will have a right to recover the difference between the value of a sound horse, and one with such defects as existed at the time of the warranty, or he may return the horse, and bring an action to recover the full money paid; but in the latter case, the seller has a right to expect that the horse shall be returned to him in the same state as when sold, and not by any means diminished in value; for if a person keeps a warranted article for any length of time after discovering its defects, and when he returns it, it is in a worse state than it would have been if returned immediately after such discovery, I think the party can have no defence to an action for the price of the article, on the ground of non-compliance with the warranty, but must be left to his action on the warranty to recover the difand therefore it is just, as well as convenient, that he should be permitted to prove the breach of warranty in the first instance, in diminution of damages (z).

Notice in case of warranty.

But although in the case of an express warranty, proof of notice to the plaintiff of the breach of warranty is unnecessary, yet the omission to give notice will furnish a strong presumption against the buyer, that the horse or other article had not at the time of sale the defect complained of, and will make the proof on his part much more difficult (a). Lord Ellenborough observed, that where an objection is made to an article of sale, common justice and honesty require that it should be returned at the earliest period, and before the commodity has been so changed as to render it impossible to ascertain by proper tests whether it is of the quality contracted for (b).

ference." See also Grimaldi v. White, 4 Esp. C. 95, and Hunt v. Silk, 5 East, 452, where Lord Ellenborough observed, "that where a contract is to be rescinded at all, it must be rescinded in toto, and the parties placed in statu quo." In the late case of Street v. Blay, K. B. Trin. T. 1831; 2 B. & Ad. 456, the Court of King's Bench held, after great consideration, and contrary to the dictum of Lord Eldon in Curtis v. Hannay, that the vendee of a warranted horse could not, in the absence of fraud, return the horse for breach of the warranty, and recover the price. Weston v. Downes, 1 Doug. 23; Tower v. Barret, 1 T. R. 133; Payne v. Whale, 7 East, 274. Gompertz v. Denton, 1 C. & M. 207. Edwards v. Chapman, 1 M. & W. 231. In the case of an implied warranty the defendant may, under the general issue, show a breach of warranty. Elliott v. Thomas, York Sum. Ass. 1837, cor. Parke, B. An order was sent for two parcels of steel, and it was held to be competent to show that the steel was of too hard a quality for welding, for the purpose of making steel-edged tools. Held also, that it was a question for the jury whether 13 lbs. of this steel, consumed in making experiments as to quality, was more than was necessary for the purpose; it was also left to the jury to say whether the use of more was an acceptance of the whole, or at all events of the part unnecessarily used; the learned Baron saying that he should reserve the question, whether the defendant ought not at all events to have paid into Court the value of the steel used; the jury found more used than was necessary, but also that there was no part acceptance.

(z) In Cormack v. Gillis (cited in Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 480), in an action for the value of a quantity of seeds sold under a warranty, Buller, J. held that the defendant was not at liberty to show that the seeds were not of the sort agreed for, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the whole price agreed for; but upon a cross-action brought, Lord Kenyon intimated that the non-compliance with the warranty ought to have been received in the former action in reduction of damages, or to show that the seeds were of no value. Where the plaintiff sold a horse to the defendant for twelve guineas, which he warranted sound, and paid three guineas, and in fact the horse was unsound, and not worth more than 1*l.* 10*s.*, Lord Kenyon nonsuited the plaintiff. King v. Boston, Middlesex Sitt. after Easter, 1789. It is competent to a vendor to show that seed does not correspond with a warranty under which they were sold, although on being informed of the fact he uses part and sells the residue. Poulton v. Lattimore, 9 B. & C. 259. Note, in this case it did not appear that the seeds were of any value, and the defendant had a verdict. And see Patteshall v. Tranter, 3 Ad. & Ell. 103. Where the plaintiff had, upon the sale of two pictures, represented them as originals of a great master, but they were only fine copies, held that as the defendant had never returned them, the plaintiff was entitled to recover so much as the jury should think them worth. Lowe v. Tucker, 4 C. & P. 15. Under the new rules of pleading, the defendant having paid money into court, may (the plaintiff having replied damages beyond that sum) show that the articles sent (stores) were defective, and insufficient for the object intended. Downing v. Nott, cor. Abinger, Liv. Sum. Ass. 1835.

(a) See Lord Loughborough's observations in Fielder v. Starkin, 1 H. B. 19. This was an action on a warranty of a mare; the plaintiff had kept her three months after the discovery of her unsoundness, and physicked her, and then sold her.

(b) Hopkins v. Appleby, 1 Starkie's C. 477; which was an action for a quantity of barilla, warranted to be of the best quality. The defendants after discovering that it wanted half its proper strength, went on to use it till the whole had been consumed in eight successive boilings of soap, without giving any notice. The plaintiffs recovered their whole demand.

The giving a bill of exchange in payment of goods has been held to preclude the defendant from questioning the reasonableness of the demand (c).

In case of part delivery.

Where several articles are ordered from a tradesman at the same time, but at distinct prices, the buyer may consider the whole as one entire contract, and refuse to receive part without the rest; but if he receive part, he is precluded from this objection, and must pay for as much as is furnished, according to the contract (d).

If a vendee omit to take away goods within a reasonable time, the vendor may recover for warehouse-room (e); or may recover damages for not removing them (f), where he is prejudiced by the delay.

Trover by vendor on rescinded contract.

After a contract of sale, and delivery to the agent of the vendee, the sale may be rescinded by the assent of both parties (g); and therefore, where goods had been bought and delivered, and sent to the vendee's packer, and the vendee wrote to his agent to countermand all orders which had been given, and to re-deliver all goods which had been already delivered, and the vendors notified their assent to take back the goods, it was held that they could not be attached by a third person in the hands of the packer (h). But where the vendor proceeded to attach the goods in the hands of the packer, it was considered to be an election by him not to rescind the contract, and the vendee having become a bankrupt, the vendor, it was held, could not recover from the packer in trover (i).

Defence by vendee. Fraud.

It is, in general, a good defence by a vendee (k), to an action for breach of contract, that the vendor was guilty of fraud in the sale; as, that the plaintiff, without notice, employed puffers at a sale by auction to enhance the price by pretended competition, and that there was no real bidder but the defendant (l).

(c) Knox v. Wholly, 1 Esp. C. 159.

(d) Champion v. Short, 1 Camp. 52. Having received part, the delivery of the remainder is not a condition precedent to the payment of another portion which is delivered. Boon v. Eyre, 1 H. B. 254.

(e) 3 Camp. 426.

(f) Greares v. Ashlin, 3 Camp. 426. It has been said that he cannot re-sell them. Ibid. Noy's Max. 87, 88. Alexander v. Comber, 1 H. B. 20. But see Langfort v. Tiler, Salk. 212.

(g) 5 T. R. 211.

(h) Salte v. Field, 5 T. R. 211.

(i) Smith v. Field, 5 T. R. 402.

(k) See in general as to the defence under the general issue, tit. ASSUMPSIT—TROVER and RULES. It seems that in general the failure on the part of the plaintiff to prove accordance with sample and other matters in the nature of conditions precedent, are evidence under the plea of the general issue to an action for goods sold and delivered. See Cousins v. Paddon, 2 C. M. & R. 547; Grounsell v. Lamb, 1 M. & W. 352.

(l) Howard v. Castle, 6 T. R. 642. Bexwell v. Christie, Cowp. 695; 3 Ves. jun. 625. But it seems that the ground of the decision was, that there was no real bidder. (Per Lord Rosslyn, in Conolly v. Parsons, 3 Ves. jun. 625, n.) And it is said, that if there be real bidders at a sale, it must be supported, although the bidding immediately previous to that of the purchase was fictitious. Smith v. Clarke, 12 Ves. 477. But it seems to be clear that the employment of a single person to bid, without notice, although he be authorized to bid up to a certain sum only, will vitiate the sale. See Wheeler v. Collier, 1 M. & M. C. 123. At a sale under an extent, with a bidding reserved by the conditions on the part of the Crown, a puffer appeared to have been employed by the auctioneer, the sale was declared to be vitiated, and held that the purchaser, as against the Crown, seeking to enforce the contract, was entitled to say it was fraudulent, although he appeared to have bid by collusion with the tenant, in order to obtain an abstract of the title. R. v. Marsh, 3 Y. & J. 331. A clandestine bidding by the vendor's servant on his behalf, was held to be a fraud upon the purchaser which vitiated the sale. Crowder v. Austin, 11 Moore, 283; 3 Bing. 368. And see Howard v. Castle, 6 T. R. 634. Upon the sale of a reversionary sum of money, subject to the contingency of the party, a female, on whose death the reversion was expectant, leaving children, she was represented as being of the age of 66, being in fact only 64, it was held to be a fatal mis-

Defence by vendee. Fraud.

And although where notice is given that a bidder will be employed on the part of the vendor, or where, even without notice, a bidder is employed, not with a view of enhancing the price generally, but to prevent a sale at an under-value, there is no fraud (m), yet if the advertisement of sale stated that the sale was to be without reserve, it would be void if any person were to be employed to bid (n).

Where the purchaser deterred others from bidding, by stating that he had a claim against the owner, and had been ill used by him, the sale was held to be void (o).

Where a bill is given for the price of goods, a total, or even partial, failure, from the fraud of the vendor, is a bar to the action (p), provided the vendee has repudiated the contract (q).

So, although the general rule of law be "caveat emptor," yet if the vendor of property give a false description of it, the vendee may rescind the contract; as, if an estate is stated to be but one mile from a borough town, and it turns out to be between three and four (r).

But where it was a condition of sale that a material error should not vitiate the sale, but should be compensated for, it was held that a misdedescription, and the learned judge was clearly of opinion that the question, whether the misrepresentation was wilful or not, was immaterial, the difference of age altering the probability of the further contingency of leaving children, and not being capable of being estimated, or compensated for in respect of the difference in value between the thing described and the thing sold, the purchaser was therefore entitled to rescind the contract. Sherwood v. Robins, 1 M. & M. 194; and 3 C. & P. 339. Where land sold by assignees was represented as "uncommonly rich water-meadow," whereas it appeared to be but very imperfectly watered, but there was no evidence of fraud or intentional misrepresentation on the part of the vendors; held that it was not sufficient to avoid the sale. Scott v. Hanson, 1 Russ. & M. 128. Generality and vagueness of description in court rolls, render the correspondence as to quantity immaterial; and it is sufficient for a vendor of copyholds to show that the premises have continually passed and been enjoyed by the description contained in the court rolls. Long v. Collier, 4 Russ. 267. A contract for the purchase of an estate, as "containing by estimation —— acres," contained a stipulation that any excess or deficiency should not vacate it; held that it could not cover a large deficiency, as construing "statute acres" to mean customary acres, which were much less; and that the purchaser had not precluded himself by entering into possession, and exercising acts of ownership on the faith of the estate being statute acres. Portman v. Mill, 2 Russ. 570. Where assignees sold a piece of land, to be taken with all faults, and upon being asked by the purchaser whether any rent had been paid, they replied that none had ever been paid by the bankrupt or the person under whom he claimed, the latter representation being untrue; in an action to recover back the purchase-money, it was held that it was properly left to the jury to say whether the concealment was fraudulent, and that the mere non-communication was not sufficient to avoid the contract. Early v. Garrett, 9 B. & C. 928. Where fen lands, which by a public Act were subject to embanking and draining taxes, were sold, but the particular of sale did not mention those taxes, there being no misrepresentation, a specific performance was decreed without compensation. Barraud v. Archer, 2 Sim. 433. It is considered as a general rule that the right of tithe is so material to the enjoyment of the land as to have formed an inducement to the purchase, that a party who has contracted for an estate described to be tithe-free, shall not be compelled to complete his contract if the estate turn out not to be so; but there is an exception to the rule, when it is clear that it formed no inducement for the defendant's refusal to complete the bargain. Head v. Diggon, 3 M. & R. 97.

(m) Smith v. Clarke, 12 Ves. 477.

(n) Meadows v. Tanner, 5 Madd. 34.

(o) Fuller v. Abrahams, 3 B. & B. 116.

(p) Lewis v. Cosgrave, 2 Taunt. 2; supra, 388.

(q) Ibid. Secus, where he affirms it by retaining part of the consideration. Archer v. Bamford, 3 Starkie's C. 175.

(r) Duke of Norfolk v. Worthy, 1 Camp. 337. Fenton v. Brown, 14 Ves. jun. 144. Trower v. Newsome, 3 Mer. 704. And see Vernon v. Keys, 12 East, 637. In the case of Flint v. Booth, (5 M. & S. 120; 1 Bing. N. C. 370,) the law with respect to misdescription is summed up. See App. 1213.

Defence. Fraud.

scription, obvious on a view of the premises, would not release the vendee, unless it were wilful and designed (s).

So where the estate was described to have lately undergone a thorough repair, whereas it was in a complete state of ruin, and ordered to be pulled down by the district surveyor (t).

If an annuity be subject to redemption, the purchaser is not bound to complete his contract, if the auctioneer do not describe it as redeemable (u).

Where the estate is described to contain a specified number of acres, it seems, in the first place, that this must be understood of statute, and not of customary, measure, unless they be so described (x); and that it would be a good defence at law to show that the estate did not contain the stipulated quantity of land. But if the estate be described as containing so many acres by estimation, be the same more or less, or by words to that effect, it seems that a small variance would not be material in the absence of fraud (y).

So it is fraudulent to give such a false description of the goods in the catalogue of sale, as is likely to enhance the price, as by falsely describing them in the catalogue to be "the property of a gentleman deceased, and sold by order of his executor" (z).

If a vendor fraudulently conceal that which he ought to communicate, it will render the sale null and void; and there seems, in such cases, to be no distinction between an active and a passive communication (a). But to have that effect the concealment must be fraudulent, and whether fraudulent or not is usually a question for the jury (b).

(s) Wright v. Wilson. 1 Mo. & R. 207.

(t) Loyes v. Rutherford, K. B. May, 1809; Sugden's Treatise, 273. But see Belworth v. Hassell, 4 Camp. 140.

(u) Coverley v. Burrell, 5 B. & A. 257. But it seems, that if a public Act authorising the raising of money by annuities made them redeemable, such a notice would be unnecessary. Coverley v. Burrell, 2 Starkie's C. 295.

(x) Wing v. Earle, Cro. Eliz. 267. Noble v. Durrell, 3 T. R. 271. Hockin v. Cooke, 4 T. R. 314. Master of St. Cross v. Lord Howard de Walden, 6 T. R. 338; supra, 387.

(y) See Day v. Fynn, Ow. 33; Sugden's V. & P. 281, and the cases there cited. It seems, that notwithstanding these words, the purchaser will be entitled to an abatement in equity, if the deficiency be considerable (Hill v. Buckley, 17 Ves. 394). But in the late case of Winch v. Winchester (1 Ves. & B. 375), where the estate was stated to contain by estimation 41 acres, be the same more or less, and it contained in fact but between 35 and 36, the Master of the Rolls decided against a claim by the purchaser for an abatement. Upon a building lease of 59 feet, more or less, the lessee takes 62 feet, but the ground taken agrees with the abuttals in the lease, and the lessor sees the process of the building without objecting. This is evidence of an acquiescence to go to the jury. Neale d. Leroux v. Parkin and Lambert, 1 Esp. C. 229. And see Attorney-General v. Baliol College, Oxford, 9 Mod. 411; East India Company v. Vincent, 2 Atk. 83. The agreement of sale stated the numbers and quantities of each close, and there being a deficiency of two acres in one of the closes, it was held that the purchaser was entitled to an abatement, although the agreement stated the estate to consist altogether of about 101 acres 3 roods. Gell v. Watson, Sugd. V. & P., 529, 10th edit.

(z) Per Lord Mansfield, C. J. in Bexwell v. Christie, 1 Cowp. 395. Where, upon the sale of the fixtures and fittings-up of a public-house, a misrepresentation was made as to the amount of the business, it was held to avoid the sale, although by the agreement the goodwill was expressly excluded. Hutchinson v. Morley, 7 Sc. 341.

(a) Per Bayley, J. in Early v. Garrett, 9 B. & C. 928.

(b) Ibid. The assignees of A. proposed to sell to B. a piece of land with all faults and defects. Before any conveyance was executed, the latter asked the assignees whether any rent had ever been paid for the land. The former replied, none had been paid by the bankrupt, or by any person under whom he claimed; in fact, rent had been paid by the person who had sold the land to the bankrupt. That person

Defence. Fraud.

Where the plaintiff's agent sold a picture to the defendant as a Claude, refusing to disclose the name of his principal, but knowingly suffered the defendant to buy the picture, under the impression that it was the property of another person, Lord Ellenborough held that the sale was void, through fraud, even though the picture were a real Claude (c).

Where a tenant sold his interest in the premises by auction, without informing the vendee that the landlord had, the day before the sale, given notice of re-entry according to the terms of the lease, if the premises were not put in repair within three months, and the vendee was afterwards ejected, it was held to be a fraudulent concealment, and that the vendee was entitled to recover his deposit from the auctioneer (d).

And where a lease, containing the usual covenants to repair, is sold by auction, if any of the demised buildings have been pulled down before the sale, the vendee may rescind the contract, although the buildings pulled down be not described in the particulars of sale (e).

And although the conditions of sale provide that a mistake in the particular shall not vitiate the contract, the stipulation does not extend to a wilful misdescription calculated to enhance its value (f).

But it seems that where a vendee knows the description to be false, he cannot take advantage of it either at law or in equity (g).

Where there is a latent defect in the subject of sale, known to the vendor, and he uses any means or artifice to conceal that defect, this is a fraud which will avoid the contract, even although by the written terms of contract the article is sold with all faults (h). But according to the opinion of Lord Ellenborough, in the case of Baglehole v. Walters, where an article is sold with all faults, it is quite immaterial how many belong to it, with the knowledge of the seller, unless he use some artifice to disguise them, and to prevent their being discovered by the purchaser (i).

Hence it seems that in such a case, in order to repel an action on the contract, or to enable a vendee to recover his deposit, proof of the scienter, and of actual fraud on the part of the vendee, is essential. And for the purpose of proving fraud, the vendee is not confined to the written contract made at the time of the sale, but may give in evidence previous and contemporary representations made for the purpose of putting the vendee off his guard and preventing him from being vigilant.

Right of inspection.

The purchaser of goods by sample has a right to inspect the whole of the bulk for the purpose of comparison; and if the vendor refuse such inspection, it is a good defence to the action (k), although the vendor afterwards having recovered possession of the land, it was held, in an action brought against the assignees to recover back the purchase-money, that it was properly left to the jury to say whether the assignees, at the time when they represented that no rent had been paid, bonâ fide believed that to be true; and the jury having found that they did, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover back the purchase-money. Ibid.

(c) Hill v. Gray, 1 Starkie's C. 434.

(d) Sterens v. Adumson, 2 Starkie's C. 422.

(e) Granger v. Worms, 4 Camp. 83.

(f) Duke of Norfolk v. Worthy, 1 Camp. 340. And see Schneider v. Heath, 3 Camp. 506.

(g) See Dyer v. Hargrave, 10 Ves. jun. 505. But he may still sue upon an express warranty.

(h) Baglehole v. Walters, cor. Ld. Ellenborough, 3 Camp. 154. Schneider v. Heath, cor. Mansfield, C. J., 3 Camp. 506. Pickering v. Dowson, 4 Taunt. 779. Jones v. Bowden, ibid. 847.

(i) 3 Camp. 154. Lord Kenyon, in the previous case of Mellish v. Motteux, Peake's C. 85, held mere knowledge on the part of the vendor to be sufficient. Supra, tit. DECEIT.

(k) Lorymer v. Smyth, 1 B. & C. 1. Note,

Right of inspection. request the vendee to inspect the bulk, for the contract is wholly rescinded (l). And it has been held that a party who sells goods to be delivered on a future day, not having the goods at the time, nor having entered into any contract to buy them, nor any reasonable expectation of receiving them by consignment, but who meant to go into the market to buy the goods which he had contracted to deliver, cannot maintain an action on the contract, for the contract on the part of the vendor amounts to a wager on the price of the commodity (m). This case has, however, been since over-ruled.

Payment. Payment in a bill which is dishonoured, and which remains inoperative in the hands of the vendor, does not preclude the vendor from recovering on the original consideration (n).

Waiver. The vendor of goods, on the vendee's objecting to their quality, and refusing to accept them, requests the vendee to sell them for him; this is evidence of a waiver of the contract, and the jury cannot take into their consideration whether, in making that request, the vendor mistook the law (o).

Negligence. Where a vendor receives an order to forward goods to the vendee, at another sea-port, by a common sea-carrier, who it is notorious has limited his responsibility as to parcels of a certain value, it is his duty to enter the goods and pay for them accordingly, in order to ensure the responsibility of the carrier for the safe delivery; and if the goods be lost in consequence of neglect to do so, the vendor cannot recover the price (p).

Illegality. No action lies where the consideration, in respect of which recompense is claimed, is in its nature illegal or immoral (q).

the payment was to be made by a banker's bill, and an usage to permit the inspection of the bulk was proved, but the Court intimated that the purchaser had a right, independent of any particular usage, to inspect the bulk.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Bryan v. Lewis, 1 Ry. & M. 386. But see App. 1216. An action is not maintainable on a contract arising out of the employment of the defendant by the plaintiff to raise a loan stated to be for the use of the Poyais state, without proof that such a state really existed. Mac-Gregor v. Lowe, 1 Ry. & M. C. 57.

(n) Fry v. Hill, 7 Taunt. 397. The purchaser paid for the goods by a bill at one month after sight, for a larger sum than the price, the vendor paying the difference; the bill was dishonoured; and held, that the vendor might recover the price of the goods. Ibid. See also Williams v. Smith, 2 B. & A. 496. The purchaser of goods to be paid for by a bill on his agent, who has no convertible funds in his hands, is not discharged by a renewal of the bill without notice (Clarke v. Neale, 3 Camp. 411). But where goods were sold, "without recourse on the buyer in case of nonpayment," for a bill which the vendee knew to be worth nothing, it was held that the vendor could not maintain assumpsit for the value, but must sue in tort (Read v. Hutchinson, 3 Camp. 352). Where a bill, drawn and accepted by two other persons, was indorsed in blank in payment of a greater amount than the price of the goods, held that the vendor having lost the bill, could not sue the vendee for the goods, or on the bill. Champion v. Terry, 3 B. & B. 294.

(o) Gomery v. Bond, 3 M. & S. 378. Bilbie v. Lumley, 2 East, 469. Brisbane v. Dacres, 5 Taunt. 143; supra, 78. Where the plaintiff failed to prove the warranty of the horse sold, but proved that after he had returned him to the defendant, the latter said that he would keep it without prejudice, and not only rode it, but offered it for sale, held that it was properly left to the jury, whether the defendant had not by his own acts rescinded the original contract of sale. Long v. Preston, 2 M. & P. 262. But a contract of sale cannot be rescinded by the act of the parties where the rights of third parties have intervened. Smith v. Field, 5 T. R. 402; supra, 1212.

(p) Clark v. Hutchins, 14 East, 475.

(q) If A. agrees to give B. money for doing an illegal act, B. cannot, although he do the act, recover the money by action. (Webb v. Bishop, Gloucester Lent Assiz. 1731, cor. Reynolds, C. B., B. N. P. 132.) It is remarkable that Dr. Paley, in his Moral Philosophy, intimates that a person who has promised to reward another for the commission of a crime, is bound to perform his promise after the crime has been committed, because, he says, the sin and mischief are over, and no reason remains why the promise should not be performed; but surely the question is, upon Defence. Illegality.

The smuggling of prohibited goods into this country cannot be made the foundation of an action for not bringing the goods at all, or not bringing them in a perfect state (r); nor will an action lie for the freight of goods in an illegal voyage (s); or on a policy of insurance effected on an illegal voyage (t); or for goods to be carried to the East Indies, and there disposed of by illegal and clandestine traffic (u); or for the price of bricks under the statutable size (x); or for the price of libellous, obscene or immoral prints (y); or for articles of dress sold for the express purpose of prostitution (z), or to be paid for out of the wages of prostitution (a); or for drugs sold by a druggist to a brewer, knowing that they were to be used in the brewery (b); or for running an illegal race (c); or for printing books without the printer's name on the first and last leaves, as required by the statute (d); or for printing and publishing a periodical work, part of which is printed on stamped paper, and distributed as newspapers, the printer not having lodged an affidavit at the Stamp-office, or had his name and abode printed on the publication, as required by the statute (e).

An innkeeper cannot recover against a candidate at an election for provisions furnished to the voters of a borough, after the teste of the writ (f).

The owner of a ship employed in the East India Company's service cannot recover on a contract for the sale of the command of the ship, made without the knowledge of the East India Company (g); or for the sale of any office which is not saleable by law (h).

An agreement for the transfer of a ship which does not recite the certificate of registry is void (i).

In the case of Hodgson v. Temple (k), it was held, that a person who sold goods, knowing that the purchaser intended to apply them in an illegal trade, was entitled to recover the price, if he yielded no other aid to the transaction than by selling the goods and obtaining permits for their delivery to the agent of the purchaser.

In the late case of Brown v. Duncan (l), the Court recognized the cases of the prineiple of general utility, whether the general and universal performance of such contracts does not encourage their frequency; and whether it is not better on the whole for mankind that they should never be performed.

(r) P. C. Wilkinson v. Loudonsack, 3 M. & S. 117.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Toulmin v. Anderson, 1 Taunt. 227.

(u) Lightfoot v. Tenant, 1 B. & P. 551.

(x) Law v. Hodgson, 11 East, 300.

(y) Fores v. Johnes, 4 Esp. C. 97.

(z) Bowry v. Bennett, 1 Camp. 348.

(a) Ibid. But the mere circumstance of the plaintiff's knowledge that the defendant was a prostitute is not a bar, unless he was to be paid out of the profits of prostitution, or the clothes were furnished with a view to prostitution. Ib.

(b) Langton v. Hughes, 1 M. & S. 593.

(c) Coates v. Hatton, 3 Starkie's C. 61.

(d) Ibid. in the note. And see Bensley v. Bignold, 5 B. & A. 335, and Marchant v. Evans, 2 Moore, 14. Poplett v. Stockdale, 1 Ry. & M. C. 337. Stockdale v. Onwhyn, 5 B. & C. 173. A sale of living pheasants is illegal, and passes no property. Helps v. Glenister, 8 B. & C. 553.

(e) Marchant v. Evans, 2 Moore, 14.

(f) Ribbans v. Crickett, 1 B. & P. 264.

(g) Blachford v. Preston, 8 T. R. 89. Or for the sale of shares in an East India ship, with a stipulation for the appointment of the commander and continuance of management. Card v. Hope, 2 B. & C. 261.

(h) Ibid. and Garforth v. Fearon, 1 H. B. 327.

(i) Biddell v. Leeder, 1 B. & C. 327, under the stat. 34 G. 3, c. 68, s. 14.

(k) 5 Taunt. 181; 1 Marsh. 5. And see 3 B. & A. 185. But see Lightfoot v. Tenant, 1 B. & P. 551. It is no defence to an action for goods delivered to a master of a vessel to be sold by him, that they were exported without paying duty, unless the evasion formed part of the contract. Catlin v. Bell, 4 Camp. 183.

(l) 10 B. & C. 93. There the plaintiffs, five in number, carrying on the business of distillers, sued the defendant on a guarantee of the price of spirits supplied to another party, and it appeared that one of the plain-

Defence. Illegality.

Hodgson v. Temple, and Johnson v. Hudson, and distinguished between cases where goods had been sold, or a guarantee entered into, in contravention of mere revenue laws, and those where the contract is in violation of a law designed either for the protection of the public, either solely, or with the additional view of protecting the revenue, and held that the latter only were void.

On an action brought for washing the defendant's clothes, it was held to be no defence that the defendant was a prostitute, and that some of the dresses were of an expensive kind, and were used, to the knowledge of the plaintiff, with a view to prostitution; for it was necessary that she should have clean linen, and the Court could not take into consideration which of the articles were used for an improper purpose, and which were not (m).

Where the contract is illegal it makes no difference that the parties thought that they were acting legally, for their apprehension does not alter the nature of the contract which the Court is called on to enforce (n).

Proof by vendee of goods.

An action by the VENDEE of goods is either on a special contract for not delivering the goods; or of detinue; or of trover (o), for a conversion; or of tiffs, not named in the license as a distiller, carried on the business of a retailer of spirits within the limits prohibited by the Excise Acts; held, that those Acts, having only for their object to protect the revenue, the plaintiffs were not precluded from recovering the value of the spirits sold by reason of their having violated the excise laws. Where quantities of spirits were delivered at one time, in the whole exceeding 20*s.*, but each separately of less amount, held that it was not within 24 Geo. 2, c. 40, s. 12, and that the plaintiff might recover. Owens v. Porter, 4 C. & P. 367. The stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 20, ss. 115. 117. 119, requiring a permit for spirits sold out of the stock of a distiller, &c. and precluding the seller from recovering if the permit be not sent, does not preclude the seller from recovering where he has sent an irregular permit, describing spirits at 27 deg. above proof to be 17 below proof, for the sale was legal, although the seller violated the statute, and the 119th sec. applies only where the permit granted by the officer has not been delivered. Wetherell v. Jones, 2 B. & Ad. 221. In Lightfoot v. Tenant, 1 B. & P. 551, it was held that a person who sold goods in order that they might be exported to a place to which by law they could not legally be exported, could not recover the price; but there the offence was a violation of the stat. 7 G. 1, c. 21, which avoids all contracts for supplying cargoes to foreign ships. In the case of Little v. Poole, 9 B. & C. 192, it was held that this Act (47 G. 3, c. 68) made it imperative on the vendor of coals to deliver a vendor's ticket, signed by the meter; and that the Act having been passed to protect the buyer against the frauds of the seller, a vendor of coals who had delivered a vendor's ticket to the purchaser, which was not signed by the meter, could not recover the price of the coals from such purchaser. See further, Wayman v. Reed, 5 T. R. 599. Biggs v. Lawrence, 3 T. R. 454. Clugas v. Penelnna, 4 T. R. 466. Holman v. Johnson, Cowp. 349. In Menx v. Humphries, 1 M. & M. C. 132, Lord Tenterden expressed an opinion that a brewer could not maintain an action for beer supplied to one who was not the licensed keeper of the public-house to which the beer was supplied; but a juror was withdrawn. A foreigner who sells and delivers goods abroad to a British subject is entitled to recover the price, although he knows at the time of the sale and delivery that the buyer intended to smuggle them into this country, but took no part in the illegal adventure. Pelleeatt v. Angel, 2 C. M. & R. 311. A brewer who delivers beer to a non-licensed keeper of a public-house, where it is delivered, may maintain an action for the price. Brooker v. Wood, 5 B. & Ad. 1052. The Treating Act applies only to candidates and their agents. Hughes v. Marshall, 5 C. & P. 150.

(m) Lloyd v. Johnson, 1 B. & P. 340. Vide supra, 1184. Where a factor sold a piece of manufactured tobacco consigned to him from Guernsey, without having entered himself in the Excise-office as a dealer in tobacco, and having no license as such, it was held that he might maintain an action for the value of the goods, although they were sent to the defendant without a permit; there being no fraud on the revenue, but at most a breach of the revenue laws, protected by penalties. Johnson v. Hudson, 11 East, 180. But note, that the Court doubted whether the plaintiff could, under the circumstances, be considered to be a dealer within the statute.

(n) P. C. Wilkinson v. Loudonsack, 3 M. & S. 126.

(o) Infra, 1221.

money had and received (p) upon a rescinded contract; or upon a warranty (q).

The vendee of goods, in an action against the vendor for not delivering the goods according to his contract, must prove, 1st. The contract; 2dly. The performance of conditions precedent; 3dly. The damage sustained. Contract.

The engagement must be mutually binding, or it is null. A. gives B. till four o'clock to decide whether he will purchase the goods of A., and B. within the time signifies his assent, yet A. is not bound (r). But where A. by letter offered to sell B. certain goods, receiving an answer by return of post, and the letter being misdirected, the answer, notifying B.'s acceptance, did not arrive so soon by two days as it would have done had A.'s letter been properly directed, it was held that the contract was complete the moment the offer was accepted, and that B. was entitled to recover for breach of contract (s). But the party making an offer may retract it at any time before acceptance (t). The action may be brought either by the principal or by the agent in whose name it is made (u).

If goods be sold by sample, but the sale-note makes no mention of the fact, the remedy is by action of deceit (v).

As it is sufficient, in a declaration for not delivering goods on request, to aver a request by the plaintiff, and that he was ready and willing to pay the defendant for the same, and a refusal by the defendant to deliver, without averring an actual tender of the price (x), so a demand of the delivery of goods sold is sufficient proof of the averment that the plaintiff was ready and willing (y), although the demand was not made by the plaintiff himself but by his foreman (z). Condition precedent.

(p) Infra, 1227.

(q) Infra, tit WARRANTY.

(r) Cooke v. Oxley, 3 T. R. 653.

(s) Adams v. Lindsell, 1 B. & A. 681. See also Humphries v. Carvalho, 16 East, 45. A broker on Saturday sold goods of the defendant to the plaintiff at a stipulated price, subject to the plaintiff's approval of the quality on the Monday following, and sent the bought-note to the plaintiff on the Saturday, marked with the words "quality to be approved on Monday," but did not send the bought-note to the defendant then, because he had met him, and informed him of the contract on the same day; the plaintiff not having signified his disapproval of the contract on Monday, the broker sent the sold-note to the defendant on Friday, with the words "quality to be approved of on Monday" struck out, which note the defendant returned in twenty-four hours, which by the custom of the trade signified his disaffirmance of the contract as far as in him lay; held, that at any rate the defendant could no longer disaffirm it after Monday.

(t) Cooke v. Oxley, 3 T. R. 653. Routledge v. Grant, 4 Bing. 653. The rule applies to a bidder at an auction, who may retract his bidding at any time before the hammer is down. Payne v. Care, 3 T. R. 148.

(u) See above, 869, and tit. SET-OFF. The plaintiffs, brokers, bought goods of the defendant on account of H., and by his authority. The purchase was made in their own names, but the vendor was told that there was an unnamed principal. The plaintiffs afterwards, under a general authority from H. contracted to sell the same goods, which the defendant had not yet delivered; H. on hearing of the latter contract, informed the plaintiffs that he would have nothing to do with the goods either as buyer or seller, and in this they acquiesced. The defendant then refused to deliver the goods, and the plaintiffs sued him for damages sustained by him in consequence; held that the renunciation of the contract by H., and plaintiff's acquiescence in it, formed no objection to their right to recover. Short and others v. Spackman, 2 B. & A. 962. Brokers selling hemp by auction at their own rooms, and in their invoice describing the goods as bought of them, cannot show in defence that they sold as agents, and that they had intimated the fact before and at the time of sale, and that the principals being indebted to them, the invoice had been made out in their names, according to a custom of the town where the sale was made. Jones v. Littledale, 6 Ad. & Ell. 486.

(v) Meyer v. Everth, 4 Camp. 55.

(x) Rawson v. Johnson, 2 East, 203. Waterhouse v. Skinner, 2 B. & P. 447.

(y) Squier v. Hunt, 3 Price, 68. Wilkes v. Atkinson, 1 Marsh, 412. Levy v. Ld. Herbert, 7 Taunt. 318. Supra, 69.

(z) Squier v. Hunt, 3 Price, 68.

Condition precedent.

In an action for the non-delivery of goods to be paid for by a bill, the plaintiff must prove the tender of a bill; but no evidence on the part of the defendant is admissible to prove that by bill was meant an approved bill (a). And even if the contract be to pay by an approved bill, it must be taken to mean a bill to which no reasonable objection could be made (b).

The parties agreed, in writing, as follows: "Sold to P. one bale of sponge, at, &c.; and bought of him yellow ochre, at, &c."; it was held that the delivery of the ochre was a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right of action for non-delivery of the sponge (c).

Stock.

In an action for not transferring stock (d), the plaintiff must prove, in addition to the contract, that the defendant was possessed of the stock; that the plaintiff paid or tendered the price, and that he attended at the Bank for the purpose of accepting a transfer; or an actual request and refusal to transfer (e). And also that he actually bought, and duly accepted, the same quantity of stock from another person at a greater price (f).

The measure of damages is the difference between the contract price and that which goods of that description bore about the time appointed for delivery (g).

Defence.

It is no defence on the part of the vendor, in an action for not loading goods at Petersburgh before a certain day, that the goods had been seized by the Russian government, and that the vessel had put to sea to avoid an embargo (h).

In avoidance of a sale made by a broker, the defendant may prove that by the custom of the trade the authority to sell expires on the day on which it is given (i).

Where the defendant insists that he is entitled to retain the deposit as a forfeiture, he must show that he has done every thing which he was bound to do to entitle him to the forfeiture, for forfeitures are strictí juris, and if he has done any thing to waive the right he cannot recover (k).

In an action for the non-delivery of goods, according to a contract, it (a) Hodgson v. Davies, 2 Camp. 530.

(b) Ibid. And see Adam v. Richards, 2 H. B. 573. Thirsby v. Helbot, 3 Mod. 273.

(c) Parker v. Rawlings, 4 Bing. 480.

(d) As to variance from the contract, see Wickes v. Gardon, 2 B. & A. 33; Vol. I. tit. VARIANCE.

(e) See Bordenave v. Gregory, 5 East, 107.

(f) 7 G. 2, c. 8, s. 7. Note, that a sale of Columbian bonds is not within the provisions of the Act (Henderson v. Bise, 3 Starkie's C. 158); the statute is limited to the British public funds. (Ibid.) The statute against stock-jobbing does not apply to cases where the party agreeing to transfer is possessed of the stock (Sanders v. Kentish, 8 T. R. 162. Tate v. Wellings, 3 T. R. 531). A jobbing in omnium is within the statute. Brown v. Turner, 7 T. R. 630.

(g) Gainsford v. Carroll, 2 B. & C. 624. Leigh v. Paterson, 2 Moore, 588. Startup v. Cortturzzi, 2 C. M. & R. 165. Banerman v. Nash, 9 B. & C. 145. Brandt v. Bowlby, 3 B. & Ad. 932. As to stock, see above, 873.

(h) Splidt v. Heath, 2 Camp. 54, n.

(i) Dickenson v. Lilwall, 1 Starkie's C. 121; 4 Camp. 279.

(k) Carpenter v. Blandford, 8 B. & C. 575. An appraisement was to be made by two appraisers, one on each side, and possession to be taken and payment to be made on a day specified, and agreed that if the vendee should not perform the contract, he should forfeit his deposit of 30*l.*; and on that day the two appraisers met, and the seller's appraiser was informed that the buyer's appraiser could not conveniently complete the business till the following day; no objection was then made to the delay; on the next day the buyer's appraiser went to the premises to make the valuation, but the vendor refused to permit him, and said that he would not complete the contract; and it was held that it was incumbent on the seller, if he meant to insist that the contract should be completed on the day specified, he ought to have notified such his intention to the buyer.

is a good defence that the plaintiff was insolvent, and unable to pay for them (l); for it is a fraud on the vendor.

To enable the vendee to maintain trover or detinue for the goods, it is essential to show not only a valid contract of absolute sale, in writing, where the statute requires it (m), but also, either payment of the price or a tender of it, or an agreement for payment at a future day, or the delivery of the goods; for whether the property be (n) or be not changed by payment of earnest (o), it is clear on all hands that the vendee has no right to the possession until payment be either made or tendered (p). Trover.

By the common law, if a man agree with another for goods at a certain price, he may not carry them away before he has paid for them, for it is no sale without payment, unless the contrary be expressly agreed. And therefore if the vendor says the price of a beast is 4*l.*, and the vendee says he will give 4*l.*, the bargain is struck, and they neither of them are at liberty to be off, provided immediate possession be tendered by the other side (q).

If a man offer money for goods in a market, and the other agree to take his offer, and while the buyer is telling out his money as fast as he can, the seller sell the goods to another, the buyer may, upon payment, or tender and refusal of the price agreed upon, take the goods (r). And if any part of the price has been paid, if it be but a penny, or any portion of the goods delivered, by way of earnest, the property of the goods is transferred to the vendee (s), that of the price to the vendor; but the vendee cannot take the goods, or maintain detinue for their detention, or trover for their value, until he tenders the price agreed upon (t); but if he tenders the money to the vendor, and he refuses it, the vendee may

(l) Reeder v. Knatchbull, 6 T. R. 218.

(m) Supra, 485.

(n) 2 Bl. Comm. 448, aff. But see Lord Holt's judgment in Langford v. Administratrix of Tiler, Salk. 113; infra, note (t).

(o) Ibid.

(p) Noy's Max. 88; 2 Bl. Comm. 447.

(q) 2 Comm. 447. But if one agrees to pay so much for a horse, and the owner agrees to take it, and no more passes, this is a mere nude treaty. Lutw. 252; Dyer, fol. 30, pl. 203; 14 H. 8, 22.

(r) Sheppard's Touchst. 225.

(s) 2 Bl. Comm. 488; Noy, c. 42. And if the chattle were a horse, which died after the bargain, but before actual delivery, the vendor would still be entitled to the money, for by the contract the property was in the vendee (Ibid. and see Hinde v. Whitehouse, 7 East, 558). So where goods were sold, to be paid for in thirty days, and if not then removed, the buyer to be liable to warehouse rent, the property vests in the purchaser immediately, and remains at his risk. Phillimore v. Barry, 1 Camp. 513. See Elmore v. Stone, 1 Taunt. 458; supra, 841. A. and B. agree to exchange horses; B. pays 1*d.* as earnest, this vests the property in B. Per Buller, J. in Buck v. Owen, 5 T. R. 409. But note, that the case was decided on another ground. A. agrees to sell a stack of hay to B. for 145*l.* to be paid on the 4th of February then next, but to be allowed to stand on A.'s premises till May 1st, B. agreeing that it should not be cut till paid for; held that the property passed immediately, and that the subsequent loss of the property by fire fell on the vendee. Turling v. Baxter, 6 B. & C. 360. The rule of law is, that where there is an immediate sale, and nothing remains to be done by him as between him and the vendee, the property vests in the vendee. Per Bayley, J. Ibid. An oral bargain having been made for twenty hogsheads of sugar, at a specified rate per cwt., four hogsheads were delivered, and sixteen more were afterwards separated from the bulk, and appropriated, with his consent, to the vendee; held that the property in the sixteen hogsheads was vested in the vendee, subject to the vendor's lien for the price, and that the vendee might recover for goods bargained and sold. Rhode v. Thwaites, 6 B. & C. 388. See the next note.

(t) Hob. 41; 2 Bl. Comm. 448. After earnest given, the vendor cannot sell the goods to another without default in the vendee; and therefore if the vendee do not come and pay for and take away the goods, the vendor ought to go and request him, and then if he do not come and pay for and take away the goods in a convenient time, the agreement is dissolved, and the vendor is at liberty to sell them to any other per-seize the goods, or have an action against the vendor for detaining them (a).

Trover.

So if a day be fixed for the delivery, and a future day be appointed for payment, the property vests in the vendee, and trover may be maintained without any tender of the price (x).

If there be neither earnest, part-payment, part-delivery, or agreement in writing, the sale is void by the Statute of Frauds (y); as, if one agree to buy sheep, and to take them away at a certain hour, but no money be paid, nor sheep delivered, no property passes, and the owner may resell them (z).

Capability of delivery.

The doctrine that an absolute right of property and of possession passes to the vendee, without actual delivery, assumes that the subject of sale is definite and ascertained, so as to be capable of immediate delivery.

The property in a chattel when made does not pass by a contract of sale, even although the value be paid, unless it be in existence at the time (a) of the contract.

son. Per Holt C. J., in Langford v. Administratrix of Tiler, Salk. 113.

In Noy's Maxims it is said, "If I sell my horse for money, I may keep him until I am paid; but I cannot have an action of debt until he be delivered; yet the property of the horse is, by the bargain, in the bargainor or buyer. But if he do presently tender me the money, and I do refuse it, he may take the horse, or have an action of detainment. And if the horse die in my stable between the bargain and the delivery, I may have an action of debt for my money, because by the bargain the property was in the buyer." See Lord Ellenborough's observations in Hinde v. Whitehouse, 7 East, 571.

In Sheppard's Touchstone, 224, it is laid down, "If a man, by word of mouth, sell to me his horse, or any other thing, and I give him or promise him nothing for it, this is void, and will not alter the property of the thing sold; but if one sell me a horse or any other thing, for money or any other valuable consideration, and the same thing is to be delivered to me at a day certain, and by our agreement a day is set for the payment of the money, or all or any part of the money is paid in hand, or I give earnest-money, albeit it be but a penny, to the seller, or I take the thing bought by agreement into my possession, where no money is paid, earnest given, or day set for the payment, in all these cases there is a good bargain and sale of the thing to alter the property thereof."

In Buller's N. P. 50, the law is thus stated: "If a man comes to a shop to buy goods, and they agree on the price and the day of payment, and the buyer takes them away, detinue will not lie, because the property was changed by a lawful bargain; but if they agree for present money, and the buyer take the goods away without payment, detinue lies, because the property is not altered. (Cro. Eliz. 867.) So if a man sell goods on payment of money on a day to come, and the money be paid, and the goods not delivered, detinue lies, because the property is in the buyer. (Ca. K. B. 345.) But earnest does not alter the property, but only binds the bargain; and therefore if no other time for payment be appointed, the money must be paid on fetching away the goods. The earnest gives the party a right to demand, but a bare demand without payment is void. Salk. 113." A. sells different parcels of hops to B., who engages that they shall remain in A.'s hands till paid for: A., after notice that they will be sold at a future day, if not previously paid for, sells part with B.'s assent, and after B. had become bankrupt, sells the remainder without his assent or that of his assignees: the assignees cannot maintain trover; for until payment or tender of the price, there was no right of possession. Bloxham v. Sanders, 4 B. & C. 941. And in the case of Bloxham v. Morley, the Court held that the assignees could not in such case recover, although the engagement were out of the question, and although part of the goods were in the warehouses of third persons, to whom no notice to change the property had been given. Per Bayley, J. New v. Sloman, 1 Dans. & L. 193, where the owner of goods sells on credit, the buyer has a right to immediate possession, but if he suffers the goods to remain until the period has elapsed, and no payment in fact is made, then the seller has a right to retain them.

(u) 2 Bl. Comm. 448.

(x) Sheppard's Touchstone, 224; supra, note (t).

(y) Alexander v. Comber, 1 H. B. 9. i. e. where the value is 10*l*. See Bloxsom v. Williams, 3 B. & C. 234. The property passes on a sale by auction, although the goods are not to be delivered till the purchaser has paid certain duties to the seller. Hinde v. Whitehouse, 7 East, 558. Phillimore v. Barry, 1 Camp. 513. See above, tit. FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.

(z) Alexander v. Comber, 1 H. B. 9.

(a) Mucklow v. Mangles, 1 Taunt. 318;

Trover. Capability of delivery.

It is a very general rule, that whenever anything remains to be done on the part of the seller, as between him and the buyer, previous to the delivery, a complete present right of property does not attach (b); and therefore, where the vendor agreed to sell all his stock, lying in papers at the warehouse of a third person, at a certain price, and it was agreed that the weight should be afterwards ascertained, after which the vendor gave a note to the vendee, directing the warehousekeeper to weigh and deliver the starch to the vendee, and part was weighed and delivered accordingly, it was held that this did not transfer to the vendee the property in the rest, which had not been weighed and delivered, the weighing of the starch being, by the terms of the contract, a condition which was to precede the absolute vesting of the property (c).

And where the goods sold are part of a larger stock, and a separation is necessary previous to delivery, no property passes until the separation is complete (d).

Transfer by delivery.

The property in goods may also pass under a contract of sale by delivery, without payment, so as to devest the vendor of his lien for the price (e).

And a partial delivery is sufficient to vest the property where there is no intention manifested to separate the one part from the rest. Thus the delivery of part of a cargo of goods, where there appears to be no intention, either previously or at the time of delivery, to separate that part from the rest, is in law a delivery of the whole cargo (f).

It is otherwise where such an intention is manifested, as where the vendee asks leave to take part away (g).

Noy's Max. c. 42; Hob. 442. Supra, tit. SHERIFF; and Goode v. Langley, 7 B. & C. 26.

(b) Per Lord Ellenborough in Hanson v. Meyer, 6 East, 614. And see Zagury v. Furnell & another, 2 Camp. 240.

(c) Hanson v. Meyer, 6 East, 614. See also Withers v. Lyss, 4 Camp. 237. So where a quantity of turpentine in casks was sold in lots at an auction, at a certain price per cwt., each cask, except the two last, being marked at a certain weight, at which they were to be taken by the buyer, the two last lots being reserved to fill up the rest, and being on that account sold at uncertain quantities, and after the sale some of the casks were filled up, but the filling up of the rest was not completed, when the whole was consumed by fire, it was held that the property in those casks which had been filled up was transferred to the buyer, but that those which were not filled up remained the property of the seller (Rugg v. Minett, 11 East, 210). So where 50 out of 90 tons of Greenland oil were sold, and an order was given by the seller for the delivery of the oil to the buyer, and it was found as a fact, in a case reserved for the opinion of the Court, that before Greenland oil is delivered, it is the constant custom to have the casks searched by a cooper employed by the seller, and for a broker, on behalf of both buyer and seller, to attend and make a minute of the foot-dirt and water in each cask, and that then each cask is filled up at the seller's expense, and delivered in a complete state; and that those things had not been done; the Court held that the property in the oil did not vest in the vendee. Wallace v. Breeds, 13 East, 522. When goods are sold in bulk at so much per ton, the property does not pass until they are weighed. Simmons v. Swift, 5 B. & C. 857.

(d) By a sale of oil out of a merchant's stock, consisting of large quantities in different cisterns, no property passes without a separation of the part sold from the rest of the stock. White v. Wilkes, 5 Taunt. 178. And see Austen v. Craven, 4 Taunt. 644. Shepley v. Davis, 5 Taunt. 617. Busk v. Davis, 2 M. & S. 397. These cases seem to overrule that of Whitehouse v. Frost, 12 East, 614.

(e) Slubey v. Hayward, 2 H. Bl. 504. Hammond v. Anderson, 1 N. R. 69. H. at Bristol sells wool to J. for bill at nine months; no bill is drawn, but samples are taken, and several bags are delivered to sub-purchasers; J. resells the residue to G., and G. transmits the delivery-order from London on the 16th to H. at Bristol; on the 21st J. becomes insolvent; H. not having before then signified his dissent, the property is vested in G. Green v. Haythorne, 1 Starkie's C. 447. The Warehousing Act, 6 Geo. 4, c. 112, s. 19, provides that the sale of bonded goods shall be valid, though they remain in the warehouse of the vendor.

(f) Slubey v. Hayward, 2 H. B. 504.

(g) Bunney v. Poyntz, 4 B. & Ad. 568.

Trover. Transfer by a symbolical delivery.

And where, from the nature of the case, an actual delivery is impossible, a symbolical delivery is sufficient. Thus where an engineer made a symbolical delivery to a canal company, to whom he was indebted, of timber and other materials on their wharf, by the delivery of a halfpenny, it was held that the property was thereby transferred (h).

Fixtures, that is, things clearly fixed to the freehold, pass by a conveyance of a house, and giving possession (i).

So goods may be transferred by a delivery of the bill of lading (k). And where the goods are in the possession of a wharfinger, and after a contract for the sale a written order for the delivery is communicated to the wharfinger, and assented to by him, the property passes to the vendee, although no actual transfer be made in his books (l).

And where by a particular custom the vendor of goods is to pay warehouse rent for two months after the sale, but gives the usual order for the delivery to the purchaser within the two months, the property from that time vests in the vendee, and he is liable to any subsequent loss (m).

Where goods are lodged with the West India Dock Company, it seems that a delivery of the indorsed dock-warrant and certificate, from the seller to the buyer, operates as a transfer of the goods (n).

A conditional delivery is not sufficient to vest the property in the vendee. Where goods are sold, to be paid for on delivery, and a servant delivers them without receiving the money, the property is not altered (o).

A vendor has no lien where his agent has taken the vendee's note which is outstanding in indorsees. Ib.

(h) Manton v. Moore, 7 T. R. 67.

(i) The owner of a house in which are fixtures, &c. sells it by auction; a conveyance is executed, and possession is given; the fixtures, that is, things clearly fixed to the freehold, and fixtures commonly so called, and which are removable as between landlord and tenant, pass to the vendee. Colegrave v. Dios Santos, 2 B. & C. 76.

(k) Supra, 429. Hibbert v. Carter, 1 T. R. 745. Lempriere v. Pasley, 2 T. R. 485. If the bill be special to deliver the goods to A. for the use of B., the property is vested in B; but if it be general to A., and the invoice only shows that it is to the use of B., the property is in A., and B. has but a trust. Evans v. Martlett, 1 Lord Raym. 271; 3 Salk. 200; 12 Mod. 156.

(l) Lucas v. Dorrien, 7 Taunt. 278. But where goods were left in the vaults of a warehouse-keeper by agreement till the vendee could conveniently remove them, and the vendee marked them, and the goods remained in the warehouse a considerable time, but no notice of the sale was given to the warehouse-keeper, it was held that the property passed to the assignees of the vendor, who became bankrupt after the sale. Knowles v. Horsefall, 5 B. & A. 134. Secus, where the goods are left in the vendor's custody until they can be shipped off. Flinn v. Matthews, 1 Atk. 185. And see Thistlethwaite v. Cock, 3 Taunt. 487. A. sells goods to B., and gives a written order on the wharfinger to weigh, deliver, transfer and release, &c. B. sells to C., and delivers to him a written acknowledgment obtained from the wharfinger, that he had transferred the goods to the account of C.; C. pays for the goods, B. having stopped payment; A. gives notice to the wharfinger not to deliver the goods to B.: the wharfinger cannot, after his acknowledgment, insist that he holds the goods as the agent of A. Hawes v. Watson, 2 B. & C. 540. See also Harman v. Anderson, 2 Camp. 243. Storeld v. Hughes, 14 East, 308. Stonard v. Dunkin, 2 Camp. 344. Cumming v. Brown, 9 East, 506. Infra, 1227 (z).

(m) Greaves v. Hepke, 2 B. & A. 131.

(n) Zwingar v. Samuda, 1 Moore, 12; 7 Taunt. 265. Lucas v. Dorrien, 1 Moore, 29; 7 Taunt. 278. Spear v. Travers, 4 Camp. 251. Goods being entered in the books of the West India Dock Company, in the name of A., he received the usual cheque for them, which, having sold the goods to B., he indorsed and delivered to him; B. sold the goods to C., and delivered to him the cheque or certificate indorsed by A., and C. gave B. his acceptance in payment, which was afterwards dishonoured; C. transferred the cheque to D. as a security for a debt which he owed him; and afterwards A. obtained possession of the goods by means of a duplicate cheque or certificate obtained from the West India Dock Company, by means of a false representation that the original was lost; A. had paid rent for the goods down to that time: it was held that D. was entitled to recover in trover against A. See Heyser v. Sase, 1 Gow. 58.

(o) Per Bayley, J., in Bishop v. Shillito, Trover. Fraud.

And if goods be obtained by false pretences, under colour of purchasing them, the property is not altered by a delivery (q).

If the vendee by a false representation obtain possession of goods with a preconceived design not to pay for them, no property passes (r); and whether he had in fact formed such a design, is a question for the jury (s).

By vendee of a ship.

The vendee of a ship who claims by virtue of a sale by the master, in a foreign country, must not only prove the sale, but also that it was necessary, and that it took place under circumstances which would have induced the owner himself to have sold the vessel (t).

2 B. & A. 329, n.; Woods v. Russell, 5 B. & A. 942. Goods are sent by the plaintiff on an order of purchase by Berkeley, by a ship chartered by him, of which the defendant is master, with an invoice of wheat bought by order of Berkeley, and shipped at his risk to Harris & Co. London, and an indorsed bill of lading is transmitted to Harris & Co. by Berkeley; and by the original terms of the contract, the wheat was to be sent to London, and bills were to be drawn on Harris & Co. for the amount; Berkeley cancels his orders, and gives notice to Harris & Co. not to accept the bills; the acceptance of the bills is a condition precedent to the vesting of the property, and an action is maintainable against the defendant for non-delivery of the cargo according to the plaintiff's orders, and it was held that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover the price of the cargo when it reached the port of discharge, and was delivered according to Berkeley's order. Brandt v. Bowlby, 3 B. & Ad. 932. A. buys of B. a coach, to be paid for by certain bills, with a license to B. to retain possession in case the bills be not paid; such license, it has been held, is merely personal, and not binding against the personal representatives of A., though the bills were not paid. Hawes v. Bull, 7 B. & C. 481.

(q) Noble v. Adams, 7 Taunt. 59. Gibbs, C. J., in summing up to the jury, said, that if the jury thought that the plaintiff went down to Scotland, having formed a deliberate plan to put off bad bills for valuable merchandizes, knowing the same would never be paid for, and intending then to abscond with the goods, or to throw them into an immediate bankruptcy, or to pass them over to a particularly favoured creditor, he was of opinion that the plaintiff had been guilty of a fraud, and that the sale would not change the property. Note, that in the above case the action was against the wharfinger in whose hands they had been deposited by the plaintiff.

In the case of Parker v. Patrick, 5 T. R. 175, where goods obtained from A. by false pretences had been pawned to B. for a valuable consideration, and A. obtained possession of the goods, it was held that B. might maintain trover for them. See Horwood v. Smith, 2 T. R. 720.

(r) Earl of Bristol v. Wilmore, 1 B. & C. 514. The contract was for ready money; but the vendee obtained possession of the goods from the servant of the vendor, by delivering him a cheque upon a banker, which he represented to be as good as money, but in fact he had then over drawn his account for some months, and payment was refused; held that the question, whether the sale was vitiated by fraud, depended on the fact whether the vendee obtained possession of the goods with a preconceived design not to pay for them. See Noble v. Adams, 7 Taunt. 59. Parker v. Patrick, 5 T. R. 175. Gladstone v. Hadwen, 1 M. & S. 517. R. v. Jackson, 3 Camp. 370. R. v. Freeth, supra.

If a factor pledge goods consigned to him for sale, as a security for a debt, and afterwards sell them to the creditor at the market price, but no money passes, the sale is void. Kuckein v. Wilson, 4 B. & A. 443. So if a factor barter the goods. Guerreiro v. Peill, 3 B. & A. 616. See also Guichard v. Morgan, 4 Moore, 36. The drawing bills on a factor against a consignment, does not authorize him to raise money by pledging the goods. Fielding v. Kymer, 2 B. & B. 639. See also Queiroz v. Trueman, 3 B. & C. 342. When A. having sold barley to a trader, and suspecting his solvency, repurchased it by the agency of a third person, it was held to be no fraud upon the bankrupt laws. Harris v. Lunell, 1 B. & B. 390.

(s) 1 B. & C. 514.

(t) Hayman v. Molton, 5 Esp. C. 65. And see Abbott's L. S. 5. So as to the sale of a cargo. Freeman v. East India Company, 5 B. & A. 617. See also Morris v. Robinson, 3 B. & C. 196. The vice-admiralty court of a foreign country has no authority to direct the sale of a cargo not perishable, where there was no necessity for the sale; and a recovery against the shipowners to the amount of the value of the ship and freight does not preclude the owner of the cargo from recovering against a purchaser of the goods. Ibid. See also Cannon v. Muilman, 1 Bing. 243; and the case of the Gratitudine, 3 Rob. A. R. 240. Reid v. Darby, 10 East, 143. Reed v. Bonham, 3 B. & B. 147.

Trover. Assignees.

Where the assignees of a bankrupt sue in trover for goods which have been sold to the bankrupt, it is incumbent on them, where a stoppage in transitu is relied upon, to prove that the transitus was determined. Whether the transitus be determined or not, seems to be a question of law arising upon the special circumstances of the case. The object of proof in such cases, is an actual or constructive delivery (u) of the goods to the vendee or his representative. The general nature of the evidence has already been adverted to (x).

Assignees of a bankrupt cannot recover the value of goods sold by the bankrupt to the defendant, after an act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt, of which the defendant had no notice, without at least tendering to him the price (y).

(u) As by the delivery of the key of the warehouse in which they are deposited (Ellis v. Hunt, 3 T. R. 464. Copeland v. Stein, 8 T. R. 199); by payment of rent for the warehouse (Hurry v. Mangles, 1 Camp. 452. Harman v. Anderson, 2 Camp. 243); the lodgment of a delivery-note with the wharfinger. (Ibid.). By a part delivery, where there is no intention to separate part from the rest (Slubey v. Hayward, 2 H. B. 504. Hammond v. Anderson, 1 N. R. 69. Ex parte Gwynne, 12 Ves. jun. 379. Stoveld v. Hughes, 14 East, 308). By delivery at the warehouse of the vendee's agent, where no ulterior or more complete delivery is contemplated (Leeds v. Wright, 3 B. & P. 320. And see 3 B. & P. 127. Scott v. Pettit, 3 B. & P. 469); as where they are sent to an agent, who under general orders from the vendor sends them to a packer (Ibid.); or by an act of ownership exercised by the vendee whilst the goods are in the hands of his agent, although they have not reached the place of ultimate destination (Wright v. Lawes, 4 Esp. C. 82). By delivery on board a ship chartered and fitted out by the vendee (Fowler v. Kymer, cited 7 T. R. 442; 1 East, 552; 3 East, 396). By reaching an expeditor, who holds them till he receives orders for their further destination (Dixon v. Baldwin, 5 East, 175). By being sent by the vendor to the ultimate place of destination mentioned by the vendee (Rowe v. Pickford, 8 Taunt. 83. Forster v. Frampton, 7 B. & C. 107); or by the act of the vendee's taking possession before they arrive at that place, so as to prevent the delivery there, and terminate the transitus. Foster v. Frampton, 6 B. & C. 107.

But such a delivery as would be sufficient in the absence of insolvency to vest the property in the vendee, is frequently insufficient to divest the right of stoppage in transitu. It seems to be a general rule, that so long as the goods are in the possession of one who is a mere agent, to forward them in order to give a more complete possession to the vendee, the trantitus continues: as where they are delivered to a wharfinger to be forwarded to the vendee (Hodgson v. Loy, 7 T. R. 440. Mills v. Ball, 2 B. & P. 457. Smith v. Goss, 1 Camp. 282); although the wharfinger be employed by the vendee (Smith v. Goss, 1 Camp. 282. Oppenheim v. Russel, 3 B. & P. 42. And see Snee v. Prescott, 1 Atk. 245. Lickbarrow v. Mason, 1 H. B. 364. Hunt v. Ward, cited 3 T. R. 467. Feize v. Wray, 3 East, 93); or to an agent who purchases for a principal abroad, and informs the vendor at the time of the purchase that the goods are to be sent to Lisbon (Coates v. Railton, 6 B. & C. 422); or to a packer by order of the vendee (Hunt v. Ward, 3 T. R. 467); provided the vendee does not use the wharfinger's or packer's warehouse as his own, and that he contemplates an ulterior place of delivery (Wright v. Lawes, 4 Esp. C. 82. Per Chambre, J., Richardson v. Goss, 3 B. & P. 119). So a delivery of plate to an engraver employed by the vendor (Owenson v. Morse, 7 T. R. 64); of goods to a common carrier (Stokes v. La Riviere, cited 3 T. R. 466. Hunter v. Beal, Ibid.), so long as the lien of the carrier remains (Crawshaw v. Eades, 1 B. & C. 181); or on board a general ship (Ibid. and 3 East, 397; 7 T. R. 440. Mills v. Ball, 2 B. & P. 457), though at the risk and expense, and in the name and by the appointment of the vendee; will not devest the right of stoppage in transitu. And see Ruck v. Hatfield, 5 B. & A. 632.

The right of stoppage in transitu cannot be exercised to the disturbance of the right of third persons. If the first vendor do any act by which he sanctions the sale by his vendee, his right of stoppage in transitu is devested. See the opinions of the Judges, in Hawes v. Watson, 2 B. & C. 540. Stoveld v. Hughes, 14 East, 308. Harman v. Anderson, 2 Camp. 243. Part payment for the goods does not devest the right to stop in transitu, but only reduces the equitable lien pro tanto. Hodgson v. Loy, 7 T. R. 440. Feize v. Wray, 3 East, 103. And proof under the commission amounts at most to part payment. Ibid.

(x) Supra tit. BANKRUPT.

(y) Hill v. Farnell, 9 B. & C. 45. For the payment is valid under the stat. 6 G. 4, c. 66, s. 82; and where money had been paid by the vendor in discharge of the Defence by warehouseman.

A defendant in trover for goods deposited with him by the plaintiff, as his warehouseman, having received notice from A. B., who claims property in the goods, to hold them on his account, is not estopped from setting up the claim of A. B. by way of defence to the action (z).

But where a warehouseman, at the request of the vendor, gave a written acknowledgment to the vendee that he held the goods for the latter, it was held that he could not refuse to deliver them on the ground that by custom the property does not vest in the vendee till re-measurement (a).

Sale in market overt.

If the defendant rely for his defence on a sale of the chattel to him in market overt, it will be necessary to show (b) the time (c), place (d), and circumstances of the sale (e).

Money had and received.

The vendee may recover the deposit or price, as money had and received to his use, in all cases where the contract is rescinded, either by the very terms of the original contract, or by consent, or by the act of the defendant; for then the consideration wholly fails (f). Or where the contract is wholly void by reason of fraud (g).

duties on bonded wine sold to C., who afterwards became a bankrupt, it was held that the assignees could not maintain trover against the vendor or his agent, without tendering the amount of the duties so paid. Winks v. Hassall, 9 B. & C. 372.

(z) Ogle v. Atkinson, 1 Marsh. 323; 5 Taunt. 759. Noble v. Adams, 7 Taunt. 59. Supra, 1224 (l).

(a) Stonard v. Dunkin, 2 Camp. 344. Supra, 1224 (l).

(b) Contrary to the general rule, that a party can transfer no greater interest than he possesses, the law sanctions sales in market overt, although the vendor had no property in the subject of sale, with a view to the general convenience of purchasers who resort to them, and who have no means of knowing the rights of the sellers; but at the same time requires such sales to be made publicly and openly. Such sales, however, are not binding on the King. And by the stat. 1 Jac. 1, c. 21, the sale of goods wrongfully taken, to a pawnbroker, in London or within two miles thereof, does not alter the property. And if the buyer knew the property not to be in the seller, or if there be any fraud in the transaction; if he knew the seller to be an infant, or feme covert not usually trading for herself; or if the sale be not made originally or wholly in the fair or market, or not at the usual hours; the owner's property is not bound by it. So the owner of stolen goods prosecuting the felon to conviction, is entitled to restitution. Supra, tit. TROVER. And by the stat. 2 & 3 Ph. & M. c. 7, and 31 Eliz., a purchaser of a stolen horse in a fair or market overt gains no property in the horse, unless he shall be openly exposed in the time of such fair or market, for one whole hour between ten in the morning and sunset, in the public place used for such sale, and not in any private yard or stable, and be afterwards brought by both the vendor and vendee to the book-keeper of such fair or market, and toll be paid, if any be due, and if not, one penny to the book-keeper, who shall enter down the price, colour and marks of the horse, with the names, additions and abodes of the vendee and vendor, the latter being properly attested; nor shall such sale take away the property of the owner if, within six months after the horse is stolen, he put in his claim before some magistrate where the horse shall be found, and within forty days more prove such horse his property by the oaths of two witnesses, and tender to the person in possession such price as he bonâ fide paid for him in market overt. If the points above mentioned be not attended to, the sale is void, and the owner shall not lose his property, but at any distance of time may seize his horse, or bring an action for him. 2 Comm. 450; Long on Sales, 104. It seems to be now settled, that if the vendor on such a sale were to enter a wrong name in the book of the market, the sale would be void. Gibbs's Case, Owen 27; 1 Leon. 158; overruling Wilkes v. Moorfoots, Cro. Eliz. 86.

(c) See the last note.

(d) The sale must be made in an open place, not in a back room or warehouse. The sale of plate in a scrivener's shop would not be valid. In London every shop in which goods are publicly exposed is market overt, except on Sunday. 2 Comm. 449. The strand is not market overt; 12 Mod. 521. A wharf is not a market overt, although goods be usually sold there. Wilkinson v. King, 2 Camp. 335.

(e) Supra, note (b). The transaction to charge the property must be a sale for a valuable consideration, and not a gift. Case of Market Overt, 5 Co. 83, b.; 2 Ins. 713.

(f) See Payne v. Whorle, 7 East, 274.

Street

(g) Campbell v. Fleming, 1 A. & E. 40. Seems, if after discovering the fraud he continue

Money had and received.

Where the price of goods has been paid, the vendee cannot recover the price as upon a failure of consideration, although the goods were in a bad condition, or even unfit for use (h).

Competency.

A witness who is answerable to a vendee, in case the title turn out to be defective, is not competent to support the title in an action against his vendee, founded on an alleged defect of title (i). But one who has sold an inheritance without any covenant for good title or warranty, is competent to prove the title of his vendee (j).

The owner of property is competent either to affirm or disaffirm a sale by himself, in an action between other parties; for the verdict would not be evidence, either for him or against him, in any future action. Thus, in an action of trover for a horse, a witness is competent to prove that the plaintiff agreed that the witness should take the horse as a security for 15*l.*, deposited by the witness with the plaintiff, and that the horse should be sold at the next Woodbridge fair, if the money was not paid in the meantime, Street v. Blay, 2 B. & Ad. 462. Edmonds v. Chapman, 1 M. & W. 231. Gompertz v. Denton, 1 C. & M. 207. Infra, tit. WARRANTY. Secus, where the parties cannot be placed in statu quo. Hunt v. Silk, 5 East, 449. The plaintiffs agreed to purchase "about 300 quarters, more or less," of foreign rye, shipped on board the A. E. at Hamburgh, at a certain price, subject to the vessel's safe arrival with the goods on board, and being unsold at Hamburgh; the ship brought 350 quarters, and the defendants refused to deliver any part unless the plaintiffs would accept the whole; the plaintiffs abandoned the contract, and brought an action to recover back a sum of money which they had paid for 300 quarters. Held by Lord Tenterden, C. J., and Littledale, J., that by the words "about" and "more or less" the parties could not be taken to have contemplated so large an excess as 50 over 300 quarters; by Parke, J. and Patteson, J., that at all events it lay on the defendants to show that such an excess above the quantity named was in contemplation; and if from the obscurity of the contract they were unable to do so, their defence failed. Semble that evidence of mercantile men as to the words "about" and "more or less," in such a contract, is not admissible. Cross v. Eglin, 2 B. & Ad. 106. Where upon the sale of premises and fixtures to be appraised, and possession given on the 25th March, or the deposit paid to be forfeited, the appraisers of each met on that day, but one informed the other he could not complete it on that, but would do so on the following day, to which no objection was made, but on the following day the seller refused to allow him so to do, or to complete the contract; held that, as it was the duty of his agent to communicate to his principal what had passed on the previous day, it was to be presumed he had done so, and that if he meant to rely on the forfeiture if the contract was not strictly performed, he should have communicated to the other party such intention; which not having been done, the purchaser was entitled to recover back his deposit. Carpenter v. Blandford, 8 B. & C. 577. Where the vendor was unable to complete his title on the day appointed, and the purchaser was not ready to pay the purchase money on that day, it was held that the contract was entirely vacated, and that the purchaser was entitled to recover his deposit. Clarke v. King, R. & M. 394.

(h) Fortune v. Lingham, 2 Camp. 416.

(i) 2 Roll. Ab. 685; Str. 445. In the case of Briggs v. Crick, 5 Esp. C. 99, cor. Lord Alvanley, it is stated to have been ruled that the original vendor of a horse, with a warranty of soundness, was a competent witness to prove the soundness at the time of the sale by him, in an action against his vendee on a similar warranty, on the ground that there was no direct interest, and that the horse might have been sound when sold by the witness, yet unsound when sold by the defendant. But the principle of this decision appears to be dubious; for unless the testimony as to the soundness at the time of the former sale tended to prove soundness at the time of the latter sale, it would be irrelevant. If, on the other hand, his testimony of the soundness at the time of the first sale tends to proof of soundness at the time of the second, then the witness seeks to establish a fact, in which, if he failed, damages would be recovered, to which he would it seems be liable on negativing the fact which he attempted to prove, viz. the soundness at the time of the first sale. See Lewis v. Peake, 7 Taunt. 153; supra, Vol. I. tit. WITNESS.

(j) Busby v. Greenslate, Str. 445.

---

continue to deal with the chattel as his own; and the right of repudiation is not revived by the subsequent discovery of another incident in the same fraud. And see Easby v. Jarratt, 9 B. & C. 928.

and that the witness sold him to the defendant at that fair, the money not having been paid (k).

So in an action between the assignees of Greaves a bankrupt, and a purchaser from a judgment-creditor, who had taken the goods in execution, it was held that a witness was competent to prove, on the part of the defendant, that he being the owner of the goods had contracted with the bankrupt for the sale, and had given him a delivery-order merely to enable him to take home the oil and inspect it in bulk; and that it was expressly stipulated that the bankrupt should not sell the oil until the witness had been paid by a good bill (l).

It has been held, that in an action for goods sold to the defendant, and delivered to A. B. at his (the defendant's) request, A. B. is not a competent witness for the plaintiff to prove this, without a release (m).

And one who has purchased goods in his own name, is not, it has been held, a competent witness for the plaintiff to prove that he acted merely as agent to the defendant (n).

A witness proved to be a co-partner with the defendant is not competent (k) Nix v. Cutting, 4 Taunt. 18.

(l) Ward v. Wilkinson, 4 B. & A. 410.

(m) Wright v. Wardle, 2 Camp. 200, cor. Lord Ellenborough. The competency of A. B. was contended for on the ground that the plaintiff, after bringing that action, could not resort to A. B.; and Lord Ellenborough was at first inclined to admit the testimony; but afterwards, it is stated, deemed a release to be necessary, on the ground that the witness might have misled the plaintiff, and might still be liable in case of detection. But qu. whether the first impression of that very learned Judge was not the correct one, and whether, upon general principles, fraud is to be presumed in order to raise an exception to the competency of a witness. See R. v. Newland, East's P. C. 1001. See Larbalastier v. Clark, 1 B. & Ad. 899; supra, Vol. I. tit. Witness.

(n) M'Brain v. Fortune, 3 Camp. 317. Lord Ellenborough said, "I do not think he can be examined, either on the ground that he is a necessary witness, or that he stands indifferent between the parties. If he was the agent of the defendants, there is no reason why this circumstance should not be proved by other evidence*. Thus he has a clear interest without any counterbalance in the event of this action. If it succeeds, the verdict would be evidence for him in an action against himself, to which he is primâ facie liable. The remedy which it is supposed he would have against the defendants if he were to be sued on this contract, cannot be thought to render it a matter of indifference to him whether the plaintiff shall succeed in this action, or be driven to sue him as the real purchaser of the goods; he is not in the situation of a broker, for a broker buys and sells in the name of his principal, and has no personal liability to be discharged by the effect of his evidence."

But in the case of Evans v. Williams (cited 7 T. R. 481), Lord Kenyon held that the captain of a ship was competent to prove that the money which the plaintiff sought to recover was borrowed for the use of the defendant's ship, and not for his own use, and although he had given a bill of exchange for the amount; and that as the owners would have a remedy over against him, he stood indifferent. And see Rocher v. Busher, 1 Starkie's C. 27; and Ilderton v. Atkinson, 7 T. R. 480; and Vol. I. tit. Witness.—Competency.

Where, in an action for fitting up a house, at the request of the owner, the owner was called by the plaintiff to prove an agreement between the owner and the defendant, by which the latter had agreed to execute the work for a certain sum, Lord Kenyon held that he was incompetent (New v. Chidgy, Peake's C. 98.) Yet if no such agreement in fact existed, the witness would be liable to the defendant for at least the value of the work. It is true, that it might be more difficult for the defendant than for the plaintiff to recover from him. See Buckland v. Tankard (5 T. R. 578). But the principle of that decision appears to be dubious. See Lord Ellenborough's observations in Birt v. Kershaw (2 East, 461), where he says, "I know of no other case than Buckland v. Tankard which goes on the ground of more or less difficulty in the witness in establishing his interest against one or the other of the parties." See the general principles, Vol. I. tit. Witness.

* Yet it seems that an agent is competent to prove his own authority. Supra, 80; Ilderton v. Atkinson, 7 T. R. 480; Paley, Principal and Agent, 162.

Competency.

to defeat the action by evidence that the goods were sold to himself, and that the defendant was merely his servant; for the effect is to discharge himself of a moiety of the costs (o); but he may be rendered competent by a release (p).

But a co-partner with the defendant is a competent witness for the plaintiff in such an action (q); and so is the executor of a deceased partner (r).

And where it is objected that M. being a partner with the plaintiff ought to have been joined, M. is a competent witness for the plaintiff to negative the partnership (s).

So a witness for the defendant is competent to prove that the credit was given to himself alone (t).

Where, in assumpsit for work and labour, the defence was, that a third party had been employed by the defendant, who employed the plaintiff, held that such third party was a competent witness for the defendant, although he had since become bankrupt, was uncertificated, and his assignee had received the amount due for such work (u).

VENUE (x).

Local action.

THE omission to prove a local cause of action within the county is fatal, under the general issue (y). But where there are several facts material to the plaintiff's case, arising in different counties, the plaintiff may lay his venue in either (z).

In civil actions.

Where the defendant by cutting a trench in the county of N. causes the plaintiff's lands to be overflowed in the county of W., the venue may be laid in the latter county, although the statute, under the authority of which the defendant acted, directs all such actions to be brought and tried in the county where the cause of such action arises (a).

Where goods are ordered from a vendor in London, by a vendee who resides in the country, the cause of action arises in London, by the delivery to the carrier there (b).

Material evidence.

Where the plaintiff has undertaken to give material evidence in the county

(o) Goodacre v. Breame, Peake's C. 174; Evans v. Yeatherd, 2 Bing. 133; Cheyne v. Koops, 4 Esp. C. 112; Young v. Bairner, 1 Esp. C. 103. To raise the objection, the partnership must either be admitted or proved. Supra, Vol. I. tit. WITNESS. Birt v. Hood, 1 Esp. C. 20.

(p) Young v. Bairner, 1 Esp. C. 103.

(q) Hall v. Curzon, 9 B. & C. 346. Blackett v. Weir, 5 B. & C. 385; supra, Vol. I. tit. WITNESS. Hudson v. Robinson, 4 M. & S. 475.

(r) Burton v. Burchall, K. B. Hil. 43 Geo. 3; Peake's L. E. 167, 5th edit.

(s) Parsons v. Crosby, 5 Esp. C. 199.

(t) Birt v. Hood, 1 Esp. C. 20; Vol. I. tit. WITNESS.

(u) Wilson v. Gallatley, 2 C. & P. 467.

(x) Vide supra, CASE, ACTION ON; COUNTY-JUSTICES; LIBEL; NUISANCE; PENAL ACTION; PERJURY; TRESPASS; USE AND OCCUPATION; USURY; VARIANCE.

(y) Doulson v. Matthews, 4 T. R. 503. But where the defect appears on the record, it is cured after verdict by the stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2, c. 8. Mayor of London v. Cole & others, 7 T. R. 583.

(z) Mayor of London, &c. v. Cole, 7 T. R. 583; Bulwer's Case, 7 Co. 57; Pope v. Davis, 2 Taunt. 252; 2 Camp. 266; Scott v. Brest, 2 T. R. 238; supra, Vol. I. tit. VARIANCE.

(a) Sutton v. Clarke, 6 Taunt. 29.

(b) Copeland v. Lewis, 2 Starkie's C. 33. And therefore, though the goods in such a case ordered in Middlesex, by a defendant living in the Principality of Wales, did not amount to 10*l.*, Lord Ellenborough, upon a trial at Westminster, refused to nonsuit the plaintiff, under the Welsh Judicature Act, 13 Geo. 3, c. 51, s. 2. And where goods under 40*s.* value had been ordered by a vendee in Leicestershire, and delivered to the carrier in London, it was held that an action could not be sustained in the county-court of Leicestershire. Harwood v. Lester, B. & P. 617.

In civil actions. Material evidence.

where the venue is laid, it is not sufficient to prove that the witnesses to the contract reside in that county (c). Nor is it sufficient to give evidence there of collateral matters which are not stated in the declaration (d); as where the defendant pleaded a tender, and the plaintiff replied and proved a subsequent demand within the county where the trial was had (e).

But it is sufficient to give any evidence in the county which is material to the cause of action; it is not necessary to show that the whole cause of action arose there (f).

Where the venue is retained in Middlesex by a plaintiff suing as the assignee of a bankrupt, it is sufficient to produce the commission there, tested at Westminster (g); or for a party who sues on a patent, to prove the enrolment there (h); or to produce a rule of court, obtained by the defendant, for the payment of money into court, though subsequently to the plaintiff's undertaking (i). Proof of issuing the writ in Middlesex is material evidence against the sheriff, in an action for an escape (k).

Where the plaintiff, on retaining the venue in A., undertakes to give material evidence in A. or C., proof of the delivery of the goods to a carrier in C., to be delivered to the defendant in B., is sufficient (l).

An undertaking to give material evidence in London, is (it has been held) satisfied by proving an acknowledgment of the debt in a foreign country (m).

If the plaintiff retain the venue on the usual undertaking, but the plea and issue joined render the evidence irrelevant, he is discharged from the undertaking (n). As where, in an action by the assignee of a bankrupt, the defendant gives no notice of disputing the bankruptcy, so that the trading or petitioning creditor's debt (of which he would otherwise have given material evidence in the county) is proved by the depositions (o).

In criminal cases.

The locality of offences, and the consequent necessity of proof in the proper county, have already been adverted to under the appropriate heads (p).

Where two facts, essential to the commission of a misdemeanor, are done, one in each of two counties, the venue, ex necessitate, may be laid in either (q).

(c) 2 Bl. R. 1031.

(d) Cockerell v. Chamberlayne, 1 Taunt. 518.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Neale v. Neville, and Savory v. Spooner, 6 Taunt. 565. In an action against a coach proprietor for negligence, it appeared that the plaintiff's leg was broken in the county of O., where she remained some time, but before she was fully recovered she was removed to the county of W., where medical attendance became necessary, and expense was consequently incurred; held that the inconvenience suffered and the expense incurred in the county of W., was material evidence of a matter in issue within the meaning of the undertaking given by the plaintiff in answer to a motion to change the venue. Curtis and Wife v. Drinkwater, 2 B. & Ad. 169.

(g) Kensington v. Chantler, 2 M. & S. 36. See Clarke v. Reed, 1 N. R. 310.

(h) Cameron v. Gray, 6 T. R. 363.

(i) Watkins v. Towers, 2 T. R. 275. And see 6 Taunt. 566.

(k) 2 Chitty's R. 418.

(l) Powell v. Rich, 2 Marsh. 494.

(m) Gerard v. de Robeck, 1 H. B. 280. And see M'Clure v. M'Keand, 2 Taunt. 197; sed qu.

(n) 3 Taunt. 86.

(o) Soulsby v. Lee, 3 Taunt. 86. Note, that there is a distinction between the cause of action and the right of action. See the observations of Heath, J. in Clarke v. Reed, 1 N. R. 313. It is sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's undertaking, if he give material evidence of the right of action within the county.

(p) Supra, tit. FORGERY; LARCINY; LIBEL; PENAL ACTION; PERJURY; TREASON; USURY. See also Starkie's Crim. Plead. cap. 1. Where a felony is committed within 500 yards of the boundary between two counties, the offence may be laid, and the offender tried, in either, by the stat. 59 Geo. 3, c. 96, s. 2.

(q) Scott v. Brest, 2 T. R. 238; Scurry

In criminal cases.

Although evidence be insufficient which leaves it wholly indifferent and uncertain whether the offence was or was not committed within the proper county (r), yet presumptive evidence that the offence was committed in the particular county is sufficient. Thus, upon an indictment against Sir Manasseh Lopez, for bribery in the county of D., the bribery was proved; and in order to show that it was committed in that county, rather than in any other, evidence was adduced that the defendant, when at his seat in the county of D., said, "A. B." (the party proved to have been bribed) "has been with me;" and the learned Judge (s) left it to the jury to consider whether his being there at the time, and that being the county in which the vote was to be given, was not sufficient evidence to warrant the presumption by them that the offence was committed in that county (t).

It seems that the crime of conspiracy, in analogy to the case of treason, may be tried in any county in which a distinct overt act has been committed (u).

Where several conspired on the high seas to fabricate false vouchers to defraud the Crown, and one of the conspirators transmitted by the post, to the Commissioners of the Navy in Middlesex, false vouchers in pursuance of that conspiracy, and the innocent holder of one of the false vouchers (a bill of exchange) presented it to the Commissioners in Middlesex, it was held that the defendants were properly tried in Middlesex (v).

In the case of The King v. Bowes & others (w), where no proof of actual conspiracy was attempted in Middlesex, but all the defendants were proved to have co-operated in forwarding the criminal purpose in different places and counties, the principle of locality was held to be satisfied by evidence of overt acts committed by some of the conspirators in Middlesex, in furtherance of the common design.

On an indictment for sending a threatening letter, which has been sent by the post, the prisoner may be indicted in the county where the letter was received by the prosecutor (x).

VESTRY.

Where the Act (for building churches) authorized the Commissioners to appoint twenty-six persons to be a select vestry for the care and management of the church, held that a rate imposed at a vestry where a majority of that number was not present, was bad; wherever a public trust is to be executed by a definite number of persons, it must be executed at a meeting where a majority of that number is present, unless there be a usage or custom to the contrary (y).

v. Freeman, 2 B. & P. 381. R. v. Burdett, 4 B. & A. 95. Secus, where the first act, though essential, does not constitute the gist of the offence, as in the case of usury; there the action must be brought in the county where the usurious interest is received; so in the case of obtaining money by false pretences. P. C. K. B. Hil. 1825.

(r) Supra, 460.

(s) Mr. J. Holroyd.

(t) R. v. Sir Manasseh Lopez, cited by Holroyd, J., 4 B. & A. 141. The Court of K. B. were of opinion that this was primâ facie evidence, and the defendant afterwards received judgment.

(u) 4 East, 171.

(v) R. v. Brisac & Scott, 4 East, 164.

(w) Cited by Grose, J., 4 East, 171.

(x) East's P. C. 1120. Where a prisoner was indicted in Middlesex for uttering forged stamps, and the proof was that he lived in Middlesex, and sent the forged stamps by his servant in a parcel to London, that they might be forwarded to Bath, seven of the Judges were of opinion that he was guilty of uttering in Middlesex, but the other five were of a contrary opinion. R. v. Collicott, cited by Bayley, J. 4 B. & A. 154. As to the sending a sealed libel by the post, see R. v. Burdett, 4 B. & A. 95; supra, tit. Libel. And see tit. Forgery.

(y) Blacket v. Blizard, 9 B. & C. 851.

See the Act 58 Geo. 3, c. 69. As to its construction, see 1 A. & E. 317; see also the Vestry Act, 1 & 2 W. 4, c. 60. As to notice of a vestry, see R. v. Archdeacon of Chester, 1 A. & E. 324. As to the power of adjournment and the granting a mandamus to grant a poll, see 1 A. & E. 380. As to a mandamus to a select vestry, see R. v. Churchwardens of St. Pancras, 1 A. & E. 80.

Debt on bond in the name of a vestry clerk, the acting as clerk is primâ facie evidence of his appointment, on a traverse of the fact (z).

VOID AND VOIDABLE.

The distinction (a) does not apply where the defect is in the authority of the persons doing the act, not merely in the manner of doing it (b).

Acts of Parliament that make void any solemnities do not make them mere nullities, but only voidable by the parties prejudiced (c).

WAGER.

In general, it seems that a wager is legal, and may be enforced in a court of law (d), if it be not an incitement to a breach of the peace (e), or immorality; or affect the feelings or interest of a third person, or expose him to ridicule, or libel him (f); or if it be not against sound policy (g), or the

When illegal.

And see R. v. Bellringer, 7 T. R. 810. R. v. Greet, 8 B. & C. 363.

(z) M'Gaby v. Alston, 2 M. & W. 206. And a director of the vestry is a competent witness; ib.

(a) See as to this distinction, Winchcombe v. Bishop of Winchester, Hob. 165.

(b) R. v. All Saints, Derby, 12 East, 143. See tit. Void and Voidable, 7 Bac. Ab. 64.

(c) Gil. L. E. 43, 44. See as to cases of sheriffs acting within liberties without a non omittas clause, Fitzpatrick v. Kelly, cited 3 T. R. 740. Jackson v. Hunter, 6 T. R. 71. Piggott v. Wilkes, 3 B. & Ad. 502. Leases, &c. by bishops not made according to the stat. to be utterly void, yet they are not void as to the grantor. See the case of Lincoln College, 3 Co. 76. As to a grant voidable under stat. of mortmain, see Doe v. Pitcher, 2 Marsh. 61; 2 Ad. & E. 84.

(d) Good v. Elliott, 3 T. R. 693.

(e) Semble, that a wager between the proprietors of two carriages for the conveyance of passengers for hire, that a given person should go by one of those carriages, and no other, is illegal. Eltham v. Kingsman, 1 B. & A. 683. Lord Tenterden, C. J. refused to try an action to recover the deposit of a bet on a wrestling match and discharged the jury, although the match had gone off, and the defendant, the stakeholder, had repaid part and promised to pay the residue. Kennedy v. Gadd, 1 Moody & M. C. 225, and 3 Car. & P. 376.

(f) As where a wager is laid on the sex of a third person. Dacosta v. Jones, Cowp. 729. 736. Roebuck v. Hammerton, ibid. 737.

(g) Such a wager as to the probable amount of the public revenue (Atherfold v. Beard, 2 T. R. 610); or hop-duties (Shirley v. Sankey, 2 B. & P. 130); or a wager on the event of a cause in the House of Lords, or the courts of justice, if laid with a lord of parliament, or Judge (per Lord Mansfield, 1 T. R. 60). So a wager on the life of the first consul of the French republic was held to be illegal, on the ground of immorality and impolicy (Gilbert v. Sykes, 16 East, 150). Note, the bet arose out of a conversation upon the probability of his coming to a violent death by assassination, &c. So is a wager which may operate in restraint of marriage (Hartley v. Rice, 10 East, 22); or between two voters with respect to the event of an election of a member to serve in parliament, laid before the poll is begun (Allen v. Hearn, 1 T. R. 56); or upon the contingency of peace between this country and another with which it is at war (Lacaussade v. White, 7 T. R. 535; Foster v. Thackery, 1 T. R. 57; Aubert v. Walsh, 3 Taunt. 277). In Andrews v. Herne, (1 Lev. 33), it was held that a wager whether Charles Stuart would be king of England within twelve months next following, was good; but the ground of impolicy was not objected. See Lord Ellenborough's observations on this case, in Gilbert v. Sykes, 16 East, 150. See also the Earl of March v. Pigott, (5 Burr. 2802), where a wager on the lives of the respective fathers of the parties was held to be valid, provisions of a statute (h). Thus, a wager that A. has purchased a waggon of B. is not void, either at common law or under the stat. 14 Geo. 2, c. 48 (i). The illegality should be pleaded (j).

When illegal.

The Court will not try an action upon a wager on an abstract speculative question of law or judicial practice, not arising out of circumstances in which the parties have a real interest (k); and Lord Ellenborough refused to try a wager on a cock-fight, because the discussion of such a question tended to the degradation of courts of justice (l).

although the father of one was dead at the time, of which the parties were ignorant. But see the observations of Heath, J. on this case, 3 Camp. 172; and Blund v. Collett, 4 Camp. 157. A wager as to the event of the trial of a party on a criminal charge is illegal. Evans v. Jones, 5 M. & W. 77.

(h) A wager on a horse-race for less than 50*l.* is illegal, the stat. 13 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 2, having prohibited such races; so is a wager for more than 50*l.* to run against time (Ximenes v. Jaques, 6 T. R. 499); so is a wager for 500 guineas, &c. that a single horse shall go from A. to B. on the high road sooner than one of two others, to be placed at any distance their owner should please; these transactions being prohibited by the stat. 16 Car. 1, c. 7, s. 2, and 9 Ann. c. 14, and not legalized by 13 Geo. 2, c. 19, or 18 Geo. 2, c. 34, which relate to bonâ fide horseracing only. Whaley v. Pajot, 2 B. & P. 51.

But where the race is a legal one for 50*l.* a wager for less than 10*l.* is legal, not being contrary to the stat. 9 Ann. c. 14 (M'Allester v. Haden, 2 Camp. 438; per Lord Kenyon, in Good v. Elliott, 3 T. R. 605). And see Bulling v. Frost (1 Esp. C. 236), where Lord Kenyon held that an action lay to recover the sum of 3*l.* 10*s.* lost at all-fours. Secus, where the race is run for less than 50*l.* (Johnson v. Bann, 4 T. R. 1). See Simpson v. Bloss, 7 Taunt. 246. A race for 25*l.* a side is a legal race for 50*l.* Bidmead v. Gale, 4 Burr. 2432; 1 Bl. 671.

By 16 Car. 2, the winner of any money or valuable, by deceit in playing at cards, dice, tennis, bowls, skittles, shovel-board, or in cock-fighting, horse-races, dog-matches, foot-races, or other games, or by bearing a part in the stakes, or by betting, &c., shall forfeit treble value. The third section avoids all securities for payment of sums exceeding 100*l.* lost at one time, &c.; and this clause extends to a contract which precedes the playing (Hedgeborrow v. Rosender, 1 Vent. 252), and to an acceptance by a third person to secure the money lost. Hussey v. Jacob, Salk. 344; Carth. 356; 5 Mod. 176.

By 9 Ann. c. 14, s. 2, the loser by playing or betting to the amount or value of 10*l.* may recover treble the value against the receiver, by action to be commenced within three months; and if the loser do not sue within the time, any person may afterwards sue. This section does not avoid the contract; and therefore it was held, that one who had lost a mare of the value of 25*l.* by tossing up, but did not bring trover till the three months were expired, could not afterwards recover. Vaughan v. Whitcomb, 2 N. R. 413.

(i) Ibid. See also Micklefield v. Hepgin, 1 Ans. 133; Pope v. St. Ledger, 1 Salk. 344; Bulling v. Frost, 1 Esp. C. 235; M'Allester v. Haden, 2 Camp. 438; Hussey v. Crickett, 3 Camp. 168; Jones v. Randall, Cowp. 37.

(j) In assumpsit for money had and received, to recover a share in a bet on a horse-race, won and received by the defendant, held that the illegality of the wager going to the consideration, could not be set up, on the general issue, as an answer to the action. Martin v. Smith, 4 Bing. N. C. 436.

(k) Henkin v. Guerss, 12 East, 247. It rests, it is said, with the Judge to decide whether he will try a wager cause (Thomlow v. Thackrey, 2 Y. & J. 156); and see Kennedy v. Gadd, 1 Mo. & M. 225, where Lord Tenterden refused to try an action to recover a deposit on a wager on a wrestling match, and discharged the jury, although the match had gone off, and the defendant had paid part, and had promised to pay the remainder.

(l) Squires v. Whisken, 3 Camp. 140. Lord Loughborough refused to try an action on a wager as to the mode of playing hazard (Brown v. Leeson, 2 H. B. 43); and Gibbs, C. J. pursued the same course where the wager was whether an unmarried woman had had a child. Ditchburn v. Goldsmith, 4 Camp. 152. But it seems that a Judge is bound to try an action brought to recover a stake deposited in the hands of a stakeholder after his authority has been countermanded (Bate v. Cartwright, 7 Price, 540).

So no action will lie on a wager respecting the mode of playing an illegal game; and if such a cause be set down for trial, the Judge is justified in ordering it to be struck out of the paper (Brown v. Leeson, 2 H. B. 43). Buller, J. was inclined to think that the stat. 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, made all wagers void wherein the parties had no interest. Atherfold v. Beard, 2 T. R. 616.

Illegal wager.

No demand can be enforced which cannot be established but through the medium of an illegal bargain. The plaintiff laid an illegal wager with B.; the defendant took part in the bet; the plaintiff won; and at the defendant's request, before the day appointed for payment, advanced to him his share of the winnings; B. died insolvent before that day, and the wager was never paid; and it was held, that as the plaintiff could not establish his case but through the medium of the illegal wager, he was not entitled to recover (m).

An action will not lie on a promissory note to enforce the payment of an illegal wager (n).

And by virtue of the stat. 9 Anne, c. 14, s. 1 (o), no one who derives title through the winner can make the loser pay; but the fact, that a bill was accepted for securing money won at play, is no defence in an action by a bonâ fide holder against the drawer (p).

In the case even of a legal wager, the authority of a stakeholder, like that of an arbitrator, may be rescinded by either party before the event has happened. And if after his authority has been countermanded, and the stake has been demanded, he refuse to deliver it, trover or assumpsit for money had and received is maintainable (q). And where the wager is in its nature illegal, the stake may be recovered even after the event, on demand made before it has been paid over (r); as if the wager be on a foot-race (s) or boxing match (t).

WAIVER.

Of Contract, see Assumpsit (u). Of Trespass, supra, tit. Trespass (x). By delay, see Watchorne v. Cooke (y).

Fraud in a contract is waived by treating the transaction as a contract after discovery (z).

(m) Simpson v. Bloss, 7 Taunt. 246. The wager was 25 guineas on a legal race for 50 l.

(n) Shirley v. Sankey, 2 B. & P. 130. But a bonâ fide holder without notice might recover.

(o) By this stat. all notes, bills, bonds, judgments, mortgages, or other securities, given by any person, when the whole or any part of the consideration of such securities shall be for money or other valuable thing won by gaming, or playing at cards, dice, tables, tennis, bowls, or other games *, or by betting on the side of such as game at any of the aforesaid games, or for repaying any money knowingly lent for such gaming or betting, or lent at the time and place of such play, to any person that shall play or bet, shall be void.

(p) Edwards v. Dick, 4 B. & A. 212. Vide Bowyer v. Bampton, Str. 1155; supra, 393.

(q) Eltham v. Kingsman, 1 B. & A. 683. But see Marryatt v. Broderick, 2 M. & W. 369. But it seems that after a race has been run, the stakes cannot be recovered back from the stakeholder, although not paid over, unless demanded previously to the race. Ib.; doubting Eltham v. Kingsman, 1 B. & Ald. 682.

(r) Smith v. Bickmore, 4 Taunt. 474. Bate v. Cartwright, 7 Price, 540.

(s) 4 Taunt. 474.

(t) Cotton v. Thurland, 5 T. R. 405. Hastelow v. Jackson, 8 B. & C. 221.

(u) Supra, and see Gomery v. Bond, 3 M. & S. 378.

(x) Supra.

(y) 2 M. & S. 348.

(z) Campbell v. Fleming, 1 A. & E. 40. If the plaintiffs, assignees of a bankrupt, could have maintained trover for bills, they may waive the tort, and recover for money had and received, without letting in a claim of mutual credit; a lien before payment of the bills and a set-off

* The statute, it seems, applies to all games of chance as well as skill (Sigel v. Jebb, 3 Starkie's C. 1); to horse-races (Goodburn v. Marley, Str. 1159); Blarton v. Pye, 2 Wils. 309; Clayton v. Jennings, 2 Bl. 786); to foot-races (Lynall v. Longbotham, 2 Wils. 36; Brown v. Berkeley, Cowp. 281). Semble, to a game at cricket. Jeffreys v. Walter, 1 Wils. 220.

If goods be obtained on credit by fraud the contract may be waived, but assumpsit cannot be maintained till the term of credit has expired (a).

WAR.

The proper evidence to prove the relation of peace or war is the official declaration of the State on the subject. A proclamation of peace published in the Gazette is evidence of the fact (b); and a proclamation for reprisals so published is evidence of war (c). So a recital of the existence of war in an act of parliament is evidence to prove it (d).

A recognition in an Order of Council, that particular ports and places are not in the possession, or under the dominion, of the enemy, is evidence of the fact, although the order was made for a collateral purpose (e).

Public notoriety is also sufficient to prove the country to be in a state of war (f).

A declaration of war by a foreign government, transmitted by the British ambassador to the Secretary of State's office, is evidence to prove the time of the commencement of hostilities between that foreign state and another (g). But the notoriety of the existence of war between two foreign states will not be evidence to prove that fact (h).

WARRANT. See Justices; Sheriff; and Vol. I. tit. Warrant.

WARRANT OF ATTORNEY (i).

The defeazance states, that the warrant is given to secure the payment of after payment, are to be governed by the same rules. (per Tenterden, C. J.) Buchanan v. Findlay, 9 B. & C. 738. See tit. Vendor and Vendee.

(a) Ferguson v. Carrington, 9 B. & C. 59. See further as to the affirmance of a contract by bringing assumpsit, Billon v. Hyde, 1 Atk. 120. Fair v. M'Iror, 11 East, 130. Smith v. Hodson, 4 T. R. 211. Bland v. Karr, 1 East, 575. Assignees of Leather v. Anderton, Exchr. Michs. 1831.

(b) 5 T. R. 436. Dupay v. Shepherd, R. T. H. 296. Quelch's Case, 8 St. Tr. 212.

(c) R. v. Sutton, 4 M. & S. 532. Van Omeron v. Dowick, 2 Camp. 44.

(d) R. v. Sutton, 4 M. & S. 532.

(e) Blackburn v. Thomson, 3 Camp. 67; S. C. 15 East, 90.

(f) Fost. Disc. c. 2, s. 12, p. 219. And see the cases of Friend, Parkyn, Cook, and Vaughan, in the State Trials.

(g) Thellusson v. Cosling, 4 Esp. C. 266.

(h) Dolder v. Lord Huntingfield, 11 Ves. jun. 292.

(i) By a general rule of Hil. T. 2 W. 4, no warrant of attorney to confess judgment or cognovit actionem, by any person in custody on mesne process, shall be of force unless an attorney for him be present and subscribe the same. Where the affidavit of the attesting witness to a warrant of attorney, and filed at the time of filing that instrument, only stated that it was dated on, &c., and that he saw the party execute it, without specifying the day on which it was executed, held, that not being conformable to the directions of the 3 Geo. 4, c. 39, the judgment and execution thereon were fraudulent and void against assignees, and they might recover back, for the use of the creditors, all the monies levied or effects seized under them. Dillon v. Edwards, 2 M. & P. 550. Where the warrant authorized the plaintiff only to enter up judgment, although by a memorandum it was stated to be, to secure the payment to the plaintiff, "his heirs, executors and assigns;" held, that upon his death judgment could not be entered up by his executor. Henshall v. Matthew, 7 Bing. 337; and 5 M. & P. 157. The provisions of 3 Geo. 4, c. 39, s. 4, requiring the defeasance to a warrant of attorney to be written on the same paper or parchment, apply only to such warrants of attorney as were required by the Act to be filed within twenty-one days after the execution, and which otherwise are declared void, as against creditors and the assignees of bankrupts, and do not extend to avoid all warrants of attorney as between the parties, (dub. Parke, J.) Bennett v. Daniel, 10 B. & C. 500; supporting Morris v. Mellin, 6 B & C. 446. A warrant of attorney given by a beneficed clergyman to secure a sum payable on demand; an actual demand must be made (e). A creditor need not show the deed to secure an annuity in a proceeding under the Interpleader Act, where the warrant of attorney is on the face of it regular (f).

WARRANT of Distress, Indorsement of. See stat. 33 Geo. 3, c. 55.

A constable ought to keep a distress warrant of a justice of the peace, although a return is to be made to it, for his own security (g).

WARRANTY.

Proof of the contract.

THE general rule of law is caveat emptor; and the buyer, whatever may be the defects of the article purchased, cannot recover but upon a warranty (h), or upon the ground that fraud and deceit have been practised (i). The plaintiff, in an action for breach of warranty, whether the form of action be assumpsit (k) or tort, must if the matter be put in issue (l), prove the warranty as alleged (m), the breach of such warranty, and the resulting damage. It is unnecessary to prove any return or tender of the subject of warranty (n).

Express.

A receipt on a receipt-stamp is evidence of a warranty on the sale of goods (o), if it contain the terms. So is the description of the goods in the invoice (p).

The printed conditions of sale pasted up under the auctioneer's box, are notice of those conditions to purchasers (q).

Every affirmation at the time of sale of personal chattels (r) is a warranty, an annuity, is not void unless expressed to be a charge on the benefice. Gibbons v. Hooper, 2 B. & Ad. 734. And see Shaw v. Pritchard, 10 B. & C. 241; Doe v. Carter, 8 T. R. 300; Monys v. Leake, 8 T. R. 411; Kerrison v. Cole, 8 East, 231; Flight v. Salter, 1 B. & Ad. 673. The stat. 3 Geo. 4, c. 39, s. 2, as to filing warrants of attorney, in order to render judgments in Chancery effectual after subsequent commissions of bankruptcy, is not repealed by the stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 81.

(e) A proposal to settle does not amount to a demand, Ib. See 1 & 2 Vic. c. 110, s. 9; and see Barnes v. Pendry, Jurist, June, 1839. Wilson v. Gardner, 4 B. & Ad. 371.

(f) Johnson v. Brazier, 1 Ad. & Ell. 624.

(g) 2 Lord Ray. 1196.

(h) See the case of Parkinson v. Lee, 2 East, 314; infra, 1239.

(i) Vide supra, tit. DECEIT. As where the goods are not the vendor's property, or where he sells unwholesome provisions. And see Hughes v. Gordon, 1 Bligh, 287.

(k) Supra, tit. ASSUMPSIT.

(l) By the rule of Hil. T. 4 Will. 4, the plea of non-assumpsit operates only as a denial of the fact of the warranty having been given upon the alleged consideration, but not of the breach. Not guilty, in an action for deceit in the warranty of a horse, puts in issue the warranty and the unsoundness, the whole declaration except the bargain and sale, which is matter of inducement. Spencer v. Dawson, Mo. & R. 552. In an action on the warranty of a horse sold, alleging that it was unsound, to which the defendant pleaded only that it was sound, held that the plaintiff was entitled to begin. Osborne v. Thompson, 9 C. & P. 337; and 2 M. & R. 255.

(m) It is usually laid in assumpsit, for the sake of adding the money counts. Stuart v. Wilkins, Dougl. 18.

(n) Infra, 1241.

(o) Skrine v. Elmore, 2 Camp. 407.

(p) Bridge v. Wain, 1 Starkie's C. 504.

(q) Per Lord Kenyon, C. J., in Mesnard v. Aldridge, 3 Esp. C. 271.

(r) The law implies no warranty upon the sale of a real estate; (see Roswell v. Vaughan, 2 Cro. 196; Goodtitle d. Norris v. Morgan, 1 T. R. 755. Hitchcock v. Giddings, 4 Price, 135). The ordinary remedy is by an action on the express covenants (see tit. COVENANT). The usual covenants entered into by a vendor who is seised in fee are, 1st. That he is seised in fee; 2dly, That he has power to convey; 3dly, For quiet enjoyment; 4thly, That the estate is free from incumbrances; lastly, For further assurances. The word dedi in a feoffment imports a warranty of title (Co. Litt. 384, a.); but the word concessi does not.

Express.

provided it appear in evidence to have been so intended (s); so, if previous to the time of sale the vendor says he will warrant the goods, and having named his price, gives the vendee two or three days to consider of it, and the vendee then agrees to purchase (t). But a warranty after sale is void for want of consideration (u).

An affirmation at the time of sale by one in possession of property, that it is his, amounts to a warranty (x). So if the vendor declare at the time of the sale of turnip-seed that he could warrant it to be good white round turnip-seed (y). But no oral representation previously to a sale by written contract, will operate as a warranty (z); for the writing is the only legiti-

(s) Per Buller, J., 3 Tr. 57. Helyar v. Hawke, 5 Esp. C. 72. Where a vendor sold a horse as of the age stated in a written pedigree, but declared at the time that he knew nothing of the age but what appeared in thewritten pedigree; it was held that he was not liable on the warranty. Dunlop v. Waugh, Peake's C. 123. Where the warranty was in the written form following; viz. "To be sold, a black gelding, 5 years old, has been constantly driven in the plough; warranted;" it was held that the warranty applied to soundness only. Richardon v. Brown, 1 Bing. 344. Where a horse was sold under a warranty of soundness, but under a misrepresentation of the place from which he was brought, it was held that the misrepresentation as to place did not vitiate the contract. Geddes v. Pennington, 5 Dow, 164. Whatever a party represents at the time of sale is a warranty. Where the party on the sale of a horse refused to warrant, but on being asked if sound, replied, to the best of his knowledge; held, that he was nevertheless liable if the horse turned out unsound, and that he knew of it. Wood v. Smith, 4 C. & P. 45. So of a verbal representation by the seller that the buyer might depend upon the horse being perfectly quiet and free from vice. Care v. Colman, 3 M. & Ry. 2. A race-horse, which had broken down in training, was a crib-biter, and had a splint, and but for these defects would have been worth 500*l.* was sold, after discussing those defects, for 90*l.*, with a warranty that it was sound wind and limb at the time of the sale; it afterwards again broke down in training, upon which the action was brought; held, that the proper direction to the jury was, whether the horse was at the time of the bargain sound wind and limb, saving those manifest defects contemplated by the parties. Margetson v. Wright, 7 Bing. 603. Where the defendant, on the sale of a horse, stated that he was sound to the best of his knowledge, and added, "but I will not warrant," held that such representation was equivalent to a promise that the horse was sound to the best of his knowledge, and that the action was properly laid in assumpsit. Wood v. Smith, 1 Mo. & M. 534. The defendant supplied copper sheathing for a vessel, which turned out after four months to be wholly defective, and the jury found that the decay was occasioned by some intrinsic defect in the quality of the copper; held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages for the insufficiency, though fraud was negatived; and that upon the original conversation for the article, the plaintiffs saying to the defendant's friend, "We will supply him well," amounted to a warranty: a party selling an article for a particular purpose must be understood to warrant it reasonably fit and proper for that purpose. Jones v. Bright, 5 Bing. 533. It has been held, that the putting down the name of an old artist in a catalogue, as the painter of a particular picture, is not such a warranty as will subject the vendor to an action. Jendwine v. Slade, 2 Esp. C. 572. But see Hill v. Gray, 1 Starkie's C. 434. But where the seller gave at the time of sale the following bill of parcels, "Four pictures, views in Venice, Canaletti, 160*l.*," the Judge left it to the jury on this and other evidence to say, whether the defendant had contracted that the pictures were those of the artist named, or whether his name was used merely as matter of description, or intimation of opinion. And the Court of K. B. refused to disturb a verdict for the plaintiff. Power v. Barham, 4 Ad. & Ell. 483; 1 Mo. & R. 570.

(t) Per Holt, C. J. in Lysney v. Selby, Lord Raym. 1120.

(u) 3 Bl. C. 166.

(x) Per Holt, C. J., in Medina v. Stoughton, 1 Salk. 210. Secus, according to Lord Holt, where the vendor is not in possession, for then there is room to question the seller's title. But this distinction is doubted by Buller, J. (3 T. R. 57, 8), and the distinction is not mentioned in another report of the same case. Lord Raym. 593.

(y) Button v. Corder, 7 Taunt. 405.

(z) Pickering v. Dowsing, 4 Taunt. 779. Supra, 759. Meyer v. Everth, 4 Camp. C. 22; see Kain v. Old, 2 B. & C. 634. But in Bywater v. Richardson, 1 Ad. & Ell. 508, it was held that upon a written warranty of the soundness of a horse, the buyer was bound by a notice at a repository where the sale took place that the warranty would remain in force no mate evidence to prove the terms of the contract. In such and in all cases, where there is no warranty, express or implied, but where the vendor has by artifice or misrepresentation circumvented the purchaser, the remedy of the latter is by an action for the deceit (a). Proof of contract.

A warranty, although express, if made after the time of sale, is void for want of consideration (b). But a prospective warranty, as that a horse shall be sound at a future time, is valid (c).

In some instances the law will imply a warranty. Implied warranty.

On proof of a general custom in a particular branch of trade, it will be presumed that the parties contracted accordingly (d). The custom in the pimento trade is to declare at the time of sale whether the pimento is sea-damaged; and hence, in the absence of such a declaration, a warranty will be implied that the article was not sea-damaged (e).

In every contract to supply a manufactured article for a particular purpose, there is an implied warranty that it will answer the purpose to which it is to be applied (f); but in such a case the plaintiff must declare upon the limited warranty that the article is fit for the particular purpose, and not on a general warranty (g).

In every contract to furnish manufactured goods there is an implied contract on the part of the manufacturer that they shall be of a merchantable quality (h.) And upon a written contract for goods of a particular denomination, which the purchaser has no opportunity of inspecting, the law will imply a warranty of a saleable article corresponding with the contract (i).

longer than till 12 the next day. This evidence it is observable, was adduced to prove a general condition applicable to all sales at that place, and not the terms of the sale of the particular article.

(a) Supra, tit. DECEIT.

(b) Finch's L. 189.

(c) Liddard v. Kain, 2 Bing. 183; per Lord Mansfield. Eden v. Parkinson, Doug. 705.

(d) Jones v. Bowden, 4 Taunt. 847.

(e) Ibid. And the plaintiff was held to be entitled to recover, although the declaration alleged a sale by sample, and the samples showed that the article was of inferior quality. But in the absence of such a custom, a written contract for sale by sample excludes evidence of a warranty.

(f) The defendant, a manufacturer of copper, supplied the plaintiff with copper for sheathing a ship; and knowing the purpose for which the copper was wanted, said, "I will supply you well:" the copper, in consequence of some intrinsic defect, the cause of which was not found, lasted but four months instead of four years. The Court held that whether under the circumstances this was or was not to be considered as an express warranty, the plaintiff was entitled to recover, there being in all cases where goods are ordered for a particular purpose, an implied warranty that they are fit for the purpose. Jones v. Bright, 5 Bing. 533. And see Ohell v. Smith, 1 Starkie's C. 108.

(g) Gray v. Cox, 4 B. & C. 108. The plaintiffs bought a quantity of copper sheathing, for which they paid a fair market price to the defendants, who were copper merchants, not manufacturers. On the return of the vessel to which the sheathing had been applied, it was so defective that new plates were necessary. The plaintiff declared on a warranty that the sheathing copper should be good, sound, substantial and serviceable copper; and it was held that an action alleging such a general warranty was not sustainable. Lord Tenterden, C. J., intimated his opinion, that if a person sold a commodity for a particular purpose, he must be understood to warrant it reasonably fit and proper for that purpose; but his Lordship intimated that the Court entertained some difference of opinion on that point, though that was his own opinion.

(h) Laing v. Fidgeon, 6 Taunt. 108; 4 Camp. 169. Where a publican agrees with a brewer to take all his beer of him, the brewer is bound to supply beer of a fair merchantable quality. Holcombe v. Hewson, 2 Camp. 391. Cooper v. Twibill, 3 Camp. 286.

(i) Gardiner v. Gray, 4 Camp. 144. Lord Ellenborough observed, "The purchaser has a right to expect a saleable article answering the description in the contract, without any particular warranty; there is an implied term in every such contract, where there is no opportunity to inspect the commodity; the maxim caveat emptor does not apply. He cannot without a warranty insist that it shall be of any particular quality or fineness, but the intention of both parties must be taken to be that it shall be saleable in the market." See also Bridge v. Wain, 1 Starkie's C.

Implied warranty.

But no warranty will be implied that the goods shall correspond with a sample shown to the buyer, but not mentioned in the contract (k).

A stipulation that the chattel shall be taken with "all faults," is to be limited to such as are consistent with the article being that which it is described to be (l).

Where a ship was described in the advertisement to be "a copper-fastened vessel," and it turned out that she was not copper-fastened, the plaintiff, it was held, was entitled to recover, notwithstanding a clause in the advertisement that she was to be taken with all faults, and without deduction for any defects whatsoever (m).

The law will in no case imply any warranty where the parties have contracted as to the nature and quality of the thing sold. Thus, upon a sale of goods by sample, the law will not imply a contract that they shall be merchantable (n), although a merchantable price be given (o). Nor will the law imply a warranty against a latent defect, from the price given, whether it be known or unknown to the seller (p), nor on an exchange of goods (q).

If goods be sold by sample, it will be sufficient if the bulk corresponds with the sample (r).

If there be a latent defect in the thing sold, and there be no warranty, express or implied, the buyer cannot recover but by action on the case for deceit, on proof that the seller knew of the defect, and practised some artifice to conceal it (s).

Warranty by an agent.

A servant employed to sell a horse has an implied authority to warrant that it is sound (t); and his declaration, made at the time, is evidence to prove such warranty (u). But a declaration made by such an agent at

504. But where the plaintiff bought saffron of an inferior quality, and after keeping it for six months, and selling part, objected that the article was not saffron, it was held that it might be presumed from the inferiority of price, and length of time which elapsed without objection made, that the article was such as the plaintiff intended to purchase. Prosser v. Hooker, 1 Moore, 106.

(k) Ibid. Hope v. Atkins, 1 Price, 143. Mayer v. Everth, 4 Camp. 22. Pickering v. Dawson, 4 Taunt. 779. Kain v. Old, 2 B. & C. 634.

(l) 5 B. & A. 240.

(m) Shepherd v. Kain, 5 B. & A. 240.

(n) Parkinson v. Lee, 2 East, 314.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Baglehole v. Walters, 3 Camp 154; 2 East, 314. The notion of presuming a warranty from the extent of the price given, has long been exploded. Ib. and see Parkinson v. Lee, 2 East, 322.

(q) La Neuville v. Nourse, 3 Camp. 351. To support an action in such case, direct fraud must be proved.

(r) Parkinson v. Lee, 2 East, 314.

(s) Ibid. and supra, tit. DECEIT. Pickering v. Dawson, 4 Taunt. 779. A. purchased of B. ten dozen of Burgundy, and a year afterwards A. applied to B. to exchange Champagne for the Burgundy, which B accordingly did; the Burgundy at the time of the sale was of excellent quality, but at the time of the exchange was sour. On action brought by B. to recover the value of the Champagne, or a compensation for the bad condition of the Burgundy, Lord Ellenborough held, that in the absence of any evidence, either of an express warranty or of fraud, the action could not be supported. La Neuville v. Nourse, 2 Camp. 5.

(t) Alexander v. Gibson, 2 Camp. 556. Pickering v. Busk, 15 East, 38. 45. Helyar v. Hawkes, 5 Esp. C. 72. And warranty by the servant in such case is binding, although he had received instructions to the contrary. Ib. This, however, is contrary to the general rule as to the authority of agents. Supra, 45. Truswell v. Middleton, 2 Roll. 269. Bank of Scotland v. Watson, 1 Dow, 45. Strode v. Dyson, 1 Smith, 400.

(u) Helyar v. Hawke, 5 Esq. C. 72. Alexander v. Gibson, 2 Camp. 555. And the agent need not be called. Ibid. But there is a distinction between a general and a special agent. A principal will be bound by the act of a general agent, although he act contrary to express orders. Secus, in the case of a special agent. See 3 T. R. 760, 761; and the distinction taken by Lord Kenyon, in The East India Company v. Hensley, 1 Esp. C. 112. See also Ambler, 497, 8. Where the agent warrants beyond the scope of his authority, he is personally liable. In the case another time is not admissible to prove a warranty; the agent himself must be called (x).

Variance.

Proof that the parties agreed that a chattel should be given and taken in part payment, is no variance from an allegation of sale at a specific price in money, for it is a mere mode of payment (y).

And where the receipt expresses the sale for a specific money-price, there is no variance, although it appear that the vendor took a chattel in part payment, and the rest in money; for the receipt admits that the chattel was taken as money (z).

In an action on a warranty of soundness of a horse the contract stated was for a specific sum, 63*l.*, the bargain was for the price of 63*l.*, and if the horse was lucky the plaintiff would give "5*l.* more or the buying of another horse;" held that the letter was of too vague a meaning to be deemed to be any substantial part of the contract, and could only be regarded as an honorary engagement, and therefore that there was no variance (a).

Notice.

The plaintiff is entitled to recover without proving that he has returned the article (b). But where the warranty on the sale of a pair of coach-horses was accompanied by an undertaking on the part of the vendor to take back the horses "if on trial they should have any of the before-mentioned faults," it was held that the purchaser could not, after a reasonable time for trial had elapsed, and not having been induced to prolong the time by any subsequent misrepresentation on the part of the seller, recover on the warranty (c), although one of the horses was defective within the terms of the warranty at the time of sale (d). Neither is notice of the unsoundness to the seller essential (e); but the omission to give notice may operate unfavourably to the buyer, and render the proof on his part more difficult (f).

The keeping a warranted article for a length of time without objection, and selling part, is evidence tending to prove that it corresponded with the warranty (g).

of Scotland (Bank) v. Watson, 1 Dow. 45, it was held that a horse-dealer was bound by the warranty of his servant, though given contrary to his orders; secus, where the master is not a horse-dealer. Where, after a general warranty of soundness by the master, his servant sent with the receipt to the agent of the purchaser, inserted words which altered the effect of the warranty, it was held that the master was not bound by the alteration. Strode v. Dyson, 1 Smith, 400.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Hands v. Burton, 9 East, 349. The declaration alleged a warranty in consideration of the plaintiff's purchasing the defendant's horse for 31*l.* 10*s.* and alleged the purchase and the payment of that sum. The proof was, that the defendant agreed to dispose of his horse, which he warranted sound, to the plaintiff for 30 guineas; but agreed at the same time, that if the plaintiff would take the horse at that value, he (the defendant) would purchase of the plaintiff's brother another horse for 14 guineas, and that the difference only should be paid to the defendant. The witness described it as one deal between the parties, and that but for the latter consideration he did not believe that the bargain would have been made. But the Court overruled the objection.

(z) Brown v. Fry, Devon Sum. Ass. 1808, Sel. N. P. 630.

(a) Guthing v. Lynn, 2 B. & Ad. 232.

(b) Supra. Fielder v. Starkin, 1 H. B. 17; Buchanan v. Parnshaw, 2 T. R. 745. A horse at a public auction was warranted sound, and six years old; and one of the conditions was, that he should be deemed sound unless returned within two days; held that the plaintiff might recover for breach of warranty, on discovering that the horse was twelve years old, ten days after the sale. Ib. See also Curtis v. Hannay, 3 Esp. C. 83.

(c) Adam v. Richards, 2 H. B. 573.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Adam v. Richards, 2 H. B. 573. Buchanan v. Parnshaw, 2 T. R. 745.

(f) Fielder v. Starkin, 1 H. B. 19 Groning v. Mendham, 1 Starkie's C. 257. Adam v. Richards, 2 H. B. 573.

(g) Prosser v. Hooper, 1 Moore, 106. Especially where the price was low. Ibid. Vide supra, 1210.

A scienter, though alleged, need not be proved (h).

Breach. The breach of warranty must be proved according to the allegations in the declaration. Upon the question, what constitutes unsoundness in a horse, there are many and conflicting authorities (i). It has been said that a general warranty will not extend to defects which are plain and obvious to the senses; as, if a horse be warranted perfect, and wants either a tail or an ear, unless the buyer in such case be blind; but that if cloth be warranted to be of such a length, when it is not, an action lies, for that cannot be discovered by sight, but only by collateral proof by measuring it (k). It may, however, well be doubted whether the circumstance of the defect being known or perfectly obvious can avail otherwise than as evidence, in a doubtful case, to repel the inference of an intention to warrant; and on this ground the case of Butterfield v. Burrows (l) seems to have been decided.

Upon a warranty of a horse, that he is a good drawer, and would pull quietly in harness, proof that he is a good drawer merely is not sufficient (m).

Damages. The plaintiff is, in general, entitled to recover in respect of all losses which have resulted immediately from the breach of warranty. In an action (h) Williamson v. Allison, 2 East, 246.

(i) Eyre, C. J. held that a temporary lameness was not to be considered an unsoundness (Garment v. Barrs, 2 Esp. C. 673). In the case of Bassett v. Collis (2 Camp. 523), it was held to be insufficient to show merely that a horse warranted sound is a roarer, inasmuch as roaring may be merely from a bad habit; and that to prove a breach of warranty, it must be shown to be symptomatic of disease or infirmity. But in Elton v. Brogden (4 Camp. 281, 1 Starkie's C. 127), Lord Ellenborough held that any infirmity which rendered the horse less fit for present use or convenience, though not of a permanent nature, and although removed after action brought, was an unsoundness. In Shillito v. Claridge (2 Ch. 425), it was held that a cough not of a temporary nature was an unsoundness. And see King v. Price, 2 Ch. 416. And in the case of Onslow v. Eames (2 Starkie's C. 81), where it was proved by an experienced veterinary surgeon, that roaring is occasioned by a constriction of the neck of the windpipe, which renders it too narrow for accelerated respiration; and that the disorder is frequently produced by soreness of the throat, or some other topical inflammation; and that the disorder itself was of such a nature as greatly to incommode a horse when pressed to his speed; Lord Ellenborough held that this was an unsoundness. Crib-biting, it is said, is not indicative of unsoundness (Brennenburgh v. Haycock, Holt's C. 630). With respect to thrushes, splints, and quidding, a diversity of opinion prevails. 2 Camp. 524, n. An organic defect, such as the loss of a nerve, will constitute unsoundness. Best v. Osborne, 1 Ry. & M. 290. Crib-biting, where no disease or alteration of structure is occasioned by it, is not an unsoundness, but it is a vice within a warranty of "free from vice." Scholefield v. Robb, 2 M. & R. 210. A horse labouring under a cough which renders it unfit for immediate use, although the disease be not permanent, is not sound within a warranty. Coates v. Stephens, 2 M. & R. 157.

(k) 3 Comm. 165. Finch's L. 189.

(l) 1 Salk. 211. The plaintiff declared on the defendant's warranty of a horse to be sound wind and limb; plea non warranti sacit; verdict for the plaintiff. The defendant moved in arrest of judgment that the want of an eye was a visible thing, but that the warranty extends only to secret infirmities; but the Court held that this might be so, and must be intended to be so, since the jury had found that the defendant did warrant. Whether the defect were known or not to the buyer, must always depend on circumstances and collateral proof: to a man who bought a horse without seeing him, the want of eyes or tail would be a secret defect; and there seems to be no reason why he should not protect himself, either by an express stipulation for a horse with two eyes, two ears, and a tail, or by general warranty that the animal is sound or perfect. In Liddard v. Kain, 2 Bing. 181, the defendant, after informing the plaintiff that one of two horses which he was about to sell had a cold, agreed to deliver both in a fortnight sound and free from blemish; he delivered, at the end of the fortnight, one with a cough, the other with a swelled leg: the plaintiff having brought an action for the fine, the defendant insisted on a breach of warranty, and obtained a verdict, which the Court refused to set aside.

(m) Coltherd v. Puncheon, 2 D. & R. 10.

upon a warranty of a chain-cable, it was held that the plaintiff might recover the value of an anchor which was lost through the insufficiency of the cable; proof being given that the ship would have been lost if the anchor had not been slipped (n). Damages.

Where goods do not answer the description under which they have been sold, the purchaser is entitled to recover what the goods would have been worth to him had the contract been faithfully performed (o), where the goods have been returned; or the difference between that value and their real value, where they have not been returned.

If a warranted horse has been returned, the measure of damages is the price paid (p). If he has not been returned, the measure of damages is the difference between his real value and the price paid (q). If he has been sold, the buyer may recover the difference between the price given and the price received on the re-sale, and also the cost of keeping him for a reasonable time for the purpose of selling him (r). If he has not been tendered, the plaintiff cannot recover the expenses of his keep (s).

Where A. sold and warranted a horse to B., and B. sold him to C., and C. recovered the price from B. in an action, of which A. had notice, it was held that B. was entitled to recover from A. not only the price of the horse, but the costs of the action brought by C. (t).

But where the buyer of a warranted horse resells it, and improvidently defends an action by a party to whom he sells the horse on a like warranty, the unsoundness being discoverable on reasonable examination, he cannot recover the costs of such defence against the first warrantor (u).

In an action for goods warranted, which do not answer the warranty, but which have not been returned, the vendor cannot recover more than the real value (x).

Where the contract of warranty remains still open, or, in other words, where the breach of warranty remains to be tried, the plaintiff cannot recover as for money had and received to his use; but where, either by the terms of the contract, or by the assent of the vendor, it is rescinded, the action for money had and received is maintainable (y). Money had and received.

Where a horse was warranted sound, and the vendor, in a subsequent conversation, promised, if the horse were unsound, he would take it back and (n) Borradaile v. Brunton, 2 Moore, 582.

(o) Bridge v. Wain, 1 Starkie, C. 504.

(p) Caswell v. Coare, 1 Taunt. 566.

(q) Ibid. and Curtis v. Hannay, 3 Esp. C. 82.

(r) M'Kenzie v. Hancock, 1 Ry. & M. C. 436. It is at the buyer's option to sell him; and if he chooses to keep him, the use may be presumed to be an equivalent for the keep.

(s) 1 Taunt. 366. Where the vendor rescinds the contract, he is liable to the vendee for the keep. King v. Price, 2 Chitt. 416.

(t) Lewis v. Peake, 7 Taunt. 153; 2 Marsh. 431. See Green v. Greenbank, 2 Marsh. 485. Lord Alvanley (in the case of Briggs v. Crick, 5 Esp. C. 99; supra, 1227) is stated to have ruled that a former vendor with a warranty was a competent witness for a subsequent vendor, on an action on a warranty by the latter.

(u) Wrightup v. Chamberlain, 7 Sc. 598.

(x) Supra, 883. As, where the goods sold by sample do not correspond with the sample. Germaine v. Burton, cor. Bayley, J., York Spring Assiz. 1821. And see Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 479. Where the plaintiff warranted a horse to be sound, knowing him to be unsound, and the buyer gave a bill of exchange for the price, and afterwards discovering the unsoundness, tendered him to the plaintiff, who refused to take him, it was held that he was precluded by his fraud from recovering on the bill. Lewis v. Cosgrave, 2 Taunt. 2.

(y) Towers v. Barrett, 1 T. R. 133; Power v. Wells, Cowp. 818; Weston v. Downs, Doug. 23. So one who exchanges a watch for goods falsely warranted to be silver, cannot maintain trover without showing fraud. Emanuel v. Dane, 3 Camp. 299; supra, 1227. And see Cook v. Munstone, 1 N. R. 251.

Money had and received.

return the money; it was held, that though the horse turned out to be unsound, the vendor could not maintain assumpsit for the price; for the subsequent promise did not discharge the original warranty (z). Any fraud in the sale will avoid a warranty, though it does not amount to a breach of the warranty (a).

As to the COMPETENCY OF WITNESSES, see Vol. I.

WASTE.

Proof in action of.

IN an action on the case, in the nature of waste (b), the plaintiff must prove, 1st. His interest, and the holding by the defendant, as alleged; 2dly. The waste complained of; and 3dly. The amount of the damage.

Plaintiff's title.

1st. Although it be unnecessary to state the plaintiff's title, yet if the plaintiff state it a variance will be fatal. The declaration alleged that the plaintiff was tenant for life, the remainder thereof belonging to the plaintiff in tail, to wit, to him and the heirs of his body. From the deed it appeared that the plaintiff was entitled to the remainder in tail-male and not in tail-general, and the variance was held to be fatal.

One of two tenants in common, who has demised his moiety to the other, cannot maintain an action on the case, in the nature of waste, against the latter, for cutting down trees fit for cutting (c).

An agreement for three years and a quarter, stamped as such, but not signed by the parties, is evidence to support a declaration alleging an undertaking during the defendant's tenancy, (it being generally alleged that he was tenant) to keep the premises in tenantable repair (d).

(z) Payne v. Whale, 1 East, 274.

(a) Steward v. Coesvelt, 1 Carr. & P. C. 23.

(b) By the common law, no action for waste, either voluntary or premissive, lay against lessee for life or years; for the lessee had an interest in the land by the act of the lessor, and it was his folly to make such a lease and not restrain him by covenant, condition, or otherwise, that he should not do waste. Countess of Shrewsbury's Case, 5 Co. 13. So a tenant at will was not punishable for permissive waste, but trespass lay for voluntary waste; for the will and possession are determined, and the lessor shall have trepass without entry. Ib. So if a bailee of a horse kill him. Ib. But where confidence is reposed, case lies for negligence, although the defendant come to the possession by the act of the plaintiff. As where a shepherd is trusted with the care of sheep, and by his negligence they perish. Ib. 2 H. 7. 11. But in the case of a mere lessee at will of a house no confidence is reposed; and therefore it was held that an action does not lie for negligence, whereby the house was burnt. Ib. Supra, tit. NEGLIGENCE.

By the statute of Gloucester, 6 E. 1, 5, waste lies against a lessee for life or years. 2 Ins. 301; and he shall forfeit and make amends of treble the value at which the waste shall be taxed. In later times, the ordinary remedy to recover damages is by an action on the case, in the nature of waste. For although it was at first objected (see Jefferson v. Jefferson, 3 Lev. 130) that waste, according to the Countess of Salisbury's case, 5 Co., was not maintainable at common law, of which opinion were Windham and Charlton, Judges; yet Pemberton, C. J., and Levinz, J., were of opinion that Lord Coke must be understood, according to the subject matter, as speaking of the action of waste; and they were of opinion that the action of waste, properly so called, might be waived, and an action on the case maintained. It is obvious that the common-law objection, if available as a general principle, would apply as well to one form of action as another; and it is remarkable that the very case in which Lord Coke's doctrine was expounded was an action on the case. Such researches, however, are of little importance; for it was fully settled in the case of Kenlyside v. Thornton, 2 Bl. 1111, that case lies, notwithstanding an express covenant by the lessee. Hardwicke v. Thompson, cor. Thompson, B., Gloucester Sum. Ass. 1799; 2 Will. Saund. 252, d.

(c) Martin v. Knowllys, 8 T. R. 145. But he may recover half the proceeds in another form of action.

(d) Richardson v. Gifford, 1 Ad. & Ell. 52. But it was held to be insufficient to support counts alleging demises for the term, the agreement as to that being void.

2dly. The plaintiff cannot give evidence of a different kind of waste from that which is stated in the declaration (e). If he charge permissive waste, he cannot give evidence of voluntary waste (f); if he complain that the defendant has unroofed a dwelling-house, he cannot give evidence of the removal of fixtures (g); if he allege spoil, waste, and destruction, he cannot give evidence of any act which does not amount to waste in its legal sense (h); but if he prove but part only of the waste alleged, he is entitled to a verdict for damages pro tanto. Waste.

It has been held that an action on the case does not lie for permissive waste only (i).

3dly. The amount of the damage done by the removal of fixtures, or other tortious acts (k). Damage.

The defendant was tenant at will during the first year, subject to the terms of the agreement on his own part, and afterwards tenant from year to year, subject still to that agreement. Ib.

(e) It seems to be necessary, in an action on the case, as well as in an action of waste, to specify the kind of waste. 2 Will. Saund. 252.

(f) Ibid.

(g) 2 Will. Saund. 252.

(h) Ibid. and Harris v. Mantle, 3 T. R. 307.

(i) Gibson v. Wells, 1 N. I. 290. The defendant there was mere tenant at will; but the Court repelled the action on the broad ground that no action on the case lay for mere permissive waste, and that it was an attempt at innovation. In Herne v. Benbow, 4 Taunt. 764, Mansfield, C. J., laid down the same position. In Jones v. Hill (7 Taunt. 392), the same question arose upon the second and third counts of the declaration; but from the language of the Court they seem to have decided upon the first count only, which did not raise the general question.

In the case of Ferguson v. —— (2 Esp. C. 590), Lord Kenyon held that a landlord could not recover such damages from his former tenant as would put the house into complete and tenantable repair. He said, "A tenant from year to year is bound to commit no waste, and to make fair and tenantable repairs, such as putting in windows or doors that have been broken by him, so as to prevent waste and decay of the premises; but in the present case the plaintiff has claimed a sum for putting a new roof on an old worn-out house; this I think the tenant is not bound to do." A tenant from year to year is only bound to keep the house wind and water tight; a tenant who covenants to repair is bound to sustain and uphold the premises, but that is not the case with a tenant from year to year, per Lord Tenterden in Anworth v. Johnson, 5 C. & P. 239. In Horsefall v. Mather, Gibbs, C. J., held that a tenant from year to year is bound to use the premises in a husband-like manner, but is not liable for general repairs. The incumbent of a rectory is bound to maintain the parsonage and also the chancel, and to keep them in good and substantial repair, restoring and rebuilding when necessary, according to the original form, without addition or modern improvement; and he is not bound to supply or maintain anything in the nature of ornament, to which painting (unless necessary to preserve exposed timber from decay) and whitewashing and repairing belong. Substantial repairs are sufficient where the tenant covenants to repair. Harris v. Jones, 1 M. & M. 173. Lease of old house, covenant to deliver it up in good and substantial repair, sufficient to keep up the house as an old house in good and substantial repair. See Hubbard v. Bagshaw, 4 Sim. 326; Rufford v. Bishop, 5 Russ. 346.

See Co. Litt. 53, b. 57, a; 1 Will. Saund. 323, note (7); 2 Will. Saund. 252, note (7); 2 Roll. Ab. 816, Waste, pl. 36, 37.

(k) By the strict rule of common law, if a stranger through fraud or ignorance annexed a personal chattel to the freehold, the annexation became part of the freehold, and the property of the owner of the soil. Britton, c. 33; and see Bract. c. 3, s. 4. 6; Fleta, lib. 3, c. 2, s. 12. Questions respecting the right to fixtures principally arise between three classes of persons:—1st. Between different descriptions of representatives of the same owner of the inheritance, viz. between his heir and executor; and in this case, i. e. as between the heir and executor, the rule obtains with the utmost rigour in favour of the inheritance, and against the right to disannex therefrom, and to consider as a personal chattel, anything which has been affixed thereto (per Lord Ellenborough, in Elwes v. Maw, 3 East, 50); and that rule is, that where a lessee, having annexed anything to the freehold during his term, afterwards takes it away, it is waste (Year Book, 17 Edw. 2. 518; Herlakenden's Case, 4 Co. 64; Co. Litt. 53. Cooke v. Humphrey, Moore, 177. Lord Derby v. Asquith, Hob. 234). But this rule, it appears, was relaxed in early times in favour of trade. (See 42 Edw. 3; 20 Hen. 7, 13, a & b.) Where it was held that a dyer might remove vats and vessels Damage. It is no defence to show that the defendant has covenanted to yield up made for his occupation during the term; he might remove them during the term; but that if he suffered them to remain after the term, they belonged to the lessor.

2dly. As between the executor of tenant for life or in tail and the remainder-man, in which case the right to fixtures is considered more favourably for executors than in the preceding case of heir and executor. A fire-engine erected by tenant for life to work a colliery, was considered to be removable (Lawton v. Lawton, 3 Atk. 13. Lord Dudley v. Lord Ward, Amb. 113), as being accessory to the carrying on trade; and the right to remove a cider-mill was decided on the same principle. But saltpans were held by Lord Mansfield to be accessories to the enjoyment of the inheritance, viz. the salt-spring (Lawton v. Salmon, 1 H. B. 259), so that the executor could not maintain trover for them against the tenant of the heir at law.

The third case, and that in which the greatest latitude and indulgence has been allowed, in favour of the claim to have particular articles considered as personal chattels, as against the claim in respect of the freehold or inheritance, is the case between landlord and tenant.

In the case of Elwes v. Maw (3 East, 38), in which many of the previous authorities were cited and considered, a distinction was established between annexations by a tenant to the freehold made for the purposes of trade, and those made for the purposes of agriculture, and the better enjoyment of the land: those of the former class, where the building was erected as a mere accessory to a chattel, were held to be removable; but those of the latter class, which were accessory to the freehold itself, were considered to be irremovable.

In the case of Dean v. Allaly, (3 Esp. C. 11), Lord Kenyon seems to have considered erections for the purposes of farming to be on the same footing with those made for the purposes of trade; but this was much doubted by Lord Ellenborough, in the subsequent case of Elwes v. Maw, 3 East, 57.

In Fitzherbert v. Shaw (1 H. B. 258), Gould J. expressed an opinion at the trial that a tenant from year to year might, during the term, remove a wooden stable placed on blocks or rollers, or a shed or brick-work which he had erected; but ultimately the question turned upon an agreement entered into between the parties.

In Penton v. Robart (2 East, 88), it was held that the tenant was justified in removing a building constructed of wood, and erected on a foundation of brick, for the purposes of trade, after the expiration of the term. And a barn put upon pattens, or blocks of timber lying upon the ground, but not fixed in or to the ground, may be removed by the tenant; for they are not fixtures. Per Lord Ellenborough, 3 East, 56. Culling v. Tuffnel, B. N. P. 34.

In Horn v. Baker, 9 East, 215, it was held that the stills of a distiller, which were fixed to the freehold, were not goods and chattels, within the stat. 21 Jac. 1, c. 19, s. 10 & 11; but that vats and utensils, which were not so fixed, were within the statute. Parts of a machine put up by a tenant during the term, i. e. certain jibs which were placed in cases and steps affixed to a warehouse, but which jibs were fastened by pins above and below, and capable of being removed without injury either to the cases and steps, or the building, and which were articles usually valued between out-going and in-coming tenants, were held to be the chattels of the out-going tenant, for which he might maintain trover. Davis v. Jones, 2 B. & A. 165. Vide supra, 155.

It seems, that wherever fixtures are capable of removal without injury to the freehold as between landlord and tenant, they are to be deemed as within the order and disposition of the bankrupt. Austin, ex parte, 1 D. & Ch. 207.

A tenant may during his term remove matters of ornament, such as ornamental marble chimney-pieces, pier-glasses, hangings, wainscots fixed only by screws, and the like (Beck v. Rebow, 1 P. Wms. 94. Ex parte Quincey, 1 Atk. 477. Lawton v. Lawton, 3 Atk. 13). And see Wise v. Metcalf, 10 B. & C. 299. Looking-glasses standing on chimney-pieces, and nailed to a wall, are within the description of fixtures and fixed furniture. Birch v. Dawson, 2 Ad. & Ell. 37. See Levi v. Rogers, 1 C. M. & R. 52. Allen v. Allen, Moseley, 112. Cupboards, &c., which serve in place of chests, not parcel of house for general purposes. Fost. c. 1, 109; Amos. 137. But although a tenant occupy a house for the purpose of trade, and may, according to the general rule, remove vats set up in relation to trade, (per Lord Holt, Poole's Case, Salk. 368,) yet he cannot remove that which is affixed to complete his house, as hearths and chimney-pieces. Per Holt, C. J. ibid., and per Lord Ellenborough, in Elwes v. Maw, 3 East, 53. An ordinary tenant cannot remove a border of box planted in the garden. Empson v. Soden, 4 B. & Ad. 655. Nor flowers, per Littledale, ib. See Wyndham v. Way, 4 Taunt. 316. A tenant on the expiration of his term may remove a wooden house resting simply by its own weight, on foundations let into the ground. Wainsborough v. Matson, 4 Ad. & Ell. 884. Or an ornamental chimney-piece put up by him during the tenancy. Leach v. Thomas, 7 C. & P. 327. But an out-going tenant cannot remove pillars of brick and mortar, built on a dairy floor to hold the premises in repair (l). If a tenant, whilst he remained in possession, though after the expiration of his term, remove fixtures which he might pans, although they be not let into the ground. Leach v. Thomas, 7 C. & P. 327. In the case of Buckland v. Butterfield, 2 B. & B. 58, Dallas, C. J., observed, "The general rule is, that where a lessee having annexed a personal chattel to the freehold during his term, afterwards takes it away, it is waste. In progress of time this rule has been relaxed, and many exceptions have been grafted upon it. One has been in favour of matters of ornament, as ornamental chimney-pieces, pier-glasses, hangings, wainscot, fixed only by screws, and the like; of all these it is to be observed, that they are exceptions only, and therefore to be considered not to be extended; and with respect to one subject in particular, namely, wainscot, Lord Hardwicke puts it as a very strong case." In the same case it was held, that where a conservatory was built on a foundation of brick communicating with the dwelling-house, the windows of which opened into it, it was waste in a tenant for life who removed it. Where a pump was erected by the tenant, being slightly affixed, held that as an article of domestic convenience, and which could be removed entire, it was within the principle of moveable fixtures. Grymes v. Boweren, 6 Bing. 437. Lime-kilns, though erected for the purposes of trade, are not removable under a lease to repair, and, as it seems, not at all. Thresher v. The East London Waterworks Company, 2 B. & C. 608. Where the usage does not decide whether fixtures and other things used in a colliery are the property of the landlord or of the tenant, that must depend on the agreement between the parties. Ryall v. Rolle, 1 Atk. 165; Horn v. Baker, 9 East, 215. Stone v. Hunter, 3 B. & C. 36. Set pots, ovens and ranges, are fixtures which go to the heir, not the executor, and are not liable to be taken as goods under an execution. Winn v. Ingleby, 5 B. & A. 625. But it seems that whatever the tenant, as between himself and the landlord, might remove, the sheriff may seize. Poole's case, 1 Salk. 368. Where a tenant wrongfully severed machinery from a mill, and the sheriff sold the severed machinery under an execution against the tenant, it was held that the vendee was liable in trover even during the term. Farrant v. Thompson, 5 B. & Ad. 324. Where a wooden windmill was fixed on a brick foundation, and the owner mortgaged the land, the deed containing a bill of sale of the mill; it was held that the sheriff could not take the mill under an execution against the mortgagee, although he continued in possession. Steward v. Lombe, 1 B. & B. 106. For the mill would have descended to the heir of the owner of the inheritance; and it was consistent with the whole nature of the transaction that the mortgagor should continue in possession. Ib. Under the mortgage of a mill, held that the stones, although moveable, passed without delivery, and as against the owner of the freehold, could not be taken in execution as tenant's fixtures. Place v. Fagg, 4 M. & Ry. 277. Where certain machinery, being fixtures, were demised with a paper-mill, and used by the tenant in manufacturing paper, held not to be "utensils" in the custody of the tenant within the meaning of the 34 G. 3, c. 20, s. 27, liable to be seized for duties. Att. Gen. v. Gibbs, 3 Y. & J. 333. Where the occupation was of a cottage, garden and windmill, at a rent of 30*l.*, but the cottage and garden were of less value than 10*l.* and the mill merely rested on a brick foundation, but was in no way affixed or connected with the freehold, held that it was insufficient to confer a settlement. R. v Otley, 1 B. & Ad. 161. And see R. v. Londonthorpe, 6 T. R. 377. If a sheriff sell machinery the property of the tenant, fixed to the mill demised, but on which machinery a power of distress is retained by the covenant, he is liable to pay the year's rent, if due, to the landlord. Ducke v. Braddyll, 13 Price, 455. Parts of a machine put up by a tenant during the term, and capable of being removed without injury to the machine or building, and usually valued between the incoming and outgoing tenant, are the goods of the outgoing tenant, for which trover is maintainable. Davis v. Jones, 2 B. & Ad. 165. By a general conveyance of a freehold house, of which the purchaser after payment of the price takes possession, the fixtures pass. Colegreave v. Dios Santos, 2 B. & C. 76. Upon the plea nul waste, the defendant cannot show that acts, such as ploughing up old meadow, and cutting timber to sell for the purpose of procuring other better calculated for repairs, were according to the custom of the country, and not in fact injurious; nor the latter even in mitigation of damages; matters in justification or excuse must be pleaded specially. Simmons v. Norton, 7 Bing. 640. And see Barrett v. Barrett, Hetl. 35. Where a party on assigning the lease of a house then out of repair, stipulated that all outgoings were to be paid by him up to the 23d April; and by the assignment indorsed and executed by him, but not by the assignee, the residue of the term was assigned subject to the covenants, &c. from the 22d April, in an action on the (l) Kenlyside v. Thornton, 2 Bl. R. 1111; 2 Will. Saund. 252, c.

Defence.

Defence.

have removed during the term, he may still justify de bonis asportatis, although he be guilty of a trespass in entering (m). But if the tenant give up the possession with the fixtures attached, and without valuation, he cannot afterwards remove them (n).

If a party entitled to remove fixtures make a new agreement, he cannot afterwards remove them (o).

Whether particular articles have become part of the freehold by annexation, so as to be no longer separable, is usually a question of law, arising either on an express contract between the parties, and the mode and circumstances of such annexation, or on evidence of custom. In the absence of any express agreement or rule of law applicable to the particular case, recourse must usually be had to the custom, if any such exist, as applicable to the circumstances (p).

WATCH RATES.

See the St. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 28; 5 & 6 W. 4. c. 76.

WATERCOURSE.

Nature of the right.

THE right of a land-owner to use and apply the water of a stream (q) case against the assignee by the assignor, who had been called upon, and paid dilapidations to the lessor up to the time of the assignment; held, 1st, that the assignment though not executed by the defendant, might be read to show that the plaintiff had performed his part of the agreement; and 2dly, that the Court could add nothing to the terms of the instruments of lease and assignment, so as to make the defendants liable in that action for dilapidation before that time. Semble, the defendant having taken possession under the assignment, the action should have been covenant, although he never executed the deed. Hawkins v. Sherman, 2 C. & P. 461. And see Co. Litt. 230 b. n. 1.

(m) Penton v. Robarts, 2 East, 88.

(n) Lyde v. Russell, 1 B. & Ad. 394; and see the observations of Gibbs, C. J., in Lee v. Risdon, 7 Taunt. 108.

(o) Fitzherbert v. Shaw, 1 H. B. 258.

(p) Storer v. Hunter, 3 B. & C. 368; supra, 154.

(q) See now as to the time of prescription, the stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, and tit. PRESCRIPTION. Flowing water is originally publici juries. So soon as it is appropriated by an individual, his right is co-extensive with the beneficial use to which he appropriates it. Subject to that right, all the rest of the water remains publici juries. The party who obtains the right to the exclusive enjoyment of the water, does so in derogation of the primitive right of the public. Per Bayley, J. in the case of Williams v. Morland, 2 B. & C. 914.

Running water is not in its nature private property; at least it is private property no longer than it remains on the soil of the person claiming it. Before it came there it clearly was not his property. It may perhaps become quasi the property of another, before it comes on his premises, by reason of his having appropriated to himself the use of the water accustomed to flow through his lands, before any other person had acquired a right to it. Per Holroyd, J., ib.

Water is of that peculiar nature, that it is not sufficient to allege in a declaration that the defendant prevented the water from flowing to the plaintiff's premises. The plaintiff must state an actual damage accruing from the want of water. The mere right to use the water does not give a party such a property in the new water constantly coming, as to make the diversion or obstruction of the water per se give him any right of action. All the King's subjects have a right to the use of flowing water, provided that in using it they do no injury to the rights already vested in another by the appropriation of the water. Per Littledale, J., ib. See also Bealey v. Shaw, 6 East, 214. Sanders v. Newman, 1 B. & A. 258.

The following is extracted from an opinion by Mr. Holroyd, in 1807: "The proprietor of land over which a stream of water flows is, I think, warranted in using the water for the purposes of his business, though it may be polluted thereby, or in entirely diverting it, if such usage or diversion be not prejudicial to the owner of any of the estates below, in the manner in which they have been previously accustomed to use the same. Any supposed intended use to which the owner of any such estate may or may not hereafter apply the water, is not, I think, which runs through the lands of various proprietors, depends, partly on the peculiar nature of the subject-matter, partly on principles already noticed.

Principle of appropriation.

The water of a running stream is publici juris, which each successive proprietor has a right to use in passing, but which is the property of no one; but if one of such owners appropriates the water by applying it to a particular purpose, he has a right to do so, provided he does not thereby prejudice any other owner in his previous use and appropriation of the water to other purposes (r). But he cannot do this to the prejudice of a lower proprietor, who has already appropriated the stream, or a portion of it, to some particular use (s).

Thus, if A. erect a weir, of the height of three feet, and four years afterwards add another foot to the height of the weir, B. having in the meantime appropriated the surplus water flowing over the first weir, B. may maintain an action against A. for thus heightening the weir (t).

Upon the same principle, after a right has been acquired to use water for one purpose, the owner has a right to use the same extent of water to a sufficient to deprive any other person of the right such person has of applying and appropriating the water to a beneficial purpose. Every person has, I conceive, that right, provided that by such application or appropriation he does not prevent or disturb any other person from using the same or enjoying the benefit thereof, in as full, ample, and advantageous a manner as that other has done before."

Where a plaintiff had enjoyed a spring and stream of water issuing out of his own grounds for twenty years, and the defendant, by opening a quarry in his own adjoining lands, intercepted the spring, it was held to be no answer to the action that a grant could not be presumed, inasmuch as the existence of the watercourse through the defendant's land had been but recently discovered; and Lord Ellenborough held that the enjoyment for twenty years afforded conclusive evidence of right. Balston v. Benstead, 1 Camp. 463. If, however, such a right really depended upon the presumption of a grant, the evidence of twenty years' enjoyment could scarcely be considered to be conclusive. There had been an appropriation of the water to a particular purpose, and therefore it was unnecessary to resort to the presumption of a grant. The doctrine of presumptive evidence of right derived from user, cannot properly have any operation except as to such use as the claimant had no right to except the presumed one, and which is inconsistent with the rights of others, and is in itself open and notorious. Mutual benefit is evidence of an agreement. If two men have property near a river, and they cut through each other's ground for water, and this continues for twenty years, an agreement is to be presumed. Per Ld. Cowper, 12 Vin. Ab. Q. a. fol. 8.

(r) So according to the civil law: "Plerosque scio prorsus flumina avertisse alveosque mutasse dum prædiis suis consulunt; oportet enim in hujusmodi rebus utilitatem et tutelam facientis spectari sine injuriâ accolarum." Dig. tit. Ne quid in flumine.

(s) Neither, according to the law as laid down in Mason v. Hill, 3 B. & Ad. 304, and Wright v. Howard, 1 Sim. & Stu. 190, can he do this to the prevention of the lower proprietor from applying the water to a particular purpose, although at the time when the higher proprietor so applied the water the lower one had not begun so to apply it. Secus after an enjoyment for 20 years.

(t) Bealey v. Shaw, 6 East, 214. The persons under whom the defendants claimed had 80 years since erected a mill, and made a weir to divert the water from the river Irwell, which weir had at various times before 1787 been enlarged. In 1787 the plaintiff built a mill lower down the stream, which was supplied by the water not then taken by the defendant's weir, and continued to enjoy the surplus water till 1791, when the defendants so enlarged their weir, and extended their works, as to take all the water from the plaintiff's mill. The Court held the action to be maintainable. Lord Ellenborough said, that 20 years exclusive enjoyment of water in any particular manner affords a conclusive presumption of right in the party so enjoying it; but less than 20 years may or may not afford such a presumption, according as it is attended with circumstances to support or rebut the right. And in the same case Le Blanc, J. said, "The true rule is, that if after the erection of works, and the appropriation by the owner of land of a certain quantity of water flowing over it, the proprietor of other lands takes what remains of the water before unappropriated, the first-mentioned owner, however he might before such second appropriation have taken to himself so much more, cannot do so afterwards."

Appropriation.

different purpose, provided he does no prejudice to any other owner in his use of the water (u).

Where the plaintiff had a right to use water for irrigation and had done so by placing loose stones, and occasionally a board across the stream, but had upon the particular occasion fastened the board with stakes, and the defendant had removed both, held, that he could not justify so doing on the ground of the stakes giving a character of permanency to the former easement (x).

And as the individual right must be founded on the appropriation of the water to a beneficial purpose, the plaintiff, in support of an action for prejudicing such a right, must allege and prove such appropriation and use, otherwise he is not entitled to recover (y).

But in the late case of Mason v. Hill (z), the Court, after great consideration, (u) In Saunders v. Newman, 1 B. & A. 258, the plaintiff had 40 years ago built a mill on the site of an ancient mill, and had within 20 years built a new mill with a wheel of the same dimensions; and afterwards substituted a wheel of different dimensions, but requiring less water; the alteration was held to be no defence to an action for forcing the water back, and injuring the mill. Per Abbot, J.: "The owner is not bound to use the water in the same precise manner, or to apply it to the same mill; if he were, that would stop all improvements in machinery. If indeed the alterations made from time to time prejudice the right of the lower mill, the case would be different." And see the observations of Holroyd, J., ibid.; and see Greenslade v. Halliday, 6 Bing. 379.

(x) Greenslade v. Halliday, 6 Bing. 379.

(y) Williams v. Morland, 2 B. & C. 910. Where the jury found that the defendant had made a dam higher up the stream, but the banks and premises of the plaintiff were not injured by the increased violence of the stream, as alleged by the plaintiff, but that the defendant had by his dam wrongfully stopped the water; it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover. Where, however, the plaintiff had used the water for cattle, and the defendant diverted the water under an assertion of right, and of his intention that the diversion should be permanent, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages, although the stoppage was in fact but temporary; for if no action were brought, a stoppage with that assertion would afterwards be evidence of right. Greaves v. Burbery, cor. Bayley, J., York Ass.: and by the Court of K. B. Mich. 1828. Sed quære, whether the mere assertion can make any difference. In a case before Wood, B. at Carlisle, where the water having been used for the purpose of irrigation, was afterwards returned into the ordinary channel, the learned judge nonsuited the plaintiff; but as it appeared that by so doing a portion was lost in consequence of absorbtion and irrigation, the Court of K. B., as I am informed, afterwards set aside the nonsuit. In the case Mason v. Hill, 5 B. & Ad. 1, it seems to have been doubted whether the owner of land, without having used the stream for some special purpose and without some damage sustained, can support an action.

If a mill-head pens back the water upon the adjoining lands, and injures them, but in consequence of defective construction, and want of repair in the wheels and waste-gates, the mill-pond is, by the working of the mill at seasons wholly selected by the miller, without the control of the landowner, so soon and so frequently exhausted that the adjoining lands are frequently relieved from the stagnant water, and suffer but small damage, the miller (it seems) is justified in repairing and improving the construction of his mill, and thereby penning the water back on his neighbour's lands, on the same level, for longer periods, although he thereby occasions greater damage to him. Alder v. Savill, 5 Taunt. 454.

(z) The plaintiff and defendant had lands contiguous to the stream, the land of the defendant being situated above the land of the plaintiff. The defendant in 1818 erected a weir across the stream at a part contiguous to his own land, and by means of channels and reservoirs conveyed and used great part of the water for the purpose of supplying a steam-engine. The plaintiff, 10 years after this diversion, made a channel in his land contiguous to the stream, by which he conveyed the water to some buildings of his, at a little distance from the stream, for the purpose of a manufactory not previously carried on there. The Court of King's Bench, after a verdict for the defendant, under the direction of the learned judge, set aside the verdict, principally, it seems, on the authority of a decision by the Master of the Rolls, in the case of Wright v. Howard, 1 Sim. & Stu. 190. The Master of the Rolls, in his judgment in that case observed, "Every proprietor who claims a right, either to held, that an appropriation of less than 20 years duration was not sufficient to give a right to the appropriator against a lower proprietor. Appropriation.

And now the law on this subject depends much on the provisions of the late stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 1, s. 2 (z), which in effect makes an uninterrupted enjoyment of a watercourse for the period of twenty years to give a valid title, unless it be answered by such evidence as, before the Act, would have rebutted the presumption of a grant.

In case for the diversion of water from the plaintiff's mills, it appeared that certain mining adventurers had obtained a lease from the proprietors of a mine, lying near and benefited by a drain or sough constructed by them them (under what right did not appear, but presumed to be either under the custom of mining, or by licence from the owner of the soil), and that afterwards the father of the plaintiff had obtained a lease from the lord of the manor, also owner of the soil through which the sough flowed, on which he erected cotton-mills; subsequently, another company of adventurers began to construct on a lower level another sough, which, under an agreement with the proprietors of the first sough, and of other mines drained by it, they proceeded to extend, thereby reducing the quantity of water which would have passed along the first sough to the plaintiff's mills; it was held, that as the origin of the watercourse, as well as its continuance, were referable to the convenience of the mine owners; and that, from the nature of the case, it was of a temporary character, no inference could be made of any intention to grant the use of the water in perpetuity, and that no such right was therefore acquired by the user, either by the presumption of a grant, or by force of the 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71 (a).

B. having diverted water from the mill of A., for which A. recovered damages, took a lease of the water from A. for ninety-nine years; though A. suffer his mill to fall into decay, yet the owner of his land is entitled to the water as it formerly flowed, at the end of the term (b).

An action for obstructing a watercourse is local in its nature (c), but a local description is unnecessary (d).

The right to have a drain or passage for water through the lands of throw the water back above, or to diminish the quantity of water which is to descend below, must, in order to maintain his claim, either prove an actual grant or licence from the proprietors affected by his operations, or must prove an uninterrupted possession of 20 years, which term of 20 years is now adopted upon a principle of general convenience, as affording conclusive presumption of a grant." And he adds, "an action will lie at any time within 20 years, when injury happens to arise in consequence of a new purpose of the party to avail himself of his common right." In a subsequent action, afterwards pending between the same parties, Mason v. Hill, in the Court of King's Bench, after much discussion and consideration, the Chief Justice pronounced a very learned and elaborate judgment, supporting the former decision.—Where the owner of a mill stream had kept an ancient opening into a ditch closed for above 20 years; held, that the owner of the land adjoining the ditch could not justify the reopening the communication; and that where the mill-owner, after having altered his wheel to one requiring a greater head of water, had subsequently discontinued it for 20 years, and resumed the use of his former wheel, he could not resume his right to the higher head of water. Drewett v. Sheard, 7 C. & P. 465. Where the plaintiff enjoyed a watercourse above 20 years ago, and about 22 years since some alteration was made in it, but about 19 years ago it was restored to its ancient course, held that the right was not destroyed by such interruption. Hall v. Swift, 4 Bing. N. C. 381.

(z) See tit. PRESCRIPTION, p. 919.

(a) Arkwright v. Gell, 5 M. & W. 203. Trespass, plea justifying a right to enter to remove hatches obstructing a watercourse to the defendant's mill, evidence of a former occupier of the mill having asked permission to use the water, is admissible, as of the exercise of a right by one and acquiescence by the other. Wakeman v. West, 8 C. & P. 105.

(b) Davis v. Morgan, 4 B. & C. 8.

(c) Mersey & Irwell Navigation v. Douglas, 2 East, 497.

(d) Ibid.

Right of passage.

another, may either be direct or presumptive. Direct evidence of such a right must be by means of a grant under seal, in the case of a freehold (e); and as it seems also in the case of a chattel interest (f).

There is no distinction between the obstruction of the ordinary course of water, which cannot be changed to the injury of another, and the extraordinary course for carrying off the superabundant quantity at particular seasons (g).

An allegation that the plaintiff, by reason of his possession of a mill with the appurtenances, was entitled to the use of water running in a certain tunnel to the mill, is not supported by proof that the tunnel was made on the defendant's land on an agreement by the latter to convey the right, and no conveyance having in fact been made, and the defendant's assent having been refused; for the plaintiff had not the right by reason of possession, but under a parol licence revocable in its nature, and in fact revoked (h).

It has been laid down by authority, that every one of common right has a right of way for servants or horses, on the banks of a navigable river, for towing barges; and if the water of the river impairs the banks, then in the nearest part of the field next adjoining (i).

It is no defence to an action by a reversioner, for an injury to the reversion, in not repairing a gutter for the conveyance of water through the plaintiff's land to the defendant's mill, whereby the water oozed through the gutter, and carried away the soil of the close, that the defect in the gutter was occasioned by the plaintiff's tenant (k).

Ferry.

In an action for the disturbance of a ferry (l), it is sufficient to prove possession and enjoyment, without producing documentary evidence, such as court rolls, where the ferry is within a manor, and has passed by surrender and admission (m). And it is unnecessary either to allege or prove the payment of any specific sum for passage-money (n), or to show that the plaintiff is owner of the soil on either side (o), provided he have the right of embarking and disembarking his passengers. And although the Crown may for neglect of duty repeal the grant by scire facias or quo warranto, such neglect is no answer to an action for disturbance of the ferry (p).

In an action by a canal company for a nuisance in digging clay-pits, by (e) Hewlins v. Shippam, 5 B. & C. 221; 2 Roll. Ab. 62; Gilb. L. E. 96, 6th edit. Bolton v. Bishop of Carlisle, 2 H. B. 259; Shep. Touch. 231. Ramsey v. Rowson, 1 Vent. 18. 25. Hoskins v. Robinson, 2 Vent. 12; 2 Saund. 327. Fentiman v. Smith, 6 East, 154.

(f) Ibid.

(g) R. v. Trafford, 1 B. & Ad. 874. If several by several acts cause a joint destruction to the public nuisance all may be joined in the same indictment. Ib.

(h) Fentiman v. Smith, 4 East, 107. And see Hewlins v. Shippam, 5 B. & C. 221.

(i) Young's Case, per Holt, C. J., 1 Ld. Raym. 725. And see Cocker v. Cooper, 4 C. M. & R. 410.

(k) Lord Egremont v. Pulman, 1 Moo. & Mal. C. 404.

(l) A ferry is a liberty by prescription, or the King's grant, to have a boat for passage on a great stream, for the carriage of horses and men, for reasonable toll. Termes de la Ley, 338. There is no difference between a claim to an ancient ferry and other cases of prescription; and though its commencement can only be by royal grant or licence from the Crown, the word ancient does not impose the necessity of producing such grant, but it is satisfied by proof of the ferry having existed for such a time as will raise the presumption of its being originally founded by right: and a variation in the toll will not affect the franchise, nor will contradictory evidence of the usage, which is matter for the consideration of the jury. Trotter v. Harris, 2 Y. & J. 285.

(m) Peter v. Kendall, 6 B. & C. 703. Blissett v. Hart, Willes' Rep. 508.

(n) Peter v. Kendall, 6 B. & C. 703.

(o) Ib. Saville, 11, pl. 29, contra.

(p) 6 B. & C. 703. Where a grant has been made on condition, the non-user by the grantees will preclude them availing themselves of the grant against the Crown, on an indictment for a nuisance. Attorney-general v. Richards, 3 Austr. 753. Painter v. Attorney-general, 1 Dow, 316. The which the banks of the canal were injured, it is incumbent on the plaintiffs to show that the banks were at the time of the damage in such a state as the Act of Parliament requires (q).

Although an adverse enjoyment for the space of twenty years is, as against a private individual, evidence of a grant by him, yet it is otherwise in the case of a public river navigable by all the King's subjects; no obstruction for twenty years will bar a public right (r).

Ownership of the soil is primâ facie evidence of a right of fishery.

Where a river is not navigable, the presumption is that the soil is the property of the owners on each side, to the middle of the river (s). But in the case of a navigable river, the presumption is that the soil is vested in the Crown (t). Yet, a subject may claim a prescriptive right to a several fishery in an arm of the sea even against the Crown (u).

Crown had been in possession for 150 years, and therefore a presumption arose against the grant of the Crown. But an enjoyment for 60 years would be sufficient evidence of title in such case against the Crown. 1 Dow, 316, per Lord Eldon. On an avowry for taking goods under a distress for port duties, it is not necessary to show that the port is in repair, the consideration being the obligation to repair for the benefit of the public. 1 Ld. Raym. 385.

(q) Stafford Canal Co. v. Hallen, 6 B. & C. 317; but see R. v. Trafford, 1 B. & Ad. 874.

(r) Vooght v. Winch, 2 B. & A. 662. Weld v. Hornby, 7 East, 195. Whether a river be navigable or not is of course a question of fact for the jury (Vooght v. Winch, 2 B. & A. 662.) The flux or reflux of the tide is evidence of a navigable river (Miles v. Rose, 5 Taunt. 705), but not conclusive. (Ibid.) It was held in that case that the cutting of rushes in the creek by strangers, and without interruption, was a strong circumstance to show that the river was public. The fact that pleasure-boats were accustomed to sail up the creek was also relied upon by Gibbs, C. J.

The public are not entitled of common right to tow on the banks of ancient navigable rivers (Ball v. Herbert, 3 T. R. 253); or to use the sea-shore for bathing; or to cross the sea-shore on foot, or with machines for that purpose. Blundell v. Catterall, 5 B. & A. 268, Best, J. dissent.

A public right of navigation may be extinguished either by an Act of Parliament, a writ of ad quod damnum and inquisition, or under certain circumstances by commissioners of sewers, or by natural causes, such as the recess of the sea, accumulation of silt or mud. And where a public road, obstructing a channel once navigable, has existed for so long a time that the state of the channel when the road was made cannot be proved, it is to be presumed that the right of navigation was legally extinguished. R. v. Montague, 4 B. & C. 598. The right of the public in a public navigable river extends to every part of the space between the banks; and a grant by the Crown to erect a weir over part of it not then necessary to the navigation, must be taken to be subject to the necessities of the public when they may arise; the Crown had no common-law right to interfere with the channels of public rivers before, nor has any since the passing of Magna Charta, or any other right than that of preserving the right and restraining nuisances in derogation of it; the effect of the st. 25 Edw. 3, st. 4, c. 4, was impliedly to legalize all weirs which had been set up before the time of Edw. 1, and evidence is proper to show the antiquity of a disputed weir. Williams v. Wilcox, 3 Nev. & P. 606.

(s) Carter v. Murcot, 4 Burr. 2162.

(t) The Crown is not entitled to land recovered from the sea by gradual alluvion, but only to such as has become derelict. Upon inquisition a jury found that particular land had formerly been covered by the sea, but had for many years been derelict; that the land had since been unoccupied, but that the herbage had been eaten by the cattle and sheep belonging to different tenants and occupiers of land situate within the sea marsh. Upon petition by Lord Gwydir to traverse the inquisition, on affidavit that the lands in question were parcel of his manor, and that the tenants of the manor had for a long time enjoyed rights of common on the lands, the Vice-Chancellor held that this was not only primâ facie evidence of title, but a title not negatived by the finding of the jury. Ex parte Lord Gwydir, 4 Madd. 281. Where a grant of wreck was made by H. 2, and confirmed by H. 8, to the proprietor of land on the coast, who within forty years had constructed an embankment across a small bay to reclaim sea-mud, and had since exerted an exclusive right to the soil without opposition, it was held, that from such usage, anterior usage might be presumed; and that the usage coupled with the terms of the grant, served to elucidate it, and to establish the right so asserted. Chad v. Tilsed, 2 B. & B. 403.

(u) Mayor of Orford v. Richardson, 4 T. R. 439. The general rule is that the public have a right of fishing in a navi-

The soil of the sea-shore belongs to the Crown, but it may be in a subject (x).

Proof of the very act of fishing in the locus in quo, is evidence of the right, although it be not proved that fish were actually caught (y).

Former verdict.

It has been seen that a verdict for the defendant in a former action, for diverting water from his mill, is evidence, but not conclusive, for the defendant in a second action (z).

So a verdict for the plaintiff, in an action for obstructing his barges in a navigable river, is strong, but not conclusive, evidence, in an action for a similar obstruction (a).

As to the liability of one having frontage land to face against the sea, see Callis on Sewers (b).

Competency.

Where issue is joined on a traverse, that a stream of water has from time immemorial been accustomed to flow in a specified course, one who claims a right of water, which depends upon the prescription alleged, is it seems incompetent as a witness, upon the same principle that a commoner cannot by his evidence support a custom beneficial to himself; but it is otherwise where a right of water is claimed by prescription as appurtenant to a particular messuage (c).

Defence.

Where the plaintiff's father had given a parol licence to the defendants to erect certain weirs, and to lower the bank of a river, whereby less quantities of water ran down to the plaintiff's mill, which proving injurious, the father had after a lapse of five years represented it to the defendants, and required them to restore the banks to the former level, which the latter gable river, where the tide flows and reflows; and according to Lord Hale, "If any one will appropriate a privilege to himself, the proof lieth on his side." Lord Fitzwalter's Case, 1 Mod. 105. A man may prescribe for a several fishery in a navigable river without showing a grant from the Crown (Rogers v. Allen, 1 Camp. 312); and a several fishery in a navigable river is divisible; it may be abandoned to the public as to the taking of floating fish, and preserved as to the dredging for oysters. Ibid. An user of the banks of a river by fishermen for more than twenty years, with evidence of their having levelled and improved the landing place, affords presumptive evidence of a grant to the lessees of the fishery in a public navigable river. Gray v. Bond, 2 B. & B. 667. Although both the fishery and landing place once belonged to the same person, ib.; and although there was no evidence to show that the former owner, or those who claimed under him, knew that the shore had been so used.

(x) See the judgment of Holroyd, J. in Blundell v. Catterall, 5 B. & A. 29. The shore is that which is contained between high and low water marks, at ordinary tides, that is to say, between the ordinary flux and reflux of the sea. Seeus, by the civil law. Per Lord Hale, as cited by Holroyd, J. in Blundell v. Catterall, 5 B. & A. 291. An appropriation by any subject of any part of the sea-shore, even below low-water, though it be but temporary, and no nuisance, without the King's grant or licence, is a purprestnre and intrusion on the King's soil, which he may demolish or seize at his pleasure. Per Hale, C. B. See 5 B. & A. 291. The above definition of the extent of the sea-shore is not very clear, the proper limit between the shore and the land, seems on principle to be the average limit of spring tides.

(y) Patrick v. Greenway, 1 Will. Saund. 346, b. Hence it has been said that the very act of fishing is sufficient damage to support an action for disturbance of the plaintiff's right (Ibid.) For wherever an act injures another's right, and would be evidence in favour of the wrong-doer, an action may be maintained for an invasion of the right, without proof of any specific injury. Ibid. And see Wells v. Watling, 2 Bl. R. 1283; Hobson v. Todd, 4 T. R. 71; and the above case of Patrick v. Greenway. Note, that in the last case the action was in trespass.

(z) Vooght v. Winch, 2 B. & A. 662; supra, 959; and Vol. I. tit. JUDGMENT.

(a) P. C. Miles v. Rose, 5 Taunt. 705.

(b) Frontage is where the grounds of any man do join with the brow or front thereof to the sea, or to great and rapid streams, and it seems that the frontages are bound to the repairs, Callis, 115, whether in possession or not. Payne v. Rogers, 2 H. B. 349. And see Chawley v. Winstanley, 5 East, 266; Perreau v. Bevan, 5 B. & C. 284.

(c) Jebb v. Povey, 2 Esp. C. 679; supra, 319.

however refused to do; held, that such licence being only a relinquishment of the use of the quantities of water which he had formerly enjoyed, and not a transfer of any right or interest, and in consequence of which the defendants had incurred expense in doing the act to which the consent was given, it could not be retracted, and that no action was maintainable for the refusal to reinstate the premises, or for continuance of the works (c). In an action by the reversioner for not repairing a watercourse, it was held to be no defence that the injury was occasioned by the wrongful act of the defendant's own tenant, for which the defendant might have maintained an action against him (d).

WAY (e).

In an action for an injury by obstructing the plaintiff's enjoyment of a right of way, it is incumbent on him to prove (f) the right of way claimed (g), and 2dly, the obstruction.

A right of way exists either by prescription or grant, or other agreement, or license, or from necessity (h). And the evidence is either direct, by proof of an existing grant (i), or presumptive.

(c) Liggins v. Inge, 7 Bing. 682.

(d) Egremont v. Pulman, 1 Mood. & M. 404.

(e) Where by a local Act parties were empowered to lay roads across and along any roads mentioned in the Act, subject to the keeping in repair such roads for 20 yards on each side of the railway, it was held, that it did not extend to cases where there were not 20 yards of road on each side, and (semble) only to cases of crossing roads directly or in a slanting course, and not to a continuous course, by the side of a public turnpike road, and that the supposed greater convenience to the public by the use of the railroad, upon payment of the authorized tolls, did not render it less an indictable nuisance in the case of an actual obstruction of the old turnpike road, supposing such railway legally made under the Act. R. v. Morris, 1 B. & Ad. 441. Qu. if upon the expiration of the Act it could have been legally continued? By a private Act of Parliament a water company is empowered to break up the soil and pavement of roads, highways, footways, common streets, lanes, alleys and public places. The word footway is explained by the context, and gives no authority to enter a private field of the plaintiff, over which there is a public footway. Scales v. Pickering, 4 Bing. 448.

(f) That is in case of a denial on the part of the defendant according to the new rules. See tit. Rules.

(g) The onus of proof lies of course on the claimant. Jackson v. Hesketh, 2 Starkie's C. 518. Ballard v. Dyson, 1 Taunt. 279. Jackson v. Stacy, Holt's C. 455. In case for obstructing the plaintiff's right of way, claimed under a lease of the premises from the defendant, held that it was for the jury to find the state of the premises at the time of granting the lease, and for the Court then to put a construction on the terms of the lease in respect of the way granted, and declarations of the parties before and after are inadmissible; where it is uncertain which of two ways is meant, parol evidence is admissible. Where the way granted lies over the land of third persons, and there is no other, the lessee is entitled to pass across the grantor's land by the shortest way to the public highway, as a way of necessity; and where it is a private way, the grantor is bound to make it. Osborn v. Wise, 7 C. & P. 761.

(h) Infra, 1256.

(i) A lease of a house and land adjoining, with all ways, with the said premises, or any part thereof, used or enjoyed before, entitles the lessee to a right of way which a tenant of the whole of the yard, before and at the time of the lease, used and enjoyed to every part of the yard. Kooystra v. Lucas, 5 B. & A. 830.

If a man seised of Blackacre and Whiteacre, uses a way through Whiteacre to Blackacre, and then afterwards grants Blackacre with all ways, &c., the way through Whiteacre will pass to the lessee (Com. Dig. tit. Chemin, D. 3). So if he be seised of two acres, to which a way is appurtenant, and grants one acre with all ways, &c. the way will be granted (Clarke v. Cogge, Cro. Jac. 121, 122. 170; 6 Mod. 3). So if a lessor having used convenient ways over adjoining land during his own occupation, demise premises with all ways appurtenant, unless it be shown in evidence that there was some way appurtenant in alieno solo to satisfy the words of the grant, the ways shall pass although they be miscalled appurtenant, the easement having been destroyed by unity of possession. Morris v. Egginton, 3 Taunt. 24. But where one seised in fee of the adjoining closes A. and B., over the former of which a way had been immemorially used to the latter, devised B. with the appurtenances, it was held that the devisee could not claim the Proof of title.

The nature of the presumptive evidence requisite to prove a right of way by prescription (k) or grant (l), over the lands of another, has already been considered. The general rule, it has been seen, is, that an uninterrupted enjoyment of such an easement for the space of twenty years, unanswered and unexplained, affords presumptive evidence of title (m); a presumption which may be repelled by evidence which accounts for the possession, without resorting to a title by grant or otherwise.

Long user, even during the occupation of tenants, is a ground for presuming the knowledge and acquiescence of the owner (n).

Where there is conflicting evidence as to enjoyment for twenty years, circumstances being shown which are inconsistent with the existence of a deed, it is a question for the jury to decide whether in fact such a grant was ever made (o).

right of way over A., for the old way was extinguished by unity of possession, and no new way was created. Whalley v. Thomson, 3 B. & P. 371.

A grant of a free and convenient way for the purpose of carrying coals, gives a right to lay a framed waggon-way (Senhouse v. Christian, 1 T. R. 560). But a grant of a way from A. to B. in, through, and along a particular way, does not justify the grantee in making a transverse road. (Ibid.) A right to repair is incident to a grant of a way. 1 Saund. 323. Gerrard v. Cooke, 2 N. R. 109.

Where a private Act of Parliament for inclosing the waste lands of a manor reserved to the lord all mines, together with all convenient and necessary ways then already made, or thereafter to be made, with liberty of making waggon-ways at his free will and pleasure, and to do such other acts as might be necessary for the full and complete enjoyment thereof, in as full, ample and beneficial a manner as if that Act had not been made, in an action of trespass against an assignee of the lord, for making a way, it was held, that the question for the jury was not whether the road had been made in the direction and in the manner least injurious to the owner of an allotment, or in that direction or by that mode which a strict necessity would have pointed out; but whether the direction chosen has been such as a person of reasonable and ordinary skill and experience would have selected beforehand, and whether the mode adopted has been such as a prudent and rational person would have adopted if he had been making a road over his own land, and not over the land of another. Abson v. Fenton, 1 B. & C. 195. A lease of premises describes them as abutting on an intended way, thirty feet wide, not then set out, the soil of which was the property of the lessor; the lessee grants an under-lease, describing the premises as abutting on an intended way, without specifying the breadth; the sub-lessee is entitled to a convenient way only. Harding v. Wilson, 2 B. & C. 96. A. granted to B. land of unequal breadth, described as abutting on a road on his own soil. It abutted on the broadest part of the road, but in the narrowest part of it a narrow strip of the grantor's land intervened between the road and the premises granted; and it was held that the grantor, and those claiming under him, were concluded from preventing the grantee from coming out into the road over this slip of land. Roberts v. Kar, 1 Taunt. 495. In Barlow v. Rhodes, 1 C. & M. 449, Bayley, J. held that the case of Morris v. Egginton depended wholly on the principle of necessity. And see Plant v. James, 5 B. & Ad. 791. The latter case went on the principle that the grantee of the soil could not be grantee of a way over part of the land granted. It seems that a map indorsed on the particulars of sale, is not evidence, after a conveyance of land sold by deed, to show that the road was intended to pass under the terms of all ways appurtenant, the way not being appurtenant in the strict legal sense of the term. Barlow v. Rhodes, 1 C. & M. 449.

(k) Supra, tit. PRESCRIPTION. A verdict finding a prescriptive right of way may be supported, although the close to which it is claimed was within thirty years parcel of a common enclosed by Act of Parliament; for the lord might have had such a way for himself and his tenants. Codling v. Johnson, 9 B. & C. 933.

(l) Supra, 526. A right claimed by reason of the possession of a close, from that close along a watercourse to a navigable river, is not supported by evidence of the user of a way by the occupier of an inn and yard, held as one entire subject, from which yard the plaintiff's close had recently been taken off. Bower v. Hill, 2 Scott, 535. And qu. whether the right as alleged for plaintiff and his servants to pass and repass in boats, &c. is supported by evidence of goods brought along the watercourse, but not in boats belonging to the occupier, or navigated by his servants?

(m) Supra, 526; Campbell v. Wilson, 3 East, 294. Supra, 913, note (z).

(n) Davies v. Stephens, 7 C. & P. 570.

(o) Liett v. Wilson, 3 Bing. 115; where the usage had during the twenty years been interrupted.

Proof of title.

The effect of enjoyment as evidence of title is now subject to the important alterations made on this branch of the law by the stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71 (p).

Where the right is claimed ex necessitate, it is of course essential to prove the particular facts and circumstances which in point of law support such a right, as that the claimant purchased land to which there is no access but over the land of the vendor, for then the law implies a grant of a right of way ex necessitate (q).

So also, where one having three closes sells the two extremes, a road to the middle one is reserved by operation of law (r).

If a man having a right of way over the close A., for the occupation of his close B., purchase an adjoining close C., he cannot use the way for the occupation of the latter close (s).

Evidence of the user of a road tends only to proof of a right commensurate with the usage (t).

A right to use the way for carts and horses only, will not justify the use of the way as a drift-road for cattle (u), although proof of usage of the way for carts and horses may, coupled with circumstances, afford evidence of a drift-way (x).

So a right of way for agricultural purposes will not justify the party in using it for a lime quarry newly opened (y).

The grantee of a private way over the lands of another may maintain an action on the case for obstructing the way, although the public have used it for the last thirteen years (z).

In trespass quare clausum fregit, on issue taken on a right of way in the occupiers of a close enjoyed for twenty years, for horses, carts, waggons, and carriages (under the stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71), the plaintiff may, without a new assignment, show that the right was limited to the use of the way

(p) See tit. PRESCRIPTION, 919. In support of a plea of right of way, under the stat. 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 2, evidence of a user more than forty years back is admissible. Lawson v. Langley, 4 Ad. & Ell. 890.

(q) Howton v. Frearson, 8 T. R. 50. Even although the vendor was but a trustee. Ib.; and see Roberts v. Kar, 1 Taunt. 495.

(r) Per cur. Clarke v. Cogge, Cro. J. 270; 2 Roll. Ab. pl. 60, pl. 17. Howton v. Frearson, 8 T. R. 50. A person having a private way cannot justify going over the land adjoining. Taylor v. Whitehead, Doug. 744. Bullard v. Harrison, 4 M. & S. 387.

A way of necessity exists after an unity of possession, which would otherwise have extinguished the way, and a subsequent severance. Buckby v. Coles, 5 Taunt. 311. Where the right is pleaded ex necessitate, the circumstances ought to be pleaded. Pomfret v. Ricroft, 1 Saund. 323 (o). But such a way is limited by the necessity which created it. Where, at a subsequent period, a party formerly entitled to a way of necessity, could approach the place to which it led by as direct a course over his own land, it was held that the way by reason of necessity ceased. Holmes v. Goring, 9 Moore, 166; 2 Bing. 76. Where there is a private road through a farm, a parson may use it for carrying away his tithe, though there is a public road equally convenient. Cole v. Selby, 6 Esp. C. 303.

(s) Laughton v. Wards, Lutw. 111. If a person has a way through a close in a particular direction, and he afterwards purchase other closes adjoining, he cannot extend the way to those closes; 1 Roll. 391; 1 Mod. 190.

(t) See Ballard v. Dyson, 1 Taunt. 279. Laughton v. Wards, Lutw. 111; and see R. v. Lyon, 1 R. & M. 151. The user of a road with horses, carts and carriages, for certain purposes, does not prove a right for all purposes; but the extent of the right is a question for the jury under all the circumstances. Cowling v. Higginson, 4 M. & W. 245.

(u) 1 Taunt. 279.

(x) Ballard v. Dyson, 1 Taunt. 279.

(y) Jackson v. Stacey, Holt's C. 455; cor. Wood, B. So a right of way to a particular close, will not enable a party to use it for the occupation of another newly purchased close. Laughton v. Wards, Lutw. 111. And see Howell v. King, 1 Mod. 190; 1 Roll. 391. Cowling v. Higginson, 4 M. & W. 245.

(z) Allen v. Ormond, 8 East, 4.

Proof of title.

for certain purposes only (a). In all such cases the extent of the right is for the consideration of the jury (b).

But no action will lie against the inhabitants of a parish or county in respect of an injury sustained from the non-repair of a road or bridge (c).

Variance.

As in pleading a right of private way, the nature of the way (d), and also the termini (e), must be described; a variance in these respects, on issue taken on the right, will be fatal (f).

An allegation that a cottage, to which a right of way is claimed as appurtenant, is in the possession and occupation of the plaintiff, is satisfied by evidence that one part is occupied by his servant, although he receives less wages on account of his occupation, and although other part is let to a tenant (g).

So an averment, that the defendant being seised of a copyhold, used the way, includes an using of the way as landlord, and in order to assert his right in that character, although the copyhold was in the occupation of a tenant; for it comprehends all purposes for which a landlord seised of the tenement may lawfully use the way, to view waste, demand rent, or to remove an obstruction (h).

Where issue is taken on a prescriptive right, claimed as appurtenant to an ancient messuage, the defendant is not bound to prove his occupation of the messuage, but is entitled to a verdict, on proof of the prescription as claimed, although the messuage is in the occupation of a tenant, and although the defendant is the occupier of a new house, and has used the road for the purposes of such occupation (i); for by traversing the prescription, the seisin of the defendant, as alleged, is admitted, and the right only is put in issue (k).

If the plaintiff intended to deny the seisin, he ought to have traversed it; if he meant to insist that the occupation was in another, he ought to have replied the fact, admitting the seisin (l); if he intended to contest the right

(a) Cowling v. Higginson, 4 M. & W. 245.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Russel v. Men of Devon, 2 T. R. 667. Where a Dock Company was authorised by an Act of Parliament to make a swing-bridge across a public highway, by the opening of which the public were delayed, it was held that a party seeking damages for such delay must show that it was unnecessary; and that if the company had done all that was reasonable, availing themselves of such means as they ought, they were not liable. Wiggins v. Boddington, 3 C. & P. 544.

(d) Allan v. Brownsall, Yel. 163. For being granted for particular purposes the justification must show that they were used for those purposes. Per Wilson, J. in Rouse v. Bardin, 1 H. B. 351. Secus, in case of a public way. Browne v. Aspinwall, 3 T. R. 265. A plea of a highway for all the King's subjects, &c. to pass, &c. at pleasure, paying a certain toll, is not inconsistent or contradictory. Sutcliffe v. Greenwood, 8 Price, 535. And see Bolt v. Stennett, 8 T. R. 606; 2 Will. Saund. 158, note (4). Where in an indictment the way was stated to be "for all the liege subjects, &c., with their horses, coaches, carts and carriages;" and it appeared that some carts loaded in a particular manner could not pass, it was held to be no variance. R. v. Lyon, B. & M. 151. A plea of a public footway over plaintiff's close, has been held to be supported by evidence tending to establish a carriage-way, and the existence of a gate across is not inconsistent with the reservation of keeping it to prevent cattle straying. Davies v. Stephens, 7 C. & P. 570.

(e) Rouse v. Bardin, 1 H. B. 351; 2 Leon. 10; 10 Hob. 190. Secus, in the case of a public highway, 1 H. B. 351.

(f) Supra, 521; and see Append. 1258. In pleading a prescriptive right of way, it is not necessary to describe all the closes intervening between the two termini. Simpson v. Lewthwaite, 3 B. & Ad. 226.

(g) Bertie v. Beaumont, 16 East, 33. See R. v. Stock, 2 Taunt. 339.

(h) Proud v. Hollis, 1 B. & C. 8.

(i) Stott v. Stott, 16 East, 343.

(k) Ibid.

(l) The Court held in the same case, on motion in arrest of judgment, that the allegation of seisin, primâ facie implied occupation, unless the contrary were shown in pleading.

of the defendant to use the road as a way to the new house, he ought to have admitted the claim, and pleaded that the trespass complained of was committed extra viam (m). Variance.

Where it appeared that both of two defendants were present at the time of opening a communication (complained of), and claiming to do so as of right, and one of them afterwards committed an act of diversion, it was held to be a question for the jury, whether the other did not concur, although he was not present (n).

Unity of possession of the land to which the way is claimed as appurtenant, with the land over which the way lies, extinguishes the way; for it is an answer to the prescription, and the way is against common right (o). The cutting down of trees by the side of a way, is evidence to prove a right of soil in the way (p). Defence.

By the rules of Hilary Term, 4 W. 4, in an action on the case for obstructing a right of way, the plea of the general issue will operate as a denial of the obstruction only, and not of the plaintiff's right of way.

Trespass qu. cl. freg., plea, a right of way, replication that the defendant used the way under the plaintiff's leave and licence, the plaintiff is bound to show a licence co-extensive with the right claimed by the plea, and admitted by the replication; the replication is not sustained by evidence of a limited one (q).

As to evidence of a public highway, see tit. HIGHWAY (r).

A surveyor is not justified in removing a fence in front of a house to widen a road (not more than twenty-four feet in breadth) which is not on the highway (s).

(m) 16 East, 343.

(n) Drewett v. Sheard, 7 C. & P. 465.

(o) 1 Roll. Ab. 935; 3 T. R. 157; 5 East, 295. Whalley v. Thomson, 1 B. & P. 371. Buckby v. Coles, 5 Taunt. 311. Claim of preseriptive right of way from the close A. over the defendant's close D. unto the village of Annesley; it appeared in evidence that the way claimed was from A. over the defendant's close B., and from thence over the defendant's close C., and from thence over the close D., and from thence into Annesley; and that the owner of the close A. had about eighteen years, being also owner of the close D., conveyed it to a stranger in fee, without reserving any right of way; and it was held that the right of way over D. was thereby extinguished, and consequently that an action did not lie against the defendant for obstructing the plaintiff's passage by putting up a gate on one of his own closes. Wright v. Rattray, 1 East, 377.

In Sloman v. West, Palm. 387; 1 Roll. R. 397, Doderidge, J. said, that if a man had a right of way from his house to church, and the close next his house over which the way leads is his own, he cannot prescribe for a right of way from his house to the church, because he cannot prescribe for a right of way over his own land. Ley, C. J. and Chamberlayne, J. differed from him; but Lord Kenyon, in Wright v. Rattray, approved of Mr. J. Doderidge's opinion, saying that he was a whole host in himself.

In Jackson v. Shillito, Trin. 32 Geo. 3, K. B. cited in Wright v. Rattray, 1 East, 377, the defendant in trespass quare clausum fregit, prescribed for an occupation-way from his own close, into, through and over the locus in quo to and unto a certain highway, &c. and it appeared that one of the several intervening closes was in the possession of the defendant himself; it was held by the Court of C. B. (contrary to the opinion of Lord Kenyon at the trial), that it was sufficient. But there (per Lord Kenyon, 1 East, 381) the defendant had in fact a right to go the whole line of road; whereas in Wright v. Rattray, he had no right to go part of the road claimed. And in Wright v. Rattray Lord Kenyon seems to have been of opinion that it would have been sufficient if the plaintiff had merely claimed a right of way over the defendant's close towards Annesley. See Append. Vol. ii. 916.

See further as to extinguishment of a way, R. v. Tippet, 3 B. & A. 193; supra, tit. PRESCRIPTION.

(p) Doe v. Pearsay, 7 B. & C. 304; and see above, tit. TRESPASS.

(q) Colchester v. Roberts, 4 M. & W. 769.

(r) Where the public had used an unpaved and unfinished street for four or five years, it was held that the jury were warranted in presuming a dedication to the public. Jarvis v. Dean, 3 Bing. 447.

(s) Lowen v. Kaye, 4 B. & C. 3; under the stat. 13 Geo. 3, c. 78, ss. 6 & 64.

Defence.

Toll cannot be claimed for passage along a public highway or canal, unless the right to demand it be given in clear and unambiguous terms (t).

The defendant may show that the plaintiff has abandoned the right of way, by acquiescing in an obstruction for the space of twenty years (u).

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

See 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 49; 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 63.

WILLS (x).

Statute of Frauds.

As the important alterations on the law of devises and bequests do not supersede the existing law, in respect of such as have been made before 1st January 1838, it has been deemed advisable to treat, in the first place, of the law as it stood before the statute, and then to notice the alterations which have been made.

By the enactment of the Statute of Frauds, 29 C. 2, c. 3, s. 5, all devises and bequests of any lands or tenements, devisable either by the Statute of Wills (y), or by force of the custom of Kent, or the custom of any borough, or any other particular custom, shall be in writing, and signed by the party so devising the same, or by some other person in his presence, and by his express direction, and shall be attested and subscribed in the presence of the said devisor, by three or four credible witnesses; or else they shall be utterly void, and of none effect.

Production of the will.

In order, therefore, to prove a devise of lands according to the forms prescribed by the statute, it is necessary in the first place to produce the will itself, or to prove its former existence and destruction, or that it is withheld by the adversary after notice to produce it, according to the ordinary course of proving a written document (z).

(t) Where a canal is made pursuant to Act of Parliament, the right of the proprietors to toll is derived entirely from the Act, and is to be considered as if there was a bargain between them and the public, the terms of which are expressed by the statute; and the rule of construction is, that any ambiguity in the terms of the contract must operate against the company of the adventurers, and in favour of the public. The proprietors therefore can claim nothing which is not clearly given to them by the Act. The Proprietors of of the Stourbridge Canal v. Wheeley and others, 2 B. & Ad. 792. By a turnpike Act a certain toll was to be taken at every turnpike on the road from W. to O., for four horses drawing any carriage, &c.; a subsequent section provided that no person should pay toll more than once in the same day for passing and repassing with the same horses or carriages through any of the turnpikes, but that every person, after having paid toll once, and produeing a ticket, should pass with the same horses and carriages toll-free during each day. Held, that a second toll was payable for passing on the same day two toll-gates on the road, with the same carriage, but drawn by different horses; for that the clause imposing the toll was clear, and the exempting clause either meant that the horses should be the same, or was too ambiguous to control the previous enactment. Hopkins v. Thorogood, 2 B. & Ad. 916. See above, 85.

(u) Bower v. Hill, 1 Bing. N. C. 553. But where the plaintiff had a right to pass along a drain to a river, it was held that the circumstance of the drain having been in one part impassable for the space of sixteen years, afforded no defence to the erection of a permanent obstruction lower down in the drain, in the defendant's land.

(x) As to proof of a will of personalty, vide supra, tit. EXECUTOR; for proof of a will of copyhold, vide supra, tit. COPYHOLD. Where a feme covert and her husband surrender to the use of her will, she must be examined separately. Driver v. Thomson, 4 Taunt. 295; and no special custom to that effect is necessary. Doe v. Clifford, York Sum. Ass. 1821, cor. Bayley, J. She ought to be examined before the steward of the Court. 4 Taunt. 294. Erish v. Rivers, Cro. Eliz. 717. But an examination before two tenants of the manor is good by custom. Ibid.

(y) 32 Hen. 8, c. 1, explained by stat. 34 Hen. 8, c. 5.

(z) Supra, Vol. I. tit. PRIVATE ENTRIES.

When the will has been lost, the probate of the will in the Spiritual Court is not admissible, even as secondary evidence of the contents (a), without proof aliunde that it is a true copy. For the Spiritual Court has no authority to authenticate a will of lands, and the seal of the Court does not prove it to be a true copy, except so far as relates to personal property (b); it must be proved by one at least of the attesting witnesses (c), if any be living, that the will was signed by the devisor, or by some one in his presence, and by his express directions. Production of the will.

It has been doubted whether it be sufficient that the testator should seal the will (d). But according to the later authorities, mere sealing without writing is insufficient; for the evidence arising from the hand-writing affords greater security and certainty than that arising from sealing (e). Signature.

As evidence of the actual hand-writing of the party affords a more effectual guard against fraud than the mere impression of a seal, the identity of which may be in itself doubtful (f), or which, if the identity be proved, may have been made by another without authority, it is impossible to suppose that the Legislature did not mean to require an actual signature.

It is sufficient if the testator sign his name at the beginning or side of a will, for the statute does not require him to subscribe it (g), as where he writes the will himself, beginning, I, A. B. (h). But where the will consisted of several sheets, and the testator signed two of them, but from weakness could not sign the rest, the Court of King's Bench was of opinion that the will was incomplete (i).

But where the will, which was written on three sides of a sheet of paper, concluded by stating that the testator had signed his name to the first two sides, and had put his hand and seal to the last, and in fact he had put his name and seal to the last, but had omitted to sign the other sides, it was held that the will was good, the signing the last sheet showed that the former intention had been abandoned (k).

It was held to be unnecessary, even where the testator was blind, that the will should be read over in the presence of the attesting witnesses (l). But it was then said, that stronger evidence would be required in the case of a

(a) 1 Lord Raym. 731, 2; Skinn. 174; supra, Vol. I. Neither is an exemplification under the great seal evidence of a will. Comb. 46.

(b) B. N. P. 246. But in an anonymous case, R. T. Holt, 298, where a defendant in replevin avowed for a rent-charge, but could not produce the will under which he claimed, and which belonged to the devisee in fee, the Ordinary's register of the will, and proof of former payments, were held to be sufficient evidence against the devisee.

(c) Infra, 1264.

(d) See Lemayne v. Stanley, 3 Lev. 1. By three of the Judges a sealing was held to be sufficient; so by Lord Raymond, at Nisi Prius. Warneford v. Warneford, 2 Str. 764. And see Lord Holt's dictum, Lee v. Libb, 1 Show. 68; and Gryle v. Gryle, 2 Atk. 79; Bac. Ab. tit. Wills, D. 2.

(e) Lord Hardwicke, in Grayson v. Atkinson, 2 Ves. 459, observed, "The statute, by requiring the will to be signed, undoubtedly required some evidence to arise from the hand-writing. Then how can it be said that putting a seal to it would be a sufficient signing? For any one may put a seal; no particular evidence arises from sealing. Common seals are alike; no certainty or guard arises from them." And see Smith v. Evans, 1 Wils. 313. Ellis v. Smith, 1 Ves. jun. 11; 17 Ves. 458; 18 Ves. 175.

In Lemayne v. Stanley, 3 Lev. 1, it was held that it was not necessary to write, for some cannot write, and their mark is then sufficient signing; others have their name on a stamp, and that is good enough.

(f) See Grayson v. Atkinson, 2 Ves. 459; 17 Ves. 458; 18 Ves. 175.

(g) Hilton v. King, 3 Lev. 86; 9 Ves. 248. Townsend v. Pearce, Vin. Ab. tit. Devise, R. 4, pl. 3, p. 142; 1 P. W. 343.

(h) Lemayne v. Stanley, 3 Lev. 1; 3 Mod. 219.

(i) Right d. Cator v. Price, Doug. 241.

(k) Winsor v. Pratt, 2 B. & B. 650.

(l) Longchamp v. Fish, 2 N. R. 415.

blind man than the mere attestation of signature, which stronger evidence had been supplied by the circumstances of that case (m).

Attestation.

That it was attested and subscribed, &c.—Although proof be essential that the will was attested by the witnesses in the presence of the testator, it is not necessary that such attestation should be stated on the face of the will (n). The attestation of an illiterate witness, by making his mark, is a sufficient subscription (o).

And although the witnesses must attest and subscribe the will in the presence of the devisor, it is not necessary that they should do so in the presence of each other (p); neither is it necessary that the witnesses should see the devisor sign the will, provided he acknowledged his signature in their presence (q). Where the devisor, having executed his will in the presence of two witnesses, afterwards showed it to a third, and showed him his name, and told him it was his hand-writing, and desired him to witness it, which he did, it was held that the will was well executed (r).

Manner of attestation.

In the case of Peate v. Ougly (s), the testator wrote the will himself, and signed his name, and put a seal at the bottom, and added, in his own hand-writing, "signed, sealed and published as my last will and testament, in the presence of ——." Two of the witnesses were dead, and the third swore, that about twenty-eight years before, being servant to the testator, he and the other witnesses were called up in the night and ordered into the testator's chamber, who produced a paper folded up, and directed him and the others to set their hands to it as witnesses, which they did, in his presence; but the witnesses did not see any of the writing, nor did the testator say it was his will, or what it was, but he believed this to be the paper, because he never witnessed any other paper for the testator; and added, that though the testator did not set his name or seal to the will in their presence, yet he had often seen him write, and believed the whole will and codicil to be of his hand-writing. Lord Chief Justice Trevor thought the evidence sufficient for the jury to find the will well executed, and they found accordingly.

(m) The terms of the will had been dictated by the testator to Davis (who was afterwards one of the attesting witnesses), and was made in favour of a step-daughter, who lived with the testator, to the disinherison of his son. After the will had been written, it was read over, by the desire of the testator, in the presence of the step-daughter and several other persons present. A copy was made, and two months after, the testator made an alteration in it, and perfectly understood what he was doing.

(n) Croft d. Dalby v. Pawlet, Vin. Ab. tit. Devise, N. 9; Bac. Ab. tit. Wills, D. 2. Price v. Smith, Willes, R. 1; 4 Taunt. 217. And per Ld. Eldon, Rancliffe v. Parkyns, 6 Dow, 202.

(o) Harrison v. Harrison, 8 Ves. jun. 185; Addy v. Grix, Ibid. 504.

(p) Smith v. Codron, cited 2 Ves. 455; Grayson v. Atkinson, 2 Ves. 454; Jones v. Lake, cited 2 Atk. 177. See Stonehouse v. Evelyn, 3 P. Wms. 253. Westbroke v. Kennedy, 1 Ves. & B. 362. Ellis v. Smith, 1 Ves. jun. 11.

(q) Smith v. Codron, cited 2 Ves. 455. Stonehouse & Ux. v. Evelyn, 3 P. Wms. 253. Grayson v. Atkinson, 2 Ves. 454; Bac. Ab. tit. Wills, D. 2; 3 Mod. 218; 1 Show. 8, 69. It is not necessary that the witnesses should know the contents of the will, or that they should see the testator sign it. White v. Trustees of British Museum, 6 Bing. 310. See Ellis v. Smith, 1 Ves. jun. 11. Two of the attesting witnesses did not see the testator's signature, and only one knew what the paper was; held nevertheless to be a sufficient attestation. Wright v. Wright, 7 Bing. 457. Where, upon the facts stated in the special verdict, it appeared that the attesting witnesses signed the will in the testator's presence, but two of them without knowing the nature of the instrument, and neither of them saw the testator sign; held nevertheless that it was sufficiently attested within the statute. White v. British Museum Trustees, &c., 6 Bing. 310.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Comyns, 197.

Manner of attestation.

According to this case, it is not necessary either that the testator should acknowledge his signature in the presence of subscribing witnesses, or even that direct proof should be given that the testator's signature existed upon the will at the time of attestation, although in that case, the whole being in the hand-writing of the devisor, it was probable that the whole was written previous to the attestation. But it is to be observed, that where a testator, having signed in the presence of two witnesses, and afterwards in the presence of a third, said, This is my will, but did not put his seal, or acknowledge the hand-writing, Lord Hardwicke inclined to the opinion that the execution was imperfect. Yet in this case it was clear that the attestation of all the witnesses was subsequent to the signature by the devisor; whereas in the case of Peate v. Ougly it was possible that part might have been added after the attestation (t).

The execution of a codicil referring to a will is sufficient (u).

In presence of the testator.

In the presence of the Testator.—It is not necessary that the testator should actually see the witnesses sign the will; it is sufficient to show that he was so situated that he might have seen them do so (x). Where the testator desired the witnesses to go into another room, seven yards distant, to attest his will, and there was a window broken through which he might see them, the attestation was held to be sufficient (y). So where the testator is sick, or in bed, with his curtain drawn (z). So where the testatrix could see the witnesses through the window of her carriage, and of the attorney's office (a).

It is otherwise if the testator was so situated that he could not have seen the witnesses attest the will; as where they go down stairs into another room out of the testator's presence, and attest the will there (b).

Where the attesting witnesses retired from the room where the testator had signed, and subscribed their names in an adjoining room, and the jury found that from one part of the testator's room a person by inclining himself forward with his head out of the door, might have seen the witnesses, but that the testator was not in such a situation in the room that he might by so inclining his head have seen them, it was held that the will was not duly attested (c). So if the testator was in a state of insensibility at the time (d).

Attestation.

Where all the witnesses were dead, and the attestation stated that the will had been signed by the testator in the presence of the witnesses, without stating that they had subscribed the will in his presence, it was held that it might still be left to the jury to presume that fact (e).

Time. Identity.

It is of course essential that the formalities of the statute should apply to the same instrument. If different instruments be written on the same paper, and it appear to be the intention of the testator that all should constitute (t) See Stonehouse v. Evelyn, 3 P. Wms. 253; where the reporter says, that on mentioning the case of Peate v. Ougly to Mr. Justice Fortescue Aland, he said that it was sufficient if one of the three witnesses swore that the testator acknowledged the signature to be his hand; and hence Mr. Powell concludes it to be a necessary inference that such an acknowledgment at least is necessary to support the attestation. Powell's L. D. 80.

(u) Utturton v. Robins, 1 A. & E. 423.

(x) See Doe v. Manifold, 1 M. & S. 294. Todd v. Earl of Winchelsea, 1 Mal. & M. C. 12; 1 Salk. 688; Carth. 881.

(y) Shires v. Glasscock, 1 Salk. 668. See also the case of Sir G. Sheers, cited Carth. 81.

(z) Bac. Ab. tit. Wills, D. 1.

(a) Casson v. Dale, 1 Bro. Ch. R. 99. Davy v. Smith, 3 Salk. 395.

(b) Broderick v. Broderick, 1 P. Wms. 239.

(c) Doe d. Wright v. Manifold, 1 M. & S. 294. See further, Eccleston v. Speke, Carth. 79; Comb. 156; 1 Sho. 89; Holt, 222. Machell v. Temple, 2 Sho. 288; Longford v. Eyre, 1 P. Wms. 740.

(d) Cater v. Price, Doug. 241.

(e) Croft v. Pawlett, 2 Str. 1109.

Time. Identity.

one instrument, the execution of the last will may be considered as an execution of the whole (f), even although the testator term the prior instrument a will, and the latter a codicil (g). And whether the subscription belonged to both instruments would be a question of fact for the jury, under all the circumstances (h).

The testator wrote a will of lands, dated May 2, 1752, and signed it, but it was not sealed or attested; and afterwards wrote upon the same sheet of paper a memorandum, dated January 5, 1754, wherein, after disposing of some personalty, he added, "This is not to dissannul any of the former part made by me 2d of May 1752, except," &c. and subscribed the latter memorandum, and published the whole in the presence of three witnesses; the Court held that this was a good attestation of the whole (i).

If the will be written at one time on separate pieces of paper, and signed by the testator, and all are produced at the time of execution, it is sufficient if the last sheet be attested by the witnesses (k); but if the last sheet only be attested, and none of the witnesses ever saw the first, it is insufficient (l); but it may be presumed from circumstances that the whole were present. Where a testator made his will on two sheets of paper, and signed each, and also wrote a codicil on a single sheet, and showed the whole of the will and codicil to one witness, who attested both in his presence, and two other witnesses immediately afterwards came into the same room and attested the last sheet of the will and the codicil, but never saw the first sheet, and it was not on the table at the time; and both the sheets, and also the codicil, were found wrapped in the same paper, in the testator's bureau, after his death; the Court held that the jury ought to have been directed to presume that the first sheet was in the room (m).

Publication.

Publication, &c.—The statute is silent as to any delivery, publication, or any other formal act by which the testator is to signify his adoption of the instrument. Hence it seems that the very act of signing the will, and causing it to be attested by witnesses, in the manner pointed out by the statute, is sufficient.

Where the testator told the witnesses to take notice, and then signed the paper, and told them where to sign their names as witnesses, without saying what the instrument was, Denison, J. held it to be a sufficient execution. And the same point was decided by Trevor, C. J. (n). So a delivery of a will as a deed has been held to be a sufficient publication (o), even where the testator represented it to the witnesses to be a deed, and the form of attestation was "sealed and delivered" (p).

Credible witness.

Credible Witnesses.—It seems to have been held in general that an incompetent witness was not a credible witness. And in the case of Pendock v. Mackender (q), it was decided that one who had been convicted of petit larciny was an incompetent witness to a will; and in consequence the stat. 31 G. 2, c. 35, was passed, which made a witness competent notwithstanding such conviction.

(f) Carleton d. Griffin v. Griffin, 1 Burr. 549.
(g) Powell's L. D.; Peake's L. E. 388, 5th ed.
(h) See Lord Mansfield's observations, 1 Burr. 549.
(i) Carleton d. Griffin v. Griffin, 1 Burr. 549.
(k) Bond v. Seawell, 3 Burr. 1773; 1 Bl. R. 407.
(l) Lea v. Libb, 3 Mod. 262.
(m) Bond v. Seawell, 3 Burr. 1773; S. C. Bl. 407.
(n) In Peate v. Ougly, Comyns, 197.
(o) 8 Vin. Ab. 125, pl. 13.
(p) Trimmer v. Jackson, 4 Burn's Ecc. L. 117.
(q) 2 Wils. 18. The distinction between grand and petit larciny is now abolished. See Vol. I. tit. WITNESS.

Credible witness.

In general, a devisee or legatee under a will was incompetent (r); although a mere executor or trustee who took no beneficial interest under a will was held to be competent (s).

But a doubt prevailed whether the term credible related to the time of attestation, or to the time of proof.

In the case of Holdfast d. Austey v. Dowsing (t), Lee, C. J., in delivering the judgment of the Court, observed, that the time for ascertaining the credibility of the witness was the time of attestation.

In the case of Wyndham v. Chetwynd (u), it was held, that an attestation by a witness who was interested at the time of attestation, but whose interest was discharged before his testimony was required to establish the will, was valid. And it was held, that payment or a release, made an attesting witness credible within the meaning of the statute (x). The same doctrine was afterwards maintained by three of the Judges of the Common Pleas against the opinion of Pratt, C. J., in the case of Doe d. Hindson v. Kersey (y).

By the stat. 25 G. 2, c. 6, sec. 1, it is enacted, that if any person shall attest the execution of any will or codicil (z), to whom any beneficial devise, legacy, &c., except charges on lands, &c., for payment of any debt, shall be given or made, such devise, legacy, &c., shall be void, and such person shall be admitted as a witness to prove the execution of such will or codicil.

By sec. 2, it is provided, that a creditor whose debt is charged on lands, shall, notwithstanding such charge, be a competent witness.

By sec. 3, a witness whose legacy has been paid or accepted, and released, or who shall have refused to accept such legacy on tender made (a), shall be admitted as a witness, &c.

By sec. 5, a legatee dying in the lifetime of the testator, or before he shall have received, or released, or refused to receive his legacy, shall be a competent witness.

By sec. 6, it is provided, that the credit of every such witness shall (r) Hilyard v. Jennings, Carth. 514. Holdfast d. Austey v. Dowsing, Str. 1253; Hardr. 331; 2 Salk. 691. An executor who took nothing under the will was always held to be competent. Bettison v. Sir R. Bromley, 12 East, 250. Phipps v. Pitcher, 6 Taunt. 220. S. C. 1 Madd. 144.

(s) Bettison v. Bromley, 12 East, 250, where the wife of an acting executor, taking no beneficial interest under the will, was held to be a competent witness to prove sanity. So in Lowe v. Jolliffe, 1 Bl. R. 365, an executor in trust, who had acted under the will, was permitted to prove the testator's sanity. In Holt v. Tyrrell, 1 Barnard, K. B. 12, a trustee was holden to be a good witness without releasing. See also Goss v. Tracy, 1 P. W. s. 290, where a grantee, taking no beneficial interest under the will, was held to be competent to prove the execution of the deed to himself.

(t) 2 Str. 1253.

(u) 1 Burr. 417.

(x) Ibid.

(y) 4 Burn's Eccles. L. 88; Bac. Ab. tit. Wills, &c., D. 3. Infra, 1268.

(z) These words mean any such will or codicil, and do not extend to wills of personal estate; and therefore a legacy in a will of personal estate only, is not void because the legatee is attesting witness to the will. Emanuel v. Constable, 3 Russ. 436. Foster v. Barkins, 3 Sim. 40; and see Brett v. Brett, 3 Add. Ecc. Rep. 210; contra, Lees v. Summersgill, 17 Ves. 508.

(a) By sec. 4, such refusal shall bar his claim to such legacy; and after such acceptance the party shall retain the legacy, notwithstanding any defect in the will, &c.

Credible witness.

be subject to the consideration of the Court and jury, &c., as in all other cases.

But the statute does not extend to all interests created by a will. And it has lately been decided that one who is interested at the time of the execution of the will, but who discharges that interest previous to the time of his examination, is not a good witness (b).

One to whose wife the will gives an estate in fee after the determination of a life-estate, is not a good witness within the statute (c), although the wife dies after the death of the testator, before the determination of the life estate, and the witness survives the wife (d).

A witness who takes a pecuniary interest under a will is competent to prove the sanity of the testator, where the effect of the verdict would be to establish the will as to the real property only (e).

Where an attesting witness would take the same interest, either under a former will to which he was not a witness, or under a latter will, he stands indifferent in point of interest, and is a good witness to prove the latter will (f).

It is sufficient, in strictness of law, to call any one of the subscribing witnesses who on production of the will can swear to the execution of the will by the testator, and the subscription by the witnesses, in his presence, to that will (g). But whenever the will is disputed, all the attesting witnesses ought to be called; and upon an issue out of Chancery, on a bill filed by a devisee against the heir, that Court requires that they shall be called (h).

In the case of Doe d. Tatham v. Wright (i), one of the attesting witnesses

(b) Hatfield v. Thorp, 5 B. & A. 589.

(c) Ibid. In Doe d. Hindeson v. Kersey, 4 Burn's Ecc. L. 97, where lands were devised to trustees for the benefit of the poor, and two of the trustees, who were attesting witnesses, before the day of trial conveyed the tenements to other persons, a majority of the Court were of opinion that the will was sufficiently attested; but Lord Camden differed from the rest.

(d) 5 B. & A. 589.

(e) Doe v. Teage, 5 B. & C. 335.

(f) Lord Ailesbury's Case, 1 Burr. 427.

(g) Longford v. Eyre, 1 P. Wms. 741; B. N. P. 264. Loxee v. Jolliffe, 1 Bl. 365. Goodtitle d. Alexander v. Clayton, 1 Burr, 2224.

(h) Bootle v. Blundell, 1 Cooper C. R. 136. In a suit for establishing a will in the Exchequer, proof of the attestation of one of the witnesses only, without proof that the others are dead or abroad, is insufficient. Wood v. Stane, 8 Price, 613. And where on a bill filed by the heir-at-law against the devisee, an issue is directed by a Court of Equity to try the validity of the will, the defendant claiming as devisee is not bound to call all the witnesses. Wright v. Tatham.

(i) Wright v. Doe d. Tatham, 1 Ad. & El. 3. The Court, in coming to this conclusion, held, in the first place, that the evidence given by the deceased witness on the former trial was admissible, both on the general principle that the trial was substantially between the same parties, and also because a rule of Court had been entered into containing an agreement between the parties, that the short-hand writer's notes and the Judge's notes of the evidence upon the former trial should be read in evidence on the subsequent trial, as to such witnesses as should be dead or beyond sea, and that it was not open to the plaintiff to dispute the reading of the evidence of a deceased witness on the former trial: the Court further held, that such evidence being direct and immediate evidence in the cause, was evidence producible for the same purpose, and to the same extent, as if the witness himself had been alive and sworn, and given the same evidence. The learned Judge, Tindal, C. J., then proceeded to give judgment as follows; "It is objected on the part of the plaintiff below, first, that the admitting of this evidence is in contravention of the rule of law, by which the best evidence is required to be given in every case; for it is contended, that the vivâ voce evidence of Proctor, the surviving witness, is better evidence than the examination of having been examined on the part of the defendant, to prove the execution of a will upon the trial of an issue of devisavit vel non, directed by the Court of Chancery, in a suit by the lessor of the plaintiff against the defendant and others; and the witness, as well as another witness to the will, being since dead, it was held that the testimony given by the witness was admissible, and was sufficient to establish the will, although a third witness still survived. Credible witness.

The rule dispensing with the proof of deeds above thirty years old, applies equally to the case of wills, although an attesting witness be proved to be alive (k).

Where the hand-writing of two of the subscribing witnesses was proved and no account could be given of the third, and the will was thirty years old, the testator himself having died above twenty years before, the proof was held to be sufficient (l).

Although an attesting witness swear against his own attestation, he may nevertheless be contradicted, and the will may be established by means of Secondary evidence.

Bleasdale, who is dead. But we think this argument assumes the very point in dispute. If the evidence which had been offered of the execution of the will had consisted simply in proving the hand-writing of Bleasdale, one of the attesting witnesses, which would have been the legitimate mode of proving the attestation by him after his death, it might indeed have been objected, with some ground of reason, that such evidence could not be the best whilst another of the attesting witnesses was still alive, and within the jurisdiction of the Court; for in that case the proof of the hand-writing only would have done no more than raise the presumption that he witnessed all that the law requires for the due execution of a will; whereas the surviving witness would have been able to give direct proof whether all the requisites of the statute had been observed or not: such direct testimony, therefore, might fairly be considered as evidence of a better and higher nature than mere presumption arising from the proof of the witness's hand-writing, stabitur præsumptioni donec probetur in contrarium. The effect, however, of Bleasdale's examination is not merely to raise a presumption; it is evidence as direct to the point in issue, and as precise in its nature and quality, as that of Proctor when called in person; it is direct evidence of the complete execution of the will, by the statement upon oath of the observance of every requisite made necessary by the Statute of Frauds. If Proctor had been examined in the present action for the plaintiff below, there can be no doubt but that the examination of Bleasdale on the last trial might have been put in to contradict him; but on what principle could such contradiction have been admissible, unless the evidence obtained by means of the examination was of as high a character and degree as that of the viva voce examination of the surviving witness? If the parol examination of Proctor was the better evidence, as contended for, how could it be opposed by the inferior evidence of Bleasdale's examination?" The defendant in error proceeded to trial upon the venire facias de novo, awarded by the Court, declining to enter into a rule similar to that on which the Court of Error had deemed the testimony of the deceased witness to be receivable; but in the course of the subsequent proceedings in the cause, it was considered, that not having appealed against the judgment of the Court of Error, by removing the cause into the House of Lords, he was precluded from again questioning the sufficiency of the evidence of the deceased witness to support the will. A verdict upon the venire facias de novo passed for the defendant below, which was set aside in the King's Bench, upon objection made to the reception of certain letters in evidence offered on the part of the defendant; and on the new trial the plaintiff obtained a verdict, subject to a bill of exceptions, and afterwards obtained judgment in the House of Lords.

(k) Doe d. Oldham v. Wolley, 8 B. & C. 22. A will dated thirty years since proves itself, although the testator may have died within that period, and it is immaterial that the witnesses are still living; it was held also, that in cases of pedigree it is not to be presumed that deceased parties married and left issue. Doe v. Deakin, 2 M. & Ry. 195.

(l) M'Kenzie v. Fraser, 9 Ves. 5; cor. the Master of the Rolls, who cited Cunliffe v. Sefton, 2 East, 183.

Secondary Evidence.

other testimony (m). And even if all the attesting witnesses should swear that the will was not duly executed, it would be competent to the devisee to establish the will by circumstantial evidence (n). Where one of the witnesses to a will is dead, witnesses may be called to his character (o). Where a surviving witness charges deceased witnesses as accomplices in an attempt to establish a fraudulent will, evidence of the good characters of the deceased witnesses is admissible in answer (p). It has been seen that the dying declaration of a deceased witness is admissible in evidence to impeach a will (q).

If all the witnesses be dead, proof should be given of their hand-writing, and also of that of the testator, and from such evidence the jury may presume the due execution of the will; although it does not appear from the written form of attestation that the witnesses subscribed the will in the presence of the testator (r). Where one of the attesting witnesses is abroad, it seems to be sufficient, as in other instances of instrumentary proof, to give evidence of his hand-writing. And this seems to be allowed by the practice of courts of equity, as well as in courts of law (s).

It seems that, in analogy to the case of a deed, if it be shown that diligent inquiry has been made after an attesting witness, at the place where the devisor lived, and elsewhere, where it was likely that he might be found, and that no intelligence of him can be obtained, and the other witnesses be dead, or have become interested subsequently to their attestation, evidence of the hand-writing of the latter will be receivable to support the will (t). As in the case of a deed, it seems that proof by witnesses is not necessary where a will is thirty years old. It has indeed been questioned whether the thirty years are to be reckoned from the execution of the will, or from the time of the decease of the devisor. But as the rule is founded upon the probability that after the lapse of thirty years the usual judiciary means of proof are unattainable, it should seem in principle that the time ought to be

(m) Lowe v. Jolliffe, 1 Bl. R. 365; Hudson's Case, Skinn. 79. Pike v. Badmering, 2 Stra. 1096. Goodtitle v. Clayton, 4 Burr. 2214. Austin v. Blades, B. N. P. 24. A will of personalty may be established against the evidence of all the subscribing witnesses, but such a case would require to be supported by the whole res gestæ, by strong probability, from the conduct of all parties, and the improbability of the practice of any fraud, circumvention or exercise of undue influence. Maekenzie v. Handysyde, 2 Hagg. 219. See also Le Breton v. Fletcher, 2 Hagg. 558.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Provis v. Read, 5 Bing. 435. His character having been impeached by an imputation of his having committed a forgery, declarations by the testator to show that the will he had executed was not valid, were rejected.

(p) 1 Camp. 210. Doe d. Walker v. Stephenson, 3 Esp. C. 284; 4 Esp. C. 50. Supra, tit. CHARACTER.

(q) Supra, 261. Wright v. Littler, 3 Burr. 1244; 1 Bl. 346.

(r) Hands v. James, Comyns, 531. Craft v. Paulet, 2 Stra. 1109. Price v. Smith, Willes, R. 1. Lord Rancliffe v. Parkins, 6 Dow, 202.

(s) See Powell v. Cleaver, Brown's C. C. 504. Lord Carrington v. Payne, 5 Ves. 411. Grayson v. Atkinson, 2 Ves. 460.

(t) M'Kenzie v. Fraser, 9 Ves. 5. Note, that the will in that case was thirty years old, and the testator had been dead for twenty years; the hand-writing of two of the subscribing witnesses was proved, but no account could be given of the third. An objection being taken to the proof, the Master of the Rolls observed, that he could see no distinction in this respect between a will and a deed, except that a will having no operation till the death of the testator, wanted a kind of authentication which the other possessed; but he cited the case of Cunliffe v. Sefton, 2 East, 183; and held that the will had been sufficiently proved.

computed from the execution of the will (u). And this has lately been so decided (x), even where it was proved that one of the witnesses was still living. Secondary evidence.

In the late case of Lord Rancliffe v. Parkyns (y), the Lord Chancellor observed, that "in a court of law a will thirty years old, if the possession has gone under it, proves itself, and sometimes without the possession, but always with the possession, if the signing is sufficiently recorded (z). But if the signing is not sufficiently recorded, it would be a question whether the age proves its validity; and then possession under the will, and claiming and dealing with the property as if it had passed under the will, would be cogent evidence to prove the duly signing, though it should not be recorded."

A book in the testator's hand-writing, though referred to by a will, and proved in the Ecclesiastical Court, but not attested so as to pass a real estate, is not admissible in explanation or aid of the will (a).

Next, as to the admissibility of evidence to remove ambiguities in respect of wills. These arise either, 1st, on the application of terms which on the face of the will are clear and definite; or, 2dly, appear on the face of the instrument itself, previous to any application of its terms. In the first place, where the intention of the testator is expressed on the face of the will in clear and definite terms, evidence is always not only admissible, but essential, in order to apply the terms to the proper subject-matter (b). Latent ambiguities.

Extrinsic evidence is also admissible, as has been seen, to remove ambiguities which arise upon the application of the terms of the will to the persons and subject-matter to which they relate (c).

In addition to the cases there cited, that of Goodtitle v. Southern (d), may (u) See Calthorpe v. Gough, at the Rolls, cited 4 T. R. 707, where the will was not proved by witnesses, and it was said at the bar that it need not be proved by witnesses, being above thirty years old; and the case of Machery v. Newbolt, was cited, where Sir Lloyd Kenyon, Master of the Rolls, decided that a will above thirty years old should be read without proof, although the testator had died very recently. But in the case of Calthorpe v. Gough, the plaintiff, who was heir-at-law, admitted the will.

(x) Doe v. Wolley, 8 B. & C. 22. Doe v. Deakin, 2 M. & Ry. 195. Where it was proved that a will of lands had been lost, parol evidence of its contents was received from a person who had heard it read over in the presence of the testator's family on the day of his funeral. Anon. 2 Camp. 390. (Cor. Wood, B., Worcester, 1809.)

(y) 6 Dow, 202.

(z) In that case the attestation stated that the testator signed in the presence of the witnesses, but did not state that they signed in his presence.

(a) Adam v. Wilkinson, 12 Price, 471.

(b) Supra, PAROL EVIDENCE, 768–771. Lord Cheney's Case, 5 Rep. 68. Shede v. Berrier, 2 Freem. 292; 1 P. Wms. 674; 2 P. Wms. 137. 142; 1 Ves. 231; 1 Atk. 411; 2 Ves. 216; Amb. 175; 3 Ves. 148. Declarations of a testator in subversion of a will are inadmissible, although both parties claim under him. Provis v. Reed, 5 Bing. 435.

(c) Supra, 768.

(d) Goodtitle d. Radford v. Southern, 1 M. & S. 299. So where the testator bequeathed his stock in a particular fund, and it appeared that he had not, when he made his will, any stock in that fund, having lately sold out and purchased into another fund, evidence was admitted to explain the mistake, and the legacy was satisfied out of the new fund. Selwood v. Mildmay, 3 Ves. 306. Where the testator at the time of his death having money at his private banker's, was also entitled to a sum received for him by his brother, and placed with his own money at the bankers of the latter, held that a bequest of "all his money at any bankers," would pass both, and that evidence was admissible to show that he treated the money at his brother's bankers as his own. Hemming v. Whittam, 2 Sim. 493.

Latent ambiguities.

be referred to, where, under a devise of "all my farm and lands, called Trogues Farm, now in the occupation of A. B.," it was held that two closes, part of Trogues Farm, but in the occupation of L. M., passed under the devise, and that evidence had been properly admitted of a notice from the devisor to L. M. to show that he considered these closes as parcel of Trogues Farm.

Where an interest was given by the express terms of the will to Stokeham Huthwaite, the second son of T. H., and Stokeham Huthwaite was in fact the third, and John Huthwaite the second son of T. H., the Court of King's Bench held that evidence of the state of the testator's family, and other circumstances, was admissible, and that on such evidence the jury might find whether the testator had made a mistake in the name of the devisee or not; that if no such evidence were given on the trial, it would be a mere question of law as to the intention of the testator, to be collected only from the will itself, upon which the Judge must direct the jury, and it would be open to neither party to tender a bill of exceptions (e).

And where the terms of a will are clear and definite, and capable of application in their strict and primary sense (f), they cannot be applied to any other subject-matter. Thus, where the testatrix gave 4,000*l.* to her heir, the legacy was decreed by the Master of the Rolls to the heir-at-law, though evidence was tendered to prove that the person intended by the testatrix was one whom she had promised to make her heir, and whom she used to call her heir (g).

So if the testator leaves property corresponding with the description in the will, evidence is never admissible to show that he intended other property to pass (h).

(e) Doe v. Huthwaite, 3 B. & A. 632.

(f) Supra, 771.

(g) Mounsey v. Blamire, 4 Russ. 384. Doe d. Tyrrell v. Lyford, 4 M. & S. 550.

(h) Supra, 771. Doe v. Tyrrell v. Lyford, 4 M & S. 550. Doe d. Brown v. Brown, 11 East, 441. Tytler v. Dalrymple, 2 Meriv. 419. The testator by his will duly executed, devised all his freehold and real estates whatsoever, situate in the county of Limerick, and in the city of Limerick. At the time of making his will he had no real estate in the county of Limerick; he had a small estate in the city of Limerick, and he had a considerable real estate in the county of Clare. The plaintiff contended that he was at liberty to show by parol evidence that the testator intended his estates in Clare to pass under this devise. He proposed to show that the estate in the city of Limerick was so small, and so disproportioned to the nature of the charges laid upon it, as to make it manifest that there must have been some mistake; and in order to show what the mistake was, it was proposed to show that in the copy of the will which had been submitted to the testator, and had been approved of and returned by him, the devise in question stood thus: "All my freehold and real estates whatsoever situate in the counties of Clare, Limerick, and in the city of Limerick;" that afterwards the conveyancer by mistake altered the words to the form used in the executed will, which was altered by the testator without adverting to the alteration; but it was held by the Lord Chancellor, assisted by the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Chief Baron of the Exchequer, that admitting that it might be shown from the description of the property in the city of Limerick that some mistake might have arisen, yet still as the devise in question had a certain operation and effect, viz., of passing the estates in the city of Limerick, and as the intention of the testator to devise any estate in the county of Clare could not be collected from the will itself, nor without altering or adding to the words of the will, such intention could not be supplied by the evidence given. Miller v. Travers, 8 Bing. 244. But where extrinsic facts leave no doubt that the testator intended particular property to pass by his will, although it cannot pass unless that meaning can be collected from the terms of the will itself, yet if the terms of the will are such as permit a construction which agrees with the intention so mani-

Latent ambiguities.

Where, however, words in their primary sense are, under the circumstances, incapable of any sensible or definite application, they may, if capable of such application, be applied in a popular or secondary sense (i). Thus, though the word child, in its strict legal sense, must be understood of a legitimate child, yet if a testator, having no legitimate child, devise an estate to his child, then, as the description in its strict and primary sense is inapplicable, evidence is admissible to show it to be applicable in the popular sense of the word (j). Where the terms are incapable of such application, either in their strictly technical or popular sense, the devise is void, and evidence is not admissible to show an intention on the part of the testator, not expressed in the will; to allow this, would obviously be not to construe or apply, but to make a will.

Apparent ambiguities.

2dly. Where a doubt arises on the face of the will itself, previous to any application of its terms, either from the difficulty in decyphering the writing, or interpreting the meaning of words written in a foreign language, or which have a peculiar and technical meaning; or where a doubt arises on the face of the instrument as to the meaning of the testator.

Where a difficulty arises from the writing or characters used, or from the use of foreign expressions or technical terms of art, they are always capable of ascertainment or explanation by aid of extrinsic evidence. In the late case of Goblet v. Beachey (k), the testator, a celebrated sculptor, executed a codicil as follows: "Memorandum, that in case of my death all the marble in the yard, the tools in the shop, bankers, mod (l), tools for carving, the rasp in the draw, with (nevre or nepre), and the draw in the parlour, shall be the property of A. G." The plaintiff contended that the word mod. meant models; the defendant, that it was a contraction for modelling, and that it was to be joined in construction with the following words, "tools for carving." It was referred to the Master (m) to inquire and state to the Court what the testator meant by the word "mod." and also by the word between the words with and and; and that he should be at liberty to call to his assistance persons skilled in the art of writing, and persons who had a competent knowledge of tools and articles used in statuary. The Master, after receiving evidence on the subject, and after inquiry into the collateral facts of the case, reported that the word mod. was intended by the testator to mean "models;" and that by the words between the two words draw and and, the testator intended "with the apron;" and after exception taken, the Master's report was confirmed (n).

fested, the Court will so construe the will. Doe v. Langton, 2 B. & Ad. 680. See also Doe v. Hathwaite, 3 B. & A. 632. But it is an universal rule that where words are used which have acquired a precise and technical meaning, no other meaning can be applied to them; for that, in the language of the courts, would be to remove landmarks. Per Ld. Kenyon, 6 T. R. 352. See the observations of the Lord Chancellor, in Baylis v. The Attorney General, 2 Atk. 239. Castleton v. Turner, 3 Atk. 257.

(i) Supra, 771.

(j) Wilkinson v. Adam, 1 Ves. & B. 422. Woodhouselee v. Dalrymple, 2 Mer. 419. Wigram's Obs. 38. Cartwright v. Vaudry, 5 Ves. 530. Godfrey v. Davies, 6 Ves. 43.

(k) Hil. 1829, reported by Mr. Wigram, in his Observations on that case, to whom the profession is indebted for much valuable information on this subject.

(l) Mod was written at the end of a line, followed by a small mark, the purport of which was equivocal.

(m) By Sir John Leach, V. C.

(n) See also Masters v. Masters, 1 P. Wms. 421. Norman v. Norman, 4 Ves. 769. Attorney General v. Plate Glass Apparent ambiguities.

If on the face of the will its terms be so ambiguous as to be incapable of any certain application, it is void in point of law; for in such a case to admit evidence to give it one meaning rather than another, when it was equally capable of both, or incapable of expressing either, would be not to construe or apply, but to make a will. Thus if the testator give an estate to one of the three sons of J. S., without saying which, it is void, for no evidence of facts or circumstances could show with certainty which was meant; and therefore to admit evidence for the purpose of showing that one rather than the other was meant, would be to make the extrinsic evidence, and not the terms of the will, operate. Whether a will be void for apparent uncertainty is of course a question of law, to discuss which would exceed as well the limits as the design of the present work (o).

It is not every degree of uncertainty appearing on the face of a will, will avoid it; such a rule would be far too extensive for practical use; and where the ambiguity is not such as to avoid the instrument, but which cannot be removed merely by judicial construction of the will alone (p), the uncertainty must necessarily be removed by evidence to ascertain what is ambiguous, by means of the context of extrinsic circumstances, and thus to confine expressions in themselves capable of different applications according to the subject-matter to which they are to be applied, to a certain and definite application to the particular circumstances. In such instances the evidence is usually admitted, not for the purpose of enabling the Court to construe the terms of a will, but to apply a general description, capable of different special applications to different states of circumstances, to that state of facts which really exists. To this extent the effect is, not to give an arbitrary application to uncertain words, but to apply the terms themselves, in the sense which properly belongs to them, to the special circumstances.

If a party bequeaths his stock (q), although the term stock is general, and is capable of signifying a great number of different subject-matters, and according to the trade or occupation of the testator, may mean either cattle, as part of a farmer's stock; goods in a shop, as part of a grocer's stock; or timber in a yard or warehouse, as part of a merchant's stock; yet the will is Company, 1 Ans. 39. The Ecclesiastical Court, where there is no ambiguity on the face of the instrument, and there are means of obtaining clear and indisputable proof of the testator's intention, will admit parol evidence to show a mistake. Harrison v. Stone, 2 Hagg. 537. But the Court refused to allow mere parol declarations, after a considerable lapse of time, to show that words had been incautiously and erroneously struck out. Ib.

(o) See above, p. 755. Where it appeared plainly from the context of the will not only that the name used was not intended by the testator, but that another name was necessarily intended, the Court corrected it, and substituted the one for the other. Dent v. Pepys, 6 Mad. 350.

(p) The Courts, in construing wills, will correct apparent mistakes. Where it clearly appeared from the context of the will, not only that the name used was not intended by the testator, but that another name was necessarily intended, the Court corrected it, and substituted the one for the other. Dent v. Pepys, 6 Madd. 350. Where the testator recited that a legatee was indebted to him in a certain sum, which he made the basis of calculating the bequest intended for him, it was held that the recital bound the legatee, and that he could not go into evidence to repel that statement; but it seems that he might have had relief if it had appeared to have been a mere mistake of figures. Robinson v. Beansby, 6 Madd. 348.

(q) Where a testator bequeaths stock, jewels or household furniture, here different subjects may pass, according to circumstances, and as the party who uses them is a merchant, nobleman or jeweller. Colpoys v. Colpoys, 1 Jac. 461. Kelly v. Powlett, Ambl. 605.

Apparent ambiguities.

not void for this uncertainty, because it is capable of being removed by extrinsic proof of the testator's trade and circumstances, and confined to the stock which he possessed in the particular instance. So it may happen that on the face of a will, the terms of devise may be such that they would operate differently, and would give a different estate, according to extrinsic circumstances, such as the relation in which the devisee and the testator stood to each other. Thus, if the testator devise an estate to A. after the death of B., the effect would be different according to an extrinsic fact, viz. the relation in which A. and the testator stand to each other: if A. be the heir-at-law of the testator, B. will take a life estate; but if A. be not heir-at-law to the testator, B. will take nothing (r). Here, on the face of the will, is an uncertainty, for no one, on merely reading the will, can tell whether B. will take a life estate or not; but the doubt is capable of being entirely removed by extrinsic evidence of the fact.

The general proposition has been frequently asserted by great authority (s), that courts of law will look at extrinsic circumstances in aid of the construction of a will. This proposition assumes that the instrument is not void for apparent uncertainty, which is, of course, a mere question of law; and it also assumes that what is uncertain on reading the instrument, is capable of being ascertained by the admission of extrinsic evidence. In all such cases, the effect of the extrinsic evidence is to apply the terms of the instrument to the circumstances of the particular case. It would be difficult, in point of principle, to carry the doctrine further than this, that such evidence of circumstances is admissible for the purpose of aiding the construction of a will; to admit it in support of a will which standing alone is equally capable of several different constructions, would clearly be inconsistent with the general principle so often adverted to (t).

In the case of Fonnereau v. Poyntz (u), where the testatrix having bequeathed to Mary Poyntz the sum of 500 l. in Long Annuities, and other sums to other legatees by the same description to the amount of 1,300 l., Lord Thurlow admitted evidence that the testatrix had only 120 l. per annum Long Annuities, in order to explain whether the testatrix meant to give legacies to the amount of 1,300 l. per annum, or only a gross sum of (r) Horton v. Horton, Cro. J. 74. So in the construction of a devise to A. and his heirs, and if he shall die without heirs then to B., where B. is capable of being collateral heir to A., in that case the word heirs will be construed heirs of the body. Fearne, 466.

(s) Per Ld. Hardw., in Goodinge v. Goodinge, 1 Ves. sen. 231. Per Ld. Thurlow, in Jeacock v. Falkner, 1 Bro. C. C. 295. Per Ld. Loughborough, in Gaskill v. Winter, 3 Ves. J. 540, 1. Per Ld. Manners, C. in Crone v. Odell, 1 Ball & B. 480. Per Sir T. Plumer, V. C., in Beachcroft v. Beachcroft, 1 Madd. 430; and by the same Judge, M. R., in Colpoys v. Colpoys, 1 Jac. 451. Per Ld. Eldon, in Oakden v. Clifden; Lin. Inn Hall, 1826, MS. See also Lane v. Lord Stanhope, 6 T. R. 345. Doe d. Le Chevalier v. Hathwaite, 3 B. & A. 632. Gibson v. Gell, 2 B. & C. 680. Pocock v. Bishop of Lincoln, 3 B. & B. 27. Alford v. Green, 5 Madd. 95. Goodwright v. Downshire, 3 Bos. & P. 600; 1 New Rep. 344. Wilde's Case, 6 Rep. 16. And see in general the cases cited in Mr. Wigram's Observations, p. 49, et sequent.

(t) Lord C. Cowper, in Strode v. Russell, 8 Vin. Ab. 194, pl. 23, was of opinion, that where the words of a will stood in equilibrio, and were so doubtful that they might be taken one way or the other, evidence might be received to explain them. See 2 Vern. 623; 2 Atk. 374. See also the declaration of Sir J. Strange, M. R., in Hampshire v. Pierce, 2 Ves. sen. 216. But Lord Hardwicke dissented from Lord Cowper's rule. Ulrish v. Litchfield, 2 Atk. 374. And it is observable that Tracey, J., did not assent to the reception of such evidence; and that Lord Cowper himself made a distinction between reading such evidence in a court of equity, and carrying it before a jury. See Mr. Wigram's remarks, Obs. 67.

(u) 1 Bro. C. C. 472.

Apparent ambiguities.

1,300*l.* And he admitted the evidence, on the ground that upon the face of the will itself it was doubtful whether she meant the annual sum or the gross sum, and that the state of her fortune showed that she must have meant the latter. In the case of Masters v. Masters (v), already referred to, where a bequest was made "to all and every the hospitals," evidence was admitted that the testator resided in Canterbury, in order to show his intention to apply his bequest to the hospitals in Canterbury. If a man grant an estate for life, without expressing whether for his own life or for that of the grantee; if the grantor had an estate in fee, the grantee will take an estate for his own life; but if the grantor had but an estate for life or in tail, then the grantee will take an estate for the life of the grantor only (x).

(v) 1 P. Wms. 420. Supra, p. 554, note (u).

(x) 1 Prest. Shep. T. 88; 2 B. & B. 551. Although this has been relied on as an authority for the position, that the construction of a will may be aided by extrinsic evidence of the estate which the testator or devisor had when he made the will, yet it seems scarcely to warrant it; for there the evidence is given, not for the purpose of putting one construction rather than another upon the deed itself, but in order to apply that which is the true and certain construction of law, according to the nature of the subject-matter and the necessity of the case. As the words of the grantor are to be taken most strongly against himself, a grant of an estate for life is construed by the law to mean for the life of the grantee, as being more beneficial to himself than one for the life of another man; here is no uncertainty until that construction is applied to the estate itself; and then, although it turn out that the estate of the grantor was not sufficient to enable him to grant for the life of the grantee, yet still the law applies the grant so far as the subject-matter admits, and gives an estate for the life of the grantor. The case of Selwood v. Mildmay, 3 Ves. 410, which has been cited for the same purpose, is also open to similar remarks. It was there held, that if a testator bequeath so much money in a particular stock, it is a specific legacy, if the testator has so much money in that stock; but that it will not be a specific legacy if the testator has no money in that stock. Here the extrinsic evidence to show what estate the testator had is not admitted for the purpose of giving a preference to one particular construction of a will doubtful in its terms; the language and meaning of the terms of the will are clear; the doubt arises upon their application only; and then, as the subject-matter does not admit of the application which the law would have made had such specific stock existed, the law still applies the intention so manifested, as far as circumstances will permit.

In the late case of Smith v. Doe d. Lord Jersey, 2 B. & B. 473, the admissibility of extrinsic evidence for the purpose of construing the terms of a power to grant leases, was incidentally much discussed; and the opinions of the learned Judges, which were delivered seriatim, differed much upon that point. A settlement-deed contained a power to grant leases, &c., so as there were contained in every such lease a power of re-entry for non-payment of the rent thereby reserved. A lease executed by virtue of this power contained a proviso for re-entry if the rent of 2*l.* &c. should remain unpaid for fifteen days after it became due, and no sufficient distress could or might be taken on the premises. Upon the trial of an ejectment against the lessee, evidence was admitted that the usual and accustomed form of leases of the estate, as well prior as subsequent to the settlement, contained a conditional power of re-entry similar to that contained in the lease in question. The original power referred to the accustomed rents, services, &c. Judgment was given for the defendant in the Court of King's Bench, but reversed, on error, in the Exchequer Chamber, and the latter judgment again was reversed in the House of Lords. The Lord Chancellor, Lord Redesdale, Abbott, C. J., Richards, C. B., Graham and Wood, Barons, and Best, J., were of opinion that the expressions contained in the power were to be considered as merely general, and that they were to be executed with reasonable qualifications, according to the practice of courts of equity and of conveyancers. And the Lord Chancellor, Lord Redesdale, and Richards, C. B., held, that inasmuch as the instrument which gave the power referred to the former leases, the power was to be construed by the aid of such former leases, which explained what was meant by the proviso for re-entry. But Dallas, C. J., Park, Holroyd, Burrough, and Richardson, Judges, were of opinion that the terms of the power were express and unambiguous, and required an absolute and immediate right of re-entry on non-payment of rent, and consequently that no constructive aid could be derived from extrinsic evidence. Bayley, J., was of opinion that the terms of the power were ambiguous, and that therefore the extrinsic

A case (y) was sent by the Vice-Chancellor for the opinion of the Judges of the King's Bench, on the construction of a will, and afterwards the same case was again sent by order of the Lord Chancellor, with a statement of collateral facts relating to the family and circumstances of the testator at the time of his making the will, for their opinion whether the facts so introduced were admissible as evidence in the case; and if so, whether the Judges were of the same opinion before certified; and the Judges certified that the facts were admissible, and that they were of the same opinion as before. In the case of Pocock v. The Bishop of Lincoln, upon the question whether a devise to the testator's son R., of a perpetual advowson, gave an estate in fee or for life only, the collateral fact that the son was incumbent of the living at the time, was commented on both in argument and by the Court in their decision. Construction.

In the case of Lane v. The Earl of Stanhope (z), the testator devised all his manors, messuages, houses, farms, woodlands, hereditaments, and real estates whatever to B., and all the rest and residue of his ready money, &c. and personal estate whatsoever, to C.: the question was, on a case sent for the opinion of the Judges of the King's Bench, whether the term farms would include a leasehold estate. Lord Kenyon, in giving his opinion on the construction of the will, observed that the extrinsic circumstances also weighed strongly to show that the leasehold interest passed by the devise.

The competency of an attesting witness to the will has already been considered (a). Although one who takes a beneficial interest under a will is not competent to establish it by his testimony, yet executors and trustees who take no beneficial interest are competent witnesses (b). Competency.

If the obligee devise a debt to the obligor, and the executor, in satisfaction of the legacy, delivers up the bond to the obligor, he is a competent witness to prove the sanity of the testator; for the obligation being cancelled, he cannot be charged at law (c). But it is otherwise in the case of a mortgage; for though the mortgage be cancelled, the right being transferred does not revest upon cancelling the deed (d).

Primâ facie evidence of a will may be rebutted by proof of fraud; as that the supposed will is a mere fabrication, or that it was obtained by fraud, as Fraud.

evidence was properly admissible to show what the intention of the settler really was.

Notwithstanding the case of Cooke v. Booth, Cowp. 819; supra, 778, note (g), it seems to be now settled that the terms of a deed cannot be construed or interpreted by the acts of the parties. In the case of Iggulden v. May, 7 East, 237, the Court of K. B. held that a covenant in an indenture of lease, to grant a new lease with all covenants, grants and articles, as in the said indenture contained, did not bind the lessor to insert a covenant of renewal in the renewed lease; and that the fact, that other leases containing such renewals had been made by the owners of the inheritance, could not be called in aid to construe the meaning of the indenture. The judgment of the Court was afterwards affirmed in the Exchequer; and in giving judgment, Mansfield, C. J., observed upon the case of Cooke v. Booth, "We think that was the first time that the acts of the parties to a deed were ever made use of in a court of law to assist the construction of that deed. Suppose the original lessor to have declared in the presence of fifty witnesses, that he intended to bind himself by that deed to a perpetual renewal, his declaration could not have been allowed to alter the construction of the deed itself. If so, why should the subsequent renewals, which are not evidence either so strong or so unequivocal as the declaration of the lessor, be allowed to alter the construction?" And see Baynham v. Guy's Hospital, 3 Ves. jun. 298. Tritton v. Foote, 2 Bro. C. C. 636. Eaton v. Lyon, 3 Ves. 694.

(y) Lowe v. Manners, 5 B. & A. 917; 2 B. & B. 27.

(z) 6 T. R. 345.

(a) Supra, tit. WILL, Credible Witness.

(b) Ib. Vol. I. tit. WITNESS, Interest.

(c) Gil. Ev. by Lofft, 230.

(d) Ibid.

Fraud.

by the substitution of a false instrument for the one which the party really intended to execute (e); or that it was obtained by duress; or by proof of the incompetency of the party to make a will by reason of coverture (f) or infancy (g); or by proof of the want of sound memory and understanding.

Capacity.

In the first place, the law presumes every one to be sane till the contrary appear; the burthen, therefore, of proof is cast upon those who impeach the understanding of a testator (h), by evidence applicable to the time of the transaction sought to be affected. On the other hand, it is to be presumed that a man's mind remains unchanged till the contrary appear: when, therefore, lunacy has been once established, it is incumbent on him who alleges the validity of the act, to prove that it was done at a lucid interval, during which the party was sane and competent (i).

Non compos, who.

The authorities on the subject state, that no person who is non compos (k) can make a will; and the term comprehends not only idiots and lunatics, but all other persons who from natural imbecility, disease, old age, or any (e) Doe v. Allen, 8 T. R. 147.

(f) See the stat. 34 & 35 H. 8, c. 5, s. 14. But a feme covert may dispose of property by will which she holds in auter droit as executrix; Scammel v. Wilkinson, 2 East, 552; or under a power contained in the marriage settlement. Drirer v. Thomson, 4 Taunt. 294. And courts of equity have gone so far as to say, that a married woman who has a separate estate may make a will without a power. Per Mansfield, C. J., 4 Taunt. 297.

(g) See the stat. 34 & 35 H. 8, c. 5, s. 14.

(h) White v. Wilson, 13 Ves. jun. 89; 6 Cruise, 15. But in the case of Wallis v. Hodgson, Ch. R. 300, it was said that it is incumbent on a devisee who sets up a will, to prove not only the formal requisites under the Statute of Frauds, but he must also show the devisor to have been of a sound and disposing mind. That is, it seems, where the sanity of the testator is the question in dispute; in others, the will itself, where its provisions are sensible and reasonable, would afford ample primâ facie evidence to throw the burthen of proof upon the heir. Adseverationi tuæ eum compotem fuisse neganti fidem adesse probari convenit. L. 5, Cod. de Codicill. On the other hand, insanity apparent on the face of the will threw the burthen of proof on the testamentary heir. L. 27. ff. de Condit.

(i) The maxim is, semel furibundus semper furibundus præsumitur. It is not enough to show that the act was actus sapienti conveniens, for that may happen many ways; but it must be proved to be actus sapientis, and to proceed from judgment and deliberation, or else the presumption continues. Lord Nottingham's MS. Co. Litt. by Butler, note 185.

Lord Thurlow, in the Attorney-general v. Parnther, 3 Bro. C. C. 443, observed, "If, however, derangement be alleged, it is clearly incumbent on the party alleging it to prove the same; but if the derangement be proved, or be admitted to have at any time existed, and a lucid interval be alleged to have taken place, the burthen of proof attaches to the party alleging such lucid interval, who must show sanity and competency at the particular period when the act was done to which the lucid interval refers. And it certainly is of equal importance, when any derangement at any period has been established, that the evidence in support of a lucid interval should be as strong and demonstrative as where the object of proof is to establish derangement itself.

In Swinburn, 78, it is observed, "So every man is presumed to have the right use of his reason until the contrary be proved; which being proved, then he is presumed to continue still void of it, unless he were so for a short time, and in some particular actions only, and not continually for a long space, as for a month or more, or unless he fell into some phrenzy upon some accidental cause, which is afterwards removed, or unless it be a long time since he was assailed by the malady; for in all these cases he is not presumed to continue in his former furor or malady."

Where insanity has been once established, and continuing evidence of derangement is shown previous to and after the execution of the will, evidence of calmness, and the power of doing formal acts of business, was held to be insufficient to rebut the presumption arising against capacity. Green v. Thomas, 2 Hagg. 433. Where the testator is proved to have frequently laboured under incapacity to make a will, his capacity at the time of making the will, that he gave the instructions, and that he executed the will in the presence of unexceptionable witnesses, must be distinctly proved. Dodge v. Meech, 1 Hagg. 612.

(k) A non compos is excepted out of the stat. 32 Hen. 8, c. 1.

other such causes, are incapable of managing their own affairs (l). The words mean the same with the English words, "of unsound mind (m)." An old man become childish, or so forgetful as not to remember his own name, cannot make a will, neither can a drunkard, who by excessive intoxication is deprived of the use of his understanding and reason (n). And according to Lord Coke (o), to make a will valid it is not enough for the Non compos, who.

(l) Ex parte Cranmer, 12 Ves. jun. 445; Ex parte Gilham, 2 Ves. jun. 587.

(m) See Ex parte Barnsley, 2 Atk. 167; 1 Bl. Comm. 304. Ridgway v. Darwin, 8 Ves, jun. 67.

(n) 2 Co. 6, 23.

(o) Marquis of Winchester's Case, 6 R. 23, a. See also Swinburn, 77. Although a man be incapable of conducting his own affairs, he is still answerable for his criminal acts, if he possesses a mind capable of distinguishing right from wrong. In the late case of The King v. Bellingham, the prisoner, in his defence to a charge of having murdered Mr. Perceival, avowed that he was justified in what he had done, because his Majesty's government had refused to redress certain grievances of which he complained. Mansfield, C. J., in summing up to the jury, observed, "In another part of the prisoner's defence, it was urged, not however by himself, that at the time of the commission of the crime he was insane —with respect to this the law is extremely clear. If a man were deprived of all power of reasoning, so as not to be able to distinguish whether it was right or wrong to commit the most wicked transaction, he could not certainly do an act against the law; such a man, so destitute of all power of judgment, could have no intention at all. In order to support this defence, however, it ought to be proved by the most distinct and unquestionable evidence, that the criminal was incapable of judging between right and wrong. It must in fact be proved beyond all doubt, that at the time he committed the atrocious act with which he stood charged, he did not consider that murder was a crime against the laws of God and nature. There is no other proof of insanity which will excuse murder or any other crime.

"There are various species of insanity. Some human beings are void of all power of reasoning from their birth; such cannot be guilty of any crime. There is another species of madness, in which persons are subject to temporary paroxysms, in which they are guilty of acts of extravagance; this is called lunacy. If these persons were to commit a crime when they were not affected with the malady, they would be, to all intents and purposes, amenable to justice; so long as they could distinguish good from evil, so long would they be answerable for their conduct. There is a third species of insanity, in which the patient fancies the existence of injury, and seeks an opportunity of gratifying revenge by some hostile act. If such a person were capable, in other respects, of distinguishing right from wrong, there is no excuse for any act of atrocity which he may commit under this description of derangement. The witnesses who have been called to support this extraordinary defence have given a very singular account, in order to show that at the time of the commission of the crime the prisoner was insane. What may have been the state of his mind some time ago is perfectly immaterial; the single question is, whether, when he committed the offence charged upon him, he had sufficient understanding to distinguish good from evil, right from wrong, and that murder was a crime not only against the law of God, but against the laws of the country."

Thomas Bowler was tried at the Old Bailey, on the 2d July 1812, for wilfully and maliciously discharging a blunderbuss loaded with bullets at William Burrowes, and wounding him with the contents in the neck and back, under circumstances, as they were disclosed by the evidence, which manifested considerable ill-will towards the prosecutor, and design in the execution of his purpose. The defence set up was insanity occasioned by epilepsy.

Elizabeth Haden, the housekeeper of the prisoner, deposed, that he was seized with an epileptic fit on the 9th July 1811, and was brought home apparently lifeless, since which time she had perceived a great alteration in his conduct and demeanour. He would frequently dine at nine o'clock in the morning, eat his meat almost raw, and lie on the grass exposed to rain; his spirits were so dejected, that it was necessary to watch him lest he should destroy himself.

Mr. Warburton, the keeper of a lunatic asylum, deposed, that it was characteristic of insanity, occasioned by epilepsy, for the patient to imbibe violent antipathies against particular individuals, even his dearest friends, and a desire of taking vengeance upon them, from causes wholly imaginary, which no persuasion could remove; and yet the patient might be rational and collected upon every other subject. He had no doubt of the insanity of the prisoner, and said he could not be deceived by assumed appearances.

A commission of lunacy was produced, dated the 17th of June 1812, and an inquisition taken upon it, whereby the prisoner was found insane, and to have been so from the 30th of March then last.

Non compos, who.

testator to have had memory sufficient to answer familiar and usual questions, but he must have had a disposing mind, so as to have been able to make a disposition of his estate with understanding and reason.

Sir Simon Le Blanc, before whom the trial took place, after summing up the evidence, concluded by observing to the jury, that it was for them to determine whether the prisoner, when he committed the offence with which he stood charged, was or was not incapable of distinguishing right from wrong, or under the influence of any illusion in respect of the prosecutor, which rendered his mind at the moment insensible of the nature of the act he was about to commit, since in that case he would not be legally responsible for his conduct. On the other hand, provided they should be of opinion, that when he committed the offence he was capable of distinguishing right from wrong, and was not under the influence of such an illusion as disabled him from discerning that he was doing a wrong act, he would be amenable to the justice of his country, and guilty in the eye of the law.

The jury, after considerable deliberation, pronounced the prisoner guilty.

According to the report of Oxford's case, Alderson, B. strongly expressed his disapprobation of the execution of Bowler.

So, according to the text writers, these defects, whether permanent or temporary, must be unequivocal and plain, not an idle frantic humour, or unaccountable mode of action, but an absolute dispossession of the free and natural agency of the human mind. 1 Hale's P. C. c. 4. According to Lord Hale, the best criterion he could think of for distinguishing between total and partial insanity, was this: "If a person labouring under melancholy distempers, hath yet as great understanding as ordinarily a child of fourteen years hath, such a person may be guilty of treason or felony." Hale's P. C. 30.

In Arnold's Case, 8 St. Tr. 290, the prisoner was indicted for maliciously shooting at Lord Onslow. No doubt could exist of his being to a certain extent deranged, and that he had greatly misconceived the conduct of Lord Onslow. From the evidence, however, it appeared that he had formed a regular design, and prepared the proper means for carrying it into effect. It was stated by the Court to the jury, that he could not be guilty if he did not know what he was doing; but that partial insanity would not excuse him, but he must have laboured under such a deprivation of reason as rendered him as senseless as a brute or an infant.

In the case of the Earl of Ferrers (State Trials), although it was proved that his lordship was occasionally insane, and incapable from his insanity of knowing what he did, or judging of the consequences of his actions, yet as it appeared that when he committed the offence he had capacity sufficient to form a design, and know its consequences, he was found guilty and executed.

William White having paid his addresses to Maria Bally, a young schoolmistress, who subsequently forbade his visits, he shot her with a pistol, in the presence of her scholars. The fact being proved, three witnesses were brought forward to prove his insanity; but as they merely deposed to dejection of spirits manifested previous to the murder, he was found guilty and executed. Collinson on Lunacy, vol. 1, p. 474.

In Hadfield's Case, 1800, Ib. 480, the prisoner was tried for high treason, and the overt act laid was the firing at the King at Drury-lane theatre; previous insanity was proved, manifested by acts which were continued nearly up to the time of the imputed offence. Lord Kenyon stated, that as the prisoner was deranged immediately before the offence was committed, it was improbable that he had recovered his senses in the interim; and although, were they to run into a nicety, proof might be demanded of his insanity at the precise moment when the act was committed, yet there being no reason for believing him to have been at that moment a reasonable and accountable being, he ought to be acquitted.

In the case of Edward Oxford, 9 C. & P. 525, before Lord Denman, C. J., Mr. Baron Alderson, and Mr. Justice Patteson, for a treasonable attempt on the life of Her present Majesty, the Lord Chief Justice, in summing up to the jury, is reported to have observed (inter alia), as follows: "Then the very important question comes, whether the prisoner was of unsound mind when the act was done. Persons primâ facie must be taken to be of sound mind till the contrary is shown. But a person may commit a criminal act, and yet not be responsible. It is not more important than difficult to lay down the rule by which you are to be governed. Many cases have been referred to upon the subject. But it is a sort of matter in which you cannot expect any precedent to be found. It is the duty of the Court to lay down the English law on the subject; and even that is difficult, because the Court would not wish to lay down more than is necessary in the particular case. As to Hadfield's case, Mr. Erskine would lose nothing by laying down the rule most widely. It must not, therefore, be said that the admission of counsel is to decide the matter. On the part of the defence, it is contended that the prisoner at the bar was non compos mentis, that is (as it has been said), unable Swinburn observes (p), that "the sane memory for making a will is not at all times when the party can speak yea or no, and hath life in him, but he ought to have judgment to discern, and be of perfect memory, otherwise the will is void; and therefore the evidence ought to go to this extent." Non compos.

According to the ecclesiastical law, importunity, in its legal acceptation, to avoid a will, must be such as the testator is too weak to resist, and in such a degree as to take away his free agency (q).

The question of sanity is so peculiarly a question of fact for the decision of a jury, that a will of a real estate cannot be set aside in equity, without being first tried at law on an issue of devisavit vel non (r). Question of fact.

The nature of the evidence requisite to prove the insanity of the testator on the one hand, or to establish his sanity on the other, is too obvious to require comment. Evidence for the first of these purposes consists principally in the proof of such acts done and declarations made by the party as are inconsistent with sanity (s).

to distinguish right from wrong, or, in other words, that from the effect of a diseased mind he did not know at the time that the act he did was wrong. As to the grandfather, two points will arise whether his conduct was evidence of insanity or only of violence of disposition; and if of insanity, whether the insanity was or was not hereditary? (His Lordship read the evidence of the medical and other witnesses on the subject of the insanity, and said): "It may be that medical men may be more in the habit of observing cases of this kind, and there may be cases in which medical testimony may be essential; but I cannot agree with the notion, that moral insanity can be better judged of by medical men than by others. As to the father of the prisoner, the question will be, whether there was a real absence of the power of reason—the power of controlling himself, or whether it was only a violent or even cruel disposition; and then, upon the whole, the question will be, whether all that has been proved about the prisoner at the bar shows that he was insane at the time when the act was done,—whether the evidence given proves a disease in the mind as of a person quite incapable of distinguishing right from wrong. Something has been said about the power to contract and to make a will. But I think that those things do not supply any test. The question is, whether the prisoner was labouring under that species of insanity which satisfies you that he was quite unaware of the nature, character, and consequences of the act he was committing; or, in other words, whether he was under the influence of a deceased mind, and was really unconscious at the time he was committing the act that it was a crime. With respect to the letters and papers, they may be brought forward on either side of the question."

Per Parke, B. (on the authority of a case said to have been decided by Gurney, B.) witnesses for a prisoner on a charge of murder may be examined as to the insanity of other members of prisoner's family. R. v. Walsh, Lancaster Spring Assizes, 1835. Similar evidence was given in Oxford's Case. To establish the insanity of a prisoner, papers found at his lodgings, and proved to have been written by him, before the commission of the offence, were offered to be read, but were rejected on the ground that what a party has written may be evidence against him, but not for him. R. v. Casaur, cor. Garrow, B., Old Bailey, May 1818.

"A drunkard," saith Lord Coke, "who is voluntarius dæmon, hath no privilege thereby, but whatsoever hurt or ill he doth is aggravated by his drunkenness. Nam omne crimen ebrietas et incendit et detegit." 1 Inst. 247. See above, 396.

(p) 72.

(q) P. C. in Kinleside v. Harrison, 2 Phill. 449. The law (ecclesiastical) presumes against the validity of a will made by the solicitor of the deceased in his own favour, to the exclusion of an only son, but such a will may be established by clear proof that the act was the voluntary act of a party of competent capacity, having full knowledge of what he did. Butlin v. Barry, 1 Curt. 614; and the judgment was affirmed in the Privy Council. Ib. 637.

(r) Bransby v. Herridge, Eq. C. Ab. 406.

(s) Swinburn observes, that it is a hard and difficult point to prove a man not to have the use of his understanding or reason; and therefore it is not sufficient for a witness to depose that the testator was mad, or beside his wits, unless a sufficient reason can be given to prove this deposition, as that he saw him do such acts, or heard him speak such words, as a person having reason would not have done or spoken. Swinburn, 72. The declaration of a testator that he had attempted to destroy his will, is, it seems, evidence as to the state of his mind, although not for the purpose of proving revocation. Doe v. Harris, 7 C. & P. 330.

Non compos.

Letters written by third persons, since deceased, to a party whose will is disputed, and found among his papers, are not admissible as evidence of his competency, without some proof that he himself acted upon them. And the facts of such a letter having been so found with the seal broken, being a letter on legal business concerning the party's affairs, and bearing the indorsement of his attorney, since deceased, "20th May 1786; letter from Mr. M. to Mr. M.," are not evidence of the party's having acted upon the letter sufficient to warrant its reception as evidence (t).

(t) Wright v. Tatham, in Error, 5 Cl. & F. 670. See 1 Ad. & Ell. 3; 3 N. & M. 260; 7 Ad. & Ell. 313; 6 N. & M. 132. It was proved that after the death of J. M., whose competency was disputed by the plaintiff in error, many letters addressed to him by various persons were found, with other papers, in a cupboard under his book-case in his private room. Amongst the letters so found, was one addressed by Charles Tatham, a cousin of J. M., dated Alexandria, October 1784, relating principally to his own situation and adventures. The letter was post-marked as a ship letter, and was in the handwriting of Charles Tatham, who had been personally acquainted with J. M., and had been dead many years; and a draft or copy of a letter was given in evidence by the defendant below, in the handwriting of J. M., addressed to the said C. Tatham, dated June 1st, 1787, which recognised the receipt of a former letter "some time ago." Another of the letters so found purported to be a letter of business, addressed by Oliver Martin, the vicar of Lancaster, to J. M., recommending a case to be prepared and laid before counsel, for the settlement of some matter in difference between J. M. and the parish. It was proved that James Barrow was at the time of the date of this letter the attorney of J. M., and had been dead 35 years ago, and that an indorsement on the back of the letter, "20th May, 1786, letter from Mr. Martin to Mr. Marsden," was in his handwriting. These letters, and a third also, addressed to J. M. by Mr. Ellershaw, formerly curate of the chapel of Hornby, to which he had been presented by J. M. and addressed by him to J. M. on relinquishing the cure, having been rejected upon a trial at Lancaster, in 1833, before Gurney, B., and a bill of exceptions having been tendered, a difference of opinion existed amongst the Judges in the Court of Error in the Exchequer Chamber, whether these letters ought to have been received; but a venire facias de novo was awarded on another ground. See Wright v. Tatham, 1 Ad. & Ell. 3; 3 N. & M. 260. Upon another trial before Gurney, B., at the Lancaster Sum. Ass. 1834, the letters were received in evidence, and the jury found a verdict for the defendant below. A motion having been made for a new trial, Lord Denman, after time taken to consider, delivered the judgment of the Court, declaring the letters to be inadmissible. Upon the trial of the same cause at the Lancaster Sum. Ass. 1836, before Mr. Justice Coleridge, the letters were rejected; the jury found for the plaintiff, and bills of exceptions were tendered on both sides. The case was twice argued in the Exchequer Chamber before the Judges in error, and upon the last argument before L. C. J. Tindal, Js. Parke, Bosanquet, and Coltman, and Barons Parke and Gurney. The learned Judges being equally divided in opinion, the case was carried into the House of Lords, where, after argument, six of the learned Judges were of opinion that none of the letters in question was admissible; three thought that all the letters were admissible, and three were of opinion that the letter indorsed by Barrow was distinguishable from the other two. On the 7th of June 1838 judgment was given for the defendant in error, affirming the rejection of the letters. Lord Brougham, in giving judgment, observed as follows: My Lords, I am now prepared to move the affirmance of the judgment of the Court below. I am perfectly satisfied that all the letters set forth in the bill of exceptions, and the admissibility of which formed the question on this appeal, were properly rejected at the trial, as not admissible in evidence, according to the rules which govern the reception of evidence in our courts of common law. I stated to your Lordships, on a former day, that that was my opinion, and that the only doubt I entertained arose in consequence of the difference of opinion among the learned Judges who assisted your Lordships with their advice. Six of those learned Judges gave their opinions that all the letters were properly rejected, the six others giving a different opinion, but also differing among themselves, three of them being of opinion that all the letters were admissible, and three that one only was admissible. I then stated that it appeared to me there was no ground for any distinction between Oliver Martin's letter and the other two; that if the two letters were properly rejected, as nine of the learned judges agreed they were, I did not see any ground of distinction between them and the third letter. But three of the learned Judges thought Mr. Martin's letter was distinguished from the other two by reason of the indorsement on it, by

The widow of Mr. Bennett claimed the whole of her husband's property under his will. Bennett had been greatly debilitated in mind and body by

Proof of capacity.

Mr. Barrow, who had been Mr. Marsden's attorney at the time of its date. That indorsement, which was proved to be in the hand-writing of Mr. Barrow, did not appear to me to form any ground of distinction, it rather tended to prove that Mr. Marsden had not seen that letter. The indorsement in the hand of a third person could not prove that Mr. Marsden acted on the letter, and without some act done by him in respect of it, all the Judges admitted that it could not be evidence of his competency, which was the matter in issue. In the next place, it was quite clear that Mr. Barrow read that letter; he was Mr. Marsden's solicitor, and his indorsement on it did not prove that Mr. Marsden transmitted it to him, or read it, or ever saw it; and to infer from the indorsement that he communicated it to his attorney, was assuming the very fact that was required to be proved. Then there is a failure of proof of his having done any act in respect of that letter, showing his competency to make his will; and the three letters were alike inadmissible for that purpose; and even on the showing of the learned Judges in favour of this letter (Mr. Martin's), there is no ground for holding it more entitled to be admitted than the other two letters. I never saw a clearer case, or one calling for a more unhesitating expression of opinion, and I move accordingly that the judgment of the Court of Exchequer Chamber be affirmed.

My noble and learned friend, Lord Lyndhurst, not having heard the arguments at your Lordships' bar, declines to deliver any opinion on them, but having read the opinions of the learned Judges, he authorizes me to say, that he agrees with me that the judgment of the Court below ought to be affirmed, as in accordance with the great principle of the rule of evidence in question.

Lord Denman.—I have not the advantage of having heard the arguments in this case at your Lordships' bar, nor the opinions delivered to your Lordships by the learned Judges. But I heard the question of the admissibility of these letters argued in the Court of King's Bench two years ago. It would not be proper for me to enter into the case at any length, but I wish to state to your Lordships the opinion which I formed, when the case was before the Court in which I have the honour to sit, and having carefully considered the judgment given by the Judges in the Exchequer Chamber since, I still adhere to the judgment of the Court of King's Bench. Supposing these letters were found and produced under circumstances free from all suspicion, and that they expressed the genuine opinions of the writers of them respecting the person to whom they were addressed, I continue to hold that that expression of opinion could not be admitted to prove the fact of his competency; and therefore, as declarations of opinion, they could not have the smallest influence on the question in issue. To infer from the circumstances under which these letters were found, that the testator acted on them, we must first assume his competency, which is the matter to be proved. The tendering of the letters under these circumstances, would rather make me jealous of extending the rules which guard the reception of evidence. The only question admitting of doubt, is, whether the letter of Mr. Martin is in a different situation from the other two. I could not see, after the most careful consideration, why a different rule of evidence should be applied to that letter. Had the testator himself indorsed it, that act might have proved the fact, for proof of which it was offered. But when I consider that the indorsement was not written by the testator, but by Mr. Barrow, his attorney, I do not understand how that indorsement could distinguish that letter from the others, so as to make it admissible to prove the testator's competency. There is no proof that he did any rational act in respect of that letter, unless we assume that his was the hand that wrote the indorsement, which is contrary to the evidence. I agree therefore with the opinion expressed by my noble and learned friend, that the judgment ought to be affirmed.

The Lord Chancellor.—It was my duty to attend to the arguments in this case at the bar, and also to the opinions delivered by the learned Judges, to whom I listened with the utmost attention, and their statements, although not binding on your Lordships, are entitled to the greatest weight and respect. They all seemed to agree in one point, that the letters, taken as the mere declarations of the opinions of the writers of them, could not be evidence of the competency of the person to whom they were addressed. Some of the learned Judges say all the letters ought to have been received in evidence because there was sufficient proof, as they conceived, that the testator acted on them. There is no doubt that if he had acted on them they would be receivable at all events, whatever might be the effect of them on the jury. But the question is, whether he did or did not act on them. They were found, together with other letters, open in a cupboard under a bookcase in the testator's private room, and one of them had an indorsement in the hand-writing of Mr. Barrow, who was then the testator's solicitor. Three of the learned Judges were of opinion that this indorsement distinguished that letter from the habits of debauchery, and the woman effected the marriage by getting into lodgings opposite to him at Bath, and no sooner were they married than she discharged all his servants. Lord Thurlow was much against the will, and two issues were directed as to its validity, in both of which it was established. L. C. J. Eyre, before whom it was tried, stated to the jury, that the point was, whether he perfectly knew what he was doing, and that they were not to enter too minutely into considerations of influence (u).

Proof of capacity.

other two, so as to render it admissible; three more thought all the letters admissible, while the other six thought none of them was receivable, because there was no proof that the testator acted on any of them; and with this conclusion I entirely concur, being, like them, of opinion that the testator did not act on any of the letters in such a way as would prove his competency to make his will. In order to introduce the letters there must be some accompanying proof that he was engaged in the matters to which they referred. There was no such proof, nor was there any of the person by whom the seals were broken or the letters were placed in the cupboard, but it was desired to be inferred that they were placed there by the testator. If he had placed them there after opening and reading them, these acts would be valuable to a certain extent as proof of his competency; but as there is no proof of his having so acted with regard to any of those letters, no inference can be drawn either in favour of his competency or against it. To infer these acts without proof would be assuming his competency, which is the very question in issue. One of the letters was indorsed by the testator's attorney; had it been indorsed by himself it would have been receivable; but from that act done by the attorney, no inference can be drawn as to the testator's competency; it is an act not more consistent with his competency than it was with his incompetency. To infer without proof that he dealt with the letters, is to assume his competency, which is the whole question. From the appearance of the letters no inference can be drawn whether he or another person had dealt with them. Mr. Barrow, whose indorsement was on the third letter, was as likely as the testator to be the person who opened it and gave directions on it. You cannot assume that the testator dealt with these letters. It is allowed by all that two of the letters are inadmissible; I think the third also inadmissible, and I agree that the judgment of the Court below ought to be affirmed.

Affirmed accordingly.

(u) Bennett's Case, 9 Ves. jun. 189. In the case of Doe v. Wright, Lancaster Summer Assizes, 1836, Coleridge, J., in summing up to the jury, stated (inter alia) as questions for their consideration,—Had he a mind sound, free from delusion? Did he know the state of his family and property, his own situation, and the act he was doing, if expressed to him in plain and familiar language? In ejectment to try the title to lands, the sole question being as to the validity of a deed, upon the mental capacity of a party to execute it, the Judge directed the jury that the question for them to try was, "whether the person was of sound mind or not," but went on to explain that to constitute such unsoundness of mind as would avoid a deed at law, the party must be incapable of understanding and acting in the ordinary affairs of life; and that the jury were at liberty to consider whether he was capable of understanding what he did by executing the deed in question, when its general import was explained to him; it was held, that taking the whole direction together, it was right; and also, that if the question had been more vague and ambiguous, unless the objection had been brought distinctly to the notice of the Judge at the time, the plaintiff in error could not avail himself of it afterwards; if brought in that manner under his notice, and he had refused to clear it up, it might have been the subject of exception as well as any other matter of law. Ball v. Mannin, 1 Dow, N. S. 380. Where the wife, of advanced age, eight months after marriage, executed a will under a power, varying only from her former disposition of her fortune, in making a reasonable provision for her husband and his eldest son, and notwithstanding continued and severe bodily infirmity from paralytic attack, having never expressed any dissatisfaction or wish to vary such disposition, but on the contrary referred to it with anxiety to secure her intended benefit to the family of one of the objects who had become bankrupt, after the lapse of nine years, and shortly before her death, executed another will, giving the whole to her husband; the Court, regarding the total improbability of such a change of disposition, the previous anxiety of the husband to acquire possession of the former will, and the control of her affairs, and the facts of her being at the time of executing such second will in a state of very weakened and doubtful capacity, and the factum of the will originating with and carried on entirely by his means and interference, and by contrivance to prevent the access of other persons at the time in her confidence, pronounced against its being the real mind and wish of a capable and free testatrix, and condemned the husband in costs. Marsh v. Tyrrell, 2

Proof of capacity.

The heir at law is not estopped from impeaching a will on the grounds of the testator's insanity, although he has himself proved the will in the Ecclesiastical Court, and retained the legacies (v).

The manner in which a will has been written and executed, and the contents of the will itself, coupled with the situation of the testator, and the circumstances under which it was made, afford important evidence as to his capacity (w). And it seems that from such evidence alone, where the terms of the supposed will are such as tend to exclude the supposition of the maker's sanity, the jury may decide against the validity of a will (x). But it is clear, on the other hand, that it is not sufficient to show that the dispositions of the will are imprudent and unaccountable (y).

The capability of the testator to discharge the duties of a public situation affords a strong presumption of his capacity to make a will (z).

Proof of lucid interval.

It has already been observed, that when confirmed insanity at any period of time antecedent to the making of the will has been established, it lies on the devisee to prove the competency of the testator (a) when he made the will.

Lord Thurlow (b) observed, that if the derangement be proved, or be admitted to have at any time existed, and a lucid interval be alleged to have taken place, the burthen of proof attaches to the party alleging such lucid interval, who must show sanity and competency at the particular period when the act was done to which the lucid interval refers. And it is certainly of equal importance, when derangement at any period has been established, that the evidence in support of a lucid interval should be as strong and demonstrative as where the object of proof is to establish derangement itself.

It is, however, to be recollected, that a lucid interval, from its very nature, does not admit of that full measure of proof which positive insanity affords by symptoms and indications of a decisive nature (c). This doctrine, Hagg. 84; S. P. Mynn v. Robinson, 2 Hagg. 179.

(v) Lord Montague's Case, 9 Mod. 90.

(w) 9 Ves. jun. 610.

(x) Burr v. Daval, 8 Mod. 59.

(y) Ib. Sir T. Daval had two sons, and being taken ill on the 15th of April 1719, made his will, devising an estate of 1,600*l.* a year to his eldest son and the heirs of his body, and another of 1,700*l.* to his youngest, and the heirs of his body. If either of his sons should die without issue, the estate of him so dying was to go to the survivor; but if both his sons should die with issue, the two estates were devised to Daniel Burr. The sons died without issue, and it appeared that a jointure of 600*l.* had been charged on the estate devised to the elder brother; but the verdict was in favour of the will.

(z) See Greenwood's Case, 3 Bro. C. C. 444; 13 Ves. jun. 89. See also White v. Wilson, 12 Ves. 87. Apparent sanity on some subjects is not conclusive proof that delusion on particular subjects, and showing itself on particular occasions, does not exist. And it seems that in civil cases this partial insanity, if existing at the time of an act done, invalidates that act, although it be not directly connected with it. It has been said that where there is delusion of mind there is insanity; as where persons believe things to exist which exist only, or at least in that degree exist only, in their own imagination, and of the non-existence of which neither argument nor proof can convince them, and which no rational person could have believed. This delusion may sometimes exist on one or two particular subjects, though generally there are other concomitant circumstances, such as eccentricity, irritability, violence, suspicion, exaggeration, inconsistency, and other marks and symptoms which may tend to confirm the existence of delusion and to establish its insane character. Judgment of Sir J. Nicholl in Dew v. Clarke, Haggard's R. 1826.

(a) Supra, 1276, note (i).

(b) Attorney General v. Parnther, 3 Bro. C. C. 443.

(c) See the observations of Sir J. Nicholl, in giving judgment in the case of White v. Driver, 1 Phill. R. 88. He says, "It is scarcely possible indeed to be too strongly impressed with the great degree of caution necessary to be observed in examining the proof of a lucid interval;

Proof of lucid interval.

therefore, cannot be extended farther than to require, that where insanity at an antecedent period has been satisfactorily established, its continuance shall be presumed until that presumption be satisfactorily rebutted.

The fact that the will itself is a sensible one, provided it can be completely proved that the party who made it, framed it without assistance, affords a presumption that it was made during a lucid interval (d). But although the wisdom and prudence of a will, when fully established to be the work of the testator, affords a reasonable, nay, even a strong presumption of his sanity, the more especially where it is made under circumstances which required the judgment and foresight of a rational mind, and em-but the law recognizes acts done during such an interval as valid, and the law must not be defeated by any overstrained demands of the proof of the fact."

Lord Thurlow, in the case of the Attorney General v. Parnther, also observed, "There is an infinite, nay, an almost insurmountable, difficulty in laying down abstract propositions on a subject which depends on such a variety of circumstances as the establishment of lucid intervals. General rules are easily framed, but the application of them creates considerable difficulty, where they are not sufficiently comprehensive to meet every circumstance which may enter into and materially affect each particular case. There can be no difficulty in asserting, that wherever the mind acts, it ought to act efficiently, and to be in possession of itself; but it is not easy to lay down with tolerable precision the rules by which the state of a person's mind can be tried."

He further observed, that "evidence applying to lucid intervals ought to go to the state and habit of the person, and not to the accidental interviews of any individuals, or to the degree of self-possession when performing particular acts; for it would be extremely dangerous from particular acts to draw a conclusion so general, as that a person who had confessedly before laboured under mental derangement, was capable of doing that which should be binding upon himself and others, and from such acts to try the state of the mind in those cases in which the disorder is, as it is most frequently, insanity quoad hoc. At the same time, though partial insanity frequently prevails, yet it must always be watched with infinite care; and it seems scarcely possible to extract from any particular case that which will apply to any other."

(d) Godolph. 25. Swinburn observes, "If a lunatic person, or one that is beside himself at times but not continually, makes his testament, and it is not known whether the same were made while he was of sound mind and memory or not, then in case the testament be so conceived as thereby no argument of frenzy or of folly can be gathered, it is to be presumed that the same was made during the time of his calm and clear intermission, and so the testament shall be adjudged good; yea, although it cannot be proved that the testator useth to have any clear and quiet intermissions at all, yet nevertheless, I suppose that if the testament be wisely and orderly framed, the same ought to be accepted for a lawful testament."

Sir W. Wynne, in the case of Cartwright v. Cartwright (1 Phill. R. 90), observes, "I think the strongest and best proof that can arise as to the lucid interval, is that which arises from the act itself; that I look upon as the thing to be first examined; and if it can be proved and established that it is a rational act rationally done, the whole case is proved. In my apprehension, where you are able completely to establish that, the law does not require you to go further; and the citation from Swinburn states it to be so. The manner in which he has laid it down is, 'If a lunatic person, or one that is beside himself at times but not continually, makes his testament, and it is not known whether the same were made while he was of sound mind and memory or not, then in case the testament be so conceived as thereby no argument of frenzy or folly can be gathered, it is to be presumed that the same was made during the time of his calm and clear intermission, and so the testament shall be adjudged good; yea, although it cannot be proved that the testator useth to have any clear and quiet intermissions at all, yet nevertheless, I suppose that if the testament be wisely and orderly framed, the same ought to be accepted for a lawful testament.' Unquestionably there must be complete and absolute proof that the party who had so framed it, did it without any assistance. If the fact be so, that he has done without assistance as rational an act as can be, what then is more to be proved? I do not know, unless it can be shown by any authority or law what the length of the lucid interval is to be, whether an hour, a day, or a month. I know no such law as that; all that is wanting is, that it should be of sufficient length to do the rational act intended. I look upon it, that if you are able to establish the fact that the act done is perfectly proper, and that the party who is alleged to have done it was free from disorder at the time, that is completely sufficient."

braces numerous and complicated provisions, it is still but a natural presumption, which admits of absolute proof to the contrary (e). Proof of lucid interval.

But it seems that a slight indication of folly in the instrument itself, would be sufficient to rebut such a presumption (f).

These however, it is to be recollected, are not presumptions of law, but, upon the trial which involves the capacity of a testator to make a will, are mere natural presumptions for the consideration of the jury under all the circumstances of the case.

It is by no means necessary to show that a testator who has once been deranged had, at the time of making the will, regained all the powers of mind which distinguished him before the malady; all that is essential is, that he should be restored to a disposing mind, capable of doing an act of thought and judgment (g).

If a testator be proved to have been non compos at the time of making his will, it is absolutely void, although it be proved that he afterwards recovered his senses (h).

Primâ facie evidence of a will may in the next place be rebutted by proof of revocation. The Stat. of Frauds (29 Car. 2, c. 3, sect. 6,) enacts, that no devise of lands, tenements or hereditaments, nor any clause thereof, shall be revocable, otherwise than by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing declaring the same, or by burning, cancelling, tearing or obliterating the same, by the testator himself, or in his presence, and by his directions and consent; but all devises and bequests of lands and tenements shall remain and continue in force until the same be burnt, cancelled, torn or obliterated by the testator or his directions in manner aforesaid, or unless the same be altered by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing of the devisor, signed in the presence of three or four witnesses, declaring the same. Revocation.

In the first place, then, a will may be revoked by some other will or codicil in writing.—A second will does not revoke the first, unless its execution be perfect as an original will, even although it contain a clause of express revocation; for as it does not appear to have been the intention of the testator to revoke the former will without making another disposition of his property, and as the latter branch of the antecedent cannot be carried into effect, the law considers the act to be a nullity; as where the second will is attested by three witnesses, but they do not sign their names in the testator's presence (i). Second will.

The mere fact of making a second will does not operate as a revocation of the first will. If a man by a second will revoke a former will, yet if he keep the first will undestroyed, and then cancel the second, the first will is revived (k). And where the jury found that the testator had made a second

(e) It must be agreed, that the wisdom of a testament is, without doubt, a very strong presumption of the sanity of the testator. It was upon the authority of this presumption that the senate of Rome formally confirmed a testament made by a person in a state of insanity; because there was nothing unreasonable in his disposition they fairly presumed that it was made in a lucid interval, and they forgot the certain madness of the testator in contemplating the good sense of the testament. It was upon a similar colour that the Emperor Leo the philosopher decided, in his 39th Novel, that the testament of an interdicted prodigal ought to be executed, provided it contained nothing unworthy of the character of a man of prudence. Pleading of D'Aguesseau, 2 Ev. Pothier, 525.

(f) Godolph. 25.

(g) See Lord Eldon's observations, ex parte Holyland, 11 Ves. 11.

(h) 11 Mod. 157.

(i) Onyons v. Tyrer, 1 P. Wms. 343. Edleston v. Speke, 1 Show. 89; Carth. 80. Limberg v. Mason, Com. 454.

(k) Per Lord Mansfield, in Harwood v. Goodright, Cowp. 91. Glazier v. Gla- will different from the former, but added, "in what particulars is unknown to the said jurors," it was held that there was in point of law no revocation of the former will (l).

Other writing.

Or other writing signed in the presence of three or four witnesses.—The terms of this clause import that the testator shall sign the writing in the presence of the witnesses; but they do not require, as in the case of a will, that the witnesses shall sign in the presence of the testator (m). The latter words of the clause relate to the words other writing, and not to the word will; and therefore a will does not operate as a revocation, unless it be a complete will under the fifth section, subscribed by the witnesses in the testator's presence. On the other hand, a complete will operates as a revocation, although the testator does not sign it in the presence of the witnesses (n).

Cancellation.

Or by burning, cancelling, tearing, &c.—To prove a revocation of this nature it must appear that an act of cancellation was done with the intent to cancel the will. As far as concerns the act, which is the mere symbol of intention, it is unnecessary to show a complete destruction or obliteration (o). If a testator having made two parts of a will, destroy one of them animo revocandi, it annuls both. So where a testator having frequently declared himself to be dissatisfied with a will, ordered a person to fetch it (being in bed near the fire), and when it was brought, gave it a rent and threw it into the fire, where it would have been burnt had not the person who fetched it taken it off undiscovered by the testator (p).

No violence to the instrument will operate as a revocation, where the party was of unsound mind at the time of the act (q).

Intention.

The question of revocation may either be one of fact or of law; but where it turns on the intention of the devisor, it seems to be a question of fact for the jury. In the case of Titner v. Titner, where there were interlineations in a will, the question of revocation was left to the jury (r); yet in the late case of Winsor v. Pratt (s), where the testator after the execution of his will made interlineations and obliterations, and afterwards made a fair copy, which was never signed, published or attested, and both the interlined will and the copy were found locked up in a drawer at his residence, the Court seem to have decided upon the fact of intention, and upon a special case being reserved, held that the will had not been revoked (t).

Declarations of the testator.

Declarations by the testator which are cotemporary with the act, are not only admissible, but most important evidence to prove his intention, and the legal quality of the act (u). If a will proved to have been executed, zier, 4 Burr. 2512, cited by Buller, J. Doug. 40.

(l) Harwood v. Goodright, Cowp. 87, in K. B. in error, in affirmance of the judgment of the C. P., and afterwards in the House of Lords.

(m) 1 P. Wms. 345.

(n) Hoil v. Clarke, 3 Mod. 218. Ellis v. Smith, cor. Lord Hardwicke, Ibid. 220, in not. Leach's edit.; 4 Burn's Ecc. L. 199.

(o) Winsor v. Pratt, 2 B. & B. 650. Doe d. Perkes v. Perkes, 3 B. & A. 489. Bibb v. Thomas, 2 Bl. R. 1043.

(p) Sir Edward Symon's Case, cited Com. 453. See Titner v. Titner, 3 Wils. 508.

(q) Where the will of a person who had become insane was found smeared and gnawed, and no evidence was given of the state of his mind when it was done, it was held in the Prerogative Court, that according to the general rule, the rationality or irrationality of the agent was to be judged of from the nature of the act; and therefore, under the circumstances, the party being of unsound mind at the time of such cancelling, the will was established. Scruby v. Fordham, 1 Phill. Add. 74; and see below.

(r) By Wilmot, L. C. J., as cited by Gould, J. 3 Wils. 508.

(s) 2 B. & B. 650.

(t) Winsor v. Pratt, 2 B. & B. 650.

(u) Burtenshaw v. Gilbert, Cowp. 53. The delivery of the will to the executor by and which after execution remained in the custody of the testator, cannot be found after his death, a presumption (according to the practice of the Ecclesiastical Courts) arises that he has cancelled the will, and the burthen of proving the contrary is thrown on the party alleging the contrary (x).

Revocation by implication of law.

In the next place it seems to be now established, that a will may not only be revoked by the means pointed out by the plain letter of the Statute of Frauds, but even by an implication arising out of collateral circumstances. Thus it has been held that the subsequent marriage of the testator, and the birth of a child, afford a presumption of revocation (y) of a will which would otherwise entirely exclude them.

Implied revocation.

But upon the nature and grounds of this presumption a difference of opinion has existed. In the case of Brady v. Cubitt (z), Lord Mansfield, C. J., and Ashurst and Buller, Js., were of opinion that such a presumption was a mere præsumptio juris, which might be rebutted even by parol evidence to the contrary, the doctrine being founded on a mere presumption of intention on the part of the testator to revoke his will under the circumstances (a). But Lord Kenyon, in the case of Doe d. Lancashire v. Lancashire (b), intimated an opinion that the foundation of the principle was not so much an intention to alter the will, implied from those circumstances happening afterwards, as a tacit condition annexed to the will itself, at the time of making it, that the party does not then intend that it should take effect if there should be a total change in the situation of his family. And his lordship observed, that if the decisions on the subject were referrible to a subsequent intention, the principle would be considerably disturbed by the argument of Baron Perrot, in Christopher v. Christopher; and the circumstance of a conception not communicated to the husband, or of a miscarriage subsequent to his death; the latter of which might have some influence on the intention of the devisor, and yet would not operate as a the party, become a widow, with other recognitions, was held to be sufficient evidence of republication of the will made whilst under coverture, and was declared entitled to general probate. Miller v. Brown, 2 Hagg. 209.

(x) Loxley v. Jackson, 3 Phill. 128. The deceased executed his will in India, in duplicate, one part of which was sent to him after his return to this country, and was never traced out of his possession, and not found at his death, it was held that the presumption was, that he had destroyed that part; and that unless that fact were repelled by evidence, the legal consequence was, the intention to revoke thereby the duplicate not in his possession. Colvin v. Frazer, 2 Hagg. 266. Such a presumption may be repelled by strong circumstances, as well as by direct positive evidence.

(y) Brady v. Cubitt, Doug. 30. Speke's Case, Carth. 81. Earl of Lincoln v. Rolls, in Dom. P. 1695, 1 Eq. C. 412. Tickner v. Tickner, cited 3 Atk. 742. Wellington v. Wellington, 4 Burr. 2165. Christopher v. Christopher, 4 Burr. 2182. A will in favour of the issue of a former marriage, is not revoked by a subsequent marriage and birth of issue, where the latter are provided for under a settlement; and semble, it does not vary the case, whether the provision is out of the husband's or the wife's property. Talbot v. Talbot, 1 Hagg. 705. Marriage and issue not being an absolute revocation of a will, but presumptive only, and capable of being repelled by circumstances; held, that where the second wife and her issue were provided for, and the testator was shown to have been fully aware of the existence of the former will, providing for the issue of a former marriage, the will was not by implication revoked. Johnson v. Wells, 2 Hagg. 561. T. having devised land to A. for life, with remainder to his sons and daughters in tail upon the death of A., and a son of A. known to T., a posthumous daughter of A. surviving unknown to T., by a codicil reciting that A. had died without leaving any issue, devised the premises to H., it was held to be but a conditional revocation; it was also held that T.'s subsequent knowledge of the daughter two years before her death, did not establish the codicil. Doe v. Evans, 2 P. & D. 378.

(z) Doug. 30.

(a) Ibid. And see the cases of Emmerson v. Boville, 1 Phill. R. 342. Holloway v. Clarke, Ibid. 339. Johnston v. Johnston, Ibid. 468.

(b) 5 T. R. 58.

Implied revocation.

revocation; and the former would have that effect, though it could not influence his intention.

The doctrine of implied revocations, which is borrowed from the civil law, did not prevail after the express enactments contained in the Statute of Frauds, without hesitation and reluctance; even in the case of Christopher v. Christopher, where the doctrine was finally sanctioned, a very able Judge dissented from it, lest the Statute of Frauds should be repealed (c).

The admisibility of parol evidence of the testator's declarations to rebut the presumption of revocation, although borrowed from the same source with the doctrine itself, seems to be still subject to great doubt, founded not only on the loose and uncertain nature of such evidence, but upon the very principles on which the presumption itself rests (d).

In the case of Kennebel v. Scrafton (e), the Court, upon the ground of preceding authorities, held that the marriage and subsequent birth of a child (f), without provision made for the objects of those relations, of themselves operated as a revocation of a will of lands, and that the rule applied in those cases only where there was an entire disposition of the whole estate (g) to their exclusion and prejudice. And the Court left the question, how far the presumption of revocation might be rebutted by the parol declarations of the testator, untouched.

On what lands a will operates.

As a will of lands can operate on such lands only as the devisor had when he executed the will, the operation of a will as to particular property may be defeated, by showing that it was purchased after the execution of the will (h), or that subsequently to the execution he levied a fine (i), or suffered a recovery of lands (j) which he had at the time of the execution of the will, for he thereby takes a new estate. And if a testator, having made his will, levy a fine to such uses as he shall by deed or will appoint, and die without making a new will, the will made prior to the fine is revoked (k).

(c) See the observations of Lord Ellenborough, 2 East, 538; and of Lord Kenyon, C. J. in Doe d. Lancashire v. Lancashire, 5 T. R. 37; and of Sir J. Nicholl, in Johnston v. Johnston, 1 Phill. 468.

(d) See Lord Kenyon's observations, in Doe d. Lancashire v. Lancashire, 5 T. R. 49; and of Lord Alvanley, in Gibbon v. Caunt, 4 Ves. 848; and of the Lord Chancellor, in the case of Kennebel v. Scrafton, 5 Ves. jun. 664, in opposition to such evidence. On the other hand, the opinion of Eyre, C. J., in Goddtitle v. Otway, 2 H. B. 522; the case of Lugg v. Lugg, Lord Raym. 441; of Brady v. Cubitt, Doug. 31. Such evidence is admitted in the Ecclesiastical Courts. Phill. R. vol. 1, 341. 460. 469. The presumptive revocation of a will by marriage or the birth of children, may be rebutted by strong evidence of intention; but the Court must be satisfied unequivocally. A codicil made after the birth of a child, not directly pointing to the particular will, contrasted with the testator's expressions and other evidence, was held to be insufficient to repel the presumption. Gibbons v. Cross, 1 Add. 455.

(e) 2 East, 530.

(f) Both must concur; 4 M. & S. 10. Where there is a family by a former wife, there will be a revocation of a will of personalty only. Skeath v. Yorke, 1 Ves. & B. 390.

(g) The rule applies in those cases only where the wife and children are wholly unprovided for. 1 Will. Saund. 278. d.

(h) The testator, after a devise of certain lands to his wife, afterwards also devised to her the whole residue of his leasehold, copyhold, and freehold estate; by a codicil, reciting his former devises to his wife, he devised, in case of certain events, all said estates so devised to his wife to trustees upon certain trusts; held, that it did not amount to a republication so as to pass after acquired lands. Smith v. Dearmer, 3 Y. & J. 278.

(i) Parker v. Biscoe, 3 Moore, 24. And see 1 Will. Saund. 277, note (4).

(j) Where a devisor, after he had made a will, suffered a recovery, in which, as well as in the deed to make a tenant to the præcipe, the tenant was called Edward, his real name being Edmund; in ejectment by the heir at law, it was held that the devisor and those who claimed under him were concluded by the estoppel, and that the will was thereby revoked. Doe d. Lushington v. Bishop of Landaff, 2 N. R. 491.

(k) Doe d. Dilnot v. Dilnot, 2 N. R. 491.

On what lands a will operates.

If a testator bequeath a lease, and afterwards renews it, the new lease will not pass (l), unless from the will it can be collected that the testator intended that the legatee should take the lease then subsisting, or any which he should afterwards make (m).

Where a party having surrendered copyhold lands to the use of his will, afterwards surrenders the same lands to the uses of his marriage settlement, the latter surrender does not revoke the former (n).

A will may be republished by re-execution of the will. And a codicil attested by three witnesses, and to be taken as part of the will, amounts to a republication of the will (o). And lands will pass conveyed between the date of the will and that of the codicil (p).

Where the lessee of the plaintiff claims under a will, and the defendant under a codicil, the defendant admitting the will is entitled to begin and reply (q).

Where a party married and afterwards made his will, and devised to his wife, and afterwards died, leaving his wife enceint of a daughter, her pregnancy being unknown to him, it was held that the birth of the daughter was no revocation (r).

In ejectment by an heir, the plaintiff having proved a title as heir, upon which the defendant set up title under a will, held that the plaintiff was entitled to prove in reply a subsequent will, revoking the former devise as in contradiction of the defendant's case, and not as part of his own case in chief (s).

Great alterations have been made on this important subject by the stat. 7 W. 4, and 1 Viet. c. 26, which does not, however, extend to any will made before the 1st day of January 1838 (t).

By sec. 3, all real and personal estate, comprising customary freeholds and copyholds without surrender, and before admittance, although not devisable before the statute, estates pur autre vie, contingent interests, rights of entry, and property acquired after the execution of the will, are devisable.

Sec. 4. Provision is made as to fees and fines payable by devisees of customary and copyhold estates.

Sec. 5. Wills or extracts of wills of customary freeholds and copyholds are to be entered on the court rolls, without setting forth any trusts; the same fine, dues, &c. are payable as would have been as against the customary heir in the case of a descent.

Sec. 6. Makes provision for estates pur autre vie, of a freehold nature; they are chargeable in the hands of the heir (by reason of special occupancy) as assets by descent, as in the case of freehold land in fee simple; and where (l) Colcby v. Manley, 6 Madd. 84. And see James v. Dean, 15 Ves. 238. Marwood v. Turner, 3 P. Wms. 103.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Vawser v. Jeffery, 3 B. & A. 462.

(o) Goodtitle v. Meredith, 2 M. & S. 5. See also 1 Wm. Saund. 277, f. Hulme v. Heygate, 6 Mer. 285. Rowley v. Eylon, 2 Mer. 128.

(p) Goodtitle v. Meredith, 4 M. & S. 5.

(q) Doe v. Corbett, 3 Camp. C. 368.

(r) Doe v. Barford, 4 M. & S. 10.

(s) Doe v. Gosley, 2 M. & R. 243; and 9 C. & P. 46.

(t) Sect. 34. The clause also provides that every will re-executed or republished, or revived by any codicil, shall, for the purpose of the Act, be deemed to have been made at the time at which the same shall be so re-executed or revived; and that the Act shall not extend to any estate pur autre vie of any person who shall die before the 1st of January 1838. Wills executed previously are not exempt from the operation of the statute, as to any acts done after the passing of the statute. Hobbs v. Knight, 1 Curt. 768. It is observable that the clause applies to the time of making the will, not to the death of the testator. The date apparent on the will would be presumed to be true in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

there is no special occupant of any estate pur autre vie, it shall go to the personal representatives, and be assets in his hands applicable and distributable as personal estate.

Sec. 7. A will by one under the age of 21, is invalid.

Sec. 8. So if made by a married woman, unless such will would have been valid before the Act.

Sec. 9. No will shall be valid unless it shall be in writing and executed in the manner hereinafter mentioned, that is to say, it shall be signed at the foot (x), or end (y) thereof, by the testator or some other person in his presence, and by his direction, and such signature shall be made or acknowledged (z) by the testator in the presence (a) of two or more witnesses present at the same time; and such witnesses shall attest (b), and shall subscribe (c) the will in the presence of the testator (d), but no form (e) of attestation shall be necessary.

Sec. 10. No appointment made by a will in execution of any power, shall be valid unless the same be executed as thereinbefore required; and every will executed in the manner thereinbefore required shall, so far as respects the execution and attestation thereof, be a valid execution of a power of appointment by will, notwithstanding it shall have been expressly required that a will made in execution of such power should be executed with some additional or other form of execution or solemnity.

Sec. 11. Any soldier being in actual military service, or any mariner or seaman being at sea, may dispose of his personal estate as before the Act.

(x) Although for greater certainty, if the will consists of several sheets, each should be signed at the foot, (see Right v. Price, 1 Doug. 241; Winsor v. Pratt, 2 B. & B. 650;) it is unnecessary to sign or to acknowledge the signing of any other than the last sheet.

(y) The testator signed the bottom of the first side, which was duly attested, but the will concluded on the other side without signature, the testament was held to be invalid. Milward, in the goods of, 1 Curt. 982.

(z) A constructive acknowledgment would not, as it seems, be sufficient, See Ross v. Ewer, 3 Atk. 156. Doe v. Burdett, 6 N. & M. 259. Mackinley v. Sison, 8 Sim. 561. A disclosure of the character of the instrument is not essential to the validity of a will; it was not so even when a publication was necessary. British Museum v. White, 6 Bing. 310; 3 Mo. & P. 609. Wright v. Wright, 5 Mo. & P. 316. But it seems that although the silence of the testator is not material, it was otherwise when silence was deceptive. Trimmer v. Jackson, 4 Burn. Ecc. L. 130, 6th edition.

(a) The witnesses must all be present when the signature of the testator or his acknowledgment is made, and the witnesses should be within sight and hearing of each other. In the goods of Bligh, Pre. Ct. of Cant. 1839.

(b) A party who signs the will by the testator's direction is a good attesting witness. Bailey, in the goods of, 1 Curt. 914.

(c) A mark would be a sufficient subscription either by the testator or a witness, see Harrison v. Harrison, 8 Ves. 186. Addy v. Guix, ib. 504. Where a mark is required, a seal is not sufficient. Smith v. Evans, 1 Wills. 313. Wright v. Wakeford, 17 Ves. 459.

(d) A will, whether signed by the testator, or by another for him, and afterwards acknowledged by him in the presence of attesting witnesses, is sufficient. Regan, in the goods of, 1 Curt. 908. Secus, where the testator having signed a codicil in the presence of the witnesses, they withdrew, and subscribed their names as such. Newman, in the goods of, 1 Curt. 914.

(e) i. e. as it seems no attestation clause is necessary. The terms of the statute are, however, somewhat obscure on this point. The addition of a formal memorandum is advisable in order to facilitate probate, which would not, it seems, be granted otherwise, without a special affidavit; also to afford evidence of title to the property devised; for a purchaser would otherwise require a statutory declaration (see 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 62,) by the witnesses; and lastly, to fix the attention of the witnessess upon the facts which it is expedient they should certify, and which, having certified, they could not afterwards so effectually deny. See Forms of Wills and Practical Notes, by Hayes & Jarman, 24.

Sec. 12. The Act is not to affect any of the provisions of the st. 11 G. 4, and 1 W. 4, c. 20, as to the wills of petty officers and seamen in the royal navy, and non-commissioned officers of marines and mariners, so far as relates to wages, pay, prize-money, bounty-money, or other monies payable in respect of services in the royal navy.

Sec. 13. No publication is requisite.

Sec. 14. If any person who shall attest the execution of a will shall at the time of the execution thereof, or at any time afterwards, be incompetent to be admitted a witness to prove the execution thereof, such will shall not on that account be invalid.

Sec. 15. Any beneficial devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or appointment of or affecting any real or personal estate (other than and except charges and directions for the payment of any debt or debts) to any attesting witness or the husband or wife of any attesting witness, shall be void, and such witness competent.

Sec. 16. In case any real or personal estate shall be charged with any debt or debts, and any creditor, or wife or husband of any creditor, shall attest the execution of such will, such creditor (f), notwithstanding such charge, shall be admitted a witness as to the validity or invalidity of such will.

Sec. 17. No executor is incompetent.

Sec. 18. Every will made by a man or woman shall be revoked by his or her marriage except a will made in exercise of a power of appointment where the estate appointed would not on default of appointment pass to his or her heir, customary heir, executor, or administrator, or the person entitled as his or her next of kin under the statute of distributions.

Sec. 19. No will is to be revoked by any presumption of intention, on the ground of an alteration in circumstances.

Sec 20. No will shall be revoked otherwise than as aforesaid, or by another will or codicil executed as before required, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which a will is before required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying (g) the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same (h).

Sec. 21. No obliteration, interlineation, or any alteration (i) made in any will after the execution thereof shall be valid or have any effect except so far as the words or effect of the will before such alteration shall not be apparent, unless such alteration shall be executed in like manner as before is required for the execution of the will, but the will with such explanation as part thereof, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the tes-

(f) This clause in terms makes the creditor only competent, but the principle extends to the wife or husband of a creditor.

(g) The erasure of the testator's signature, animo revocandi, is a revocation of a will, and, as it seems, also a destruction of a will within the statute. Hobbs v. Knight, 1 Curt. 768. The statute in such case applies to a will made in 1835, the act being done after January 1st, 1838. Ib.

(h) The tearing of a will by a testator in a fit of delirium, for which he afterwards expressed his regret, wishing that it should operate, is not a revocation. Shaw, in the goods of, 1 Curt. 905.

(i) Where the testator executed a will prior to the statute, and after the statute erased the word either three or five, and inserted the word one, without attestation, it was held that probate must be granted in blank as to that word. Livock, in the goods of, 1 Curt. 906. A will, therefore, notwithstanding any mere defacing of the writing, would remain in force so far as its contents were discernible, unless the cancellation were attended with the requisites essential to the making of a will.

tator and the subscription of the witnesses be made in the margin or some other part of the will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or opposite to a memorandum referring to such alteration, and written at the end or some other part of the will.

Sec. 22. No will or codicil, or any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked, shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and shewing an intention to revive the same; and when any will or codicil which shall be partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked shall be revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary shall be shown.

Sec. 23. No conveyance or other act made or done subsequently to the execution of a will of or relating to any real or personal estate therein comprised, except an act by which such will shall be revoked as aforesaid, shall prevent the operation of the will with respect to such estate, or interest in such real or personal estate, as the testator shall have power to dispose of by will at the time of his death (k).

Sec. 24. Every will shall be construed with reference to the real estate and personal estate comprised in it, to speak and take effect as if it had been executed immediately before the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

Sec. 25. Unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, such real estate or interest therein as shall be comprised, or intended to be comprised, in any devise in such will contained, which shall fail or be void by reason of the death of the devisee in the lifetime of the testator, or by reason of such devise being contrary to law, or otherwise incapable of taking effect, shall be included in the residuary devise (if any) contained in such will (l).

Sec. 26. A devise of the land of the testator, or of the land of the testator in any place or in the occupation of any person mentioned in his will or otherwise described in a general manner, and any other general devise which would describe a customary copyhold or leasehold estate, if the testator had no freehold estate which could be described by it, shall be construed to include the customary copyhold and leasehold estates of the testator, or his customary copyhold and leasehold estates, or any of them, to which such description shall extend, as the case may be, as well as freehold estates, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

Sec. 27. A general devise of the real estate of the testator, or of the real estate of the testator in any place or in the occupation of any person mentioned in his will, or otherwise described in a general manner, shall be construed to include any real estate or any real estate to which such description (k) The constructive revocation of devises by the execution of conveyances designed only to create a charge on the estate, or to effect some other limited purpose, but stretched by technical reasoning far beyond the intention, often produced injustice. See Butlin v. Fletcher, 2 Mylne & C. 432. Hayes & Jarman's Practical View, &c. 31.

(l) Independently of this clause, if Whiteacre be devised to A. in fee and the residue of the real estate to B., and A. die before the testator, Whiteacre does not fall into the residue but descends to the heir. And so, generally, the property or interest comprised in every devise expiring or incapable of effect from any cause whatever, falls into the realty. See Page v. Page, 2 P. Wms. 489. Williams v. Goodtitle, 10 B. & C. 895. Jones v. Mitchell, 1 Sim. & Stu. 293. The result of this alteration taken in connexion with the extension of the disposing power to after-acquired lands is that a testator whose will contains a complete and operative general or residuary devise in fee, cannot die intestate in respect of any portion of his real estate. See Practical View, &c. of the New Statute of Wills, by Hayes & Jarman, 35.

shall extend (as the case may be), which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, and in like manner a bequest of the personal estate of the testator, or any bequest of personal property described in a general manner shall be construed to include any personal estate, or any personal estate to which such description shall extend (as the case may be), which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power unless a contrary intention appear by the will.

Sec. 28. Where any real estate shall be devised to any person, without any words of limitation, such devise shall be construed to pas the fee-simple, or other the whole estate or interest which the testator had power to dispose of by will in such real estate, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

Sec. 29. In any devise or bequest of real or personal estate, the words, "die without issue," or, "die without leaving issue," or, "have no issue," or any other words which may import either a want or failure of issue of any person in his lifetime, or at the time of his death, or an indefinite failure of his issue, shall be construed to mean a want or failure of issue in the lifetime, or at the time of the death of such person, and not an indefinite failure of his issue, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, by means of such person having a prior estate tail, or of a preceding gift, being, without any implication arising from such words, a limitation of an estate tail to such person or issue, or otherwise. Provided, that this Act shall not extend to cases where such words as aforesaid import, if no issue described in a preceding gift shall be born, or if there shall be no issue who shall live to attain the age, or otherwise answer the description required for obtaining a vested estate by a preceding gift to such issue (m).

Sect. 30. Where any real estate (other than and not being a presentation to a church,) shall be devised to any trustee or executor, such devise shall be construed to pass the fee-simple, or other the whole estate or interest which the testator had power to dispose of by will in such real estate, unless a definite term of years, absolute or determinable, or an estate of freehold shall thereby be given to him, expressly or by implication.

Sec. 31. Where any real estate shall be devised to a trustee, without any express limitation of the estate to be taken by such trustee, and the beneficial interest in such real estate, or in the surplus rents or profits thereof, shall not be given to any person for life, or such beneficial interest in such real estate, or in the surplus rents or profits thereof, shall not be given to any person for life, or such beneficial interest shall be given to any person for life, but the purposes of the trust may continue beyond the life of such person, such devise shall be construed to vest in such trustee the fee-simple, or other the whole legal estate which the testator had power to dispose of by will in such real estate, and not an estate determinable when the purposes of the trust shall be satisfied.

(m) Although enactments annexing a rigid technical meaning to any popular form of words are attended with risk of defeating the real intention of the parties using them; yet, on the other hand, such a rigid construction has great advantages over a fluctuating technical construction, which is so frequent a source of fruitless litigation. A rigid legislative construction may defeat the testator's intention, but the less frequently if the legislative sense be that which is the most usually coincident with the popular sense of the words, and at all events doubt is excluded as to the sense in which the words will be construed; but whilst a loose, fluctuating, but technical, construction very often defeats the intention, it is also productive of uncertainty and useless litigation. One of the latest cases on the construction of such words is that of Doe v. Simpson, 4 Bing. N. C. 333, in which many of the conflicting authorities on the subject are cited. It is remarkable, that there the Court, in a doubtful case, construed the words (applying to a copyhold estate) in a sense different from that imposed by the above clause.

Sec. 32. Where any person to whom any real estate shall be devised for an estate tail, or an estate in quasi entail, shall die in the lifetime of the testator, leaving issue who would be inheritable under such entail, and any such (n) issue shall be living at the time of the death of the testator, such devise shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of such person had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention should appear in the will (o).

Sec. 33. Where any person, being a child or other issue of the testator, to whom any real or personal estate shall be devised or bequeathed, for any estate or interest not determinable on or before the death of such person, shall die in the lifetime of the testator, leaving issue, and any such issue of such person shall be living at the time of the death of the testator, such devise or bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of such person had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will (p).

WINDOWS.

Case for obstructing lights.

THE nature of the evidence to support an action for obstructing lights has already been adverted to (q). It is unnecessary either to allege or prove the messuage to be ancient (r), and twenty years adverse possession affords presumptive evidence of a grant (s), but subject to explanation. And now, by the stat. 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71, the uninterrupted access and use of lights to and for the use of any dwelling-house, workshop, or other building (t), for the period of twenty years, gives an absolute indefeasible right, unless it appear that the enjoyment was by agreement or consent, expressed by deed or in writing (u).

If one having land, build on it and sell the remainder, neither he nor one (n) It seems to be clear that the word "such" is not to be construed as meaning the identical issue left by the devisee in tail at his death, but that the clause was intended to take effect if any issue in tail be living at the testator's death. The effect of this and the next following enactment is to place the persons claiming under the intended devisee or legatee in the same situation as if such devisee or legatee, instead of dying before had died immediately after the testator.

(o) If by a will antecedent to the statute, Blackacre was devised to A. (who died before the testator) in tail, and on failure of his issue to B., the devise to B. took effect immediately, although A. left issue surviving the testator. Brett v. Rigden, Plowd. 343. Hodgson v. Ambrose, 1 Doug. 337; 3 Bro. P. C. by Toml. 416. Doe v. Kett, 4 T. R. 601. Hayes & Jarman's Practical View, &c. 34.

(p) See the observations on sec. 32. Neither of these provisions is applicable where the fact of surviving the testator is involved in the very description of the objects, and where nothing can lapse by the death of an individual in his lifetime, as in the case of a gift to sons, daughters, children, or grandchildren, as a class; according to the ordinary rules of construction, such as died before the testator would be considered as not originally within the contemplation of the gift. See Hayes & Jarman's Practical View, &c. 1 Jarman on Dev. 307. Doe v. Sheffield, 13 East, 526. Barber v. Barber, 3 Mylne & C. 697. Vince v. Francis, 2 Cox, 190.

(q) Supra, tit. NUISANCE.

(r) Cox v. Matthews, 1 Vent. 137.

(s) Supra, 912. The uninterrupted enjoyment of lights for twenty years is not evidence of a grant by a rector; for he had no power to make such a grant. Barker v. Richardson, 4 B. & A. 579.

(t) The enjoyment of a sawpit and timber-yard for twenty years will not prevent a neighbour from interrupting the light and air. Roberts v. Macord, 1 Mo. & R. 230.

(u) Supra, tit. PRESCRIPTION, 921.

claiming under him, can obstruct the lights in derogation of his grant (v). And upon the same principle, where several adjoining portions of land on which the building of houses had been commenced were sold, and by the conditions of sale the houses were to be finished according to a particular plan within the space of two years, it was held that a purchaser of one of the lots could not, by erecting an additional building at the back of his house, obstruct the light from the windows of another purchaser who had built his house according to the plan (x); for the lots were sold under an implied condition that nothing should be done by which the windows for which spaces were then left might be obstructed (y), Case of obstructing light.

And where the owner of two adjoining houses occupied one, in which he had lately constructed a window, and let the other without condition, it was held that the tenant could not legally obstruct the owner (z).

An action does not lie for opening a window to the disturbance of the plaintiff's privacy; his only remedy is by building up against it (a).

It has been seen that in order to rebut the presumption of a grant from twenty years enjoyment, it may be shown that the acquiescence was not by the owner but by a mere tenant (b). But where windows had been enjoyed uninterruptedly for the space of thirty-eight years, the defendant, who had purchased the adjoining premises, on which he had built an addition to the house at the distance of four feet from the extremity of his premises, was held to be liable, although the family from whom he purchased lived at a distance, were not proved to have seen them, and they had been occupied by a tenant for twenty years (c).

As user affords evidence of right, non-user affords evidence of relinquishment. Where a party had in place of ancient windows erected a blank wall, which remained for seventeen years, and in the meantime the defendant, whose lands were contiguous, had erected a building next to the blank wall, and the plaintiff then opened a window in the place of the ancient window, it was held that he could not maintain an action (d). A defendant cannot justify an obstruction of ancient lights under the custom of London, allowing a party to build to any height upon ancient foundations, unless he be (v) Palmer v. Fletcher, 1 Lev. 122. A party demised one of two adjoining houses for twenty-one years, and afterwards demised the other, at which time there existed certain windows then lately altered; the first lessee afterwards surrendered his former and took a new lease; held, that he could not alter his own premises so as to obstruct the windows existing at the time of the lease to the plaintiff of the other house, although such altered windows were not shown to be of twenty years standing, the new lease to the defendant being derived out of the landlord's reversion, which was subject to the plaintiff's existing rights. Coutts v. Gorham, 1 M. & M. 396. A party sells a house, and also adjacent lands on which an erection of one story high had formerly stood, the purchaser of the latter cannot build to a greater height, although the house is described in the conveyance as bounded by building-ground belonging to the seller. Swansborough v. Coventry, 9 Bing. 305. And see Rosewell v. Pryor, 6 Mod. 116. Where the defendant justified the erection of a skylight, whereby the plaintiff's ancient window was darkened, under the custom of London allowing a party to build to any height upon ancient foundations, held that the custom must be confined to building on ancient foundations where all the four walls belong to the party; and semble, in order to support the custom, the walls which are raised must be as ancient at least as the lights they obstruct. Shadwell v. Hutchinson, 3 C. & P. 617. See as to the time of prescription, 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71. Supra, tit. PRESCRIPTION.

(x) Compton v. Richards, 1 Price, 27.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Riviere v. Brown, 1 Ry. & M. C. 24.

(a) Chandler v. Thompson, 3 Camp 80. And it has been held that the mere diminution of light, not so great as to render the house uncomfortable, or prevent a business from being carried on there as conveniently as before, will not support an action. Burke v. Stacey, 2 C. & P. 465.

(b) Supra, 670. 912.

(c) Cross v. Lewis, 2 B. & C. 686.

(d) Moore v. Rawson, 3 B. & C. 332.

Case for obstructing lights.

the owner of all the four walls (e). Evidence is admissible in defence, showing that the enjoyment of the lights has been essentially altered by the plaintiff himself, in a manner prejudicial to the defendant; he may have so altered the mode of enjoyment as to have lost the right altogether (f).

WORK AND LABOUR (g).

Special contract.

In an action to recover for work and labour done under a special contract, the proofs are,

1st. Of the Contract (h); 2dly. The performance of the work;
3dly. Where the plaintiff proceeds on a quantum meruit, the value.
4thly. Proofs in defence.

Contract.

1st. The Contract.—The rule, that where the parties have made an express contract, none can be implied, has prevailed so long that it has become a legal axiom (i). The rule applies, although the plaintiff seeks to recover for extras, and the defendant has admitted one item to be an extra (k). Where partial deviations have been made by consent (l), after part execution, the contract is binding as far as it can be traced, and the plaintiff is to recover on a quantum meruit as to the additional work (m).

A lessor contracted to pay his tenant at a valuation for certain erections, pursuant to a plan to be agreed upon, provided they were completed in two months, no plan was agreed upon, and after the condition had been broken the lessor encouraged the lessee to proceed with the work, and it was held that the lessee might recover for work and labour, on an implied promise arising out of such part of the former agreement as was applicable to the work (n).

Indebitatus assumpsit.

Where a specific contract is entered into as to the nature of the service and the terms of payment, and the work has been executed, the plaintiff may (e) Shadwell v. Hutchinson, 3 C. & P. 317. And semble, not unless the building the walls of which are raised, be as ancient as the window obstructed. Ib.

(f) Garritt v. Sharp, 3 Ad. & Ell. 325.

(g) See as to disputes between masters and workmen, the stat. 5 G. 4, c. 96. In the case of Lancaster v. Greaves, April 24, 1828, the Court of K. B. held that the 4 G. 4, c. 34, as to labourers and servants, did not apply to a person who had entered into a contract to do certain work on a road within a certain time, for a certain sum, he not being a servant working for wage. See Burn's J., tit. Servant.

(h) Supra, 55. As to the stamp, supra, 78, 1362. As to the necessity of a contract in writing, see the Stat. of Frauds, sec. 4; supra, 476. 486.

(i) Per Ld. Kenyon, in Cutter v. Powell, 6 T. R. 324. Where the defendant had made former payments for his child's schooling from quarter to quarter, and in a new quarter begun, the child falling ill, had been sent home by the plaintiff, without either party signifying an intention to put an end to the contract, or fault attributable to the plaintiff, it was held that the jury might imply a quarterly contract, and give the whole amount. Collins v. Price, 5 Bing. 132; and 2 M. & P. 243. Where a party originally entered as second mate, but during the voyage, and on the desertion of the first mate, performed his duties, it was held, that he was entitled, pro ratâ, to the same wages as his predecessor, although no new agreement had been entered into. Gondolier, 3 Hagg. 190.

(k) Vincent v. Cole, M. & M. 257. Secus, where an oral order is given for other work during the continuance of the first employment. Reid v. Bates, M. & M. 413.

(l) A workman is not entitled to recover in respect of alterations, unless the employer is expressly informed, or must necessarily be aware, from the nature of the work, that the expense will be decreased by such alterations. Lovelock v. King, 1 Mo. & R. 60.

(m) Robson v. Godfrey, 1 Starkie's C. 275. Pepper v. Burland, Peake's C. 103. Burn v. Miller, 4 Taunt. 745.

(n) Burn v. Miller, 4 Taunt. 745. So where the plaintiff, having engaged to complete cottages on the 14th of October, they were not completed, but the defendant had accepted them. Queen v. Goodwin, 3 Bing. N. C. 737. Secus, where a condition precedent is not waived, see below.

recover for work and labour generally (o), unless the terms of the agreement be of such a nature as to preclude a recovery except upon the contract itself; as where there are particular stipulations as to the times and mode of payment, and the whole time has not elapsed. But where the work has been executed, the plaintiff may recover on the general indebitatus count; for where the terms of an agreement have been performed, a duty is raised for which a general indebitatus assumpsit will lie (p). And it is settled that the plaintiff is entitled to recover on the general count, where the work has been performed, although he has also declared on a special agreement, and failed in the proof (q). Indebitatus assumpsit.

Where an entire contract has been entered into for work and labour, and for materials to be supplied, the plaintiff may recover the whole on the several general counts, for work and labour and materials found (r), which are applicable to the several parts of the contract: but where the contract is to build a house, he cannot recover for materials supplied, on a count for goods sold and delivered (s).

Under the indebitatus count, in the absence of a special contract, the plaintiff must prove, as alleged, that he performed the work upon the defendant's request, either by proof of a contract, or by direct (t) or presumptive evidence of a request.

It is expressly enacted that no seaman shall fail in any suit or process for the recovery of wages, for want of the production of the written contract (u).

(o) Leeds v. Burrows, 12 East, 1. Poulter v. Killingbecke, 3 B. & P. 197. Where the contract appeared, from what passed at the time of hiring, to be a contract for a year, determinable at a month's notice, it was held that the plaintiff could not recover on a count as on a contract for a year absolute; and that on the count for wages he could only recover for the actual time of service, and not for a month's wages extra. Archard v. Horner, 3 C. & P. 349.

(p) Gordon v. Martin, Fitzg. 302; B. N. P. 139. It seems that generally, where the payment of money is a duty on a consideration executed, the proper mode of declaring is in indebitatus assumpsit. See the observations of Parke, B. Streeter v. Horlock, 1 Bing. 37. And see Robson v. Godfrey, 1 Starkie's C. 275; Studdy v. Saunders, 5 B. & C. 638.

(q) Harris v. Oke, Winch. Summ. Ass. 1750, cor. Lord Mansfield, B. N. P. 139. Weaver v. Burrows, Str. 648; B. N. P. 139, contra. It has been said, that if the plaintiff prove a special agreement and the work done, but not pursuant to such agreement, he shall recover on the quantum meruit, for otherwise he would not be able to recover at all. B. N. P. 139. Mr. Keck's Case, Oxon. 1744. Ibid. But this, it seems, must be understood of cases where the defendant, notwithstanding the defect of performance, has not rescinded the contract in toto; for performance is a condition precedent to the claim for payment. Vide infra, 1298; and see Ellis v. Hamlin, 3 Taunt. 52.

(r) Cottrell v. Apsey, 6 Taunt. 322.

(s) Ibid. Gibbs, C. J. observed that the objection was a captious one.

(t) A. contracted with B. for a machine to be made by B.; B. after part performance of the work assigned it to C., and A. on being informed of the fact by C., directed him to complete it: A. is liable, on such request to C. for completing the machine. Oldfield v. Lowe, 9 B. & C. 73. But where A. (a patentee) received an order from B. to make a machine, and employed C. to make it, and informed B. that he had done so, and after the machine was complete A. ordered an alteration, which B. made accordingly, but A. refused to accept it; it was held that C. could not recover from B. either for goods bargained and sold, or for work, labour, and materials. For the property in the machine did not pass to the defendant, and the work and labour were bestowed and materials found for the purpose of ultimately effecting a sale; and that purpose not having been completed the contract was not executed, and an action for work and labour will not lie; but the Court held that an action for not accepting the machine might have been supported. Atkinson v. Bell, 8 B. & C. 277.

(u) 2 G. 2; 31 G. 3. And the plaintiff need not give notice to the defendant to produce the articles at the trial. The defendant, to take advantage of them, must produce them. Bowman v. Manzelman, 2 Camp. 315. The st. 2 G. 2, c. 36, does not apply to a British seaman who enters Indebitatus assumpsit.

In general, the request may be inferred from the defendant's acquiescence in the work which is carrying on upon his own premises, or from his voluntarily availing himself of the benefit of the plaintiff's services (x).

Request.

A request to a tradesman to show the house of the defendant, who intimated that he would make him a handsome present, is evidence of a contract to pay a reasonable compensation for the services of the plaintiff (y).

An action is not maintainable where the business is no more than the performance of the plaintiff's duty as a public officer (z).

A foreign consul resident in England, who receives a salary from his own government, cannot maintain an action for transacting business between merchants here, in which he acted as the officer of his own government, and under their express instructions (a).

But trustees and commissioners for executing public works, are liable to those whom they employ (b); and one who joins with others in directing work to be done, is jointly liable, although he may have no interest in the executed work (c).

A bailiff selected by an attorney to execute writs, may maintain an action against him for the fees usually paid on such occasions, and such as the Court is in the habit of allowing; and although the plaintiff would not, under the statute, have been able to recover such fees; for the attorney, by employing a particular bailiff, makes him in effect his servant, and gives him to understand that he will pay him so much as the Court is in the habit of allowing (d).

Where services are rendered upon an understanding that the remuneration is to be at the entire discretion of the employer, no action is maintainable. Thus, where a committee of persons resolved "that the services to be rendered by W. should be taken into consideration, and such remuneration made as should be deemed right," it was held that W. could not recover (e).

But it seems that one who fraudulently procures services to be rendered, on board a foreign ship in a British port. Dickman v. Benson, 3 Camp. 290.

(x) A. and B. entered into an agreement with the defendant to make certain machinery for him; part of the work was performed, and part of the money paid; A. and B., being unable to complete the work, assigned the work and machinery to the plaintiff, and the defendant being acquainted with the assignment, directed the plaintiff to go on with the work and he would see him paid; held, that the legal effect was to make a contract with the plaintiff for all the work that remained to be done, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover for the work, labour and materials. Oldfield v. Lowe, 9 B. & C. 73.

(y) Jewry v. Busk, 5 Taunt. 302. And see Lamb v. Bunce, 4 M. & S. 275.

(z) Roberts v. Havelock; see above, tit. TRUSTEE.—AGENT.

(a) De Lema v. Haldimand, 1 Ry. & M. 45.

(b) Supra. Tit. TRUSTEE.—AGENT.

(c) As where one contributes to the funds of a building society, and is party to a resolution that particular houses shall be built. Braithwaite v. Schofield, 9 B. & C. 401. And see Burls v. Smith, 7 Bing. 705; supra.

(d) Foster v. Blakelock, 5 B. & C. 328.

(e) Taylor v. Brewer, 1 M. & S. 290. So if a man do work in expectation of a legacy. Osborne v. Governors of Guy's Hospital, 2 Str. 728. See Jewry v. Busk, 5 Taunt. 302. It has been said that there is no implied assumpsit to pay an arbitrator for his trouble. Verany v. Warne, 4 Esp. C. 47. But see 1 Gow, 8. This, as it seems, is a question of fact depending on the circumstances of the particular case. Where a party was received on board a ship by the captain (a friend of the father's), on a trial voyage, and enjoyed certain indulgences amounting to a valuable consideration for the services performed, and was entered in the articles as second mate, but no rate of wages was affixed to his name, it was held that parol evidence of an agreement that he was not to have wages was admissible; and there having always been a denial of obligation of payment, the Court dismissed the suit for wages. Harvey, 2 Hagg. 70.

under the delusive expectation of a beneficial contract, is liable to the party who renders them (f). Indebitatus assumpsit. Request.

It has been seen that the plaintiff may recover on an express promise founded on a legal and moral obligation (g).

Where a pauper during his confinement in another parish, suffering under a fracture of his leg, was attended by the parish surgeon of that parish, with the knowledge of the overseer of his own parish, who attended him during his confinement, it was held that the overseer's not repudiating the services of the surgeon was equivalent to a request (h).

An action for salvage lies at common law, on a legal obligation by the owner of goods which he has abandoned in distress at sea, or is unable to protect and secure (i), to make a reasonable compensation to a party who has saved them, for his trouble (j).

(f) Infra, 1301.

(g) Supra, 70; and Wing v. Mill, 1 B. & A. 104. Although a master is not bound to call in medical assistance for a menial servant, yet, if he does so, he cannot retain the charge out of the wages, unless there be a special contract that he shall do so. Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P. 87.

(h) Lamb v. Bunce, 4 M. & S. 275; supra, 69, 70. See 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 19, as to hurt sailors.

(i) Where vessels sail in consort and under a special agreement to give mutual protection, no claim can be supported for salvage for services rendered by the one to the other. Zephyr, 2 Hagg. 43.

But the Court will be cautious in encouraging vague pretensions of a custom of such a nature in a trade. Margaret, 2 Hagg. 48, n.

A revenue officer permitting his boats to assist in salvage service, but not himself actually engaged in effecting it, is not entitled to salvage remuneration. Vine, 2 Hagg. 1.

So of a mere passenger on board contributing his assistance. Branston, Ib. 3.

Where it appeared to be a common practice to leave barges exposed on a sandbank, it was held that no claim of salvage could be supported. Upnor, 2 Hagg. 3.

A vessel being in danger, the master and mariners agreed for a certain sum to render assistance; held, that being a case of mere contract, the Court could not entertain it as a question of salvage. Mulgrave, 2 Hagg. 77.

Where it appeared to have been clearly intended and understood that the service should be entrusted to a party, in the character of an agent, and the claim for salvage in some degree limited thereby, it was held that the character of agent did not necessarily supersede that of salvor, so as to exclude the jurisdiction of the Court of Admiralty, and salvage was accordingly decreed with costs. Happy Return, 1 Hagg. 198.

Where in the first instance the ship, a derelict, was taken possession of and worked by eight smacks, but others in the course of the day came and co-operated, it was held that the eight had a primary interest, and had a right to choose their own jurisdiction and proceed before the magistrates, before whom the others ought to have made their claim. The Court dismissed the appeal against the award by the owners, and the action by the other salvors, no case being made by them of necessity for their interference, or consent by the first set to accept their services. Eugene, 3 Hagg. 157.

So, unless a case of necessity is made out, no other than the first in possession has a right to interfere. Queen Mab, Ib. 242.

Where the crew of one ship were in possession of a derelict, it was held that they had a right to refuse assistance if they themselves were competent to effect the service. Effort, 3 Hagg. 135.

Where the amount of salvage was, by a bond of reference between the master of a ship and a pilot and crew, submitted to the sub-commissioners of pilots, who, on a value of 2,000*l.*, and in a case of special risk, awarded 120 guineas, which the owner refused to pay, the amount was decreed in an action with costs. Industry, 3 Hagg. 203.

(j) For an interesting statement of the principles of the law on this subject, and the provisions made by the legislators of different countries in relation to it, see Abbott's Law of Shipping, 397. If the salvaage has been performed at sea or between high and low water-mark, the Court of Admiralty has jurisdiction. 1 & 2 G. 4, c. 75, s. 51. The ingredients of salvage service are, enterprise in the salvors, the degree of danger from which the ship is rescued, and the value; where each of these was trivial, and a tender of 50*l.* confirmed and refused, it was held that the subsequent costs ought to be paid by the party improperly refusing it; and the Court having condemned them in the amount paid in, directed it to be paid out in part discharge of the costs. 3 Hagg. 117. The pilot having informed the captain that a second anchor was necessary, a lugger with five sailors put off with one at eleven at night, Indebitatus assumpsit. Request.

In other cases there must be some privity between the plaintiff and defendant, to enable the former to maintain the action. If A. employ B. to perform certain services, and B. without the privacy of A. employs C. to perform them, C. cannot recover from A. (k). So one who is nominated and elected to serve in Parliament, but who neither proposes himself as a candidate, nor in any way interferes in the election, is not liable for the expenses of the hustings, although he afterwards takes his seat in Parliament (l).

But notwithstanding an agreement between A. and B. that B. shall remunerate A., an agreement by C., a third person, to pay him, may be implied from the circumstances.

A master of a ship contracts by the bill of lading with the shippers to deliver goods to their assigns, he or they paying freight for the same; if the purchaser of the goods take them, this is evidence of a new agreement by him, as the ultimate appointee of the shippers, for the purpose of delivery, to pay the freight due for the carriage (m).

The shipowner may maintain indebitatus assumpsit against the consignee, although by the bill of lading the goods are to be delivered to the consignees paying freight, and goods are delivered without payment (n).

and during a heavy sea, but from the darkness of the night, and the ship having changed her anchorage, the anchor was not put on board until the following day. The Commissioners of the Cinque Ports had awarded 60 l. by way of salvage, the ship and freight being of the value of 16,000 l. The Court confirmed the award with costs. In cases of salvage the value is always an ingredient in awarding the remuneration, Hector, 3 Hagg. 90. In case of assistance given to steamboats, with passengers, the ship and cargo of no great value, held that the reward must be beyond a mere proportion of value in ordinary cases, and 350 l. awarded out of 1,265 l., where the assistance was with great enterprise and alacrity. Ardincaple, 3 Hagg. 151. Where on application by a merchantman for the assistance of a Government steamer, it was expressly stipulated by the Admiral that the owners should be answerable for the stores of the steamer damaged, or expenses, it was held that the claim for salvage by the officers and men engaged was not barred. Lustre, 3 Hagg. 554. Ewell Grove, Ib. 225.

(k) Schmaling v. Tomlinson, 6 Taunt. 147, 148, n.

(l) Morris v. Burdett, 2 M. & S. 212.

(m) Cock v. Taylor, 13 East, 399, overruling the case of Artaza v. Smallpiece, 1 Esp. C. 23; and that of the Theresa Bonita, 4 Rob. Ad. R. 236.

(n) Dommett v. Beckford, 5 B. & Ad. 521. Although in the absence of a bill of lading, the consignee may not be liable for freight, yet where goods had always been delivered to the defendant on payment of the freight, it was held to be reasonable evidence of an agreement to pay it. Coleman v. Lambert, 5 M. & W. 502. Where it was proved that Spanish bills of lading to consignees were often without the words "or their assigns," but were nevertheless treated as assignable by indorsement, it was held that the indorsee was liable for the freight. Renteria v. Ruding, 1 M. & M. 511. And see Abbott on Shipping, 286, 5th ed. Where the bill of lading directed the goods to be delivered to E. G. "he paying freight," and they were delivered without receiving it, held that the shipper, there being no charter-party, was not liable for the freight; and that having in answer to an application for the freight replied, that "if E. G. did not pay, he would," it was for the jury to consider, whether they could infer from the state of the account between the defendant and E. G., that as between them it was the defendant's duty to take the payment of the freight upon himself, which would furnish a good consideration for his undertaking to pay it, otherwise the promise would not be binding. Drew v. Bird, 1 Mo. & M. 156. The captain, if entitled to primage, may maintain assumpsit for it, although the freight may have been separately adjusted; where the consignee indorsed the bill of lading, containing the terms "paying freight with primage and average accustomed," it was held, that he must be taken to have received the goods on the terms of that bill, and was liable for primage, although the agreement between the owner and the shipper was at so much per ton freight, and was silent as to primage; and the agreement between the owner and the captain was for a fixed sum, "in lieu of cabin, and all other allowances, to commence from the day of victualling the ship, and for which he was to mess the officers," the former agreement not excluding primage, and the latter referring to allowances of a different kind. Best v. Saunders, 1 Mo. & M. 208. Semble, the usage Indebitatus assumpsit. Request.

The assignee of a ship is entitled to freight, although he must sue in name of the assignor (o).

Where one illegally avails himself of the labour of another's servant, the latter may waive the tort, and maintain an assumpsit for the services; as where a man harbours and employs the apprentice of another, after his desertion (p).

And where a father sent his son to the defendant, who promised after a certain time to take him as an apprentice, but before the expiration of that time dismissed him without sufficient cause, it was held that his conduct being evasive, the son was entitled to recover for services (q).

It is usually a question of fact for the jury to decide, in a doubtful case, on whose credit the work was done (r).

The master is always liable on a contract for repairs, made by himself, unless in express terms the credit is confined to the shipowners (s); but where the contract is made by the owners themselves (t), or under circumstances which show that credit was given to them alone (u), the master is not liable.

In general, the character and situation of the master furnish presumptive evidence of his authority to act for them in all matters relating to the usual management of the ship; a presumption liable to be rebutted by circumstances, as by proof that the creditor knew or ought to have known that the master was not the agent of the owners in the particular instance (x).

is where primage is not to be paid, to strike out those words in the bill of lading. Where the plaintiff had contracted with G. by charter-party, to convey corn at so much per quarter, and the latter had by a subcontract agreed to convey at an advanced rate, held that the bill of lading to the defendants at such rate, without reference to the charter-party, did not entitle the plaintiff to sue for the freight at that increased rate, but only for such as had been stipulated for in the charter-party. Michenson v. Begbie, 6 Bing. 190, and 3 M. & P. 442. Where the plaintiff, a ship-broker, acted in endeavouring to procure a charter-party for the defendant's vessel, held that as in ordinary cases he would not be entitled even to recover incidental expenses, unless the charter-party were actually signed, he could only recover a compensation under a special agreement, or in case unusual expense had been occasioned by the owners. Dalton v. Irvin, 4 C. & P. 289.

(o) Morrison v. Parsons, 2 Taunt. 407; Case v. Davidson, 5 M. & S. 79; 2 B. & B. 379.

(p) Foster v. Stewart, 3 M. & S. 191; Lightly v. Claustan, 1 Taunt. 112.

(q) Phillips v. Jones, 1 A. & E. 333.

(r) As whether business done by an attorney was done on the credit of another attorney, or on the credit of his principal. Scrace v. Whittington, 2 B. & C. 11. See Burrell v. Jones, 3 B. & A. 47; Ireson v. Connington, 1 B. & C. 160; Hartop v. Juckes, 2 M. & S. 438; Hart v. White, Holt's C. 376. As to the liability of one who sits in a public capacity, vide supra, 849. Where an Act of Parliament for rebuilding a bridge empowered justices of the peace to contract for its erection, and also directed that all actions, &c. to be prosecuted or defended in pursuance of the Act should be brought by and against the clerk of the peace, and the justices at sessions covenanted with the builder that the justices or treasurer of the county would pay him specified sums by instalments, it was held the justices were not individually liable, and that the remedy was by action against the clerk of the peace. Allen v. Waldegrave, 2 Moore, 621; and see Mackbeath v. Haldimand, 1 T. R. 172. Unwin v. Wolseley, Ibid. 674.

(s) Rich v. Coe, Cowp. 636. Abbott on S. 100.

(t) Farmer v. Davis, 1 T. R. 108.

(u) Hoskins v. Slayton, Cas. T. Hardwicke, 376. Note, that by owners are meant those whose agent the master is. Abbott on S. 100. The owners of a packet employed by the Government to carry the mail, are answerable for stores ordered by the captain, although he is nominated by the Postmaster-general. Stokes v. Carne, 2 Camp. C. 339.

(x) Abbott on S. 101. Bland ex parte, 2 Rose, 91. A mere mortgagee of the acting owner of a share, who neither takes possession nor interferes at all in the management, is not liable. Briggs v. Wilkinson, 7 B. & C. 30. For he would not be liable at common law, and the Register Acts make no difference. And see Dawson v. Leake, Dow. & Ry. C. 52. Frazer v. Marsh, 13 East, 238. Cox v. Reid, 1 Ry. & M. 199. Jennings v. Griffith, 1 Ry. & M. 42. Young v. Brander, 8 East, Indebitatus assumpsit. Request.

And therefore the owners are liable for mariners' wages (y), and for all necessary repairs (z) done to the ship; and even although they have paid the amount to their agent (a).

Under the general count for work and labour (and materials found, if requisite), the plaintiff may give in evidence any particular species of work and labour; as of attendance as a farrier, and for medicines administered (b), or as an attorney (c).

But a plaintiff seeking to recover for building a house, and furnishing the timber, cannot recover as to the latter under a count for work and labour, and for goods sold and delivered, without one for materials found (d). Nor can one who manufactures a chattel for another out of his own materials recover on the count for work and labour (e).

10. And see the provisions of the Registry Acts, 4 G. 4, c. 41, s. 43; 6 G. 4, c. 110, s. 45; supra, tit. POLICY OF INSURANCE. So, on the other hand, one who is not duly registered as owner, may be liable, if he has held himself out as owner, and thus obtained credit. Haugton v. Fry, 2 Bing. 179. But the registered owner is not liable, but the charterer; where the work is done for his benefit, he is the owner so far as liability goes. Reeve v. Davis, 1 Ad. & Ell. 312. The true question in such cases is on whose credit the work was done. Per Abbott, C. J., Jennings v. Griffiths, Ry. & M. 43. A part-owner not being a partner, may sue the others separately for fittings out by him as ship's husband. Helme v. Smith, 7 Bing. 709.

(y) The Nelson, 6 Rob. A. R. 227. Foreigners were hired at a foreign port under a stipulation by the master that they should continue on board, or that he would procure them a passage back with wages; held that the ship was liable for wages and costs, and that the circumstance of her having changed owners did not vary the liability. Margaret, 3 Hagg. 238. And, in the absence of the ship, and claims admitted, a warrant of arrest was decreed against the freight and master. Where by the terms of the charter-party the charterer was to pay disbursements and seamen's wages, but the owners were to appoint the crew, held that they must be considered as their servants. Fenton v. Dublin Steam Packet Company, 1 P. & D. 103. And the owners are liable for an injury occasioned by the unskilful navigation of the vessel whilst so under the control of their servants. Ibid.

(z) So in general for all necessary supplies, if fit and proper, and such as a prudent owner would himself have ordered; and even for money advanced for such necessary purposes. Webster v. Seekamp, 4 B. & A. 352. Where the defendant was sued as a joint-owner for repairs to the vessel ordered by the ship's husband, held that he was liable, unless he could show that the dealing was that the party ordering the repairs was to be looked to exclusively. Thompson v. Finden, 4 C. & P. 159. And a judgment recovered for the same demand against another owner, held inoperative, unless satisfaction also shown. Thompson v. Finden, 4 C. & P. 159. The master is at liberty to procure another ship to transport the goods to their destination, and will be entitled to the full consideration for which the original contract was entered into; and semble, if circumstances render it necessary that another ship be procured, and it can only be obtained at a higher rate of freight, the owner would be bound by the act of his agent, and liable for the increased freight; the jury being the proper tribunal to decide as to the propriety of the measure, the Court would not disturb their finding. Shepton v. Thornton, 1 P. & D. 216.

(a) Speering v. Degrave, 2 Vern. 643. But the repairers, at their election, may sue the master. Gounam v. Bennett, 2 Str. 816. Where the party took a bill of exchange from the ship's agent at Calcutta, instead of cash tendered, held that he could not afterwards sue the ship upon the bankruptcy of the owners. W. Money, 2 Hagg. 136.

(b) Clarke v. Mumford, 3 Camp. 57.

(c) Meek v. Oxlade and others, 1 N. R. 289.

(d) Cotterill v. Apsey, 6 Taunt. 322. Heath v. Freeland, 1 M. & W. 543.

(e) Athinson v. Bell, 8 B. & C. 283. Secus, where the plaintiff works up the materials of the employer; for then the claim is simply for work and labour on materials which could not be otherwise appropriated; in the former case the party applies his labour to his own materials, which he is not bound to appropriate to the employer; the labour is for himself, and not for his employer; he has no right of action till the chattel is complete, and has been accepted by the employer, and he may then sue either for goods sold and delivered or on the special contract. See the observations of Bayley, J., 8 B. & C. 283.

A broker had by deed effected insurances with a company of which he was a member, for the defendants, and covenanted to pay

Performance.

2dly. Unless there be some express stipulation to the contrary, whenever a specific sum is to be paid for specific work (f), the performance or service is a condition precedent; there being one consideration, and one debt, they cannot be divided (g).

the premiums, but this he had not in fact done; in an action brought by his assignees for premiums and for brokerage, held, that although the count for money paid could not be supported, yet that they were entitled to recover for the latter, under the count for work, &c. as a broker, although the claim was stated in the particulars as for "insurance claim," which might include every possible claim a broker might have in respect of effecting policies; that they were also entitled to recover the premiums on the count for premiums, in respect of the bankrupts "having before then underwritten and subscribed, and caused and procured to be underwritten and subscribed," upon the latter part of the count, not being bound to prove the entire count. Power v. Butcher, 10 B. & C. 329.

(f) Where a shipwright had undertaken to repair a ship which had put into port in a damaged state, and during the progress of the work required payment in respect of the work already done, and without payment refused to proceed, and the ship lost her voyage; it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover for the work done, there being no contract to do specific work for a specific sum. Roberts v. Havelocke, 3 B. & Ad. 304.

(g) Per Lawrence, J. in Cutter v. Powell, 6 T. R. 326. And see the observations of Lawrence and Le Blanc, Js., in Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 484; supra, 1207.

Where A. undertook for 10*l.* to repair and render perfect a chandelier in a damaged state, and repaired it in part, but did not make it perfect, it was held that he could not recover for work done and materials found, although the defendant had been benefited to the amount of 5*l.*, and had not returned the icicles added by the plaintiff. Sinclair v. Bowles, 9 B. & C. 92. Note, that there had been no demand of the icicles.

In Ellis v. Hamlin, 3 Taunt. 52, it was held that a builder who undertook a work of specified dimensions and materials, and deviated from the specification, could not recover on a quantum calebant for the work, labour and materials.

So in Rees v. Lines, 8 C. & P. 126, it was held that where the plaintiff cannot recover on a special contract to build a house at a specific price, he cannot (having failed to prove, as alleged in a special count, that the defendant prevented him from completing the work, or abandoned the contract), under the general counts, for anything except extras not in the contract; the contract being to perform a specific work for a specific sum. Note, that in that case there was, in addition to the special count, a general count for goods sold and delivered, and the particulars were for work and labour.

The defendant empowered the plaintiff, a surveyor, to negociate with commissioners for the sale of her reversionary interest in freehold premises, and undertook to pay him two per cent. on the sum obtained, either by private treaty, arbitration, or verdict of a jury, for his trouble and exertions; the plaintiff not agreeing with the commissioners, a sum was afterwards awarded by a jury, and upon the plaintiff being called on to execute the conveyance, the execution by an incumbrancer was also required, which the defendant declining to obtain, the money was paid into the Bank, and remained there at the time of the action being brought: held, that the receipt of the money not being delayed by any wilful act of the defendant, the action was commenced too soon; until the incumbrancer had been paid, the sum to be received by the defendant could not be ascertained. Bull v. Price, 7 Bing. 237; and 5 M. & P. 2.

In the case of Cutter v. Powell, 6 T. R., 326, where the employer engaged in writing to pay a sailor the sum of thirty guineas, provided he proceeded and continued and did his duty on board for the voyage, and before the end of the voyage the sailor died, it was held that the contract was entire, and that as the service, which was a condition precedent, had not been performed, nothing could be recovered.

In the Countess of Plymouth v. Throgmorton, in error, 1 Salk. 65, (which was cited by Lawrence, J. in the preceding case), the defendant's testator had appointed the plaintiff to receive his rents, and promised to pay 100*l.* a year for the service, and the testator died after the plaintiff had served him for three quarters of a year, and the Court held that the contract being entire, could not be divided.

The Court, in the case of Cutter v. Powell, seem to have been of opinion, that if a mercantile custom to that effect could have been shown, the contract might have been treated as divisible. In that case also, Lawrence, J. said that a common servant, although hired in a general way, was to be considered as hired with reference to the general understanding upon the subject, that the servant shall be entitled to his wages for the time he served, though he do not continue in the service for a year.

In R. v. Whittlebury, 6 T. R. 467, Lawrence, J. observed that nothing could be due to the servant (who was, it seems, a servant in husbandry) till the completion of the year, or the end of the service.

Performance.

In an action for making a coat, which has been returned, the plaintiff must show that it was made according to the order given (h).

A herald, in an action for making out the defendant's pedigree, must adduce general evidence to show that it was made out according to the laws of heraldry (i).

In an action by one who has contracted to serve for a stipulated time as a clerk, or servant, it is sufficient to show that he was ready to render his services, if called upon, although during part of the time he was not actually employed (k).

Where a clerk (l), employed at a certain salary, payable quarterly, was discharged in the middle of a quarter, but was ready and tendered himself to serve for the remainder of the quarter, it was held that he was entitled to recover for the whole quarter (m).

Upon an indebitatus assumpsit to recover for the board and schooling of the defendant's son, at his request, the plaintiff is entitled to recover in

In Dalton, c. 58, Com. Dig. Justices of the Peace, B. 63, it is laid down, that if a servant shall of his own accord depart from his master before his time expire, he shall not have his wages; but if he depart with the consent of his master, he shall have wages for the time he served. Com. Dig. Justices of the Peace, B. 63; 5 Burn's J. 183.

In Spain v. Arnott, 2 Starkie's C. 256, where a servant in husbandry refused to obey his master's reasonable orders, and the master told him to go about his business, and the servant left the service without offering submission, or to obey the orders, Lord Ellenborough held that the servant was not entitled to recover, and said that the year must be completed before the servant was entitled to be paid.

According to the usual practice and understanding as to the hiring of domestic servants, it seems that either master or servant may put an end to the contract by a month's notice; and therefore if the servant give such notice, and serve for the subsequent month, he would probably be considered as entitled to wages up to that time. But it seems to be clear, that if a servant were to depart the service without notice he would not be entitled to any wages, for he would not have performed the contract, either by actual service, or by giving the usual notice for dissolving the contract; and the same principle applies where the master dismisses the servant immediately for refusing to obey his reasonable orders, or for conduct so immoral as to warrant the discharge.

A servant leaving without notice in the middle of year for indecent conduct, cannot recover for any part of the year. Per Lord Tenterden, 4 C. & P. 203. Turner v. Robinson, 5 B. & Ad. 789.

Where articles had been signed as required by the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 19, and a seaman had quitted the vessel after the voyage and return into port, but before the cargo had been discharged, it was held that he did not thereby forfeit his whole wages within sec. 9, but a month only within sec. 7. M'Donald v. Topling, 4 M. & W. 285.

A master can only dismiss a servant hired by the year at any intermediate period, for moral misconduct, wilful disobedience, or habitual neglect of duty. Cailo v. Brouncker, 4 C. & P. 518.

Where the plaintiff was a traveller hired by the year, and he had been guilty of assaulting with intent, &c. the defendant's maid servant; held that it was a good ground of dismissal, and that the defendant was not compellable to pay wages even for the time he had served, at all events not beyond. Atkin v. Acton, 4 C. & P. 208.

Where the clothes furnished by the master were to become the servant's at the end of the year, it was held, that having been dismissed before the end of the year, he could not maintain trover for them; in case of his being prevented from becoming entitled to them by a wrongful dismissal, his action should be framed accordingly. Crocker v. Molyneux, 3 C. & P. 472.

(h) Hayden v. Hayward, 1 Camp. 180.

(i) Townsend and another v. Neale, 2 Camp. 191.

(k) 2 Starkie's C. 198.

(l) A general hiring of a clerk is a hiring for a year. Beeston v. Collyer, 4 Bing. 309.

(m) Gandall v. Pontigny, 1 Starkie's C. 198. Where seamen's wages were by the contract subject to forfeiture for disobedience, and disobedience was proved, but appeared to have resulted from previous misconduct on the part of the owners, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover. Train v. Bennett, 1 Malk. & M. C. 92. See Neave v. Pratt, 2 N. R. 408. Spain v. Arnott, 2 Starkie's C. 256. Eardley v. Price, 2 N. R. 333. Robinson v. Hardman, 3 Esp. C. 235. Chandler v. Greaves, 2 H. B. 606. Hulle v. Heightman, 2 East, 145.

respect of a quarter which has elapsed after the son was removed from the school; a quarter's notice being requisite by the terms of the contract, and no notice having been given (n). Performance.

And a servant is entitled to recover for wages, although during part of the time for which he contracted to serve he was incapacitated from actual service by sickness (o).

But in this, as well as in all other cases, unless the contract has been actually performed, or unless that has been done which is equivalent to performance, and the contract has not been wholly rescinded, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover on the general counts, but must declare for breach of the special contract (p). Upon a special plea in an action for dismissing the plaintiff under a contract for service, justifying the dismissal, the defendant was held to have the right to begin (q).

In an action by a seaman for wages, the plaintiff is not bound to show that the ship earned freight; the defendant must prove the negative, if such proof will supply a defence (r). So the defendant is bound to prove any special ground of forfeiture alleged.

(n) Eardley v. Price, 2 N. R. 333. The Court observed, that the moment the son was removed without notice, the quarter's payment became due, which showed that it was due in respect of the things previously furnished.

(o) R. v. Wintersett, Cald. 298; 4 Burn's J. 332. R. v. Sutton, 5 T. R. 657.

(p) Hulle v. Heightman, 2 East, 145. Weston v. Downes, Doug. 23.

(q) Harnett v. Johnson, 9 C. & P. 206.

(r) Brown v. Milner, 7 Taunt. 319. But the earning of freight is not in all cases necessary to entitle seamen to their wages: as exception, a ship goes out in search of a cargo, and not being able to procure one, returns empty, will the seamen be entitled to their wages, unless there be an agreement to the contrary. See the judgment of Lord Stowell, in the case of The Neptune, Clarke, A. R. 227. Abbott on S. 485. Where upon an entire voyage out and home, the ship and cargo were totally lost on her return, it was held, that the seaman was not entitled to recover wages, from the circumstance of the ship and cargo having been insured; the lien for wages is only on the ship and freight appurtenant thereto; if the seaman could look to the insurance as a security for his wages, it would be a substitution for his own private insurance, and defeat the policy of the law, which does not allow him to insure his wages. Lady Durham, 3 Hagg. 196.

The condemnation of the vessel for having been engaged in illegal trading, to which the mariners are not parties, and consequent interruption and loss of the voyage, does not work a forfeiture of wages, nor bar the right of action against the owner. 2 Hagg. 3.

A mariner upon a dispute with the mate, and order by him to leave the vessel, did so; being afterwards met by the captain, he was ordered to return, which he promised to do, but never did, and entered on board another ship; it was held to amount to desertion and forfeiture of wages. Jupiter, 1 Hagg. 221.

The plaintiff, a seaman, entered into a contract, stipulating for a forfeiture of his share of the proceeds in case of deserting, or of not faithfully serving during the voyage; having been left ashore in consequence of having gone away after being forbidden by the captain, although he subsequently obtained leave from an inferior officer, it was held, that although his conduct did not amount to desertion, yet having failed in performance of the articles through his own fault, he could not recover; and that although such defence was put in issue on all the pleas as upon the fact of desertion, yet that the plaintiff having averred that he had been left ashore without reasonable cause, which on the plea nil debet he must prove, the defendant was not confined by the pleas to the fact of desertion. Sherman v. Bennett, 1 M. & M. 489.

Where drunkenness is allowed to be a cause of forfeiture, it means habitual, and not merely occasional. Ib.

Occasional intoxication, where more frequent and partly accounted for by a disorder producing great debility, and giving undue force to the use of strong liquors even moderately used, was held not to amount to forfeiture of wages. Lady Campbell, 2 Hagg. 5.

Where temporary absence, the result of intoxication, had been treated as desertion, and the party imprisoned abroad seventy five days, and brought home to England as a prisoner without being permitted to do any duty on board, although willing, the Court pronounced him to be entitled to wages, with costs. Ealing Grove, 2 Hagg. 15.

Where the deviation was in no way connected with the general object of the voy-

Performance.

Where a sailor contracted to serve on a voyage from Altona to London and back again, but it was stipulated that he should not be entitled to his wages till the end of the voyage, and upon the arrival of the ship in London the captain dismissed the plaintiff, but in a few days afterwards required him to go on board again, which he refused to do, the Court held that he was not entitled to recover pro ratâ, on the ground that the contract had not been rescinded by the defendant, but remained still open (s).

Where by the contract, the surveyor's certificate in case of any alterations was required, it was held that such certificate was a condition precedent to the right to recover in respect of alterations (t).

An averment in the plaintiff's declaration that the defendant prevented him from completing the execution of specific works (to be executed for a specific), and had abandoned the contract, is not proved by evidence that when the plaintiff asked for money, the defendant said he would never pay a farthing, the defendant not being then liable to pay anything (u).

The defendant cannot object that the plaintiff has omitted to do an act where such omission was at the defendant's own request (x).

In an action for a reward, offered to "whomsoever should give information whereby the property taken on a robbery might be traced, on conviction of the parties," it was held, that the party entitled was he who first gave such information, although it was not communicated immediately to the party robbed, but to a party authorised to receive it and act in the apprehension, as a constable (y).

In assumpsit for work and labour, and materials, the defendants having employed the plaintiff to survey a parish and furnish a map, to be laid be-age, nor growing out of accident or overruling authority, which would not have amounted to a breach of the mariner's contract, and the refusal to work in the delivery of the original cargo was attributable to misapprehension and uncertainty of circumstances in which the crew were placed, and a want of proper communication to them by the master, the Court pronounced for the whole wages. Cambridge, 1 Hagg. 243.

A regulation in the ship's articles "that every seaman committed to custody for the preservation of good order, should forfeit his wages, together with everything belonging to him on board," was held proper, though not directly authorised by 2 Geo. 2, c. 35. Rice v. Haylett, 3 C. & P. 534.

Upon a divided voyage, the ship earning freight at the several intermediate ports of delivery, held that the seamen's wages were due on arrival at each port; and the Court refused to sanction a covenant inserted in the articles that the mariners should not be entitled to any part until the actual arrival at the last place. The Juliana, 2 Dods. 504.

Where the sale abroad of a British ship appeared to be merely colourable, the Court held that it had clearly authority to enforce the claims of a British mariner for wages, under a contract entered into in this country. The Batavia, 2 Dods. 500.

A pilot is not, under 52 Geo. 3, c. 3, s. 42, entitled to claim wages for the time he remains under quarantine as lay days. Bee, 2 Dods. 498.

Although by the general rule a master can only discharge seamen in a foreign land with their consent, "pur cause available," yet there may be cases, as of semi. naufragium, in which, upon proper conditions against their being damnified, he may, by discharging them, relieve his owners from the burthen of the expense of maintenance and wages from which they can derive no benefit; viz. by providing them with a means of returning home, and paying their wages up to their arrival. Elizabeth, 2 Dods. 403.

(s) Hulle v. Heightman, 2 East, 145.

(t) Morgan v. Birnie, 9 Bing 672. The approval of a contracting party has been held not to constitute a condition precedent. See Dallman v. King, 4 Bing, N. C. 106.

(u) Rees v. Lines, 8 C. & P. 126. Secus, where there is no specific price agreed on for specific work. Roberts v. Havelock, 3 B. & Ad. 464.

(x) Action for demurrage against the charterer by the owner; the latter had omitted to procure the necessary papers previous to discharging the cargo, but had been prevented doing so at the defendant's own request; held that the plaintiff's omission to procure such papers was no answer to the action. Furnell v. Thomas, 5 Bing. 188; and 2 M. & P. 206.

(y) Lancaster v. Walsh, 4 M. & W. 16.

fore commissioners of enclosure; it was held, that the jury having found the work to have been done, and satisfactorily, and the defendants having had reasonable time for ascertaining its correctness, in the absence of any contract for a specific price for the work, the plaintiff was not precluded from recovering what the jury might consider a reasonable remuneration, on the ground of his having refused the map, &c., except on payment of his own demand (z). Performance.

3dly. Where the plaintiff sues upon a quantum meruit, no specific remuneration having been agreed on, the amount is of course a question for the jury (a). In the case of an architect or surveyor it is a question for the jury, whether the usual commission of five per cent. be, under the circumstances, a reasonable charge (b). Value.

Where upon a specified event, the amount of remuneration is subject to diminution, the burthen of proof lies of course upon the defendant (c).

Although a certain price has been agreed for, yet it is incumbent on the plaintiff to show that his work was properly done according to the contract, if that be disputed, in order to prove that he is entitled to his reward; otherwise he has not performed that which he undertook to do, and the consideration fails (d), even as it seems, although no notice has been given that his performance of the contract will be disputed (e).

Where the work has been defectively performed (f), it seems to be now (g) settled that he cannot recover beyond the amount of the benefit actually derived by the defendant from the work and materials; and it seems, that where the work is so ill executed as to be wholly inadequate to the purposes for which it was intended, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover at all (h).

If the artist vary from the specification he is entitled only to the price agreed on, reduced by such a sum as would be necessary for completing the contract (i).

And where the services of an attorney, auctioneer, or other agent, turn (z) Hughes v. Lanny, 5 M. & W. 183.

(a) It will be presumed, that the parties meant to contract for the accustomed remuneration where any custom exists as to the amount. In Brown v. Nairne, 9 C. & P. 204, the jury found the practice to be for the broker to receive five per cent. commission for obtaining freight, where there is no special agreement, or unless the ship chartered on a tender.

(b) Chapman v. De Tastet, 2 Starkie's C. 294. See Upsdell v. Stewart. Peake's C. 293. Maltby v. Christie, 1 Esp. C. 340.

(c) Where the ship's articles contained the clause usual in the Baltic trade, that in case of the vessel wintering abroad on account of ice, the seamen should receive only half wages during the detention, and the ship being engaged as a "general" ship, "went out seeking," and not being able to get a cargo on account of the ice, remained in the river for safety until the ice broke up, held, that although not prevented by ice from returning without a cargo, yet, that as the want of one was a reasonable cause of detention, and of the ship wintering abroad, and that within the meaning of the articles, the men could only claim half wages. Hooghton, 3 Hagg. 100.

(d) Per Le Blanc J. in Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 484. Ellis v. Hamlin, 3 Taunt. 52, where a builder undertook a work of specified dimensions and materials, and deviated from the specification. Supra, 1306.

(e) Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 479.

(f) Where the defendant ordered a machine, of which the plaintiff was a patentee, to be put up in his brewhouse, and the plaintiff made the machine, but it was found that it did not answer the purpose of a brewhouse; in the absence of fraud or warranty, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover. Chanter v. Hopkins, 4 M. & W. 399.

(g) It was formerly the course to allow the plaintiff to recover the stipulated price, and to drive the defendant to a cross-action. See Brown v. Davis, cited by Lawrence, J. in Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 484; supra, 1297; and Denew v. Daverell, 3 Camp. 451.

(h) See Farnsworth v. Garrard, 1 Camp. 36; supra, 1207.

(i) Thornton v. Place, 1 M. & R. 218. See Chapel v. Hicks, 2 C. & M. 214.

Value.

out to have been wholly abortive in consequence of negligence, he is not entitled to any compensation (j).

But notwithstanding the universality of the position, that performance, when it is the consideration for the payment of the stipulated price, is a condition precedent, yet the conduct of the employer in adopting the contract, when, if he disputed the performance, he had it in his power to rescind it in toto by placing the parties in statu quo, affords, as against him, a conclusive presumption that the work has been properly executed, or at all events excludes the party acquiescing from taking the objection.

Instances to this effect have already been cited (k). The principle extends to all cases of executory contracts for works of art to be delivered in a complete state. The party receiving the work under a specific contract must abide by it, or rescind it in toto.

Where such a complete return and rescinding of the contract is from the nature of the case impracticable, as where the contract is to build a wall, or a house, on the premises of the employer, and the contract cannot be rescinded in toto, then, although the defendant has partially availed himself of the plaintiff's labour, and the materials supplied by him, and has not rescinded the contract in toto, yet it seems now to be settled, that if the work has been defectively performed, the plaintiff cannot recover but on a quantum meruit for the labour, and quantum valebant for the materials, to the amount of the benefit actually derived.

Where the defendant had ordered a number of pans to be made by the plaintiff for the manufacture of vitriol, and upon trial they were found to be wholly inadequate to the purpose for which they had been ordered, it was held, that after the defendant had found, after a reasonable trial, that the pans were wholly ineffectual, he should have given notice to the defendant to take them away, who would then have been bound to take them away; but that as the defendant had retained the pans without giving notice, he would be liable to pay as much as the pans were worth (l).

Defence.

If a party who has contracted for a specific work for a stipulated price fail to execute it according to the contract, or execute it improperly, as the performance is the consideration for the payment of the price, the consideration fails; and it is competent to the employer to rescind the contract in toto, as far as lies in his power. But if he does not rescind it as soon as he discovers the defect, he is, it seems, liable to the whole price, if he might (j) Denew v. Daverell, 3 Camp. C. 451, cor. Lord Ellenborough. Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 479. And see Farnsworth v. Garrard, 1 Camp. 36. Duncan v. Blundell, 3 Starkie's C. 6. Montrion v. Jeffreys, R. & M. 317. Where one retained under a special agreement declares (inter alia), on a quantum meruit for services, the defendant may show the worthlessness of the service under the plea of the general issues to that count. Baillie v. Kell, 4 Bing. N. C. 638.

(k) Grimaldi v. White, 4 Esp. C. 95; supra, 878. Fisher v. Samuda, 1 Camp. 190; supra, 878. Groning v. Mendham, 1 Starkie's C. 257; supra, 1208.

(l) Okell v. Smith, 1 Starkie's C. 107. See also Fisher v. Samuda, 1 Camp. 190, where, in an action for furnishing the plaintiff with unsound beer, Lord Ellenborough said that it was the duty of the purchaser of any commodity, immediately upon discovering that it was not according to order, and unfit for the purpose for which it was intended, to return it to the vendor, or give him notice to take it back. The plaintiff having contracted to repair the defendant's chandeliers for 10*l*. returned them incompletely repaired. In an action for work and labour, it was held, that as the plaintiff had not performed his part of the contract, he could not recover anything, although the jury found that the repairs were worth 5*l*. The plaintiff contracted to build cottages by 10th October; they are not finished till the 15th; the defendant accepts the cottages: the plaintiff may recover for work and labour and materials. Lucas v. Godwin, 3 Bing. N. C. 737.

upon discovering the defect have returned the articles, and in other cases is liable to the amount of the benefit derived. Where, however, he seeks to reduce the plaintiff's claim to recover the stipulated price, on the ground of mal-performance, it is advisable, although perhaps not strictly necessary, to apprize the plaintiff of his intention, in order that he may not be taken by surprise (m). Defence.

The plaintiff may recover for work done under a special contract, e. g. for the building of cottages, although he fails in a point which does not go to the whole consideration, as the finishing them by a particular time, if the defendant takes the benefit of the work (n).

A defendant having contracted to pay a specific price is not liable in respect of alterations consented to by him unless he be informed, or must necessarily be aware from the nature of the alterations that the price will be increased (o).

A defendant having paid money into Court, may under the plea of nunquam indebitatus to the residue in an action of indebitatus assumpsit on an attorney's bill, prove that the plaintiff agreed to do the work for the costs out of pocket, which did not exceed the sum paid in (p).

In an action for not retaining the plaintiff in the defendant's service, according to an agreement, with a count on a quantum meruit for services, to the first of which, amongst others, the defendant pleaded various acts of misconduct on the part of the plaintiff as justifying his dismissal, it was held, that it was sufficient to establish one good ground of discharge, and that the jury were justified in ascribing the discharge to the general nature of the plaintiff's conduct, and not to the formal reason assigned at the time; and that as to the second count, that the defendant might, under the general issue, show the worthlessness of the services, and the jury might take his conduct in such service into consideration in estimating the value of the service (q).

In an action upon an attorney's bill, negligence cannot be set up as a defence, unless it has been so gross as to deprive the defendant of all possible benefit from the service (r), if it can even then (s).

It was held to be no defence to an action on an attorney's bill for prosecuting a suit for the defendant, that no benefit had been derived by the defendant, where the failure did not result wholly from the plaintiff's negligence, but partly from accident (t).

Where a person is employed in a work of skill, the employer buys both the judgment and labour of the other, and if the attempt fail for want of skill, the plaintiff cannot recover (u). It is otherwise where the employer substitutes his own judgment (x).

(m) Vide supra, 1209.

(n) Lucas v. Godwin, 3 Bing. N. C. 737.

(o) Lovelock v. King, 1 Mo. & R. 60.

(p) Jones v. Read, 5 Ad. & Ell. 529.

(q) Baillie v. Kell, 4 Bing. N. C. 638; and 6 Sc. 379. And see Chappell v. Hicks, 2 C. & M. 214.

(r) Templer v. M'Lachlan, 2 N. R. 136. This determination was previous to that of Basten v. Butter, 7 East, 484.

(s) Negligence is a defence under the general issue. Fowler v. Macreth, cor. Parke, B. York Sum. Ass. 1836. In that case, where two who well knew the plaintiff as a land-surveyor employed him to value moieties of an estate belonging to them, Parke, B. said that he at first doubted whether it was competent to the defendant to set up the want of sufficient and competent skill, but that after conferring with Coleridge J. he thought the defence admissible.

(t) Dax v. Ward, 1 Starkie's C. 409. See also Passmore v. Birnie, 2 Starkie's C. 59.

(u) Per Bayley J. in Duncan v. Blundell, 3 Starkie's C. 6, where the plaintiff (x) Duncan v. Blundell, 3 Starkie's C. 6.

Negligence.

Where the demand is compounded of skill and things administered, if from want of skill no benefit is derived, the plaintiff cannot recover. Thus, to an action by an apothecary for work and labour, and medicines administered, it is a good defence to show that the plaintiff treated his patient ignorantly, and improperly (y). But it would be otherwise if the medicines had been supplied according to a physician's prescriptions (z).

It is a good defence to prove that the plaintiff induced the defendant to employ him by false and fraudulent professions of his skill. An empiric who pretends to cure by sovereign medicines, and who by false representations induces the defendant to employ him, cannot recover for medicines and attendance (a).

Where a considerable interval has elapsed between the time of a servant's quitting the service, and his making a claim for wages, it is presumable that they have been paid (b).

A plaintiff cannot recover for his labour in committing an illegal act (c); as for running an illegal race, or printing an illegal book.

An action for the breach of a contract of hiring for a year, by wrongful dismissal, was brought before the end of the year, and the declaration was for wages generally, and also specially for damages in respect of such dismissal, and all matters in difference were referred; it was found, upon a reference of a second action brought for wages accruing subsequently to the commencement of the first action, that no claim was made upon the first reference in respect thereof, except so far as the declaration and the evidence of the employment and dismissal might amount to a claim: held, that as the second claim was within the scope of the former reference, he could not make it the subject-matter of a second action (d).

WRIT.

As to the proof of a writ and its effect in evidence, see Vol. I. tit. WRIT.

See as to the construction of the stat. 1 Will. 4, c. 3, s. 2, as to returns, 4 B. & Ad. 355. When the rule to return a writ (which expires in four days after service in London and Middlesex, and in six days elsewhere) expires in vacation, the sheriff shall file it at the expiration of the rule, or as soon after as the office shall be open; and the day and hour of filing shall be indorsed by the officer with whom it is filed (e).

had, by the defendant's order, erected a stove in the shop of the latter, and laid a tube under the floor to carry off the smoke, but the plan had entirely failed. And Bayley, J. said, that as this was a work of skill, the party who undertook it was bound to know whether it would succeed or not.

(y) Kannen v. M'Muller, Peake's C. 59, cor. Lord Kenyon.

(z) Per Lord Kenyon, Ibid.

(a) Hupe v. Phelps, 2 Starkie's C. 480. And see Kannen v. M'Muller, Peake's C. 59. Duffit v. James, cited 7 East, 480. The plaintiff, in an action on a promissory note, given in consideration of "care and medical attendance bestowed on the maker," must, the consideration being disputed, show himself to be properly qualified according to the stat. 55 Geo. 3, c. 194. Blogg v. Pinkers, 1 R. & M. 125. A defendant who objects that the plaintiff was not qualified to practise as a surgeon for want of the examination and license required by the stat. 3 H. 8, c. 11, s. 1, must prove the fact. Gremaire v. Le Clerck Valois, 2 Camp. C. 143. But as the stat. contains no prohibitory clause, it seems that the plaintiff, though he may be liable to a penalty for practising, is still entitled to recover. A surgeon who practises as a physician without a diploma, cannot maintain an action for fees. Lipscombe v. Holmes, 2 Camp. C. 441; and see Tuson v. Batting, 3 Esq. C. 192.

(b) Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P. 87. This is of course a mere presumption, in fact, for the consideration of the jury.

(c) Coates v. Hatton, 3 Starkie's C. 61. Vide supra, VENDOR AND VENDEE.

(d) Dunn v. Murray, 9 B. & C. 780.

(e) R. G., Hil. T., 2 W. 4.

Every writ must contain the names of all the defendants (e), the name of the attorney in the country, as well as of the agent (f). The day of service must be indorsed on the writ served, and the day of examination on the capias (g); without the indorsements specified in the stat. 2 W. 4, c. 39, s. 12, a writ is irregular, but not void (h).

WRIT OF INQUIRY. (i)

What to be proof.

THE only question upon the execution of a writ of inquiry is as to the amount of the damages; the plaintiff, therefore, need adduce no proof to establish his claim to damages, but only as to the quantum (j). If he sue on a bill of exchange or promissory note, proof of signatures is unnecessary; the only use of producing the instrument is to show whether the payment of any interest is indorsed upon it (k). And the plaintiff is entitled to recover nominal damages though the bills be not produced (l).

If the plaintiff give no evidence on one or more of the counts, he may afterwards sue for the causes of action contained in those counts. Where the plaintiff declared on a promissory note, and also for goods sold, but gave no evidence on the latter count, it was held that the judgment was no bar to a subsequent action for the goods sold (m).

The defendant can give no evidence, except in reduction of damages. Where judgment had been given against the defendant on demurrer, and proof was given that she had acknowledged the debt to a certain amount, it was held that she could not give evidence to show that she was acting merely as agent for her husband, who was abroad (n).

If one party appear by counsel where no intimation has been given of his intention, and the other party is desirous of appearing by counsel, the proper course is to apply to the sheriff to put off the inquiry (o).

A writ of inquiry does not supply the omission to find damages on the trial of a traverse of a return to a mandamus (p).

(e) R. G., Michaelmas 1832.

(f) Ib.

(g) Ib.

(h) Ib.

(i) Writs of inquiry, their returns, and judgment thereon, are regulated by 1 W. 4, c. 7.

(j) Tripp v. Thomas, 3 B. & C. 429, in an action for words.

(k) Bevis v. Lindsell, Str. 1149; 3 Wils. 155. Shepherd v. Charter, 4 T. R. 275. Green v. Hearne, 3 T. R. 301.

(l) Marshal v. Griffin, 1 R. & M 41.

(m) Seddon v. Tutop, 6 T. R. 607.

(n) De Gaillon v. Victoire Harel L'Aigle, 1 B. & P. 368.

(o) Elliott v. Nicklin, 5 Price, 641.

(p) Kynaston v. Mayor, &c. of Shrewsbury, Str. 1051.

APPENDIX TO VOLS. II. & III.

[Note, that the same alphabetical arrangement is observed in the Appendix as in the Text, to the pages of which reference is made.]

ABATEMENT, p. 1.

By the Stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 8, no plea in abatement for the non-joinder of any person as a co-defendant shall be allowed in any court of common law, unless it shall be stated in such plea that such person is resident within the jurisdiction of the court, and unless the place of residence of such person shall be stated with convenient certainty in an affidavit verifying such plea.

Sec. 11. That no plea in abatement for a misnomer shall be allowed in any personal action, but that in all cases in which a misnomer would, but for this act, have been by law pleadable in abatement, in such actions the defendant shall be at liberty to cause the declaration to be amended at the costs of the plaintiff, by inserting the right name, upon a Judge's summons, founded on an affidavit of the right name; and in case such summons shall be discharged, the costs of such application shall be paid by the party applying, if the Judge shall think fit.

And see sec. 12, cited below, tit. Bill of Exchange, as to written instruments in which parties are designated by the initial letter or letters, or some contraction of the Christian or first name or names.

One only of two joint tenants brings an action of detinue for goods, the objection can only be taken by plea in abatement; the rule as to non-joinder of plaintiffs is confined to actions of contract. Broadbent v. Ledward, P. & D. 45.

To an action of assumpsit, the defendant pleaded in abatement that he was liable on the promises alleged only jointly with other persons; the plaintiff proved a separate debt due from the defendant as well as a joint debt due from him and another; it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the amount of both debts, and that the defendant might have pleaded in abatement to part of the count, and in bar to the residue. Hill v. White and another, 6 Bing. N. C. 23; and 8 Dowl. 63.

Where the action was not brought until the statute had nearly run, and a plea of non-joinder of parties was put in, the Court refused to amend. Roberts v. Ball, 6 Ad. & Ell. 778.

ACCESSORY, p. 4.

All those who assemble themselves together with an intent even to commit a trespass, the execution whereof causes a felony to be committed, and continue together abetting one another till they have actually put their design into execution, and also all those who are present when a felony is committed, and abet the doing of it, are principals in the felony. R. v. Howell, 9 C. & P. 437.

Where persons combine to stand by one another in a breach of the peace, with a general resolution to resist all opposers, and in the execution of their design a murder is committed, all of the company are equally principals in the murder, though at the time of the fact some of them were at such a distance as to be out of view. R. v. Howell, 9 C. & P. 437.

But where the prisoner set out originally with the mob, and proceeded to a police office, using menacing words, and after some mischief there, the mob left and proceeded to a private house, which they set on fire, but the prisoner was not seen there, and the original purpose was not clear, held, that he could not be convicted as abetting the latter, in demolishing, &c. Ibid.

Where the prisoners went to the ground with parties about to fight a duel, although neither acted as a second, and were present when the shot was fired, and returned with the principals; held, that if the jury were satisfied that the prisoners were there for the purpose of giving countenance and assistance, they were liable as principals in the second degree. R. v. Young, 8 C. & P. 644.

Parties charged as accessories to murder, the principal being insane, cannot be convicted on that count; but if, aware of the malignant purpose of such insane party, they share in that purpose with him, and are present aiding and abetting, and assisting him in the commission of acts fatal to life, they are guilty as principals for what is done by his hand. R. v. Tyler and others, 8 C. & P. 616.

A., B. and C. were indicted, A. as accessory before the robbery by a person not named, and C. and D. as accessories after, in receiving the stolen goods; held that the charge of larceny by an evil-disposed person not named, was too vague to support the charge against the accessory before the fact, but that the accessories after the fact were sufficiently charged with a substantive felony, and properly convicted. R. v. Caspar and others, 2 Moody 101; and 9 C. & P. 289.

Counts in an indictment charging a party as accessory, both before and after the fact committed by other prisoners, are not improperly joined, and the prosecutor cannot be put to elect. R. v. Blackson, 8 C. & P. 43.

Where three were charged together, one with stealing and the others with receiving, with counts against the latter separately as receivers, it was held that they might be convicted on those counts, although the principal was acquitted. R. v. Pulham and others, 9 C. & P. 280.

In order to establish the charge against accessories, by harbouring the felon, it must appear that some acts were done personally by the prisoners in assisting him. R. v. Chapple and others, 9 C. & P. 355.

Where a party is indicted as an accessory after the fact, with the principal, in a case of murder, if the latter be found guilty of manslaughter only, the former may be found guilty as accessory to the lesser offence; the question for the jury in such cases is, whether the prisoner, knowing the offence to have been committed, was assisting in concealing the offence, or in any way aiding the offender to escape justice. R. v. Greenacre, 8 C. & P. 35.

It is sufficient to make a party liable as an accessory after the fact, if he employ another to receive and assist in the escape of the principal. R. v. Jarvis, 2 M. & Rob. 40.

As to things accessory to a principal, see Woods v. Russell, 5 B. & A. 948 e. g. a rudder and cordage to a ship, although not actually annexed. Ib.

ACCOMPLICE, p. 10.

The rule is well established that the accomplice ought to be confirmed by evidence as to the prisoner's identity, and tending to connect him personally with the transaction.

The statement of an accomplice in sheep-stealing was corroborated by the fact of great quantities of mutton being found in the prisoner's father's house, where he lived, and as stated by the accomplice, is a sufficient corroboration. R. v. Birkett, 8 C. & P. 732.

And see Kelsey's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 45; R. v. Addis, 6 C. & P. 388; R. v. Webb, 6 C. & P. 595; R. v. Wilkes, 7 C. & P. 272; R. v. Farlar, 8 C. & P. 107; R. v. Dyke, 8 C. & P. 261.

Confirmation by the wife of an accomplice is not to be deemed confirmation at all for this purpose, they are to be taken as one person. R. v. Neal, 7 C. & P. 168.

The jury may, if they please, act upon the evidence of an accomplice, though there be no confirmation. R. v. Hastings, 7 C. & P. 152.

The evidence of an accomplice requires corroboration, notwithstanding his having been summarily convicted of the offence. R. v. Farlar, 8 C. & P. 107.

On a charge by a wife of an unnatural offence by her husband, unless by violent resistance the inference of consent is excluded, being otherwise an accomplice, she must be confirmed, or the jury are bound to acquit. R. v. Jellyman, 8 C. & P. 604.

Where a prisoner and another (a child) were charged in the same indictment, the latter with stealing, and the former with inciting him to commit the felony, the judge, with a view to admit the child as a witness, after pleading, allowed him to withdraw his plea, and plead guilty, and after a nominal sentence to be examined. R. v. Lyons, 9 C. & P. 555.

Where one of two prisoners charged with sheep-stealing had been convicted at the sessions, it was held, that his wife might be examined on the trial of the other. R. v. Williams, 8 C. & P. 284.

An accomplice ought to be examined before the witness who is to confirm him. Cragg's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 35.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION, p. 16.

The defendant pleads payment of a sum, and acceptance in full satisfaction; the plaintiff replies that he did not accept the said sum in full satisfaction; the payment as well as the acceptance is in issue. Ridley v. Tindall, 7 Ad. & Ell. 134.

(With one of several Plaintiffs.)

Action by three plaintiffs for a joint demand, the plea of an accord and satisfaction with one of the plaintiffs, by a part payment in cash and a set-off of a debt due from that one to the defendant, is good, without alleging any authority from the other two plaintiffs to make the settlement. Wallace v. Kelsall, 7 M. & W. 264.

(With a Third Person.)

In an action for a trespass committed by the defendant as the servant, and by the command of P. B., the acceptance of satisfaction by the plaintiff from P. B. is a defence. Where the defendant introduces an immaterial averment in his plea, the plaintiff cannot in his replication so traverse the matters of the plea as to include such immaterial averment in the issue: therefore where the defendant in trespass pleaded that the trespass was committed by command of P. B., and then stated an executed accord between the plaintiff and P. B. with the consent of defendant, and acceptance thereof by plaintiff in satisfaction of the trespasses; held, that a replication traversing the accord and execution thereof with the consent of defendant was had on special demurrer; for that, as no rights of the defendant appeared to be compromised by the accord, his consent was unnecessary. Thurman v. Wild, 11 A. & E. 453; 3 P. & D. 289.

See further, as to accord without satisfaction, Allies v. Probyn, 2 Cr. M. & R. 408; and 4 Dowl. 153.

ACCOUNT, p. 18.

To satisfy the plea of plene computavit the defendant should show a balance ascertained and agreed upon. Baxter v. Hozier, 5 Bing. N. C. 288.

ACQUIESCENCE.

Admission by, see R. v. Holdsworth, 1 G. & D. 442.

A dispute arising as to the dividing line between mines held by the plaintiffs and defendants, their respective lessors agreed to refer the matter to a surveyor. The plaintiffs and defendants were no parties to this agreement; but it appeared that the latter had communications with the surveyor upon the subject, were present when the boundary was staked out by him, and applied to the plaintiffs' lessors for a lease of the disputed spot, in the event of the referee's decision establishing the boundary against their landlord; held, that this amounted to an acquiescence by them in the reference, so as to make the agreement admissible in evidence in an action against them. Taylor v. Parry, 1 Scott, N. S. 576.

A written contract was entered into for the purchase of "200 or 300" tons of coals, to be sent by the "Navigator or other vessel." The vendor, residing at Stockton-on-Tees, on the 31st December 1838, shipped 127 tons of coals by the George and Henry, and on that day wrote to the vendee at Southampton to state what he had done, and that he should draw on him for the amount. The George and Henry was sunk at sea on the 6th January 1839, which fact the vendor on the 10th January communicated to the vendee. The vendor's bill was not presented to the vendee until after he knew of the loss, and he then refused to accept it, but he did not by any other act repudiate the contract as performed by the vendor; held, that his silence after receiving the vendor's statement of the mode in which he had performed the contract operated either as an admission by him that the contract was duly performed, or as evidence of acceptance of the substituted performance for that originally contracted for. Richardson v. Dunn, 1 G. & D. 417.

Upon an agreement for the sale of goods upon a valuation by A., a valuation by A.'s clerk is not binding unless it be shown that it was agreed to substitute such valuation; and proof of seeing the clerk making such valuation, without objecting, is not evidence to support such agreement. Ess v. Truscott, 2 M. & W. 385.

ADMISSION, p. 18.

Where the issue was upon the exercise of a power given by a will, under which a lease had been granted, proof that the defendant had executed a counterpart, the lease reciting the will, amounts to an admission of the due execution of the will, and is sufficient proof, in the absence of any evidence to raise a doubt of the fact. Bringloe v. Goodson, 5 Bing. N. C. 738; and 8 Sc. 71.

A prisoner was taken into custody at the house of his brother on a charge of abduction. When he was taken a letter was found in a writing-desk, in the room in which he and his brother were. The letter was directed to a person in the neighbourhood of the prisoner's late residence. The police-officer was going to open it, when the prisoner told him it had nothing to do with the business that he had come about; held, that the letter was receivable in evidence on the trial of the prisoner for the abduction. R. v. Barratt, 9 C. & P. 387.

(Construction of.)

A party was arrested, and subsequently promised the attorney to pay the debt if no farther proceedings were taken, and by letter he informed him that he had found a friend to assist him "in paying the debt you sued me for;" held, that it was for the jury to say whether he meant to recognise a debt or the particular debt indorsed on the writ. Rainbow v. Bishop, 7 C. & P. 591.

An I O U, signed by the defendant, but not addressed to the plaintiff, is primâ facie evidence of having been given to the plaintiff, and it lies on the defendant to show it given to any other. Curtis v. Richards, 1 Man. & Gr. 46; and 1 Sc. N. S. 155.

(Identity.)

Where declarations were sought to be given as of the plaintiff, and it was only shown that they were made by a person at the plaintiff's house, without any evidence of identity; held, that the admissibility was wholly a question for the Judge, and that he properly rejected them. Corfield v. Parsons, 1 Cr. & M. 730; and 3 Tyrw. 806.

(Admission on former Trial, p. 19.)

Where admissions were made previously to the former trial, held that they were receivable on a new trial, notwithstanding a notice by the opposite party that no admissions would be made. Doe d. Wetherell v. Bird, 7 C. & P. 6.

(With a view to Trial.)

Where the term was imposed of admitting the hand-writing of the attesting witness, and after a verdict and new trial obtained, the plaintiff was allowed to amend the oyer, by setting out the condition, whereupon the defendant pleaded specially that the bond had been altered since the execution; held, that it did not affect the admission, whether used on the first or second trial. Langley v. Lord Oxford, 1 M. & W. 508; and 1 T. & G. 808.

Where the notice to admit the note declared on, in setting out the document produced before the Judge mis-stated the date, the defendant, after first refusing, consented to admit it; held, that he could not afterwards object to the admission being read on account of the variance. Field v. Hemming, 7 C. & P. 619.

(By a Party, p. 19.)

A parol admission by a party to a suit is always receivable in evidence against him, although it relate to the contents of a deed or other written instrument; and even though its contents be directly in issue in the cause. Slatterie v. Pooley, 6 M. & W. 664.

In an action for goods sold and delivered, and on an account stated, a parol admission of the debt by the defendant is evidence under the account stated, though it appears that there was a written agreement relating to the goods.

And (per Parke, B.) the defendant's own admission is always evidence against him, though it refers to the matter of a written agreement. Newhall v. Holt, 6 M. & W. 662; and see Doe v. Watson, supra, vol. ii. 25.

Where the defendant, who had become guarantee for the due accounting of a party employed by the plaintiff as agent, upon having sent to him, by the plaintiff's attorney, a letter enclosing a copy of the account for which he was liable, in his reply, promised to obtain the share of his co-surety and remit it with his own to the plaintiff, and having notice to produce, at the trial, the account; held, that a duplicate copy might be proved, with the admission that the defendant said it was correct, without calling the agent. Ward v. Suffield, 5 Bing. N. C. 381.

(Admission on Record, p. 19.)

An admission on record in any issue is only admissible as evidence on that issue, and not to prove or disprove another plea; but where a fact is admitted by the parties in the whole course of the cause, the jury may apply it to all the issues, although on the record it be admitted as to one only. Stracy v. Blake, 3 Cr. M. & R. 168.

The admission in one plea cannot be called in aid of the issue in another; semble, therefore the plea of tender and payment into Court admits only the contract as single and entire. Jones v. Flint, 2 P. & D. 594.

(By a Party to the Record, p. 28.)

Declarations by a party to the record, although suing in a representative capacity, and made before he became such, are admissible. Smith v. Morgan, 2 Mo. & R. 257.

(By a Party in Interest, p. 29.)

In ejectment on two demises, in the names of a trustee in fee and cestui que trust for life, and at the trial, the question being one of parcel or no parcel, the lessor of plaintiff elected to abandon the latter demise; held, that a deed executed by the cestui que trust, not clearly and unambiguously against her interest, although an advantage was obtained under it, was inadmissible as a declaration; and quære whether in an action brought by a trustee in respect of the trust property, the admission of a cestui que trust, whose interest is not commensurate with his, can be evidence against him? Doe v. Wainwright, 3 Nev. & P. 598.

In trespass against the sheriff, for taking goods of plaintiff under an execution against another; held that, if the execution creditor has indemnified the sheriff, his statements are evidence. Proctor v. Lainson, 7 C. & P. 629.

(In the case of Claimants eodem jure.)

The written statements of a former vicar, where the plaintiff claimed in right of the vicarage, are admissible. Doe d. Coyle v. Cole, 6 C. & P. 359.

(By an Agent, p. 29.)

Where the defendants (trustees under an assignment of the stock in trade of A.) directed the plaintiff to proceed to B. to effect the liberation of A., and arranged that L. should remit funds for that purpose to the plaintiff there; held, that the letter of L. was inadmissible as proof of the facts stated in it; held also, that the acts of a party put into the shop of A. to conduct the business, might bind the defendants in what concerned the business, but not to employ a person to take stock. Lawrence v. Thatcher, 6 C. & P. 669.

Where the defendant had used the affidavit of a party, stating the seizure of goods by him as officer of the defendant, upon a motion of interpleader; held, that such affidavit was admissible in evidence against the defendant to connect the party with him, although the latter was in court at the trial and might have been himself called. Brickell v. Hulse, 7 Ad. & Ell. 454.

(Against a Representative, p. 33.)

Where in trover, upon the issue of no property in the plaintiff, the defendant having shown himself in possession for four years after a gift by a party to whom he was administrator; held that, having put in the letters of administration, evidence of declarations by his deceased testator were admissible against him. Smith v. Smith, 3 Bing. N. C. 29; and 3 Sc. 352.

(Under a Judge's Order, p. 35.)

Where, by a Judge's order, a copy of a letter sent by R. to M., dated December 10th, 1830, is ordered to be admitted, it is not enough to put in the notice to admit, and the Judge's order, and to put in a copy of a letter from R. to M. of that date; but if a witness also prove that he was at the Judge's chambers when the order was made, and that he produced to the clerk of the opposite attorney the copy of the letter proposed to be given in evidence, that is sufficient. Clay v. Thackrah, 9 C. & P. 47.

(Confession in Criminal Cases, p. 36.)

The Court will not allow the formal proofs in a criminal case to be admitted, unless made at the time by the prisoner or his counsel. R. v. Thornhill, 8 C. & P. 575.

(Examination.)

Where the magistrate's clerk had mistakenly headed the examination of the prisoner as "The information and complaint, &c.," the Judge (Gurney, B.) rejected the statement. R. v. Bentley, 6 C. & P. 148.

But where nothing appeared on the examination to show that it was taken on a charge of felony, or that the magistrates who signed it were acting as such, the clerk was allowed to prove what was said, and refresh his memory by the paper. R. v. Tarrant, 6 C. & P. 182.

(Confession, Oral.)

Where the prisoner gave a blow, which terminated mortally, but for which the prisoner was summarily convicted and fined for the assault before a magistrate, but no part of the examinations, either of the deceased or prisoner, was taken down; held that the magistrate might be asked as to what was said by the deceased in the presence of the prisoner, not as evidence of the facts stated, but only as producing an answer from him. (Per Taunton, J.) R. v. Edmunds, 6 C. & P. 164.

The statement made before the magistrate at the first hearing, was taken down, but not read over to the prisoner, or signed by him, and on the final one, when the depositions were formally taken, the prisoner declined saying anything, the statement was held to be receivable in evidence, although not returned by the magistrate. R. v. Wilkinson, 8 C. & P. 663.

(Voluntary, p. 37.)

Where, after promises held out by persons not examined, the magistrate told the prisoner that his confession would do him no good, and he afterwards made a statement which was taken down; held that it was not to be considered as made under the former influence, and was admissible. R. v. Howes, 6 C. & P. 404.

The prosecutor said to the prisoner, "If you will not tell us what you know about it, we of course can do nothing;" held to amount to a promise, that if he would tell, the prosecutor would do something for him, and to render the confession inadmissible. R. v. Partridge, 7 C. & P. 552.

Confession obtained from the prisoner, a girl fifteen years old, through the promises and threats of relatives and servants of the prosecutor, is not admissible. R. v. Simpson, 1 Ry. & M. 411.

So, where obtained by the promises and threats of the prosecutor's wife, R. v. Upchurch, 1 Ry. & M. 465.

Where the prisoner made a statement induced by a person without authority, but in the presence of her mistress, and who expressed no dissent, held not receivable, as the inducement must be taken as if it had been held out by her mistress, who was a person in authority over her: to exclude confessions by prisoners the inducement must be made or sanctioned by a party having some authority. R. v. Taylor, 8 C. & P. 733.

A confession, made after being told by the constable, "It is of no use for you to deny it, for there are A. and B. who will swear they saw you do it;" held to be made under an inducement, which rendered it inadmissible. R. v. Mills, 6 C. & P. 146.

Aliter, where the prisoner was told that there was a serious oath against her by B., who had sworn that she had, &c., and a subsequent statement made by her received. (Per Gurney, B.) R. v. Long, 6 C. & P. 179.

Where the witness had said to one prisoner, "You had better split, than suffer for all," the confession was rejected. (Per Patteson, J.) R. v. Thomas, 6 C. & P. 353.

But where a constable had only said, "If you will tell where the property is, you shall see your wife, and I hope you will tell, as Mrs. G. (the prosecutrix) can ill afford to lose the money," admitted. R. v. Lloyd, 6 C. & P. 393.

Where the constable had said to the prisoner, "You had better not add a lie to the crime of theft," and then desired him to go with another constable and show where he had put the things, a confession afterwards made to such constable rejected. R. v. Shepherd, 7 C. & P. 579.

Where a confession was obtained under promises held out by a party without authority, but in the hearing of the officer having the prisoner in custody, held not receivable. R. v. Pountney, 7 C. & P. 302.

Constables are not justified in putting questions to parties in their custody, without cautioning them that their answers may be given in evidence. R. v. Kerr, 8 C. & P. 176.

Where, whilst the party was in custody, another prisoner said to him, "Pray split; I wish you would tell me how, &c.," upon which, at the prisoner's request, he took an oath not to disclose what he should say; held that the confession was admissible. R. v. Shaw, 6 C. & P. 372.

Some difference of opinion has existed, as to receiving evidence of confessions where an inducement has been held out by persons having no authority. R. v. Spencer, 7 C. & P. 776.

Where before the prisoner's examination was taken, he was told not to say anything to prejudice himself, as it would be used for or against him; held (per Coleridge, J.) that the examination was inadmissible. R. v. Drew, 8 C. & P. 140.

The prisoner asked the witness if he had better confess, to which the witness replied, that it would be better for him not to confess, but that he might say what he had to say to him, for it should go no further, the confession was received. R. v. Thomas, 7 C. & P. 345.

"It would have been better if you had told at first;" held (per Gurney, B.) to be an inducement, and sufficient to exclude the statement made in consequence. R. v. Walkeley, 6 C. & P. 175.

Where a confession to a prosecutor is not admissible by reason of promises, held that a second confession, afterwards made to another prosecutor, is also excluded. Meynell's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 122; Sherrington's Case, Ib. 123.

(Fact discovered in consequence of an Admission, p. 37.)

Where what the prisoner has stated is shut out, on account of the manner in which it has been obtained, it does not prevent the admissibility of facts discovered in consequence of the statement. R. v. Gould, 9 C. & P. 364.

(On Oath, p. 38.)

Where parties in custody at the time of the inquest, in a case of rape and murder, were examined by the coroner on oath, without inducement, and expressing their wish to be examined, their depositions were received as statements, by Williams, J., upon an indictment for the rape, with an intimation that he would reserve the point if it should become necessary. The parties were, however, acquitted; but being subsequently indicted for the murder, the same depositions were rejected by Gurney, B. R. v. Owen & others, 9 C. & P. 83 & 238.

Where a party charged with murder made a statement before the coroner, which purported to have been taken on oath, held not receivable against him, and that parol evidence was inadmissible to show that it was not made on oath. R. v. Wheeley, 8 C. & P. 250.

Where the prisoner was examined on oath before commissioners of bankruptcy, having been cautioned to elect what questions he would answer, held that such depositions were admissible against him on a charge of forgery. R. v. Wheater, 2 Moody, C. C. 45.

Where the prisoner, whilst unsuspected, had been examined as a witness on oath, and in his examination referred to a letter then produced; held, that as the examination, not being perfectly voluntary, could not be produeed against the prisoner when charged with the offenee, nothing said as to such letter before the magistrate could be reeeived; neither would the Judge (Gurney, B.) reeeive evidence of what was said, but not taken down, nor parol evidence of the eontents of such examination. R. v. Lewis, 6 C. & P. 161; S. P. R. v. Davis, Ib. 178.

(Proof of Examination, p. 39.)

To make the examination of a prisoner taken before justiees admissible, it is sufficient to prove the faets by a party present, without calling either the justice or his clerk. Rex v. Hopes, 7 C. & P. 136; S. P. Rex v. Forster, Ib. 148. And see R. v. Rees, 7 C. & P. 568; R. v. Reading, Ib. 649.

(The whole to be read, p. 40.)

The rule is for the whole statement of a prisoner to be heard, without suppressing it as to the names of other parties charged. R. v. Walkeley, 6 C. & P. 175.

Where the magistrate's clerk, in taking down the statements of several parties charged, left the names of each other mentioned by them in blank, the Judge refused to have it supplied by supplementary evidence. R. v. Morse & others, 8 C. & P. 605.

(Effect of.)

A statement by the prisoner, that he should never have written the letter but for W. G., does not amount to sufficient evidence of sending it. Rex v. Howe, 7 C. & P. 268.

AFFIDAVIT.

Title of, in case of certiorari. R. v. Jones, 8 Dowl. 80. Ejectment, Doe v. Roe, Ib. 40.

AGENT.

(From relative Situation, p. 42.)

A servant acting in the course of his master's serviee, and for his benefit, the master is liable for his acts, although no express command or privity be shown. Huzzey v. Field, 2 C. M. & R. 432.

Where the defendant's son was alleged to have warranted a horse, as agent to the defendant, and, to prove the authority, evidence was offered of the son's declaration to a stranger, held inadmissible, as not made in the course of any bargain and sale for the horse. Allen v. Denstone, 8 C. & P. 760.

The resident agent, appointed by the directors of a mining company to manage the mine, has not an implied authority from the shareholders of the company to borrow money upon their credit, in order to pay the arrears of wages due to the labourers in the mine, who have obtained warrants of distress upon the materials belonging to the mine, for the satisfaction of such arrears; nor in any other case of necessity, however pressing. Hawtayne v. Bourne, 7 M. & W. 595.

Upon an indietment for putting away forged notes of the Royal Bank of Scotland, it is not necessary to show an express authority to draw and issue such notes, the power being recognized by 48 Geo. 3, c. 149, and 55 Geo. 3, c. 184. M'Kcay's Case, 1 Ry. & M. C. C. 130.

(Recognition of Authority, p. 44.)

The defendant, a merchant residing at St. Petersburgh, carried on business in London through H., who had himself no capital or credit, and was universally known to represent the defendant, though H.'s name was always used. Defendant gave notice to H. that he purposed to cease employing him; after which H. contracted with the plaintiff to sell him tallow (of more than 10*l.* value); and H.'s name was used as before. H. intended to make the contract on his own account; but the plaintiff did not know this, and believed that H. represented the defendant as usual. The contract was made by a broker, W., acting for both parties. He signed bought and sold notes; the former beginning, "Bought for T." (the plaintiff); and the latter, "sold for H. to my principals;" no buyer or seller being further named. It was held, that the defendant was liable for the non-delivery of the tallow, the plaintiff having no notice that the name of H. ceased to mean the defendant; that the bought and that the sold notes constituted a sufficient note in writing to charge the defendant within stat. 29 Car. 2, c. 3, s. 17; and that no objection lay to the admission of parol evidence of the above facts, as varying the written instrument.

Evidence offered by the defendant, of a custom in the tallow trade, that, on such contracts as the above, "a party might reject the undisclosed principal, and look to the broker for the completion of the contract;" this was held to be inadmissible, as varying a written instrument.

And semble, that, if such evidence were admissible, the custom would not apply here; the principals being in fact disclosed to the broker, who acted for both parties. Trueman v. Loder, 11 A. & E. 589.

A party employing a broker on the Stock Exchange is bound by their rules, whether such employer is cognizant of them or not; and a broker having paid differences on shares sold through his employer's mistake, which the latter was not possessed of, is entitled to recover such payments, as also his commission on the sale. Sutton v. Tatham, 2 P. & D. 308; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 27.

(Acts of, p. 44.)

It was proved that before the bringing of the action Mr. L., who was the plaintiff's attorney on the record, had written to the defendant for payment of the debt for which the action was brought, and it was proposed on the part of the defendant to give evidence of what Mr. L. had said after he had so written, and before the action; it was held, that this evidence was not receivable without further proof of the agency of Mr. L. Pope v. Andrews, 9 C. & P. 564.

A collector of the customs, appointed under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 51, s. 2, and whose duty it was, upon receipt of the duties, to sign a bill of entry as a receipt, being a warrant for delivery of the goods, is a ministerial and independent officer, and not a mere agent of the commissioners appointing him, and is liable to an action for damages for improperly refusing to give such bill of entry on tender of the duty payable. Bury v. Arnaud, 2 P. & D. 633.

(Claim by, p. 46.)

The defendant, a corn merchant in Ireland, sent written instructions to the plaintiff, a corn factor and del credere agent of the defendant in London, to sell oats of a certain quality, at a certain price, on his (defendant's) account. The plaintiff sold them, as described by the defendant, in his own name. The oats proved to be of inferior quality, and the plaintiff was obliged to pay to the vendee the difference in value. In an action to recover the difference, it was objected by the defendant that the plaintiff had no right to sell in his own name, and thereby to incur liability; held, that evidence was admissible for the plaintiff to show that, by the custom of the London corn trade, a factor was warranted by such instructions in selling in his own name. Johnston v. Usborne, 11 A. & E. 549.

A plea is bad which shows no consideration for an agreement which deprives the principal of his right to make an authority to sell. Raleigh v. Atkinson, 6 M. & W. 670.

(Defence by an Agent, p. 46.)

Where the plaintiff's broker agreed with the defendants (being share brokers) for the purchase of shares, notes of which were made and sent in their own names, but immediately afterwards the entry in the books was altered to the name of the real seller, and a second contract note sent to the plaintiff, but the former note was neither demanded nor sent back; held, that evidence of a custom in L. to send in brokers' notes without disclosing the principal's name was properly rejected, and that the defendants having signed the contract in their own names, were liable, although known to be agents. Magee v. Atkinson, 2 M. & W. 441.

In an action for seizing the plaintiff's vessel, and converting, &c., the defendants pleaded the sentence of a foreign court of competent jurisdiction, condemning the plaintiff's vessel as prize, for breach of blockade; replication, that the employment of the defendants in such foreign service was, by statute 59 Geo. 3, c. 69, (Foreign Enlistment Act,) illegal; held, that the act of the principal being lawful in the country where done, and the authority of the servant complete and binding, the latter could not be made responsible in the courts of this country for the consequences of such employment, merely by reason of a general disability imposed upon the servant contracting such engagement; and that the action was therefore not maintainable. Dobree v. Napier, 2 Bing. N. C. 781.

ALIEN AMY.

An alien amy, though he has never been in this country, may maintain an action for a libel published in this country. Pisani v. Lawson, 8 Scott, 182.

AMENDMENT.

See Vol. I. tit. VARIANCE, and the statutes 9 Geo. 4, c. 15, and 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, and the cases cited in the Appendix, Vol. I. p. 496.

AMERCIAMENT.

Semble, it may be by a jury without other affeerment. Per Holt, C. J., Matthews v. Cary, Show. 61; Com. Dig. Leet (O. 2).

ANIMALS, CRUELTY TO.

See 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 59.

APOTHECARY, p. 47.

A chemist and druggist practising as an apothecary, in attending the sick and giving them medicines for reward, is liable to penalties under the statute 54 Geo. 3, c. 194. Apothecaries' Company v. Greenough, 1 G. & D. 378.

The plaintiff must prove his qualification under the general issue. Wagstaffe v. Sharpe, 3 M. & W. 521, supra, Vol. II. p. 102. Shearwood v. Hay, 5 Ad. & Ell. 383. Morgan v. Ruddock, 4 Dowl. 311.

A plea of tender as to part and non-assumpsit as to the residue does not admit that the plaintiff was entitled to recover under the Act. Wills v. Langridge, Ib.

By the st. 6 Geo. 4, c. 133, s. 4, surgeons and assistant-surgeons in the Army, or Navy, or East India Company's service, are not, in order to recover, obliged to give the proof required by the statute 55 Geo. 3, c. 194.

See Steavenson v. Oliver, 8 M. & W. 234.

The right to charge for visits as well as medicine, is not a question of law, but it is for a jury to say whether, under all the circumstances, a contract for reasonable compensation for attendance can be implied. Morgan v. Hallen, 3 N. & P. 498.

APPORTIONMENT, p. 48.

The stat. 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 22, s. 2, enacts that "all rents, &c. payable at fixed periods shall be apportioned in such manner that on the death of any person interested in such rents, &c., or on the determination by any other means whatsoever of the interest of such person, he shall be entitled to a portion of such rents, &c., according to the time which shall have elapsed from the commencement or last period of payment thereof respectively, including the day of the death of such person, or of the determination of his interest, all just deductions being made; and every such person shall have the same remedies for recovering such apportioned parts of the said rents, &c. when the entire portion of which such apportioned parts shall form part shall become due, and not before, as he would have had for recovering such entire rents, &c., if entitled thereto, but so that the person liable to pay such rents, &c. reserved by any lease, &c., and the lands, &c., comprised therein, shall not be resorted to for such apportioned parts specifically, but the entire rents, &c. of which such portions shall form a part shall be received by the person who, if this Act had not been passed, would have been entitled to such entire rents, and such portions shall be recoverable from such person by the parties entitled to the same under this Act." See also the stat. 11 Geo. 2, c. 19.

A., in 1836, let certain land to B., under a building agreement; the rent was to commence at Christmas 1838, and A. to have a right of re-entry in case of non-performance on the part of B. A. availed himself of this right of re-entry, and brought an ejectment, laying the demise on the 1st of January 1839. In September 1838, he had re-let the land to C., at a rent to commence in 1840, which was equivalent in amount to that provided for by the first agreement. In an action by A. for breaking the first agreement, held, first, that the demise in the ejectment was to be taken as the date of the re-entry by A., and that he was not entitled to that portion of the rent between the previous Christmas and that day, under the provisions of the statute 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 22.

The Act does not apply where a party himself determines the right to receive the rent by bringing ejectment for a forfeiture, no rent having accrued at the day of the re-entry. Oldershaw v. Holt, 11 Ad. & Ell. 307.

Where a lunatic's real estate was let from year to year, and the rent not reserved by any writing, held that the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 22, did not apply to such a case, and that there could be no apportionment between the heir and the personal representative. Markby, in re, 4 Myl. & Cr. 484.

Where the conveyance of the reversion of premises on lease released all the parties' interest, held that parol evidence as to apportionment of the current quarter's rent was inadmissible. Flinn v. Calow, 1 Man. & Gr. 589.

The owner in fee died pending several yearly tenancies at Lady-day and May-day, not having given notice to determine the tenancies, and the devisee for life also died after the current years had expired, but within the first half year accruing in his own time; held that both the tenancies being created by the devisor, and not determining with his life, the administrator of the devisee is not entitled to recover an apportioned part of the rent for the time elapsed after Lady-day and May-day in that year. Botheroyd v. Woolley, 5 Tyrw. 522.

Apportionment of a chattel in progress. See Woods v. Russell, 5 B. & A. 948.

APPROPRIATION, p. 48.

Where the defendants, as commission agents to foreign houses, in which they were partners, but the foreign houses were not partners in the commission business, received a letter from H. and I., authorising them to pay a sum of money to R. & Co., but which being unsatisfactory was revoked, and a second letter was written, which was desired to be acted upon, and the defendants thereupon gave an undertaking to R. & Co. to comply with it on being guaranteed by R. & Co., which was given; held, that taken altogether, it amounted to an appropriation of the sum to R. & Co., or else to an equitable assignment of it, and was not in either case revoked by the bankruptcy of H. and I., and notice given by the assignees before the proceeds received out of which the payment was to be made. Hutchieson v. Heyworth, 1 Perr. & Dav. 266.

Where in an action to recover the balance of a banker's account, the defendant disputed a payment above six years since, as made without any authority, but which the jury expressly found; held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to appropriate subsequent payments by the defendant in discharge of that item. Williams v. Griffith, 5 M .&W. 300.

See further, Waller v. Lacy, 8 Dowl. 563.

ARSON.

(P. 49.)

In a case of arson it was proved that "the floor near the hearth was scorched. It was charred in a trifling way. It had been at a red heat, but not in a blaze:" held that this would be a sufficient burning to support an indictment for arson. R. v. Parker, 9 C. & P. 45.

A. and B. were charged under the stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 17, with setting fire to a wood. It appeared that they set fire to a summer-house which was in the wood, and that from the summer-house the fire was communicated to the wood: held that A. and B. might be properly convicted on this indictment. R. v. Price, 9 C. & P. 729.

Under the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 17, the indictment for setting fire to, &c., with intent to injure the owner, was held to be sufficient, although the jury found the intent to be to injure another, and a count would be good although no intent laid. R. v. Newill, 1 Ry & M. 458.

A covering of wood and straw, set on upright posts and cross timbers, in a farm-yard, held to be an outhouse within the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 2, and that placing fire among the straw, producing smoke and burnt ashes in the straw, was a setting on fire, although there was no appearance of fire itself R. v. Stallion, 1 Ry. & M. 398.

Where, on a charge of arson, it was opened, that expressions of ill-will, made by the prisoner, would be proved, held that the prosecutor might be asked on cross-examination, if others had not used similar expressions of ill-will towards him. R. v. Stallard, 7 C. & P. 263.

ASSAULT.

(P. 52.)

A party struck at may strike again, to prevent a repetition of the blow, but not with greater violence than is necessary. Per Parke, B., 2 Lewin, C. C. 48.

The declaration stated that the defendant assaulted the plaintiff, "and also then presented a certain pistol loaded with gunpowder, ball, and shot, at the plaintiff, and threatened and offered therewith to shoot the plaintiff, and blow out his brains." To this the defendant pleaded not guilty, and it was proved that the parties being on board a ship, the defendant (who was the captain) went into his cabin and brought out a pistol and cocked it, and presented it at the plaintiff's head, saying that if the plaintiff was not quiet, he would blow his brains out: held, that if the defendant, at the time he presented the pistol, used words showing that it was not his intention to shoot the plaintiff, this would be no assault: held, also, that it was incumbent on the plaintiff to substantiate the allegation in the declaration, that the pistol was loaded with gunpowder, ball, and shot, and that unless the jury were satisfied that the pistol was loaded, they ought o find for the defendant. Blake v. Barnard, 9 C. & P. 626. But see R. v. St. George, 9 C. & P. 483.

If, on a trial of an indictment for a rape, it appear that the prisoner was under 14 years of age at the time he committed the offence, he must be acquitted of the rape, but the jury may convict him of an assault under the stat. 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 11. R. v. Brimilow, 9 C. & P. 366.

On an indictment for attempting to carnally know and abuse a girl under ten years of age, with a count for a common assault; the attempt was proved, but it could not be shown that the child was under ten years of age, and it also appeared that no violence was used by the prisoner, and no actual resistance made by the girl: held, that although consent on the part of the girl would put an end to the charge of assault, yet there was a great difference between consent and submission, and that although, in the case of an adult, submitting quietly to an outrage of this kind would go far to show consent, yet, that in the case of a child, the jury should consider whether the submission of the child was voluntary on her part, or was the result of fear under the circumstances in which she was placed. R. v. Day, 9 C. & P. 722.

If a person present a pistol, at another, and so near as to have been dangerous to life, if the pistol being loaded had gone off, semble, that this is an assault, even though the pistol is, in fact, not loaded, if the person so presenting it thought it to be so. R. v. St. George, 9 C. & P. 483.

On an indictment for a felony, which includes an assault, the prisoner ought not to be convicted of an assault which is quite distinct from the felony charged; and on such an indictment the prisoner ought only to be convicted of an assault which is involved in the felony itself. R. v. Gutteridges and others, 9 C. & P. 471. R. v. St. George, 9 C. & P. 483.

A. presented a loaded pistol at B., but was prevented from pulling the trigger: held, that A. might be convicted of this assault, on an indictment for feloniously attempting to discharge loaded arms at B. R. v. St. George, 9 C. & P. 483.

A prisoner who is tried for manslaughter, on the coroner's inquisition, may be convicted of an assault under the 11th sect. of the stat. 1 Vict. c. 85. R. v. Pool, 9 C. & P. 728.

The statute does not apply to unnatural attempts upon the person. R. v. Eaton, 8 C. & P. 417; but see R. v. Pikesley, 8 C. & P. 124.

An indictment for assaulting, and indecently exposing the person, with intent to incite a party to commit an unnatural crime; held not to be "a wilful and indecent exposure" within the 7 Geo. 4, c. 64, s. 24, enabling the court to give costs to the prosecutor. R. v. ——, 3 Nev. & P. 627.

ASSUMPSIT.

(Consideration, p. 55.)

The defendant offered a reward to whoever could give such information as would lead to the conviction of a felon. The plaintiff, who was constable and police officer of the district where the felony was committed, gave such information: held, on demurrer, that plaintiff's having given the information was a good consideration for a promise by defendant to pay the reward. England v. Davidson, 11 A. & E. 856.

In assumpsit on an undertaking to see acceptances paid, in consideration of the plaintiff giving up a guarantee of the defendant, which was in the terms "In consideration of your being in advance to Messrs. L. in the sum of £. —— for the purchase of cotton, I hereby give you my guarantee for that amount in their behalf;" held, that the effect of the terms "being in advance," and the validity of the instrument were so doubtful, as to make the obtaining back the guarantee an advantage to the defendant, and to make it a sufficient consideration for the subsequent guarantee and promise laid in the declaration. Haigh v. Brooks, 2 P. & D. 477; affirmed in error, 10 Ad. & Ell. 323.

Where a plaintiff discharges one of two joint debtors, the other has a right to be discharged, and therefore a promise by a third person to pay the debt, in order to obtain the discharge of the defendant in custody, is void for want of consideration. Herring v. Dorell, 8 Dowl. 604.

Where the declaration stated that in consideration the plaintiff would discharge one S. out of the custody of the warden, and take the warrant of attorney of S. for the debt and costs, the defendant undertook that S. should be forthcoming on a day stated, at the office of A., one day's notice being given to A.; breach, that S. was not forthcoming on the day and at the place agreed on, nor any notice given to A.: held sufficient on motion in arrest of judgment, and that no averment of the judgment having been entered upon the warrant was necessary. Page v. Jarvis, 8 M. & W. 136. See further as to consideration, Morton v. Burn, 2 N. & P. 297; Cooper v. Green, 7 M. & W. 633; Lilly v. Hays, 1 N. & P. 326; Brealey v. Andrew, 2 N. & P. 114; Tipper v. Bicknell, 3 Bing. N. C. 710; Shillibeer v. Glynn, 2 M. & W. 143.

(Written Agreement, p. 56.)

If the plaintiff close his case without its appearing that the contract is in writing, the defendant must make it evidence if he rely upon it, although the plaintiff has had notice to produce it. Magnay v. Knight, 2 Scott N. S. 64; and see Marston v. Dean, 7 C. & P. 13.

Where the evidence in an action for use and occupation does not disclose any written agreement, the non-production of one, by which in fact the premises were held, is no ground of nonsuit. Fry v. Chapman, 5 Dowl. 265.

Where the terms of hiring were by a third person written down, but never signed by the parties, nor proved to have been read over to them, it was held that parol evidence was admissible. R. v. Wrangle, 2 Ad. & Ell. 514.

Where there was no express evidence of the original contract on the employment of the plaintiff, as a broker, to procure a charter-party on a full commission, held that evidence of a conversation, in which he agreed to take half commission in consequence of the abandonment of the contract by the shipowner, was properly received to show what was the original contract between the parties. Broad v. M'Calmar, 5 Nev. & M. 413.

Where in an action by landlord against tenant, the first count set out the written agreement containing the terms of holding, and alleged a particular breach in not repairing, and other counts upon the implied contract for using the premises in a tenant-like manner, proceeded to set out various breaches: held, that there being but one contract of demise, the plaintiff could not recover damages on the latter counts, unless he showed a second contract, applying to different premises. Holford v. Dunnett, 7 M. & W. 348.

(Implied, p. 58.)

A party being let into possession on an agreement for a lease, containing covenants to cultivate, pay rent, &c. is bound by all which are applicable to a tenancy from year to year. Doe v. Amey, 4 P. & D. 177.

Where persons acting under an Act of Parliament (whether public or private), make an order under the authority of the Act for the payment of money, the law raises an assumpsit. Rann v. Green, 1 Cowp. 474.

On the 20th of February 1838, the plaintiff entered into a contract with the defendant, through their respective brokers, for the sale of thirty shares in the Bristol and Exeter Railway, at 7*l*. 5*s*. per share, and the usual contract notes passed between the parties, no time being mentioned for the completion of the purchase. On the 3d of March, the defendant wrote to the plaintiff's brokers, requesting them to "dispatch the thirty Bristol and Exeter shares forthwith," and they replied the same day, "we herewith send you the transfer of thirty Bristol and Exeter shares in blank." This was accordingly done, and the purchase-money was paid. Calls were subsequently made on these shares, and they not being registered in the name of the defendant, the plaintiff remaining the apparent owner of them, he was compelled to pay the calls. In an action against the defendant for not indemnifying the plaintiff for the payments and liabilities in respect of the calls; held, that under the above circumstances, there was no undertaking implied by law to indemnify against all subsequent calls, nor any evidence of such an undertaking in point of fact. Humble v. Langston, 7 M. & W. 517.

Where the original lessee of premises, with covenants to keep in repair, underlet with similar covenants, and was sued for dilapidations permitted by the under lessee, and having suffered judgment by default, paid the amount proved and costs of the action; held that there being no covenant to indemnify against breaches of covenant, the under lessor could only recover against his lessee the actual amount of the dilapidations, and not the costs of the action. Penley v. Watts, 7 Mees. & W. 601; and see tit. COVENANT.

The declaration set out an agreement for a demise by the defendant, as vicar of the glebe for 14 years, and a lease to be executed at the expense of the lessor, if required by either party; breach that the defendant neglected and refused to procure a lease to be executed of the premises, and that the defendant resigned the vicarage to L., who ejected the plaintiff from the possession; held, upon special demurrer, 1st, That the effect of the stipulation was that the party who was to pay the expense was also bound to prepare the lease, and the breach therefore well assigned; 2dly, That upon a contract for a demise for a term of years, a breach of contract was committed by the lessor resigning, and no agreement could be implied that the tenancy was to enure only so long as the defendant continued vicar; 3dly, That the declaration need not expressly allege what the agreement amounted to, whether an actual demise or an agreement for one; and lastly, That the demurrer being to the whole declaration, and one breach well assigned, the plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Price v. Williams, 3 Cr. M. & R. 6; and 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 197.

The defendant undertook in writing, that in consideration of the plaintiff's signing a consent to supersede the defendant's commission, he would, in the event of his recovering certain property, liquidate his claim, although not legally liable; held, that the agreement implied a promise to take some step for the recovery of the property. Edmunds v. Wilkinson, 7 C. & P. 387.

A. the charterer of a vessel, by the charter-party agreed that on the arrival of the ship at the outward port, he would, through his agent there, supply cash to the master for the disbursements of the vessel, to be repaid by bills to be drawn by the master on the owner; on the arrival of the vessel there, the agent supplied goods for the use of the crew, and paid certain money demands made on the master, but did not advance any actual cash: it was held, that although it was not shown that any bills were drawn by the master for the amount, A. might recover it from the owner in an action for goods sold and delivered, and for money paid, the master having authority to obtain supplies of goods and money for the necessary use of the ship on the credit of the owner, independently of the express stipulation of the charter-party. Weston v. Wright, 7 M. & W. 396.

The defendants were employed to effect an insurance on a vessel; held, that, it being a part of their duty to give notice in case of their failure in effecting it, it was properly alleged as a promise implied by the dealing between the parties. Callander v. Oelrichs, 5 Bing. N. C. 58; and 6 Sc. 761. See further as to implied contracts, Seaton v. Booth, 1 N. & P. 528; Halliwell v. Morrell, 1 Scott, N. S. 309.

(Parties; Joint Contract, p. 59.)

A. sued B. C. and D. in a joint action for an attorney's bill. B. pleaded nunquam indebitatus, and C. and D. suffered judgment by default; held, that in order to entitle A. to a verdict against B. the jury must be satisfied that there was a joint contract with A. by B. C. and D. jointly, and that it was not sufficient to show that there was a separate contract between A. and B. only, even though the evidence would have been sufficient to have supported an action by A. against B. alone. Robeson v. Ganderton, 9 C. & P. 476.

Assumpsit for work, &c., against three, one of whom suffers judgment by default, and the others plead the general issue; if the others succeed in showing that all were not jointly liable, it will prevent the plaintiff from succeeding against any, notwithstanding one has admitted on the record a joint contract. Elliott v. Morgan, 7 C. & P. 334.

Two of three part-owners of a ship authorized a party to sell the ship, which he did, and paid over to the two their respective shares of the purchase-money, held that the third could not maintain a separate action, it being a joint employment of such agent. Hatsall v. Griffith, 2 Cr. & M. 679.

Assumpsit against two for money had and received, plea alleging a deposit by the plaintiff with the defendants, whilst partners, as a security for faithful services, and that upon an agreement for a dissolution, one received the deposit and took the plaintiff into his sole employ, of which the plaintiff had notice and assented thereto, and discharged the other defendant, on which issue being taken and a verdict found for the defendants, held that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment non obst. verd., no contract being shown which made the latter defendant solely liable to the plaintiff. Thomas v. Shillibeer and another, 3 Cr. M. & R. 124; and 1 Tyr. & Gr. 290.

(Legality, p. 63.)

An agreement was made between the defendant and the plaintiff, and others, creditors of the defendant, that defendant should pay, and that the plaintiff and the other creditors should accept the amount of their debts by certain instalments secured by the defendant's notes; and it was at the same time, without the knowledge or consent of the other creditors, agreed between the plaintiff and the defendant, that the defendant should indorse to the plaintiff a bill accepted by a third party, in order to give the plaintiff a fraudulent preference, and induce him to become party to the composition. The notes being given and the bill indorsed in pursuance of this agreement; held, that the plaintiff could not sue the defendant even on the notes given for the instalments, although the plaintiff had not enforced or received payment of the bill when due. Howden v. Haigh, 11 A. & E. 1033.

Where on the retainer by the plaintiff of the defendant in his employment the latter gave a bond conditioned that he should not leave the service of the plaintiff without a month's notice, nor "follow or be employed in the said business for nine months after leaving," it was held to be construed to restrain him from being so employed in the service of another in a similar trade; and that as being in restraint of trade, and unlimited as to distance, it was against the policy of the law, and therefore void. Ward v. Byrne, 5 M. & W. 548.

On a bond conditioned in restraint of trade, the Court will not presume a good consideration, and the declaration must show a sufficient one on the face of it. Hutton v. Parker, 7 Dowl. 739.

Where the declaration was for "money lent and on an account stated," and the particulars contained only one item for money lent, and it appeared that the debt arose out of a bet; held that, on the plea non assumpsit, the question of illegality did not arise, and that the plaintiff might consistently recover on the latter count. Stevens v. Willingale, 7 C. & P. 702.

Where the contract on the face of the record appeared to be a bargain for a horse, conditioned for his trotting against time, and within the mischief, and against the stat. 9 Ann, c. 14, it was held, that the action could not be maintained. Brogden v. Marriott, 3 Bing. N. C. 88.

An agreement with assignees for an administration of the estate, at variance with the bankrupt laws, is void. Stainer v. Wainwright, 6 Bing. N. C. 174.

The defendant, a peer of Parliament, stipulated with the proprietors of an intended railroad to withdraw his opposition on their paying certain sums as compensation, and using their best endeavours after the passing of the Bill to obtain in the next session another, allowing a deviation from the original line: held that such agreement was illegal, and against public policy. Simpson v. Lord Howden, 1 Keene, 583.

Where a corporation having threatened opposition to a projected railway, the parties entered into an agreement with the corporation; held that the company having received the benefit of such agreement, were bound by it; and that such agreements are not illegal. Edwards v. Grand Junction Railway Company, 7 Sim. 337; affirmed, 1 Myl. & Cr. 226. 650.

The declaration stated that, in consideration the plaintiff would publish a certain libellous paper, and also at the defendant's request defend an action brought in respect thereof, the defendant promised to indemnify him against all damages and costs; held, that the promise was illegal, and the action not maintainable, and the extent of the damages was too uncertain and amounting to maintenance. Shackell v. Rosier, 2 Bing. N. C. 634; and see Farebrother v. Ansley, 1 Camp. 342; Martin v. Blytheman, Yelv. 197.

Where the defendant, an attorney, was employed by the plaintiff to recover possession of estates, and while he was so employed, an agreement was entered into between him and his client, that he, the defendant, should have possession of the estates delivered to him upon his giving an indemnity to the plaintiff against the costs of recovering the possession, and that the contract should be complete upon payment to the plaintiff of a certain sum within a stated period after the delivery of possession: held, that such contract was void and contrary to public policy: and an account of the dealings between the attorney and client having been decreed, it was held, that the former was bound to prove the consideration for which certain securities were given. Jones v. Thomas, 2 Younge & C. 498.

The taking money for suppressing an information under a penal statute, is within 18 Eliz. c. 5, s. 4, although no offence has been committed subjecting the party from whom the money is obtained to a penalty. R. v. Best, 2 Moody, 124; and 9 C. & P. 368.

An agreement by a servant with a cow-keeper, not within twenty-four months after discharge, &c., to carry on the business of a cow-keeper within five miles of Northampton-square, is not void as in restraint of trade. Proctor v. Sargent, 2 Scott, N. S. 289.

The law does not authorize a private person to forego a prosecution upon any terms; and even if a promise to do so be given and broken in such a manner as a jury would consider scandalous, yet, in point of law, that will not make any difference. R. v. Daly, 9 C. & P. 342.

A warrant of attorney, given by an attorney to induce a party to stay proceedings against him, on a rule for striking him off the roll, is illegal and void, and the Court will direct it to be taken off the file and cancelled. Kirwan v. Goodwin, 9 Dowl. 330. See further Lewis v. Davison, 4 M. & W. 654.

(Condition Precedent, p. 64.)

See further as to a condition when precedent. Kemble v. Mills, 2 Scott, N. S. 121. Halliwell v. Morrell, 1 Scott, N. S. 309.

On an agreement by the defendant to retake a public-house, which the plaintiff had previously taken of the defendant, and to pay for the good-will, stock, &c., if the landlord would accept him as tenant, and issue taken whether the defendant had requested or used any effort to cause him to do so, and it appeared that upon application by letter the landlord would not let, except at an increased rent; held that the plaintiff was rightly non-suited. Jeffries v. Clare, 2 M. & W. 43.

Where in assumpsit by assignees for non-performance of a contract to be performed on the 12th June 1835, the declaration averred that the bankrupt before, &c., and the plaintiffs as assignees, were always ready and willing, &c.: it was held, that the bankruptcy and insufficiency of assets were grounds on which the jury might infer that the plaintiffs had not always been ready, &c., and that the plaintiffs having taken no steps towards enforcing the contract until January 1838, the jury might properly infer that they had abandoned it. Lawrence v. Knowles, 5 Bing. N. C. 399.

(Moral Obligation, p. 70.)

A mere moral consideration to support a promise is sufficient in those cases only in which there is a precedent obligation, founded on good consideration, but which, as in the cases of debts barred by lapse of time, certificates of bankruptcy, &c., is not capable of being enforced; where the declaration disclosed only a benefit voluntarily conferred on another, and a promise by the defendant to pay money to the plaintiff, judgment was arrested. Eastwood v. Kenyon, 3 P. & D. 276; 11 A. & Ell. 438.

(Money paid, p. 74.)

The Court of Chancery having refused to compel the performance of an oral agreement for a lease by the testator with the defendant, part of the consideration being paid, his executors agreed to grant one on the same terms, and a lease was accordingly prepared by the attorney of the plaintiffs (executors), who paid his bill, but the lease was not delivered over, the residue of the consideration not having been paid; the plaintiffs were held to be entitled to recover the money so paid for preparing the lease as for money paid, and that in their personal character. Grissell v. Robinson, 3 Bing. N. C. 10.

Where after a seizure by the excise of spirits, and several applications made for their restoration, first on giving bonds for securing any penalties which might have been incurred, then on paying the value into the receiver's hands, to abide the event, which requests were refused, the defendants subsequently offered to pay the amount at which the spirits were appraised (a writ of appraisement having been sued out in order to their condemnation), upon their restoration, and "to give up all claim to the seizure," and to hold themselves responsible for such proceedings as might be instituted, upon which, on receipt of the value at which they were appraised, the spirits were given up; a general verdict was afterwards found against the parties and one penalty by consent taken; in an action to recover back the former sum paid, held that the payment having been made upon a compromise, and voluntary settlement upon good consideration, the goods having been rightfully taken, it was final, and the action not maintainable. Atlee v. Backhouse, 3 M. & W. 633.

The plaintiff at the defendant's request entered into a contract for the purchase of Spanish bonds, which the defendant promised to repay; held, in assumpsit for money paid, that the defendant could not object that the executory contract, on which the money had been paid, was not in writing, as required by the Statute of Frauds. Pawle v. Gunn, 4 Bing. N. C. 445.

Where the occupier of an hotel, not having obtained a wine licence, and being about to quit and transfer the premises to the defendant, had deposited a sum as an indemnity for the expense of procuring the licence, and duly attended the meeting of the magistrates for that purpose, and which would have been granted but for the non-attendance of the defendant; held, that as a case within the 12 sect. of the 9 Geo. 4, c. 61, it was the duty of the defendant to have given the notices required by the Act, and that he could not take advantage of the non-performance of the condition, occasioned by his own neglect, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover back the sum deposited. Bryant v. Beattie, 4 Bing. N. C. 254.

Assumpsit for money paid to the use of defendant, a plea, that the payment was made for certain shares which the plaintiff subsequently received, and tortiously misapplied and converted to his own use, and that the defendant had lost all benefit therefrom was held bad on special demurrer, the plaintiff's contract having been once completed, the subsequent tortions act could only be the subject of a cross action. Francis v. Baker, 2 P. & D. 569.

The master of a coasting vessel borrowed money on the credit of the owner, in a home port, but where the owner had no agent; held to be within the scope of his authority, and that it was properly left to the jury whether necessary or not for the prosecution of his voyage. Arthur v. Barton, 6 M. & W. 138.

(Money lent, p. 79.)

Money is lent on the security of shares, twenty-one days' notice to be given previously to the calling in any part of the loan, and a proportionate part of the shares to be returned. The plaintiff after twenty-one days' notice has expired, may recover for money lent. Scott v. Parker, 1 G. & D. 258.

(Money had and received, p. 79.)

Money taken from a party charged was detained by a police constable after the trial of the party charged; held, that in order to maintain the action against the Commissioners of Police, it must be distinctly proved that the money reached them. Green v. Rowan, 7 C. & P. 48.

A., an attorney, caused B. to be subpœnaed as a witness in a cause in which A. was attorney, and B., before he went to the assizes, asked A. who was to pay him? and A. said he would do so. After the assizes, at which B. attended and was examined, A.'s clerk, by the direction of A. gave B. an I O U for the amount of B.'s expenses and loss of time, which amount A. received from the opposite party after the costs in the cause had been taxed:

held, that B. might recover the amount from A. on a declaration containing counts for money had and received, and on an account stated. Evans v. Phillpotts, 9 C. & P. 270.

The defendants had sued the plaintiff as acceptor of a bill in the name, but without the authority, of a party not entitled to recover, and which the plaintiff had paid; the defendants, having no right to the money, it may be recovered back as had and received to the plaintiff's use. Carman v. Edwards, 9 C. & P. 596. So where goods were consigned by a foreign house to their own account, with directions to the defendants (consignees), to remit the proceeds to the plaintiffs, and advise them of having done so, and the plaintiffs wrote to know the probable amount, to which the defendants replied that they had received the goods with such directions, but had not then disposed of them; and the consignors afterwards failing, the defendants retained the proceeds in satisfaction of their own balance. Foukling v. Schroder, 2 Se. 135; and 7 C. & P. 103.

Where the plaintiff delivered a sum to the defendant to take to L., who alleged that he lost it at a brothel, but promised to repay the plaintiff, held that the latter might maintain assumpsit for money had and received, there being only the defendant's admission of the loss, which was no proof of the loss; otherwise the action must have been in case for the gross negligence. Parry v. Roberts, 3 Ad. & Ell. 118; and 5 Nev. & M. 669.

The plaintiff as the minister of a lay rectory of a parish (in which under local Acts district chapels and burial-grounds were erected, with powers to the select vestries to appoint certain salaries to the ministers and preachers), had before and after passing the Acts always received the surplice fees for burials, as part of the profits of the living, until the last year, when the defendant, by order of the select vestry, received and refused to pay them over to the plaintiff; held, that there being no provision for a burying minister, and no title shown in any other party, the defendants were liable in an action for money had and received to the plaintiff's use. Spry v. Emperor, 6 M. & W. 639.

Where goods consigned to a factor abroad were, after being discharged, confiscated by the Government, and afterwards compensation awarded, held that the factor was entitled thereout to sums paid by him for freight, &c. as money had and received to his use. Good, ex parte, 3 M. & Ayr. 246; and 2 Deac. 389.

A party carrying on the wine and spirit business assigned his premises by way of mortgage, with all licences, &c., to the plaintiff; the licence was shortly afterwards forfeited on account of some irregularities by the occupier; the plaintiff afterwards sold the mortgaged premises, under a power in the mortgage deed, without obtaining a new licence, but which the defendant, the assignee of the mortgagor, afterwards obtained, and sold to a subsequent occupier; held, that the licence so obtained by the defendant was not the licence conveyed to the plaintiff, and that the interest having ceased when the premises were sold in discharge of the mortgage, the sum received by the defendant on the sale of the licence was not money received to the plaintiff's use. Manifold v. Morris, 5 Bing. N. C. 420.

A. entered into partnership with B. & C., who had previously carried on the same trade together, and who shortly afterwards became bankrupt: and by an agreement, to which A., and the assignees of B. & C. were parties, it was agreed that A. should realize the assets and liquidate the debts of the firm, and that the official assignee of the bankrupts should be empowered by A. to collect the outstanding debts, and pay the amount to S. & Co. bankers, to the account of A., being allowed the usual per centage: held, that A. could not alone sue the official assignee, in an action for money had and received, for monies collected by him under this agreement, and which remained in his hands, and of which he had rendered an account to A. Lewis v. Edwards, 7 M. & W. 300.

Where a party, a chapelwarden on going out of office, having money payable to the plaintiff, who refused to receive it until a suit, then pending, was determined, paid it over to the defendant, his successor, with instructions to retain it in his hands until such suit was determined; held, that pending the suit, it was not money received to the use of the plaintiff. Sewell v. Raby, 6 M. & W. 22.

The agents of the plaintiff in England were directed by him to pay, through the defendants, money to be placed to his credit in India, which was done, and an entry was made in the defendants' books to the credit of their correspondent, to whom they sent advice to account for it to the plaintiff; before the letter of advice reached their correspondent, the latter had failed, having drawn on the defendants, between the date of such letter and the failure, bills which the defendants had accepted to an amount exceeding the amount paid in by the plaintiff; held, that the defendants having only acted as directed, and the situation in which they stood towards their correspondent being altered, the plaintiff could not maintain assumpsit against them for the money so paid in. M'Arthy v. Colvin, 1 P. & D. 429.

Stock, the trust property of the wife, was improperly sold out by the authority of the husband and wife; it still remained a trust fund in the hands of the agent receiving it, and the husband cannot maintain an action for money had and received, it never having been his money. Mileham v. Eycke, 3 M. & W. 407.

Upon an agreement under seal, by three persons, for the purchase of a foreign mine, a sum was deposited conditionally, to be repaid to the purchasers, should the property, upon inspection by an agent to be sent out by them, turn out to have been misrepresented; the deed giving a right to sue for the money in covenant, one of them cannot maintain an action for money had and received, although entitled by agreement, not under seal, between themselves; held also, that the agent to be sent out by the purchasers must be a person independent of the purchasers, and not one of themselves, although such an objection might be waived by some instrument under seal. English v. Blundell, 8 C. & P. 332.

The defendant, an attorney for A., who was really entitled, brought an action in the name of the plaintiff, and recovered, and the jury having found that it was received by him for A.; held, that the plaintiff could not maintain an action against the attorney for the money received on the settlement of the claim. Clark v. Dignam, 3 M. & W. 478.

(Obtained by Fraud, p. 83.)

Where a creditor refused to sign a composition deed, unless he received the whole of his claim, and a bill for the remainder was given and afterwards paid; held, a voluntary payment, and not recoverable back as money had and received on an illegal consideration, although the transaction might have been a valid answer to an action on the bill. Wilson v. Ray, 2 P. & D. 253; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 82.

(Ignorance of Fact, p. 86.)

A. had arrested B., who put in bail. A summons was afterwards obtained by the defendant's attorney, for entering an exoneretur on the bail-piece. The clerk to the agent of the plaintiff's attorney gave his consent not knowing that the defendant was at that time a merchant residing abroad; the exoneretur was accordingly entered. The Court having granted a rule nisi, calling on the defendant to show cause why the Judge's order should not be rescinded, and the exoneretur entered upon the bail-piece be struck off, made that rule absolute on payment of costs. Firth v. Harris, 8 Dowl. 437.

But where trustees under an assignment for the benefit of creditors (a fi. fa. having on the day of its execution, although before it was executed, been delivered to the agent of the sheriff in town, under which the officer took possession), in order to release the goods, paid the amount, the debtor having previously committed an act of bankruptcy on which a fiat issued; held that they could not recover back the money so paid from the sheriff; the delivery of the writ to the town agent was a delivery to the sheriff. Harris v. Lloyd, 5 M. & W. 432.

(Account stated, p. 87.)

Evidence that one of two defendants examined the account, objecting to one item only, and promising to send corn for the balance; that both the defendants were present when the debt was mentioned, without its being objected to, at a meeting of creditors; and that the other defendant had admitted that a debt was due: is sufficient to warrant a jury in finding the amount due on an account stated. Chisman v. Count, 2 Scott's N. S. 569.

A statement by the defendant in a letter, that he did not know exactly how much was due from him, but that he should think it might be —— l., is not sufficient evidence of an account stated; to constitute it, there must be a statement of some certain amount being due. Hughes v. Thorpe, 5 M. & W. 656.

Allegation that an indictment had been preferred, a true bill found, and the trial put off to another sessions, and that the defendant had agreed to pay the costs of the day; held, 1st, that the fact of a true bill having been found could only be proved by a record made up, and not by the indictment itself indorsed as a true bill; and, 2dly, that the memorandum indorsed and signed by both counsel on the brief, and the amount of costs afterwards adjusted, was evidence to go to the jury on an account stated. Porter v. Cooper, 6 C. & P. 354.

At a meeting of the plaintiff and defendant to settle an account, the clerk of the former made the entries in one book, which the defendant copied into another, no admission, however, was made as to the correctness of the items, but the defendant admitted that the balance against him, as stated by the clerk, was correct, yet added, that as he had done many things, there would not be much, if anything, between them; held, that the plaintiff's book would not bind the defendant so as to require its production or its absence to be accounted for; and, that the defendant's admission was evidence of something due on the account stated. Rigby v. Jeffrys, 7 Dowl. 561.

One surveyor of the highways, being in advance, agreed to deliver up the books to the other, to enable him to collect the rates, the latter undertaking to reimburse him what was due out of the monies he should collect, and the book was delivered over, but the defendant, having collected, neglected to pay; held that the plaintiff was entitled to maintain the action on an account stated. Liddard v. Holmes, 2 Cr. M. & R. 586; S. C. 1 Tyr. & Gr. 9.

A party kept an account with the defendant, and afterwards becoming lunatic, the account was continued by the family, and a balance was stated in the pass-book to the credit of the lunatic; in an action by his representative after his death, to recover such balance, there being no evidence of an accounting with him, nor with any one appointed by him, or competent to state it on his part, it was held that the action was not maintainable. Turbuck v. Bipsham, 2 M. & W. 2.

Where the plaintiff proved that the sum sought to be recovered on the account stated was an admitted item in an account by the defendant, and in respect of which he had paid interest, but the defendant proved that it arose out of a transfer of the debt of a third party to the plaintiff, under a mistaken authority, and which was negatived by such third party, who had since settled with the plaintiff all claims; held that the defendant was entitled to prove those facts, and if believed, it entitled him to a nonsuit. Pierce v. Evans, 2 Cr. M. & R. 294.

Under non assumpsit the defendant may show that the account admitted by him was in fact incorrect. Thomas v. Hawkins, 8 M. & W. 140.

(Defence under the New Rules, p. 101.)

A plaintiff declared specially in assumpsit, that in consideration that the plaintiff had sold and delivered twenty tons of best Dutch lead to the defendant, the latter had promised to deliver to the plaintiff prussiate of potash to the same amount; and the plaintiff averred the delivery of the twenty tons of best Dutch lead, and stated as a breach, that the defendant would not deliver the full quantity of potash. The defendant pleaded non assumpsit; held, that as the defendant had not pleaded that the plaintiff had not delivered best Dutch lead, he could not go into evidence to show that the lead was of inferior quality. Pegg v. Stead, 9 C. & P. 636.

In assumpsit for timber bargained and sold, held that if there were a false representation of its quality, it must be specially pleaded, and that upon the issue whether the timber was sound or not, that word having a technical meaning in the timber trade, evidence of its meaning by the custom of the timber trade was admissible. Woodhouse v. Smith, 7 C. & P. 310.

In assumpsit for goods bought at an auction, held that the defendant might prove under the plea of non-assumpsit, that, by a special contract with the plaintiff, the sum at which the goods were knocked down by the defendant might be set off against a legacy payable to him by the plaintiff, and that there was, in fact, no sale between the parties. Bartlett v. Parnell, 6 Nev. & M. 299; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 792.

In assumpsit against the charterer for demurrage, under the plea of the general issue, the defendant cannot object that the plaintiff has not complied with the provisions of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c 52, s. 108, requiring notice to be given to the collector of customs, &c. previously to the unlading; such a defence ought to be specially pleaded. Alcock v. Taylor, 6 Nev. & M. 296.

In assumpsit for money paid on a policy effected for the defendant, plea—that the policy in respect of which the alleged payments were made was so framed as to be utterly useless to him; semb. the defence might well form the subject of a special plea, and a demurrer thereto, as amounting to the general issue, was allowed to be withdrawn. Cole v. Le Sœuf, 3 Sc. 188; and 5 Dowl. 41.

(Defence, gift, p. 102.)

Where a claim was made in the action for services on the one hand, and for board and lodging as a set-off on the other, the plaintiff and defendant being brothers, and the plaintiff living with and assisting the defendant in his business; held, that unless the jury were satisfied of a contract, express or implied, no ex post facto charges could be made. Davies v. Davies, 9 C. & P. 87.

(Performance, p. 102.)

In assumpsit for not delivering possession of premises, agreed to be demised, a part of which consisted of small cottages, occupied by weekly tenants, of which the plaintiff was aware, and made no objection, held that it was sufficient to justify a finding by the jury in favour of a plea stating the circumstances, and that plaintiff agreed to accept the attornment of the tenants instead of an actual delivery of possession. Palmer v. Temple, 6 Nev. & M. 159.

(Merger, &c., p. 104.)

At the time of the assignment of a lease by defendant to plaintiff, rent was in arrear, which the plaintiff paid under a distress; held, that the defendant having granted, by deed of assignment, the premises, with the usual covenant for quiet enjoyment, assumpsit would not lie on the implied contract to indemnify the plaintiff, nor on an express contract to repay without some new consideration. Baber v. Harris, 1 P. & D. 360.

Where, in assumpsit for money, the issues on the pleas non-assumpsit, and a bond given and accepted in satisfaction of the debt had been found for the plaintiff, the Court refused a new trial, on the ground that the implied promise had merged in the specialty. Weston v. Foster, 2 Bing. N. C. 693.

The plaintiff and defendant entered into a deed of agreement for the performance of certain chemical services, and the deed contained a power to determine it by notice in case of the experiments not succeeding before a certain date; they afterwards entered into another agreement not under seal, referring to the former deed, and amounting simply to an extension of the time; held, that the deed not having been determined, the action of assumpsit for the latter agreement was not maintainable. Gwynne v. Davy, 9 Dowl. 1; and 2 Sc. N. S. 29.

(Performance impossible, p. 104.)

The defendant signed an agreement to pay a debt for which a third party was in execution, or to surrender him to the sheriff; held, that as the latter alternative could not be by law performed, the agreement operated as an absolute one for payment of the money. Stevens v. Webb, 7 C. & P. 60.

ATTAINDER, p. 106.

A conviction without attainder not necessarily avoiding a subsequent conveyance, held that a conveyance by a party convicted of bigamy was not void as against the Crown. R. v. Bridger, 3 Cr. M. & R. 145; and 1 Tyr. & Gr. 437.

ATTEMPT.

Every attempt (not every intention) to commit a misdemeanor, is a misdemeanor. R. v. Martin, 9 C. & P. 215; R. v. Roderick, 7 C. & P. 795.

ATTORNEY, p. 106.

(Retainer and business done, p. 107.)

In an action on his bill after an order for taxation and allocatur thereon, the defendant having attended the taxation, evidence of the business having been done is not necessary. Wilson v. Knapp, 2 M. & R. 160.

By the terms of a memorandum for a lease for a term, if lessor should so long live, made by the lessor's attorney, the plaintiff, it was stipulated that the lease was to be prepared by the plaintiff at the expense of the lessee; the lessor dying before the lease was signed, held that the jury were justified in finding a retainer by the defendant for the plaintiff to perform the work. Webb v. Rhodes, 3 Bing. N. C. 732.

In an action for work and labour for agency business in the Court of Chancery by the two plaintiffs, partners, the objection that one had not been admitted a solicitor of that Court, can only be taken advantage of on being specially pleaded. Hill v. Sydney, 3 Nev. & P. 161.

The appearing for a prisoner before a judge on summons does not constitute him attorney in the suit. Spencer v. Newton, 5 Ad. & Ell. 823.

In an action on an attorney's bill and plea nunquam indebitatus pleaded, it is competent for the plaintiff to show that a greater amount is due to him than the Master allowed on taxation, pursuant to an order for changing the attorney in the course of the cause in which the costs were incurred. Beck v. Cleaver, 9 Dowl. 111.

(Delivery of bill, p. 108.)

Business is done by an attorney for a person who afterwards becomes an attorney, the former need not deliver a signed bill previously to bringing an action. Windsor v. Herbert, 9 Dowl. 237; 7 M. & W. 375.

An attorney's bill delivered by his executor before action brought is not taxable. Doe d. Sabin v. Sabin, 8 Dowl. 468.

A bill of charges for business in the Central Criminal Court is taxable by order of a Judge of one of the superior courts. Curling v. Sedger, 4 Bing. N. C. 743; 6 Sc. 678; and 6 Dowl. 759.

Where above one-sixth has been taken, a Judge at chambers may compel him to pay the costs of taxation. Sykes v. M'Clise, 8 Dowl. 145.

Charges for taking the acknowledgments of married women since 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 74, being now only statutory conveyances, are not taxable items within the statute for taxing attornies' bills. Brandon, in re, 3 Bing N. C. 783; and 5 Dowl. 623.

In an action by an attorney to recover the amount of his bill, with the common counts; held, 1st, that a bill signed, consisting of some items in the aggregate, and others relating to business duly stated, others not, was sufficient to entitle him to recover as to the portion so duly stated; 2dly, and that as to aggregate items, not being for business, he might recover under the common count; 3dly, that a charge for extra costs, not stating the items, nor enabling the Master to see whether the charges were according to the course of the cause, was insufficient; 4thly, that he could not appropriate a sum received by him without the knowledge of the defendant to any particular part of his demand; and, lastly, the plaintiff having at the foot of his bill given credit for a particular sum received, and "Mr. L.'s bill," leaving a blank for the amount, was a sufficient acknowledgment of something being due to take it out of the statute, and which might be supplied by parol evidence. Waller v. Lacy, 1 M. & G. 54; 1 Sc. N. S. 186; and 8 Dowl. 563.

(Defence—Negligence, p. 111.)

Where the attorney, employed to conduct an appeal at the sessions against an order of removal, neglected to enter and respite at the first sessions, and delivered the notice of the grounds of appeal, signed by himself and not by the officers, and the sessions refused to hear it, and the order stood confirmed; held, that having throughout shown a want of professional skill which every attorney is bound to have, and the defendants having derived no benefit from his services, he was not entitled to recover. Huntley v. Bulwer, 6 Bing. N. C. 111.

(Action against, p. 112.)

The plaintiff's attorney on the record has no authority by virtue of his retainer to discharge a defendant in execution out of custody without receiving payment of the sum for which he is detained. In debt by the assignee of A., a bankrupt, against the marshal for an escape after the choice of trustees of a prisoner in execution at the suit of A., before his bankruptcy, it was pleaded that before the marshal had notice of the bankruptcy, the attorney of A. the plaintiff in the action did as such attorney require and direct him to discharge the prisoner out of custody, and as such attorney did give licence to the marshal for the discharge, and that the marshal, before notice of the bankruptcy, in pursuance of such requirement and direction, discharged the prisoner: Held on demurrer, that the plea was no answer to the action, as it did not show any sufficient power in the attorney, as such, to authorize the discharge. Savory v. Chapman, 8 Dowl. 656.

The plea ought to show either that the plaintiff had given express authority for the discharge, or that the amount for which the execution issued had been paid to him or his attorney.

Quære, whether a plea in the latter form would justify the marshal, if the plaintiff suing out execution had become bankrupt between the commitment and the order to discharge, and an action of escape was brought by his assignee. Savory v. Chapman, 8 Dowl. 656.

The attorney is not liable for refreshments supplied to witnesses attending the trial, unless there be evidence to satisfy the jury that he has sanctioned the supply. Fendall v. Nokes, 7 Sc. 647.

An attorney who practises in the county court, after having omitted for a year to take out his certificate, is not liable to penalties under the statute 12 Geo. 2, c. 13, s. 7, as a person practising without having been legally admitted according to the st. 2 Geo. 2, c. 23. Hodkinson v. Mayer, 6 Ad. & Ell. 194.

(Undue Influence, p. 115.)

Where a jury had found that a deed had been obtained from the client, not by fraud, but by undue influence, the Court held that the question, whether undue influence is to be inferred from the nature of the transaction, or is against the policy of the law, being one for the Court and not for the jury, and being of opinion that the circumstances, although suspicious, did not show that the deed was obtained by the influence of the party in the character of a solicitor, granted a new trial. Casborne v. Barham, 2 Beav. 76.

(Revocation of authority.)

The death of the client revokes the authority of the attorney, and it is immaterial that he has a lien for his costs. Showman v. Allen, 1 M. & G. 94.

AWARD, p. 116.

A certificate is not distinguishable from an award, and the parties must abide by the decision of the arbitrator, although he may be mistaken. Price v. Price, 9 Dowl. 334.

(Error, &c. on the part of the Arbitrator, p. 118.)

Although the award be good upon the face of it, yet, if the arbitrator, upon being told that it was intended to have his judgment appealed against, in furtherance of that appeal assigns an erroneous ground for the decision he has pronounced, the Court will interfere. Jones v. Corry, 5 Bing. N. C. 187; and 7 Dowl. 298.

An order of reference directing the parties and witnesses to be examined, if the arbitrator should think fit, upon oath, to be sworn before a Judge or Commissioner, does not restrain the arbitrator, under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 41, from himself administering the oath. Hodson v. Wilde, 7 Dowl. 15; and 4 M. & W. 536.

Where the parties have intentionally allowed the time to expire without enlargement, the Court has no power under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, to compel the parties to proceed with the reference. Doe d. Jones v. Powell, 7 Dowl. 539.

As to setting aside on the ground that two or three arbitrators acted on the opinion of counsel in a case inaccurately stated, see in re Milne, 8 Scott, 367.

A delegation by an arbitrator of an authority to settle a dispute between the parties, is an excess of authority. Tandy and Tandy, In re, 9 Dowl. 1044.

(By an umpire.)

Where the reference was to two arbitrators and an umpire, and the agreement to perform the award of the said arbitrators and their umpire, and it was made by the arbitrators only, the Court refused an attachment. Heatherington v. Robinson, 7 Dowl. 19; and 4 M. & W. 608.

The appointment of an umpire by lot consented to by the attornies' clerks, and not by the attornies or their clients, is bad, although the parties, ignorant of the fact, attended before him. Hodson & Drewry, in re, 7 Dowl. 569. And see Greenwood and another, in re, 1 P. & D. 461.

(Publication.)

A cause was referred by a Judge's Order to two arbitrators, with liberty to appoint an umpire, so that he should make and publish his umpirage in writing, ready to be delivered to the parties on or before the 15th July next. On the afternoon of the 12th July, the umpire sent notice to the parties that he was about to declare his award, which was dated the 11th, and desiring them to attend at his office at five o'clock that evening, which they accordingly did. At ten o'clock in the morning of the same day the plaintiff died; held, that there was a publication of the award in the lifetime of the plaintiff. The term "publication" in a subscription to arbitration, means such notice of the award as will enable the parties to obtain knowledge of its contents. By analogy to the 9 & 10 W. 3, a party seeking to set aside an award made by Judge's Order, must apply within the time limited by that statute. Brooke v. Mitchell, 8 Dowl. 392.

(Award, defective when, p. 115.)

An award is good although it does not distinguish what is awarded in respect of the action referred, from what is awarded in respect of matters in difference. Taylor v. Shuttleworth, 8 Dowl. 281.

To a declaration containing a claim of 200 l. for horse keep, and 250 l. for goods sold, the defendant pleaded, except as to 150 l. 14 s. 8 d. non-assumpsit, and as to that sum payment. The cause was referred, and the arbitrator awarded that the first issue should be entered for the plaintiff, with 14 l. 4 s. 9 d. damages; that the second issue, so far as related to 150 l. should be entered for the defendant and the residue for the plaintiff; held sufficient —the arbitrator was not bound to find the first issue distributively. Bird v. Penrice, 8 Dowl. 775.

Award, when void for excess in directing costs to be taxed as between attorney and client. Sechham v. Babb, 6 M. & W. 129; and 8 Dowl. 167. When wholly void for excess. Bowes v. Fernie, 4 M. & C. 150. And see Price v. Popkin, 10 Ad. & Ell. 139; and 2 P. & D. 304.

Where a cause in which several issues are raised on the pleadings is referred, the arbitrator is bound to find expressly on each, although he is not requested to do so by the parties. Therefore, where to a declaration a defendant pleaded several pleas, and the arbitrator was not requested to find specifically on each, and he awarded merely that the plaintiff had no cause of action, and directed a verdict to be entered for the defendant, the award was held to be bad. England v. Davison, 9 Dowl. 1052.

(Revocation of authority, p. 118.)

The bankruptcy of the defendant before the making an award, is not a ground for setting aside the award. Taylor v. Shuttleworth, 8 Dowl. 281. Nor insolvency, Hobbs v. Ferrars, ib. 779.

An award directs a sum to be paid on a day appointed, the duty is a continuing duty, although no demand be made on the day fixed. Craike, in re, 7 Dowl. 603.

By the stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 39, a submission to arbitration by rule of Court, is not revocable without leave of Court;

And by sec. 40, the Court, or any Judge of the Court, may, by rule or order, compel the attendance of any witness before an arbitrator or umpire.

Sec. 41. Such arbitrator has power to administer an oath.

The statute does not extend to the reference of criminal but of civil matters only; where, therefore, an indictment for a conspiracy has been referred, the submission may be revoked. R. v. Bardell, 1 N. & P. 74.

So where an indictment for conspiracy had been referred, and the authority afterwards revoked, and the defendants refused to proceed to the reference; held not a case within the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 39, requiring the leave of the Court or a Judge to revoke. R. v. Shillibeer and others, 5 Dowl. 238.

(Statement of objections to.)

It is insufficient to state the grounds of objection to an award in a rule for setting it aside in general terms, as, that the award is not final, that the arbitrator has exceeded his authority, that the award is uncertain, or that the arbitrator has not awarded on all the matters referred to him. Gray v. Leaf, 8 Dowl. 654.

(Arbitrator, liability of.) Money deposited with an arbitrator as a stakeholder is not recoverable by the assignees of the depositor on his becoming bankrupt before the award made. Taylor v. Shuttleworth, 2 Scott's N. S. 375. Qu. Whether bankruptcy operates as a revocation of the arbitrator's authority, under an order of Nisi Prius. Ib.

BANKRUPTCY.

(Proofs by assignees, p. 122.)

Assignees under an Irish commission may sue for debts contracted here. Fergusson v. Spencer, 2 Scott's N. S. 229.

(Fiat—Misnomer, p. 122.)

The Court refused, on the petition of the bankrupt, to annul the fiat, on the ground that he was described in it as "John G.," instead of "John Christian G.," his right name, he having been examined before the commissioner, and never mentioned that he was wrongly named in the fiat. Ex parte Gilligan, 1 Mon. D. & D. 144.

(Depositions, p. 123.)

Where under no circumstances the bankrupt could have brought the action, semb. the depositions will not be evidence. Hare v. Waring, 3 M. & W. 376.

And although they may be conclusive of the facts recited, yet that would not exclude the defendant from showing that although true, the plaintiff could not avail himself of them, as being a party to a concerted act of bankruptcy. Ib.

On a petition of the bankrupt to annul, supported by affidavits impeaching the validity of the petitioning creditor's debt and the act of bankruptcy, the depositions on the proceedings are not admissible in evidence against the bankrupt to establish these requisites. Ex parte Prescott, 1 Mont. D. & D. 199.

(Trading, p. 126.)

Two attornies in partnership lent money on mortgage to a party engaged in a building speculation, and the mortgage being forfeited they took possession of the carcases of the houses, and furnished them at their own expense, for the purpose of selling or letting them; they also purchased a a few other carcases, not in their character of mortgagees, which they employed a builder to finish for the same purpose. Held that this was not a joint trading as builders, within the meaning of the bankrupt laws. Ex parte Edwards, 1 Mon. D. & D. 3.

A party, having no other visible occupation, was made a bankrupt, as a dealer in yachts. The only evidence of trading was, that upon three several occasions he bought and sold a yacht for profit, realising on such sale a profit of 190 l.; and that on some of these occasions he employed a broker, to whom he said, that "he thought it no disgrace thus to increase his income;" but there was no direct evidence that he thus dealt, for the purpose of gaining his livelihood, or that he was considered as a trader by any person who knew or dealt with him. Quære, whether this is sufficient evidence of a trading within the bankrupt laws. Ex parte Cromwell & Knight, 1 Mon. D. & D. 158.

By the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 2, it was intended to include all builders, persons being builders with intent to gain a profit and livelihood thereby, whether they build on their own land or on that of others, on lease or otherwise. Neirinckx, ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 384; and 1 Deac. 78 But see ex parte Edwards, supra.

A single act of buying and selling as a farmer, with any evidence of intent to continue it, is a sufficient evidence of trading. Lavender, ex parte, 4 D. & Ch. 487.

But the proof of one single act of trading, without evidence of a general intention to trade, was held to be insufficient, and the petitioning creditor is bound to establish the affirmative. Wilkes, ex parte, 2 Deac. 1; and 2 M. & Ayr. 667. And where a party exercising the profession of a proctor was made bankrupt as a bill-broker, the evidence being of his having once been employed to get a bill discounted, not naming the parties, or the particulars of any one bill, it was held to be insufficient to support the proof of trading. Harvey, ex parte, 1 Deac. 571; and see below, Brundrett, ex parte.

Where an auctioneer was shown to be continually in the habit of buying and selling goods, as well as of bidding at auctions, it was held to be a trading within the bankrupt law. Moore, ex parte, 3 M. & Ayr. 131.

So where a farmer was in the habit of purchasing more sheep than were required to stock his farm, and selling immediately the excess without shearing or any pasturing on his farm, held to amount to a trading as a sheep salesman within the bankrupt law. Newall, ex parte, 3 Deac. 339.

A surgeon and apothecary selling drugs, not merely to patients, but to any who might apply, is a trader within the bankrupt law. Daubeny, ex parte, 2 Deac. 72; and 3 M. & Ayr. 16.

Where the bankrupt held shares in a joint-stock banking company, and received dividends for two years, it was held to constitute a sufficient trading as a banker. Wyndham, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 146.

The mere buying of hay and corn by a livery-stable keeper, to be used merely by the horses of particular persons taken in, and not generally, held not a trading within the Act. Lewis, ex parte, 3 M. & Ayr. 199; and 2 Deac. 318.

The trade of a scrivener by an attorney is not established by proof of the party having merely negotiated money loans, receiving a procura-tion fee; nor by his having received money on mortgages called in, and left in his hands, for which he paid interest to his employer down to the time of his bankruptcy. Lott v. Melville, 9 Dowl. 882. So a mere dealing in accommodation bills, without proof of any place of business or capital, and no proof of any specific bill discounted, was held to be insufficient to establish a trading as a bill-broker. Phipps, ex parte, 2 Deac. 487. So a purchase of shares in a banking company, without any intention of following the business of a banker, is insufficient. Brundrett, ex parte, 2 Deac. 219; and 3 M. & Ayr. 50. And where the party took a lease of land containing salt pits, on which he expended money in materials for converting the brine produced therefrom into salt, held not to constitute a trading within the bankrupt law; held also, that the holding shares in a salt company for one week, during which he derived no profit therefrom, was not such a seeking his livelihood as constituted a trading. Athinson, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & Y. 300.

Letting furnished lodgings does not constitute a trading, although the furniture is purchased for the purpose of being let. Bowers, ex parte, 2 Deac. 99; and 3 M. & Ayr. 33.

Quære, if a coach proprietor be a trader within 6 Geo. 4, c. 16; semble, he is not: he contracts to carry, not to let. Walker, in re, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 270 n.

(Act of bankruptcy: otherwise absent himself, p. 134.)

The mere failure in keeping an appointment with a creditor is not sufficient to constitute an act of bankruptcy; and where pending a negotiation for a loan he was arrested in the country and discharged on bail, having promised to meet the creditor on the following morning, and give a security, but he proceeded to London to procure part of the loan, intending to pay the creditor instead of giving the security, and wrote accordingly to the solicitor to that effect, promising to return in day or two, but was delayed by the negotiation; held, that the intent to delay was rebutted. Lavender, ex parte, 4 D. & Ch. 484.

Where it appeared, upon the trial of an issue whether an act of bankruptcy had been committed, that on the preceding day the trader had sent a letter from his place of residence to his place of business, stating his inability to meet his engagements, and directing himself to be denied to creditors, and he immediately quitted home, and remained absent during that and the following day, and a witness who saw him stated that he said he was not in a hurry to get home, and should not go early, as he had creditors who would lay hold of him; held an act of bankruptcy, although the jury said that they did not believe he spoke bonâ fide; held also, that evidence of his declarations and conduct on the following day were inadmissible to explain his conduct on the day in question. Johnston v. Woolf, 2 Scott, 372.

(Denial to a creditor, p. 136.)

A bankrupt, after being denied to a creditor, acknowledged in the course of the same day to a third person, that he had given orders for that purpose, as he knew the creditor wanted money. This acknowledgment is evidence against the bankrupt, on his petition to annul the fiat. Ex parte Prescott 1 Mon. D. & D. 199.

On such petition the depositions on the proceedings are not admissible against the bankrupt in support of those facts. Ib.

An order to deny, not followed by a shutting up the house, or withdrawing from it, semble, would not amount to an act of bankruptcy. Hare v. Waring, 3 M. & W. 376.

And see Fisher v. Boucher, 10 B. & C. 705.

(Fraudulent conveyance, p. 138.)

A trader in solvent circumstances being pressed to execute an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors, declines to do so, and offers a composition instead. Next day, his solicitor concurs in calling a meeting of the trader's creditors at the place where he carried on business, for the purpose of having a statement made to them of his affairs. The trader's non-attendance at this meeting is an act of bankruptcy, although personally he might have made no promise to attend, and although his solicitor attended to explain the state of his affairs. Ex parte Beer, 1 Mon. D. & D. 390.

(Fraudulent preference, p. 140.)

In trover by the assignees of bankrupt to recover the value of goods, alleged to have been delivered to the defendant in contemplation of bankruptcy, evidence that the goods were delivered in payment and satisfaction of a debt due from the bankrupt to the defendant, does not support a plea alleging that the goods were bonâ fide sold and delivered to the defendant by the bankrupt before the issuing of a fiat, and without notice of an act of bankruptcy, and that the defendant bonâ fide paid for them. Backhouse v. Jones, 8 Scott, 148; 6 Bing. N. C. 65.

In an action by assignees, upon a question of fraudulent preference, before any evidence given of the bankruptcy or insolvency, declarations of the party, showing a consciousness of his being in insolvent circumstances, are admissible, the fact of insolvency being afterwards proved aliunde, although semble the latter fact should, strictly, be first proved. Thomas v. Connell, 4 M. & W. 267.

Where a voluntary payment is made by a party to a creditor at the time his circumstances are such as must end in bankruptcy, and the belief of which must be operating on his mind at the time of payment, it is void as a fraudulent preference; aliter, if he has a reasonable and bonâ fide expectation that he may still be extricated from the impending bankruptcy: this being a question peculiarly for the jury, the Court will reluctantly interfere with their finding, and semb. only where the preponderance of evidence is strong, and it is clear that injustice has or may be done. Gibson v. Boutts, 3 Sc. 229.

Where the deposit was only a few days before the bankruptcy, and no pressure shown, satisfactory evidence is required that it was not made in contemplation of the bankruptcy. Morgan ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 116.

Where the defendant acted as the agent in the sale of a bankrupt's goods, with the fraudulent purpose of benefiting himself, but the purchaser acted bonâ fide and in ignorance of the purpose of the bankrupt; held, that there being no delivery at all to the defendant, and no fraud on the part of the buyer, it did not constitute an act of bankruptcy. Harwood v. Bartlett, 6 Bing. N. C. 61; and 8 Sc. 171.

The 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 120, applies only to parties assisting the bankrupt in the concealment of his goods, and not to a case of debtor and creditor; semb., a creditor might, however, come within the Act, although a fraudulent preference is intended: but a separate penalty cannot be recovered for each distinct act of concealment. Brooks v. Glencross, 2 M. & R. 62.

Where a party conveyed a portion of landed estate to his creditors, and nothing was done for five years, nor bankruptcy in that time, held that there was no ground for saying that in executing the deed a fraudulent preference was intended, or that it was in contemplation of bankruptcy. Cattell v. Corrall, 4 Younge & C. 228.

(One privy, &c., p. 144.)

Where a fiat issued on a concerted act of bankruptcy, and four months elapsed before a creditor petitioned to annul it, and it appeared that the bankrupt had committed another act of bankruptcy, which was not concerted, and the assignees were not privy to the concert, and wished the fiat to proceed; the Court refused to annul it. Ex parte Bostock and others, 1 Mon. D. & D. 344.

The bankrupt, previous to the fiat, having called a meeting of his creditors at Manchester, H. & Co., creditors at Halifax, wrote to G., an attorney at Manchester, to attend the meeting on their behalf, saying, "we will leave our interests in your hands." In pursuance of the resolutions passed at the meeting, which were communicated to H. & Co., a trust-deed was prepared by G., and executed by the bankrupt and many of the creditors, but not by H. & Co. A dividend was afterwards declared by the trustees, of which H. & Co. were also informed, without any objection to the arrangement. They cannot afterwards set up this deed as an act of bankruptcy. Ex parte Teald, 1 Mon. D. & D. 210.

Where at a meeting of creditors the bankrupt signed a declaration of insolvency, upon an understanding that it should not be gazetted unless necessary; held, that it was discretionary with the creditors, and that he could not, in the absence of bad faith, afterwards object. Rowe, ex parte, 1 Mont. & Ch. 334; and 4 Deac. 68.

(Petitioning Creditor's Debt, p. 146.)

An order made by the Lord Chancellor under stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 18, must show on the face of it whatever is necessary to give jurisdiction; e. g. that the creditor applying to have his debt substituted for that of the petitioning creditor had proved a sufficient debt before making the application.

And this is not shown sufficiently by stating that the application was made by persons who were creditors of the bankrupt, "and that their debt" proved under the fiat, "or so much thereof as was sufficient to support such fiat," was incurred not anterior to the debt of the petitioning creditor.

Where the order stated such application made by B., and that the debt of C., the petitioning creditor, was insufficient to support the fiat, and that the debt of B., proved under the fiat, was incurred not anterior to the said debt of B. (instead of "C."): held, that the words "of B." might be rejected as surplusage, and that the order sufficiently showed B.'s debt to be not anterior to that of the petitioning creditor. Christie v. Unwin, 11 A. & E. 373.

In an action by assignees of a bankrupt, for money had and received by the defendant to their use, the defendant pleaded non-assumpsit, and that the plaintiffs were not assignees modo et formâ, and gave notice to dispute the bankruptcy. One act of bankruptcy was proved, none other being suggested: held, that the plaintiffs were not bound to prove the existence of a good petitioning creditor's debt at the date of the act of bankruptcy. Porter v. Walker, 4 Scott, N. S. 568; 1 Mann. & G. 686.

One of two partners gives an acceptance, in the name of the firm, for a pre-existing debt of his own, without the authority of the other partner. This acceptance is not a good petitioning creditor's debt, to support a joint fiat against the two partners. Ex parte Austen, 1 Mon. D. & D. 247.

Where a creditor proceeds against his debtor, under the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 8, and is privy to the suspension of the payment of the debt until after the expiration of the twenty-one days limited by the statute, he cannot support a fiat as petitioning creditor against the debtor, on the ground that he has not paid or secured the debt within the twenty-one days. Semble that an examination of a party before the commissioners cannot be read even against himself, unless notice has been given of the intention to read it; but an affidavit may be made of the contents of such examination. Ex parte Budd, 1 Mon. D. & D. 436.

A. owed B. 277*l.*, and, to secure the amount, deposited with him bills to the amount of 1,518*l.* drawn by A. and accepted by C. A. and C. both became bankrupt. Held that B. might prove the full amount of the bills under the fiat against C., but not receive dividends beyond the sum of 277*l.* Ex parte Phillips, 1 Mon. D. & D. 232.

A. being a bonâ fide holder of two bills accepted by the bankrupt, for the payment of which he also held a security,, transfers the security to B., who proves for the amount under the fiat; held that such proof did not prevent the right of A. to prove also on the bills, though it might be a question for future consideration whether he would be entitled to receive dividends on such proof. In the matter of Barham, 1 Mon. D. & D. 179.

The insertion of a debt in the schedule of an insolvent does not extinguish the debt for all purposes; it may be made a good petitioning creditor's debt. Barrington, ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 255; and 1 Deac. 3.

A note given to a creditor for the remainder of the debt released under a deed of composition, being nudum pactum and void, is an insufficient petitioning creditor's debt. Hall, ex parte, 1 Deac. 171.

Quære, whether a mortgagee in trust can issue a fiat on the mortgage debt. He may, after he has established it by an action at law. Where a partner treated the debt as mixed up with the partnership, held that he could not afterwards sustain a fiat thereon. Gray, ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 283.

Where part only of the debt, but insufficient to support the fiat, was contracted during the trading, and the residue after the trading had ceased, it was held that the fiat could not be supported; secus if part had been contracted before, and the residue during the trading. Dolby, ex parte, 1 Mont. & C. 636.

A debt made up of a sum paid in part of a bill, and the remainder unpaid, but the bill in the hands of an adverse holder, held bad. Caldecott, ex parte, 1 Mont. & Ch. 600. Where part of the debt was a bill of costs, held that in ascertaining the amount, the Court could not enter into any question as to neglect or misconduct in the business done. Southall, ex parte, 1 Mont. & Ch. 346; and 4 Deac. 91. But upon a reference, by consent, to the registrar, to tax the bill, having regard to the charge of negligence, and to state special circumstances, it being alleged that there was a contract to take only costs out of pocket; held, that the registrar should have taxed accordingly, and it was referred back to him to revise his certificate. Southall, ex parte, 1 Mont. & Ch. 656; and 4 Deac. 91. 99.

Where the fiat issued as on a petitioning creditor's debt due to two partners, being to three, it was held to be a nullity. James, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 2.

(Joint and separate Property.)

A. and B. agree to dissolve their partnership from a particular day, and publish a notice to that effect in the Gazette, stating that the debts due to and by the firm would be received and paid by A. No assignment was executed of the partnership effects, but they were left in the possession of A., who continued to carry on the business in the partnership firm. Four months after the dissolution a joint fiat issues against A. and B. Held, that the partnership property was not converted into the separate property of A., but was distributable among the joint creditors of A. and B. Ex parte Cooper and others, 1 Mon. D. & D. 358.

A. and B., as joint executors, carry on their testator's trade in co-partnership, for the benefit of his family, and it is arranged between them that A. should alone draw and accept bills, and manage the cash transactions. A. having refused to accept any more bills drawn by H. and D., B., unknown to A., authorizes her son to accept them, and A. and B. afterwards become bankrupt. Held, that the holders of these bills could not prove them against the joint estate.

It was also held that the examination of a party before the commissioners may be read to counteract an affidavit subsequently made by him, if he is neither a petitioner nor respondent in the matter of the petition, without any previous notice of reading the examination, or giving the opposite party a copy of it. Ex parte Holdsworth and others, 1 Mon. D. & D. 475.

Where a father associated his son with him in the business, not with a share of profits, but at a fixed sum, and the former received the rents of the premises in which the trade was carried on as his own separate property, held that it was not to be deemed joint property, and distributable amongst the joint creditors. Murton, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 252.

Where two partners having money in the hands of a banker, on the death of one, the other drew out part for the purpose of effecting a particular partnership purpose, and deposited it with a trustee, to be returned if the purpose failed; it was held that it continued partnership property, and not that of the survivor, and that it was applicable to the joint debts of the firm. Leaf, ex parte, 1 Mont. & Ch. 662.

(What passes, &c., p. 150.)

Where bills were sent to the bankrupt, an agent, before, but received after his bankruptcy, with instructions to apply the proceeds to a particular creditor, who has notice thereof, held that the assignees could not retain them. Cotterell, ex parte, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 376.

Where foreign merchants remitted bills to their London agents, and there was nothing from the correspondence to show that the latter were authorized to deal with them as their own, but that the only obligation of the foreign house was to keep the agents in cash to meet the bills when due; held, that the bills not having been discounted nor disposed of, there was nothing to displace the title of the remitters, and that they did not pass to the assignees of the agent. Jombart v. Woollett, 2 Myl. & Cr. 389.

Where a married woman, being entitled to stock and money, part of a residue, the husband wrote to one of the executors, requesting the stock to be transferred to trustees for her sole and separate use, and the cash to be paid to himself, which was complied with, and he applied part of the money in increasing the stock, and afterwards became bankrupt and died; held, that the assignees were only entitled to the increased stock made by him. Ryland v. Smith, 1 M. & Cr. 53.

The assignees, either of a bankrupt or insolvent, can recover only such things as he has a right in, both legal and equitable; and where that equitable interest exists, the effect of an assignment would not be to convert it into a legal one. Where there had been an agreement by a bankrupt to mortgage specific articles ascertained, held to prevent them passing to the assignees; aliter, if it were only an agreement to mortgage goods subsequently to be acquired, or to give a bill of sale at a future day. Moss v. Baker, 3 M. & W. 195.

Where by the settlement the trustees were to receive the rents and profits, and apply the same for the maintenance of the bankrupt and his wife and children, or permit the same to be received by him, held that the clear intention being for the wife and children to be supported out of the property, the assignees took subject to what was proper to be allowed for their maintenance. Page v. Way, 3 Beav. 20.

(Trover by Assignees, p. 153.)

A builder entered into a contract with the defendants for preparing and fixing certain works, for which he was to be paid on being fixed and approved of by the surveyor, and the contract contained a stipulation that if the builder should become bankrupt, the defendants might take possession of the work then already done, and avoid and put an end to the agreement, and should pay so much as should be adjudged the fair worth of the work actually done and fixed; and certain sashes having been made and approved of, and taken to the premises, where pullies, the property of the defendants, were added, but before being fixed the builder became bankrupt, having received advances beyond the amount of the work certified to have been done; held, that the property in the sashes remained in the bankrupt, notwithstanding the approval, and addition made of the pullies thereto, and that the assignees, after demand and unqualified refusal, might maintain trover for the sashes. Tripp v. Armitage, 4 M. & W. 687.

Where judgment was signed on a warrant of attorney, and the fi. fa. in the hands of the sheriff, and execution levied before the act of bankruptcy committed; held, that there being no wrongful conversion before the bankruptcy, and the 3 Geo. 4, c. 39, giving a special action on the case to recover the proceeds when the execution is to be deemed fraudulent and void, the action of trover could not be maintained. Brooke v. Mitchell, 6 Bing. N. C. 349; 8 Sc. 739.

The 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 90, requiring notice of the matter to be disputed on the trial, does not apply to the trial of an issue on an interpleading rule in general terms, whether the assignees were entitled to the goods seized in execution by the sheriff. Lott v. Melville, 9 Dowl. 882.

(Order and disposition, p. 154.)

Where the plaintiff sent goods to a dyer, and informed him that a party would call and give instructions, which he did, and becoming afterwards bankrupt, the goods were claimed by his assignees; held, that in trover against them the directions of the bankrupt were admissible evidence for the assignees, as some evidence of the bankrupt's dealing with the goods as his own, although unavailable, unless with the consent of the true owner. Sharpe v. Newsholme, 5 Bing. N. C. 713; and 8 Sc. 21.

Quære, whether the ordinary fixtures of a dwelling-house, namely, such as are removable as between landlord and tenant, are to be considered as goods and chattels, within the meaning of the clause of reputed ownership, 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 72, so as to pass to the assignees of the bankrupt tenant, in preference to the lien of an equitable mortgagee, or to that of a vendor for his unpaid purchase money. Ex parte King, 1 Mon. D. & D. 119.

Assignees of a bankrupt cannot recover in trover a policy of insurance on a life, effected by the bankrupt, and deposited by him, before his bankruptcy, with the defendants, as a security for money then and previously advanced by them to him. Gibson v. Overbury, 7 M. & W. 555.

Where a gas company possessed copyholds, and by the deed the shares were made personalty; held, that a shareholder having deposited shares as a security, without notice to the company, before his bankruptcy, was still to be deemed the apparent owner, and that they passed to his assignee. Vallance, ex parte, 3 M. & Ayr. 224; and 2 Deac. 354.

But where the owner of shares in an insurance company assigned them, and gave notice to the company, but, from informality in the assignment, the company could not recognise the assignee's title, and they remained in the bankrupt's name; held not to be within his reputed ownership. Masterman, ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 209.

Where by the constitution of a joint-stock company only principals could become subscribers, the petitioner having purchased shares in the name of the bankrupt, as a trustee for him, kept the certificates in his own possession; no notice was given to the company, nor was any written declaration of trust made until seven days before the fiat issued; held that the shares passed to the assignees as within the reputed ownership of the bankrupt. Ord, ex parte, 1 Deac. 167.

Where the deposit is of deeds conveying an equity of redemption of premises in fee, of which the party making the deposit subsequently paid off the mortgage, the creditor is entitled to the full benefit of the security so exonerated; so of shares in estates at the time of the deposit, undivided, but for equality of partition of which the bankrupt has subsequently paid a consideration, and acquired the entirety of a portion. Bisdee, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 633.

A party with whom a trader has deposited a policy of insurance, sends an agent to the office to inquire whether the premium has been paid, the agent tells a clerk in the office that the policy has been so deposited; semble, that this is not sufficient of itself to take the policy out of the order and disposition of the trader, the practice of the office requiring a written notice, but it is a circumstance to be left with others to a jury. Edwards v. Scott, 2 Scott's N. S. 266.

The bankrupt on being pressed for payment, assigned the freight becoming due to him, under a charter-party of a ship belonging to him, and gave notice to the party to whom the freight by the charter-party was made payable; held sufficient to take the debt out of the order and disposition of the bankrupt, and that no notice was necessary to be given to the party by whom the freight was to be paid. (Affirming the decree of the Vice-Chancellor), Gardner v. Lachlan, 4 M. & C. 129; 6 Sim. 407; and 8 Sim. 123.

Where the captain of a vessel, engaged on a voyage, had taken the cabin accommodation for passengers, contracting to pay the owner a certain sum, and fitted them with furniture, &c.; but having in the course of the voyage thrown up the command, and confirmed the appointment of the owner of the chief mate in his room, and before the return of the ship, written to the owner to desire him to keep possession of the furniture, and place it to the credit of his account with him; held, that the goods were to be deemed in the possession of the mate as agent of the owner, and that the direction to keep them amounted to an equitable mortgage; and that the assignees of the captain, who afterwards became bankrupt, were not entitled to recover until the debt to the captain was satisfied. Belcher v. Oldfield, 6 Bing. N. C. 102.

Where the petitioners sent goods to the bankrupt, as a broker, for sale, and he effected a sale with others in which he was to be a partner; held, that the owners were entitled to have specifically restored such as were in the bankrupt's possession; that the contract of sale being void for fraud, the goods continued in the possession of the bankrupt as agent. Huth, ex parte, 1 Mont. & Ch. 667.

Furniture, the separate property of the wife, was held not to pass to the assignees, although in the possession and use of the husband at the time of his bankruptcy. Elliston, ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 365.

Furniture, the separate property of one partner, used by him in the house of business, held not to be within the reputed ownership of the firm; but where it had been treated as partnership property, a petition to deliver it to the assignees of the separate creditors was dismissed. Hare, ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 478; and 1 Deac. 16.

Where the plaintiff let the goods to a hotel-keeper, to furnish the hotel, which the defendants had seized as assignees, as goods within the order, &c. of the bankrupt, and it was shown, to a considerable extent, to be the custom of upholsterers to let out furniture to such persons; held, that the plaintiff being the undoubted owner, the issue lay on the defendants to show their title as assignees; and that the question for the jury was, whether the custom was so general that persons must be supposed to have known that the goods, although in the possession, were not the property of the bankrupt. The jury found for the plaintiff. Mullett v. Green, 8 C. & P. 382.

Where by the custom of the country fixtures or machinery were demised with the premises, which had been mortgaged by one of two bankrupt partners who was seised of the freehold, held that the assignees were not entitled to such fixtures, but that the property passed by the mortgage. Scarth, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 240.

Note, that in Trappes v. Harter, 3 Tyr. 602, supra, Vol. II. 155, the Court held that the mortgage deed did not convey the machinery to the plaintiff, the mortgagee. See the observations and cases collected in Smith's Leading Cases, vol. ii. p. 145.

(Stoppage in Transitu, p. 162.)

Where the defendants having sold wheat to the plaintiffs, to be paid for by a draft, which not being remitted, the defendants took back the wheat from the carmen to whom they had delivered it for the plaintiffs, held, that the plaintiffs could not maintain trover for the wheat. Wilmshurst v. Bowker, 5 Bing. N. C. 541.

Where, in the absence of the consignee, his clerk recommended the captain, who was anxious to relieve himself, to land the goods at a wharf, which was done, and they were entered in the wharfinger's books in blank, with freight and charges set against them; held, that the wharf was to be deemed only a place of deposit in transitu, and not of reception, and that the right of stoppage continued; held also, that by an acceptance of bills, the vendor's right was not taken away. Edwards v. Brewer, 2 M. & W. 375; and see Feise v. Wray, 3 East, 93.

Where goods were shipped, deliverable to the vendee at L., in the river, and on their arrival, he, knowing his embarrassment, upon the pressure of the captain, directed his son to have them landed, saying that he would not have them; held, that the question for the jury was whether he took possession of them as owner, or for the benefit of the vendors, and that his instructions to his son were material, and admissible to show that intention. James v. Griffin, 1 M. & W. 20; and 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 449.

Where, upon sale of goods, delivery orders were given and part of the goods removed, but the residue remained in the warehouses of the vendor, held, first, that the right to stop in transitu, upon the bankruptcy of the vendee, was not divested by such delivery orders; and, secondly, that the goods were in the possession of the bankrupt as the true owner, subject to the rights of the vendor. Townley v. Crump, 5 Nev. & M. 606.

The purchaser of lead, no place of delivery being stated, after a time directed it to be forwarded to him at L., and the vendor gave the purchaser's agent an order on his servant for its delivery, and the order being indorsed by the agent. it was put on board a lighter for L., where it arrived on the 21st of June, on which day the purchaser became bankrupt. He afterwards demanded the lead of the captain of the vessel, and tendered the freight, but the captain refused to deliver it, alleging that he stopped it on account of the purchaser being a bankrupt, and a letter dated 28th afterwards arrived from the vendor, directing the lead to be stopped in transitu; held, that the lead being at the time on board the defendant's vessel, the transitus was not at an end. Jackson v. Nichol, 5 Bing. N. C. 508.

The vendors directed the defendants (wharfingers) to deliver 1,028 bushels of oats, Bin. 40, to the purchaser, and "to weigh and charge the expense" to them; the oats comprised the whole in the bin, and were transferred in the defendants' books, and the price paid, but no weighing ever took place; held, that this being only for the purpose of satisfaction, and not with the view of ascertaining the quantity or price, the right of stoppage was at an end. Swanwick v Sothern, P. & D. 648: and 10 Ad. & Ell. 815.

(Property in Bankers, p. 164.)

A. deposited India bills with her bankers, specially indorsed by her, to receive the amount when due; the balance of the petitioner's banking account, exclusive of the amount of the bills, being in her favour, and continuing so up to the bankruptcy of the bankers. The bankers charged discount on the bills in their account with A., who might have drawn on them for the amount; it being the custom of the bankers to consider ordinary bills so deposited, as cash. The bankers paid the bills away to a creditor with whom the assignees afterwards settled an account, charging him with the amount of the bills, and receiving from him a balance due to the estate; held, that A. was entitled to be reimbursed the whole amount of the bills from the assignees. Ex parte Elizabeth Bond, 1 Mon. D. & D. 10.

The bankrupt being entitled to two-thirds of an estate, one by devise from his father, and the other as heir at law to his brother, deposited the deeds with his bankers to secure advances; he had also taken out administration to his brother, but the personal estate proved insufficient, and his creditors claimed the third as assets for the payment of debts as a trader under 11 Geo. 4, and 1 Will. 4, c. 47, s. 9; held, that the lien of the bankers on his share had preference over the claim of the creditors. Baine, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 492.

Under the statute simple-contract creditors can only charge the heir in respect of the land, and not the party to whom it has been bonâ fide aliened. Ib.

(Note (n), p. 170.)

Section 108 of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, is not repealed by 1 W. 4, c. 7, s. 7, as to warrants of attorney. Crossfield v. Stanley, 4 B. & Ad. 87.

(6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 81. p. 171.)

R. a trader, after a secret act of bankruptcy, and within two months before the issuing of a fiat against him, deposited goods with the defendant, in consideration of a present advance of money; held, that the assignees of R. might maintain trover for the goods, the transaction, though bonâ fide, and without notice of an act of bankruptcy, not being protected by the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 82. Fearnley v. Wright, 1 Scott, N. S. 657.

(Notice of Bankruptcy, p. 171.)

Where the defendant, the bankrupt's agent in trade, bonâ fide sold goods to a purchaser, after an act of bankruptcy committed by his principal, but of which the defendant was ignorant, and the sale took place two months before the commission issued; held, in trover, that having sold under a general authority only, it was a sufficient dealing with the goods to constitute a conversion, unless justified in what he did by any facts, and which should have been specially pleaded; and that, in the absence of any evidence to show that the purchaser was ignorant of the bankruptcy, on a mere traverse of the assignee's possession, the plaintiffs were entitled to recover; the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, ss. 81, 82, protecting only the transfer where the dealing is without notice, and the onus of establishing that lying on the party establishing the sale. Pearson v. Graham, 6 Ad. & Ell. 800.

(St. 2 & 3 Vic. c. 29, s. 1. p. 173.)

Enacts that all contracts, dealings, and transactions by and with any bankrupt really and bonâ fide made and entered into before the date and issuing of the fiat against him, and all executions and attachments against the lands and tenements or goods and chattels of such bankrupt, bonâ fide executed or levied before the date and issuing of the fiat, shall be deemed to be valid, notwithstanding any prior act of bankruptcy by such bankrupt committed; provided the person or persons so dealing with such bankrupt, or at whose suit, or on whose account such execution or attachment shall have issued, had not, at the time of such contract, dealing, or transaction, or at the time of executing or levying such execution or attachment, notice of any prior act of bankruptcy by him committed; provided also that nothing therein contained shall be deemed or taken to give validity to any payment made by any bankrupt, being a fraudulent preference of any creditor or creditors of such bankrupt, or to any execution founded on a warrant of attorney or cognovit given by any bankrupt by way of such fraudulent preference.

The protection given by the stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29, s. 1, is not available in evidence in an action of trover by the assignee against an execution creditor, either under the plea of not guilty, or a plea that the plaintiffs were not lawfully possessed of the goods as assignees at the time of the alleged conversion. Byers v. Southwell, 9 C. & P. 320.

Semble, also, that the latter plea does not render it necessary for the plaintiffs to prove the petitioning creditor's debt. Ibid.

A docket was struck, and a fiat bespoke and paid for before twelve o'clock. About two the bankrupt's goods were seized under a fieri facias. On the same day, but after the seizure, the fiat was called for, and obtained from the Bankrupt-office. It did not appear whether it had been at any previous time delivered out to the petitioning creditor, or any person on his behalf; held that the execution was protected by 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29. Pewtress and others v. Annan, 9 Dowl. 828.

The stat. has a retrospective operation, so as to protect the sheriff from liability in respect of a bonâ fide execution levied on the goods of a bankrupt, without notice of the act of bankruptcy, where the seizure and sale took place, and the fiat issued, before the passing of the Act, but the assignees were not appointed until afterwards. Nelstrop v. Scarisbrick, 6 M. & W. 684; 8 Dowl. 746.

The statute does not apply to a case where the assignees in bankruptcy were appointed before its passing. Moore v. Phillipps, 7 M. & W. 536.

And see Luchin v. Simpson, 8 Scott, 676. Varnish, ex parte, 4 Mont. D. & D. 514.

A trader commits an act of bankruptcy by procuring his goods to be taken in execution with intent to defeat or delay creditors, the execution, although levied bonâ fide by the judgment creditor, is not protected by the stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29. Hall v. Wallace, 7 M. & W. 353.

On the 6th July an execution was levied on the goods of A., on the 19th of the same month the 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29, came into operation, and a few days afterwards a fiat of bankruptcy issued against A. upon an act of bankruptcy committed before the levy, but of which the judgment creditor had no notice at the time; held, that the Act rendered the execution valid, and that the assignees were not entitled to the property. Edwards and another, Assignees, &c. v. Lawley, 8 Dowl. 234. 6 M. & W. 285.

(Issuing of Fiat, p. 173.)

The date of the fiat is primâ facie evidence of its issuing, within the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 6, without reference to its being delivered out; and the issuing is, it seems, synonymous with "suing forth" and "applying for." Rowe, ex parte 1 Mont. & Ch. 334.

(Proofs in Defence against Assignees, p. 175.)

Where, in an action by assignees for goods sold, &c., the defendant offered in evidence an account stated and settled, showing a balance to the defendant, and which was dated prior to the bankruptcy; held, that it was to be presumed to have been written at the time it bore date, and that it was properly received in evidence; if the fact were otherwise, or the paper a fraudulent contrivance, it was open for the plaintiff to show it. Sinclair v. Baggaley, 4 M. & W. 312.

(Concerted, p. 175.)

Notwithstanding the provisions of the 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 56, s. 42, which declares that no fiat shall be annulled, by reason only that it has been concerted between the petitioning creditor and the bankrupt, yet where it appears to be, in fact, the fiat of the bankrupt, and not issued bonâ fide for the benefit of the creditors, the Court will order it to be annulled. Ex parte Lewis, Ex parte Davies, 1 Mon. D. & D. 365.

(Set-off, p. 177.)

One of two assignees cannot set off his own debt against the amount of a dividend payable to a creditor under the fiat, although he swear that the creditor had agreed to allow such set-off. Ex parte Bailey, 1 Mon. D. & D. 263.

Although an agreement of the bankrupt to submit to arbitration is not binding on his assignees, yet when a Judge's order, made (by consent) in a cause in which the bankrupt was plaintiff, recognized a pending reference between the parties, and ordered that in the event of any sum being found by the arbitrator to be due from the bankrupt to the defendant, such sum might be set off against the debt and costs in the action; it was held that this order amounted to an agreement on the part of the bankrupt to allow a right of set-off to the defendant of the sum to be ascertained, by which the assignees were equitably bound; and, the sum not having been ascertained before the bankruptcy, it was referred to the registrar to do so, and the assignees were in the mean time restrained from proceeding in an action for the recovery of the debt. Ex parte Michie, 1 Mon. D. & D. 181.

(Mutual Credit, p. 177.)

Where in an action by assignees for goods sold, the defendant pleaded a set-off in respect of a bill drawn by H. on the bankrupt, and accepted by him and indorsed by H. to the defendant; replication, that it was indorsed by H. after dishonour, and without consideration, for the purpose of being given for the price of the goods to be bought and handed over to H., and set off against it; held, that the transaction did not create a debt within 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 50, which intended bonâ fide debts, and that the replication was, therefore, an answer to the plea. Lackington v. Combes, 6 Bing. N. C. 71.

A party lends his name to a bill, by which a debt may eventually arise, held, that it is a subject of mutual credit, within 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 50; and where the defendant in assumpsit, by assignees, for money received to the use of the bankrupt, with a count for money received to the use of the assignees, pleaded the circumstances constituting a mutual credit, held, that the plaintiffs could not, by their replication, put in issue the legality of the debt. Hulme v. Mugleston, 6 Dowl. 112; and 3 M. & W. 28.

A mere contract to indemnify against contingent damages does not constitute a subject of mutual credit within the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 50. Abbott v. Hicks, 5 Bing. N. C. 578; and 7 Sc. 715.

(Discharge, p. 179.)

In case against the sheriff by assignees for seizing the bankrupt's goods, held that he was entitled, without pleading specially, to prove payments out of the proceeds, necessarily made, in reduction of the damages. Goldsmid v. Raphael, 3 Sc. 385.

(Actions against Assignees, p. 179.)

Where after forfeiture the landlord entered, and the assignees of the tenant (become bankrupt) continuing in possession, but, as expressly found, not within a reasonable time after the landlord's entry, removed and sold fixtures; held, that as the removal was after they had any right to consider themselves tenants, the landlord was entitled to recover from them in trover. Wecton v. Woodcock, 7 Mees. & W. 14.

(Action against a Bankrupt, p. 182.)

Where one of two partners becomes bankrupt, and a joint creditor proves the amount of his debt under the fiat, and afterwards brings an action against the solvent partner for recovery of the same debt, joining the bankrupt as a defendant in the action for conformity; the bankrupt is entitled to a full indemnity from the creditor against the consequences of the action. Ex parte Stanton, 1 Mon. D. & D. 273.

Plea in assumpsit, that the plaintiff had been twice bankrupt, and had not paid 15 s. in the pound under the second commission, held, on special demurrer, a good bar to the action, the 6 Geo. 4. c. 16, s. 127, acting retrospectively, and vesting all the after-acquired property of the bankrupt in his assignee. Young v. Rishworth, 3 N. & P. 585; and see Mackay v. Wood, 7 M. & W. 420.

An action does not lie on a promise by the bankrupt, that if the plaintiff would prove a debt of 200 l. under the commission, the defendant would pay him that sum in a few months; for it is a promise without legal consideration: the Court will not presume that the plaintiff, in proving for money had and received, had waived a tort. Brealey v. Andrew, 2 Nev. & P. 114.

Where the bankrupt was tenant from year to year, at a rent payable on the 9th October and 6th April, and became bankrupt during a current half-year, and the assignees having declined, the bankrupt, on the 5th April, delivered up the possession, under 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 75; held, that a tenancy by parol was within the statute, and the rent not accruing due until the 6th April, he was not liable in use and occupation for the time he occupied pro ratâ. Slack v. Sharp, 3 N. & P. 390.

Plea in assumpsit for goods sold, that after the debt contracted the defendant became bankrupt, and the fiat sued out on the petition of the plaintiff, and that before adjudication, by agreement between the plaintiff and defendant, the latter gave a bill as a security for the full amount of the debt; held, that the plea not showing a benefit to the plaintiff over the other creditors, or that the defendant's estate was insufficient to pay all his creditors, or that the fiat had been proceeded with, the debt was not forfeited within the meaning of s. 8 of 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, the Act clearly contemplating the case of the proceedings in bankruptcy being prosecuted. Davis v. Holding, 3 P. & D. 413; S. C. 1 M. & W. 159.

The bankrupt is entitled under s. 132 to be furnished with copies of the assignees' accounts, and not merely to inspection of them, and he may petition for that purpose without a previous application to the commissioners. Emerson, ex parte, 2 Deac. 156; and 3 M. & Ayr. 133.

(Certificate, p. 182.)

An agreement by A. that in consideration of B.'s discharging C., his debtor, out of custody on a ca. sa., C. shall pay the debt, is, in effect an original undertaking to pay the debt by the hand of C., and is provable under the commission, and bound by the certificate as to instalments, payable after the bankruptcy. Lane v. Burghart 1 G. & D. 311.

The st. 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 125, makes void a guarantee given by a third person to a creditor to induce him to sign a bankrupt's certificate. Hankey v. Cobb, 1 G. & D. 47. And the defence is admissible under the general issue. Ib.

The statute 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 127, does not extend to the case where a trader has twice become bankrupt and obtained certificates, not paying 15*s.* in the pound under the last commission, both bankruptcies and certificates being prior to the statute. In that case the after-acquired effects do not vest in the assignees under the second commission; and the Act does not prevent the assignees under a third commission from claiming property of which the bankrupt has had the reputed ownership within sect. 72, since the second commission.

But if the second certificate were subsequent to 2d May 1825, when the Act took effect as to certificates, sect. 127 applies.

Quære, whether in that case a third commission would be absolutely void. Benjamin v. Belcher, 11 A. & E. 350.

(Compounding with Creditors, p. 188.)

Under the stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 8, which enacts that a petitioning creditor illegally compounding with the bankrupt shall forfeit his debt, such forfeiture takes effect for the benefit of the creditors, under the commission, and cannot be enforced if there is no longer a commission subsisting.

Bills of exchange given to the petitioning creditor, by way of such illegal composition, cannot be enforced by him; but if, since the agreement was executed, no further proceedings have been taken in the bankruptcy, he may sue the bankrupt on the original consideration. Davis v. Holding, 11 A. & E. 710.

(Competency, p. 190.)

In an action by assignees for money received to their use by a party from the bankrupt, who had not obtained his certificate, but had released the assignees; held, that the wife of the bankrupt was not a competent witness to prove the payment by the bankrupt to the defendant after the bankruptcy, the bankrupt, the definite surplus not being ascertained, having no releasable interest, and the verdict, if the assignees succeeded, going to increase his interest in the surplus: held also, that the verdict in the action could not be used in an action by the creditor against the bankrupt, as res inter alios acta, and so that there was no countervailing interest to render the witness indifferent. Williams v. Williams, 6 M. & W. 170; and 8 Dowl. 220.

A certificate under an Irish commission, bars debts contracted here, and therefore the bankrupt releasing the surplus is a competent witness in an action for such a debt. Fergusson v. Spencer, 2 Scott's N. S. 229.

Where the witness, a certificated bankrupt, not having paid 15*s.* in the pound, and who had released the surplus of his estate, upon the voire dire, admitted that he had, prior to his bankruptcy, entered into a composition with his principal creditors, and paid other small creditors in full, held that he was not disqualified under 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 127, and was therefore a competent witness for his assignees. Roberts v. Harris, 2 Cr. M. & R. 292.

Where upon the retirement of one partner, A., the continuing one, B., admitted another, C., and upon the latter partnership being dissolved, B. became bankrupt; held, that B. was not a competent witness to prove an agreement by B. and C., to indemnify A. against the partnership debts of A. and B., as tending to exonerate himself. Warren v. Taylor, 8 Sim. 599; and 1 Coop. 174. And such agreement, founded on a purchase of an interest in the concern, is not a mere guarantee within the Statute of Frauds.

In an action brought by a bankrupt against his assignees to try the validity of the fiat, the petitioning creditor is not a competent witness to prove the debt due to him, although he has assigned it over to a third person. Carruthers v. Graham, 2 M. & R. 368.

(BASTARDY, p. 196.)

(Non-access.)

Husband and wife, after living together for ten years, and having one child, agreed to separate. They accordingly afterwards lived apart, but within such distance as afforded them opportunities of sexual intercourse, the husband not being impotent. Held, that the presumption of law in favour of the legitimacy of a child begotten and born of the wife during the separation, may be rebutted, not only by evidence to show that the husband had not sexual intercourse with her, but also by evidence of their conduct; such as that the wife was living in adultery; that she concealed the birth of the child from the husband, and declared to him that she never had such child; that the husband disclaimed all knowledge of the child, and acted up to his death as if no such child was in existence; and also, that the wife's paramour aided in concealing the child, reared and educated it as his own, and left it all his property by his will. Morris v. Davis, 5 Clark & F. 163.

Non-access is not presumable from the fact of the wife living in adultery with another; to establish illegitimacy, there must be evidence from which a jury can find non-access. R. v. Mansfield, 1 G. & D. 7.

(Of Person born in Scotland, &c.)

A person born in Scotland, of parents domiciled there, but not married till after his birth, though legitimate by the law of Scotland, and capable of succeeding to heritable property in that country, cannot succeed to a real estate in England. Doe d. Birtwhistle v. Vardill, 1 Scott's N. S. 828.

(4 & 5 W. 4, c. 76.)

By the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 72, it is enacted, that when any child shall thereafter be born a bastard, and shall by reason of the inability of the mother of such child to provide for its maintenance, become chargeable to any parish, the overseers or guardians of such parish, or the guardians of any union in which such parish may be situate, may, if they think proper, after diligent inquiry as to the father of such child, apply to the next general quarter sessions of the peace within the jurisdiction of which such parish or union shall be situate (but since the passing of the 2 & 3 Vict. c. 85, such application must now be made under the provisions of that Act to the justices of the peace holding any special or petty session in and for the division or borough within which such union or parish, or any part thereof shall be situated, and not to the general quarter sessions), for an order upon the person whom they shall charge with being the putative father of such child, to reimburse such parish or union for its maintenance and support; and the Court to which such application shall be made, shall proceed to hear evidence thereon; and if it shall be satisfied, after hearing both parties, that the person so charged is really and in truth the father of such child, it shall make such order upon such person in that respect as to such Court shall appear to be just and reasonable under all the circumstances of the case. And the Act then provides that no such order shall be made unless the evidence of the mother of such bastard child shall be corroborated in some material particular by other testimony, to the satisfaction of such Court.

An order of filiation at sessions upon the evidence of the mother, and corroboration thereof, not stating it to be in some material particular, is bad. R. v. Read, 1 P. & Dav. 413.

The application for an order on the putative father, under 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 72, must, it seems, be made to the first sessions after the child becomes chargeable; where no explanation was given for not doing so, it was held to be afterwards too late. R. v. Heath, 6 N. & M. 345.

The 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 57, making a bastard part of the family of the mother's after-taken husband, held to be construed with reference to the purpose of maintenance only, and not of settlement, and that where the bastard resided apart from the mother, it was removable to the place of birth, and not to the residence of the mother. R. v. Wendson, 3 Nev. & P. 62.

Since the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 57, the liability of the putative father of a bastard, upon the marriage of the mother, is transferred to the husband; held therefore that he was no longer liable to pay the sums directed to be paid by an order of affiliation made before the marriage of the mother. Lang v. Spicer, 3 Cr. M. & R. 129; and 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 358.

The responsibility of the obligor of a bastardy bond being in respect of charges incurred by reason of the birth of such child; held, that it did not apply to a case of chargeability after he attained 21. Wandley v. Smith, 2 Cr. M. & R. 716; and 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 194.

The notice under 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 73, of an application for an order of maintenance of a bastard child, signed by overseers of a township, but not by its own church officers (chapelwardens), is sufficient. R. v. Yorkshire Justices of North Riding, 2 Nev. & P. 103.

The notice of application to the sessions for an order of maintenance on the putative father of a bastard child signed only by the overseers and not by either churchwarden, is bad. R. v. Cambridgeshire Justices, 1 Perr. & Dav. 249.

Where the putative father of a bastard paid a sum to the defendants, being then parish officers, in exoneration of all claim, and the child dying before the year expired, they paid over the balance not expended to their successors; held, that the money paid being on a transaction originally illegal and void, was, from the first, money in the hands of the defendants had and received to the use of the plaintiff, and that he was entitled to recover it back from them. Chappell v. Poles, 2 M. & W. 867. And see Townson v. Wilson, 1 Camp. 396.

Where the defendant, the father of an illegitimate child, had paid the plaintiff for its maintenance up to a particular time, when he directed it to be given up to another or the parish, for he would pay no longer; held, that as he could only be liable on a contract, if not shown, the action could not be maintained. Seaborne v. Maddy, 9 C. & P. 497.

BILLS OF EXCHANGE, p. 201.

Debt may be maintained on a promissory note, by the payee against the maker, though the instrument do not express that it is for value received, or for any consideration. So on a bill of exchange, by the drawer, being also payee, against the acceptor. Hutch v. Trayes, 11 A. & E. 720; and see below, Watkins v. Wake, 9 Dowl. 244. It does not lie by an indorser against an acceptor. Powell v. Ansell, 9 Dowl. 893.

An instrument in the form: "At twelve months after date, I promise to pay Messrs. R. & Co. 500 l., to be held by them as collateral security for any monies now owing to them by I. M., which they may be unable to recover on realizing the securities they now hold, and others which may be placed in their hands by him," is not a promissory note, and cannot be declared on as such. Robins v. May, 11 Ad. & Ell. 213.

But where the plaintiff as steward of the defendant advanced a sum on a letter from him in the terms: "If you will remit it, I can give you a note for it when you come to L.;" it was held to amount to a note, and interest payable thereon, although no note ever signed. Rhoades v. Lord Selsey, 2 Beav. 359.

One in the following terms: "I undertake to pay to R. I. the sum of 6 l. 4 s. for a suit of ——, ordered by D. P.," is not a promissory note, but is good as a guarantee, as the consideration can be collected by necessary inference from the instrument itself. Jarvis v. Wilkins, 7 M. & W. 410.

Where the instrument contained an absolute promise to pay the amount, and was properly stamped as a note; the terms added, "and I have deposited title deeds as a collateral security for the same," do not make it less a note assignable within the statute. Wise v. Charlton, 6 Nev. & M. 364; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 786.

(Right to begin, p. 202.)

Action by an indorsee against the acceptor, plea, that it was an accommodation bill, and that a blank acceptance had been given in discharge of that and other bills; replication, that the defendant broke his promise without such cause, &c.; the defendant is entitled to begin; the plaintiff, in his reply, having, in his address to the jury, read a letter, proved on cross-examination of the defendant's witnesses, but not read in evidence, the defendant is entitled to have it put in evidence, and to reply. Faith v. M'Intyre, 7 C. & P. 44.

In assumpsit on a cheque by the holder against the drawer, pleas, 1st, that it was given to a third party for losses at gaming, and notice to the plaintiff before he received the cheque; 2dly, that the plaintiff gave no value for it; and issues on the notice and value given; it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to begin. Bingham v. Stanley, 9 C. & P. 374.

The admitting the acceptance and indorsement do not entitle the defendant to begin. Pontifex v. Jolly, 9 C. & P. 202; and see below, 1367.

(Production of Note, p. 202.)

In an action for a cheque, plea, that it was given for money lost in gaming, and issue thereon; the plea admits the giving the cheque, and it is not necessary to produce it in the plaintiff's case, nor for the purpose of aiding that of the defendant, notice to produce not having been given. Read v. Gamble, 10 Ad. & Ell. 597; 5 N. & M. 433.

(Acceptance, p. 204.)

A plea by one of three defendants, partners, that the bill was accepted by the other two without his knowledge or assent, for a debt due from them before he became a member of the firm, is not proved by evidence that it was accepted for a debt which arose partly before and partly after he had become a member of the firm. Wilson v. Lewis, 2 Scott, N. S. 115.

The effect of acceptance after dishonour is to make the bill payable on request; where, therefore, the declaration by the indorsee against an acceptor alleged the presentment and non-payment, and that, afterwards, the defendant promised to pay according to the tenor of his acceptance, it was held, on general demurrer, to amount to a promise to pay on request. Christie v. Peart, 7 M. & W. 491.

(Identity of Payee, p. 210.)

The plaintiff sued as the payee of a note made payable on demand to "The manager of the National Provincial Bank of England," but did not sue as a public officer; held, that upon proof that he was in fact the manager, and that a demand had been duly made on behalf of the bank, the plaintiff was entitled to recover; and that, in the absence of a plea that the bank was established under the provisions of the 7 Geo. 4, c. 46, and that the plaintiff was not the public officer, it was not necessary for the plaintiff to show that he was, nor competent to the defendant to show that he was not such public officer. Robertson v. Sheward, 1 Scott, N. S. 419.

(Alteration, p. 211.)

Where the making of the bill is admitted on the record, and the only issues raised are as to the indorsements, presentment, notice of dishonour, and consideration, it is not incumbent on the party producing the bill to explain an alteration which appears to have been made in the date. Sibley v. Fisher, 2 Nev. & P. 430.

In an action of assumpsit, the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff drew and he (the defendant) accepted a bill for 60*l.* in satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand; the plea is not supported by evidence of his having transmitted to the plaintiff a blank acceptance for 60*l.*, which it appeared was subsequently filled up by the plaintiff for 46*l.* only. Baker v. Jubber, 8 Dowl. 538.

(Variance.)

By 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 12, it is enacted, that in all actions upon bills of exchange or promissory notes, or other written instruments, any of the parties to which are designated by the initial letter or letters, or some contraction of the christian or first name or names, it shall be sufficient in every affidavit to hold to bail, and in the process or declaration, to designate such persons by the same initial letter or letters, or contraction of the first name or names, instead of stating the christian or first name or names in full.

Where the declaration on bills set out the name of the plaintiff only by the initial of one christian name, as it appeared on the instruments; held to be cured by the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 12. Lindsay v. Wells, 5 Dowl. 618.

(Indorsement, p. 215.)

In an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange purporting to be drawn and indorsed by A. B., proof that the bill was indorsed by the same person who drew it is sufficient, though that person is shown not to be A. B. Smith v. Moneypenny, 2 M. & R. 317.

(Presentment, p. 222.)

The holder of a banker's cheque ought to present it for payment within a reasonable time, and it is a question for the jury on an issue of due presentment, whether this rule has been complied with; where a cheque drawn on a country banker dated 19th March was not presented until 6th April, and no cause was assigned for the delay, but the drawer had not sustained loss by its non-presentment at an earlier period, the drawer was held liable to be sued on the cheque. Serle v. Norton, 2 Mo. & R. 401.

Presentment to acceptors for honour may be made on the day after the bill becomes due, by 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 58.

(Notice of Dishonour, p. 225.)

A bill of exchange having been drawn upon A. B., was accepted by him, and was afterwards indorsed by the drawer to the plaintiffs, who indorsed it to the Birmingham and Midland Counties' Bank, who indorsed it to one W. The bill having been dishonoured when due, W. gave notice of it to the bank, who gave notice to the plaintiffs, one of whom wrote the following letter to the drawer: "Dear Sir, To my surprise I have received an intimation from the Birmingham and Midland Counties' Bank, that your draft on A. B. is dishonoured, and I have requested them to proceed on the same;" it was held, that if there was more than one bill to which the letter could apply, it lay upon the defendant to prove that fact, in order to show its uncertainty, and that the letter was a good notice of dishonour. Shelton v. Braithwaite, 7 M. & W. 436.

H., the holder, gave notice by letter in the terms: "Messrs. H. are surprised that G.'s bill was returned to the holder unpaid," followed by a personal communication from the indorsee, expressing his regret, and promising to write to the other parties, by whom or by himself the bill should be paid; the notice was held to be sufficient. Houlditch v. Cauty, 4 Bing. N. C. 411.

So where the drawer, being applied to if he was aware of the bill having been dishonoured, replied: "Yes, I have had a civil letter from G. on the subject, and will call and arrange it," it was held to be sufficient. Norris v. Salomonson, 4 Sc. 257.

Verbal notice of the dishonour given to the wife, was held sufficient. Housego v. Cowne, 2 Mees. & W. 348.

Upon a plea that the defendant had not "notice from the plaintiff of the non-payment," notice proved from another party, the indorser's clerk, is sufficient. Newen v. Gill, 8 C. & P. 367.

Notice sent to a wrong address, from the indistinctness of the drawer's name on the bill, was held to be sufficient. Hewitt v. Thomson, Ib. 543.

A party being entitled to notice of dishonour of a bill of exchange on the 28th of April, and all the parties living in town, a witness stated that he put a letter containing the notice of dishonour into the post at one o'clock p. m. on the 28th. The post mark on the letter was the 29th. If the jury are satisfied that the letter was put into the post sufficiently early for the party in the ordinary course of the post to have received it on the 28th, it is sufficient, and its having been delayed in the post-office makes no difference. Stocken v. Collins, 9 C. & P. 653. The post-office mark is not conclusive of the time when the letter was posted. S. C. 7 M. & W. 515.

(Form of Notice, p. 227.)

A notice of dishonour, which states that a bill of exchange "has been dishonoured," is sufficient, although it does not state that the bill has been presented. Stocken v. Collins, 9 C. & P. 653.

But a notice in the following terms: "This is to inform you that the bill I took of you, 15*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, is not took up, and the 4*s.* 6*d.* expense I must pay immediately. My son will be in London on Friday morning," was held to be insufficient. Messenger v. Southey, 8 Dowl. 594.

(Excuse for Want of Notice, p. 229.)

A count on a banker's check alleged that it had been drawn by the defendant upon a banking firm; that it had been presented for payment, and had not been paid; that the bankers had no effects of the defendant; and that the defendant had sustained no damage by reason of his having received no notice of dishonour of the check; held, on general demurrer, that the declaration disclosed a sufficient excuse for the want of notice of dishonour. Kemble v. Mills, 9 Dowl. 446.

(Indorsee v. Indorser, p. 233.)

Debt lies upon a bill of exchange by an indorsee against his immediate indorser. Watkins v. Wake, 9 Dowl. 242.

(Presumptive Evidence, p. 237.)

Plea in assumpsit against the drawer and indorser of a bill of exchange, denying the drawing and indorsement; an offer of compromise after action brought is evidence for a jury, as recognizing the handwriting, although that is contradicted by three witnesses, and the Court refused to interfere with the finding. Harding v. Jones, 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 135.

(Collateral Liability, p. 239.)

The borrower of an accommodation acceptance impliedly undertakes to indemnify the lender against being called upon to pay the bill at maturity. Reynolds v. Doyle, 2 Scott, N. S. 45.

(Damages, p. 240.)

In an action by bankers, on an acceptance by a customer, the latter pleaded to the whole declaration a set-off of a balance of less amount in the bankers' hands; held, that although the latter were entitled to the verdict on that issue, the jury might in the damages allow the amount of such balance in their hands. Barnes v. Butcher, 9 C. & P. 725.

(Verdict, p. 241.)

Where there are counts on the consideration of the bill as well as on the bill, the plaintiff will be entitled to enter his verdict on such as apply to the consideration, if the subject be stated in the particulars; and may recall a witness to prove such part of the consideration after he has closed his case. Ryder v. Ellis, 8 C. & P. 357.

(Defence, p. 241.)

In debt by the holder against the acceptor; plea as to part, actio non, because he received no consideration, but had delivered it to a third person to get it discounted, from whom the plaintiff detained it for his own debt and only advanced the part admitted, and issue joined that the defendant was indebted beyond that sum, which was found for the defendant; held, that although such plea was bad, yet the plaintiff having chosen to go to trial, he let the defendant into any defence which he might have to the action. Finleyson v. Mackenzie, 3 Bing. N. C. 824.

In an action against the drawer, upon a plea that he did not make the note, evidence of imbecility of mind cannot be gone into. Harrison v. Richardson, 1 M. & Rob. 504.

Plea to a declaration on a note payable absolutely with interest, that it had been substituted for a note given on an agreement for a share in a partnership, and that it had been thereby stipulated that the principal was to be paid out of the defendant's yearly share of the profits, and that unless the defendant failed in his part of the agreement, the plaintiff would not call suddenly for the payment of the balance on the note; the original note also contained a similar statement as to the mode of liquidation, and the jury found that the note for which the action was brought was substituted for and given on the same conditions; held that, although the replication limited the issue to the question whether the plaintiff had given reasonable notice of enforcing the note, it was competent to the defendant to show the whole circumstances of the transaction, and of the substitution of the note for the original one; but that, although the plaintiff might not be entitled to recover the balance of the principal due, he was entitled to a verdict for the interest. Baylis v. Ringer, 7 C. & P. 691.

In an action on a note by the payee against the maker, the defendant pleaded an agreement for renewal on certain discount, the plaintiff having taken issue thereon, although seeking to vary the written instrument, the Judge allowed the defendant to go into evidence in support of the plea, and held, that the agent of the defendant was competent to prove the agreement as to the original loan, and that the plaintiff was a mere trustee for the lender. Holt v. Miers, 9 C. & P. 191.

Assumpsit by the indorsee against the acceptor, plea that the plaintiff had been twice bankrupt, and had not paid 15*s.* in the pound under the second commission, and the bill vested in his assignees, was held an issuable plea and allowed. Mackay v. Wood, 7 M. & W. 420; and 7 Dowl. 278.

(Want of Consideration, p. 242.)

The plaintiff having persuaded G., the defendant's son-in-law, to become bail for H., on an undertaking to indemnify him against all consequences, and G. having been sued on the bail-bond, the plaintiff obtained a stay of proceedings, on payment of debt and costs, and the defendant accepted a bill to enable the money to be raised by discounting; the plaintiff having brought an action on the bill, to which the defendant pleaded that it was accepted for the plaintiff's accommodation, and the jury having found that issue for the defendant, it was held that it might be sustained, although the plaintiff might not have been liable on his verbal undertaking to indemnify. Creswell v. Wood, 10 Ad. & Ell. 460.

In assumpsit by an indorsee against the acceptor, it is competent to the defendant to show that the acceptance was for the accommodation of the plaintiff, and that all parties had put their names without consideration, and that it was agreed that it should be taken up when due, by the plaintiff, but that such agreement was collateral, and not part of the original contract. Thompson v. Clubley, 3 Cr. M. & R. 212.

A note in the terms, "I promise for myself and executors to pay H. or her executors the sum of 100 l. one year after my death, with legal interest;" held, that in the absence of particular proof, the note would be presumed to have been given for value, and that interest was due from the date. Roffey v. Greenwell, 2 P. & D. 365.

Assumpsit by a second indorsee against the acceptor of a bill for 98 l., &c., pleas alleging that no consideration was ever given for the acceptance, or any subsequent indorsement, to which the plaintiff replied that he gave consideration to C., his immediate indorser, and on the trial proved that C. at the time of the indorsement was indebted to him to the amount of 20 l., and proved also a debt due to him from the first indorser to the amount of 5 l.; held that upon the issue joined he was entitled to recover only to the former amount: and it seems that the rule is, that wherever the defendant has established want of consideration between the original parties, the holder is called upon to prove consideration given by himself. Simpson v. Clarke, 2 Cr. M. & R. 342.

The defendant, indebted to the plaintiff and others, gave the plaintiff a note for the entire amount, and the plaintiff promised to pay the amount to such creditors when the note was paid by the defendant, this was held to be a good consideration. Cole v. Cresswell, 3 P. & D. 404; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 661.

Action against three partners on a bill, two suffered judgment by default, the third pleaded that the bill had been accepted by the others without his knowledge, for a debt which accrued before the partnership; it appeared that a small part of the demand accrued after his becoming a partner, for partnership purposes: held, that there being a consideration for the bill pro tanto, the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict for that amount on the issue raised by the special plea. Wilson v. Bailey, 9 Dowl. 18.

Plea that the note was made on certain terms, and indorsed to the plaintiff without consideration; replication that 20 l. was given for it; the issue is on the defendant, and he calling no witness, the plaintiff is entitled to recover that sum. Edwards v. Jones, 7 C. & P. 633.

Indorsee v. Acceptor.—Plea, that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, and by him indorsed to A. B., in order to raise money, and by him fraudulently indorsed to C. D., and by him to the plaintiff without consideration; replication de injuriâ, &c.; the defendant must prove the want of consideration to C. D. Brown v. Philpot, 2 Mo. & R. 285; and see Mills v. Barber, 1 M. & W. 425; Jacob v. Hungate, 1 Mo. & R. 445.

The declaration by a holder against the acceptor stated that the drawer indorsed to the plaintiff, the plea stated it to have been drawn and accepted by the defendant, and handed to the drawer to obtain it to be discounted, who indorsed in blank, and against good faith delivered it to the plaintiff for a purpose unknown to the defendant, of which the plaintiff had notice; it was held, that the defendant was entitled to begin. Lees v. Hoffstadt, 9 C. & P. 599.

At the time of the indorsement of a note not overdue, the indorsee had notice that the maker had a cross demand of greater amount on the payee, the indorsee cannot recover for advances on the note made subsequently to such notice. Goodall v. Ray, 4 Dowl. 76.

Plea to a declaration by a second indorsee against the acceptor, that the bill was an accommodation bill given to R., and that the indorsement was made after the bill became due; it appearing that at the time of accepting the bill R. and the defendant were friends, but subsequently quarrelled, and the bill was not put in suit until five years after it became due, and neither party called R.; held to amount to primâ facie evidence on the part of the defendant to go to a jury. Bounsall v. Harrison, 1 M. & W. 611; and 1 Tyr. & Gr. 925.

The plea in assumpsit by an indorsee against the acceptor merely alleged that the payee received the bill for the purpose of paying the proceeds to the defendant, and had failed to do so, without averring any fraud in the transaction, the holder is not called upon to prove consideration. Jacob v. Hungate, 1 M. & Rob. 445; questioning Thomas v. Newton, 2 C. & P. 606; and Heath v. Sansom, 2 B. & Ad. 291.

Where the bill was accepted upon an undertaking to give up a guarantee, it was held, that the latter might be given in evidence although not stamped. Haigh v. Brooks, 3 P. & D. 452; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 800.

In assumpsit by an indorsee against acceptor, the defendant pleaded special facts, amounting to fraud, between the drawer and subsequent indorser, and that the plaintiff took the bill with knowledge, concluding with an averment that the plaintiff was not a holder for bonâ fide consideration; replication, that he was such; there being sufficient to warrant the finding of the jury for the defendant, a new trial was refused; (dub. Parke, B. and Bolland, B., whether the jury might not have been misled as to the extent of the admission on the record, the facts stated in the plea not being denied by the replication); semble, a plaintiff is not to be precluded by admissions made merely for the purposes of pleading. Noel v. Boyd, 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 211; and 4 Dowl. 415.

Upon a plea in an action by holder against the drawer of a bill, that it was obtained and indorsed by fraud, and that no consideration passed from the prior indorsee; held, that letters of the latter, acknowledging the fraud, are not admissible, no evidence having been given to connect the plaintiff with him, or to show that the bill had been indorsed to the plaintiff when overdue. Phillips v. Cole, 2 P. & D. 288; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 106.

A. having been in partnership with B., on the dissolution, undertakes to collect and pay the partnership debts: A. and B. during the partnership had kept a joint account with a certain branch bank; but after the dissolution there was only a single account of A. kept there. A. having greatly overdrawn that account, obtained a promissory note for 500*l.* from B., his former partner, which he indorsed to the bank as a security for his debt, just previously to a quarterly inspection of the accounts of the branch, the clerk who managed the branch promising that it should not be presented. He however kept it, and it was found among the securities of the bank, in his portfolio, when he was discharged from his situation; the directors of the bank may recover the amount from B. Bosanquet v. Forster, 9 C. & P. 659; and 8 M. & W. 142.

So a party lending his cheque to the customer, and paid in under like circumstances, and receiving a counter cheque, is liable to the bank. Bosanquet v. Corser, 9 C. & P. 664; and 8 M. & W. 142.

Plea to an action against the drawer of a cheque, that it was drawn and delivered to a third person to secure a gaming debt, and by him delivered to the plaintiff without consideration; a replication that it was delivered for a good consideration admits the illegal drawing, and throws it on the plaintiff to prove the consideration. Bingham v. Stanley, 1 G. & D. 237.

The maker may show that there was no consideration for a promissory note, although he cannot by parol vary the contract on the face of the note. Abbot v. Hendrickes, 2 Scott, N. S. 183.

(Illegality; Indorsee, p. 245.)

Where a bill for a gaming debt was in the hands of an innocent indorsee for valuable consideration, and before issue joined, the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 41, passed, making such bills voidable only; held, that the Act was prospective only, and that the plaintiff could not avail himself of the Act. Hitchcock v. Way, 2 Nev. & P. 72.

(Satisfaction, p. 248.)

The drawer of a bill of exchange, before it became due, agreed with the acceptor, that on his giving a certain mortgage security for the amount, he, the drawer, should deliver up to him the bill of exchange as discharged and fully satisfied. The acceptor accordingly executed the mortgage, and received back the bill, uncancelled: it was held, that the drawer was liable on the bill to a party to whom the acceptor afterwards indorsed it for value, before it became due.

A plea, in such action, that the bill was paid by the acceptor before it became due, and afterwards reissued by him without any new stamp, can be supported only by proof of actual payment in cash, and not by evidence of any arrangement between the drawer and acceptor, whereby the bill was treated as being satisfied. Morley v. Culverwell, 7 M. & W. 174.

To assumpsit on a bill of exchange for 150*l.* by the executors of the indorsee against the acceptors, the defendants pleaded, that, on the day when the bill became due, they duly paid and honoured it when presented, according to the tenor and effect of it and of their promise, and then paid the said sum, to wit, 150*l.*, the amount made payable by the said bill. It appeared, that, before the bill became due, the indorsee, not having any banker of his own, handed the bill to a friend, in order that he might present it at the bank of Messrs. W. & Co., where it was made payable. This friend indorsed the bill, and got it discounted at the Bank of England; but afterwards receiving an intimation from the party from whom he received it that it was not to be noted, sent the amount of the bill to the banking-house at which it was payable, on the understanding that he was to have the bill delivered up to him. The acceptors kept cash at that banking-house, and when the bill had been paid, the transaction was entered in their account as if the money to meet the bill had been paid by them; but the bill was delivered up to the party who, in fact, paid in that money. The jury having on this issue found a verdict for the defendants, the Court of Common Pleas set it aside, on the ground that this payment could not, under the circumstances, be considered as a payment by or on the behalf of the acceptors, but must be taken to have been a payment for the honour of the indorser. Deacon v. Stodhart, 9 C. & P. 685; 2 Scott, N. S. 557.

The defendants also pleaded that the acceptance was an accommodation acceptance for the drawer, with the knowledge of the indorsee; and that the drawer became insolvent, and the indorsee, the defendants, and two other creditors, agreed among themselves, as his friends, to release their several debts and liabilities. The plea averred that the defendants and the two other creditors did discharge and release their several debts, &c.; and then went on to state that the indorsee, in consideration of the premises, and that certain other creditors would release, abandon, and never enforce payment of their debts, agreed with the defendants that he would never ask for, sue for, demand, or enforce payment of the said bill of exchange. There was then an averment that the other creditors had released their debts. The replication to this plea stated that the indorsee did not agree in manner and form as in the plea mentioned. The evidence was, that the indorsee at first promised to sign the account, if some more signatures were obtained to it; but, after they were obtained, he refused to sign it, but said, on one occasion, that he knew the bill was an accommodation bill, and he should not call on the defendants to pay it; and on another, that the bill should not come against any of the parties, but that he himself would come in as the rest of the creditors. The agreement, signed by the creditors, contained these words: "We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to accept of a release from the said E. A. (the drawer) of the equity of redemption, &c.; and we agree, upon the execution of such deed, to execute releases," &c. The indorsee died, and the action on the bill was brought by his executors; held, that the allegations in the plea were not sustained by the evidence. Deacon v. Stodhart, 9 C. & P. 685; 2 Scott, N. S. 557.

The drawers of the bill kept an account with the plaintiffs as bankers, and indorsed the bill to them, and upon its being returned dishonoured, it was entered on the debit side of the account, which at the time was considerably against the drawers, and remained so at the commencement of the action; the bankers had, on former occasions, allowed the drawers to overdraw their accounts, but they were under no obligation to do so; held, that such entry was no evidence in support of a plea that the bankers had received that sum in satisfaction of the bill. Ryder v. Wylett, 7 C. & P. 608.

The holder of joint and several notes, upon one becoming due, agreed with one of the sureties to accept a sum in full satisfaction of the note due, and of the moiety for which the surety was liable on those not due, which was paid, and the name of the surety erased from the notes; held, that it discharged also the other parties. Nicholson v. Revell, 6 Nev. & M. 193; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 675; questioning ex parte Gifford, 6 Ves. jun. 805.

(Giving Time, p. 250.)

Assumpsit against the defendant as joint maker of a note; a plea, that the defendant joined in it merely as surety, of which the plaintiff had notice, and that although it had been due for six months, the defendant had no notice of its not having been paid until the commencement of the action.

and that the plaintiff gave time to the party without the defendant's knowledge or consent, was held ill on general demurrer. Clarke v. Wilson, 3 M. & W. 208.

(Alteration, p. 254.)

Plea that the bill had been altered after acceptance, the defendant has the right to begin, and the bill ought to be produced without notice. Barker v. Malcolm, 7 C. & P. 101.

The bill having been altered after acceptance, the defendant may take advantage of it, under a plea that he did not accept the bill declared on. Cock v. Coxwell, 2 Cr. M. & R. 291 ; and 4 Dowl. 187.

It is no objection to the validity of a bill that it was accepted and indorsed in blank, and afterwards filled up by a stranger ; and where the drawer signed his name only as T. W., his real name being T. W. R., held that it was not a forgery, unless it was shown that the omission of his surname was for the purpose of fraud. Schultz v. Astley, 2 Bing. N. C. 554 ; 7 C. & P. 99 ; and 2 Sc. 815.

In assumpsit on a bill, the plaintiff fails in consequence of an alteration in a material part ; he may still recover under the common counts on the original consideration. Atkinson v. Hawdon, 2 Ad. & Ell. 628.

The defendant gave the plaintiff a promissory note, without the words "or order ;" six months afterwards the plaintiff mentioned the omission to the defendant, who answered that the omission was his (the defendant's) own, and consented that the words should be inserted, which was done accordingly. The bill was not restamped. The bill having been declared on as altered, and issue joined on a plea denying the making of the note ; it was held that, on the above evidence, the jury were justified in finding for the plaintiff, as it appeared that the alteration was made only in furtherance of the original intention of the parties, and to correct a mistake, in which case no new stamp was requisite. Byrom v. Thompson, 11 A. & E. 31.

(Effect of in Payment, p. 264.)

A promissory note, not payable to order, was indorsed and given for the price of goods supplied by the plaintiff ; held, that having no security of which he could avail himself, he was remitted to his original right, and entitled to recover on the count on the original consideration of the debt, although no notice had been given to the defendant of the note being dishonoured. Plimley v. Westley, 2 Bing. N. C. 249 ; and 2 Sc. 423.

Assumpsit for goods, &c., plea, that defendant signed a bill for 20 l. in blank as to the drawer's name, at two months, which he accepted, in part as satisfaction for the debt and for the plaintiff's accommodation for the residue, and which was received by the plaintiff as satisfaction for the debt, and which acceptance was not yet due ; replication, that it remained in the plaintiff's hands unnegotiated, and not filled up and unpaid ; held, on demurrer, that the right of action for the goods was suspended until the bill became due and dishonoured, and the action not maintainable. Simon v. Lloyd, 2 Cr. M. & R. 187.

(Competency.)

In an action by the payee against one of three makers of a joint and several promissory note, another of the makers was called as a witness for the plaintiff, and stated on his examination on the voire dire, that the note had been given by the defendant as principal, and that it was signed by himself and the other makers as sureties; held, that the witness was competent. Page v. Thomas, 6 M. & W. 733.

In assumpsit on a bill by indorsee against acceptor, and plea of payment, a prior indorsee was held to be a competent witness for the defendant, although on the voire dire he acknowledged that he received money from the defendant to pay the plaintiff the amount of the bill. Reay v. Packwood, 7 Ad. & Ell. 917.

BILL OF LADING, p. 267.

Assumpsit by the consignee against the owner for non-delivery of goods shipped; upon plea that the plaintiff did not cause the goods to be shipped, the bill of lading when produced showing the shipment to have been by a third party (who in fact was the agent of the plaintiff), is not conclusive on the defendant; he may show that no goods were actually shipped. Berkley v. Watling, 2 Nev. & P. 178. See further as to the effect of a bill of lading, Mitchell v. Ede, 3 P. & D. 513.

BOND, p. 268.

In debt on a bond of indemnity given by the defendant, one of the bearers of the virges of the Palace Court, to the Knight Marshal, for taking sufficient bail from all persons arrested, and also for obeying the rules and orders of the Court it was held that the action was properly brought against the defendant in the name of the marshal for taking insufficient bail in a certain action, and for breach of obedience to an order requiring him to pay the amount of debt and costs in such action, and that the marshal was entitled as a trustee for the party damnified to recover the full amount of the debt and costs incurred. Lamb v. Vice, 8 Dowl. 360; and 6 M. & W. 467.

(Validity of.)

On a bond to pay any balances due to bankers in Scotland, it was held, that where the drafts were in fact drawn beyond the statutory distance, or wrongly dated as to time or place, and made void by the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, s. 13, such mode of drawing being known to the bankers, no debt arose upon the bond. Swan v. Bank of Scotland, 10 Bli. N. S. 627, (reversing the judgment below); S. C. Swan, ex parte, 1 Deac. 746; 2 M. & Ayr. 656.

A bond executed by a corporation to reimburse one of its members for costs of defending himself and other corporate officers against certain quo warranto informations, is a valid debt within s. 92 of (the Municipal Corp. Act) 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 76. Holdsworth v. Dartmouth Corp. 3 P. & D. 308; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 490.

Plea to debt on bond, that it was given on a corrupt agreement for articles of apprenticeship to the plaintiff, as an apothecary and surgeon, for two years, but that the deed should be ante-dated, to enable the defendant to be admitted as an apothecary at the end of two instead of five years, contrary to the 55 Geo. 3, c. 19, s. 15; after a verdict for the defendant, the Court refused judgment for the plaintiff, non obst. vered. Prole v. Wiggins, 3 Bing. N. C. 230; and 3 Sc. 601.

(Construction of.)

Where money was advanced by bankers in London to a partner in a banking firm in Ireland, and bonds executed in Dublin for the amount in sums of l. sterling, "with legal interest," and warrants of attorney for entering judgments in the K. B. in Ireland recited the sums in the same terms as in the bonds; credit was given in the books of the English banking house for the full sum, and bills accepted by them drawn by the banking company in Ireland; it was held, that the debt was payable in English currency and with English interest. Noel v. Rochfort, 10 Bli. N. S. 483; reversing the judgment below, 2 Younge & J. 330.

(Proof of Breach, p. 268.)

Debt on bond to the guardians of an union, on a contract for the supply of bread, in loaves of 4 lbs. weight, conditioned for performance of the contract, and, inter alia, that the defendant would deliver such bread in loaves, and of which a bill of particulars should be sent with such articles at the time of delivery thereof, or within one month from such delivery, provided that if such articles were not duly served, or should be deficient in the weight stated, or if delivered without such bill of particulars, that the board might return them, or give notice to the defendant to fetch them away; the defendant pleaded performance generally; and the replication assigned for breaches, first, a delivery of loaves deficient in weight; secondly, a delivery without any bill of particulars, whereupon the plaintiffs returned them, and incurred great charges in obtaining a supply; it was held, that evidence of the loaves being brought to the house, and part handed out, and, on being weighed and found deficient, returned and refused to be taken, was a sufficient delivery to support the issue on the first breach; and, secondly, that the board having a right to return the articles unless a bill were delivered with them, an issue whether it was dispensed with at the time was not an immaterial issue, although, semble, it might have been, if found for the defendant, as there could be no dispensation by parol of an instrument under seal. Elliott v. Martin, 2 M. & W. 13.

Where the condition plainly referred to a sum in the then Four per cent. Bank Annuities, it was held that it was satisfied by the express terms of 5 Geo. 4, c. 11, by a transfer of so much 3½ per cent. Bank Annuities, into which the former stock was by that Act reduced. Sheffield v. Coventry, Earl of, 2 Russ. & M. 317.

A bond executed by defendant as a surety, was conditioned for the payment of interest on 1,000 l., on the 1st March of the first year, the like at the end of the second year, and the principal and like sum of interest at the end of the third; the first interest not being paid until the 30th March, it was held, that the bond was thereby forfeited, and the forfeiture was not waived by the acceptance of the interest; and, on the defendant's bankruptcy, was provable under his commission, and the debt therefore barred by his certificate. Skinners' Company v. Jones, 3 Bing. N. C. 481; and 4 Sc. 271.

(Surety.)

Debt on bond conditioned for securing the payment of 1,400 l. on a day named; plea, as to 800 l., parcel, &c., payment after the day, and, as to the residue, a release to the executor of a joint obligor deceased; held, as to the first, that the penal sum being forfeited, and the payment only as to part of the sum mentioned in the condition, the plea was bad; that nothing appearing to show the defendants to be only sureties, the release was no discharge of the surviving obligor; held also, that it was not necessary to aver a breach in the non-payment of the sum, if enough appeared on the declaration to show that the money was due. Ashbee v. Pidduch, 1 Mees. & W. 364; and 1 Tyr. & Gr. 1016.

Where the respondent signed a bond as surety for a party, trustee to a bankrupt's estate, for faithfully accounting, and by the practice in Scotland, the creditors appointed commissioners to superintend the proceedings of the trustee; held, in suit on the bond, that the default of the trustee in so accounting was not by the default, concealment, or connivance of the commissioners, and that the surety was not discharged. M'Taggart v. Watson, 13 Bli. N. S. 618.

(Plea of Satisfaction, p. 270.)

The obligee had sued one of two obligors on a joint and several indemnity bond, and received a sum in discharge of the debt and costs; he afterwards sued the other, who pleaded the acceptance of the sum so paid in satisfaction; it was held, that the onus lay on the defendant to show that it was taken as a settlement of the entire cause of action, and the Court refused to set aside the verdict found for the plaintiff. Field v. Robins, 3 Nev. & P. 226.

BOTTOMRY BOND.

The Master, before he resorts to a bottomry bond, is bound to ascertain whether the supplies can be obtained on the personal credit of the owners; and, where a party is bound to know a fact, he must show that he has exercised due diligence to ascertain such fact. Heathorn v Darling, 1 Moore, 5. And see case of the Hervey, 3 Hagg. 404.

BRIBERY, p. 271.

(2 Geo. 2, c. 24, s. 7.)

If A. give money to B. to induce him to vote for a candidate at an election for a member of parliament, and B. agrees to do so in consideration of the gift, A. although B. never gives the vote, is liable to the penalty of 500 l. for corrupting B. to vote, within the st. 2 Geo. 2, c. 74, s. 7, which inflicts that penalty upon any person who, by himself or any person employed by him, "shall by any gift or reward, &c. corrupt or procure any person or persons to give his or their vote or votes, or to forbear to give his or their vote or votes, in any such election, &c." And the jury may infer the fact of the agreement from circumstances, although B., who is a witness, does not state that he ever intended to vote. Henslow v. Fawcett, 3 Ad. & Ell. 51.

Proof that the defendant effected the bribery by giving a card to the voter in an outer room, which the voter presented to another person in an inner room, who thereupon gave him money, satisfies the allegation in the declaration that the defendant gave the money within the meaning of the 2 Geo. 2, c. 24, s. 7. Webb v. Smith, 4 Bing. N. C. 73.

In the same case it was also held, that in an action for bribery at an election of a member to serve in parliament for a borough, an examined copy of the precept to the returning officer taken from the original at the Crown Office is sufficient evidence of the precept.

Payment by a candidate at an election for a member of parliament of the expenses of taking up the freedom of his voters is illegal; and semble, it is illegal for a candidate to pay the travelling expenses of a voter. Per Alderson, J., Bayntun v. Cattle, York Spring Ass. 1833, Mo. & R. 265.

In Brembridge v. Campbell, 5 C. & P. 186, Tindal, C. J., left it for the jury to say whether money paid to voters for travelling expenses was really and bonâ fide paid for such expenses, or to induce them to give their votes; the payments to each voter had been the same; this he thought was evidence that such payments were not limited to travelling expenses; as, if the payments were for such expenses only, it was somewhat singular that all the voters should be paid alike.

By the 4 & 5 Vict. c. 57, it is enacted, "that whenever any charge of bribery shall be brought before any Select Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to try and determine the merits of any return or election of a member or members to serve in parliament, the Committee shall receive evidence upon the whole matters whereon it is alleged that bribery has been committed; neither shall it be necessary to prove agency, in the first instance, before giving evidence of those facts whereby the charge of bribery is to be sustained; and the Committee, in their Report to the House of Commons, shall separately and distinctly report upon the fact or facts of bribery which shall have been proved before them, and also whether or not it shall have been proved that such bribery was committed with the knowledge and consent of any sitting member or candidate at the election."

(5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 54.)

An employment is a reward within the latter as well as the former branch of the 54th section of the Municipal Corporation Act (5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76), which enacts, "that if any person, who shall have or claim to have a right to vote in the election of mayor, &c., shall ask or take any money or other reward, by way of gift, loan, or other device, or agree or contract for any money, gift, office, employment, or other reward whatsoever, to give or forbear to give his vote in any such election; or if any person, by himself or any person employed by him, shall, by any gift or reward, or by any promise, agreement, or security for any gift or reward, corrupt or procure, &c., any person to give or forbear to give his vote, &c., such person shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of 50*l.*, &c." Whether the employment in the particular case was given by way of corrupt bargain is a question for the jury. The Court, however, will assume that such was the case, if a corrupt agreement be sufficiently alleged in the declaration. Harding v. Stokes, 1 M. & W. 354.

The declaration alleging that an election took place under the Act, and that the defendant not regarding, &c., corruptly promised, &c., sufficiently shows the offence to have been committed after the Act. Ib.

BRIDGE.

A company liable to repair a bridge may be indicted, but as they cannot appear in person, but by attorney only, the proper course is to remove the judgment into the Court of Queen's Bench, and if they do not appear by attorney, to proceed by distress ad infinitum. R. v. Birmingham and Gloucester Railway Company, 9 C. & P. 469.

A prescriptive liability to the repair of a public bridge, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, and by itself, includes a liability to repair the highways at the ends of it within the distance of 300 feet. R. v. Lincoln Mayor, &c., 3 N. & P. 273.

By their act of incorporation (41 Geo. 3, c. 31), the proprietors of the Surrey Canal were required to erect and maintain bridges over the canal where it intersected any public highway, bridle-way, or footpath, and also for the use of the owners and occupiers of lands, &c., adjoining to the canal. In 1804, the company erected a swivel bridge, of sufficient dimensions to allow a carriage to traverse it, across the canal, at a spot where there had formerly been a public way, which at the most was only a bridle-way. This bridge was originally intended for the exclusive accommodation, as a carriage-way, of the tenants of an estate adjoining, called the Rolls estate. The neighbourhood having become extremely populous, and a district church having been built near the bridge, the public, from 1822 to 1832, freely and without interruption used it as a carriage-way. In 1832, the company for the first time imposed a toll upon all carriages traversing the bridge, with the exception of those belonging to the tenants of the Rolls estate; and, in 1834, they removed the old swivel bridge, and erected a convenient stone bridge in the place of it. In an action of trespass against the defendant for passing over the bridge without paying toll, the Judge told the jury, that, supposing the bridge in question to have been originally erected for the exclusive accommodation of the tenants of the Rolls estate, still, if, in consequence of the acts of the company, an idea grew up in the minds of the public that the company had dedicated the way to the public use, they might find such dedication; held that this was not a misdirection, and that the evidence warranted the jury in finding a dedication. Grand Surrey Canal Company v. Hall, 1 Scott, N. S. 264.

BURGLARY, p. 276.

(Breaking, p. 276.)

The raising a window shut down, but at the time not fastened with the hasp, which it usually was, held a sufficient breaking. R. v. Hyams, 7 C. & P. 441.

The removal of part of a pane of glass, which, though entirely cut above a month, had remained in its place, was a sufficient breaking. R. v. Bird, 9 C. & P. 44.

(Property.)

Where the prosecutor was put into the premises to take care of them by a party who was builder to a public company, to whom the premises belonged, held that it was not rightly laid as the dwelling-house of the prosecutor. R. v. Rawlins, 7 C. & P. 150.

Where the prosecutor conducted a business for his brother-in-law, and exercised a power of disposing of any part of the stock for his benefit, but had no share in the profits or salary, held, that as a bailee, the articles might be laid as his property. R. v. Bird, 9 C. & P. 44.

Indictment for breaking the house of A., and stealing therein the goods belonging to a party convicted of felony still undergoing his sentence, his wife continuing in possession of them; there was also a count laying the goods to be the property of the Queen; held that the first count could not be sustained, but that the latter was good, although no office found. R. v. Whitehead, 9 C. & P. 429.

(Burglary and Striking.)

An indictment under 7 Will. 4, & 1 Vict. c. 86, s. 2, must allege both the burglary and striking, and the proof must correspond therewith; where the party struck was misnamed, held that the prisoner could only be guilty of burglary. R. v. Parfitt, 8 C. & P. 288.

(Autrefoits Acquit.)

Where a prisoner had been acquitted of the charge of murder, and afterwards indicted for the burglary committed at the time of the murder, held, that if the burglary were laid with violence, the former acquittal would have been an answer to the violence. R. v. Gould, 9 C. & P. 364.

BURIAL FEES.

See Spry v. Emperor, 6 M. & W. 639.

CARRIER, p. 282.

In a declaration against a common carrier for refusing to carry goods, it is not necessary to aver a tender of money for the carriage; it is sufficient to allege a readiness and willingness and offer to pay. Pickford v. The Grand Junction Railway Company, 9 Dowl. 766.

(Privity of Contract, p. 284.)

Though, generally speaking, where there is a delivery to a carrier to deliver to a consignee, the latter is the proper person to bring the action against the carrier, yet if the consignor make a special contract with the carrier, such contract supersedes the necessity of showing the ownership in the goods, and the consignor may maintain the action though the goods may be the property of the consignee.

The question whether the goods were delivered to the carrier at the risk of the consignor or consignee, is a question for the jury. The delivery of the goods to a carrier by a consignor does not necessarily vest the property in them in the consignee. Dunlop and others v. Lambert and others, 6 Cl. & Finn. 600.

Goods were forwarded from A. to B. to the care of the defendant, and on arrival at B. notice was given to the defendant, and he signed the carrier's book, acknowledging the delivery to him, and he caused them to be entered in the clearance and manifest of a steam-vessel proceeding to M., the plaintiff's residence, but who never sent for the goods until six days after arrival, when they were not to be found, and it was shown that it was the course of dealing between the carrier and defendant that goods for him were left until sent for; held, that there was evidence for the jury of a delivery to and acceptance by him, in an action on the case for negligence. Quiggin v. Duff, 1 M. & W. 174.

(Defence, p. 287.)

An objection under the 11 Geo. 4, and 1 Will. 4, c. 68, that the value was not declared at the time of booking, must now be specially pleaded. Syms v. Chaplin, 1 N. & P. 129.

Case against carriers for the loss of a parcel; to the plea of no notice pursuant to 11 Geo. 4, and 1 Will. 4, c. 68, the plaintiff replied that the loss was occasioned by the felonious act of the defendant's porter, on which issue was joined; the evidence showing only circumstances of suspicion against the porter, he was not called by the defendant, and the jury having found for the plaintiff, the Court refused a new trial. Boyce v. Chapman, 2 Bing. N. C. 222; 2 Sc. 365.

CASE, p. 296.

Where the declaration alleged a retainer of and undertaking by the defendant to print a work, and to proceed therein with diligence and dispatch, and that large quantities of paper had been delivered to him for that purpose, but that he had negligently conducted himself, and wrongfully pawned the paper, whereby, &c., averring loss, &c.; it was held to be properly framed in tort. Smith v. White, 6 Bing. N. C. 218; 8 Dowl. 255.

(Variance.)

In an action on the case by the plaintiff, an infant, for damages by unskilful treatment as a surgeon, the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff did not employ him; held, that being an action ex delicto, and the declaration framed as on a breach of duty, which the defendant had undertaken, it was immaterial by whom he was employed. Gladwell v. Steggall, 5 Bing. N. C. 733; and 8 Sc. 60.

CERTIFICATE.

The Court will presume that the Speaker, giving a certificate pursuant to the stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 22, s. 63, has availed himself of the proper sources of information to enable him to grant the certificate, without his stating on the face of it what those sources are. Stockdale v. Hansard, 8 Dowl. 669.

It is in the election of the party entitled to his costs under the Speaker's certificate to demand and bring his action against any one of the persons made liable by the certificate; and the power of the Speaker, being created not for the purpose of imposing, but of ascertaining, the amount of the costs by taxation of certain officers, is to receive a favourable construction, and a fair intendment is to be made in support of his jurisdiction: the certificate is conclusive as to the amount of costs specified in it. Fector v. Beacon, 5 Bing. N. C. 302; and 7 Dowl. 285.

CHARACTER, p. 303.

(Witness.)

In ejectment by the heir against the devisee, the attorney who drew the will being called as a witness, his character was sought to be impeached on cross-examination; held that evidence to prove his good character was not receivable. Doe v. Harris, 7 C. & P. 330.

CHARTER-PARTY.

See as to pleas and evidence, in action on, Benson v. Blunt, 1 G. & D. 449.

CHURCHWARDENS, p. 309.

Parish land remains vested in the churchwardens and overseers, although the parish be part of an union, notwithstanding the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 23, and 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 69, s. 3. Doe v. Webster, 4 P. & D. 270.

Where lands had been leased prior to the 39 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 17, by the churchwardens, and rent had been paid since the statute to the succeeding officers, it was held to be primâ facie evidence that the lands were parish property, and the lease passing no legal interest, the churchwardens were entitled to treat the lessees as yearly tenants; held also, that a parishioner was a competent witness in the absence of any evidence to show that the parish funds could be affected by the result of the action. Doe d. Hobbs v. Cockell, 4 Ad. & Ell. 478; and 6 Nev. & M. 179. And Doe d. Higgs v. Terry, 5 N. & M. 556.

Churchwardens and overseers taking a distress for poor's rates, are within the protection of the statute 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, s. 6. B. N. P. 24. Harper v. Carr, 7 T. R. 271. See further, tit. JUSTICES.

In an action against overseers for an excessive distress under a poor's rate, no demand is necessary. Sturch v. Clarke, 4 B. & Ad. 113.

The closing the vestry doors at an election of churchwardens, under 59 Geo. 3, c. 69, so as to exclude voters, would be illegal; yet where in fact no voter was excluded from voting, a mandamus for a fresh election was refused. R. v. St. Mary, Lambeth, Rector, &c., 3 Nev. & P. 416.

The archdeacon cannot refuse to swear in a churchwarden when he applies for that purpose, on the ground of its being customary only to swear in at the first visitation after election; and where two parties apply, each having a colourable title, both sets must be sworn in. R. v. Middlesex Archdeacon, &c., 5 N. & M. 494; S. C. 3 Ad. & Ell. 615.

COIN, p. 309.

The giving a counterfeit piece of money in charity, nothing being received in exchange, is not an uttering within the statute, no intention to defraud any one appearing. R. v. Page, 8 C. & P. 122.

Where two are jointly charged with uttering, one only being present at the time of uttering, the question for the jury is whether the one was so near to the other as to help him to get rid of the counterfeit coin. R. v. Jones, 9 C. & P. 761.

Where husband and wife were jointly indicted for a misdemeanor in uttering counterfeit money, it was held that she was entitled to acquittal, as it appeared that she uttered the money in the presence of her husband; and semb. there is no distinction, as to coercion, between felonies and misdemeanors committed by her in his presence. R. v. Price & Ux., 8 C. & P. 19. But see R. v. Conolly, MS. Durham Sp. Ass. 1829, cited 8 C. & P. 21, note (b); and R. v. Cruse, ib., p. 541, et seq.

The personal possession of counterfeit money by one of two prisoners is a possession by the other, if the former has the money with the knowledge of the latter, for the common purpose of uttering. R. v. Rogers, 2 Lewin's C. C. 119.

The fact of five counterfeit shillings having been found in the possession of the prisoner five days after he had uttered another, is evidence to show a guilty knowledge. R. v. Harrison, 2 Lewin's C. C. 118.

On an indictment upon 2 Will. 4, c. 34, s. 10, for having moulds in his possession, the jury must believe that the moulds had, at the time of the prisoner's possession, the entire of the obverse or reverse part of the coin impressed, and not merely a part. R. v. Foster, 7 C. & P. 494.

On an indictment for separate utterings, an entire judgment of two years' imprisonment under 2 Will. 4, c. 34, s. 7, was held to be bad; it should have been of consecutive judgments of one year's imprisonment on each count. R. v. Robinson, 1 Ry. & M. 413.

An indictment, alleging the uttering to E. H., knowing, &c., is sufficient, as it must be taken to refer to the prisoner, and not to E. H.; an averment that the prisoner, with one T. P. before, &c. was in due form, &c. convicted, &c.; the record of conviction, showing that T. P. was acquitted, is sufficient, the allegation in the indictment not necessarily importing that T. P. had been convicted. R. v. Page, 9 C. & P. 756.

COMMON, p. 314.

(Right of.)

A party cannot support a claim of common pur cause de vicinage, over open downs adjoining his own common, which are the exclusive property of the owner, although there is no boundary fence separating the lands. Heath v. Elliott, 4 Bing. N. C. 388.

Case for disturbing plaintiff's right of common, plea; justifying as for defendant's own commonable cattle; replication, that all were not the defendant's cattle, levant and couchant, &c.; the action being in substance for surcharging, it ought to have been newly assigned, and the Judge properly rejected evidence respecting it. Bowen v. Jenkins, 2 N. & P. 87.

Where the defendant claimed as appurtenant to his farm the exclusive right of pasturage for sheep and lambs over a certain common; held that his grant as alleged, being limited to those cattle, it would not entitle him to depasture the sheep of others there "on tack," as being injurious to the lord's right as to what was not granted; and although evidence of the commoner having so depastured on tack was admissible, it was not evidence in derogation of the lord's right, as it tended to show a usurpation only. Jones v. Richards, 1 Nev. & P. 747; and 5 Ad. & Ell. 529.

A plea of enjoyment of common right for 30 years before the commencement of the suit, is sufficient, although not alleged next before, &c; the 2 & 3 Will. 4. c. 71, s. 4, being nothing more than an exposition of the proof requisite to support the right. Jones v. Price, 3 Bing. N. S. 52; and 3 Sc. 376.

(Levant and Couchant, p. 315, (t).)

So many as the winter eatage and summer produce are capable of maintaining. Whitelocke v. Hutchinson, 2 Mo. & R. 205.

In case for a disturbance of right of common, the declaration alleged that the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of the town and borough of Stamford, had the right in question for every resident freeman paying scot and lot. It appeared in evidence that the right relied upon was an ancient right. By 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 64, and 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, part of an additional parish is thrown within the borough of Stamford. It was held that the declaration was not supported, as the right claimed was larger than that proved. Beadsworth v. Torkington, 1 G. & D. 482.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS, p. 320.

In an action against the sheriff for an escape on a ca. sa., and for the purpose of letting in secondary evidence, the attorney for the defendant may be asked by the plaintiff's counsel whether he has possession of the warrant on which the arrest took place, although he received it from his client in reference to communications concerning the cause. Coates v. Birch, MS. Q. B. Mich. 1841. See Bevan v. Waters, M. & M. 235. Robson v. Kemp, 5 Esp. C. 53.

Where the same attorney acted for the prisoner (the mortgagor), and also for the mortgagee, and received from the prisoner, as part of his title deeds, a forged will; it was held not to be a privileged communication, and that the attorney was bound to produce the will on the trial of an indictment for the forgery. R. v. Avery, 8 C. & P. 596; denying the case of R. v. Smith, 1 Phillipps's Ev. 182.

In trover, by assignees, to recover a lease, alleged to have been brought to the witness, an attorney, for the purpose of raising money; held, that the employment being so connected with the character of an attorney as to raise a presumption that it formed the ground of the communication, it was privileged. Turquand v. Knight, 2 Mees. & W. 98; and see Greenough v. Gaskell, 1 Myl. & K. 98; and ex parte Aitken, 4 B. & Ald. 49.

An attorney is not privileged from disclosing, as a witness, a statement made by his client relative to the subject-matter of a suit, if such statement was not necessary for the purpose of the proceeding on which the attorney was employed; where the agent of the plaintiff, an attorney, was called and asked, whether the plaintiff did not at the time say he was employed in the business by another, it was held not to be a privileged communication. Gillard v. Bates, 6 M. & W. 547; S. C. 8 Dowl. 774.

The communications of a client with his solicitor through an unprofessional agent are privileged, but not if they are mixed up with matters not of a confidential nature; but a case submitted to the opinion of counsel in a foreign country, and his opinion thereon, were held privileged. Banbury v. Banbury, 2 Beav. 173.

Where the statement is wholly collateral to the subject on which the attorney was employed, it is not a privileged communication. Gillard v. Bates, 8 Dowl. 774.

Where a deceased party, the grantee of an annuity, anticipating that the validity of it might be questioned, through his solicitor submitted a case to counsel, and the papers afterwards came into the possession of his son, the defendant and assignee of the annuity, they were held not to be privileged communications, nor were letters, &c., written by the defendant to his father's former solicitor, acting as his agent and friend, and not as his solicitor; the privilege of the client, as to discovery, is not co-extensive with that of his solicitor. Greenlaw v. King, 1 Beav. 137.

Where the prisoner requested a party to ask G., or any other attorney, as to there being any difference in the punishment whether the forgery was of a real or fictitious person, it was held not to be a privileged communication. R. v. Brewer, 6 C. & P. 363.

Where the party's solicitor became a trustee under a deed for the benefit of the client's creditors, it was held that communications subsequent thereto were privileged. Pritchard v. Foulkes, 1 Coop. 14.

On a bill by the A. Insurance Company, against the directors, actuary, and solicitor of the E. Insurance Company, to have a policy on the life of C. cancelled, the solicitor having been present when an agent of the E. Company communicated an unfavourable medical report upon the life; the communication was held not to be privileged, and being made, the defendants were not protected from discovery. Desborough v. Rawlins, 3 Myl. & Cr. 515.

CONSPIRACY, p. 324.

A. and others were indicted for feloniously demolishing the house of B. It was proved that A. and a mob of persons assembled at H.; A. there addressed the mob in violent language, and led them in a direction towards a police-office about a mile from H., some of the mob from time to time leaving and others joining. At the police-office the mob broke the windows, and then went and attacked the house of B., and set it on fire, A. not being present at the attack on the house or at the fire; it was held, that on this state of facts A. ought not to be convicted of the demolition, as it did not sufficiently appear what the original design of the mob at H. was, nor whether any of the mob who were at H. were the persons who demolished B.'s house. R. v. Howell, 9 C. & P. 437.

A. was charged with having conspired with W. J. and others unknown, to raise insurrection and obstruct the laws. It was proved that A. and W. J. were members of a Chartist lodge, and that A. and W. J. were at the house of the latter, on a certain day, on the evening of which A. directed people assembled at the house of W. J. to go to the race-course at P., whither W. J. and other persons had gone: held, that on the trial of A. evidence was receivable that W. J. had, at an earlier part of the same day, directed other persons to go to the race-course; and it being proved that W. J. and an armed party of the persons assembled went from the race-course to the New Inn, it was held that evidence might be given of what J. W. said at the New Inn, it being all one transaction. R. v. Shellard, 9 C. & P. 277.

On an indictment for a conspiracy to resist the payment of church rates, held, that a witness might be asked, on cross-examination, as to any appeals having been made against the rates, but not as to what the trustees had done in reference thereto, their proceedings being required by the local Act to be entered, and allowed to be read in evidence in all cases; 2dly, that acts of distinct individuals may be first proved, and then it may be shown that those acts prove a conspiracy between them; 3dly, that there is no distinction between civil and criminal cases, as to the examination in chief of a witness by leading questions; in both cases it is in the discretion of the Judge how far he will allow it to assume the form of a cross-examination: upon a charge of conspiracy, the jury must be satisfied that the acts were done with common concert and design between the parties, but for that purpose it is not necessary to show that they came together to concert them; and it is sufficient, if by their acts they pursue the same object by the same means, though each may perform separate parts of an act. R. v. Murphy, 8 C. & P. 297.

A conspiracy may be proved by antecedent acts of parties, and that the party charged adopted those acts. R. v. Frost, 9 C. & P. 150.

On an indictment for conspiring to excite seditious meetings, and for the purpose of exciting alarm amongst the Queen's subjects; it was held, that the evidence of a constable of complaints being made to him by persons of their alarm, was receivable, without calling those persons. R. v. Vincent, Frost, and Edwards, 9 C. & P. 275.

Where an indictment charged a conspiring to defraud divers of Her Majesty's liege subjects, who should deal, &c. with the defendants; and in a second count, alleged an overt act by a fraudulent bill of sale, with intent to defraud existing creditors; held, that it was no objection that particular liege subjects were not mentioned, but that the omission, in the first count, to state the means by which the fraud was to be effected, and in the second count how the deed alleged was fraudulent, were fatal objections, and judgment was reversed on error. Peck v. Regina, 1 P. & D. 508; and 9 Ad. & Ell. 686.

CONSTABLE.

As to the appointment of a high constable, see R. v. Watkinson, 2 P. & D. 625. As to county and district constables, see 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88.

Where a party occupied a warehouse for which he was rated, and slept in a lodging four or five nights in the week within the constablewick for which he was appointed at the court leet; held, that he was liable to serve as a resiant, although he might also be liable to be chosen in another constablewick; but held also, that when no higher fine than 100*l.* had ever been imposed for not serving, the imposition of a fine of 300*l.* was excessive, and bad. R. v. Moseley, 5 Nev. & M. 261; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 488.

Where a special constable had been appointed, under 1 & 2 W. 4, c. 41, for an indefinite time, it was held that his authority continued until specially determined or suspended, under s. 9, with all the powers of an ordinary constable. R. v. Porter, 9 C. & P. 778.

CONSTRUCTION. See STAT.

As to the construction of agreements, see Atwood v. Taylor, 1 Scott, N. S. 611.

Of a charter party. Crozier v. Smith, 1 Scott, N. S. 338.

CONTRIBUTION.

(Tort-feasors.)

Where a custom was found for ships engaged in the timber trade to carry timber on deck, it was held, that such having been thrown overboard for the preservation of the ship and cargo, the owner was entitled to contribution against the shipowner. Gould v. Oliver, 4 Bing. N. C. 134.

The rule, that there is no contribution amongst tort-feasors, does not, it seems, apply when they are so by mere inference of law, but is confined to cases where they must be presumed to be cognizant of the wrongful act. Pearson v. Shelton, 1 M. & W. 504; and 1 Tyr. & Gr. 848. And see Adamson v. Jarvis, 4 Bing. 66; and Woolley v. Bate, 2 C. & P. 417.

CONVICTION, FORMER.

In an indictment for an offence punishable with transportation for life, a former conviction ought not to be charged. Glidstone's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 190.

A previous conviction of the prisoner is not to be inquired into until after a conviction of the felony charged, by 6 & 7 W. 4, c. 112.

Where the prisoner's counsel attempts to elicit, on cross-examination, evidence as to character, evidence of a previous conviction may be given in the first instance. R. v. Gadburn, 8 C. & P. 676.

(Identity.)

In order to prove the identity of a prisoner who is named in a certificate of a previous conviction, it is not necessary to call a witness who was present at the trial to which the certificate relates; it is sufficient to prove that the prisoner is the person who underwent the sentence mentioned in the certificate. R. v. Crofts, 9 C. & P. 219.

COPYHOLD, p. 332.

Copyhold passes by the devise of an heir, although he had not been admitted nor surrendered to the use of his will; extending 55 Geo. 3, c. 192. Doe v. Wilson, 5 Ad. & Ell. 321.

Where a person filling the office of clerk of the castle of F., stated it to be usual for him, as well as the steward, to take surrenders; it was held to be a valid custom, and evidence of its existence for a jury. Doe v. Mellersh, 5 Ad. & Ell. 541; and 1 Nev. & P. 30.

An immemorial custom in a manor to surrender lands in trust, is valid. Snook v. Southwood, 5 Ad. & Ell. 239. See further as to custom, Bush v. Locke, 9 Bli. N. S. 1.

Where the record book of a manor of an admittance to a copyhold recited the surrender to the uses of the will, but the surrender could not be found, the originals being kept loose and irregularly, and there was no record of the surrender on the rolls; held that it was admissible evidence of such surrender. R. v. Thurcross, 1 Ad. & Ell. 126; and 3 N. & M. 284.

The court rolls containing an entry of a presentment by the homage of a surrender out of court, and of the admittance of the surrenderee, are evidence of title against the surrenderor. Doe v. Olley, 4 P. & D. 275.

Where an issue was directed to try whether by the custom the youngest sister of the deceased, or the youngest son of the settlor's youngest nephew, was the customary heir, and the jury, by finding for the defendant, had negatived the plaintiff's title as customary heir, and the effect of the verdict was to establish, within an extensive district, a rule of inheritance of which there was no distinct precedent in evidence; the Court, unwilling to bind the rights by a single trial, and where the Judge had stated the issue to be between a common-law heir and a customary heir, and that the former must prevail unless the custom was established by positive evidence, a second trial was allowed. Locke v. Colman, 2 Myl. & Cr. 42.

Lands held by copy of court roll according to the custom of the manor are to be deemed copyhold within the 55 Geo. 3, c. 192, although not held at the will of the lord; and although it was specially found that previous to the Act there did not appear on the court roll any entry of surrender to the uses of the will of the party making surrender, held that the lands were nevertheless within the statute; held also, that a general devise of all the rest and residue of his estate whatsoever and wheresoever, and of what nature or kind soever, was sufficient to pass copyhold estate. Doe d. Edmund v. Llewellyn, 2 Cr. M. & R. 503.

CORPORATION, p. 338.

The Crown may delegate to an individual the power of appointing the first members of a corporation, or at all events appoint a person to ascertain the individuals who compose the class to which the charter is granted. Rutter v. Chapman, 8 M. & W. 1. In the Exchequer Chamber, Lord Denman, C. J., and Williams, J., dissent.

The Municipal Reform Act does not, it seems, create a new corporation. (Per Patteson, J.) Ludlow Corporation v. Tyler, 7 C. & P. 537.

The insertion of a place in the Municipal Reform Act is primâ facie evidence of a municipal corporation there; but where it appeared by affidavits that there never had been an incorporation, but that the borough-holders were grantees of certain freehold burgages for purposes of trade, the Court refused a mandamus to compel the delivery of the documents and surrender of the property. R. v. Greene, 1 N. & P. 631.

(Actions by, p. 338.)

Assumpsit is maintainable by a corporation on an executory contract for the supply of gas, the object for which the company was incorporated, and although made by parol: the Court is bound to take notice that the plaintiffs were a corporation, having been so created by statute, and the action brought in that character. Church v. Imperial Gas Company, 3 N. & P. 35; S. C. 6 Ad. & Ell. 846; overruling the distinction in East London Waterworks Company v. Bailey, 4 Bing. 283.

In a suit to which a corporation were parties, and a corporator who had been disfranchised before the trial was tendered as a witness, the charter requiring all corporate acts to be executed at a meeting whereat the two bailiffs and twelve assistants should be present; held, that a resignation at a meeting where a less number were present was not a valid resignation, and that he was not therefore a competent witness, and that a release by him to the body of which he still constituted a part did not render him competent; held also, that the 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 42, did not apply to such a case. Godmanchester Bailiffs, &c. v. Phillips, 6 Nev. & M. 211; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 550.

In an action brought by the new corporation, it appeared that the defendant had presented a petition to the Vice-Chancellor to allow the production of these books on the present trial, which petition was opposed by the present plaintiffs, and dismissed with costs; it was held, that under these circumstances the defendant was entitled to give parol evidence of the contents of the books. Corporation of Ludlow v. Charlton, 9 C. & P. 242.

An old corporation, before the Municipal Reform Act, were trustees of a charity, and a tenant of the charity had paid rent to the secretary to the old corporation up to Lady-day 1836; held, that this was a good payment, and might be taken advantage of in an action brought by the new corporation for the rent. Corporation of Ludlow v. Charlton, 9 C. & P. 242.

(Actions, &c. against, p. 339.)

A corporation aggregate, or a railway company, is liable to be indicted for breaches of duty, such as the non-repair of bridges, which it is their duty to repair. If they are indicted in Q. B., they can appear by attorney, but if they are indicted at the assizes, semble, that they cannot appear there by attorney, but should apply for a writ of certiorari, and appear by attorney in Q. B.; and if they do not, there may be a distress, ad infinitum, against them. R. v. The Birmingham and Gloucester Railway Co., 9 C. & P. 469.

The notice of appeal against a rate under the Municipal Corporation Act must state a grievance, or facts from which it must necessarily be inferred. R. v. Poole Recorder, &c., 1 N. & P. 756.

A mere entry of a resolution by a corporation in council, that a mortgage of corporate property should be executed, as a security for money before advanced by the corporation, is not a contract binding on the corporation, not being under their seal; and there being no consideration for the further security given, no equity can be raised to compel an execution of the mortgage. Wilmot v. Coventry Corporation, 1 Younge, 518; Henley v. Lyme Regis Mayor, &c., affirmed in D. P., 2 Cl. & Fi. 331.

A municipal corporation cannot enter into a contract to pay a sum of money out of the corporate funds for the making of improvements within the borough, except under the common seal. Mayor, &c. of Ludlow v. Charlton, 6 M. & W. 815.

(Books of, &c.)

Primâ facie, it must be presumed that the books of a corporation, which existed before the Municipal Reform Act, are in the possession of the new corporation which succeeded them under that Act; but if it be shown that the old corporation, before their dissolution, deposited them with a banker, and that from his hands they passed into the Master's office of the Court of Chancery, this rebuts the presumption. Corporation of Ludlow v. Charlton, 9 C. & P. 242.

It being strictly necessary, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 69, that the minutes of proceedings by the council should be signed by the chairman at the time of the meeting, and not afterwards, the Court refused a mandamus commanding the mayor and town-clerk to enter a resolution passed at a meeting, in the minute book. Reg. v. Evesham Mayor, &c., 3 N. & P. 351.

(Rate.)

The provision of the Municipal Corporation Act for raising rates, being prospective only, it was held, that without reference to the general rule a rate made retrospectively for the payment of expenses which had been incurred, could not be supported. Woods v. Reed, 2 M. & W. 777.

(Election.)

Where votes were given for a candidate rendered ineligible, but of whose disqualification no express notice was given to the voters; it was held, that a party having a minority of votes, was not duly elected, and having accepted the office, a quo warranto was directed to issue. R. v. Hiorns, 3 N. & P. 149.

Where the declaration for penalties under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, (Municipal Corporation Act) charged the offence as a corrupting the voter, and the evidence established only an offering to corrupt; held, that it was for the jury to say whether it was an offer accepted or not, as in the former case the offence would have been committed, but that if not, and the voter had not made up his mind, then the offence would be a mere offer to corrupt within sect. 3 of the Act. Harding v. Stokes, 9 M. & W. 283.

(Costs.)

Parties having duties cast upon them in the administration of a fund, are entitled to reimburse themselves out of such fund the expenses incurred in performing those duties. Attorney-general v. Mayor, &c. of Norwich, 2 M. & Cr. 400.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Where letters in correspondence between the plaintiff and the defendant were offered, it was held, that the latter might read his answer to the plaintiff's last letter, dated the day previous. Roe v. Day, 7 C. & P. 705.

COSTS.

The rule of Hil. T., 4 W. 4, as to the expenses of witnesses producing documents, does not apply to a party who produces antient records from the Chapter House, Westminster, and who is required not merely to take care of, but to translate and explain them. Bastard v. Smith, 2 P. & D. 453.

COVENANT, p. 342.

345 (o), Note, that the case of Morgan v. Slaughter, 1 Esp. c. 8, was overruled in Church v. Brown, 15 Ves. 258; and see further, Henderson v. Hay, 3 Bro. Ch. C. 632. Folkingham v. Croft, 3 Anst. 700.

As to construction of, see Pontet v. Bsingstoke Canal Co., 3 Bing. N. C. 433; Lloyd v. Lloyd, 2 M. & Cr. 192.—Independent, when in marriage contracts, see Lloyd v. Lloyd, 2 M. & Cr. 192. See further as to Independ. Covenants, Stavers v. Curling, 3 Bing. N.C. 355; Ritchie v. Atkinson, 10 East, 295.

Upon a lease of premises to L., reciting that the defendant agreed to enter into the covenant for securing the payment of the rent, and the lease then stated the agreement to demise to be in consideration of the covenants by L., and of the covenant entered into by the defendant, and then followed the usual covenant; held, to amount to a joint covenant that both should pay the rent, and that L. should keep the premises in repair, and that the defendant was jointly liable with L. to repair as well as to pay rent. Copeland v. Laporte, 3 Ad. & Ell. 517.

A covenant, "forthwith" to put premises into complete repair, must receive a reasonable construction, and is not to be limited to any specific time; and therefore it will be for the jury to say upon the evidence, whether the defendant has done what he reasonably ought in the performance of it. Doe v. Sutton, 9 C. & P. 706.

Covenant lies for rent reserved on a lease, accruing before entry for a forfeiture, although the lessor was thereby to have the premises again, as if the indenture had never been made. Hartshorne v. Watson, 4 Bing. N. C. 178; and 6 Dowl. 404.

(Covenant in Law.)

In covenant on a deed poll, dated 21st October, for the sale of a ship, then on a foreign voyage, it appeared that on the previous 12th the ship had got on shore, and was left by the crew on the sands, but that they afterwards had access to her, and if there had been facilities she might have been repaired; held, that the simple bargain and sale did not imply that the vessel was then seaworthy, and being still a ship, though, from circumstances, not capable of being employed as such beneficially, the covenant by the defendant that he had power to transfer her as a ship at the time of executing the deed was not broken. Barr v. Gibson, 3 M. & W. 390.

An equitable depositary of a lease was held to be responsible to the owner of the reversion for rent and covenants, although he had not taken possession of the premises. Flight v. Bentley, 7 Sim. 149; and see Lucas v. Comerford, 1 Ves. jun. 235.

Where the lessee holds over after the expiration of the lease, held that he was not bound by the covenant to yield the premises up at the expiration of the new tenancy in the state they were at the date of the original lease. Johnson v. Hereford Churchwardens, &c., 6 Nev. & M. 106.

(Illegal.)

Where upon the sale of the business of a carrier, the plaintiff covenanted that he would serve the defendant in such trade, and would not exercise it during his life, except as assisting the defendant, in consideration whereof the defendant covenanted to pay him a weekly salary for life; held, that the covenant to serve for life was not void as in restraint of trade, being made on sufficient consideration, and securing some public benefit. Wallis v. Day, 2 M. & W. 273; and see 15 Vin. Abr. 323, tit. Master and Servant, (N.) 5.

(Variance, p. 343.)

An agreement was entered into between the plaintiff on the one part, and the defendant with others on the other part, for the execution of a lease, with the usual covenants, and, for the performance, each of the parties did bind himself in a penalty, to be recovered as liquidated damages; held, that on default, that sum was to be deemed a penalty, and not liquidated damages; and the declaration describing it as an agreement between the plaintiff and defendant, who had alone executed it, the variance, whether fatal or not, was one which the Court, under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 23, might amend, as it would not vary the substantial defence to the action. Boys v. Ancell, 5 Bing. N. C. 390.

(Breach of, p. 344.)

Covenant lies for a breach in not repairing, although the term is forfeited to the superior landlord by the omission of the defendant to repair. Clow v. Brogden, 2 Scott's N. S. 303.

A tenant's allowing a footpath to be made across a part of demised premises, is no breach of a covenant to occupy the premises in a proper manner. Doe d. Trustees of Worcester Schools v. Rowlands, 9 C. & P. 734.

Where, by a covenant on a demise for lives, a forfeiture was to take place in case the lessee did not produce one of the lives named (living abroad), or otherwise make it appear by a good and sufficient certificate that he was living; held, that an affidavit, showing by circumstances that he was alive within seven years, was not a sufficient compliance with the terms of the covenant. Randle v. Lory, 6 Ad. & Ell. 218.

Upon an agreement for the demise of premises, that the tenant should within three months, &c. erect a shop-front and otherwise repair, &c., with a power of re-entry for breach of the agreement: the defendant entered and enlarged the window, but did not erect a shop-front, and the son of the lessor, after the three months, demanded a quarter's rent then due; held that the son having no authority to waive the forfeiture, the demand of rent by him was not such a notice to the lessor as would make the demand amount to a waiver, and that the defendant could not give in evidence a clause in the original lease, prohibiting the carrying on any trade upon the premises, to explain and qualify the term shop-front in the agreement; held also, that the provision for making the lease null and void, rendered it only voidable at the election of the lessor. Doe d. Nash v. Birch, 1 M. & W. 402.

In covenant on a lease to the defendant's testator, for non-repair; plea, that the defendant having declined to take the office of administratrix, she, in order to execute an assignment to the plaintiff of the lease, and in consideration of a promise by the plaintiff not to sue in that capacity, took out administration, and issue being taken upon such promise, and found for the defendant; held, that being in effect a plea of a parol promise to discharge a legal obligation by deed, and no release shown, the plaintiff was entitled to judgment non obstante veredicto, and that the Court could not presume that such promise was by deed. Harris v. Goodwyn, 9 Dowl. 409.

(Not to assign, &c., p. 345.)

The depositing the lease as a security is no breach. Doe v. Hogg, 4 D. & R. 225. Doe v. Laming, 1 R. & M. 36. But Lord Alvanley held it to be sufficient primâ facie to show that a stranger was in possession apparently as tenant, and that on inquiry such stranger said that he rented the house. Doe v. Richarby, 1 Esp. C. 4; and see Doe v. Williams, 6 B. & C. 41, and infra, tit. EJECTMENT.

(By Assignee of Lessee, p. 349.)

Covenant by assignee of lessee against lessor, in respect of lands situate in Surrey, the action being brought in Middlesex, but the locality not appearing on the declaration; there being no issue on the locality, it is no ground of nonsuit, and the objection being aided by verdict under 16 & 17 Car. 2, c. 8. Boyes v. Hewetson, 2 Bing. N. C. 575; 7 C. & P. 127; and 2 Sc. 831. And see Bailiffs of Lichfield v. Slater, Willes, 431.

(By Assignee of the Reversion, p. 349.)

Under 32 Hen. 8, c. 34, the assignee of a reversion is not entitled to arrears of rent due prior to the assignment. Flight v. Bentley, 7 Sim. 149.

In covenant by the assignee of the reversion against the lessee; plea, not denying that it was the plaintiff's deed, but alleging that the intended lessor had not executed the lease, and that it was not signed by any agent lawfully authorized, in writing; it appeared that J. H., being seised in fee, by deed executed by the defendant, demised the premises for a term of eleven years, under which the defendant entered and was possessed thereof; J. H., by will, devised the estate to his widow for life, remainder to the plaintiff for life; the declaration alleged the death of J. H. and of the widow, whereby he became and was seised of the reversion for the term of his life; held, that the covenants being annexed to a mere tenancy at will, (the only interest that passed upon the assent of J. H. to the lease), and which tenancy determined on his death, the subsequent occupation for more than a year created a different tenancy, to the reversion expectant upon which the covenants were not annexed, and that the plaintiff could not maintain the action. Cardwell v. Lucas, 2 M. & W. 111.

A lessor equitably entitled to premises demised part for 99 years, with covenants by the lessee to pay the rent reserved, and having subsequently acquired the legal estate, he by another lease, reciting the former lease, and stipulating for its remaining in force, demised the residue of the premises, but provided that no more rent should be paid for the entire premises than had been paid for the part first demised; held, that the assignee of the reversion could not maintain covenant against the assignee of the lessee for breach of the covenants contained in the former lease. Whitton v. Peacock, 2 Bing. N. C. 411; and 2 Sc. 630.

(Damages, p. 351.)

In an action of covenant for non-repair of premises, held by the defendant under a lease which has several years to run, the proper measure of damages is not the amount that would be required to put the premises into repair, but the amount to which the reversion is injured by the premises being out of repair. Doe d. Trustees of Worcester Schools v. Rowland, 9 C. & P. 734.

The declaration contained breaches on several covenants, the assignments of which would have been bad on demurrer, but the defendant, amongst others, pleaded payment of —— l. into court, and that the plaintiff had sustained no greater damages in respect of the causes of action in the declaration mentioned; such plea must be taken to admit some damage upon every part of the breach of covenants in the declaration, and the defects in the allegations are thereby waived. Wright v. Goddard, 3 N. & P. 361.

A covenant to make a certain allowance for a road does not operate by way of a deduction from the rent, but as a mere covenant, and no defalcation from the rent. Davies v. Stacey, 4 P. & D. 159; Mason v. Chambers, Cro. J. 34.

A. leased premises to B., from the 25th of March 1823, for sixteen years wanting ten days, and B. covenanted with A. to keep the premises in repair, and to paint once in every five years of the term, and to leave the premises in repair. B. underleased the premises to C. from the 24th of June 1834, for four years and three-quarters wanting eleven days, and C. covenanted with B. to keep the premises in repair (the covenant so far being in the same terms as in the original lease), and to paint once during the term, and to leave the premises in repair. A. sued B. for breaches of this covenant, and B. let judgment go by default, and upon the writ of inquiry the damages were assessed at 64 l. 10 s., being the amount of dilapidations proved by a surveyor, whose estimate had been laid before B. previously to the commencement of the action. B. afterwards sued C. for the amount of the dilapidations, and the costs of the action brought against him. The jury found the amount of the dilapidations to be 57 l. 10 s.; held that B. was not entitled to recover also the amount of the costs in the former action. Penley v. Watts, 7 M. & W. 601.

(Defence, p. 351.)

Although, in covenant for rent, a plea of eviction of part of the premises demised is good, such a defence is no answer to the breach of other covenants, as for not repairing, underletting, &c. Newton v. Allin, 1 Gale & D. 44.

On a demise for fourteen years of a mill and machinery, valued at a certain sum, with agreements that on the expiration or other determination of the lease, a valuation should be made, and the difference of the increased or diminished value be paid by the parties, as the case might be; held, that on the lessee becoming bankrupt during the term, and the assignees refusing to take the lease, they were not entitled to maintain an action on the covenant for the increased value of the machinery, the covenant being put an end to by the bankruptcy and refusal to take the lease, but that they might maintain trover for the machinery. Fairburn v. Eastwood, 6 M. & W. 679.

CRIMINAL CONVERSATION, p. 352.

Where the wife died after the action brought, it was held that the plaintiff was still entitled to recover damages for the injury to his feelings, and the loss of society to the time of her death; held also, that letters written by the wife to the husband, after the attempt at adultery committed by the defendant, were inadmissible; but that the draft of an answer by the wife to a letter from a friend, on the subject of rumours, in the defendant's handwriting, was admissible. Wilton v. Webster, 7 C. & P. 198.

CUSTOM, p. 357.

Where the existence of a custom alleged by the defendant is the substantial question to be tried, he is entitled to begin, although the plaintiff allege that he goes for damages; a custom for the stanners of Devon to divert watercourses into their streams, and for that purpose to dig trenches over private lands, was not sustained. Bastard v. Smith, 2 Mo. & R. 129.

A custom for the deputy-day-oyster-meters of London to have the exclusive right of shovelling, unloading, and delivering all oysters brought in any vessel along the Thames within the port of London, and to have, as compensation, 8*s.* a score for the first 100 bushels (double measure), and 4*s.* a score for the remainder of the cargo, was held to be reasonable by the jury; held, also, that the meters are liable to do all the labour of shovelling, &c. and are also liable to an action if they do not provide men for the work, and the parties may have it done by other workmen. Layburn v. Crisp, 8 C. & P. 397.

A custom (pleaded in justification of trespass for entering the plaintiff's house), on occasion of perambulating parish boundaries, to enter a particular house neither on the boundary line nor in any manner required in the course of perambulation, cannot be supported. Taylor v. Devey, 7 Ad. & Ell. 400; and 2 N. & P. 469.

Semble, entries in parish books, recording the fact that parish perambulations had taken a particular line, would be inadmissible. Taylor v. Devey, 7 Ad. & Ell. 400; S. C. 2 N. & P. 469.

A custom, proved to have existed from time immemorial till 1689, must be taken to exist still, if there be no further evidence proving or disproving its existence. On an issue bringing into question the existence of the above custom of London, evidence being given of its exercise from an early period down to 1689, but no proof of its having been exercised or interfered with at any later time, the jury found "that the custom existed in 1689;" held, that this was a verdict for the defendants, who alleged the custom. And that the Judge did rightly in ordering it to be so entered, and refusing to ask the jury, whether it had existed after 1689. Scales v. Key, 11 Ad. & Ell. 819.

Plea, in assumpsit for money had, a recovery by foreign attachment by a creditor of the plaintiff, and that such creditor had execution thereof; replication, no execution executed, pursuant to the custom, and issue thereon: held, 1st, that an allegation that the plaintiff had no notice of the proceedings in the foreign attachment was no answer to the plea, the custom being found not to require that any notice should be given to the defendant in the attachment; 2dly, that the custom alleged in the plea, that after execution had and executed, the garnishee should be discharged, and it being expressly found that no writs of execution were issued on the defendant or garnishee, the plaintiff was entitled to judgment on that issue; that the defendant, by taking issue on that replication, was not precluded from proving, and the jury from finding, according to the fact; and that the attorney of the garnishee was not incompetent to prove the custom. Magrath v. Hardy, 4 Bing. N. C. 782; 6 Sc. 627; and 6 Dowl. 749.

A custom for all victuallers to erect booths on a common at a fair, from a certain day to a certain other day, paying 2*d.* to the lord, was held to be good. Tyson v. Smith, 1 N. & M. 784.

Where the plaintiffs, as outgoing butty colliers, after notice, sued the mine owners for gate roadings, &c., alleging the title to recover by the custom of coal miners, the defendants alleging the custom to be for the outgoing butty colliers to be paid by the new butty colliers, at whatever distance of time the workings should be recommenced, the jury found for the plaintiffs; and semble, strict proof would be requisite to establish the custom set up by the defendants. Bannister v. Bannister, 9 C. & P. 743.

On an indictment for perjury in an affidavit in support of a petition in the Insolvent Court, a paper, purporting to be a printed copy of the rules of the Court, but not authenticated, is not admissible as proof of the practice of the Court. R. v. Roops, 1 N. & P. 828.

Upon a covenant in a lease of mines to work them not below the level of the bottom of the mine at a particular point; held, that evidence of the meaning of the covenant according to the custom and understanding of miners, was admissible, and that it was for the jury to decide on its effect, and to say what was the contract between the parties; and upon a reference as to the meaning of the term level, the arbitrator having found it according to the custom, &c. of miners "throughout that district," the Court could not take upon themselves to say that the parties used it in the sense attached to it within the particular district, but it was to be determined by a jury, and a new trial was granted. Clayton v. Gregson, 6 N. & M. 694.

Note, that the case was afterwards tried, and the meaning of the parties was admitted to be as found by the arbitrator.

DAMAGES, p. 364.

In case where special damage is stated, and is the foundation of the action, being traversable, if not traversed by the plea, it is admitted. Perring v. Harris, 2 M. & R. 5.

In assumpsit for a salary for services, the defendant pleaded payment of a sum into court; held, that he cannot give in evidence, in mitigation, circumstances of misconduct, which might have been pleaded in bar. Speck v. Phillips, 7 Dowl. 470.

(Compensation recovered, &c., p. 364.)

Where a Railway Act empowered the taking lands, on making compensation, with an exception of mines, and also provided that the latter might be worked by the owners, but that they, in case of damage to the railway works, should repair them at their own expense, or the company, in case of neglect, might repair and recover the amount; held, that the owner of a mine discovered after the lands taken and compensation assessed, and which could not be worked without interfering with the railway, could not sue the company for further compensation for the loss sustained thereby, as such contingent compensation should have been claimed on the original assessment. R. v. Leeds and Selby Railway Company, 5 N. & M. 246; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 683.

(Consequential, p. 364.)

The ship's husband had brought an action against the freighters upon breach of a covenant to supply a full home cargo, and recovered damages, upon which the freighters afterwards brought an action for the breach of covenant by him to take out certain goods to T., which he had failed to do; held that they were not entitled to recover as part of the damages the costs they had paid in defending the former action, although the failure to supply such home cargo arose out of the neglect of the ship's husband to take out such goods to T., as being too remote, and not the immediate consequence. Walton v. Fothergill, 7 C. & P. 392.

(Prospective, p. 364.)

In an action on the case by a master, for an injury done to his apprentice by the dog of the defendant, whereby the master was deprived of the service of his apprentice, the plaintiff may recover for damages that would accrue after the commencement of the action. The defendant had paid into court 10*l.* in respect of damages up to the time of commencing the action; the jury found that to be sufficient for those damages, but awarded a further sum of 20*l.* on account of prospective damages, and the court refused to disturb the verdict. Hodsoll v. Stallebrass, 8 Dowl. 482; 9 C. & P. 63; 3 P. & D. 482.

A declaration for such injury, stating the servant to have been permanently crippled, is supported by evidence that the injured party is still disabled, and likely to remain so, but, with care, will be restored in time. Hodsoll v. Stallebrass, 11 A. & E. 301.

(Excessive, p. 364.)

Upon an application to set aside a verdict on the ground of excessive damages, the Court will not receive the affidavits of the defendant's witnesses, either to explain or add to evidence given by them at the trial. Phillips v. Hatfield, 8 Dowl. 882.

(P. 364, note (p).

And see Moons v. Bernales, 1 Russ. 307.

The effect of the verdict on costs is to be laid entirely out of the consideration; with this the jury have nothing to do; where, therefore, in slander, the Judge directed the jury that it was not a case for large damages, and that they should give such a verdict as would set the plaintiff's character right, and they found a verdict with 1*s.* damages, the Court refused to interfere. Mears v. Griffin, 2 Sc. N. S. 15.

As to the amount to be recovered by one who sues as a trustee for the party damnified, see Lamb v. Vice and others, 8 Dowl. 360.

(General Damages.)

The second count of the declaration stated that the plaintiffs were possessed of a vault, and of certain wine therein; that the defendant was about to pull down and remove, and did pull down and remove, certain other vaults and walls next adjoining the plaintiff's vault, and that thereupon it became and was the duty of the defendant, in the event of his not shoring up or protecting the plaintiffs' vault, to give due and reasonable notice to the plaintiffs of his intention to pull down and remove the said vaults and walls so adjoining the plaintiffs' vault before he pulled down the same, so as to enable the plaintiffs to protect themselves; and also to use due care and skill, and take due, reasonable, and proper precautions in and about the pulling down and removing his vault and walls, so that for want of such care, skill, and precaution, the plaintiffs' vault and its contents might not be damaged or destroyed. General damages having been given upon the whole declaration, held that the allegation as to the want of notice could not be rejected, and the damages be ascribed to the rest of the declaration, even if good. Chadwick v. Trower, 8 Scott, 1.

DEAF AND DUMB.

One deaf and dumb may plead, to a charge of felony, not guilty, in writing. Thompson's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 137.

In the case of a prisoner, deaf and dumb, but capable of reading the indictment, and who by signs pleaded not guilty, the Judge directed the jury to consider, 1st, Whether the prisoner was mute of malice or not; 2dly, Whether he could plead; and, lastly, Whether he was of sufficient intellect to comprehend the proceedings, so as to make a proper defence, and to understand the details of the evidence; and told them that it was not enough that he had a general capacity of communicating on ordinary matters. R. v. Pritchard, 7 C. & P. 303. And see R. v. Dyson, ib. notis; and 1 Hale, 34.

DEATH, p. 364.

In an action of ejectment it will not be presumed that a tenant for life died at the expiration of seven years from the time when he was last heard of. Doe v. Nepean, 5 B. & Ad. 86.

The production of the will, and proof by a niece, a legatee, of having received a legacy under it, coupled with the copy of an entry in the register of burials, was held to be sufficient evidence of the death. Doe v. Penfold, 8 C. & P. 536.

Where the pauper contracted a second marriage on 11th April 1831, and it was proved by the father of the former wife that he had received a letter in her handwriting, dated Van Diemen's Land, 17th March 1831; held, upon the question of the validity of the second marriage, that such letter was admissible, and that the justices or a jury would be justified in coming to a conclusion that she was alive at the time of the second marriage. R. v. Harborne, 4 N. & M. 341.

See further as to the presumption of death, Rust v. Baker, 8 Sim. 443.

DEATH-BED DECLARATIONS, p. 365.

Where the deceased, after expressing an opinion that she should not recover, asked a person if he thought she would rise again, it was held to be insufficient to make the declaration receivable, but that it was no objection to the declaration that it was made in answer to questions put by the medical attendant. R. v. Fagent, 7 C. & P. 238.

The deceased said, "I think myself in great danger;" it was held that these words did not necessarily exclude all hope, and therefore that they were not admissible as a dying declaration. Errington's Case, 2 Lewin's Crown Cases, 149.

In a case of murder, it appeared that two days before the death of the deceased the surgeon told her that she was in a very precarious state; and that on the day before her death, when she had become much worse, she said to the surgeon that she found herself growing worse, and that she had been in hopes she would have got better, but, as she was getting worse, she thought it her duty to mention what had taken place. Immediately after this she made a statement; it was held, that this statement was not receivable in evidence as a declaration in articulo mortis, as it did not sufficiently appear that, at the time of making of it, the deceased was without hope of recovery. R. v. Megson, 9 C. & P. 418.

A boy between ten and eleven years of age was mortally wounded, and died the next day. On the evening of the day on which he was wounded, he was told by a surgeon that he could not recover. The boy made no reply, but appeared dejected. It appeared from his answers to questions put to him, that he was aware that he would be punished hereafter if he said what was untrue: held, that a declaration made by him at this time was receivable in evidence on the trial of a person for killing him, as being a declaration in articulo mortis. R. v. Perkins, 2 Mood. C. C. 135; 9 C. & P. 395.

Although, where any hope of recovery exists, however slight, dying declarations are inadmissible, yet where, after being assured that he must die, and the magistrate, previously to receiving a declaration, desired the party as a dying man, to speak the truth, to which the deceased replied that he would, the Judge (Tindal, C. J.) held it to be admissible. R. v. Hayward, 6 C. & P. 158.

Where it was clear the party did not expect to survive, and thought he might die on the day, held that his statements were receivable, although he lingered some days longer. R. v. Bonner, 6 C. & P. 386.

The deceased said to the surgeon, "Shall I recover?" The surgeon said "No." The patient grew better, but relapsed, and then repeated the question. The surgeon said, "I think you will not recover;" the deceased said, "I think so too." It was held, that the declarations of the deceased were admissible; R. v. Ashton & Thornley, 2 Lewin's C. C. 147.

Where there was nothing in the conduct of the deceased indicating a consciousness of the approach of death, but merely expressions that he thought he should not recover, held insufficient to make the declarations admissible. R. v. Spilsbury and others, 7 C. & P. 187.

Declarations in articulo mortis having been taken down and signed, a copy cannot be received, nor parol evidence of the contents. R. v. Gay, 7 C. & P. 230.

Dying declarations may be given in evidence in favour of the accused. R. v. Scarfe, 2 Lewin's C. C. 150.

(Effect of, p. 367.)

Although the legal sanction to a dying declaration is equivalent to that of an examination on oath, yet the opportunity of investigating the truth is very different, and therefore the accused is entitled to every allowance and benefit he may have lost by the absence of the opportunity of more full investigation by the means of cross-examination, per Alderson, B. Ashton's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 147.

(In Civil Actions, p. 368.)

In covenant upon a mortgage, upon plea non est factum, and issue whether the deed had been fraudulently altered by H., one of the attesting witnesses, who was dead, the other witness doubting his own signature and that of the defendant, and denying all knowledge of the transaction; it was held, that declarations of the deceased witness as to the supposed fraudulent alteration were inadmissible. Stobart v. Dryden, 1 M. & W. 615; and 1 Tyr. & G. 899.

DEBT, p. 369.

In debt for work and labour as an attorney, under the plea nunq. indeb., the defendant may show a contract under which he would be liable to a portion of the demand, and he is not precluded by plea of payment into Court of part, from showing a contract different from that alleged in the declaration. Jones v. Reade, 5 Dowl. 217.

On plea in debt, of payment, the defendant not appearing to support his plea, the plaintiff must, it seems, prove the amount of his debt, as well as in assumpsit. Mackintosh v. Weiller, 1 Mo. & R. 505.

Under a plea of nunq. indeb., or set-off in debt, the defendant is not entitled to give in evidence money payments to the plaintiff, which are primâ facie to be taken as paid in satisfaction of the debt due from the party paying. Cooper v. Morecraft, 3 M. & W. 500.

In the action of debt, where there is no inquiry of damages, if there be no plea of payment, it cannot be given in evidence in reduction of damages. Belbin v. Butt, 2 M. & W. 422; and 5 Dowl. 604.

DECEIT, p. 371.

(In Sale, &c.)

At an auction, premises were represented as good and substantial, although they were unfinished buildings, being in fact in so ruinous a state as to be only fit to be pulled down; it was held, that the sale was void, and the purchaser entitled to recover back the deposit. Robinson v. Musgrove, 8 C. & P. 469; and see VENDOR AND VENDEE.

In case for falsely representing the extent of the weekly business, in an advertisement on the sale of the goodwill; held, that the defendant having made his wife his agent in the management of the business, he was bound by her statement, although he made no representations himself as to the state of the trade. Taylor v. Green, 8 C. & P. 316.

(False Representation, p. 373.)

A. authorises his shopman to give the same representation of a customer which he himself had received, this is within the st. 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 6, and not being in writing, an action is not maintainable. Haslocke v. Ferguson, 2 N. & P. 269.

The plaintiff being about to advance money to C., the representation was, "You may safely lend; I know he has property; the title-deeds are in my possession, and he cannot deal with them without my knowledge;" it was held to amount to a representation of ability within the statute. Swan v. Phillips, 3 N. & P. 447.

In case for a false and malicious representation that the defendant was entitled to a lien on certain goods agreed to be sold to the plaintiff by a third party, whereby the seller was induced to believe that the defendant had such lien, and refused to deliver the goods to the plaintiff, whereby plaintiff was prevented using them in his business, and certain works were delayed, &c.; held, that it sufficiently appeared on the declaration that the defendant knowingly made such false claim, and that the special damage was one sufficiently resulting from the non-delivery of the goods, in consequence of such false representation. Green v. Button, 2 Cr. M. & R. 707; and 1 T. & G. 118.

In an action on the case for deceit, it was alleged in the declaration, that the defendant made certain false representations concerning the character and credit of the firm of D. and L. (of which he was a member), whereby the plaintiffs were induced to supply goods on trust, and to pay money on account of the said firm; the defendant pleaded that the representations alleged were not made in writing within the 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 6. The Court without determining upon the plaintiff's right to maintain the action, held, that the plea was a good answer to the declaration. Devaux v. Steinkeller, 8 Dowl. 33; and 6 Bing. N. C. 84.

Case for false representations on the sale of a ship, whereby she was classed lower in Lloyd's books than she would have been, had she been built of the materials described. Although the sale took place under a written contract, minutely setting forth the build and dimensions of the vessel (but omitting all mention of the materials), the plaintiff is at liberty to give in evidence verbal statements and declarations made by the defendant touching the ship pending the negotiations for the purchase, and before the written contract was entered into, amounting to a warranty that her frame was of a particular description of timber. Wright v. Crookes, 1 Scott, N. S. 685.

Such representations having been made by an agent without any express authority from the defendant, the Judge is warranted in leaving it to the jury to infer from the subsequent conduct of the defendant—ex. gr. from his not having repudiated the warranty when apprised of it—that he was privy to, or impliedly assented to the misrepresentations of his agent. Ib.

The owner of the wharf known by the name of the K. wharf, at which the plaintiff's hoys took in freights, lets part to the defendant by a lease, who by assuming the name obtains freight of goods, alleged by the plaintiff to have been intended for him; in an action of deceit and fraudulent representation, parol evidence is admissible that the defendant was not to use the name of the premises, notwithstanding the division of the wharf by lease, in order to show knowledge on the part of the defendant; and the want of an averment of particular instruction to forward goods by the plaintiff's hoys, or of any specific fraud or false pretence, or loss of freight, is no ground for arresting the judgment. Hope v. West, 7 Sc. 876.

DEED, p. 376.

(Recital.)

A mortgage deed recited a conveyance by A., the tenant in fee, for a term to C. and H., subject to redemption, and that the subsequent mortgagee, at the request of A., had paid the first mortgagees, and advanced to A. a further sum, and in consideration thereof, C. and H., at the request of A., assigned, and A. did grant, &c. the premises for the residue of the term, subject to redemption; held, that A., having been proved aliunde to have been seised in fee, the latter deed was sufficient evidence of title to the possession in the representatives of the second mortgagee; the recital, if taken altogether, showing a title to assign in C. and H., or, if rejected, A. being capable of granting a term, it might be looked at to see what term was intended to pass. Doe d. Rogers v. Brooks, 3 Ad. & Ell. 513.

Although a deed poll may be framed so as to give a right of action against a party executing it, yet, when made between parties, no one can bring an action on it, except a party, or one claiming through him. Gardner v. Lachlan, 8 Sim. 126.

(Construction of.)

See Blatchford v. Mayor, &c. of Plymouth, 3 Bing. N. C. 691.

DEPOSITIONS, p. 382.

(Before a Magistrate.)

The examination of a party, taken in the prisoner's absence, ought not to be returned as one of the depositions: if the prisoner is desirous of making a statement, it is the duty of the magistrate, after a caution that it will be used against him, in order to get rid of any previous impression, to receive it and have it taken down. R. v. Arnold, 8 C. & P. 621.

It is the duty of the coroner to bind over those witnesses only who make out the case against the party charged, and not those called by him to rebut it. R. v. Taylor, 9 C. & P. 672.

The magistrate is bound to return all the depositions, and not those merely of such witnesses as he thinks fit to bind over. R. v. Fuller, 7 C. & P. 269.

Depositions are the best and only proper evidence of the statements made, and the rule applies to them in all proceedings connected therewith, in which it is sought to adduce the statements in evidence. Leach v. Simpson & another, 7 Dowl. 513.

Where the magistrate returned the depositions, stating the prisoner to have declined saying anything, it was held that statements made by him in the magistrate's presence, could not be given in evidence. R. v. Walter, 7 C. & P. 267.

The prisoner's examination concluded, "taken and sworn before, &c.," held that it could not be permitted to contradict by parol the magistrate's signature, by showing that the examination was not sworn, and that parol evidence of what the prisoner said could not be received. R. v. Rivers, 7 C. & P. 177.

Where the magistrate's clerk, in taking down the statements of several parties charged, left the names of each other mentioned by such parties in blank, the Judge refused to have them supplied by supplementary evidence. R. v. Morse & others, 8 C. & P. 605.

Where depositions of a deceased witness before the magistrate were duly taken and signed by the magistrate, but the cross-examination of the witness was taken subsequently; it was held, that the want of signature thereto, excluding the latter, would exclude the depositions altogether. R. v. Frances, 2 M. & R. 207.

A deposition taken under the st. 7 G. 4, c. 64, s. 32, is not evidence after the death of the deponent, unless it was taken in the presence of the prisoner. R. v. Errington, 2 Lewin's C. C. 142.

(Copy, &c.)

Where the statement is returned with the deposition, the prisoner is not entitled to a copy thereof under 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 114, but only of the deposition of witnesses. R. v. Aylett, 8 C. & P. 669. The prisoner is entitled to copies of depositions before a coroner. R. v. Greenacre, 8 C. & P. 32.

The principal thief having been admitted evidence for the Crown against the receiver, the latter was allowed to see the depositions which had been returned against the former. R. v. Walford, 8 C. & P. 767.

The deposition of a witness taken before the coroner on any inquiry touching the death of a person killed by a collision between a brig and a barge, is receivable in evidence in an action for the negligent management of the brig, if the witness be shown to be beyond sea. Sills v. Brown, 9 C. & P. 601. Qu.

DETINUE, p. 387.

A count for detinue of the note may be joined with a count in debt for the amount of the bill. Kirkpatrick v. Bank of England, 8 Dowl. 881.

Upon issue joined on a plea denying property in the plaintiff, it is no defence that there are other persons, co-tenants with the plaintiff, who are not joined in the action. Broadbent v. Ledward, 11 A. & E. 209.

The plea of non-detinet merely puts in issue the simple fact of detainer; and if the defendant relies upon a justifiable detainer, he must plead it specially. Richardson v. Frankum, 8 Dowl. 346.

On a plea in detinue, that the goods were not the goods of plaintiff, defendant may set up a lien. Lane v. Jewson, 12 A. & E. 116, note (a).

In detinue for papers against an attorney after his bill paid in full, plea non-detinet; held, that the plaintiff must prove the defendant's possession, but showing that they were produced by his agent before the Master, on taxing the bill, was held to be sufficient, and that it was no defence that the agent detained the papers on the ground of lien against his client; held also, that the plaintiff must prove the value of each paper, and the jury must find the value separately: the defendant having set up as a defence the delivery of the papers to one K., according to a notice from the plaintiff's attorney, held that K. might be called to show the delivery in another right, and that he had a lien thereon, as against the defendant. Anderson v. Pasman, 7 C. & P. 193.

DIPLOMA.

The witness going to a town, the seat of a university, and being told that a certain building is the college, and a person pointed out there as the librarian, who, on application, produces a seal, which he states to be the seal of the university, and a book, the book of acts, or statute book of the university; the witness compared such seal with that on a diploma, and made a duly examined copy from the entry in the book of an act conferring a degree of M. D.; held, that such diploma was duly authenticated, and the act conferring the degree properly proved. Collins v. Carnegie, 3 N. & M. 703; and 1 A. & E. 695.

DIRECTORY.

Act directory, when as to the mode of making entries in a book by the secretary of a dock company. Southampton Docks Co. v. Richards, 1 Scott, N. S. 219.

DISTRESS, p. 389.

(What distrainable, p. 390.)

Brewers' casks sent to a public-house with beer, and left there until the beer is consumed, are liable to be distrained for the rent of the house. Joule v. Jackson, 7 M. & W. 450.

Fixtures cannot be distrained for rent. Darby v. Harris, 1 G. & D. 234.

An annuity is charged on lands converted into salt-works and a canal for receiving in boats the salt manufactured and sold; the boat of a purchaser is not privileged from distress. Muspratt v. Gregory, 1 M. & W. 633; 1 T. & G. 1086. Parke, B., dissentiente.

(Proof of the act of distraining, what amounts to, p. 390-392.)

The agent of the landlord went into a field on the farm where the tenant's cattle were feeding, and, placing his hand upon one of the beasts, said he distrained the whole for the rent due, counted them, and took a note of the particulars, and then went away; on the following morning, he left with the tenant a notice stating that he had distrained the cattle thereunder mentioned, and had impounded them on the premises; held, that this constituted an impounding. Thomas v. Harries, 1 Scott, N. S. 524.

(Liability of Principal for the act of the Bailiff.)

If a bailiff distrain goods privileged, yet the landlord is not bound by the acts of his bailiff, if, when coming to the knowledge of them, he disclaim and repudiate them; (Littledale, J.) Hurry v. Rickman, 1 Mo. & R. 126.

(Irregular, p. 390.)

The provisions of 2 W. & M. c. 5, are not repealed by 57 Geo. 3, c. 93, as to distresses under 20*l.*; an appraisement by one broker is therefore insufficient, unless by consent. Allen v. Flicker, 10 Ad. & Ell. 640.

Case for not leaving the overplus, after sale of a distress, in the hands of the sheriff, under the 2 W. & M. c. 5, s. 2; the overplus is to be taken to mean, after satisfying the rent and the reasonable charges of the distress; and in such action the plaintiff may raise the question of the reasonableness of such charges: whether the tenant's accepting the balance and giving a receipt to the broker is to be taken as a satisfaction, and whether such acts are not an admission that such was the real balance, are questions for the jury. Lyon v. Tomkies, 1 M. & W. 603; and 1 T. & G. 810.

The landlord was sued for an irregular distress, and obtained a verdict; he is not precluded from double costs under 11 G. 2, c. 19, s. 21, by having pleaded specially. Gambrell v. Earl of Falmouth, 5 Ad. & Ell. 403.

(Excessive Distress, p. 391.)

In case for an excessive distress, a plea, not guilty "by statute," puts in issue as well the inducement, viz. the tenancy and ownership of the goods, as the matter of justification. Williams v. Jones, 11 A. & E. 643.

The question is whether the goods taken are more than sufficient to satisfy the sum really due, although the warrant may be for a larger sum than is actually due. Crowder v. Self, 2 Mo. & R. 190.

Case for an excessive distress, plea that the whole sum distrained for was due and in arrear; the defendant is not precluded from taking into the account arrears of rent antecedent to a prior distress, although the notice under such prior distress stated it to be for rent due up to a certain period, and the notice under the latter distress stated it to be for rent accrued since the former distress. Gambrell v. Earl of Falmouth, 4 Ad. & Ell. 73.

The plaintiff is not entitled to recover as damages the extra costs occasioned by the replevin. Grace v. Morgan, 2 Bing. N. C. 534; and 2 Sc. 790.

An action lies for excess in distraining for more than is due, although there are not goods sufficient to satisfy the rent actually due. Taylor v. Henniker, 4 P. & D. 242. And the action lies although the first notice be withdrawn, and the sale be under a second notice, claiming no more than is due.—Ibid. In Avenell v. Croker, 1 M. & M. 172, but one thing was taken, and a stet processus was afterwards agreed to. In Wilkinson v. Terry, 1 Mo. & R. 377, Parke, B., doubted whether such an action was maintainable. In the above case of Taylor v. Henniker, the Court of Q. B. held the action to be maintainable, on the ground that there was a legal damage.

Although the landlord in distraining may impound the goods on the premises, and, to secure them, lock them up, yet where he locked up the plaintiff's cottage for the purpose of keeping the possession, it was held that the tenant might maintain trespass for the expulsion, and that a licence by the tenant could only be pleaded specially. Cox v. Painter, 7 C. & P. 767.

Where the plaintiff, the occupier, although not actually distrained upon for the ground-rent, upon its being demanded, asked for time, at the end of which he paid it; held that it was not to be deemed a voluntary payment, and that the defendant, the immediate landlord, having refused to allow that as well as land-tax, as payment upon the next half-year's rent becoming due, the balance being tendered and refused, and having distrained for the whole rent, the action for an excessive distress was maintainable; held also, that if the whole distress were wrongful, the count in trover was sufficient. Carter v. Carter, 5 Bing. 406. And see Sapsford v. Fletcher, 4 T. R. 511; Taylor v. Zamira, 6 Taunt. 524; and Branscomb v. Brydges, 1 B. & C. 145.

A party distrained for more than was really due, but took only a single article, and there were no other goods of less value sufficient to cover the rent really due; held that he was not liable for an excessive distress; held also, that where the distress was appraised by a broker sworn before the constable of the adjoining parish, it was irregular, although the officer of the proper parish could not be found, he only having authority under the 2 W. & M. sess. 1, c. 5, s. 2. Avenell v. Croker, 1 Mo. & M. 172.

(5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 59.)

It seems that under the 4th section of the stat. 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 59, the person who is bound to supply food to impounded cattle is the distrainor or person at whose suit they are impounded, and not the pound-keeper; but if the pound-keeper supply the food at the request of the distrainor, or the distrainor join with the pound-keeper in a subsequent sale of the cattle under this Act, the pound-keeper and the distrainor are for this purpose to be considered as one. Mason v. Newland, 9 C. & P. 575.

Semble, that the 4th section of this statute excludes any right in the owner of the cattle to supply them with food while in the pound. Under the provisions of this statute the distrainor who supplies the food, may either apply to a magistrate to allow any sum not exceeding double the value of the food, or may sell the cattle; but no magistrate ought to allow more than the actual value of the food, if the owner of the cattle was willing to supply the food himself. Ibid.

If the cattle be sold under this provision of the stat. 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 59, the distrainor can only get the single value of the food and not the amount of the damage for which the cattle were distrained, as all the overplus beyond the value of the food, and the expenses of the sale, is to be returned to the owner of the cattle. Mason v. Newland, 9 C. & P. 575.

The 5th section of the stat. 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 59, does not give any person a right to any payment; it merely allows charitable persons to supply food to impounded cattle without being liable to an action for doing so. Ibid.

(Tender, p. 390.)

A tender of rent and costs of a distress after impounding is too late. Thomas v. Harries, 1 Sc. N. S. 524, and Ladd v. Thomas, 4 P. & D. 9. Trespass lies for a wrongful continuance in possession after a distress made (semble). Ibid.

(Defence, p. 393.)

Where a party seised in fee granted a lease to B. for 61 years, and afterwards granted a lease in reversion, to commence at the expiration of the first lease; held, that he did not thereby part with his reversion, so as to preclude his right of distraining for rent under the first lease. Smith v. Day, 2 M. & W. 684.

Where the tenancy has ceased by the conveyance of the landlord's reversion, he is not entitled to follow goods removed to avoid distress. Ashmore v. Hardy, 7 C. & P. 501.

Upon an agreement for a certain rent for a house to be suitably furnished for a school, the furnishing is a condition precedent to the right to demand rent or to distrain, and the due compliance is a question for a jury. Mechellin v. Wallace, 6 N. & M. 316.

On the expiration of the term, the tenant quitted, and the new tenant entered, but part of the old tenant's stock remained on the premises; the landlord cannot distrain,—the mere fact of leaving the stock, unaccompanied by any claim, not showing a continuance of possession. Taylerson v. Peters, 7 Ad. & Ell. 110; and 2 Nev. & P. 622.

See further as to privity between the distrainor and the tenant of the land, Banks v. Angell, 3 N. & P. 94.

(Executors.)

By the st. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 37, the executors or administrators of lessor may distrain on any lands demised for any term, or at will, for arrearages due to the lessor in his lifetime.

By sec. 38, the distress may be within six months after the determination of the term during the continuance of the tenant in possession.

(Distress for Rates, &c., p. 393.)

In trespass for seizing goods for highway and poor-rates, but no notice of action given, the defendant being entitled to it under the Highway Acts; held, that the action was maintainable in respect of the goods wrongfully taken for the poor-rate. Lamont v. Southall, 7 Dowl. 469.

Case for rescuing a barge and goods seized as a distress for tolls due on a navigable river; held, on demurrer, that the first count was bad, for not showing that the goods distrained were those in respect whereof the tolls were due, and that they belonged to the person by whom the tolls were payable; but that, as there was a count alleging the goods seized to have been impounded, and so in the custody of the law, the defendants in rescuing them were wrong-doers: and on a demurrer to the whole declaration, one count being good the plaintiff was held to be entitled to judgment. Parrett Nav. Co. v. Stower, 8 M. & W. 564; 8 Dowl. 405.

Where the notice of distress for paving rates stated the amount and cause of distress truly, but misrecited the Local Act under which made, and an action having been brought, was afterwards discontinued; held, that the plaintiff was not precluded from saying that he was really acting under the statute authorizing the distress, and was therefore entitled to treble costs. Debney v. Corbett, 5 Dowl. 704.

(Rescue.)

Cattle stray on a common, a rescue from the hayward whilst taking them to the pound is indictable; but not if he take them damage feasant in the inclosed land of private individuals, as until they are pounded the hayward is to be considered only as the servant of the occupier. R. v. Bradshaw, 7 C. & P. 233.

Where a Navigation Act authorized the distraining for tolls, goods in respect of which the tolls arose or the barge laden therewith, or any other goods of the owner of the first-mentioned goods; held, in an action on the case for rescuing goods distrained, that it must be shown that the goods distrained were such as might be distrained; but where a distress is once impounded, a declaration for pound-breach need not disclose the right of distress. Parrett Nav. Co. v. Stower, 8 Dowl. 405.

DISTURBANCE, p. 394.

A lessee under a parol demise of a market recently created by an Act enabling the owner to demise or lease the market or site thereof, and all erections, and the lessee to take and enjoy the rents and tolls, &c., is entitled to maintain an action for the disturbance thereof. Bringing sheep to an inn within forty yards of the market, and taking purchasers from the market to the place where the sheep were, and selling them, is such a fraud in law as amounts to a disturbance of the right of the owner of the market. Bridgland v. Shafter, 5 M. & W. 374.

DRUNKENNESS, p. 396.

It is not sufficient to make a statement of the prisoner inadmissible that he was drunk at the time, but is merely matter of observation to the jury. R. v. Spilsbury, 7 C. & P. 187.

The prisoner, whilst drunk, stabbed the prosecutor with a fork; his having been drunk does not alter the nature of the offence; but if, at such time, he used an instrument not in its nature a deadly weapon, his being drunk would be a fact to induce the jury to less strongly infer a malicious intention in him at the time. R. v. Meakin, 7 C. & P. 297.

DURESS, p. 397.

An agreement on consideration of withdrawing a distress, the distrainor to be at liberty to distrain again, is not void as made under duress of goods. Skeate v. Beale, 3 P. & D. 597; 11 Ad. & Ell. 983.

In equity, the purchase of a reversionary interest in a copyhold, at an under-value, whilst the plaintiff was in great embarrassment and in prison, was set aside, with costs. Bawtree v. Watson, 3 Myl. & K. 339.

EJECTMENT, p. 398.

Ejectment lies not for a canonry or for the house of residence allotted to a canon. Doe v. Musgrave, 1 Scott, N. S. 451. Nor for a tinbound, but it lies for a mine under it. Doe d. Earl of Falmouth v. Alderson, 1 M. & W. 210.

Commissioners cannot be said to be in such possession of the highway as to maintain ejectment against a party encroaching on strips by the side of it. Doe d. White v. Roe, 8 Sc. 146.

A party in possession under an intended purchaser, being tenant at will, and in equity the owner of the land, but liable to pay the purchase-money, his cutting timber is consistent with his holding in that character, and not adverse possession. Doe v. Caperton, 9 C. & P. 112.

See further as to adverse possession, Doe v. Jauncey, 8 C. & P. 99; Doe v. Wilkins, 5 N. & M. 434; Doe v. Long, 9 C. & P. 773.

(Variance.)

The omission to insert the year of the demise is no ground of nonsuit, and is not the subject of amendment under the st. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 23. Doe v. Heather, 8 M. & W. 158.

(Estoppel, p. 407.)

A lessor, after having committed an act of bankruptcy, assigned premises demised, and informed the tenant that he had so done, requesting him to give 1 s. as an acknowledgment to the assignees, which the tenant did, but he was not informed of the circumstances which rendered the assignment invalid; held, in ejectment, by the assignees, that the tenant was not estopped, nor were the assignees under the commission, defending as landlords, from showing that the lessor of the plaintiff was not his landlord, it being open to a party not guilty of laches, to explain and render inconclusive acts done under mistake or through misrepresentation. Doe v. Brown, 7 Ad. & Ell. 447; and 2 N. & P. 592.

Where a party built on the waste, and before he had acquired a title, gave up the possession of it to the owner of the adjoining land, which he held on lease granted in 1812, and who let the building to the defendant; held in ejectment, that he was estopped from denying the title of his lessor, who was also estopped from denying that of the landlord; and a receipt of rent due after a notice to quit had, containing a proviso that it should not be a waiver of the notice, does not require an agreement stamp. Doe d. Wheble v. Fuller, 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 17.

Where the defendant gets into possession by a fraud or licence, he cannot dispute the title of the plaintiff until he has placed the latter in the same situation as before obtaining such possession. Doe d. Johnson v. Baytrup, 4 Nev. & M. 387; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 188.

Where a father executed a conveyance, in order to qualify his son, which the attorney of the former prepared, and produced it on behalf of the son before magistrates, but it remained in his custody upon an alleged agreement by the son that he should hold it as a security for the general bill of costs, &c., due from the father; after the death of the father, the son paid for the costs of the conveyance; in trover for the deed, it was held, that if any interest in the property were intended to pass, the deed belonged to the son, and that the father could not give a lien upon it, and that the attorney was estopped from saying that no interest passed; the jury having given a general verdict for the defendant, the Court granted a new trial, on the ground of misdirection of the Judge, who merely left it to the jury whether the deed was the property of the father or son. Lord v. Wardle, 3 Bing. N. C. 680; and 4 Sc. 402.

After the bankruptcy and certificate of the lessor of the plaintiff, the defendant purchased the stock in trade, but no assignment of the premises was made, and upon an agreement for partnership it was agreed that the partnership should hold the premises of the lessor of the plaintiff, under which, on their account, rent was paid to him; held, that upon the dissolution of the partnership, the tenancy was at an end, and the defendant could not be allowed to dispute the title of the lessor. Doe d. Colnaghi v. Bluck, 8 C. & P. 464.

A defendant is not estopped from showing that the party under whom the lessor claims had no title, when the conveyance to the lessor was made, although the defendant himself claims from the same party by virtue of a subsequent conveyance. Doe v. Payne, 1 Ad. & Ell. 538.

(Coparcener, p. 408.)

Where the reversion descends to coparceners, one alone cannot maintain ejectment for breach of covenant. Doe v. Lewis, 5 Ad. & Ell. 277.

(Copyhold, p. 409.)

Copyhold lands are leased by the tenant duly admitted, from six years to six years, if certain persons should so long live, the lessee may maintain ejectment, although there be no custom of the manor to lease, and no licence obtained; the lease although void as against the lord, was yet good as between the lessor and lessee, and all others, except the lord. Doe v. Tresidder, 1 Gale & D. 70. And see Downingham's Case, Owen, 17.

The surrenderee of a copyhold being an assignee of a reversion within 32 H. 8, c. 34, and entitled to maintain an action on the covenants contained in a lease made by his predecessor, the lessee cannot avail himself of the lease's being invalid, which would be to allege a defect in the title of the lessor; held also, that after 20 years the lord would be barred from entering for a forfeiture if the lease were invalid. Whitton v. Peacocke, 3 Myl. & K. 325.

Upon a conditional surrender by way of mortgage in 1826, and a subsequent sale and absolute surrender by the mortgagor to the defendant in 1832, who was soon afterwards admitted, after which the mortgagee was admitted, and brought ejectment, held that the mortgagee was entitled to recover. Doe v. Gibbons, 7 C. & P. 161.

(Elegit, p. 410.)

The execution creditor, under an elegit, is not entitled to the rent becoming due between the time of the delivery of the writ to the sheriff and the taking of the inquisition; such rent is a mere chose in action. Sharp v. Key, 9 Dowl. 770.

(Fine.)

See as to entry to avoid a fine, Doe v. Pett, 4 P. & D. 278, and as to waiver of a forfeiture incurred by levying a fine, ib.

(Heir, p. 411.)

Where the jury found that the father of the lessor of plaintiff, his son and heir, had been in possession for upwards of 20 years before his death, as tenant at will to the grandfather of the lessor of plaintiff; held that no right descended under the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 27, upon the lessor of plaintiff, to enable him to maintain ejectment, even against a stranger. Doe v. Thompson, 2 N. & P. 656. S. C. 1 Nev. & P. 215.

Where the husband took under the marriage settlement a moiety of an estate of the wife in fee, and at the death of her brother the other moiety descended upon her as heiress at law, and she dying without issue the husband continued in uninterrupted possession of the entire estate for 23 years, without any acknowledgment of title of any other person; held, that the non-claim of the wife's heir for five years after the passing of the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 12, was a bar; and that s. 19 applies only to cases of parties resident in Ireland before the passing of the statute, and where the controversy has not arisen until after the passing of it: held, also, that constructive trusts may be barred by long acquiescence. Hasell, ex parte, 3 Younge & C. 617.

In ejectment by an heir, the plaintiff having proved a title as heir, upon which the defendant sets up title under a will; the plaintiff is entitled to put in reply a subsequent will, revoking the former devise, as in contradiction of the defendant's case, and not as part of his own case in chief. Doe v. Gosley, 2 Mo. & R. 243; and 9 C. & P. 46.

(By Landlord.—Proof of Tenancy, p. 412.)

The father of the deceased occupier being tenant of a farm, of which the tenancy would expire at Lady-day, the attorney of the landlord, in December, proposed to let that and other farms according to the terms of a printed paper then read, and which the deceased assented to, and agreed to succeed his father at Lady-day, but no writing was signed, and he entered and continued in possession until his death, after which his executors, the defendants, entered and paid the rent; held, that such agreement, followed by entry and payment of rent, created a tenancy upon the terms of the printed paper, and which might be referred to by the attorney to show the terms of the demise. Lord Bolton v. Tomlyn, 1 Nev. & P. 247.

An agreement in writing for a yearly tenancy is not altered by the tenant agreeing to pay quarterly, and doing so. Turner v. Allday, 1 T. & G. 819.

The plaintiff being the grantee of an annuity or rent charged on lands, with power of entry in case of the rent being in arrear, and which lands the grantor afterwards demised to the defendant for a term, having distrained for arrears of the annuity, the defendant signed an agreement to attorn to the plaintiff, and paid him rent,—distresses had also been made, and a six months' notice to quit given; held, that it created a tenancy from year to year, as between the defendant and the annuitant, determinable on the payment of the arrears, and upon which the lease for years would revive. Doe v. Boulter, 1 N. & P. 650.

An agreement of demise for one year certain, and so from year to year, with a proviso that either party might determine the tenancy by three months' notice, creates a tenancy for two years certain. Doe v. Green, 1 P. & D. 454.

(Notice to quit, p. 414.)

A general letting, at a yearly rent, is evidence of a yearly tenancy. R. v. Herstmonceaux, 7 B. & C. 551. (See as to the presumption to be made from a reservation of weekly wages, R. v. Puckleehurch, 5 East, 382.) A general letting, without any reservation of annual rent, constitutes a tenancy at will. Richardson v. Langridge, 4 Taunt. 128.

In the absence of any evidence of usage, it is not an implied term in a contract for a weekly tenancy, that a week's notice is to be given; but, in the absence of such usage, where a new week is entered upon, the tenant is bound to continue until the expiration of that week, or to pay the week's rent. (Per Parke, B.) Huffell v. Armitstead, 7 C. & P. 56.

Where an original lease, under which the defendant was let into possession, became forfeited, and the lessor, the lessee (the defendant), and a party to whom the lessee had mortgaged the lease, agreed that the mortgagee should have a new lease granted, and should make an under-lease to the defendant, who was thereupon put into possession upon a promise that upon payment of the original mortgage sum he should have an under-lease; held, that the defendant did not become tenant from year to year, nor entitled to six months' notice to quit. Doe d. Rogers v. Pullen, 2 Bing. N. C. 749.

A tenant gives notice to quit after a refusal to reduce the rent; the landlord proposes to acquiesce in letting for a year on the reduced terms, if he cannot obtain another tenant: it is an implied condition that the tenant accepting the terms, should permit the house to be looked over, and having refused, the parties stand on their original rights. Doe v. Marquis of Hertford, 1 M. & W. 690; and 1 T. & G. 1028.

(By whom given, p. 417.)

If several lessors be partners in trade, and one signs the notice to quit in the name of himself and partners, it is sufficient; an authority is to be presumed. Doe v. Hulme, 2 M. & R. 433.

A notice to quit by one of several joint-tenants is sufficient to put an end to a tenancy from year to year as to all, upon a joint demise by such joint-tenants, inasmuch as the character of the tenancy is that the tenant holds the whole of all so long as he and all shall please. Doe d. Aslin v. Summersett, 1 B. & Ad. 135.

But if an agent employed to receive rents give a notice to quit, having no authority at the time to determine the tenancy, and there is no recognition of the authority of the agent before the day of the demise laid in the ejectment, the mere bringing the action is insufficient. Doe v. Walters, 10 B. & C. 626. But see Goodtitle v. Woodward, 3 B. & A. 689.

The widow of a tenant from year to year continues in possession; the landlord is entitled to recover upon notice to quit served on her, although he does not prove her to be the personal representative of the tenant. Rees v. Perrott, 4 C. & P. 230.

(Service, p. 417.)

If a notice to quit is served on the tenant's wife at the house, accompanied by a statement that the paper delivered is "a notice of discharge," it is sufficient. Smith v. Clark, 9 Dowl. 202.

(Form of Notice, p. 418.)

Where the premises were originally taken to hold from May 1832 to February 1833, and thence from year to year, and, on the 22d October 1833, a notice was served to quit "at the expiration of half a year from the delivery of the notice, or at such other time or times at which your present year's holding would expire, after the expiration of half a year from the delivery of the notice:" held, that the word "present" might be rejected, and that the notice was sufficient to determine the tenancy on the February 1835. Doe d. Williams v. Smith, 5 Ad. & Ell. 350.

A notice to quit "on Saint Michaelmas Day," is primâ facie a notice to quit at New Michaelmas; but if the holding be from Old Michaelmas, it will be a sufficient notice to quit at that time. Doe v. Perrin, 9 C. & P. 467.

A tenant held a house and land from year to year; the land from the 2d of February, the house, &c. from the 1st of May. On the 16th of February 1838, a notice to quit was served on him, requiring him to quit and deliver up the farm at the end of his present year's holding; this is a good notice to determine the tenancy in the spring of 1839; it not being shown on the part of the tenant that the land was not the principal subject of the holding. A notice to quit, given by a person authorised by one of several lessors, joint-tenants, determines the tenancy as to all. Doe v. Hughes, 7 M. & W. 139.

Lease for twenty-one years from Michaelmas 1823, with a covenant that, if the tenant should desire to determine the demise at the end of the first fourteen years, and should leave or give six calendar months' notice immediately preceding the expiration of the first fourteen years, the lease should determine; the tenant, six months before the June preceding the expiration of the first fourteen years, gave notice that he should quit on the 24th June 1837, agreeably to the covenants of the lease: held, that this notice did not satisfy the covenant, and that the jury could not be asked whether, from the landlord's conduct as shown in evidence, they believed that he understood the notice to refer to Michaelmas 1837. Cadby v. Martinez, 11 A. & E. 720.

A misdescription of the parish is immaterial if it appear that the defendant was not misled. Doe v. Wilkinson, 4 P. & D. 323.

(Disclaimer, p. 419.)

Where the defendants, having paid rent to the lessors of the plaintiff (as executors of the original former landlord), before the day laid in the demise, attorned to another; it was held a sufficient disclaimer, and that an admission of such attornment made after the action brought was sufficient evidence of disclaimer, as against them. Doe d. Ince v. Letherlin, 6 N. & M. 313; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 784.

The tenant disclaimed in March, and the landlord distrained in the following November for rent, it was held to amount to a waiver of the disclaimer, and that the 8 Anne, c. 14, ss. 6 & 7, enabling landlords to distrain after the determination of a tenancy, did not apply to cases where it was put an end to by the wrongful act of the tenant. Doe v. Williams, 7 C. & P. 322.

Where H. holding for lives of K., let the premises to the defendant year by year, with an agreement for a lease for seven years or for his own lease, and on the expiration of the seven years having sold his interest to the plaintiff, the latter demanded first the possession, to which the defendant replied that he held on lives, and should hold as long as they lived; a quarter's rent was then demanded, to which the defendant answered, that he held of H., who had directed him to pay K., and that he should do so; held, that it was properly left to the jury, and that they were justified in finding that there was no disclaimer, the defendant asserting no title in himself, but merely that he insisted on standing by the agreement, and in the absence of any notice to quit the plaintiff was not entitled to recover the premises. Doe v. Cooper, 1 M. & Gr. 135; and 1 Sc. N. S. 36.

In ejectment against lessee for years for forfeiture by a disclaimer of the lessor's title it was held, that a parol disclaimer was insufficient: also, that a demise laid on the day of the supposed forfeiture accruing, to commence from two days previous, was good. Doe v. Wells, 2 P. & D. 396.

B. concurred, with other members of his family, in letting land to C. as tenant from year to year, and it was agreed that the rent should be paid to D. as agent for the family. B., to whom alone the land really belonged, demanded rent of C., who said, "You are not my landlord." B. then demanded possession, which C. refused to give up:—Held, that if the jury were satisfied that the fair meaning of this was, that C. asserted that B. and himself were not in the relation of landlord and tenant, this was a disclaimer; and that C. was not entitled to notice to quit. Doe d. Bennett v. Long, 9 C. & P. 773.

If in ejectment the lessor of the plaintiff rely on a disclaimer, it will be no objection to his recovering, that the disclaimer was on the day of the demise laid in the declaration. Ibid.

(Tenant at Will, p. 420.)

Trespass for entering plaintiff's dwelling-house, plea that the plaintiff, an alien, as lessee, was in possession under an agreement of demise, (illegal as against the 32 Hen. 8, c. 16,) and providing for a future lease; held, that whether the instrument amounted to a lease or not, the agreement being unlawful, the plaintiff could acquire no interest under it, and that the defendant was justified in entering to determine the tenancy at will. Lapierre v. M'Intosh, 1 P. & D. 629; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 857.

A mere tenant by sufferance being turned out of possession by his landlord, having no interest in the land, cannot maintain ejectment, although he may trespass. Doe v. Murrell, 8 C. & P. 135.

Where upon an agreement for the purchase of premises by defendant, he was let into possession forthwith, paying interest until the payment of the purchase-money and completion of the purchase, and afterwards built on the land, and no conveyance was ever tendered, nor any steps taken by the vendor (the plaintiff) to enforce the performance, but on failure in payment of the interest, he brought ejectment; the interest of the defendant in the premises was held to amount only to a tenancy at will, determinable without any notice to quit. Doe v. Chamberlaine, 5 M. & W. 14.

Where the lessor of plaintiff had let the defendant into possession in 1817, as tenant at will, and ten years afterwards entered on the land, and without the consent of the tenant dug and carried away stone, but the defendant continued in possession as before, until 1839, when the plaintiff brought his ejectment, the jury found that the defendant, during the whole period, was tenant at will; it was held, that by the entry in 1827, the tenancy at will being determined, and the defendant having become merely tenant by sufferance, the jury ought to have found whether a new tenancy at will was then created, and a new trial was accordingly granted. Doe v. Turner, 7 M. & W. 226.

Where the occupation of a house is in consideration of services rendered by the occupier, and is with a view to those services, a notice to quit is unnecessary if the service be put an end to. Doe v. Derry, 9 C. & P. 494.

Provision is made in a mortgage deed for payment of a yearly rent or sum, the mortgagee to have the ordinary remedies of a landlord for rent, provided that the reservation shall not prejudice the mortgagee's right to enter; a distress as for rent does not entitle the mortgagor to a notice to quit as tenant. Doe v. Olley, 4 P. & D. 275.

(Forfeiture, p. 421.)

In ejectment on a forfeiture, the day of the demise is amendable at the trial. Doe v. Leach, 9 Dowl. P. C. 877.

A lessee covenanted to insure, and the premises were uninsured for a week; in ejectment for a forfeiture for a breach of this covenant, the lessor cannot recover if he, by his conduct, has led the lessee to believe that the premises were properly insured by himself. Doe v. Sutton, 9 C. & P. 706.

A lease contained a covenant to repair, and that upon notice of defects the lessor might within two months afterwards enter and do repairs, and if the expenses were not paid by the lessee, that the lessor might distrain for them; there was also a power of re-entry upon any breach of covenant: the lessor afterwards gave notice that he should do certain repairs at the end of six months and charge the lessee with the expense, and upon the six months having elapsed, the lessor gave notice to the lessee that if he did not comply with certain terms within three days he should hold him to the covenants; held that upon the lessee not complying, the lessor could not maintain ejectment for the forfeiture; having elected the remedy for non-repair, the general power to re-enter did not revive by the three days' notice. Doe d. Rutzen v. Lewis, 5 Ad. & Ell. 277.

In ejectment for forfeiture for breach of covenants for insuring and repairing, the plaintiff is bound to show that the forfeiture has been committed, and the refusal of the defendant to produce the policy is not of itself evidence that he had not insured, but merely lets in secondary evidence. Doe d. Bridger v. Whitehead, 3 N. & P. 557.

The directors of a company, before they were enabled to sell or demise lands conveyed to them, granted a lease with power of re-entry on breaches of covenant, and afterwards by an Act the company was incorporated, and all contracts previously entered into were declared valid and effectual as if entered into with the incorporated company; they may support ejectment on such clause of re-entry. Doe v. Knebell, 2 Mo. & R. 66.

During the continuance of a tenancy from year to year, the landlord mortgaged the premises to secure the payment of an annuity; the mortgage deed contained a proviso, that he should remain in receipt of the rent until sixty days after default made in payment of the annuity; held as against the tenant, that before default the mortgagor had a sufficient interest in the premises remaining in him to entitle him to determine the tenancy by a notice to quit. Doe d. Lyster & others v. Goldwin, 1 G. & D. 463.

(Damages, p. 424.)

In trespass for mesne profits, a verdict may be found against the defendant though he never actually occupied during the time of the trespass, it being proved that before the trespass the defendant, who then held lawfully, underlet to H., that defendant's and H.'s interest became determined and right of possession vested in plaintiff, that H. held on, and that the defendant afterwards continued to receive rent of him, and declared him to be his tenant, when the plaintiff demanded possession, the defendant and H. both alleging title in the party under whom the defendant formerly held. Doe v. Harlow, 12 A. & E. 40.

The landlord may give evidence of mesne profits under the 1 G. 4, c. 87, s. 2, although no notice of trial be proved. Doe v. Hodgson, 4 P. & D. 142; 12 A. & E. 135.

The day on which it was alleged the plaintiff was ejected by the defendant, and that on which possession was recovered by the former, are not material in a declaration in trespass for mesne profits, although such days are not stated under a videlicet. Ive v. Scott & another, 9 Dowl. 993.

(1 & 2 Vict. c. 74.)

See as to summary proceedings for recovery of tenements let for not exceeding seven years nor 20 l. rent, 1 & 2 Vict. c. 74.

(By Mortgagee, p. 427.)

In ejectment by mortgagee, a defendant, not the mortgagor, but defending for his benefit, is not allowed to set up a prior mortgage. Doe v. Clifton, 4 Ad. & Ell. 813.

In order to found jurisdiction under 7 Geo. 2, c. 20, to relieve the mortgagor on payment of the mortgage debt and interest, it is an essential preliminary that he should make himself defendant. Ib.

In ejectment by mortgagee against mortgagor, the lease for a year recited in the release, executed by the latter to the former, is sufficient evidence that the mortgagee was in possession at the time of the execution of the release, without producing the lease. Doe v. Wagstaff, 7 C. & P. 477.

Where from payments of interest on the mortgage money, the possession of the mortgagee was not adverse within twenty years before the passing of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, and the jury had found that the mortgage had not been paid; on ejectment by the heir of the mortgagee, brought within five years after the Act, it was held that he was not barred by s. 2. Doe d. Jones v. Williams, 5 Ad. & Ell. 291.

(Tenant in Common, p. 429.)

The Court refused to allow the tenant in possession to enter into the consent rule, confessing only lease and entry, without ouster, where he only claimed to hold under a tenant in common. Doe d. Wills v. Roe, 4 Dowl. 628.

The occupation by a company of the site of a railway, was held to be an ouster of the tenant in common. Doe v. Horn, 5 M. & W. 564.

(Competency, p. 433.)

Ejectment by a devisee of an undivided interest under a will, the question being the competency of the testator, held, that a party entitled to another portion, not being immediately interested in the result of the verdict, was not an incompetent witness: à fortiori was not another party, who stated on the voire dire that he had transferred his interest to another. Doe v. Pearce, 5 M. & W. 506.

In ejectment brought by an assignee of a mortgage, made by the defendant, a party who has taken a later mortgage from the defendant is not a competent witness for the defence. Doe v. Bamford, 11 A. & E. 786.

Where, in ejectment, evidence was received in favour of the plaintiff which was inadmissible, but all objections and exceptions were reserved for the opinion of the Court above, by the consent of both parties; it was held, that the defendant was not entitled to a new trial without payment of costs, on the ground of the reception of this evidence, if the legal evidence admitted showed the title to be in the lessors of the plaintiff; as, upon such a reservation, the Court are called upon to decide whether the lessors of the plaintiff are entitled to recover or not. Doe v. Ross, 7 M. & W. 102.

In an action by overseers to recover parish lands, held that a rated inhabitant was a competent witness (per Alderson, B.) Doe v. Cockell, 6 C. & P. 526; supporting Oxenden v. Palmer, 2 B. & Ad. 236; contrà, Heudibourck v. Langston, and Rex v. Hayman, 1 M. & M. 401; and now see the late st. supra, vol. i. p. 159.

In ejectment for a parish house, held, that since the 54 Geo. 3, c. 170, s. 9, a parishioner having valuable property was a competent witness. Doe v. Murrell, 8 C. & P. 134.

ELECTION, p. 436.

(Frivolous Petition.)

Debt for the costs of a frivolous petition against the return under the 9 Geo. 4, c. 22, s. 63; the omission to give notice to the returning officers to attend at the bar of the House on the striking of the committee, is a matter directory only, and not essential to the legal constitution of the committee, the officers having no power of interfering in the choice of the committee; and the petition being silent in its prayer as to any claim of redress against the returning officers on the ground of misconduct, and only incidentally complaining of impartiality and misconduct, they are not to be deemed parties to the petition, and the report therefore is not void by reason of omitting to notice the charge against them: also the recognizance entered into being in the prescribed form, it is sufficient that one of several petitioners entered into it in that form. The Speaker's certificate is conclusive as to the amount of costs for which the verdict is to be entered up. Ranson v. Dundas, 3 Bing. N. C. 123; 3 Sc. 429; and 5 Dowl. 207. 489.

On application to the Court, under 9 Geo. 4, c. 22, to enforce the payment of the costs of opposing a petition against a return; it was held, as the Speaker's certificate, to which the statute assigns the effect of a warrant of attorney to confess judgment, must be founded on the report of a committee appointed in conformity with the Act, that where the petitioner did not appear at the time fixed for the purpose of appointing the committee, and a committee was nevertheless struck and sworn, instead of being discharged, as directed by s. 3, and proceeded to vote the petition frivolous and vexatious, the Court is warranted in refusing to issue their process, and is bound to institute the inquiry whether the certificate was founded on proceedings in compliance with the Act. Bruyeres v. Halcomb, 5 Nev. & M. 149; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 381.

And the Court having only a statutory power to enter up judgment, must strictly pursue that power, and can therefore only direct the judgment to be entered for the sum specified in the Speaker's certificate, and the award of costs of the rule for entering the judgment was struck out. Ranson v. Dundas, 3 Bing. N. C. 556; 1 Sc. 429; and 5 Dowl. 489.

The Court refused to allow a suggestion of facts to be entered on the record, the Speaker's certificate having the effect of a warrant to enter judgment; after its validity has been established, the Court cannot interfere by any inquiry as to preceding facts. 3 Bing. N. C. 180; and 3 Sc. 497.

(Expenses of Election.)

Where the defendant was proved to have acted as chairman of the committee of an election candidate, and a party offering his services to the committee, was afterwards at a meeting of the partizans informed that his duties were to be in regulating the supply of refreshments at the different public-houses, and he was furnished with a list and directions, and the agent arranged with the plaintiff's testatrix and others, but he could not prove that the defendant was present at such meeting, although he afterwards told the agent if he met with any difficulty to come to him; held, that to fix the defendant personally, the plaintiff was bound to prove that such agent was either employed by the defendant alone, or by the defendant and others, to give such orders, and that the defendant was not himself acting as agent for others, or that the agent was a principal jointly with the defendant and others, and that it was immaterial whether the plaintiff considered the agent as making the contract on behalf of the candidate, if he was not in fact so authorized. Thomas v. Edwards, 2 M. & W. 215; and 1 T. & G. 872.

(Election by Prosecutor.)

The application for a prosecutor to elect is an application to the discretion of the Judge; where several houses in a row had been burnt, and the setting each on fire was alleged in distinct counts, being one transaction, the Judge refused the application. R. v. Trueman, 8 C. & P. 727.

Although receivers are charged with distinct offences, it is too late after verdict to object that they should have been separately indicted; the party ought to have required the Judge to have put the prosecutor to his election whilst the trial was going on. R. v. Hayes, 2 Mo. & R. 155.

(Election of an Officer.)

See R. v. Brightwell, 10 Ad. & Ell. 171.

(Election under a Will, &c.)

Where the intention to dispose was clearly expressed, and no ambiguity in the expressions used; held that extrinsic evidence to show that the party bequeathed property as her own which did not belong to her, and intended to leave a considerable residue for charitable purposes, which by reason of the mistake turned out much less than she intended, was properly rejected, and that such circumstances would not raise a case of election. Clementson v. Gandy, 1 K. 309.

ERROR, p. 436.

Where parties were convicted of an offence which subjected them to capital punishment, and the judgment pronounced was of transportation, upon which a writ of error was brought, held that the Judge being functus officio, it could not be remitted back, nor could the Court of Error give the proper judgment. R. v. Bourne, 7 Ad. & Ell. 58.

ESCHEAT.

(3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 106, s. 2.)

Where an illegitimate became the purchaser of lands, which descended to his son, who died without issue and intestate; held, that the heirs of the party last seised ex parte maternâ were not entitled, but that, notwithstanding the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 106, s. 2, the lands escheated to the Crown. Doe v. Blackburn, 1 M. & Rob. 547.

ESTOPPEL, p. 437.

According to the practice of the Benchers of Lincoln's-Inn, on admission to chambers, of which the fee is vested in them as trustees, the former tenant by permission surrenders in favour of the party allowed to be admitted; this being only by order of the benchers, without any formal conveyance, the party admitted takes no estate from the party surrendering, and is not therefore a privy in estate, so as to be bound by estoppel as to the acts of the party so surrendering. Doe v. Errington, 6 Bing. N. C. 79. And see Co. Litt. 852, a.

In consequence of the embarrassment of the affairs of a joint stock company, the shareholders by deed empowered a committee to certify what sum would be necessary to satisfy the claims on the company, and the proportion each shareholder should pay, and which the defendant amongst others covenanted to pay; in an action on such deed, alleging that —— l. had been so certified, and that —— l. was the proportion of the defendant, and a demand and refusal by him; pleas, amongst others, one traversing that the committee had certified, as the fact was; and another, that such sum was not necessary to satisfy the claim, &c., and that the committee had fraudulently signed such certificate; it appeared that, on a similar certificate, the defendant had paid a portion of the sum awarded against him, and that the subsequent certificate had been made for the same amount to avoid confusion amongst the other contributors, and that the defendant had notice that he would be allowed to deduct his former payment out of the subsequent claim; held, 1st, that the defendant was not estopped from showing that by reason of the previous payment, the certificate was erroneous in stating the amount necessary; but, 2dly, that the fact of the second certificate being erroneous, did not under the circumstances necessarily amount to fraud in law. Wilson v. Butler, 4 Bing. N. C. 748; and 6 Sc. 541.

A party executing a deed is not estopped by recitals contained in other deeds, which go to make up the title. Doe d. Shelton v. Shelton, 4 Nev. & M. 867; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 265.

EXAMINATION, p. 438.

(Of Prisoner before Magistrate.)

A prisoner's statement before a magistrate is not an answer to the depositions, but to the charge; and he is not entitled to have the depositions read as a matter of course upon his examination being put in; but if the examination refers to any particular depositions, he is entitled to have them read in explanation. Dennis's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 261.

EXECUTOR, p. 439.

(Bonâ Notabilia, p. 442.)

A plaintiff sued under Irish letters of administration, to which the defendant being under terms to plead issuably, pleaded that the deceased was an inhabitant and commorant of the city of Dublin, and died possessed of bonâ notabilia within the diocese of London; the Court held that they ought to assume that the cause of action was bonum notabile within the letters of administration, where the contrary was not alleged, and that the plea was not an issuable plea, but allowed an amendment to the effect that the debt was bonum notabile in London, that fact being verified by affidavit. Hathwaite, Administrator, &c. v. Phaire, 8 Dowl. 541.

(Executor of Executor.)

An application by the executor of an executor to be permitted to renounce the execution of the former will, and take probate of the latter, was rejected. The executor of an executor becomes, on taking probate of the second will, the executor of the first testator. In the Goods of John Perry, 2 Curt. 655.

(Actions by and against, p. 443.)

In bringing actions against executors under 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 2, for injury by their testators, it is necessary to show that the action is brought within six months after the executors have taken out probate, and quære, if in equity a similar allegation be not necessary in the bill? Pringle v. Crooks, 3 Younge & C. 666.

Upon a covenant by lessee not to fell timber or cut wood, the executor of the lessor may maintain the action for the breach committed in the life-time of his testator. Raymond v. Fitch, 2 Cr. M. & R. 588.

An executor is not bound to show a special ground for his testator's effecting a limited insurance on his own life; but where a policy is effected on the life of another by a party having no interest in it, and who pays the premium, and the object is to obtain an assignment of the policy; it is void, as an evasion of 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, s. 1, 2. Wainwright v. Bland, 1 Mo. & R. 481.

In covenant against two executors for breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment as against all having lawful title from the testator, the allegation that they entered by lawful title is not divisible, but must be proved against both. An admission of lawful title by one, that both entered under a deed of gift is not sufficient, although both entered, for it is not an admission by him quâ executor. Fox v. Waters, 3 P. & D. 1; 12 A. & E. 43. Secus, as to an admission in respect of assets. Per Littledale, J., Ib. As to the effect of the acts of one executor in binding another, see Nation v. Tozer, 1 C. M. & R. 172. The Court gave no opinion as to the effect of the admission, had it been made by both.

An executor in trust, who has not proved, is not liable for a devastavit, and therefore is a competent witness to increase the estate. Hall v. Laver, 3 Younge & C. 191.

A contract for the supply of certain quantities of stone of particular dimensions, and any further quantity required monthly, not exceeding 200 tons, the agreement to be in force until a stated time, unless cancelled by mutual consent, was held to be binding on the representative. Wentworth v. Cock, 2 P. & D. 251; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 42.

A testator directed his widow to carry on his business until the youngest child should attain 21, and for that purpose gave her "the entire use, disposal and management of the capital, stock, and effects in the trade, and authorized his executors to augment or diminish the capital from time to time as they might deem proper;" the executors renounced, and the widow took out administration; held, that the specified property was only liable to the debts incurred by the widow in carrying on the trade. Cutbush v. Cutbush, 1 Beav. 184.

In debt for rent against an administrator, as assignee of the intestate, the defendant pleaded, in discharge of liability otherwise than as administrator, that the intestate underlet, for an unexpired term, to a tenant who had become insolvent and unable to pay rent; that the premises were of less value than the rent, viz. of the value of a certain sum, part of which defendant had paid to plaintiff, and part towards the expense of a party-wall under the Building Act (14 Geo. 3, c. 78.); that, before the rent became due, defendant offered to surrender all his interest in the premises to plaintiff, who refused to accept them, and that he had fully administered, &c. Replication, that the premises were of more value than the sum mentioned in the plea, viz. of the value of the rent; and that defendant did not offer to surrender, &c. Issue thereon. Held, that the real value of the premises, as against defendant, must be taken to be that which it would have been if he had not himself committed a breach of a covenant to repair in the original lease: held also, that the value, as between plaintiff and defendant, was not affected by the insolvency of the under tenant, whose lease also contained a covenant to repair, with a proviso of re-entry for breach and for nonpayment of rent. Hornidge v. Wilson, 11 A. & E. 645.

Where, during absence, a special administrator was appointed, it seems that although the acts of the executor were admissible against the administrator, mere declarations are not. Rush v. Peacock, 2 M. & Ry. 162.

In trover against an executor for a watch, alleging a conversion within six months before the death of the testatrix (27 March 1839), it appearing that the watch came into her possession in March 1838, and that upon a demand made in December 1838, she said "she should consult her solicitor;" it was held sufficient to warrant the jury in finding that it still remained in her possession, and a conversion within six months of her death. Richmond v. Nicholson, 8 Sc. 134.

In assumpsit against an executor, for goods sold to him as executor, and for work, &c., performed for him at his request, held to be necessarily intended for debts due from him in his own right, and to be misjoined with counts for money paid to his use as executor, and on an account stated and a promise by him as executor: and judgment was arrested. Corner v. Shaw, 3 Mees. & W. 350.

In Deeks v. Strutt, 5 T. R. 699, it was held, that an action lay not on a promise to pay a general legacy to be implied from sufficiency of assets. But it was held in Athins v. Hill, Cowp. 284, Hawkes v. Saunders, ib. 289, that an action lay upon an express promise in consideration of assets.

An executor having assets wherewith to pay a general legacy of 1,400 l. to A., bequeaths to A. an annuity, in satisfaction of the debt or sum of 1,200 l.; held, that the 1,200 l. is money had and received to the use of A. Gorton v. Dyson, 1 B. & B. 219.

A specific legacy vests by the executor's assent, and the observations in Deeks v. Strutt must be confined to the particular facts in question. Doe v. Guy, 3 East, 120.

In Jones v. Tanner, 7 B. & C. 542, supra, Vol. ii. p. 454, it was held that an action does not lie to recover a distributive share on an express promise; and that Lord Kenyon's observations were applicable to actions against executors for legacies generally.

An action is maintainable for the amount of a legacy allowed to remain in the hands of the executor. Gregory v. Hannan, 8 M. & P. 209.

The action is maintainable for the amount of a general legacy, stated in the executor's account to be retained for the legatee. Hart v. Minors, 2 C. & M. 700.

(Action against Executor de son tort, p. 446.)

The mere ordering the funeral and appropriating a reasonable sum for that purpose, does not make the party an executor de son tort; where the defendant had received a debt due to the deceased, and applied it to the purpose of the funeral, held that it was a question for the jury to say if the sum were more than was reasonable for that purpose; if he receives more, he in effect pays it out of the assets. Camden v. Fletcher, 4 M. & W. 378.

(Assets, p. 447.)

In Foster v. Blakelock, 5 B. & C. 328, Vol. ii. 449, the probate was taken to be evidence of assets to the amount covered by the stamp.

In Stearn v. Mills, 4 B. & Ad. 657, Littledale, J., does not say that the probate stamp is not evidence of assets, but says that the stamp in such case is the less conclusive, as the Stamp Act requires the whole of the value to be sworn to. Parke, J., says, he cannot assent to the decision, but says nothing as to the question of amount.

In Mann v. Lang, 3 Ad. & Ell. 699, all the Judges were of opinion, that the probate stamp was admissible evidence to prove assets. As to the sufficiency to prove assets, Denman, L. C. J., observed, it may be difficult to draw a line so as to fix a time before which the probate would not, and after which it would constitute sufficient evidence; yet after a certain time acquiescence would be the strongest evidence that the amount had come to the hands of the party acquiescing. It is clear, however, that for some purposes the probate is admissible evidence; it shows one side of the account, even where it might not in itself be sufficient evidence.

Littledale, J., expressed his opinion, that the stamp on the probate is admissible, but not primâ facie evidence of the amount of assets. He observed that in Curtis v. Hunt, many years had expired since the probate.

Patteson, J., was of opinion, that the stamp was not any evidence by itself, even after a long time had elapsed, and he disapproved of Curtis v. Hunt, and Foster v. Blakelock.

Williams, J., was of opinion, that the evidence was admissible, and that the amount of weight to which such evidence was entitled, was for the Judge and jury.

A party employed successively the plaintiff and others as solicitors in a suit in Chancery, and eventually and after her death, upon revivor, the then attorney obtained a decree, and an order for the Master to settle the costs of all parties, which when settled were to be paid as directed, viz. the costs of the plaintiffs in the suit to their then solicitor, and of the defendants to their several solicitors; the plaintiff, one of the original solicitors, having received a part, and a judgment of assets quando, was proceeding to enforce the judgment, when the executor induced him to stay, undertaking to pay the residue of his bill out of the first assets; under these circumstances, upon a further sum being awarded out of Chancery in the suit in respect of the same costs, it was held, (per Parke and Alderson, B.B., contra, Lord Abinger, L. C. B.) that such sum was assets within the meaning of the undertaking. Smedley v. Philpot, 3 M. & W. 573.

The testator deposited with the party whom he made his executor a policy, as security for a debt, and for a further advance, which the office refused to pay, unless a receipt was given by the holder, "as executor," and which he did; held, that upon the plea plene adm., except, &c. that the executors were only chargeable for the surplus as assets after payment of the debt. Glaholm v. Rowntree, 6 Ad. & Ell. 710.

Although on many points connected with assets, the admission of one executor will bind the other, yet the admission of one as to the legal effect of a deed, was held not to do so. Fox v. Waters, 4 Perr. & D. 1.

Where an executor made payments from time to time on account of a legacy and interest, but did not pass the account at the Legacy-office until nine years after the death, when there appeared a considerable surplus; held to amount to such an admission of assets as to enable the legatee to a decree for immediate payment, without previously taking an account of the testator's estate. Whittle v. Henning, 2 Beav. 396.

Proof of furniture bought within twelve months, and seen in the intestate's house shortly before his death, is primâ facie evidence of assets. Britton v. Jones, 3 Bing. N. C. 676; and 4 Sc. 393.

(Payments by, p. 449.)

Where an executor makes payments to simple contract creditors, a bond being in existence, but not then payable, they will be allowed; but not to legatees, although he has no notice of the bond. Norman v. Baldry, 6 Sim. 621.

(3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 31.)

The effect of the stat. 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 31, is to throw the onus on the executor, to relieve himself from costs where he fails in the suit; and the Act being made in favour of defendants, the plaintiff must bring a ground for the interference of the Court, by showing some misconduct on the part of the defendant. Godson v. Freeman, 2 Cr. M. & R. 585; 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 35; and 4 Dowl. 543.

The Court will only interfere to protect him from costs where he has been led into the suit by any misconduct of the defendant; and it is not enough that he merely and bonâ fide believes the debt to be due. Ib.

The authority of a single Judge is co-ordinate with that of the whole Court, as to exempting an executor (plaintiff) from costs; and the Court refused, therefore, to interfere with a Judge's order. Maddocks v. Phillips, 5 Nev. & M. 370.

The statute applies to actions brought before the Act, although not tried until after. Grant v. Kemp, 2 Cr. M. & R. 636.

Where in an action on a bond above twenty years' standing, the jury found for the defendant on a plea of discharge under the Insolvent Act, of which it appeared the plaintiff's intestate had notice; held that there being circumstances which ought to have put the plaintiff on further inquiry, it was not a case to exempt him from the payment of costs. Engler v. Twisden, 2 Bing. N. C. 263; 2 Sc. 427; and 4 Dowl. 330.

(Competency.)

A. B. an executor, and one of the residuary legatees under a will on the 20th of November, renounces probate of the will (but the proxy of renunciation is not recorded until the 2d of December) and on the 22d of November, by deed of gift, conveys his interest in the personal estate of the deceased to C. D. (who was also an executor), in order to render himself a competent witness to support the will: held, first, that the proxy of renunciation took effect from its date; secondly, supposing the renunciation to be invalid, that as the interest under the will was conveyed by the deed of gift, the party was a competent witness under the stat. 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 17. Munday and another v. Slaughter, 2 Curt. 72.

A party produced as a witness for executors propounding a will, admitting that he retained and was personally liable to the proctor for his bill of costs, is incompetent. Handley v Edwards, 1 Curt. 722.

Where a legatee sued the executor for the recovery of a specific legacy, viz. a bond debt; held, that the obligor having a direct interest in preventing its being enforced, was not a competent witness to prove that the circumstances under which the bond was executed were such as to show that it was irrecoverable. Davies v. Morgan, 1 Beav. 405.

EXTINGUISHMENT, p. 455.

Where an easement has become extinct by unity of ownership, and the owner wishes to grant the easement with the premises to which it was formerly appurtenant, he must use language to show that he intended to create the easement de novo. See Barlow v. Rhodes, 1 Cr. & M. 439; infra, tit. WAY; Clements v. Lambert, 1 Taunt. 205; supra. tit. COMMON.

Where vacant land had been let on a building lease, which expired in 1824, and the plaintiff had become possessed of a house erected thereon, from an under lessee, and had enjoyed therewith a right of using a passage adjoining for shooting coals into his cellar, and laying waterpipes thereto, and the original lessor had, pending the lease, granted a reversionary lease of the plaintiff's house to him, with all and singular the appurtenances, to hold from the day, &c. at which the original lease would end and determine; held, that the right of passage, and of using it for such purposes, passed under the reversionary lease as a necessary incident to the subject-matter demised, although not specially named in it, and that upon the expiration of the original lease, the lessor never having for a moment a right of possession, such easement was not extinguished by any unity of possession. Hinchcliffe v. Earl of Kinnoul, 5 Bing. N. C. 2; and 6 Sc. 650.

A party has an estate in fee in land, over which an easement exists, and an estate for years in land in respect of which the easement exists; the easement is suspended only, not extinguished. Thomas v. Thomas, 2 C. M. & R. 34; 5 Tyr. 804.

FACTOR.

To prove a factor a party intrusted with a dock-warrant, within the meaning of the 2d section of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 94, it must be shown that the owner of the goods intended that the factor should be possessed of it at the time of the pledge, or should exercise the power which the possession of the bill gives him of obtaining the dock-warrants whenever he in his discretion might think fit. Phillips v. Huth, 6 M. & W. 572.

FALSE PRETENCES, p. 455.

Where the false pretences alleged were, that the prisoner stated that he was a captain in the East India Company's service, and that a note was a good and valuable security for the sum of 21 l.; held, that it not appearing that the note was his own, or that he knew it to be worthless, the latter false pretence was insufficient, and the two being to be taken together as the means of defrauding, the indictment was bad: and judgment was reversed. Wickham v. R., 2 P. & D. 333; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 34.

An attorney, who appeared for a party summarily convicted and fined 2 l., represented to the wife that he had before prevailed in compromising a similar case for 1 l., and that if she would give him a sovereign he would go and do the same for her, it appearing that he had never made any such application, but that both the fines were paid in full, held to be an obtaining money by false pretences. R. v. Asterley, 7 C. & P. 191.

A count alleging the pretence to have been made to A. for obtaining an order on B., a third party, to deliver goods, does not charge any offence within the statute. R. v. Tully, 9 C. & P. 227.

The obtaining goods on a cheque drawn by the prisoner on bankers where he had no account, representing that he had an account there, and that it would be paid, is within 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 53, and the indictment alleging the pretence that it was a good and genuine order for the payment, and of the value of the sum stated, is sufficient. R. v. Parker, 2 Moody, 1.

So where the prisoner, having accepted a bill drawn by the prosecutor, had stated that he could raise all the amount for taking it up except 300*l.*, which the prosecutor consented to advance, but the prisoner applied it to his own use, and suffered the bill to be dishonoured; the Act embraces every mode of obtaining money by false pretences, by loan as well as by transfer; and if the jury in such case be satisfied that he was stating a deliberate falsehood to obtain the money, and that he knew at the time he had not the funds to take it up, and meant all the time to apply the 300 l. to his own use, the offence was complete. R. v. Crossley, 2 Mo. & R. 17.

So where the prisoner went into a shop, wearing the academic dress, and stated that he belonged to M. College, and obtained goods; it was held to be a false pretence, and would have been so although no words had been used. R. v. Barnard, 7 C. & P. 784.

Where the party obtained money by a pretence which he knew at the time to be false, it is immaterial that the party from whom he obtained it laid a plan to entrap him into the offence. R. v. Ady, 7 C. & P. 140.

Where the prisoner had represented himself to be a gentleman's servant living at B., and that he had bought twenty other horses at the same fair, which he had at an inn, and that if the prosecutor would take down his filly there he would pay him the price agreed; but the prosecutor stated that he parted with his filly, not on account of his believing any of the pretences charged, but because he expected the prisoner would call at the inn and pay him; it was held, that if the jury believed that he parted with his property only on such expectation, the prisoner was entitled to be acquitted. R. v. Dale, 7 C. & P. 352.

Where goods received were obtained by false pretences, it was held that the indictment, alleging only that the prisoner received the goods knowing them to have been "unlawfully obtained, taken, and carried away," was insufficient; it ought to appear that the knowledge was of their having been obtained under false pretences, to bring the case within 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 55. R. v. Wilson, 2 Moody, 52.

(False Qualification.)

Upon an indictment under the 2 Will. 4, c. 45 (Reform Act), for giving a false answer at the poll as to having the same qualification as registered; held, the voter having given up the key of the premises to the landlord's agent before the election, who had delivered it to another occupant, but whose rent commenced after the election, that, in the absence of evidence showing the determination of the tenancy, the indictment could not be supported. R. v. Harris, 7 C. & P. 253.

FEOFFMENT, p. 457.

A mother and daughter being seised of land, by deed of settlement on the marriage of the latter, in consideration of the marriage, granted, bargained, sold, aliened, enfeoffed, and confirmed, and undertook and agreed to convey and assure unto trustees, to the use of the marriage, certain freeholds; livery of seisin was indorsed on the deed, but no names were subscribed: held, that the deed operated as a covenant to stand seised, and that a good use passed to the husband, but that possession for less than twenty-five years was not sufficient to raise the presumption of livery having been made. Doe v. Davies, 2 M. & W. 503.

FINE, p. 457.

An examined copy of the record of a fine, levied with proclamations, is as good evidence of the fine as the chirograph itself certified by the officer. A fine was proved to have been levied of the estate in question, in 1790, and the lessors of the plaintiff gave in evidence a deed of conveyance of part of the property in 1802, by the conusor of the fine to a purchaser, which stated that the fine was levied to the use of himself in fee; this deed was received without objection on the part of the defendant; held, that it was good evidence as a declaration of the uses of the fine, although it was not proved that the defendant derived title under the conusor. Doe v. Ross, 7 M. & W. 102.

M., after a devise of his property real and personal to P., purchased lands in fee, and procured an assignment of an outstanding term of years to P. as his trustee. On the death of M. without republishing his will, a moiety of the fee descended to P.'s wife as coparcener with others; but P., thinking himself entitled under the will, entered into, and took the profits of the whole to his own use, and afterwards joined his wife in a feoffment, and fine sur cognizance de droit come ceo, with proclamations: held, that the term was not merged by the seisin of P. in right of his wife; that the feoffment and fine were not void, but operated as a disseisin and forfeiture of the term, of which advantage might be taken by entry within five years, either after forfeiture or after the expiration of the term; that, in the meantime, the term might be treated as still subsisting for the purpose of entitling a plaintiff in ejectment to recover on a demise by P.'s personal representative. A joint demise in ejectment cannot be supported as the several demise of one or more of the lessors whose title is proved at the trial; therefore, where the demise is by one parcener jointly with another parcener and her husband, whose title, jure uxoris, is barred by fine and nonclaim, there cannot be a verdict for the plaintiff. Per Patteson, J.: An entry to avoid a fine with proclamations, though not authorised by the party in whose behalf it was made, is sufficiently ratified by an action of ejectment founded on it. Doe v. Pett, 11 A. & E. 842.

By the stat. 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 74, s. 7, it is enacted, that if it shall be apparent, from the deed declaring the uses of any fine, that there is in the indentures, record, or any of the proceedings of such fine, any error in the name of the conusor or conusee of such fine, or any misdescription or omission of lands intended to have been passed by such fine, then and in every such case, the fine, without any amendment of the indentures, record, or proceedings in which such error, misdescription, or omission shall have occurred, shall be as good and valid as the same would have been, and shall be held to have passed all the lands intended to have been passed thereby, in the same manner as it would have done if there had been no such error, misdescription, or omission. And see s. 8, as to recoveries, where it shall be apparent from the deed making the tenant to the writ of entry, &c.

(Fines, Copyhold.)

Where a corporation, sole or aggregate, become possessed of lands which, in the hands of a tenant, are liable to seignorial rights, as fines and forfeitures on conviction of crimes, &c.; held, that they were liable to indemnify the lord in respect of such loss. Thornton v. Robin, 1 Moore, 438. Affirming the judgment of the Court of Jersey.

Where upon a devise of copyhold lands to trustees, with direction that there should always be three, and one having died, and another declined acting, the third surrendered and took a new grant to himself and two others; held that it was to be deemed an admission of all three to a new estate, and the fine to be calculated as on an admission of the three de novo, and that a fine, according to the custom, of two years' improved value for the first life, half of that for the second, and half of the last sum for the third, was a proper mode of calculating the fine. Sheppard v. Woodford, 5 M. & W. 608.

So, where the jury found that an arbitrary fine was payable on a grant by the custom of the manor, but that the fine claimed on the addition of lives was unreasonable; held, that an arbitrary meant a reasonable fine, and that the principle of calculating the fine on addition of several lives by taking two years' improved value on the first, and halving it for the second, and halving the half for the third, and so on in geometrical progression, was a reasonable fine. Wilson v. Hoare, 2 P. & D. 659.

(Commutation.)

See the provisions as to the commutation of fines, &c. in copyhold and customary tenures, and for the enfranchisement of such tenures, 4 Vict. c. 35.

FORCIBLE ENTRY, p. 459.

Where a tenant remains in apartments after the expiration of his term, the landlord is not justified in forcibly asserting his right to the possession by expelling him. Newton v. Harland, 1 Scott, N. S. 474.

FOREIGN CONSUL.

Under the 6 Geo. 4, c. 87, s. 20, a British consul at a foreign port being empowered to do all notarial acts which any notary public may do, that of certifying the handwriting and authority of the party taking the affidavit of acknowledgment of a married woman was held to be included. Barber, in re, 2 Bing. N. C. 268; 2 Sc. 436; and 4 Dowl. 640.

FOREIGN LAW, p. 459.

In a suit in a foreign court for the distribution of the personal estate of a party domiciled out of the country, it is bound to adopt, in the interpretation of testamentary instruments, the rules of construction which would prevail in the country where the party was domiciled, but it is not bound to adopt foreign rules of evidence, every court being governed by its own rules of procedure. Yates v. Thompson, 3 Cl. & Fi. 545.

A party domiciled in England, but possessed of a real estate in Scotland, died intestate, being indebted on bonds which were payable by the heir out of the proceeds of the real estate in Scotland; held, that the right which the heir in Scotland paying moveable debts has there against the personal estate, may be made available in England, where the personal estate is primarily liable for the payment of all debts. Winchelsea, Earl of, v. Garatty, 2 Keene, 293.

Assumpsit upon a decree in Scotland, plea, alleging that the defendant was absent and had no notice of proceedings there, so that he might by himself or his proctor appear and answer, and that the decree was made in his absence, and thereby was contrary to natural justice and wholly void; held that the plea was a mere conclusion of law and not traversable, and was no answer to the action, it not being denied that he was domiciled and resident there at the time the debt accrued, or that he had heritable property there; the allegation of want of notice, so that, &c., also held too indistinct a denial of his having had none. Cowan v. Braidwood, 2 Sc. N. S. 138; and 9 Dowl. 20.

A foreign judgment is impeachable here for fraud; where, therefore, to a bill for an account by a customer against the defendants (foreign bankers) and for an injunction to restrain them from suing on a foreign judgment, it appeared that, notwithstanding the judgment, the balance was still greatly in favour of the plaintiff, the demurrer was overruled. Bowles v. Orr, 1 Younge & C. 464.

A foreign judgment may be given in evidence and made the subject of proceedings in another country, but the subject-matter of such judgment is liable to be inquired into; where, therefore, a decree in the Court of Chancery in England was made the ground of suit in the Irish Court of Chancery, and had been dismissed on a supposed want of jurisdiction, the decree of the latter Court was reversed, and sent back, with a declaration that the propriety of the English decree might be examined, and, if sustainable in part, it might to that extent be executed by the aid of the Irish court, although other parts might be deemed erroneous. Houlditch v. Marquis of Donegal, 8 Bli. 301; and 2 Cl. & Fi. 470.

And see the cases there collected. Ibid. 350.

Where a contract made in France was for the payment of money in England, held that the breach being in the latter, and where the suit was, payment of interest was to be governed by the law of England. Cooper v. Earl of Waldegrave, 2 Beav. 282.

Assumpsit for freight on a charter-party executed at Java. By the law of Holland such contracts are made by a notary, and entered in his book, and a copy is given to each party, which may be done at any time, signed, sealed, and attested by him; in the courts of Holland, these copies are received in evidence without further proof, but in Java the notary's book must be produced, and the signature of the notary be proved; held, that such copy could not be considered as the original binding document, nor admitted as evidence of it until proved to be an examined copy according to the law of evidence in this country. Brown v. Thornton, 1 N. & P. 339.

Although a general stoppage of payments by a foreign trader necessarily amounts to a refusal at the time of such stoppage, yet where the suspension arose from the stoppage of the house of agency in this country, the Judicial Committee held that it established only the ouverture de la faillite from the time of actual stoppage abroad; a mere refusal, not followed by a cessation of payment, was held not to establish such ouverture de la faillite within the Art. 441 of the Code de Commerce of France. D'Epinay v. Saunders, 1 Moore, 103.

FOREIGN STATES.

Where this country has introduced its own municipal law into a conquered or ceded country, not in all its branches, but only sub modo; held, that it does not draw with it the law incapacitating aliens from holding and transmitting real estate; and semb., the Mortmain Act does not extend to the East India British possessions. Lyons, Mayor, &c. v. East India Co., 1 Moore, 288.

FORGERY, p. 460.

An indictment for forging and uttering a deed, stating it as purporting to be made on, &c., (stating the date) between, &c., (stating the parties) and purporting to be an underlease by the one to the other of certain premises therein mentioned, subject to the rent of, &c., (stating it) and purporting to contain a covenant for the payment of the yearly rent, is sufficient under the 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 123, s. 2. R. v. Davies, 9 C. & P. 427.

A charge of uttering a forged bill of exchange is not supported by proof of the acceptance only being forged, which is a distinct offence. R. v. Horwell, 1 Ry. & M. 405.

A forged paper, in the following form: "Please let the lad have a hat, and I will answer for the money.—E. B.," is a forged request for the delivery of goods, and it is not the less so because it may also be a forged undertaking for the payment of money. R. v. White, 9 C. & P. 282.

(Joint.)

Three prisoners (foreigners) were indicted for feloniously engraving and making two parts of a promissory note of the Emperor of Russia. The indictment was framed upon the stat. 11 Geo. 4 & 1 W. 4, c. 66, s. 19. The plates were engraved by an Englishman, who was an innocent agent in the transaction. It appeared that two of the prisoners only were present at the time when the order was given for the engraving of the plates, but they said they were employed to get it done by a third person, and there was some evidence to connect the third prisoner with the other two in subsequent parts of the transaction. The questions left to the jury were, 1st, whether the two who gave the order for the engraving knew the nature of the instrument; and, 2dly, whether all three concurred in the order given. The Judge told the jury that in order to find all three guilty, they must be satisfied that they jointly employed the engraver, but that it was not necessary that they should all have been present when the order was given, as it would be sufficient if one first communicated with the other two, and all three concurred in the employment of the engraver. His Lordship also said, that he was inclined to think that if the prisoners, by means of the engraver, caused the plates to be engraved, they would be within the provisions of the statute, whether they knew the nature of the instrument engraved or not; but intimated that, if it became necessary, that matter might be made the subject of further consideration. The jury found the two guilty who gave the order, and added that they considered they knew the nature of the instrument. The third prisoner was acquitted. R. v. Mazeau, 9 C. & P. 676.

(Uttering, p. 468.)

The prisoner deposited a forged acceptance with bankers, saying that he hoped it would be accepted as a security for what he owed, to which the manager of the bank replied that it would depend on the result of inquiries as to the acceptor; this was held to be a sufficient uttering. R. v. Cooke, 8 C. & P. 582.

(Intent, p. 468.)

If a person know the acceptance of a bill of exchange to be forged, and utter it as true, and believe that his bankers, to whom he utters it, will advance money on it, which they would not otherwise do, that is evidence of an intent to defraud, upon which a jury ought to act; and a person is not the less guilty of forgery because he may intend ultimately to take up the forged bill, and may suppose that the party whose name is forged will be no loser: and the fact that the bill has been since paid by the prisoner will make no difference, if the offence has once been complete at the time of the uttering, R. v. Geach, 9 C. & P. 499.

Where a party utters what he knows to be a forged instrument, it is a consequence that he intends to defraud the party to whom he utters it; semble, also, that if a party write an acceptance on a blank stamp, which is afterwards filled up by another who is in league with him, this does not amount to a forgery by such party of the acceptance of a bill. R. v. Cooke, 8 C. & P. 582.

Semble, where the prisoner is himself a partner in a bank, and knowingly utters a forged acceptance to that bank, counts laying an intent to defraud "A." (another of the partners) "and others" cannot be supported. R. v. Cooke, 8 C. & P. 586.

Where the prisoner gave his employer a bill, subscribed with a receipt for the price of goods, and the jury found that it was uttered for the purpose of deceiving his employer into a belief that money which he had given the prisoner had been applied to the purpose for which it had been obtained, and that it was a mere pretence and fraud; it was held, that he was properly convicted of uttering the forged receipt, with intent to defraud. R. v. Martin, 1 Ry. & M. 483; and 7 C. & P. 549.

If the jury find that the prisoner uttered a bill as true, meaning it to be taken as such, and that at the time of such uttering he knew it to be forged, they ought to find, as a necessary consequence, an intent to defraud. R. v. Hill, 8 C. & P. 274.

Whether the prisoner by the forgery intended to defraud bankers with whom he had deposited guarantees to a large amount, is a question for the jury. R. v. James, 7 C. & P. 557.

Where from previous dealings a party has used the name of another on bills, under a bonâ fide belief that he had authority to do so, and without intention to defraud, the jury ought to acquit him. R. v. Parish, 8 C. & P. 94; and see R. v. Forbes, 7 C. & P. 224.

Where the witness for the prosecution had sworn that he received a forged bill from the prisoner, and on cross-examination stated that he and the prisoner took a blank stamp to the prosecutor, who returned it to the prisoner with his name upon it, the Judge would not allow the prosecutor to cross-examine the witness, nor to show the latter statement to be untrue, and that the witness had made different statements to other persons. R. v. Farr, 8 C. & P. 768.

(Forged Request.)

On an indictment for uttering a forged request for the delivery of goods, it appeared that the forged instrument was a letter requesting the prosecutor to let the prisoner have such things as he wanted, and went on to allege a previous statement of the prisoner that the person whose letter it purported to be had money in her hands to which the prisoner would be entitled; it was held, that such letter was a forged request within the 11 Geo. 4, and 1 Will. 4, c. 66, s. 10. R. v. Thomas, 2 Moody, 16.

The punishment of death is now abolished in all cases of forgery, by 1 Vict. c. 84.

FRAUD, p. 471.

A son, on his father's behalf, entered into an executory contract, and before its completion stated that his father was going to receive money, and referred to an advertisement in a provincial paper, announcing facts in reference to his father's supposed title to receive it; held, that in the absence of any other advertisement, an advertisement, containing a statement of all those facts, was admissible in evidence to show a fraudulent compact between the father and the son, although after the contract entered into, inducing the plaintiff to go on with the contract. Lucas v. Godwin, 3 Bing. N. C. 737.

A Frenchman who has, in the Admiralty Court, set up a Portuguese as the owner of goods, and by that means obtained a decree that they are neutral, cannot be allowed to recover them from that Portuguese as his own. De Metton v. De Mellon, 2 Camp. C. 420.

In consequence of the embarrassment of the affairs of a joint-stock company, the shareholders by deed empowered a committee to certify what sum would be necessary to satisfy the claims on the company, and the proportion each shareholder should pay, and which the defendant amongst others covenanted to pay; in an action thereon, alleging that —l. had been so certified, and that —l. was the proportion of the defendant, and a demand on and refusal by him; pleas, amongst others, one traversing that the committee had certified, as the fact was; and another that such sum was not necessary to satisfy the claim, &c., and that the committee had fraudulently signed such certificate; and it appeared that, on a similar certificate, the defendant had paid a portion of the sum awarded against him, and that the subsequent certificate had been made for the same amount to avoid confusion amongst the other contributors, and that the defendant had notice that he would be allowed to deduct his former payment out of the subsequent claim: held, that the second certificate being erroneous in fact, did not, under the circumstances, necessarily amount to fraud in law. Wilson v. Butler, 4 Bing. N. C. 748; and 6 Sc. 541.

Where, in case by the owner of goods against a shipowner, for loss by the unskilful loading of them, and also for contribution, it appeared that it had been agreed merely to try the question as to a particular custom of loading such goods, and the defendant having, by pleading a set-off, endeavoured to snap a verdict, the Court set aside the plea, on payment into court of the amount claimed by it. Gould v. Oliver, 4 Bing. N. C. 676; and 6 Sc. 884.

Where it is once shown that a party executing a deed is aware of its contents, evidence that he was induced to execute it by previous fraudulent misrepresentations is inadmissible under a plea that it was obtained by fraud and covin. Mason v. Ditchbourne, 1 Mo. & R. 460.

(Composition with Creditors.)

Where a creditor, holding a policy as a security for his debt, refused to sign the composition deed, unless the policy were assigned to him, which was done, it was held to be a fraud on the other creditors, and that, the party assigning the policy having become bankrupt, his assignees were entitled to recover the amount received on the policy, although the composition had never been paid. Alsager v. Spalding, 4 Bing. N. C. 407.

A party before executing a composition deed may stipulate for retaining the value of a security, but he cannot by executing it secure to himself any separate advantage not stipulated for in the deed: where a party had so stipulated before signing the deed, and afterwards received dividends, but took no steps to make the further advantage secured to him known to the creditors, some of whom held back until he had signed; it was held that he was liable to bring in the amount of the security. Cullingworth v. Lloyd, 2 Beav. 385.

Where on a composition deed the plaintiff, before executing it, obtained a bill to be indorsed to him for a further sum than that secured by the bill to be given under the deed, held that the whole agreement was void, as a fraud on the other creditors, and that he could not recover even for the amount of the composition, although nothing had been received on the bill so indorsed. Howden v. Haigh, 3 P. & D. 661.

See further, Pendlebury v. Walker, 4 Y. & C. 424.

Where an hotel-keeper, at the time of his licence expiring, being in difficulties, assigned all his stock in trust to continue the trade, and out of the profits to pay a dividend to such creditors as would execute the deed of assignment, and a licence was afterwards taken out and assigned to the trustee; it was held, first, that the assignment of the trade, &c. at the time when there was no licence, did not render it illegal, it not being certain nor intended that anything illegal should be done; but secondly, that as by sharing the profits, the creditors executing the deed of assignment, might become partners, (a liability they were not bound to submit to,) the assignment was not valid. Owen v. Bode, 6 Nev. & M. 448; and 5 Ad. & Ell. 28.

(Laches.)

Case against the Bank of England for not transferring stock of a testatrix to the plaintiff, the executor; pleas, first, not guilty; secondly, that the deceased was not possessed of the stock: it was proved at the trial that the testatrix, a very aged person, had, with her nephew, a clerk in the Bank, up to a late period, always received the dividends, but she had also been personated at the Transfer-office by a female taken by the nephew, and which female forged the signature of the testatrix to the transfer of several portions of the stock, and the jury having found that the testatrix had the means of knowing that such transfer had been made, although she did not appear to have actually known thereof, and was guilty of gross negligence in leading the defendants to believe that she sanctioned those transfers, and that there was no negligence in the Bank in transferring without ascertaining the identity of the testatrix, it was held, that the facts constituted an answer to the action. Coles v. Bank of England, 2 P. & D. 521.

(Acquiescence.)

Where it was alleged that the agent of the former owner of estates devised to the plaintiff, had, under an assertion that he had a secret by which the plaintiff's title might be impeached, within a few days after the decease of such former owner, obtained a conveyance of part of those estates in discharge of a settled balance, alleged to be due to him, and the plaintiff had, under legal advice, acquiesced and confirmed the transaction, but after a lapse of above fifteen years, sought to open the accounts on the ground of fraud, the House of Lords affirmed the judgment below, dismissing the bill. De Montmorency v. Devereux. 1 West. 64.

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.

(Surrender by operation of Law, p. 474.)

Where a party being yearly tenant, in the course of a current half year entered into an agreement with his lessor, the one to let, and the other to take, a fourteen years' lease, determinable at the option of either at the end of seven years, at a rent payable half yearly, it was held to amount to a lease, although the parties might not contemplate the legal consequences of the surrender of the previous term and the merger of the accruing rent. Doe v. Benjamin, 1 P. & D. 440.

Where two parties, tenants of different premises, verbally agreed to exchange holdings, and to pay the respective rents, and each took possession of the other's land on the same day, and the transaction was communicated the day after to the common agent of both landlords, who expressed his concurrence; held to be evidence for a jury of a new demise, and to be sufficient to constitute a surrender by operation of law. Bees v. Williams, 2 Cr. M. & R. 581; and 1 T. & G. 23.

An insufficient notice to leave the premises given by the tenant, and accepted by the landlord, does not amount to a surrender by operation of law; there cannot be a surrender to operate in futuro. Doe v. Milward, 3 Mees. & W. 328.

(Original Consideration, p. 478.)

The defendant was appointed surveyor of works to be done by H., and the plaintiff agreed to supply materials for H., upon the defendant's undertaking to pay the plaintiff for them out of monies to be received by him on account of H., the latter giving an order for that purpose; held, that it was an original and not a collateral promise on the part of the defendant; and that, having received monies, and the order of H., he was liable on such special promise, although not in writing. Andrews v. Smith, 2 Cr. M. & R. 627; and 1 T. & G. 173.

So where the defendant had taken the stock of a party, and undertaken to satisfy the creditors, the plaintiff agreeing to withdraw his execution which he had issued. Bird v. Gammon, 3 Bing. N. C. 883.

Where two debtors were taken on a joint execution, and one was discharged by the plaintiff upon terms, it was held to discharge the co-debtor, and a promise by a third party to pay the debt in order to procure the release of the latter, was held to be without sufficient consideration. Herring v. Dobell, 8 Dowl. 604.

(Within One Year, &c., p. 477.)

A party agreed with the plaintiff to work for him at a particular trade for twelve months, and so on from twelve months to twelve months, and to give twelve months' notice if he should quit; but he afterwards quitted and went to work for the defendant: in an action against the latter for harbouring and detaining his servant, it was held that the agreement being signed only and binding on one side, without any reciprocal benefit on the other, was void, as nudum pactum, and that it was competent to the defendant to raise the objection. Sykes v. Dixon, 1 P. & D. 403.

(Interest in Land, p. 479.)

Where an Act contained a clause expressly declaring that the shares of a railway company should be personal property to all intents and purposes, it was held, that a sale of such shares was not within the Statute of Frauds, as being of an interest in land, and therefore might be by verbal contract; and it appears that this would have been so, even if the Act had contained no such clause. Bradley v. Holdsworth, 3 M. & W. 422.

(Section 17, Goods, Wares, &c., p. 487.)

Shares in a joint-stock banking company are not goods, wares, or merchandizes, within this clause. In assumpsit for refusing to complete a transfer of such shares sold by defendant to plaintiff, the defendant pleaded that the contract was for the sale of an interest in land belonging to the company, and that there was no memorandum in writing, &c., according to the form of the statute. Held, upon a traverse of the plea, that it was not enough for defendant to show by parol evidence that the company was in the actual possession of real estate, without further proof of the title of the company, and the interest of the shareholders therein. Quære, whether, supposing the company to be proprietors of land, such shares are an interest in land within sect. 4 of the Statute of Frauds? Humble v. Mitchell, 11 A. & E. 205.

(Acceptance, p. 489.)

In assumpsit for goods sold and delivered, where the price is above 10 l., and nothing paid as earnest to bind the bargain, nor any memorandum in writing signed by the agent or his party: two things must be proved to entitle the plaintiff to recover; first, that the order for the goods was in fact given by the defendant; and secondly, that there was an acceptance by him with intent to take to them as owner. Smith v. Roll, 9 C. & P. 696.

In debt for goods (a fire-engine), upon the question whether the defendant had accepted it within the meaning of the Statute of Frauds, it appeared that he had once brought a person to the plaintiff's yard to look at the engine, and being asked what he meant to do with it, he mentioned two or three parties who were likely to want it, and at another time he said he had a concern in the engine; it was held, under these circumstances, that if the jury were satisfied that the defendant treated and dealt with it as his own, the plaintiff was entitled to recover. Baines v. Jevons, 7 C. & P. 288.

(Alteration, Waiver, &c., p. 491.)

Where an agreement for a lease contained a stipulation for a mode of valuation, it was held, that it was to be taken to be and continue entire, and that such stipulation could not be waived by parol. Harrey v. Grabham, 5 Ad. & Ell. 73.

In assumpsit for not completing an agreement to assign a lease of premises, it was held that the day stated in the contract for completing the purchase of an interest in land, could not be varied by parol, as being a contravention of the Statute of Frauds; but that the failure to procure a licence to assign, or to register previous assignments before the day stipulated for such completion of the contract, being imperfections capable of being removed, were not breaches of the agreement. Stowell v. Robinson, 3 Bing. N. C. 928.

After a written contract for the purchase of several lots of land to which a good title was to be made, it was found that a good title could not be made as to one lot, but the defendant agreed by parol to waive the condition as to that; held, in an action to enforce the performance of the contract, that the Statute of Frauds excluding all oral evidence as to contracts for the sale of lands, the contract sought to be enforced could be proved by writing only. Goss v. Lord Nugent, 5 B. & Ad. 58; and 2 Nev. & M. 28.

FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE, p. 494.

If a person expecting a fieri facias to be sued out against him, make an assignment by deed of his goods to trustees for the benefit of his creditors, and the goods be afterwards taken under the fieri facias, and an action of trover for them be brought against the sheriff by the assignees, it is a question for the jury, under all the circumstances, whether the deed was fraudulent or not, that is, whether it was bonâ fide meant to convey the goods to the trustees for the benefit of the creditors generally, or whether it was a pretext only, and the goods were, notwithstanding the deed, really to belong to the assignor: and this is a question of fact, and not a question of law. Riches v. Evans, 9 C. & P. 640.

The fact that a deed of this kind was executed with intent to avoid a particular execution, does not in point of law make it void, neither will the fact of the assignor remaining in possession, according to the terms of the deed, set it up if the jury think that the deed was a fraud. Ibid.

Goods in the possession of M. W. having been distrained, the amount was paid by the plaintiff as for rent due from S. W., who afterwards executed an assignment of them to the plaintiff; and upon the bankruptcy of M. W., although still in possession of the goods, no claim was ever made upon him by M. W.'s assignees: it was held, that in the absence of any evidence of fraud, the title of the plaintiff was sufficiently made out. Burling v. Patterson, 9 C. & P. 570.

Where a party, being at the time insolvent, alienated an annuity, it was held, that (although only a chose in action) by the 13 Eliz. c. 5, in connexion with the Insolvent Act, 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, such alienation was fraudulent and void. Norcutt v. Dodd, 1 Cr. & Ph. 100.

A bond does not come under the notion of goods or chattels, within the st. 13 Eliz. c. 5, as to fraudulent alienations. Sims v. Thomas, 4 P. & D. 233. See further as to fraudulent conveyances, Ward v. Audland, 8 Sim. 571; 1 Coop. Ch. C. 176. Doe d. Barnes v. Rowe, 4 Bing. N. C. 737.

FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

Authority of, to make resolutions. Tyrrell v. Woolley, 2 Scott, N. S. 171.

GAME.

(Gamekeeper, p. 501.)

In trover for a gun, the defendant justified the seizing of it under 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 32, s. 13; it appeared that his deputation as gamekeeper had been granted and enrolled with the clerk of the peace prior to the Act taking effect, but not under the Act; held that he was not entitled to the privilege conferred by it, of notice of action, and of giving all matters in evidence under the general issue. Bush v. Green, 4 Bing. N. C. 41; and 3 Sc. 289.

(Right of Sporting, p. 504.)

By a deed, A. and B. conveyed to D. and his heirs certain lands, excepting and reserving to A. B. & C., their heirs and assigns, liberty to come into and upon the lands, and there to hawk, hunt, fish, and fowl: held, that this was not in law a reservation properly so called, but a new grant by D. (who executed the deed), of the liberty therein mentioned; and therefore that it might enure in favour of C. and his heirs, although he was not a party to the deed. Wickham v. Hawker, 7 M. & W. 63.

(9 Geo. 4, c. 69.)

An indictment under 9 Geo. 4, c. 69, s. 9, was held to be sufficient, although not charging whether the land entered on was inclosed or not; held also, that where some of the party were in the lands stated, and others in the adjoining land co-operating in the same purpose, all were guilty of the offence. R. v. Andrews, 2 M. & R. 37.

But where one of several went by himself to poach in a distinct field, it was held not to be an entry by the others into that field, to support the indictment; so where they remained out in the road, and sent their dogs into an adjoining field to drive the game into nets set by them. R. v. Neckless and others, 8 C. & P. 757.

If nets be hung on the twigs of a hedge within the close, it is an entry, though the parties be in a lane outside the hedge. Athea's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 191.

If several act together for the common purpose of poaching, one may be convicted, although never bodily within the wood where the others entered. R. v. Passey, 7 C. & P. 282; S. P. R. v. Lockett, ib. 300.

Where gamekeepers find poachers in a wood, they need not give any intimation by words that they are gamekeepers or that they are going to apprehend them; but if the parties are not on the ground, or within the manor of the gamekeepers' employer, the gamekeepers would not be justified in apprehending them. R. v. Davis, 7 C. & P. 785.

Large stones brought to the spot, and used in assailing gamekeepers, are "offensive weapons" within the statute 9 Geo. 4, c. 69, s. 9. R. v. Grice, 7 C. & P. 803.

Where the only weapon found on the prisoner was a common walking-stick, it was held that if there were circumstances showing an intention to use it for purposes of offence, it might be an offensive weapon within the statute; secus, if the jury find that it was in his possession in the ordinary way, and that upon an unexpected attack or collision only, he used it offensively. R. v. Fry, 2 M. & R. 42.

A constructive arming is not sufficient within the statute to make the arming by one an arming of all, and satisfy the averment that all were armed. R. v. Davis and another, 8 C. & P. 759.

It is necessary to show that the parties were in the place charged, with the intent to kill game there. R. v. Gainer, 7 C. & P. 231.

A party, not a regular gamekeeper, but employed as a night watcher, is a person authorized to apprehend persons found poaching, although having no written authority; and where the prisoner, found poaching on the manor, was pursued off, and then on again, when he snapped his gun at the prosecutor, he was held guilty of the capital offence, under 9 Geo. 4, c. 31, ss. 11, 12. R. v. Price, 7 C. & P. 178.

Gamekeepers hearing guns fired between twelve and one at night in a wood, and seeing the prisoner there, although without guns or game, are justified in endeavouring to apprehend him, without previously notifying their authority, or requiring him to surrender. R. v. Taylor and another, 7 C. & P. 266.

Under sect. 31 of 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 32, in order to justify the apprehension of a party found on land in the unlawful pursuit of game, he must be first required to quit the land, and to tell his name; and "the wilfully continuing or returning upon the land" must be upon the same land, and for the purpose of pursuing game there. R. v. Long, 7 C. & P. 314.

GAMING, p. 507.

In an action on a cheque, plea, that it was given for a gambling debt; held, on general demurrer, that the replication de injuria, was good. Curtis v. Marquis Headfort, 6 Dowl. 496.

The statutes against gaming, 16 Car. 2, c. 7, s. 3, and 9 Ann. c. 14, s. 1, avoid judgments obtained from the loser by the winner as a security for money lost, but not judgments which the winner, or a third party claiming through him, may have recovered against the loser by action. Lane v. Chapman, 11 A. & E. 966. And now see the statute 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 41.

GENERAL ISSUE, p. 508.

The new rules of pleading have not abolished the plea of the general issue, but only circumscribed the species of evidence which may be given under it. Gough v. Bryan, 2 M. & W. 770; and 5 Dowl. 765.

See as to the effect of these rules on the plea of the general issue, under the different heads of Assumpsit, Debt, &c.

GRANT.

Where, at the date of letters patent, mines were granted within the province of N. S., they were held to pass all mines in B., which, before that date, had become a part of the province of N. S. Taylor v. Attorney-general, 8 Sim. 113.

GUARANTY.

Where the sureties to a Government contractor for certain works, gave to the plaintiff a guarantee for the supply of materials in these terms, "Please to deliver to S., &c., at, &c., and we do consent, that the officer who may have the payment of the contract when finished, shall stop the amount of the account of such materials delivered, and we do hereby agree to become guarantees for the payment of the same to you, when the amount of the contract is paid;" the works having been in part performed, and S., with the plaintiff's consent, having received certain sums from Government in advance, was afterwards dismissed for neglect, and the works finished by other parties; an arrangement was then entered into between the Crown and one of the defendants, on behalf of himself and his co-surety, with the consent of S., and thereupon, after debiting S. with the advances, and for extra works, and for the sums paid for completing the works, a balance was paid to him in full for all claims; held that the latter sums were not to be deemed paid to S. or his agents, and the whole amount of the contract not having been paid him, the defendants were not liable under the guarantee: and if it were not so, yet that the plaintiff having consented to the sums paid in advance, had no claim in respect thereof, and that if the final balance paid was composed of sums due, partly on the contract and partly for extra works, the proportions not being ascertainable, the plaintiff would be only entitled to nominal damages. Hemming v. Trenery and another, 2 Cr. M. & R. 385.

In an action for goods sold the defendant pleaded that the defendant and M. had agreed with the plaintiffs that M. should give a guarantee for payment of the debt by instalments, and that the guarantee was given and was accepted by the plaintiffs in satisfaction.—Replication—denying the agreement, and denying that the plaintiffs had accepted the guarantee in satisfaction. It was proved by Mr. L., the plaintiffs' attorney on the record, that M. had asked him to propose to the plaintiff to accept his guarantee, and that Mr. L. having consented to do so, M. signed a guarantee, which was on the next day sent by Mr. L. to the plaintiffs, who kept it three weeks, and then returned it. It was held that if the plaintiffs did not return the guarantee within a reasonable time, they must be taken to have accepted it, and that unexplained—three weeks was an unreasonable time: held, also, that if M. was worth nothing, and was a mere man of straw, that fact would make no difference on these pleadings, as the plaintiffs had not replied fraud, but had denied that they had accepted the guarantee. Pope v. Andrews, 9 C. & P. 564.

The plaintiff, a tailor, furnished goods for a party, on a memorandum given by the defendant in the terms, "I undertake to pay Mr. J. the sum of £. —— for a suit of —— ordered by P.," it was held to be a guarantee, and not a promissory note. Jarvis v. Wilkins, 7 M. & W. 410.

The defendant, as attorney of the landlord, employed the plaintiff, a broker, to levy a distress, and some of the goods seized being claimed as privileged, the plaintiff required an indemnity, which the defendant gave on the behalf of his employer, and he afterwards urged on the sale, promising to give a further guarantee; it was held, that although, as a general proposition, a broker cannot throw the consequences of his own wrongful act or want of caution from himself upon his employer, yet that the jury were warranted by the circumstances and conduct of the defendant in inferring a promise to indemnify, and that he was liable to make good the loss sustained by the plaintiff, who had been sued by the owners of the privileged goods. Toplis v. Grane, 5 Bing. N. C. 636; and 7 Sc. 620.

Where the defendant undertook, if a distress were withdrawn, to pay the sum due for rent "out of the produce of the sale," held, that upon proof of the goods producing a sufficient amount, the defendant was liable, although there were prior claims on the proceeds. Stephens v. Pell, 2 Cr. & M. 710.

The defendants, upon an employment to manage the sale of a library, in their proposal as to terms, stated that they would be responsible with the auctioneers for the proceeds of the sales; and in a subsequent letter said that the plaintiff had "of course the double security of ourselves and the auctioneers;" held, that their employment of an auctioneer recommended by the plaintiff did not prevent their being liable for him, and that the plaintiff's attorney having received, with the consent of the defendants, notes from the auctioneer for part of the proceeds, was not an acceptance of them as payment, nor a giving time so as to vary the liability of the defendants. Cholmondeley v. Payne, 8 C. & P. 482.

The plaintiff writes two letters to A, the plaintiff's brother, by the one, pressing A. to join, and to induce his brother to join in a security for money to be advanced to the defendant to enable him to carry on a suit; and by the other, urging the same request, and adding, "I should consider it as a matter of favour to myself if your brothers will join, and I will see that they come to no harm." The letters amount to an actual guarantee. Jones v. Williams, 7 M. & W. 493.

A bond is subject to a condition for repayment of the sum secured, with interest, "at or before the expiration of six months' notice" to be given to pay the same: the plaintiff (the obligor of the bond) is entitled to recover on a guarantee to indemnify, although he did not prove such notice to have been given, if he show that the defendant had received notice of an action commenced on the bond (which was stayed by a judge's order on payment of debt and costs), and did not come in to defend it. Ib.

A guarantee given by the defendant to the plaintiff to induce him to sign the certificate of the principal, who had become bankrupt, is void, and the objection may be taken in evidence under the general issue "by statute." Hankey v. West, 1 G. & D. 47.

Where a legatee assigned his interest in certain premises devised to be sold, and the assignee gave a guarantee to the plaintiffs, the executors, and also to their attorney who managed the sale and paid over the money: the legatee being bankrupt, and the share claimed by his assignees, held, that the action upon the guarantee might be properly brought by the executors without joining the attorney, they having a separate interest. Place v. Delegal, 4 Bing. N. C. 426.

(When continuing.)

The defendant, with two others, entered into a joint and several bond to secure advances to one by the plaintiffs (bankers), conditioned for the payment of all sums which the plaintiffs or any future partners should advance, not exceeding a certain sum; this was held to be a continuing guarantee:

but held, also, that an averment that a sum was due, whereof notice was given to the defendant, was bad, on general demurrer, as not showing an express breach of the condition. Batson v. Shearman, 5 P. & D. 77.

"In consideration of your supplying my nephew V. with china and earthenware, I guarantee the payment of any bills you may draw on him on account thereof, to the amount of 200 l." This is a continuing guarantee, and the defendant is liable upon it, although, after it was given, goods to a greater amount than 200 l. have been supplied to and paid for by V. Mayer v. Isaac, 6 M. & W. 605.

"I beg that you will continue to advance 2 l. per week to Mr. R. B., and I hereby engage to repay you all monies you may advance to him in addition to the 24 l. you have already let him have at my request to this date." The guarantee is limited to the 24 l. and the 2 l. per week. Smith v. Brandram, 2 Scott's N. S. 539.

Debt against a surety on a bond, reciting the employment of A., B. and C., partners, as agents for the plaintiffs, and conditioned "that if the said A., B. and C., and the survivors or survivor of them, and such other persons as should in partnership with them act as agents for the plaintiffs, did and should duly account," it appeared that one of the original parties retired, and the others continued to act; held, that upon the retiring of such partner the liability of the surety was discharged as to default made by the continuing partners. Cambridge University v. Baldwin & others, 5 M. & W. 580; and 9 Ad. & Ell. 298.

HANDWRITING.

In an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, the only proof of the handwriting of the defendant was that of a banker's clerk, who stated, that two years before, he saw a person calling himself by the defendant's name, sign a book, that he had never seen him since, but that he thought the handwriting was the same, and had since seen cheques bearing the same signature; held, that this was evidence to go to the jury. Warren v. Anderson, 8 Scott, 384.

A. swears that a signature is not that of B., the alleged witness to a bond, and he swears that a second signature produced is not B.'s;—it is not competent to show that in fact the latter is B.'s signature. Hughes v. Rogers, 8 M. & W. 123; and see Doe v. Newton, 5 Ad. & Ell. 514, 1 N. & P. 1; Griffits v. Ivory, 3 P. & D. 179; 11 Ad. & Ell. 322.

Where a witness, called to prove the defendant's handwriting to a libel, deposed to having seen the defendant write in a book which was proposed to be shown to the jury for the purpose of comparing the handwritings, it was held that this could not be done, but that a letter written to the plaintiff, referring to some of the subjects in the libel, if admissible in its own nature, could not be withdrawn from the consideration of the jury. Waddington v. Cousins, 7 C. & P. 595.

HEIR.

An heir at law is not estopped from questioning the validity of a deed of his ancestors alleged to be void as a fraud against the stat. of Charitable Uses, 9 G. 2, c. 36. Doe v. Lloyd, 8 Scott, 93.

HIGHWAY, p. 521.

By an act of incorporation, 41 Geo. 3, c. xxxi, the proprietors of the Surrey Canal were required to erect and maintain bridges over the canal where it intersected any public highway, bridleway, or footpath, and also for the use of the owners and occupiers of lands, &c., adjoining to the canal. In 1804, the company erected a swivel bridge (of sufficient dimensions to allow a carriage to traverse it) across the canal at a spot where there had formerly been a public way which at the most was only a bridle-way. This bridge was originally intended for the exclusive accommodation (as a carriage-way) of the tenants of an estate adjoining, called the Rolls estate. The neighbourhood having become extremely populous, and a district church having been built near the bridge, the public from 1822 to 1832 freely and without interruption used it as a carriage way. In 1832, the company for the first time imposed a toll upon all carriages traversing the bridge, with the exception of those belonging to the tenants of the Rolls estate: and in 1834 they removed the old swivel bridge, and erected a convenient new stone bridge in the place of it. In an action of trespass against the defendant for passing over the bridge without paying toll, the judge told the jury, that supposing the bridge in question to have been originally erected for the exclusive accommodation of the tenants of the Rolls estate, still, if in consequence of the acts of the company, an idea grew up in the minds of the public that the company had dedicated the way to the public use, they might find such dedication: held, that this was not a misdirection; and that the evidence warranted the jury in finding a dedication. Grand Surrey Canal Co. v. Hall, 1 Scott N. S. 264.

A diversion of a foot-path under the st. 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 85, is not legal unless the way be nearer as well as more commodious than the old one. R. v. Shiles, 1 G. & D. 304. Where both the old and new footpaths lead into a public highway, the term nearer is to be measured, not by the distance along the new foot-path and old highway to a particular place, but by the distance between the points of diversity and the point of union with the old highway. Ib.

It is essential to the validity of an order for stopping up a highway, that the view of the justices should be taken by them together, and that the finding should be the result of such view; but it is sufficient that the order was in the terms "having upon view found;" the order will also be sufficient if it direct the sale to the adjoining owner if, &c. "for the full value thereof" at the conclusion, as such words override the whole of that part of the order; nor need there be any certificate of the sale written under the order: also the justices have jurisdiction, although the owner have previously stopped up the road de facto, it being sufficient that the public still have the right of passing; and lastly, that it is no objection that the owner and purchaser is at the time a surveyor, no fraud being suggested. R. v. Cambridgeshire Justices, 5 N. & M. 440.

Where the road stopped up was, as to part, wholly situate in one parish, and as to another part, running between two parishes, partly in one and partly in another parish, an order stopping up so much as lay in one parish is invalid; and one order cannot be made for stopping up separate and distinct roads,—there must be a separate order for each. R. v. Milverton, 1 Nev. & P. 179.

And see Davison v. Gill, 1 East, 64; and R. v. Kent Justices, 10 B. & Cr. 477.

The period of six months given for removing an order for stopping up a public footway, confirmed by an order of sessions, is to be calculated from the latter order; held also, that two separate orders are requisite, for diverting and stopping up. R. v. Middlesex Justices, 1 Nev. & P. 92.

Where on an indictment against the inhabitants of a township for non-repair, the defendants relied on an agreement, in 1591, between the owners of the soil of that and another township, that the latter should repair the roads in the former township, with a clause that a competent lawyer should prepare and make all necessary assurances, and the same had been so repaired by them up to a short time before the indictment; held, that a judge was not bound on such evidence to direct the jury to presume such assurances in the absence of any vestige that they ever existed. R. v. Scarisbrick, Inhabitants of, 1 Nev. & P. 582.

An exemption in a charter from highway rate (in the original, chimagium), does not operate to exempt from the statute duty imposed by the Highway Acts. R. v. Siviter, 5 Nev. & M. 125.

Where by a local Act trustees were authorized to make a certain line of road, and they completed only a part of it, which was used by the public above thirty years, and the line had been by subsequent Acts varied, and distinct enactments made as to tolls on the part completed; held, that the object of the powers given to the trustees being to make a line of road between the specified termini, the inhabitants of the district through which the completed part lay were not liable to repair such part. R. v. Edge Lane, 6 Nev. & M. 81. See R. v. Cumberworth, 3 B. & Ad. 108.

(Ratione tenuræ, p. 527.)

Evidence of reputation is not admissible to show a liability in the occupiers of land to repair a road ratione tenuræ. R. v. Wavertree, Inhab. of, 2 Mo. & R. 353.

(Rate, &c.)

Where the defendant made cognizance under a distress warrant for a highway rate, under 13 Geo. 3, c. 78, it was held that such rate must be expressly alleged to be an equal assessment of 9*d.* in the pound, on the yearly value of the lands; where it only stated it to be upon all occupiers of lands, &c. within the parish, it was held bad. Morell v. Harvey, 6 Nev. & M. 35.

The stat. 4 Geo. 4, c. 95, s. 68, which provides for apportioning the liability to repair turnpike roads that have been diverted, is not confined to bodies politic or corporate and individuals, but applies also to parishes. R. v. Barton, 11 A. & E. 343.

Churchwardens and overseers, although entitled under the Highway Acts to the custody of the books, &c. of the waywarden, yet, unless they were furnished and paid for by them, they have no property in them, so as to maintain trover against a party detaining them. Addison v. Round, 6 Nev. & M. 422; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 799.

A demand of a highway rate by one of two surveyors acting under the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, is a valid demand. Morrell v. Martin, 8 Scott, 688.

(Turnpike.)

Under 2 & 3 Vict. c. 81, s. 1, a special sessions have jurisdiction to make an order on the parish surveyor of the highway to pay a certain sum to the trustees of a turnpike road, although all the funds of the turnpike trustees are not exhausted. R. v. Justices of Berks, 8 Dowl. 726.

(Competency, p. 529.)

A rated inhabitant of the district or parish for which a highway rate is made, is a competent witness to support it. Morrell v. Martin, 8 Scott, 688.

(Action for Calls.)

Evidence of a proposal to subscribe for the repair of a turnpike road, under the 9 Geo. 4, c. 77, will not support an action for calls. Meigh v. Clinton, 3 P. & D. 211.

HOUSEHOLDER.

Who is, under the stat. 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 9. See R. v. Mayor of Eye. 9 Ad. & Ell. 670.

HUNDRED, p. 530.

If rioters attack a house, and have begun to demolish it, but leave off of their own accord after having gone a certain length, and before the act of demolition is completed, this is evidence from which a jury may infer that they did not intend to demolish the house; but if the mob were prevented from going on by the interference of the police or any other force, that would be evidence to show that they were compelled to desist from that which they had designed, and it would be for the jury to infer that they had begun to demolish within the stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30. s. 8. R. v. Howell and others, 9 C. & P. 437.

Destroying moveable shop-shutters is not a beginning to demolish within that statute, as they are not part of the freehold. Ibid.

If rioters destroy a house by fire, that is as much a demolition within the stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 8, as if any other mode of destruction were used. Ibid.

If a part of the object of rioters be to demolish a house, it makes no difference that they also acted with another object, such as to injure a person who had taken refuge there. Ibid.

HUSBAND AND WIFE, p. 534.

Where the wife whilst living apart, and in adultery, acquired and invested money in trust for herself and her illegitimate issue, was afterwards convicted of murder, and executed, and the trustees expended a considerable part of the fund in her defence; held, that the husband was entitled to such fund, and that the trustees could not retain out of the fund the sums so expended, and must bear their costs occasioned by the interpleading rule to try the right. Agar v. Blethyn, 2 Cr. M. & R. 699; and 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 160.

The property in wearing apparel bought for herself by a wife living with her husband, out of money settled to her separate use before marriage, and paid to her by the trustees of the settlement, vests by law in the husband, and is liable to be taken in execution for his debts. Carne v. Brice, 7 M. & W. 183.

Where a husband, having received a legacy bequeathed to his wife, disposed of part, and gave the rest to her to take care of, and she deposited it with the defendants (bankers) in the name of her son, an infant, and took a receipt in his name, the defendants are liable to the husband as for money received to his use, and cannot set up an unlawful title in answer. Calland v. Lloyd, 6 M. & W. 27.

(Wife's Survivorship.)

The interest in a promissory note given to a wife during coverture, the consideration for which was money advanced by her during the coverture, survives to the wife after the death of her husband, unless he reduces it into possession in his lifetime. Gaters v. Madeley, 6 M. & W. 423.

(Payment to the Wife.)

A payment to the wife for services rendered by her is bad, unless she had authority from the husband to receive it. Offly v. Clay, 2 Scott, N. S. 372.

Where the wife, devisee of a rent-charge for life in reversion, without the intervention of trustees, joined with her husband in assigning it for valuable consideration; it was held that she was bound, after his death, by such assignment. Major v. Langley, 2 R. & M. 355.

(Right of Husband to Restrain, &c.)

Where a wife absents herself from her husband on account of no misconduct on his part, and he afterwards, by stratagem, obtains possession of her person, and she declares her intention of leaving him again whenever she can, he has a right to restrain her of her liberty until she is willing to return to a performance of her conjugal duties. In the matter of Cochrane, 8 Dowl. 630.

(Action against both, p. 538.)

To a declaration in assumpsit for work and labour against several defendants, charging the promise to have been made by the defendants generally, the defendants pleaded in abatement the non-joinder of two others. The Court refused to arrest the judgment, on the ground that one of the defendants was a feme-covert sued jointly with her husband, and that the declaration did not state that the promise was made by her before the marriage,—the ambiguity in the declaration being aided by the plea. France v. White, 1 Scott, N. S. 604.

In an action against husband and wife, for the debt of the wife before marriage, strict evidence of the marriage is not necessary, and evidence of his having spoken of her as his wife, held sufficient for a jury to decide on. Tracy v. M'Arlton, 7 Dowl. 532.

A plea of her discharge by the Insolvent Act before coverture in such a case is held good. Storr v. Lee & Wife, 1 Perr. & D. 633; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 868.

(Against the Husband, p. 538.)

The general rule is, that a wife cannot bind her husband by her contract except as his agent; but in cases of orders given by the wife in those departments of her husband's household which she has under her control, or of orders for articles which are necessary for the wife, such as clothes, the jury (if the wife be living with the husband) ought to infer agency, if nothing appear to the contrary; but if the order be excessive in point of extent, and such as the husband never would have authorized, that will alone be sufficient to repel the inference of agency. Freestone v. Butcher, 9 C. & P. 643.

If it be proved that the wife has a separate income, that of itself goes to repel the inference of agency; and evidence that the plaintiff has made out the invoices to the wife, and has drawn bills of exchange on her for part of the amount, which she has accepted in her own name, payable at her own bankers from her separate funds, also goes to prove that the wife was not acting as the agent of the husband; and the fact that the husband sold some of the goods which were supplied to the wife and received the money for them, will not of itself make the husband liable in point of law to pay for them; but it is a fact for the consideration of the jury in determining whether the goods were supplied on the credit of the husband, and whether the wife was the agent of her husband. Freestone v. Butcher, 9 C. & P. 643.

In an action for beer and spirituous liquors supplied to the defendant's wife, he being generally absent, a stranger having cautioned the plaintiff that the defendant would not pay for such articles, and more than sufficient had been paid to cover the amount of the beer supplied; it was held, that it was for the plaintiff to show that the wife contracted the debt by the authority of her husband, and not for the latter to prove having given notice to the plaintiff not to supply the goods to his wife. Spreadbury v. Chapman, 8 C. & P. 371.

Where upon a separation, a counterpart of the deed of separation was prepared for the wife's trustees, it was held that it was not to be considered a necessary for the wife, so as to enable the wife's trustees to recover for the expense of preparing it. Ladd v. Lynn, 2 M. & W. 265.

The defendant, having become bankrupt in 1824, did not surrender, and the business was carried on by his wife until 1833, during which period goods, in the way of trade, were supplied to her. It was shown that the husband had been seen a few times at the place, and was arrested in the shop; this was held to be insufficient evidence to show that she acted as his agent in carrying on the trade, to charge him. Smallpiece v. Dawes, 7 C. & P. 40.

(Coverture, p. 547.)

On a plea of coverture, a letter written by the husband (being abroad), in answer to one shortly before addressed to him, held admissible to prove his being alive at that time, and sufficient to entitle the defendant to a verdict. Reed v. Norman, 8 C. & P. 65.

In an action for goods sold, defendant pleaded coverture; replication, that the husband was an alien and never within the kingdom, and that the promises were made and cause of action accrued whilst the defendant was living separate, and that she contracted and promised as a feme sole; rejoinder, traversing each of these facts; held, that on such issues the plaintiff was bound to prove that the defendant represented herself to be a feme sole to the plaintiff, or that he dealt with her believing her to be such; and that her dealings with other persons, and representations that she was a feme sole, were inadmissible, unless so made as to come to the plaintiff's knowledge. Barden v. De Keverberg, 2 M. & W. 61.

(Joint offences by, p. 548.)

A wife went from house to house uttering base coin; her husband accompanied her, but remained outside; held that the wife acted under the husband's coercion. Sarah Conolly's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 229.

The law, out of tenderness to the wife, if a felony be committed in the presence of the husband, raises a presumption primâ facie, but primâ facie only, that it was done under his coercion. R. v. Hughes, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 230.

(Murder, p. 548.)

Where the prisoner, a married woman, was charged with the murder of her illegitimate child by neglecting to supply it with food, held, that being the servant of the husband, she was not chargeable for omissions, unless she omitted to give such food as had been provided for it by the husband. R. v. Saunders, 7 C. & P. 277.

Where the husband was indicted for personal violence on his wife, it was held, that although a competent witness, it was not indispensable that she should be called; the defence set up by his counsel being that of insanity, which he repudiated, the Court allowed him to call witnesses, and through questions put by the Court, at his suggestion, to examine them, but would not permit his case to be conducted by counsel, and then by the prisoner himself. R. v. Pearce, 9 C. & P. 667.

Qu. Whether a woman who has gone through the ceremony of marriage with a man can be allowed to prove the invalidity of the marriage, and that she is not his wife. Semble, that she may be examined on the voire dire. Peat's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 288.

(Separation of.)

Where the wife resided in the parish where her husband was confined in gaol, but she had access to him, held, that an order of removal of her and her children was bad, as a separation of man and wife. R. v. Stogumber, 1 P. & D. 409.

INCLOSURE.

An Act expressly reserving the right of the plaintiff to ingress and egress to and from a certain watercourse, and of cleaning it, is not extinguished by the defendant having made a more circuitous road to the watercourse, according to the direction of the commissioners, and extinction thereafter of all public roads: a tenant of the plaintiff's land affected by the watercourse is a competent witness in an action brought by his landlord for injury to his reversion by obstructing the way. Adeane v. Mortloch, 5 Bing. N. C. 236.

An Act provides that lands awarded and allotted and exchanged should immediately after such allotment and exchanges made, be and remain and enure to the several allottees to the same uses, estates, &c., as the lands, in respect of which the allotments were made, were held by; an allottee becomes seised immediately after the allotment in point of fact was made, and not when the award was completed. Doe v. Saunders, 1 N. & P. 119.

The lessor of the plaintiff claimed under a conveyance from a commissioner of enclosure (not executed according to the power) and never took possession, but the defendant on a proposal of exchange, had fenced the land and occupied it for thirty years; held that the plaintiff could not recover, but that he was not bound to prove that the commissioner had duly qualified and complied with the requisites of the Act before executing the conveyance. Doe d. Nanney v. Gore, 2 M. & W. 320.

Where a mortgage in fee takes no notice of rights of common, in respect of which allotments are afterwards made, semble, they belong to the mortgagee. Lloyd v. Douglas, 4 Younge & C. 448.

Commissioners are empowered to exchange new allotments and old inclosures, so as such exchanges should be ascertained in the award, or some deed executed by the commissioners, and with the consent in writing of the proprietors; the commissioners award certain allotments to A. in respect of certain lands, and the lands late A.'s to B., but omit to say that they were in exchange, but in the conclusion of the award express their approbation of the exchange between A. and B., and there was no consent in writing of A. and B. thereto; the parties remain respectively in possession from the date of the award in 1798, until the sale of the lands of A. in 1813; parties cannot, under the Act and the award, make a good title. Cox v. King, 3 Bing. N. C. 795.

INDEMNITY. See OATH.

As to the effect of incapacitation, see R. v. Parry, 14 East, 549.

INFANT.

(Liability of, p. 555.)

An infant, although he has a sufficient income to pay ready money, is not incapable of contracting for articles, necessary or suitable to his station, on credit. Burghart v. Hall, 4 M. & W. 727.

In an action for goods, alleged to be necessaries, to an infant, that being the simple question for the jury, inquiry as to the defendant's circumstances is not a condition precedent to the right of recovery. Brayshaw v. Eaton, 5 Bing. N. C. 231.

(Ratification, p. 556.)

Debt for goods sold and delivered: plea, infancy; replication, that the defendant ratified the contract, in writing, after coming of age. Issue thereon.

The plaintiff produced the following paper, signed by the defendant: "I am sorry to give you so much trouble in calling; but I am not prepared for you; but will without neglect remit you in a short time." The paper contained no address, and specified no sum: but it was proved orally that the defendant delivered it to the plaintiff's agent, on being pressed for the debt, the amount of which was also proved by oral evidence: held, that this was sufficient to satisfy stat. 9 G. 4, c. 14, s. 5.

No evidence was given to show whether the defendant was of age or not when he delivered the paper: held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, the defendant, if he relied on his infancy at the time, being bound to prove it. Hartley v. Wharton, 11 A. & E. 934.

(Necessaries, p. 557.)

To a declaration for goods sold, &c., the defendant pleads his infancy, to which the plaintiff replies that the goods were necessaries suitable to the degree, estate, and condition of the defendant; held, that the term necessaries includes such things as were useful and suitable to the state and condition in life of the party, and not merely such as are requisite for bare subsistence.

It is a question for the jury, whether the articles are such as a reasonable person, of the age and station of the infant, would require for real use. Peters v. Fleming, 6 M. & W. 42.

In an action against an infant, an Oxford student, for the hire of horses, &c., the jury having, contrary to the opinion of the judge, found for the plaintiff, upon an issue whether they were necessaries or not, the Court granted a new trial without costs. Harrison v. Fane, 1 Scott, N. S. 287.

(Father's liability, p. 557.)

A parent is not under any legal obligation to pay his son's debts; a mere moral obligation cannot alone create a legal one; where the defendant on being applied to for a bill for the board and for supplies to his son, who was living separate from his father, and working on his own account, unequivocally referred the plaintiff to the son for payment, adding that he would become entitled to a sum on attaining full age, the Court directed a nonsuit. Mortimore v. Wright, 6 M. & W. 482.

A schoolmaster cannot recover for wearing apparel supplied to a pupil without the sanction, express or implied, of the parents or guardian. Clements v. Williams, 8 C. & P. 58.

Where a fit allowance was made by the guardians to the infant, held, in a suit for administration of his estate, that tradesmen's bills not clearly shown to be for necessaries, were not to be allowed. Mortara v. Hall, 6 Sim. 465.

Where the mother was present at the time of the defendant ordering the goods, held that inquiry as to her sanctioning the purchase was unnecessary. Dalton v. Gib, 5 Bing. N. C. 199.

No one is bound to pay another for maintaining his children, either legitimate or illegitimate, unless he has entered into some contract to do so. Seaborne v. Maddy, 9 C. & P. 497.

Every man is to maintain his own children as he himself shall think proper, and it requires a contract to enable another person to do so, and charge him for it in an action. Ibid.

Where the son was in need of clothes, and the father had seen him wearing those furnished by the plaintiff; held, that it was some evidence to leave to the jury, and calling upon the father to show that his son was supplied with necessaries. Law v. Wilkins, 1 N. & P. 697.

Where the father was induced to give up to the plaintiff the custody of his legitimate child (born after the elopement of its mother, and about to be placed by the defendant in a foundling hospital), and he entirely relinquished all care of it, it was held to negative an implied contract with the plaintiff to pay for the maintenance. Urmston v. Newcomen, 6 Nev. & M. 454; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 899. Semb., a parent is not bound by the common law to maintain his illegitimate child, not being part of his family.

The children of a former marriage not within the age of nurture, and left chargeable to the parish in which they are residing by the step-father, who had absconded, are removeable to the place of settlement of their own father, notwithstanding the obligation of the step-father to maintain them until the age of 16, under the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 57. R. v. Stafford, 1 P. & D. 414.

(Abduction.)

Where the evidence was clear as to the party being entitled to personal property, and that the prisoner took her away by force, and against her will, with the intention of marrying, but the evidence of the motive being for lucre was slight and unsatisfactory, held that the prisoner was entitled to be acquitted of the statutory offence, but might be convicted of the assault. R. v. Barratt, 9 C. & P. 387.

INHABITANT.

Where by charter of Edw. 4, the steward of a manor of ancient demesne, and one other inhabitant, were to be justices of the peace within the manor, to be chosen by the tenants and inhabitants; and a party claiming to have a majority of those entitled to vote, applied for an information in the nature of quo warranto against another who had a majority of votes, unless certain votes for the relator had been legally rejected: held, that he was bound to show clearly who were the class entitled to vote, and that not having given any construction to the meaning of the term "inhabitant," he had not made even a primâ facie case to entitle himself to the writ. R. v. Mashiter, 1 N. & P. 314.

The term "inhabitant," semble, is to be construed according to the subject-matter in which it is found, and has not any definite legal meaning. Ibid.

See Russell v. Men of Devon, 2 T. R. 667.

Where the appointment of a chaplain was, by charter of Edw. 6, to be made by governors, "with the assent of the majority of the inhabitants," and the usage had been to confine the meaning of that term to inhabitant rate-payers, and for the governors first to nominate, and afterwards to give notice to the inhabitants to meet at a future day, and to assent or dissent from such appointment; it was held to be a compliance with the charter. R. v. Sandford Governors, 1 N. & P. 328.

INNKEEPER, p. 559.

Where goods were left in an inn, to be taken up by a carrier, and lost, held that, however the innkeeper might be liable for negligence, trover could not be maintained. Williams v. Gesse, 3 Bing N. C. 849; and 7 C. & P. 777.

The refusing to receive a guest after the innkeeper had retired to rest with his family, having room in his inn, was held to be indictable; the innkeeper has no right to insist on knowing the name and quality of the party applying; nor need the latter tender the price of his entertainment, if the refusal be not on that ground. Rex v. Ivens, 7 C. & P. 213.

And see 1 Hawkins, 714.

Where, in consequence of the plaintiff's refusing to pay the amount of the defendant's bill, as an innkeeper, horses which had been ordered and brought out by the side of the plaintiff's carriage, were put back, and the plaintiff thereby detained and prevented from proceeding on his journey, held, in trespass, upon the replication de injuriâ, and plea justifying on the ground of the refusal of the plaintiff to pay his bill, that the jury could not question the reasonableness of the bill, and that the detainer did not amount to assault or imprisonment. Gordon v. Cox, 7 C. & P. 172.

INSOLVENT.

(Who is, p. 561.)

In a contract for the sale of all the salt manufactured in certain works for fourteen years, it was stipulated that bankruptcy or insolvency should determine the contract; held, that the latter term was not confined to the being discharged under the Insolvent Act, but meant an inability to pay his just debts. Parker v. Gossage, 2 Cr. M. & R. 617; and 1 T. & G. 105.

A party so crippled in his means of payment, that he is unable to proceed with and carry on his business in the usual course of trade, is to be deemed insolvent, without regard to the consideration whether his whole property, if converted, would be sufficient or not to satisfy all his debts, and held, that notice of such a state was notice of insolvency, and that an assignment was, under such circumstances, invalid. De Tastet v. Le Tavernier, 1 K. 161.

(Action by Assignees, p. 561.)

The insolvent, whilst in prison, being under a covenant by a marriage settlement to pay money when required to the trustees, gave to his son and the trustees an authority to sell and apply the proceeds to the use of the settlement, which proceeds remained in their hands; held, that his assignee, under the compulsory clauses of the Lord's Act, was entitled to recover it as money received to the plaintiff's use, if the jury believed that it was in substance held at the disposal of the insolvent, otherwise if they believed it to have been a bonâ fide payment of an equitable debt; held also, that the plea of non assumpsit put in issue all the facts necessary to show that the receipt was to the use of the plaintiff. Moore v. Eddowes, 7 C. & P. 203.

Goods of the insolvent were seized under an execution, and the proceeds paid over after the imprisonment, the assignees are entitled to recover the amount as money had and received to their use. Guy v. Hitchcock, 5 N. & M. 660.

(Assignment of Insolvent's Estate, p. 561.)

Although certified copies of assignments to and from the provisional assignee are made evidence by 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 76, yet where the insolvent petitioned, and his effects were assigned under 53 Geo. 3, c. 102, it was held that such copies were not sufficient. Doe d. Threlfall v. Sellers, 6 Ad. & Ell. 328.

But where the petition and assignment were made under 1 Geo. 4, c. 119; held, that they might be proved after 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, according to the directions of sect. 76, although it did not appear that the proceedings had gone on to the discharge of the party, and final assignment of his effects. Doe d. Ellis v. Hardy, 6 Ad. & Ell. 335.

An order of the Insolvent Debtors' Court under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 36, 37, vesting the estate of an insolvent in the provisional assignee, is sufficiently proved by a copy on paper, sealed with the seal of the Court, and certified by the provisional assignee. It is not necessary to show more particularly that such assignee is the officer in whose custody the order is; or to prove the creditor's petition on which it was granted. Hounsfield v. Drury, 11 A. & E. 98.

In ejectment by the plaintiff, as assignee of an insolvent, an assignment by the provisional assignee to the creditors' assignee, in the form prescribed for the assignment by the insolvent to the provisional assignee, is valid: quær. whether on an assignment, reciting it to have been made by an order of the Court (pursuant to 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 38), the Court would intend that an order had been made without production of it. (Dub. Denman, L. C. J., Littledale and Williams, J. J., contra Coleridge, J.) Doe v. Story, 3 N. & P. 107.

(Assignment, Proof of, p. 561.)

The insolvent executed, on being brought up under the compulsory clauses of the Lords' Act, an assignment: in ejectment by the assignee, held, 1st, that on production of the assignment it was unnecessary to prove the service of the requisite notices preliminary to the assignment; 2dly, that it was not affected by the declaration of trust being in larger terms than the Act requires, as it might be rejected as surplusage, or the Court would mould the trust so as to effect the objects of the assignment; and lastly, that the words "all and singular the real and personal estates which are mentioned in my said schedule," were sufficient to pass all the prisoner's lands. Doe d. Milburn v. Edgar, 2 Bing. N. C. 391; 2 Scott, 581.

In debt for rent of a mill and premises, it appeared that the lessee, being insolvent, had by deed, reciting his insolvency, assigned all his debts, stock, implements, crops, severed as well as not, and all other his personal estate and effects whatsoever and wheresoever, in trust to pay the rent due and accruing up to ——, and afterwards to distribute amongst his creditors; held, that the assignees having been found by the jury to have accepted it, the lease of the mill would pass under the assignment. Ringer v. Cann, 3 Mees. & W. 343.

The defendant had been discharged out of custody for a debt under 20*l.* after a twelvemonth's imprisonment, but whilst in prison the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, came into operation, and a creditor had obtained a vesting order from the Insolvent Court after the twelvemonth had expired; the Court having jurisdiction to make the order, the estate was vested in the assignees notwithstanding his discharge. Kitching v. Croft, 4 P. & D. 339.

The assignment made by an insolvent debtor on filing his petition, under the 7 Geo 4, c. 57, s. 10. 40, so fully vests his property in his assignees, that a statement subsequently made by him in his schedule will not be admissible in evidence to impeach the title of the assignees to the property assigned. Elverd v. Foster, 9 Dowl. 922.

(Fraudulent Assignment, p. 563.)

An insolvent, whilst in prison, without consideration or pressure, executed an assignment of all his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors who should come in under the deed; it was held to be a voluntary deed, and void within the 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 32. Binns v. Towsey, 3 Nev. & P. 88.

The insolvent, whilst in prison, reluctantly executed an assignment of his effects for the benefit of all his creditors, they refusing to consent to his discharge, and threatening him with bankruptcy unless he would execute it, held not to be a voluntary conveyance within the Act. Davies v. Acocks, 2 Cr. M. & R. 461.

A deed bonâ fide executed by an insolvent for the benefit of all his creditors, is not void (dub. Alderson, B.). Davies v. Acocks, 2 Cr. M. & R. 461.

The defendants were employed as the attorneys of a party in embarrassed circumstances, to effect an arrangement with his creditors, and under resolutions by them proceeded to sell his estate and received the proceeds, but the party afterwards took the benefit of the Insolvent Act; held, that the retainer of a sum to satisfy their bill of costs did not amount to a case of voluntary transfer within the Act, the money so received not originating with the insolvent, and entrusted to the defendants only as agents, and not for the benefit of any particular creditor. Wainwright v. Clement, 4 M. & W. 385.

Where a demand is made by a creditor bonâ fide, and a transfer is made in pursuance of that demand, it is not a voluntary transfer within the Insolvent Act. Mogg v. Baker, 4 M. & W. 348.

Where the consideration for the conveyance was partly an advance and partly a pre-existing debt, it was held, that if such consideration bonâ fide acted upon the mind of the party, it was not fraudulent and void as a voluntary conveyance within 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 32. Margareson v. Saxon, 1 Younge, 525.

A party assigns an annuity bond to trustees for his wife and children, and in the event of dying without issue, in trust for himself, and afterwards becomes insolvent; the insolvent's assignee, under the stat. 1 Geo. 4, c. 119, has no interest in the bond. Sims v. Thomas, 4 P. & D. 233.

(Liability of Insolvent, p. 564.)

The surety pays money after the discharge of the principal under the Insolvent Act, he is entitled to sue the principal; the exception in 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 51, being limited to any step which may affect the discharge under that Act. Hocken v. Browne, 4 Bing. N. C. 400.

An insolvent was ordered to be discharged, except as to two debts, and as to those not until after sixteen months from the filing his petition; held, that such debts were within the very words of s. 16 of 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, as to which an adjudication could be made; and that one of those creditors having subsequently commenced an action, the not proceeding to declare within two terms did not render the prisoner supersedeable. Buzzard v. Bousfield, 4 M. & W. 368; and 7 Dowl. 1.

An insolvent, in his schedule, states a debt due from him to be 10*l.*, and it is really 32*l.*; whether this misstatement, if arising from mistake, be aided by the 63d sect. of the Insolvent Debtors' Act, 7 Geo. 4, c. 57? Lambert v. Hall, 9 C. & P. 506.

A. covenants to insure his life and pay the premiums, and on default, to repay the premiums paid by the plaintiff; A. is liable in respect of premiums paid by B. after A.'s discharge as an insolvent. Bennett v. Burton, 4 P. & D. 313.

The drawer of a bill of exchange, accepted by the defendant for a sum consisting partly of a debt from which he had been discharged under the Insolvent Debtors' Act, 7 G. 4, c. 57, and partly of a new debt, is entitled to recover on the bill as to amount of the new debt; therefore a plea of discharge under sect. 61 of that Act, as to the old debt, is no answer to the whole of a count on such a bill. Sheerman v. Thompson, 11 A. & E. 1027.

Where the insolvent, being remanded for a period, agreed to give a bill for part of the debt of a particular creditor, and an I. O. U. for the costs to the attorney; held, that being in truth securities for an old debt, he could not be sued on either. Ashley v. Killick, 5 M. & W. 509.

The schedule of an insolvent, showing the date of his petition and statement of his liabilities, is inadmissible to prove that a previous assignment was executed with the intention of so petitioning. Peacock v. Harris, 6 Nev. & M. 854.

A prisoner remanded under the Insolvent Debtors' Act may be detained by a writ of capias, without a Judge's order, or a writ of summons having previously issued. Growcock v. Waller, 8 Dowl. 146.

By a provision in an agreement to purchase a business for a sum to be paid by two instalments, the purchaser had a right, within a limited time before the completion of the contract, to give notice of abandonment, and to have the sum paid returned; held, in an action to recover it back, that it was no defence that the defendant had been discharged under the Insolvent Act, the notice having been given within the time limited, it being a contingency not capable of being valued at the time of such discharge. Brown v. Fleetwood, 5 M. & W. 19; and 7 Dowl. 386.

The right reserved to creditors of payment out of future effects, does not prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations. Browning v. Reid, 5 M. & W. 117; and 7 Dowl. 398.

Where damages in an action of tort have been ascertained by verdict before filing the petition, under s. 50 of 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, the insolvent is entitled to be discharged from the damages and costs. Goldsmid v. Lewis, 3 Bing. N. C. 46; and 3 Sc. 369.

Where after a former, but previous to a second discharge, the insolvent became entitled to a legacy, held, that as future-acquired property, it could only be obtained by the first set of assignees by entering up judgment, with leave of the Court; and that it passed under the second assignment as a chose in action, to which the insolvent was then entitled. Curtis v. Sheffield, 8 Sim. 176.

Where, after an acquittal on an indictment against an insolvent for omitting specified articles out of his schedule, a second was preferred, in substance the same, but including the omission of additional articles; held, that the plea of autrefois acquit was not a good defence to the whole of the latter indictment; but the Judge strongly advised the jury to acquit, unless they were satisfied that the omission was under essentially different circumstances. R. v. Champneys, 2 Mo. & R. 26.

INSPECTION, p. 565.

A dispute arose between the freemen of the new corporation of Beverley and the corporation, with respect to the right of cutting down trees on certain pastures formerly granted to the burgesses of the old corporation of Beverley, and an injunction to restrain the cutting down of the trees having been obtained by the corporation, a mandamus was granted at the instance of the freemen to permit them to inspect the deeds, &c. concerning the pastures in question, and which were in possession of the new corporation, with a view to dissolve the injunction. R. v. The Mayor of Beverley, 8 Dowl. 140.

A lessee of a corporation elected to pay an increased rent pursuant to the finding of a jury under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 97, and indorsed the finding of the jury on his part of the original lease. In an action for the increased rent, the lessee was compelled to produce his part of the lease for the inspection of the corporation, and to allow a copy of the indorsement to be taken, although it was admitted that the original lease was still in the possession of the corporation, as well as the inquisition taken before the jury. The Mayor of Arundel v. Holmes, 8 Dowl. 118.

A creditor on bond of a canal company, the act of incorporation entitling proprietors "and others interested in the said navigation," to inspect the books of the company, was held to be within the spirit of the enactment. Pontet v. Basingstoke Canal Company, 2 Bing. N. C. 370; and 2 Sc. 543.

Under the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, the town-clerk is not compellable to allow two persons at the same time to inspect the voting papers, or to give two of such papers at the same time to one person; but he is bound to allow a voter who brings a list of his own to compare it with the voting paper produced for inspection by the town-clerk, and marking his own list. R. v. Arnold, 6 N. & M. 152.

Inspection of a deed in the hands of the defendant will not be granted to a plaintiff for the purpose of moving for a new trial. Wood v. Morewood, 2 Scott, N. S. 204.

Where a Judge at chambers had made an order upon the plaintiffs to permit the defendant to inspect and take a copy of a promissory note upon which the action was brought, the Court refused to grant a rule to rescind that order, although it was sworn that no special grounds were stated at chambers upon which the order was founded. Woolner v. Devereux, 9 Dowl. 672.

Under the 101st section of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, in order to obtain inspection of the assignees' accounts, the course is to apply to the Commissioners to summon the assignees, and to require them to produce all books, &c., relating to the bankruptcy, ex parte Granger, 1 Mont. & M. 289.

To obtain the production of documents for the purpose of taking copies, the party applying must show that only one instrument was executed. Griffith v. Smythe, 8 Dowl. 491.

Where the lessee assigned his lease by way of mortgage, the lessor having no counterpart, he was held to be entitled to compel the mortgagee to produce it for inspection on an ejectment for forfeiture. Doe d. Morris v. Roe, 3 Cr. M. & R. 207.

Inspection was granted of an agreement on which the action for money had and received was founded. Charnock v. Lumley, 5 Sc. 438.

On an order for production of documents and papers, held that a case laid before counsel, as privileged, was to be excepted. Nias v. Northern and Eastern Railway Company, 2 Keene, 76. See Bolton v. Corporation of Liverpool, 1 M. & K. 88.

Plea in assumpsit on bills, that the defendant, if liable, was only so as surety; held, that he was not entitled to inspection of a deed, by which it was said time had been given to the principal, to which the surety was not a party. Smith v. Winter, 3 M. & W. 309; and 6 Dowl. 386.

Where the defendant on an application at chambers referred in his affidavit to a paper, but not annexed; held, that the plaintiff was, nevertheless, entitled to take a copy of such paper. Tebbutt v. Ambler, 7 Dowl. 674.

Where books of the plaintiff came into the defendant's hands as agent, inspection was ordered, but the Court refused an order for delivering them up. Jones v. Palmer, 4 Dowl. 446.

Where the papers and documents are numerous, the Court will qualify the order for production and inspection, &c. to be at the office of the party's attorney. Crease v. Penprase, 2 Younge & C. 527.

In an action for work and labour, a Judge has no power to make an order for the plaintiff and his witnesses to enter the defendant's premises, to inspect the work done. Turquand v. Strand Union Guardians, 8 Dowl. 201.

In an action upon a contract for building a chapel, the Court refused a view. Newham v. Taite, 6 Sc. 574.

In an action by the owner to recover contribution in respect of general average, held that the defendants (not underwriters), although entitled to inspection of the statement of such average, were not so of the documents from which it was drawn up. Tunzell v. Allen. 7 Dowl. 496.

The circumstance of an attorney being a corporator, does not entitle him to an order to inspect their books, with the view of proving his retainer. Stevens v. Berwick Mayor, &c., 4 Dowl. 277.

INTENTION, p. 571.

Where the defendant, indicted on 2 Will. 4, c. 45, s. 58 (Reform Act), for a false statement at the poll, that he had the same qualification for which his name was originally inserted on the register, and it appeared that he had ceased to occupy that tenement, but did at the time of the poll occupy another of the same value; held, that he had ceased thereby to have the right to vote, but that the term, "same qualification," being equivocal, the jury, in order to convict the party, must be satisfied that he was stating what he knew to be false. R. v. Dodsworth, 2 Mo. & R. 72.

Where a stamp distributor, on renewing a post-horse licence, altered the former as to the date of the year, held, that it was a question for the jury if fraudulently done, although by the words of the statute, 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 120, fraud was not made an ingredient in the felony, yet, that to make it such, there must have been a guilty intention. R. v. Allday, 8 C. & P. 136.

Where an overseer wilfully disobeys the provisions of the Act, as in inserting the names of persons in the list not entitled to vote, it is not necessary that he does it from any corrupt motive. Tarr v. M'Gahey, 7 C. & P. 380.

Where the workmen of a mine proprietor by his orders stopped up an airway affecting an adjoining mine; held, that if they acted in the belief that he had the right, although they might be all guilty as trespassers, yet they could not be guilty of felony within 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 6: aliter, if they knew that the act was maliciously directed by their employer. R. v. James, 8 C. & P. 131.

INTEREST.

A party is entitled to interest upon a judgment from the time that execution is delayed by a writ of error, and allowed at the rate of four per cent. Langridge v. Levi, 7 Dowl. 27; and 4 M. & W. 337.

Where, after the writ issued in an action on an attorney's bill, it was referred to taxation at the instance of the defendants, without any terms as to the allowance of interest, held that although under the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 34, the jury only can give it, the plaintiff was not entitled to proceed in the action to have it assessed. Berrington v. Phillips, 3 Cr. M. & R. 48; 1 T. & G. 322; and 4 Dowl. 758.

Where, upon a contract of sale of an estate, the money was to be paid by instalments, with interest at 5 per cent., and it was afterwards agreed that the last instalment, if not paid at the appointed time, should remain on mortgage at 4½ per cent., held, that the prior instalments not being paid nor any mortgage executed, that the higher interest continued payable on the last instalment. Attwood v. Taylor, 1 Man. & Gr. 279; and 1 Sc. N. S. 611. See further as to a mortgagee's title to interest pending the suit, ex parte Pollard, 1 M. D. & D. 264.

On a judgment affirmed on writ of error, the House of Lords gives interest from the day of its affirmance by the Exchequer Chamber pursuant to the provisions of the stat. 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 30. Garland v. Carlisle, 5 Clark & F. App. Cas. 354.

INTERPLEADER ACT, p. 579.

An issue under the Interpleader Act is for the purpose of informing the conscience of the Court as to whether the plaintiff or the defendant is entitled to the goods in dispute, therefore the Court will not allow either party to give in evidence the jus tertii. Carne v. Brice, 8 Dowl. 884.

The plaintiff sold to the defendant a rick of hay belonging to a deceased person; S. afterwards took out administration to the effects of the deceased and claimed the price of the hay; held that the defendant could not be relieved under the first section of the Interpleader Act. Jones v. Pritchard, 8 Dowl. 890.

IRELAND.

Where a local dock Act imposed a duty on goods imported from "parts beyond the sea," held, that goods imported from Ireland were liable to the duties. Battersby v. Kirk, 2 Bing. N. C. 585.

JURISDICTION, p. 579.

Where the quarter sessions of a county occur while the judge of assize is proceeding with the trial of prisoners in that county after the grand jury at the assizes have been discharged, the better course is (as is said) for the quarter sessions not to proceed with the trial of any prisoners, but to dispose of all their other business, and then to adjourn to a future day. 9 C. & P. 792.

The court of the mayor of Liverpool not being a superior court, a plea of a suit for the same cause pending there, is no answer to the action in the superior courts. Laughton v. Taylor, 6 M. & W. 695; and 8 Dowl. 776.

A statute (poor law) enacts that on application made to magistrates they shall proceed to adjudicate, &c.: on the trial of an indictment for disobedience of the order, it is essential to prove that such application was made in order to shew that the magistrates had jurisdiction so to adjudicate. R. v. Stamper; Cor. Parke B. York Spr. Ass. 1839.

JURY.

A jury are not bound to find any other than a general verdict, although the Judge direct them to find specially as to a particular fact, on which a legal question may be raised; and where they refused, the Court would not disturb the verdict. Devizes, Mayor, &c. v. Clark, 3 Ad. & Ell. 506.

The 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, (Jury Act,) does not affect the right of the Crown not to be put to be called on for cause of peremptory challenge until the panel is exhausted; a prisoner having challenged peremptorily twenty jurors, cannot be allowed to withdraw one, and challenge another remaining juror instead. R. v. Parry, 7 C. & P. 837.

The Crown is entitled to challenge until the panel is gone through, and then, if not a full jury, must show cause; but it is no cause of challenge that the juror was a client of the prisoner (an attorney), nor that he had visited him whilst in prison; although a prisoner has had his full number of peremptory challenges, he may examine other jurors, subsequently called, as to their qualification. R. v. Geach, 9 C. & P. 949.

Where the defendant was aware of the mode in which the bill had been found by the grand jury, pleaded to it, and was found guilty, the Court afterwards refused to quash the indictment on the ground that twenty-five grand jurymen were sworn, and that thirteen were against the finding, as he might bring error either in law or in fact; but the Court will not receive affidavits of the jury of what passes at the time of the finding of the bill; held, also, that the correct number to be sworn is twenty-three only. R. v. Marsh, 1 N. & P. 187.

JUSTICES, p. 580.

The acts of a justice who has not taken the oath of the sessions, nor delivered the certificate required, are not void, and a person seizing goods under his warrant, is not a trespasser. Margate Pier Company v. Hannam, 3 B. & A. 266.

See further as to jurisdiction, Sharpe v. Aspinall, 10 B. & C. 47; R. v. Sanders, 1 Saund. 263; 2 & 3 Vict. c. 88.

(Page 581, note a.)

See in Trespass against Surveyors of Highways, Witham Navigation Company v. Pedley, 4 B. & Ad. 69. Lowen v. Kaye, 4 B. & C. 3.

Trespass against justices upon an illegal conviction under the Highway Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, s. 75; the clause giving 21 days' notice of action, does not supersede the necessity for the notice under the stat. 24 Geo. 2, c. 24. Rix v. Boston, 4 P. & D. 182.

(Form of Conviction, p. 585.)

A conviction under the Vagrant Act, 5 Geo. 4, c. 83, is not vitiated by the omission of the word "past" before "of Great Britain," in the recital of the title of the statute as directed in the form given by the Act; 2dly. pursuing that form, it is not necessary to state the evidence on which the conviction proceeded, and 3dly, an allegation that the person convicted was of sufficient ability to maintain his family, and did neglect to do so, whereby his wife became chargeable to the parish, is sufficiently certain. Nixon v. Nanney, 1 G. & D. 370.

Where a conviction on 11 Geo. 4, and 1 Will. 4, c. 64, and 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 85, charged that the defendant kept his house open for the sale of beer, and did sell beer and permitted the same to be drunk on his premises, after the hours fixed by the justices, and was fined in the penalty of 40 s. for "the offence aforesaid;" it was held to be bad, as it charged three offences, and the party could not protect himself by it, if any fresh information were laid against him for any one of the same offences. Newman v. Bendyshe, 2 P. & D. 340; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 11.

A conviction under the Pilot Act, 6 Geo. 4, c. 125, s. 70, for continuing in charge of a ship after a licensed pilot had offered to take charge of it, is bad if it do not show knowledge of the offer. Chaney v. Payne, 1 G. & D. 348. See R. v. Chaney, 6 Dowl. 281. Peake v. Cavington, 2 Br. & B. 399.

If either the adjudication of the fact which constitutes the crime, or the judgment thereon, be imperfect, the conviction is bad; where therefore a conviction was framed on 1 Will. 4, c. 32 (Game), which directs the penalty to be paid to the parish officer, and by him to be paid over for the use of the county rate, (but which, by 5 & 6 Will 4, c. 20, s. 2, was directed as to one moiety to be paid to the informer, and the other as before,) and adjudicated the whole penalty to be paid to the overseer, to be applied according to the direction of the statute in such case, &c.; held, that such conviction was bad, and that an imprisonment until so paid was illegal, and that the justices were liable in trespass. Griffith v. Harries, 2 M. & W. 325.

A conviction by justices upon their own view for a forcible detainer, under 8 Hen. 6, c. 9, not averring an unlawful entry, and none being proved, but only an unlawful ejection, is bad. R. v. Wilson, 5 N. & M. 164.

Justices have no jurisdiction under 6 Geo. 3, c. 25, to determine disputes between masters and household servants. Kitchen v. Shaw, 1 N. & P. 791.

(Time of Drawing up, p. 592.)

Where justices had returned a conviction which was supposed to be objectionable, they may draw up and return another, according to the truth, and supported by the facts of the case: the taking by the justices an indemnity from the party calling for the exercise of their jurisdiction, held improper (per Alderson, B.) Selwood v. Mount, 9 C. &. P. 75.

After a conviction by justices has been removed by certiorari, and quashed in Queen's Bench, or by sessions on appeal, another conviction cannot effectually be drawn up. P. C. Chaney v. Payne, 1 G. & D. 357.

Convictions have always been treated as records, and before the statute 4 Geo. 2, c. 26, were required, when filed to be in Latin. Ib.

(Justification under a Commitment, p. 593.)

An order in bastardy was made in duplicate, one regular and deposited in the parish chest, and the other, which was served on the reputed father, having inserted in it by mistake the mother's name, in lieu of the plaintiff's, but he was told at the time that he was ordered to pay, &c.; in trespass against justices for having committed him for disobedience of the order, it was held, that there being a valid order produced before the defendant, and upon which he acted, he was justified in the commitment. Wilkins v. Hemsworth, 3 N. & P. 55.

(Commitment for Examination.)

Where the defendant, a magistrate, meeting the constables having in custody the plaintiff on a charge of drunkenness, ordered him to be taken back to the lock-up house, and he would see him the next day, and the plaintiff was kept confined until then, when he was ordered by the defendant to be fined; held, that it was his duty either to have gone into the case, or, if he could not do so, not to have interfered, but have let the officer take him before another magistrate, and that the action of trespass was maintainable; he had no right to imprison for breach of the peace without hearing the charge. Edwards v. Ferris, 7 C. & P. 542.

Where a party was charged with felony in unlawfully cutting trees, although the value turning out to be under 20*s.*, and therefore the offence not amounting to felony, it was held that the magistrate was authorised to remand for a reasonable time for re-examination; the reasonableness is a question for the jury. Cave v. Mountain, 1 Sc. N. S. 132.

(Previous Summons, p. 589.)

Where rates were imposed by a local paving Act, and an appeal given to the commissioners, and from them to the sessions, and in case of refusal or neglect, it was declared that it should be lawful for any justice, by warrant, to authorise the collector to distrain; held, that it was not obligatory on the justices to issue such warrant without a previous summons, and a rule for a mandamus was discharged with costs. R. v. Stafford Just., 5 N. & M. 94; S. C. R. v. Hughes, 3 Ad. & Ell. 425.

A warrant of distress against an overseer for not paying over the balance in his hands, omitting to set out the summons, hearing and refusal to pay, was held to be bad, and the magistrates and officers executing it, liable in trespass. Harris v. Stuart, 7 C. & P. 779; questioning the form in Burn's Justice, ed. 26.

(Commitment, Warrant, Order, &c., pp. 591. 593.)

Where the warrant of commitment of parties charged with riot under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 8, only stated that they had begun to pull down and demolish "in part" a dwelling-house, charging also other acts of bailable misdemeanor; held, that as regarded the former charge, it was defective, and the parties therefore admitted to bail. R. v. Lowden, 7 Dowl. 538.

An order of justices for the payment of a weekly sum for the maintenance of a father by the son, describing the application to have been made to the justices of K. by the overseers of the parish of M. in the county of K., to have an order made on T. G. of the parish of M. in the same county, &c., and proceeding to order the said T. G. to pay, &c., was held sufficiently to show that T. G. was dwelling within the jurisdiction of the justices, and it was held that, by making their order on the said T. G., the justices had adopted those words, and adjudicated that he dwelt there. R. v. Toke, 3 N. & P. 323.

An order of justices made upon the complaint of churchwardens de facto although not de jure, is good; nor are they precluded from making it by the circumstance of a suit having been commenced for the rate in the Ecclesiastical Court, but abandoned before the complaint made. R. v. St. Clement's (Ipswich) Justices, 3 P. & D. 481.

An order of justices requiring the officer of a friendly society to pay money to a member, must expressly find that such party is a member entitled to the money, and that the party on whom the order is made is at the time an officer of the society; and held, that the order being directed to him, describing him as "steward," &c., and the recital of the complaint on oath, stating him such officer, was not sufficient; neither was such recital by the claimant, stating himself a member and entitled, and the money due, nor the direction to pay the amount "so due and owing as aforesaid," sufficient to dispense with such finding; and a distress founded upon an order so deficient being bad, the justices were held to be liable in trespass. Day v. King, 5 Ad. & Ell. 359.

To a writ of habeas corpus directed to the serjeant-at-arms of the House of Commons commanding him to bring up the bodies of W. E., esq., and J. W, esq., the following warrant was returned: "Whereas the House of Commons have this day resolved that W. E., esq., and J. W., esq., sheriffs of Middlesex, having been guilty of a contempt and breach of the privileges of this House, be committed to the custody of the serjeant-at-arms attending this House; these are therefore to take into custody the bodies of the said W. E. and J. W., and them safely to keep during the pleasure of this House, for which this shall be your sufficient warrant. C. S. Lefevre, Speaker."—Held that the Speaker's warrant, stating the adjudication of the contempt generally, without setting out the particular facts from which the contempt arose, the Court had no power to discharge the sheriffs from custody; otherwise, where the facts consituting the supposed contempt are set out in the warrant, or upon the return. Held, secondly, that the adjudication of the contempt was sufficiently stated, though by way of recital. Thirdly, that it sufficiently appeared that the contempt was committed against the House of Commons, and that the Speaker had authority to issue his warrant. R. v. Evans and Wheelton, Sheriffs of Middlesex, 8 Dowl. 451.

Where on the face of the commitment it appeared that the party had engaged to perform a particular work, it was held to be a case wholly distinct from that of entering into a service in the ordinary sense, and not within 4 Geo. 4, c. 34, s. 3, and the justice therefore no jurisdiction. Johnson, ex parte, 7 Dowl. 702. And see Hardy v. Ryle, 9 B. & Cr. 603; and Lancaster v. Greaves, Ib. 628.

A commitment on 4 Geo. 4, c. 34, s. 3, for leaving work unfinished, omitted to state that the contract was entered into, the work not done, or the party found within the jurisdiction of the justice; held, that as being consistent with the plaintiff's never having appeared at all before the defendant, the latter had no defence in an action for false imprisonment. Johnson v. Read, 6 M. & W. 124.

(Distress Warrant, p. 591.)

A distress warrant for non-payment of costs is bad if it do not show on the face of it an order of sessions for the payment of a specific sum as costs. Sellwood v. Mount, 1 G. & D. 358.

A warrant of apprehension was issued by a Justice of Peace, which did not recite any information upon oath, and it appeared that in point of fact the information was not sworn in his presence. Held that he was liable in trespass. Caudle v. Seymour, 1 G. & D. 454.

Quære, Whether a warrant is not totally void which does not recite any information, and which directs an apprehension "to answer all such matters and things as in Her Majesty's behalf shall be objected against him by A. B. for an assault committed on," &c. Ib.

(Defence by a Constable under a Warrant, p. 594.)

The perusal of the original warrant (which has been retained by the gaoler for his own production) is dispensed with by a plaintiff, who on being informed of the fact, does not object to the non-production. Atkins v. Kilby, 4 P. & D. 145.

In an action of false imprisonment against constables who had carried the plaintiff to gaol on a justice's warrant for non-payment of arrears on an order of maintenance (stat. 49 Geo. 3, c. 68, s. 3), it was objected:—

1. That the warrant, though purporting to be made on a hearing at which plaintiff was present, had not been made then, but suspended for a month after (to give to plaintiff an opportunity of consulting his friends); and that it was issued at the end of the month, on plaintiff's default, after fresh demand, without further hearing, and when plaintiff was in a different county from that in which the justice acted.

2dly. That the warrant being indorsed by a justice of the county in which plaintiff was, that the indorsement did not purport to be made upon such proof on oath as stat. 24 Geo. 2, c. 55, s. 1, requires, nor was it shown by evidence that such proof had been given.

Quære, Whether these were valid objections; but it was held that, at all events, they resolved themselves into a denial of jurisdiction, and that the warrant, though made without jurisdiction, entitled the constables to the benefit of stat. 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, s. 6. Atkins v. Kilby, 11 Ad. & Ell. 777; S. C. 4 P. & D. 145.

The warrant required the constable forthwith to take plaintiff to the house of correction at W., and there deliver him to the keeper, who was to keep him to hard labour for three months, unless he should sooner pay the maintenance to the overseers. Plaintiff tendered the arrears to the constable at T., where he was arrested, and to the overseers of B. (the complaining parish), at B., to which place he was taken on his way to W. Held, that the constable and overseer were not authorised to accept such tender.

B. was eighteen miles out of the direct road to W., and the plaintiff desired to be taken by the direct road. The Judge, in summing up, left it to the jury to say whether the route by B., though circuitous, was the most convenient; and they found that it was. Held, that the summing up was proper, and that the finding entitled the defendants to a verdict; it not having appeared by the evidence that plaintiff had in fact been put to any unnecessary inconvenience. Atkins v. Kilby, 11 A. & E. 777; 4 P. & D. 145.

(24 Geo. 2, c. 44, s. 6, p. 600.)

The plaintiff having demanded and received a copy of the warrant of distress under the Land-tax Act is not bound to join, as defendants, the commissioners who issued the warrant, the statute 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, s. 6, being inapplicable, though the commissioners were also acting magistrates for the division. Charleton v. Alway, 11 A. & E. 993.

The defendant, a police constable, took the plaintiff into custody on a charge of wilful and malicious trespass, he not having seen the fact; having acted under a bonâ fide and supposed authority of the statute, he is entitled to notice of action. Ballinger v. Ferris, 1 M. & W. 628; and 1 Tyr. & Gr. 920.

(Arrest by Private Persons, p. 603.)

A private person, who gives another into custody on a charge of having committed an offence against the statute 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, (the Larceny Consolidation Act) is not entitled to notice of action under the 75th section of that Act, as that section only applies to constables and other officers, and persons of that kind. Brooker v. Field, 9 C. & P. 651.

(Costs.)

The obtaining the certificate of the Judge who tries the cause is a condition precedent to the right of a magistrate who obtains a verdict in an action brought by him for an act done in his judicial capacity, for double costs, under 7 Jac. 1, c. 5. Penney v. Slade, 5 Bing. N. C. 469; and 7 Dowl. 440.

LARCINY, p. 604.

(Venue.)

Goods were feloniously stolen in France, and found in the prisoner's custody in this country; the jury have no jurisdiction to convict. R. v. Madge, 9 C. & P. 29.

And see R. v. Prowse, Ry. & M. 349.

(Variance, p. 607.)

An indictment for stealing "a sheep," was held to be supported by proof of stealing a ram or ewe, although 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 25, specifies "ram, ewe, sheep or lamb," the word "sheep" being a generic term, including all the others. R. v. M'Culley, 2 Moody, 34.

(Value.)

To make a thing the subject of larciny it is necessary that it should be of some value, but it need not be of some assignable value in the coin of the realm, that is to say of a farthing at the least. R. v. Morris, 9 C. & P. 347.

(Ownership, p. 607.)

A prisoner was employed as master of a coal vessel. The custom of the trade was that he should receive two-thirds of the freight. He took the whole. Held that he was not a joint proprietor with the master, and that he was properly convicted of stealing the master's third. Anon. 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 258.

A servant sent out to collect monies was robbed before he returned home; Alderson, B. was inclined to think that the money was improperly laid in the indictment for this robbery as the property of the master, seeing that it had never come to his hands. R. v. Rudick and others, 8 C. & P. 237. Qu.

(Consent to part with the Possession, p. 607.)

The prisoner, a servant of the prosecutor, gave away, without the authority or knowledge of his master, various articles of food; this was held to amount to larciny. R. v. White, 9 C. & P. 344.

So where the prisoner, the servant of a party drawing a cheque, received it to deliver to a third person, and appropriated the proceeds to his own use. R. v Heath, 2 Moody, 33.

So where the prisoner, not being the servant of the prosecutor, was entrusted to carry a parcel containing notes to a coach-office, and he opened the parcel and abstracted the notes. R. v. Jenkins, 9 C. & P. 38.

But where the prisoner, being a salesman as well as drover, had been entrusted to take cattle to the salesman of the prosecutor at Smithfield, but had authority to sell them on the road if he could, and he drove them to the market, and sold them there, and applied the money to his own use; it was held, that being the agent, and not the servant, he could neither be convicted of larciny nor embezzlement. R. v. Goodbody, 8 C. & P. 665.

So where the prisoner had received a horse from the prosecutor to agist, and been paid for one week, it was held that the subsequent sale of it did not amount to larciny. R. v. Smith, 1 Ry. & M. 473.

Where the owner intending to sell his horse, sent it to a fair by his servant, but with no authority to dispose of it in any way till he himself had arrived, and the prisoner having asked the price went up to two men with whom he talked, and the latter then came up and persuaded the servant to part with the possession on an exchange for another of little value, and a sum of money, which they went away without paying and never returned; held, that if the jury believed the prisoner and the others to be acting together to obtain the possession from the servant under colour of an exchange, but intending all the while to steal the horse, it amounted to a stealing by the prisoner. R. v. Sheppard, 9 C. & P. 121.

So where the prisoner was hired to drive a heifer from Y. to M., and he absconded with it after receiving the animal and the hire, sold it, and was not found for a long time after, it was held, that the possession being the possession of a servant only, he was properly convicted of stealing. R. v. Jackson, 2 Moody, 32.

So where the prosecutor sent the prisoner, a person not in his service, with pigs in a cart to show to a purchaser, and to state the price, but without authority to receive the price, and the prisoner went off with them and sold them elsewhere, Alderson, B. stated to the jury, that the question was whether he was a bailee merely or a servant; and that if the felonious intent arose whilst acting in the latter capacity, he was guilty of larciny. R. v. Harvey, 9 C. & P. 353.

Where the carter of the prosecutor took, beyond what was allowed for provender, two trusses of hay, which the ostler at a public-house where they stopped, assisted in removing from the cart; it was held to amount to a stealing by the carter, and a receiving by the ostler. R. v. Gruncell and Another, 9 C. & P. 365.

Where a person employed by the prosecutor as a town traveller, having no authority to sell goods, but merely to collect money, took an order for two articles, but entered one only in the order-book, and the prosecutor's carman delivered both, and entered the second in the invoice, the town traveller afterwards receiving the whole amount, but only accounting to the prosecutor for the price of the first; it was held to be larciny, and not embezzlement; and the prisoners were accordingly acquitted upon an indictment charging the former with embezzlement, and the latter with being an accessary after the fact. R. v. Wilson and Another, 9 C. & P. 27.

Where the prosecutrix hired a glass-coach for the day, of which the prisoner was the driver, it was held that he was not her "servant" within the 7 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 46, relating to larciny by servants. R. v. Haydon, 7 C. & P. 445.

Where the prisoner, a boatman, received staves from the prisoner's vessel, to carry on shore, and he concealed some, and afterwards removed them to his mother's; held, that it was a case of bailment, although the prosecutor's servants went with the prisoner's boat, as they were under the prisoner's control; but that the secreting and removal amounted to breaking bulk, and if done with intent to convert to his own use, to constitute a larciny. R. v. Howell, 7 C. & P. 325.

So where the prosecutrix asked the prisoner, a casual acquaintance, to put a letter into the post containing money, and the latter broke the seal, and abstracted the money, it was held to be larciny. R. v. Jones, 7 C. & P. 151.

(To part with the Property, p. 607.)

Where in a case of ring-dropping the prosecutor parted with his money in the purchase of the prisoner's share, it was held not to be a case of larciny. R. v. Wilson, 8 C. & P. 111.

Where a party about to receive a sum of money took with him a receipt ready signed, and the party having to pay the money laid down part, and asked to look at the receipt, and then refused to pay the remainder of the money or to return the receipt, and the prosecutor stated that he should not have parted with it unless he had been paid in full; it was held to constitute a larciny of the receipt. R. v. Rodway, 9 C. & P. 784.

The prosecutor gave a sovereign to the prisoner to get changed, with which he never returned; held, that having parted with it, never expecting to receive it back, the case did not amount to larciny. R. v. Thomas, 9 C. & P. 741.

Where a party purchased at a sale by auction a bureau, which was found to have money in a secret drawer, it was held, that unless it was expressed to be a sale only of the bureau, the abstraction of the money could not amount to a larciny; aliter, if the buyer had such express notice, and he had no reason to believe that anything more than the article itself had been sold. Merry v. Green, 7 M. & W. 623.

(Felonious Intention.)

Upon a defence by a servant charged with stealing, that he pledged the property with intent to redeem and replace it, Gurney, B. left it to the jury to say whether the property was taken originally with a felonious intent, but intimated his disapprobation that the doctrine of an intention to redeem property should be allowed to prevail. R. v. Phetheon, 9 C. & P. 552.

Where the prisoner hired a horse and gig of the prosecutor, which he immediately offered for sale; held, that there having been no actual conversion of the property, the prisoner could not be convicted of larciny. R. v. Brooks, 8 C. & P. 295. Qu.

The prisoner selected as for purchase a pin, and it was set aside for him, and he afterwards was seen to take it away with him in the absence of the shopman; a bill was however sent, including the price of the pin; held, that the jury were to say whether it was taken with a felonious intent, or whether credit was not given for it. R. v. Box, 9 C. & P. 126.

The opening a letter, and detaining it, merely from curiosity or political motive, is a trespass only, and not a felony. R. v. Godfrey, 8 C. & P. 563.

(Presumptive Evidence, p. 614.)

Where the articles stolen were not such as pass from hand to hand, as ends of unfinished woollen cloths, their being found in the possession of the prisoner two months after they were stolen, was held to be sufficient to call upon him to show how he came by the property, and to be a circumstance for the jury. R. v. Partridge, 7 C. & P. 551.

(Robbery.)

On an indictment for robbery, the jury having found the prisoner "guilty of an assault, but without any intention to commit any felony;" it was held, that the prisoner might be convicted of the assault, and punished, under the 7 Will. 4, and 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 11. R. v. Ellis, 8 C. & P. 654.

So, where the indictment charged an assault, and the wilfully administering of deleterious drugs. R. v. Sutton, 8 C. & P. 660.

Where two persons were robbed, and violence used towards them, whilst in the same carriage, and there were separate indictments, it was held, that on the trial of the first, the prosecutor in the second might be asked as to his loss of a watch found on one of the prisoners, but not as to the violence used towards him. R. v. Rooney, 7 C. & P. 517.

(7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, ss. 17 & 23.)

The luggage of a passenger is within the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 17, against stealing goods and merchandize on board any vessel. R. v. Wright, 7 C. & P. 159.

On an indictment under the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 23, for stealing title deeds, the taking must be shown to be such as would be required to constitute larceny, if the deeds had been the subject of larceny. R. v. John, 7 C. & P. 324.

(Sheep-stealing.)

Where the prisoner inflicted a wound with intent to kill and steal the carcase; held, that the animal not dying until two days afterwards, did not alter the case, and that a conviction for killing, with intent to steal the carcase, was proper. R. v. Sutton, 2 Moody, 29; 8 C. & P. 291.

(Stealing Fixtures.)

On an indictment for stealing lead affixed to a building, &c. the jury found that the prisoner took the lead when severed and lying at a considerable distance from the building; held, under these circumstances, that the prisoner must be acquitted, and that he could not be found guilty of a simple larceny. R. v. Gooch, 8 C. & P. 294.

(Stealing in Shops.)

A shop, within the meaning of 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 15, and 1 Vict. c. 90, must be more than a mere workshop; it must be a shop for the sale of articles. R. v. Sanders, 9 C. & P. 79.

(7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 64, s. 13.)

The offence must be committed in or upon the coach, to bring it within 7 Geo. 4, c. 64, s. 13. Sharpe's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 233.

(Embezzlement, p. 615.)

It is not sufficient to prove generally a deficiency in account, but some specific sum must be proved to have been embezzled. R. v. Lloyd Jones, 8 C. & P. 288.

Where it was the duty of the prisoner, a banker's clerk, to keep the money received in a box, and make entries of his receipts; and upon his being called on to produce his money, he threw himself upon his employer's mercy, and said he was 900*l.* short; it was held that upon an indictment for embezzling monies to a large amount, to wit, 500*l.*, he was properly convicted, although no evidence was offered of the persons of whom received nor the sort of money abstracted; and the judgment was afterwards affirmed by the Judges. R. v. Grove, 7 C. & P. 635; and 1 Ry. & M. 447.

A collector of the poor's-rates, church and rector's rates, appointed in vestry under a local Act, is properly described as servant to the committee of management, under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 47. R. v. Callahan, 8 C. & P. 154. And see R. v. Jenson, Mood. 434.

On an indictment against the clerk of a savings bank, held that he was properly described as clerk to the trustees, although he was appointed by the managers. R. v. Jenson, 1 Ry. & M. 434.

So where are secretary of a society received monies from a member to be paid over to the trustees, although usually received by a steward, and he fraudulently withheld it; held, that it might be stated as the property of the trustees, and he be deemed their clerk and servant. R. v. Hall, 1 Ry. & M. 474.

Where A., a coach proprietor, horsed the coach from H. to W., driving it himself, but was liable to his co-proprietors for the receipts, employed the prisoner to drive occasionally for him, giving him all the fees, and it was his duty to account for all the sums received to his employer; held, that the abstracting and not accounting for part was embezzlement, and that he was properly described as the servant of A., and the monies embezzled as the property of A. R. v. White, 8 C. & P. 742.

The omission of a clerk to enter money received by him in his books is insufficient to support an indictment for embezzlement, where there has been no denial by him of the receipt. R. v. Jones, 7 C. & P. 833.

Where money was paid to the prisoner under a supposition that he was authorized to receive it, but which he was not; held, that the receiving did not amount to either larciny or embezzlement. R. v. Hawtin, 7 C. & P. 281. And see R. v. Crawley, cited ib.

Where the party charged with embezzling was clerk to a society, binding themselves by oaths of an unlawful nature, within the meaning of the 37 Geo. 3, c. 123, and 57 Geo. 3, c. 19; it was held, that the indictment laying the property in persons so unlawfully combined could not be supported. R. v. Hunt, 8 C. & P. 642.

The 7 & 8 Geo. 4, s. 29, c. 46, does not apply to the cases of clerks in the public service, but such offence is against 2 Will. 4, c. 4; and it is sufficient if the act of embezzlement takes place after the person guilty of it has ceased to be such clerk, if he received the property embezzled when in that capacity. R. v. Lovell, 2 Mo. & R. 236.

(Receiver, p. 617.)

Where an indictment charged in the first count, that two persons killed a sheep with intent to steal the hind leg, and in the second, that a third person received —lbs. of mutton, "so stolen as aforesaid," it was held, that the second count could not be supported, but that a third count, stating that such third person received the mutton stolen from "a certain evil-disposed person," was good. R. v. Wheeler & others, 7 C. & P. 171.

LIBEL, p. 617.

Slander for speaking of the plaintiff the following words: "I will bet 5*l.* to 1*l.* that Mr. J. (the plaintiff,) was in a sponging-house for debt within the last fortnight, and I can produce the man who locked him up; the man told me so himself." And in answer to the following question from a bystander, "Do you mean to say, that Mr. J., brewer, of Rosehill, has been to a sponging-house within this last fortnight for debt?" the defendant said, "Yes, I do." The jury found that the words were spoken of the plaintiff in the way of his trade; held, that the action was maintainable, and that the verdict was right, as it was plain from the conversation that the words were spoken of the plaintiff in his character of a brewer.

It seems also, that the words were actionable independently of that, because they must necessarily affect the plaintiff in his trade and credit. Jones v. Littler, 7 M. & W. 423.

In an action for misdescribing the plaintiffs' vessel in a publication of the defendants, called "The Shipping Register," it appeared that the plaintiffs had requested the surveyor of the defendants to examine the ship; held, that they could not maintain an action against the defendants for what was done in consequence of his report; the remedy was against him if he made a false report. Kerr v. Shedden, 4 C. & P. 528; and see below, 1466.

Where the declaration alleged and set out a libellous paragraph in the defendant's newspaper, and afterwards, &c. (stating other libellous matters in subsequent newspapers), it was held that each allegation was to be considered a separate count; and one of the latter being in the terms, "we again assert the cases formerly put by us on record, we assert them against (the plaintiff); we again assert they are such as no gentleman or honest man would resort to," it was held that the words were to be construed not as used merely in denial of some assertion made by the plaintiff, but as an accusation of the plaintiff, and libellous. Hughes v. Rees, 4 M. & W. 204.

The words "he is a returned convict," are actionable, although importing that the punishment had been suffered, the obloquy remaining. Fowler v. Dowdney, 2 Mo. & R. 119.

(Proof of Publication, p. 619.)

As the Court in granting a criminal information for a libel performs the office of a grand jury, the rule, therefore, must be drawn up on reading the original newspaper, or on having it accounted for. R. v. Woolmer, 1 P. & D. 137.

If the manuscript of a libel be proved to be in the handwriting of the defendant, and it be also proved to have been printed and published, this is evidence to go to the jury that it was published by the defendant, although there be no evidence given to show that the printing and publication were by the direction of the defendant. R. v. Lovett, 9 C. & P. 462; and see Bond v. Douglas, 7 C. & P. 626.

The post-mark on a letter was held to be primâ facie evidence of a publication. Shepley v. Todhunter, 7 C. & P. 680.

Where the libel was contained in a newspaper, it was held that the defendant had a right to have other parts of the same paper, referred to in the libel, read as part of the plaintiff's case. Thornton v. Stephen, 2 Mo. & R. 45.

(Amendment.)

The declaration alleged that the defendant had spoken the following words of the plaintiff: "Smith has got himself into trouble; he is out on bail for 100*l.*, and it is to be tried at the Old Bailey next Monday, for buying cocks which have been stolen from Messrs. Pontifex & Co. by one of their apprentices," &c. At the trial the evidence was that the defendant had said that "he had heard that Smith had got into trouble," &c. Held, that the record was amendable under the 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 24. Smith v. Knowelden, 9 Dowl. 402.

(Prefatory Averments and Innuendoes, Proof of, p. 626.)

Since the new rules of pleading, the inducement to a libel is taken to be admitted unless traversed. Fradley v. Fradley, 8 C. & P. 572.

Where the jury found the words "he has defrauded his creditors, and been horsewhipped off the course at D.," spoken of an attorney, not to have been spoken of him in his character as an attorney, they were held not to be actionable. Doyley v. Roberts, 3 Bing. N. C. 835.

Allegations that the plaintiff had been "appointed" an assistant overseer, and had passed certain accounts "as such assistant overseer;" the former allegation is sufficiently proved by an appointment by the justices, and his having acted as such; and his book of accounts being headed "Overseer's Accounts," does not make them less his own; by his warrant of appointment he is required to verify. Cannell v. Curtis, 2 Bing. N. C. 228; and 2 Sc. 379.

A declaration in slander for speaking the following words of the plaintiff as clerk of a company, "you have done many things with the company for which you ought to be hanged, and I will have you hanged before," &c.; innuendo, that the plaintiff had been guilty of felonies punishable by law with death by hanging, held sufficient on motion in arrest of judgment. Francis v. Roose, 3 M. & W. 191.

In an action for a libel which imputed that the plaintiff's house was opened as a gaming-house, under the leadership of a woman of notorious character, the declaration alleged that the plaintiff's house was a club-house, and that divers persons paid annual subscriptions. The payment of subscriptions was denied by one of the defendant's pleas, and evidence was given that a book was kept for subscribers' names, and that two gentlemen wrote their names in this book; but no evidence was given of the payment of any subscription; it was held, that there was evidence to go to the jury in support of the allegation in the declaration. The defendant pleaded several pleas, but none of them at all referring to the plaintiff's wife; it was held, that the plaintiff could not go into evidence to show that his wife was a respectable person, as on these pleadings she must be taken to be so; also, that the plaintiff could not go into evidence to show that his wife had become ill, and died soon after the publication of the libel. Guy v. Gregory, 9 C. & P. 584.

(Privileged Communication, p. 630.)

Where the libel was contained in an advertisement, stating the issuing of process against the plaintiff, and that he could not be found, and offering a reward for such information as should enable him to be taken; plea, that a capias had been issued and delivered to the sheriff, and that the plaintiff kept out of the way, and that the advertisement had been inserted at the request of the party suing out the writ to enable the sheriff to arrest; it was held to be a sufficient defence. Lay v. Lawson, 4 Ad. & Ell. 795.

Where the defendant wrote a letter justifying himself and his conduct, and criminating the plaintiff's wife, who was a servant to the party to whom the letter was addressed, it is for the jury to say whether the defendant merely meant bonâ fide to defend himself, and throw the fraud imputed to him on the servant; if so, it is a privileged communication. Coward v. Wellington, 7 C. & P. 531.

Where the libel consisted of charges against the plaintiff, a constable, made in a letter to the rate-payers; it was held, that since it would have been a privileged communication if made to them by word of mouth, it was incumbent on the plaintiff to show that the defendant's absence from the meeting, which was the reason of his writing, was wilful. Spencer v. Ameston, 1 Mo. & R. 470. Qu.

Where a party has a mutual interest with another, he is justified in prevailing on him to become party to a suit, and expressions of angry and strong animadversion on the conduct of the party to be proceeded against, unless malicious, are privileged; and, in the case of words, the jury merely take into consideration the whole conversation, to see whether particular words, which may be actionable in themselves, are qualified so as not to convey the primary meaning. Shipley v. Todhunter, 7 C. & P. 680.

Where the defendant, a son-in-law, addressed a letter to his mother-in-law, who was about to marry the plaintiff, containing slanderous imputations against him, it was held that the occasion justified the writing, and that the jury were to say whether the defendant acted bonâ fide, and under a belief of the truth, although the imputations were false; and that such communications were to be regarded liberally, unless a clearly malicious intention was manifest in the act. Todd v. Hawkins, 8 C. & P. 88; and 2 Mo. & R. 20.

A party is justified in stating his opinion bonâ fide of the respectability of a tradesman inquired about; aliter, it is said, where he volunteers the statement; held, also, that the loss of a customer is special damage, although if the dealing had taken place with him, it would have been a losing transaction. Storey v. Challands, 8 C. & P. 234.

Where the words were spoken by one subscriber of a charity to another, as to the conduct of the plaintiff, the medical attendant on the objects of the charity; it was held, that a claim of privilege to so large an extent could not be sustained. Martin v. Strong, 5 Ad. & Ell. 535; and 1 Nev. & P. 29.

A party interested in a building contract, on which the plaintiff had been engaged, applied to the defendant to recommend a surveyor to measure the work, when the defendant stated that he had seen the plaintiff take away some of the materials, upon which the plaintiff's employer applied to the defendant to know whether he had seen the plaintiff taking them away, when he alleged that he had seen the plaintiff taking them, and that he hallooed to him; held, that the Judge acted properly in directing the jury to say whether the words imputed felony; and in telling them that even if they did, the plaintiff was not entitled to recover, unless malice were expressly shown, or the jury believed, from the circumstances, that the defendant was actuated by malicious motives. Kine v. Sewell, 3 M. & W. 297.

The publishing remarks of a slanderous nature by an elector, of a candidate, is not within the principle of privileged communications; the libel contained two distinct charges against the plaintiff, and the plaintiff's counsel in his opening having stated evidence to disprove both, but called witnesses only as to one, it was held that he could only contradict the defendant's witnesses as to the other, and not give evidence in reply in support of his original statements (per Denman, L. C. J.), strongly disapproving the practice of counsel stating facts in their opening, and then not offering evidence thereon. Duncombe v. Daniell, 8 C. & P. 223.

The writing of the plaintiff, a florist, "the name of G. is to be rendered famous in all sorts of dirty work," is not within the privilege of fair criticism. Green v. Chapman, 4 Bing. N. C. 92; S. C. 3 Sc. 340.

(Malice, p. 635.)

Where the defendant had brought a charge against and caused the plaintiff to be searched for a missing brooch, which was afterwards found in the defendant's possession, it was held to be a question for the jury, whether the charge was made bonâ fide, and that the circumstances and occasion of making it should be left to their consideration. Padmore v. Lawrence, 3 P. & D. 209.

Hand-bills published by the defendant on the same subject as the libel for which the action was brought, and about the same time, and also the manner of their publication by being placarded and carried before the plaintiff's house, were admissible to show the animus. Bond v. Douglas, 7 P. & C. 626.

A libel published by the defendant subsequently to the commencement of an action for a previous libel, was held to have been rightly offered in evidence to the jury to show the intention of the defendant in the publication of such previous libel. Barwell v. Adkins, 2 Sc. N. S. 11.

Where libels by the plaintiff are offered in mitigation of damages, they must be shown clearly to apply to the defendant. Tarpley v. Blabey, 2 Bing. N. C. 437; 2 Sc. 642; and 7 C. & P. 395.

And see May v. Brown, 3 B. & Cr. 113; Finnerty v. Tipper, 2 Camp. 72; and Wakley v. Johnson, 1 Ry. & M. 422.

Papers in the handwriting of the defendant, found in the house of the editor of the newspaper in which the libel was published, are admissible, although in part erased, but not qualifying the libel. Tarpley v. Blabey, 2 Bing. N. C. 437.

In an action against the publisher of a magazine containing the libel, evidence of personal malice of the editor against the plaintiff was held to be inadmissible. Robertson v. Wylde, 2 Mo. & R. 101.

Where the defendant having reasonable cause of suspicion against the plaintiff, and for charging him with felony, went to his uncle and cousin, and uttered the words in question, it was held, that as it appeared that the communication was not made with a just intention of investigating, but of compromising the matter, the jury were improperly directed to consider merely whether the words were spoken maliciously. The existence of express malice is only a matter of inquiry, where the injurious expressions are spoken on a lawful occasion. Hooper v. Truscott, 2 Bing. N. C. 457; and 2 Sc. 672.

Although in slander, the plaintiff, to prove the animus, may show a repetition of the words, or of such as show the same train of thought, yet he cannot give in evidence other words which may be the subject of another action; held also, that it appearing that the plaintiff had recovered in another action against the defendant's son, what passed after the verdict by way of proposal on the part of the plaintiff to compromise the second one, was admissible to show that it was not vexatiously prosecuted. Defries v. Davis, 7 C. & P. 112.

(Special Damage, p. 637.)

In an action for a libel in respect of a ship, imputing unseaworthiness, the plaintiff may, it has been held, give evidence of special damage, although he has not averred it in his declaration, because a libel upon a chattel is not actionable, unless the owner sustain some damage thereby. Ingram v. Lawson, 9 C. & P. 326.

Words are actionable in respect of special damage where the defendant is the only wrong-doer, although another act on the words for fear of offending the defendant. Knight v. Gibbs, 1 Ad. & Ell. 43.

(Defence—Mitigation, p. 641.)

In an action against the editors of a newspaper for libel, the fact of the libel being published on the communication of a correspondent is not admissible in mitigation of damages. Talbutt v. Clark, 2 M. & R. 313.

(Defence—Justification, p. 643.)

Upon a plea of justification only to a libel, and replication de injuriâ, the plaintiff may show the manner of publication, with a view to the amount of damages. Vines v. Serell, 7 C. & P. 163.

Where the libel contained several distinct matters, part of which only was justified by the plea, but the part omitted to be justified would not form a distinct substantive ground of action, the jury having found a verdict for the defendant on the justification, the Court refused to permit the plaintiff to enter a verdict for the part not justified. Clarke v. Taylor, 2 Bing. N. C. 654.

In case for libel, pleas—not guilty, and a justification that the libel was a true report of what had passed in a court of justice on a charge of conspiracy against the plaintiff and others, the issues on both of which pleas were found for the defendant; the counsel, who moved the judgment against the plaintiff, being called as a witness, and having proved that he had stated the plaintiff to have (set out as an overt act of the conspiracy) written a letter which was alleged to have been written, not by him, but by a co-conspirator; held, that the plaintiff's own allegations making a necessary part of his case and proof, the character of the publication was part of the issue of not guilty, and that the question was properly left to the jury upon that plea. Stockdale v. Tarte, 4 Ad. & Ell. 1016.

In an action for libel, it appearing that five packets, addressed to individuals and enclosed in one addressed to the defendant, had been received at the coach-office where he was porter, and that he delivered them; held, that if the jury found that he did so in the course of his business, and in ignorance of the contents, he was not liable; but being primâ facie liable, it was for him to show such ignorance. Day v. Bream, 2 Mo. & Rob. 54.

Where the plea stated specific facts as justifying the publication, it was held that letters written by the plaintiff, not proving any of the facts alleged, were inadmissible for the defendant. Moscati v. Lawson, 7 C. & P. 32.

Where the defendant pleads the general issue and a justification, of which he gives no evidence, but succeeds on the first issue, the plaintiff is entitled to a verdict and costs on the latter. Empson v. Fairfax, 3 Nev. & P. 385.

Under an allegation in a libel that the defendant had crushed the Hygeist system of wholesale poisoning, and that several vendors had been convicted of manslaughter, it was held not to be necessary for the defendant to prove that the system had been entirely crushed, and that proof of the conviction of two vendors for manslaughter sufficiently proved the plea, although the evidence as to the death being occasioned by not complying with the printed regulations in some respects varied from the allegation, there being evidence for the jury as to the cause of death. Morrison v. Harmer, 3 Bing. N. C. 758.

(Costs.)

To an action for a libel, pleas—the general issue, and two special pleas, the issues on all of which were found for the plaintiff, with 1*s.* damages, and the Judge certified under 43 Eliz. c. 6, s. 2, to deprive the plaintiff of costs; held that, notwithstanding the seventh rule of Hil. Term, 4 Will. 4, the plaintiff was entitled to no more costs than damages. Simpson v. Hurdiss, 2 M. & W. 84; and 5 Dowl. 304.

The stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 24, applies to cases of libel, and therefore if in a case of libel nominal damages be given, and the Judge certify that the grievance was wilful and malicious, the plaintiff will be entitled to his costs. Foster v. Pointer, 9 C. & P. 718.

(Indictment, p. 644.)

Every man has a right to give every public matter a candid, full, and free discussion; but although the people have a right to discuss any grievances they have to complain of, they must not do it in a way to excite tumult: and if a party publish a paper on any such matter, and it contain no more than a calm and quiet discussion, allowing something for a little feeling in men's minds, that will be no libel; but if the paper go beyond that, and be calculated to excite tumult, it is a libel. R. v. Collins, 9 C. & P. 456.

If a paper, published by the defendant, have a direct tendency to cause unlawful meetings and disturbances, and to lead to a violation of the laws, it is a seditious libel; and with respect to the intent every one must be taken to intend the natural consequences of what he does. R. v. Lovett, 9 C. & P. 462.

A general attack upon Christianity is unlawful, because Christianity is the established religion of the country.

A person has a right to discuss the Roman-catholic religion and its institutions, but he has no right in doing so to libel individual members.

If a man puts forth a publication calculated to injure private character, he must be taken to have intended it to have that effect. R. v. Gathercole, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 237.

(Province of Jury, p. 646.)

In an action for libel, the Judge (it is said) is not bound to state to the jury, as matter of law, whether the publication complained of be a libel or not; but that the proper course is for him to define what is a libel in point of law, and to leave it to the jury to say whether the publication in question falls within that definition; and, as incidental to that, whether it is calculated to injure the character of the plaintiff. A publication may be a libel on a private person, which would not be any libel on a person in a public capacity; but any imputation of unjust or corrupt motives is equally libellous in either case. Parmiter v. Coupland, 6 M. & W. 105.

Upon the trial of an issue of not guilty, it is no misdirection if the Judge leave generally to the jury the question, whether the publication be libellous or not, without stating his own opinion as to the particular publication, or defining what generally constitutes a libel. Baylis v. Lawrence, 1 A. & E. 920.

(Competency.)

In an action against the printer of a newspaper, a proprietor is a competent witness, as he is not liable to contribution. Moscati v. Lawson, 7 C. & P. 32.

(Witness—Privilege.)

A defendant was tried for publishing a letter, purporting to be the resolutions of a body of persons calling themselves the General Convention, and which letter in one part of it stated that an outrage had been committed on the people of Birmingham by a force "acting under the authority of men who, when out of office, sanctioned and took part in the meetings of the people." A witness for the Crown stated in his cross-examination, that he had formerly belonged to the Convention, but had since resigned, and had become a town-councillor of Birmingham. It was proposed to ask him further in cross-examination, as to what he said at a meeting at which the Convention was agreed on, but which took place nearly a year before the publication of the alleged libel; held, that this could not be done. R. v. Collins, 9 C. & P. 456.

LICENCE.

Hay being sold at an auction on condition that it might remain on the premises and be removed as wanted, the licence is not revocable. Wood v. Manley, 3 P. & D. 5; 11 Ad. & Ell. 34.

A mere parol licence to enjoy an easement on the land of another is not binding on the grantor after he has transferred his interest and possession to a third party: nor is any notice of the transfer necessary to determine the licence: and a parol licence executory is countermandable at any time. Wallis v. Harrison, 4 M. & W. 538.

LIEN.

(General Issue, p. 646.)

Evidence of a lien is not admissible under the plea of the general issue in trover. White v. Teale, 4 P. & D. 43. For that plea by the New Rules denies the conversion only, and admits property and right of possession in the plaintiff, but the evidence of a lien denies the right of possession.

A lien may be given in evidence under the plea that the plaintiff was not lawfully possessed. Brandao v. Barnett, 2 Scott, N. S. 96.

(When Existing.)

No lien exists at common law for the agistment of cattle. Jackson v. Cummings, 5 M. & W. 342.

Where a horse was placed at an inn by a policeman, held, that not being left by one in the character of a guest, no lien existed for the keep. Binns v. Pigot, 9 C. & P. 208.

A custom of general lien of warehouse-keepers in London was found to exist. Leuckart v. Cooper, 7 C. & P. 119: but on a rule nisi for leave to enter up judgment for the plaintiffs non obstante veredicto being obtained, it was held bad in law, as highly prejudicial to foreign trade, and subjecting foreigners to liens for debts of their factors in respect of other goods. Leuckhart v. Cooper, 3 Bing. N. C. 99; and 3 Sc. 521.

And see Wright v. Snell, 5 B. & Ald. 350.

An owner retaining the possession of his ship, has a lien on the cargo for the freight due under a charter-party, and the fact of the goods having been consigned to third parties does not alter the principle. Campion v. Colvin, 3 Bing. N. C. 17; S. C. 3 Sc. 338.

And see Saville v. Campion, 2 B. & Ad. 503; and Tute v. Meek, 8 Taunt. 280.

Commissioners for taking the acknowledgments of married women have a lien on the instruments in their possession for the fees due in respect of the discharge of their duty. Grove, ex parte, 3 Bing. N.C. 304; S. C. 3 Sc. 671; and 5 Dowl. 355.

A. the bailor of goods to B., sells them to C., and gives notice of the sale to B.; B. cannot insist on a further lien in respect of a debt incurred by A. after the notice. Barry v. Longmore, 4 P. & D. 344.

The purchaser of an equity of redemption in premises, subject to a mortgage term, deposits the purchase deeds as a security. He afterwards pays off the mortgage and takes a surrender of the term, retaining the deeds of surrender in his own possession, and becomes bankrupt; the lien created by the deposit extends to the whole estate, freed from the incumbrance. Other deeds deposited at the same time, and forming part of the same security, related to an undivided share belonging to the bankrupt in other property. Between the times of the deposit and the bankruptcy, the entirety of a certain portion of the property was conveyed to the bankrupt, in lieu of his undivided share, he paying 100 l. for equality of partition. The lien affects the portion conveyed to the bankrupt, and the assignees have no claim in respect of the 100 l. Ex parte Bisdee, 1 Mon. D. & D. 333.

Where the plaintiff knowing that consignments made by B. to C., and bills drawn on the plaintiff, were on credit of the goods generally, and, upon the plaintiff having been obliged to pay the acceptances, the effect of the correspondence with B. amounted in equity to a contract by B., that the goods remaining in C.'s hands should be an indemnity to the plaintiff for the bills paid; held, that the plaintiff had a lien on them for his debt. Burn v. Carvalho, 7 Sim. 109.

Where C. in the usual course of dealing consigned a cargo of oats to B. and remitted bills which the latter accepted, but before the ship sailed C. became bankrupt, having sent the bill of lading indorsed in blank to F. without communicating the transactions with B., and F. transmitted the bill of lading to B., with instructions to act for him, who paid the freight and took possession of the cargo as a security for his own acceptances for C., but which was afterwards taken under a foreign attachment by creditors of C.; held, that there was no transfer of the property to B. nor lien, and that he could not maintain trover. Bruce v. Wait, 3 M. & W. 15.

Where in trover for a deed, upon the issue that the plaintiff was not possessed, it appeared that the plaintiff having the legal title as mortgagee, had assented to its being delivered to the defendant to raise money for the discharge of a bill for which both were liable: held that the defendant being entitled to hold the papers in possession until the money advanced by the defendant was repaid, the plaintiff could not maintain the action. Owen v. Knight, 4 Bing. N. C. 54; 3 Sc. 307; and 6 Dowl. 244.

Where the defendants, carrying on a scribbling and fulling-mill, stipulated that all goods on hand should be liable to a lien for the general balance, and had received oil and dyeing materials from the plaintiff, which were kept in a room to which all customers had access, but were under the lock and key of the defendants every night; held that the words "goods on hand" did not apply to articles used upon goods in the progress of being manufactured and deposited there, on which the labour of the defendant's mill was not employed. Cumpston v. Haigh, 2 Bing. N. C. 449; S. C. 2 Sc. 684.

In trover for a policy of insurance, plea, retainer as a lien for a general balance due to the defendant as an insurance-broker, replication, a bill given and accepted as payment for such balance, and not due at the time of the conversion; held, that the lien being gone, the defendant could not desert his plea of lien, and rest his defence upon the distinct ground of a right to detain the policy for a balance due on a mutual credit, without having specially pleaded it. Hewison v. Guthrie, 2 Bing. N. C. 755.

Semble, that if a person covenant that he will, on or before a certain day, secure an annuity by a charge upon freehold estates, or by investment in the funds, or by the best means in his power, such covenant will create a lien upon any property to which he becomes entitled between the date of the covenant and the day so limited for its performance. Wellesley v. Wellesley, 4 M. & C. 561.

See further as to the lien of an attorney, Bozon v. Bolland, 4 M. & C. 354; Warburton v. Edge, 9 Sim. 508.

LIMITATIONS.

Stat. 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27.

Where an annuity was devised, charged on freehold, if certain leasehold property specified should be insufficient, held, first, that as against the devisee the will was not evidence that the testator died possessed of the leasehold; and, secondly, that he was not barred by the 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, ss. 2, 3, such devisee not being within either of the descriptions in the statute, in which the right shall be deemed to have first accrued within twenty years. James v. Salter, 2 Bing. N. C. 505; and 2 Sc. 750. But see James v. Salter, 3 Bing. N. C. 544; 4 Sc. 168; and 5 Dowl. 496, in which it was held that such devisee was within the statute; and that a distress or action for an annuity accruing by will and charged on land, must be resorted to within 20 years from the death of the testator.

A lessor permits his lessee, during the continuance of the lease, to pay no rent for twenty years; the lessor is not therefore barred by the stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, s. 2, from recovering the premises in ejectment. The case falls within the latter branch of the 3d section, which, in the case of an estate or interest in reversion, provides that the right of action shall be deemed to have first accrued when it became an estate or interest in possession; the lessor, therefore, may recover in ejectment at any time within twenty years after the determination of the lease. Doe d. Davy v. Oxenham, 7 M. & W. 131.

A., in 1817, let B. into possession of lands as tenant at will; and in 1827 A. entered upon the land without B.'s consent, and cut and carried away stone therefrom: this entry amounted to a determination of the estate at will; and B. thenceforth became tenant at sufferance, until, by agreement express or implied, a new tenancy was created between the parties; and therefore, unless the fact of such new tenancy be found by the jury, an ejectment brought by A. in 1839, is too late, inasmuch as, by the stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, s. 7, his right of action first accrued at the expiration of one year after the commencement of the original tenancy at will, i. e. in the year 1818. Doe d. Bennett v. Turner, 7 M. & W. 226.

Trespass for breaking and entering plaintiff's close, plea, stating a seisin in fee in W., a demise by him for a term, which subsequently by devise came to H., and defendant's entry as servant of H., and giving colour to plaintiff; replication, that the entry of defendant was after the 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, and no right of entry accrued to H. or the defendant within twenty years before the entry; rejoinder, that the possession by the plaintiff or any other was not at the time of the passing of the Act adversely to H., and issue, that it was possessed adversely by one S.; it was held, that the dates being under a viz. and immaterial, the replication was not inconsistent, as admitting H.'s right of entry to have accrued since the Act, and denying the accruing of the right within twenty years; and the rejoinder admitting the right of entry not to have accrued within twenty years put the issue on the question of adverse possession: the jury having found the adverse possession at the time of the passing of the Act against the defendant, and the rejoinder admitting the right of entry not to have accrued within twenty years, it was held, that the defendant was not entitled to the additional period of five years given by s. 15, and that as against a wrong-doer the plaintiff was not obliged to plead specially title in himself; and lastly, that the surrejoinder was not contradictory to the declaration. Holmes v. Newlands, 3 Perr. & D. 128.

(3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, p. 656.)

Debt on covenant for payment of a rentcharge, being an action of debt on a specialty, may be brought at any time within 20 years, by 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 3, notwithstanding the limitation by 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 42, as to the recovery of rent payable out of land. Strachan v. Thomas, 4 P. & D. 229.

Semble, the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, applies only to rents in nature of a charge on the land, and not to mere conventional rents reserved on a lease; but held clearly, that under c. 42, s. 3, the action of covenant for rent in arrear might be brought within the time limited by the latter Act, and that the plea of six years was no bar to the action. Paget v. Foley, 2 Bing. N. C. 679.

A gift of residue is within the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 49, and is barred after 20 years have elapsed after the present right of receiving it has accrued to a party capable of giving a release for it; in case of legacies, the presumption of payment cannot be drawn from mere lapse of time, where payment would be out of the ordinary course of payments by an executor. Prior v. Horniblow, 2 Younge, 200.

(Non Accrevit, &c. p. 657.)

The right of action for not indemnifying the lender of an accommodation acceptance accrues not when the bill becomes due, but when the lender pays the money. Reynolds v. Doyle, 2 Sc. N. S. 45.

A. B. and C. entered into a joint and several note for the payment of a sum of money with interest, and A. having been called upon, and paid the amount, brought two actions, one against B., as the principal, for the whole amount, and another against C., as his co-surety for B.; in the action against B., an indorsement by the payee (then deceased) of the receipt of the money from A., to which was added "the £. —— having been originally advanced to B.," was held to be admissible to prove not only the payment by the plaintiff, but the original advance to B. as the principal; held also, that the right of action accruing immediately upon the payment of any part on account of the principal, the plaintiff was only entitled to recover payments made within six years, upon a plea of the Statute of Limitations; in the action against C., it was held that as the right of action against the co-surety for contribution, attached upon the payment by the plaintiff of anything beyond his proportion, he could recover only what he had paid beyond that proportion within the six years. Davies v. Humphreys, 6 M. & W. 153.

To a note payable on demand, non assumpsit infra sex annos is a good plea, for the statute runs from the date; secus, if the promise were of a collateral thing. Collins v. Benning, 12 Mod. 444.

An agreement amounting only to an accord which does not extinguish the original debt, the statute runs from the original debt, and not from the agreement. Reeves v. Hearne, 3 C. M. & R. 323.

Where the statute began to run in the lifetime of the debtor, and after his death, the will being contested, there was for a considerable period no representative who could be sued, held that it did not suspend the operation of the statute. Rhodes v. Smethurst, 4 M. & W. 42.

Where a suit for an account of rents and profits abated by the plaintiff's death after answer, but before decree, and his representative, more than six years after, filed a bill of revivor, to which the personal representative of the defendant, also deceased, pleaded the Statute of Limitations, but did not state that more than six years had elapsed since the administration had been taken out, plea—overruled. Perry v. Jenkins, 1 Myl. & Cr. 118.

In courts of equity mistake is within the same rule with respect to the statute, as fraud, viz. from the discovery of the circumstances; where therefore trustees had transferred stock by mistake, which was not discovered until within six years before the filing of the bill, the statute was held to be no bar. Brooksbank v. Smith, 2 Younge & Cr. 58.

(Part Payment, &c., p. 666.)

An acknowledgment of part payment is not sufficient unless it be in writing, and signed by the party chargeable. Bayley v. Ashton, 4 P. & D. 294; Maghee v. O'Neil, 7 M. & W. 531.

A debtor, in 1831, agreed with his creditor to pay him a composition of 5 s. in the pound upon the amount of his debt, by instalments. The first instalment was paid, when the creditor agreed to give the debtor a release in full, on his paying the balance of the composition. The debtor made default in payment of the balance; but in February 1839, being pressed for the payment "of the demand" of the creditor, he made a payment of 100 l. in part of the balance of the composition, and required a receipt as "for a composition of 5 s. in the pound, upon the balance of account owing by him." The creditor acknowledged the payment of the 100 l., but declined signing a receipt in this form. In September 1839, the debtor became bankrupt. Held, that the agreement for the composition did not preclude the creditor from proving for the balance of the original debt, and that it was not barred by the Statute of Limitations. Ex parte Bateson, 1 Mon. D. & D. 289.

The delivery of goods in reduction of an existing debt, operates as part payment to take the case out of the statute. Cooper v. Stevens, 5 N. & M. 635.

The plaintiff, an attorney, had done professional business of various kinds for the defendant in 1827, and several subsequent years. In July, 1832, the defendant having been a witness on a lunacy inquiry, in which the plaintiff was concerned as solicitor, the plaintiff wrote to him to ask what were his expenses on that occasion. The defendant, in reply, requested the plaintiff to allow what was usual, and place the same to his (the defendant's) account. In March 1833, the plaintiff wrote to the defendant, informing him that the sums allowed were 2 l. 2 s. and 10 s. 6 d., inclosing receipts for those sums, for the defendant's signature, and concluded, "I will give you credit for the sums in my account against you, agreeably to your note of the 21st July last." The defendant returned the receipts signed by him, and the 2 l. 2 s., and 10 s. 6 d. were paid to the plaintiff on the production of those receipts. In 1838, the plaintiff delivered to the defendant a bill of costs, amounting to 289 l., the first item being in 1827, and the two last in 1830 and 1831. These two were charges for 3 l. and 5 l. cash lent; the rest of the bill was for professional business. In an action on this bill, commenced in January 1839, it was held that the letters given in evidence did not sufficiently show that the 2 l. 2 s. and 10 s. 6 d. were paid in part discharge of the debt for which the action was brought, so as to take the case out of the Statute of Limitations, as to any part of the demand. Waugh v. Cope, 6 M. & W. 824.

(Stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 14. By words only, p. 665.)

The acknowledgment in writing, to take a case out of the Statute of Limitations, must either amount to a distinct promise to pay, or to a distinct acknowledgment that the sum is due. Bucket v. Church, 9 C. & P. 209.

Qu. Whether it is a question for the Judge or for the jury to determine, whether a letter written by the defendant, be or be not a sufficient acknowledgment for this purpose. Ibid. See Morrell v. Frith, 3 M. & W. 402.

Where by deed it was agreed by the defendant to pay a balance then unascertained, stipulating for the accounts being taken by arbitrators; it was held to be sufficient to take the case out of the statute, and that extrinsic evidence of the amount was receivable to ascertain the sum due. Cheslyn v. Dalby, 4 Younge & C. 238.

Where the equitable mortgagee received the rents of the mortgaged estate, it was held primâ facie to amount to a payment either of the principal or interest, within the proviso of the Statute of Limitations. Brocklehurst v. Jessop, 7 Sim. 442.

Where an executor separated from the testator's property a sum of money bequeathed to him on a trust, to which he for some time applied the interest of it, but afterwards converted the fund to his own use, it was held that he was liable as a trustee, and that the suit against him was not to be deemed a suit for a legacy, and that the right was not affected by the late Statute of Limitations, 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 40. Phillips v. Munnings, 2 Myl. & Cr. 309.

The bequest of personalty upon trust for the payment of debts owing at the testator's decease, does not prevent the operation of the statute. Evans v. Tweedy, 1 Beav. 55; and see Jones v. Scott, 1 Russ. & Myl. 255; and Rhodes v. Smethurst, 4 M. & W. 42.

The judgment of the Master of the Rolls in Scott v. Jones was affirmed, reversing the decision of the Lord Chancellor, in D. Pr., 4 Cl. & Fi. 382. It was also held, that the advertisement by an executor to creditors to send in their claims, was not sufficient to revive a debt already barred by the statute.

A letter of the defendant, in answer to the plaintiff's attorney's application for the debt, in the terms, "since the receipt of your letter I have been in daily expectation of being enabled to give a satisfactory reply to your application respecting the demand of M. against me; I propose being at O. to-morrow, when I will call upon you on the matter;" was held not to be a sufficient acknowledgment to take the case out of the statute. Where there is no evidence beyond the writing itself, its meaning is for the Court and not for the jury; aliter, where the words are used in a technical sense, as in mercantile documents. Morrell v. Frith, 3 M. & W. 402; and 8 C. & P. 246; questioning Lloyd v. Maund, 2 T. R. 760.

Where the defendant, on being applied to for payment, gave the plaintiff a list of debts due to himself, with a memorandum in the terms, "I give the above accounts to you, so you must collect them, and you and me will be clear;" it was held to be insufficient, as no promise to pay could be inferred therefrom. Routledge v. Ramsay, 3 N. & P. 319.

So where the defendant in a letter, in answer to an application for the debt, said, "I will see D., or write to him; I have no doubt he has paid it; if by chance he has not, it is very fit it should be." Poynder v. Bluck, 5 Dowl. 570.

The plaintiff having refused to execute a composition deed, by which the defendant had conveyed all his property to his creditors, and having pressed for payment, the defendant replied that he had given up his affairs, and considered that he had nothing to do with the claim, nor should he have, and wished the plaintiff to make him a bankrupt, as it was in his power; held to have been properly left to a jury to say if a promise to pay could be implied: held also, that a sum less than the amount due given by the defendant to his trustee to pay over to the plaintiff if he would receive it in full discharge of his debt, being refused by the defendant, and the trustee having thereupon paid it to him on account only, being a payment made by a stranger, and not sanctioned by the defendant, was not a part payment so as to take the case out of the statute. Linsell v. Bonsor, 2 Bing. N. C. 241; S. C. 2 Sc. 399 n.

Where the defendant, who had taken the stock, and undertaken to satisfy the debts of an insolvent, and had been carrying on the business for a considerable time, in answer to the application of the plaintiff, a creditor, for payment of his account, expressed his regret in a letter at not being able to comply with the plaintiff's request, and stated that there was a prospect of an abundant harvest, which must turn into a goodly sum, "and reduce your account, if it does not, the concern must be broken up to meet it;" held a sufficient acknowledgment to take the debt out of the statute. Bird v. Gammon, 3 Bing. N. C. 883.

In an action of assumpsit, the defendant pleaded a set-off, to which the plaintiff replied the Statute of Limitations. Held, that a letter by the plaintiff giving the defendant credit for a sum of money received on his account, and requesting him to deduct the amount of his gross demand against him from his bill, but which did not specify that amount, was a sufficient acknowledgment to take the case out of the Statute of Limitations. Waller v. Lacy, 8 Dowl. 563.

(Merchants' Accounts, p. 671.)

The exception in the Statute of Limitations (21 Jac. 1, c. 16, s. 3), as to merchants' accounts, does not apply to an action of indebitatus assumpsit, but only to the action of account, or, semble, to an action on the case for not accounting. Ingliss v. Haigh, 9 Dowl. 817.

A. was a part-owner and manager of a ship, which was sold by B., another part-owner, and there was evidence of ship accounts between A. and B. in the books of the latter, from 1799 to 1805; and, in 1811 and 1812, two items appeared on the debit side, not appearing to relate to the ship, and there was evidence of frequent calls for the accounts, and evasions by B.; in a suit by A. for an account of the earnings and proceeds of the sale, the case was held to be within the exception of the Statute of Merchants' Accounts, and that there was no sufficient ground for presuming payment or satisfaction. Robinson v. Alexander, 2 Cl. & Fi. 717; 8 Bli. 352.

Where it appeared from the bankrupt's books that there were items of dealings between the parties within six years, it was held to be sufficient to take the case out of the statute, and that the account ought to be taken and the creditor admitted to prove for the balance found. Seaber, ex parte, 1 Deac. 543.

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION, p. 676.

In case for maliciously laying an information on the Game Laws, there having been a conviction and no appeal, it was held that the action was not maintainable. Mellor v. Baddeley, 2 Cr. & M. 675.

To a declaration for maliciously, and without probable cause, procuring the plaintiff to be indicted at the Central Criminal Court for felony, it is no answer that the defendant was bound over by recognizance to prosecute, if the jury believe that the defendant caused himself to be bound by making the charge maliciously, and without probable cause, before the magistrate who took the recognizance.

It is not incumbent on the Judge in such a case to call the attention of the jury specifically to the circumstance that the injury alleged in the declaration is the preferring at the sessions of the court, a charge which is then maliciously made. Dubois v. Keats, 11 A. & E. 329.

In case for maliciously giving information before a magistrate, and procuring a warrant to be issued against the plaintiff, it is not necessary to state in the declaration that there was an information, the gist of the action being the setting the magistrate in motion; but if the declaration allege an information, and that the warrant was granted thereupon, the information must be proved, and the recital in the warrant is not sufficient. Gregory v. Derby, 8 C. & P. 749.

The plea of not guilty, putting in issue the indictment, together with the absence of probable cause, a plea also that the defendant had probable cause for indicting, is not permitted. Cotton v. Brown, 4 N. & M. 831; S. C. 3 Ad. & Ell. 312.

(Probable Causes, p. 680.)

The defendant having reasonable and probable cause for giving the plaintiff in charge, persists in it after explanation given by the officer; the Judge directed the jury that on such explanation the probable cause ceased, and that the only question was whether his subsequent conduct amounted to malice; it was held that such direction was wrong; that the original facts remaining unaltered, the reasonable and probable cause could not be taken away by such explanation: and a new trial was granted. Musgrove v. Newell, 1 M. & W. 582; and 1 T. & G. 957.

Where the probable cause for charging the plaintiff with felony consisted partly of matter of fact and partly of matter of law, it was held that the Judge was warranted in leaving the question to the jury. M'Donald v. Rooke, 2 Bing. N. C. 217; S. C. 2 Sc. 359.

In an action for a malicious prosecution, the question whether there be or be not reasonable or probable cause, may be entirely for the Judge, or for the jury, according to the evidence in the particular case.

Where the prosecution was under the statute 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 6, for maliciously and feloniously obstructing a mine, and the plaintiff was acquitted on the ground that he committed the obstruction under a claim of right by his employer, and by such employer's direction, on action brought, it was proved at the trial, that there had been disputes between the employer and the defendant on the subject, before the obstruction, and that defendant knew from the plaintiff that the obstruction was effected in assertion of his employer's alleged right; held, that the Judge was not justified in nonsuiting, or directing a verdict for the defendant, on the ground of there being reasonable and probable cause; but that the question was for the jury. James v. Phelps, 11 A. & E. 483; 3 P. & D. 231.

Where the plaintiff was given in charge in the evening for a malicious trespass in pulling down a chimney on premises formerly his own, and exchanged for others of which he had been dispossessed, but was liberated in the morning, a summons having been taken out for a hearing before magistrates; it was held that the statute 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, allowing the apprehension of such offenders, the jury were to say if, in such imprisonment, the defendants acted bonâ fide and believing that they had power to take the plaintiff into custody, and if so, there having been no notice of action under the 41st section of that statute, that the defendants were entitled to a verdict. Reed v. Cowmeadow and another, 7 C. & P. 821.

In case for maliciously indicting the plaintiff, the observations made by the Judge on the trial of the indictment, are not evidence for the plaintiff. Barker v. Angell, 2 M. & R. 371.

In an action for maliciously, and without reasonable cause, refusing to accept a tender of debt and costs, for which the plaintiff was in execution at the defendant's suit, the defendant may give evidence of probable cause, under the plea of not guilty. Hounsfield v. Drury, 11 Ad. & Ell. 98.

(Malicious Arrest, p. 686.)

In case for a malicious arrest, the action having been brought in an inferior court, and removed by habeas corpus into K. B., but no further proceedings had, it was held that the cause was not out of Court until the end of a year after the return of the habeas: where, therefore, no search had been made for a declaration after the second term, it was held that there was no proof that the suit was determined, and that the plaintiff was properly nonsuited. The rule 35 of Hil., 2 Will. 4, applies to all cases, whether commenced by serviceable or bailable process, or removed by habeas. Norrish v. Richards, 5 N. & M. 268.

In case for maliciously and without reasonable or probable cause arresting the plaintiff, he having been discharged out of custody on a former arrest, without leave of any Judge, by reason of the defendant not having declared in due time; it was held that the action was maintainable, and that the declaration disclosed a sufficient cause of action, although the allegation of malice was general; (dub. Denman, L. C. J.) Haywood v. Collinge, 1 P. & D. 202.

It is a sufficient arrest to entitle the defendant to relief under the 43 Geo. 3, c. 46, s. 3, if the officer state to the party that he has a warrant, and take him to his own house, and a bail-bond be executed; and the execution of the bond semb. is a holding to bail within the statute; sed quær. if the capias be afterwards set aside for irregularity? Reynolds v. Matthews, 7 Dowl. 580.

The wrongful act being independent of the subsequent continuance or discontinuance of the suit, it is not necessary to produce the judgment roll, but the rule to discontinue on payment of costs, and proof that they were paid, is sufficient to support the averment of the discontinuance. Watkins v. Lee, 7 Dowl. 498.

A plaintiff is bound to show, in the first instance, a want of reasonable and probable cause; and if he show that the sum recovered falls very short of the sum for which the arrest was made, that is primâ facie sufficient; but a failure of evidence, as by the alleged death of a witness, is not an answer as a plaintiff arrests at his peril, if he has not legal evidence to support his demand. Nicholas v. Hayter, 4 N. & M. 882; S. C. 2 Ad. & Ell. 348.

Where the defendant informed the bail that his principal was likely to abscond, and procured directions to take the affidavit of justification off the file, but which being too late, an order for the render was obtained by means of them by the defendant from a Judge; it was held, that unless express malice were alleged and proved, no action could be maintained for such proceeding. Porter v. Weston, 5 Bing. N. C. 715; and 8 Sc. 25.

(Costs, 43 Geo. 3, c. 46, s. 3.)

The Court is not at liberty to go into the question, whether the jury have rightly come to a decision of the amount found to be due, but the onus of showing an absence of probable cause of arrest lies on the defendant. Twiss v. Osborne, 4 Dowl. 107.

The plaintiff arrested the defendant on an affidavit for 86 l. for goods sold, and the jury gave a verdict for 15 l. upon account of unliquidated damages, for not taking an engine; it was held that not being entitled to arrest upon that claim, he had no reasonable or probable cause, and that the defendant was therefore entitled to costs under the 43 Geo. c. 46, s. 3. Beare v. Pinkus, 4. N. & M. 846.

The original demand was under 20 l., after which the plaintiff sent, in goods, which were returned, and he then sent in a further demand of two guineas, which made the two demands exceed 20 l., the Court thinking that there was no reasonable ground for the arrest for the latter sum, held the defendant to be entitled to costs under the statute. Sutton v. Burgess, 4 Dowl. 376.

Where it was clear that the plaintiff could have had no reasonable ground to expect, from the nature of the evidence, that the whole amount for which the defendant was held to bail could be proved, and the verdict did not establish one-half of the demand, it was held that the defendant was entitled to costs under the statute. Lewis v. Ashton, 1 M. & W. 493.

The amount of the verdict being primâ facie proof of the want of probable cause to arrest for the amount sworn to, the Court refused to attend to affidavits against the rule for costs, under 43 Geo. 3, c. 46, s. 3, suggesting perjury of a witness. Tipton v. Greaves, 5 G. & M. 424.

MALICIOUS INJURIES, p. 691.

(Malicious Wounding.)

A wound inflicted by a bite is not within the st. 7 Will 4, & 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 2. Jenning's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 130; and see R. v. Stevens, 1 Moody's C. C. 409. R. v. Harris, cited 2 Lewin's C. C. 131. It need not be made with a sharp instrument. Briggs' Case, 1 Lewin's C. C. 67; 2 Lewin's C. C. 132. Nor need the instrument be stated. Erle's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 133.

Quære, whether a wound by the biting of a dog, be a wounding within the st. 9 Geo. 4, c. 31. Elmsley's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 126. But see R. v. Hughes, 2 C. & P. 420.

Where the wounding was by biting the hand, it was held not a wounding within the statute which requires that an intrument be used. R. v. Stevens, 1 Mood. C. C. 409.

So, of the throwing vitriol over the prosecutor's face with intent to disfigure. R. v. Murrow, 1 Mood. C. C. 456.

To constitute a wound, there must be a separation of the entire skin, and not a mere abrasio of the outward cuticle. R. v. M'Loughlin, 8 C. & P. 635.

A blow with an iron hammer, whereby the jaw of the prosecutor was broken, and the skin broken internally, is a wounding within the statute 7 Will. 4, & 1 Vict. c. 85. R. v. Smith, 8 C. & P. 173.

Where the wound was occasioned by the hard rim of the hat struck with the butt end of a gun held by the prisoner, it was held, that the wound was to be considered as inflicted with the gun, and that the conviction was right. Sheard's Case, 2 Moody, 13.

On an indictment, under 7 Will. 4, and 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 2, against husband and wife, for violently beating a child, with intent to murder, Patteson, J. told the jury that they must be satisfied of an actual intent to murder, and it was not sufficient that if death had ensued, the offence would have been murder; and that where a party is charged as aiding and abetting, the jury must find that such party was aware of the intent of the principal to commit the offence of murder: it was held also, on a case reserved for the Judges, that the jury convicting only of the assault, which was a mere misdemeanour, the wife was not protected from the presumption of having acted under coercion. R. v. Cruse and wife, 8 C. & P. 541.

But in the Case of R. v. Jones, 9 C. & P. 258, on a charge of shooting, with intent to murder, Patteson, J. held, that if the circumstances are such that if death had ensued it would have amounted to murder, it is a ground for a jury to infer such intent.

See also R. v. Anon, 2 Moody, 40, where on an indictment under the stat. 7 Will. 4, and 1 Vict. c. 85, for maliciously wounding, &c. it was held to be no defence that the offence, if death had ensued, would not have amounted to murder.

So, on a charge of feloniously cutting with intent to do grievous bodily harm. R. v. Nicholls, 9 C. & P. 267.

By the term maliciously, as used in the 7 Will. 4, & 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 4, is not intended malice aforethought. R. v. Griffiths, 8 C. & P. 248.

Where the prisoner shot at H., mistaking him for L., with intent to kill the latter, but did not hit him, and the indictment contained counts for shooting at H. with intent to kill H. and other counts for shooting at L.

with intent to kill L., it was held that, being one act of shooting, the joinder was proper, but the jury finding that he did not shoot at L., and that he had no intention to injure H., but that he only fired at H., intending to fire at L., an acquittal was directed; in such case, the grand jury being discharged, the Judge refused to detain the prisoner until articles of the peace could be prepared. R. v. Holt, 7 C. & P. 518.

Where the prisoner had previously declared, that if any man struck him he would make him repent it, and armed himself with a sword-stick, with the blade open, and the prosecutor coming in and perceiving the prisoner creating a disturbance, struck him with his fist, upon which the prisoner stabbed him; it was held, that it was for the jury to say whether he used the words as an idle threat, or with the deliberate purpose of carrying his threat into execution, as such intention would constitute the malus animus, which the law terms "malice;" and although drunkenness would form no excuse, it might be taken into consideration upon the question of provocation in cases where the act may be attributed to passion excited by such provocation. R. v. Thomas, 7 C. & P. 817.

(Malicious Shooting, p. 691.)

Where the prisoner was prevented from drawing the trigger of a pistol which he had pointed towards the prosecutor, and had his finger on it, it was held not to be an attempt, by drawing the trigger, or in any other manner, to discharge loaded arms, within the statute 7 Will. 4, and 1 Vict. c. 85, ss. 3 & 4, which means an attempt ejusdem generis. But that the presenting a loaded fire-arm near the prosecutor constituted an assault involved in the act of felony, and of which the prisoner might be convicted under that Act. R. v. St. George, 9 C. & P. 483.

An indictment on the 7 Will. 4, & 1 Vict. c. 85, ss. 3 & 4, charged the prisoner with attempting to discharge at the prosecutor a certain blunderbuss, loaded with gunpowder and divers leaden shots. It appeared that the prisoner, on a refusal by the prosecutor to give him up some title-deeds, addressed him in these words: "Then you are a dead man," and immediately unfolded a great coat which he had on his arm, and took out a blunderbuss, but was not able to raise it to his shoulder, or point it directly at the prosecutor, before he was seized. The blunderbuss was found to be very heavily loaded, but the flint had dropped out, and was discovered between the lining of the great coat. Held, that the evidence was not sufficient to sustain the charge in the indictment. R. v. Lewis, 9 C. & P. 523.

(Lawful Apprehension, p. 691.)

Where the prisoner, being taken by warrant before a justice on a charge of assault, was ordered to find bail, and on his refusal, whilst his commitment was making out, he escaped, and the prosecutor was ordered verbally by the Justice to pursue and apprehend him, and in the attempt to do so, was cut by the prisoner; it was held, that the original warrant continued in force, and that the apprehension was lawful; and the conviction was held to be right. R. v. Williams, 1 Ry. & M. 387.

But where the prisoner, after apprehension under the Vagrant Act, had escaped, and was several hours afterwards attempted to be retaken, without warrant by the constable, in resisting which attempt he wounded the officer; it was held, that the conviction for stabbing with intent to resist lawful apprehension, could not be supported. R. v. Gardener, 1 Ry. & M. 390.

Where the prisoner, whilst taking away ashes, was detained on being charged with taking away part of a kettle, and in the scuffle wounded the prosecutor; it was held, that if the jury were satisfied that the prisoner had stolen the article, the prosecutor had a right to detain him, and the wounding would be felony. R. v. Price, 8 C. & P. 282.

(For Poaching, p. 691.)

The prisoner was met with game in his possession, in a plantation, at about eight o'clock in the morning, just after a shot fired, but there was no evidence of his having been in pursuit of game an hour before sun-rise; held, that as the prosecutor had no right to apprehend him, and the crime of the prisoner, if death had ensued, would have been manslaughter only, he could not be convicted of the capital offence of shooting at the prosecutor with intent to murder or do him grievous bodily harm, under 9 Geo. 4, c. 31, ss. 11 & 12. R. v. Tomlinson, 7 C. & P. 183.

(Administering Poison, &c. p. 691.)

Where poison was alleged to have been caused to be taken with intent to kill A., the evidence showing the intent to have been to kill B., it was held a fatal variance, but a fresh indictment directed, alleging the intent to be to murder generally. R. v. Ryan, 2 Mo. & R. 213.

(Malicious Mischief, p. 694.)

A steam-engine used in draining and working a mine, had been stopped and locked up for the night. The prisoner got into the engine-house and set it going, and there being no machinery attached, the engine went with great velocity, and received damage; held, that this was a damaging of the engine within the stat. 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 7. R. v. Norris, 9 C. & P. 241.

A beginning to demolish by burning is within the eighth section of the same statute, although, by the interference of the police, further mischief is prevented; but injuring moveable shutters is not a demolishing of the house within that statute. R. v. Howell, 9 C. & P. 437.

If part of the object of the rioters be to demolish a house, the act of demolishing is equally within the statute, although there may also be a distinct and different injury intended. Ibid.

Where the indictment, on 7 Will. 4, & 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 2, described the means (i. e. striking and kicking on the head and back and throwing on the floor,) by which the bodily injury was occasioned, but did not state the nature and situation of the injury, it was held by the Judges to be sufficient, even assuming, for the sake of the argument, that it was necessary to state the nature and situation of the injury, as the description of the means in that indictment necessarily involved the nature and situation of the injury. R. v. Cruse and Wife, 8 C. & P. 541.

Where the charge of felony includes an assault, if one count be good the prisoner may be convicted of the assault although all the other counts are bad. R. v. Nicholls, 9 C. & P. 267.

MANDAMUS.

Is not grantable until the proceedings on the first record are complete. R. v. Baldwin, 8 Ad. & Ell. 947; and 4 P. & D. 124.

MANOR, p. 695.

The lord being primâ facie entitled to all waste lands within the manor, the onus of their being private property lies on the party claiming them; if the claim be made by a tenant of the adjoining premises, it will be presumed to have been made for his landlord's benefit, and the possession would not be adverse as against him: evidence of the public in general throwing rubbish on waste land, affords an inference in favour of the lord's, rather than of any individual's right, and where such waste has been inclosed above 20 years by a supposed licence, the party can only be turned out of the possession by the lord, upon evidence of some act done, from which a legal revocation of the licence may be inferred. Doe d. Dunraven v. Williams, 7 C. & P. 332.

Where in ejectment to recover waste enclosed within 10 years, the lessor of the plaintiff claimed as devisee under a will, whereby the testator devised certain lands subject to the charge of a gross sum payable to the testator's daughter, to trustees until his son (the lessor of plaintiff) should attain 23, and then to him, it was held, first, that parole evidence of holding courts for 35 years past, and appointment of gamekeepers by the trustees, was sufficient primâ facie evidence of a manor, and of the lessor of the plaintiff's being the lord, although no evidence of court rolls or other documents was produced; 2dly, that the Court could not infer that the legal estate was outstanding in the incumbrancer; and lastly, that as to the encroachment, however at first a licence might be presumed, it was sufficiently put an end to by entry and breaking down the enclosure a few days only before the action was brought. Doe d. Beck v. Heakin, 6 Ad. & Ell. 495.

MAP.

A lease professed to demise to the plaintiffs all mines and minerals "in, upon, or under all or any of the messuages or tenements, fields, closes, or parcels of land described and set forth in the map thereunto annexed; and also in, upon, or under all or any part of that large tract of land called Mold Mountain; all which premises are situate, &c., and are bounded, &c., and all which are particularly described, delineated, and distinguished in the map or plan thereof annexed to these presents, and which by agreement of all the said several parties thereto, was meant and intended to be taken as part of that indenture:" held, that the words of the demise were not to be controlled or restrained by the map, but might receive full effect, and be held to include a particular spot, the boundary of which could not be traced with strict accuracy upon the map, by reason of the smallness of the scale upon which it was drawn. Taylor v. Parry, 1 Scott, N. S. 576.

MARKET.

Upon evidence of a market immemorially holden in certain places within a manor by the lord, a jury may be warranted in inferring a grant of it to be held in any convenient place within the manor, and of course with the power incident thereto, of removal from time to time. De Rutzen v. Lloyd, 5 Ad. & Ell. 456.

A market may be held anywhere within the precinct of the original grant. Vernon v. Salkold, 3 East. 538; Dixon v. Robinson; 3 Mod. 108; R. v. Cotterell, 1 B. & Ad. 67.

Where the lord removed the market and demised the site of the new one to lessees, and by the terms of the lease a power was given of imposing tolls on all persons for selling or exposing goods to sale, there being no evidence that stallage had ever been paid at the old market: it was held that the removal was bad, as imposing restrictions on the liberty of erecting stalls; to render it valid, the site to which the market is removed ought to be on the soil of the lord, and it is essential that he should have the correction of it. R. v. Starkey, 2 N. & P. 165.

MARRIAGE, p. 698.

The provisions of the Marriage Act, authorising the Judges of the Court to give consent to the marriage of an infant, do not extend to the case of a father beyond seas unreasonably witholding his consent, but solely to the case of a father being non compos, and the guardian or mother mentioned in the Act. J. C. ex parte, 3 Myl. & Cr. 471.

Under the 4 Geo. 4, c. 76, the marriage cannot be declared void for undue publication of banns, unless both parties are cognizant of the false name and accessory to the fraud, the act of one not prejudicing the other, unless a participator, and there is no difference in cases where the undue publication amounts to an absence of all publication; where the banns had been published in the lifetime of the former husband of the wife, although the marriage was not solemnised until after his death, it was held to amount to no publication, but there being no evidence of knowledge by the second husband of the former marriage, that it fell within the rule above stated; it appearing also that the banns had been published in a false Christian name of the wife, alleged to have been assumed with the cognizance of both parties to deceive the guardian of the wife, who was alleged to be a minor, the Court discrediting the evidence as to the husband's knowledge, held the libel to have failed in proof. Wright v. Elwood, 1 Curt. (ARCHES) 662.

So where the marriage was solemnised under an invalid licence, it was held that it must appear to have been done with the knowledge of both parties, and there not being evidence of that, the libel was refused. Dormer v. Williams, Ib. 870.

Where the husband was a minor and the wife a person of advanced age, and sister of the party to whom the minor had been confided as a pupil, the banns published with the omission of part of the name of baptism, by which he was more generally known, and the marriage clandestine and kept secret above 12 months; it was held void under 4 Geo. 4, c. 7, as a knowingly and wilfully intermarrying without due publication of banns. Tongue v. Allen, 1 Curt. (ARCHES) 38, confirming the judgment below; and the judgment was afterwards affirmed by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

In order to prove a Scotch marriage the assent of both parties must be very clearly and distinctly proved. Graham's Case, 2 Lewin's C. C. 97.

The marriage of a Protestant in Ireland to a Roman Catholic, by a Roman Catholic priest is void by the stat. (IRISH,) 19 Geo. 2, c. 33.

Where the marriage of an officer was in 1815 by a chaplain of the British army within the lines of the army serving abroad, although not in a country in a state of actual hostility, and although the authority of the officer's superior in command was not obtained; it was held valid within the 9 Geo. 4, c. 91. Waldegrave Peerage, 4 Cl. & Fi. 649.

A marriage between an Englishman and a domiciled French lady, at the house of the British ambassador at Paris, by the chaplain to the embassy, is a valid marriage, under the statute 4 Geo. 4, c. 91. By the law of France, the marriage of a son under the age of 25 years, being null and void without consent; Quære, whether an Englishman above the age of 21 years, but under the age of 25 years, contracting a marriage in France according to French forms with a French lady of full age can, in the court of this country, proceed for the purpose of annulling the marriage by reason of such minority, and want of consent. Lloyd v. Petitjean, otherwise Lloyd, 2 Curteis, 251.

The superintendent registrar has no power to grant his certificate pursuant to 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 85, s. 7, in cases where it is proposed that the marriage shall take place out of his district. Ex parte Brady, 8 Dowl. 332.

In Ireland the marriage of two Roman Catholics by a Roman Catholic priest is good; and if a person at the time of such marriage declares himself to be a Roman Catholic, and the woman to be a Roman Catholic, this is a good marriage as against him; and if he be afterwards tried for bigamy on this marriage, (he having been before married to another wife who was still alive,) he will not be allowed to set up his supposed Protestantism as a defence to the charge. R. v. Orgill, 9 C. & P. 80.

(Dissolution of, p. 706.)

A foreign divorce cannot dissolve an English marriage. M'Carthy v. De Caix, 2 Russ. & M. 614.

An allegation in the libel as to the residence of the parties was expunged; the Court being expressly prohibited by the Act from inquiring into such residence, after a marriage once celebrated. Ray v. Sherwood, 1 Curt. (ARCHES) 193.

The wife's legal domicile is that of her husband, and she is amenable to the jurisdiction there in force: where the husband domiciled in Scotland, was married in England, and made a settlement on his Scotch estates, and they went to reside there after the marriage, but shortly afterwards returned to England, where articles of separation were executed, from which time she resided abroad, and the husband remained domiciled in Scotland, although residing occasionally in England where the duties of office required his attendance; held, that it was competent to the Scotch Courts to entertain a suit for dissolving the marriage, and that an edictal citation and actual intimation by personal service of a copy of the summons was a good citation. Warrender v. Warrender, 2 Cl. & Fi. 488; affirming the interlocutor of the Court below.

But see Lolly's case cited ib., and Russ. & Ry. C. C. 237, as to the invalidity of a sentence of divorce pronounced in Scotland between parties married in England, to protect a husband from the consequences of bigamy where contracting a second marriage, whilst his first wife is living: and the case of M'Carthy v. De Caix, supra.

(Breach of Promise, p. 706.)

In assumpsit for breach of promise of marriage, pleas alleging that the plaintiff was unchaste, &c. and had intercourse with H. P.; and secondly with persons unknown; were held sufficient on demurrer. Young v. Murphy, 3 Bing. N. C. 54; and 3 Sc. 379.

A mere expression to a third person of an intention to marry the plaintiff is not sufficient to support the action. Cole v. Cottingham, 8 C. & P. 75.

If the declaration be coupled with a condition, e. g. "as soon as your business is settled," performance must be averred. Ib.

Qu. Whether an action be maintainable against a clergymen for not celebrating a marriage. Davis v. Black, 1 G. & D. 432.

MEDICAL WITNESS. See 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 89.

MINE.

May be followed when, 2 Vent. 342.

MISNOMER, p. 708.

Where a plaintiff has sued a defendant by his wrong Christian name, but has declared against him by his right Christian name, the proceeding is regular under the stat. 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 11. Hobson v. Wadsworth, 8 Dowl. 601.

See above tit. ABATEMENT.

Where an illegitimate child, six weeks old, was baptised by the name of E., after which for a few days only it was called by its name of baptism and its mother's name; it was held, to be sufficient evidence to go to a jury, whether it had acquired by reputation its mother's name, and to warrant their finding the child to be properly described by that name in the indictment. R. v. Evans, 8 C. & P. 765.

Where the child was illegitimate, and the only evidence of its surname being "Waters" was that of a person who took it to be baptised, and said at the time that it was Eleanor Waters's child; it was held to be insufficient proof of its having acquired that name. R. v. Waters, 7 C. & P. 250, and cited 8 C. & P. 766.

MISJOINDER.

Where an indictment for stabbing contained the usual counts, and one for a common assault, the verdict of guilty was allowed to be entered on the count for stabbing with intent to do grievous bodily harm; and it was held, by the 15 judges, on the objection for misjoinder, that the conviction was good. R. v. Jones, 8 C. & P. 776.

MORTGAGE, p. 789.

The 1 Will. 4, c. 60, explained by 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 25, s. 2, applies to mortgagees or their heirs. Whitton, ex parte, 1 K. 278.

MURDER, p. 709.

(Proof of Death, &c. p. 709.)

On a charge of murder, the evidence showing the body to be that of a different party from the one charged in the indictment to have been killed, it was held, that until proof of the actual death of the party alleged to have been killed, the prisoner could not be called on to give any account. R. v. Hopkins, 8 C. & P. 591.

Where the indictment for the murder of a new-born child by strangling averred that the prisoner did bring the child forth of her body alive; it was held, that the jury must be satisfied that the child was entirely born before the act committed by the prisoner: and Parke, B. thought that if so born, although attached by the umbilical cord, the prisoner might be convicted of murder. R. v. Crutchley, 7 C. & P. 814. And see R. v. Reeves, 9 C. &. P. 25, where Vaughan, J. held that the killing a child so attached was murder.

On an indictment for the murder of a new-born child, it must also be proved that the child was actually and entirely born in a living state, and proof of its having breathed is not decisive to show that it was born alive. R. v. Ellis, 7 C. & P. 850.

On a charge of child murder, it appeared that the child must have died before it had an independent circulation; held, that as the child had never had an independent circulation, the charge of murder could not be sustained. R. v. Wright, 9 C. & P. 754.

(Principals and Accessories, p. 710.)

Where, on an indictment for the murder of A. B., by administering poison, the proof was that the prisoner gave it to an unconscious agent to administer as a medicine, having the intent to murder, and who neglecting to do so, it was afterwards accidentally administered by a third party in a larger quantity than directed by the prisoner, but the quantity directed by him was more than sufficient to cause death; it was held, that he was properly convicted. R. v. Michael, 2 Mood. 120; and 9 C. & P. 356.

If several persons act together with a common intent, every act done by each of them in furtherance of that intent is done by all. If a deadly weapon be used, an intention to kill is to be inferred, but not from a blow with a fist. From continued violence after much beating, an intention to kill may be inferred. Macklin and others, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 225.

Where two agree to commit suicide, and the means used only take effect on one, the survivor may be convicted of murder. R. v. Alison, 8 C. & P. 418.

(Cause of Death, p. 711.)

Where a wound is wilfully and without justifiable cause inflicted, and ultimately becomes the cause of death, the party who inflicted it is guilty of murder, though life might have been preserved if the deceased had not refused to submit to a surgical operation. R. v. Holland, 2 M. & R. 351.

A count which charges exposure as the cause of death, is not supported by proof that it only accelerated the death. Stockdale's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 220.

Where the death was charged to be by suffocation by placing the hand over the mouth, it was held, that if death were caused by any violent means used to stop respiration, it was sufficient to support the indictment. R. v. Waters, 7 C. & P. 250.

(Venue.)

Where the injury was received in one county, but the death was in another, the inquest was rightly held in the latter. R. v. Grand Junction Railway Company, 3 P. & D. 57 n.

(Malice prepense, p. 711.)

Where the death is shown to have been occasioned by the hand of the prisoner, it lies on him to show by evidence, or inference from circumstances, that the offence does not amount to murder. R. v. Greenacre, 8 C. & P. 35. Qu.

Where the evidence of the death having been occasioned by the act of the prisoner arose from his own statements, and there was no proof of its having been accidental; it was held, that the jury could not legally infer it. R. v. Morrison, 8 C. & P. 22.

Where there was no evidence of actual or intended violence to the prisoner, on the part of the deceased and his companions, who, in a drunken and turbulent state, met the prisoner at night, and who, apprehending violence, drew a knife, and inflicted the wound which occasioned the death; it was held, that there being nothing to show the killing was necessary in self-defence, it amounted to manslaughter. R. v. Bull, 9 C. & P. 22.

All contests in anger being unlawful, where death is occasioned by an act of the prisoner in a struggle of that kind, it amounts to manslaughter. R. v. Canniff, 9 C. & P. 359.

Where a party enters into a contest, being armed with a deadly weapon, with intent to use it, it will be murder in case of death ensuing; but if used in the heat of provocation, without such previous intent, it will only amount to manslaughter; if used in the necessary defence of his own life, it will be justifiable homicide. R. v. Smith, 8 C. & P. 161.

The master of an apprentice is bound to provide medical attendance for him during sickness, and is criminally responsible where death is occasioned by the want of such assistance: in the case of a servant, the master is not bound by law to provide such assistance. R. v. Smith, 8 C. & P. 153.

A mere negligent act of omission, as by a steersman or captain omitting to keep a good look out, held not such misconduct as to render them indictable for manslaughter. R. v. Allen, 7 C. & P. 153; see also R. v. Green, ib. 156.

If a driver, by racing with another carriage, lose the control of his own horses, and his own carriage is upset and a party thrown off it and killed, it is manslaughter in the driver. R. v. Timmins, 7 C. & P. 499.

(Manslaughter, p. 721.)

The conductors of steam-vessels navigating public rivers are as much liable for injury by improper management or negligence, as parties occasioning it by furious or negligent driving on the highway. R. v. Taylor, 9 C. & P. 672.

A medical man, though duly qualified to practice, yet if by gross unskilfulness he occasion death, will be guilty of manslaughter. R. v. Spilling, 2 Mo. & R. 107.

Where the prisoner, being in loco parentis, inflicted punishment on a child, and compelled it to work for an unreasonable number of hours and beyond its strength, and thereby accelerated consumption and death, but did so under a full belief that the illness was feigned, and that the deceased might really have done the work, it was held to be only a case of manslaughter. R. v. Cheeseman, 7 C. & P. 455.

So where the prisoner in anger with her child, but intending only to frighten it, threw a piece of iron at it, which accidentally struck another child, and caused its death, it was held to amount to manslaughter. R. v. Conner, 7 C. & P. 438.

An iron-founder having furnished cannon, one of which being imperfect and returned, he had filled the flaw with lead and returned it, and upon being fired, it burst and killed a man, it was held to be manslaughter. R. v. Carr, 8 C. & P. 163.

To reduce the offence to that of manslaughter, by showing previous provocation, the jury must be satisfied that the act was done in consequence of such provocation, and not of previous malice. R. v. Kirkham, 8 C. & P. 115.

Where a policeman ordered a street musician, who had collected at night a number of disorderly persons around him, to move on, and on his refusal laid his hand on his shoulder to remove him, and the party drew a razor and wounded the officer; it was held, that upon a provocation so slight, if death had ensued it would have been murder; aliter, if the party had been struck a blow or knocked down by the policeman, as he would have exceeded his duty in so doing. R. v. Hagan, 8 C. & P. 167.

If a man kill his wife or the adulterer in the act of adultery, it is manslaughter, and not murder. Pearson's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 216.

One convicted of manslaughter is liable to transportation, although the indictment does not conclude contra formam, &c. R. v. Chatham, 1 Ry. & M. C. C. 403; and Ib. 404.

(Concealment of Birth.)

The mother may be found guilty of concealing the birth of her child, although she may have before communicated the fact of her pregnancy. R. v. Douglas, 1 Ry. & M. 480.

To constitute the offence of concealment, under 9 Geo. 4, c. 31, s. 14, it is essential that some act have been done by the prisoner towards disposal of the body; where it slipt from the mother whilst on the privy for another purpose, it was held not to be enough, although the prisoner denied the birth. R. v. Turner, 8 C. & P. 755.

Where the prisoner was only in the act of proceeding with the body of the child towards the place of intended concealment, but was stopped before the act was complete, held insufficient to constitute the offence under 9 Geo. 4, c. 31, s. 14. R. v. Snell, 2 M. & R. 44.

On an indictment for child-murder, no one but the mother can be convicted of a concealment of the birth of the child. R. v. Wright, 9 C. & P. 754.

On an indictment for concealing the birth of a child, a final disposing of the body must be shown; hiding the body in a place from which a further removal is contemplated will not support the indictment. R. v. Ash, 2 Mo. & R. 294.

On an indictment for child-murder, bad for not stating the name of the child, or accounting for the omission, no conviction for concealing the birth can take place. R. v. Hicks, 2 Mo. & R. 302.

(Witness—Coroner.)

In a case of manslaughter, it is the duty of the coroner to bind over all those witnesses who prove any material fact against the party accused, and not those who are called for the purpose of exculpating him. R. v. Taylor, 9 C. & P. 672.

If, however, the coroner bind over all the witnesses on both sides, no blame is imputable to the clerk of indictments if he require them all to be put on the back of the bill, and examined before the grand jury. Ib.

NEGLIGENCE.

In an action against the proprietors of a steam-vessel, to recover compensation for damage done to goods sent by them as carriers, if, on the whole, it be left in doubt what the cause of the injury was, or, if it may as well be attributable to perils of the seas as to negligence, the plaintiff cannot recover; but if the perils of the seas required that more care should be used in the stowing of the goods on board than was bestowed on them, that will be negligence, for which the owners of the vessel will be answerable. Muddle v. Stride, 9 C. & P. 380.

In an action by a patient against his medical man, for an injury by improper treatment; the latter being bound to bring to the exercise of his profession a reasonable and competent degree of art and skill, the question for the jury is whether the injury is to be attributed to the want of that degree of skill or not. Lanphier v. Phipos, 8 C. & P. 475.

If A. place a dog with B., and the dog be received by B., to be kept by him for reward, to be paid to him by A., B. is not answerable for the loss of the dog, if he took reasonable care of it; but if the dog be lost, the onus lies on B. to acquit himself by showing that he was not in fault with respect to the loss. Mackenzie v. Cox, 9 C. & P. 632.

Where the plaintiff hailed an omnibus, which stopped for him, and he was on the step of it, in the act of getting in, when he sustained injury by the sudden going on by the driver, it was held, that the stopping of the omnibus implied a consent to take the plaintiff as a passenger, and was evidence to go to the jury in support of the allegation in the declaration that he was so. Brien v. Bennett, 8 C. & P. 724.

The plaintiff went into the defendant's (a surgeon's) shop, to be bled; he was bled by an apprentice; the master is liable for the consequences of the apprentice's want of skill. Hancke v. Hooper, 7 C. & P. 81.

Where, at the time of shipping goods on board, the shipper knew that the ship was chartered, held that the consignees could not maintain any action against the owners for injury by bad stowage, nor where the shipper was warned as to the way in which the goods were to be stowed. Major v. White, 7 C. & P. 41.

(Variance—Damages.)

The plaintiff, in an action against an attorney for negligence in conducting a suit, alleges that he was "forced to pay" certain sums in consequence of the defendant's negligence; he can recover only the amount actually paid by him, although a liability to a greater amount, on the part of the plaintiff, has been incurred in consequence of the alleged negligence. Jones v. Lewis, 9 Dowl. 143.

NONSUIT.

Where the plaintiff elects to be nonsuited, he cannot afterwards move to set aside the nonsuit. Barnes v. Whiteman, 9 Dowl. 181. See Vol. I. tit. NONSUIT.

NOT GUILTY.

Where a statute enables defendants to plead the general issue and give the special matter of defence in evidence, the plea of Not guilty so pleaded is not affected by the New Rules of Hil. 4 Will. 4, but operates as before they were framed, putting in issue, not only defences peculiar to the statute, but all that would have arisen at common law. Therefore the Court, in the exercise of its discretion under stat. 4 Ann, c. 16, s. 4, will not give leave to plead Not guilty "by statute," together with a special plea, although such special plea raise a defence quite independent of the statute. Ross v. Clifton, 11 A. & E. 631.

NOTICE.

In trespass for shooting a dog, the Judge received a copy of a notice that all dogs found trespassing would be shot, painted on a board fixed in the plantations, without notice to produce the original. Bartholomew v. Stephens, 8 C. & P. 728.

Grant of a licence to mine and search for, and also to carry away and convert to their own use, the minerals raised; the deed provided that in case of failure, after notice to work, to keep six able miners constantly employed, it should be lawful, after one month from such notice, for the grantors to re-enter, and that the licence should be absolutely determined and void; held, first, that such grant passed an interest capable of being assigned; secondly, that a notice in the terms, "that unless the grantee kept six miners at work, the grantor would re-enter at the expiration of one month," containing no intimation of an election to determine the grant on account of the forfeiture which had been incurred, but only that if a further breach of the covenant should be committed, the grantor would enter, &c. was not sufficient to avoid the licence and render the re-entry lawful; and, lastly, that upon such re-entry and exclusion the plaintiff might properly sue in case. Muskett v. Hill, 5 Bing. N. C. 694; and 7 Sc. 855.

(Notice of Action, p. 729.)

The clause in the Highway Act, 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 50, s. 109, requiring twenty-one days' notice of action to justices, &c. does not affect the month's notice required by the 24 G. 2. c. 44. R. v. Boston, 4 P. & D. 183.

Where the Act declared that no action should be brought against any person for anything done in pursuance of it, without twenty-one days' notice given to the intended defendant, it was held to include the company, and that they were entitled to notice of an action for obstructing a road which the plaintiff claimed to use. Boyd v. Croydon Railway Company, 4 Bing. N. C. 669; 6 Sc. 461; and 6 Dowl. 721.

Where a gamekeeper was appointed and registered before the passing of 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 32, it was held that he was not entitled to notice of action under s. 47. Lidster v. Borrow, 1 P. & D. 447.

(Of Appeal, p. 731.)

Where notice of appeal against an order of two justices, under 53 Geo. 3, c. 127, had been served upon one only, it was held to be sufficient; and the Act being silent as to notice, the justices at sessions could not engraft the requirement of notice upon the Act of Parliament. R. v. Staffordshire Just. 6 N. & M. 477; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 842.

Where a township, having a church and its own churchwardens, was wholly independent of the parish, except contributing a small sum to the repair of the church, it was held, that the churchwardens of the township were not by virtue of their office overseers of the poor; and that a notice under the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 73, signed by the overseers of the township only, was valid: upon an objection that the notice was not signed by the assistant overseer, it was held that the party must show that it was his duty to sign. R. v. Yorks., North Riding, 6 Ad. & Ell. 86

(Service, p. 731.)

A party convicted by two justices in special sessions, under the General Highway Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, ss. 47. 103, on information by one of the surveyors, cannot be heard on appeal to the quarter sessions under s. 105, unless he have served notice on both the convicting justices.

It is not sufficient that he has served notice on the surveyors, and has also served a notice on one of the justices, addressed to both, which that justice has transmitted to the clerk of the special sessions, with an observation to him that he will know how to act upon it. R. v. Bedfordshire Justices, 11 A. & E. 134; and 3 P. & D. 21.

So, although at the time of giving notice the conviction had in fact been signed only by one justice; at least if there be no proof that the conviction so signed was communicated to the appellant before he gave notice, so that he might have been misled thereby. R. v. Cheshire, 11 A. & E. 139.

So on a conviction under 9 Geo. 4, c. 64 (Alehouses). R. v. Cheshire Justices, 3 P. & D. 23, n.

Where an order of sessions has been returned to the Queen's Bench under a certiorari, and a rule is then obtained to quash the order, it is a good preliminary objection to an argument on such rule that no notice of it has been served on the justices who made the order, although served on the parties interested in supporting it. R. v. Spackman, 9 Dowl. 1060.

Plea in trespass justifying the entry under a judgment and execution in the Court of Requests, the local Act authorising service either personally or by leaving at the dwelling-house, lodging, or place of abode; held, first, that where the party was a seafaring man, usually absent for six months, service at the lodging of the wife was sufficient, and that the action was to be deemed to be brought against the defendant "on account of an order, determination, or decree of the commissioners," entitling him to give the special matter of defence in evidence under the general issue. Culverson v. Milton, 2 Mo. & R. 200.

Notice of appeal against a borough rate, served on the town-clerk, is sufficient, as being on the servant of the parties making the rate: the Act giving the appeal, and empowering the recorder to hear and determine, as in the case of appeals against county rates. R. v. The Recorder of Carmarthen, 3 N. & P. 19.

(Constructive, p. 732.)

Where the solicitor employed both by mortgagor and mortgagee, obtained the execution of a deed in such an irregular and informal manner as, if he had been an innocent person, ought to have excited his suspicion, and to have put him upon making inquiries; it was held to amount to constructive notice to his client of the fraud by which it was obtained, and a re-assignment was decreed; and affirmed upon appeal, but without costs. Kennedy v. Green, 3 Myl. & K. 699.

In trespass for taking goods, the question was as to the bankruptcy of the plaintiff; it was held, that letters found in his possession after the bankruptcy, with post-marks of a date previous thereto, were evidence that he received them before, and to show, in explanation of his conduct, that he had received intimation of the facts mentioned in the letters having taken place, although they were not evidence that the facts stated really did so. Cotton v. James, 1 Mo. & M. 276.

Devise for life, remainder to A., the testator's heir, upon condition that within three months after the testator's death he should convey certain leasehold premises, and in default then over; on a special case, stating the will and facts, it was held that, it not being expressly stated that the heir had notice of the condition within the period limited, the heirs of A. were not precluded by the conditional limitation, and that the Court could not infer the fact of A. having had such notice. Doe v. Crisp, 1 P. & D. 37.

(Sufficiency of Notice.)

Where it is questionable whether sufficient notice has been given to the defendant of a declaration having been filed, the plaintiff must sign judgment for want of a plea at his own peril, and the Court will not assist by giving him leave to take such a proceeding. Spriggins v. White, 9 Dowl. 1000.

NUISANCE.

Case for a nuisance to adjoining premises, the plaintiff must, under the general issue, not only show the existence of the nuisance, but that the defendant was the person who occasioned it. Dawson v. Moore, 7 C. & P. 25.

In case upon an issue whether the plaintiff was possessed of the "messuage and premises," &c. in which the injury was committed, it was held that proof of his being in the separate occupation of part of the house was sufficient to support it. Fenn v. Grafton, 2 Bing. N. C. 617.

(Agency, p. 737.)

In case for an injury by negligent driving, the ownership of the carriage, and the fact of its being driven by the defendant's servant, as alleged in the inducement, are admitted by the plea, not guilty. Emery v. Clarke, 2 Mo. & R. 260. And see Tuverner v. Little, 5 Bing. N. C. 678.

The bargemen navigating a barge are to be taken primâ facie to be employed by the owner. Joyce v. Capel, 8 C. & P. 370.

If a servant, without his master's knowledge, take his master's carriage out of the coach-house, and with it commit an injury, the master is not liable, because he has not in such case entrusted the servant with the carriage. But whenever the master has entrusted the servant with the control of the carriage, it is no answer that the servant acted improperly in the management of it; but the master in such case will be liable, because he has put it in the servant's power to mismanage the carriage, by entrusting him with it. Therefore, where a servant, having set his master down in Stamford-street, was directed by him to put up in Castle-street, Leicester-square, but instead of so doing went to deliver a parcel of his own in the Old-street Road, and in returning along it drove against an old woman, and injured her, it was held that the master was responsible for his servant's act. Sleath v. Wilson, 9 C. & P. 607; 2 Mo. & R. 181.

A van was standing at the door of A., from which A.'s goods were unloading, and A.'s gig was standing behind the van. B.'s coachman, who was driving B.'s carriage, came up, and there not being room for the carriage to pass, the coachman got off his box, and laid hold of the van horse's head; this caused the van to move, and thereby a packing-case fell out of the van upon the shafts of the gig, and broke them; held, that B. was not liable for this, as the coachman was not acting in the employ of B. at the time this matter occurred. Lamb v. Lady Elizabeth Palk, 9 C. & P. 629.

Where the defendants, having a carriage of their own, were in the habit of hiring horses for the drive or the day of the same job-mistress, and giving a gratuity to a driver of the latter, for whom they also provided a coat and hat, which were used on each occasion of his accompanying them, and the injury happened during his leaving the horses unattended whilst he went to deposit the hat; it was held, that he was not to be deemed the servant of the defendants, so as to render them liable for the injury arising from such negligence. Quarman v. Burnett, 6 M. & W. 499.

Where to the declaration for an injury by negligent driving by the defendant, the general issue was pleaded; it was held, that the issue of negligent driving by the defendant was sufficiently made out by proof of his having permitted another to drive, by whose mismanagement the injury was occasioned. Wheatley v. Patrick, 2 M. & W. 650.

Where the defendants hired a master porter to remove a barrel of flour from their warehouse, and the latter hired a carman, and both their men were engaged in loading it, in doing which it fell upon and injured the plaintiff, through the defectiveness of the rope furnished by the porter; it was held, that the defendants were liable, it being immaterial whether they employed their own servants or engaged others more expert, and left the removal to their superintendence. Randelson v. Murray, 3 Nev. & P. 239.

A foreign vessel in the Thames had employed a pilot in removing the ship from one dock to another, in the course of which a collision took place, and the plaintiff's barge was injured; in an action for the damage against the owner, it was held, on a plea that the vessel was at the time under the charge of a pilot, under and in pursuance of the provisions of 6 Geo. 4, c. 125, that the owner was not liable, although the circumstances might not have been such as would have rendered it compulsory on the owner to have employed the pilot: the terms of the statute, "wanting a pilot," were to be taken as applying to any case in which the owner thinks fit to employ one. Lucey v. Ingram, 6 M. & W. 302.

(Proof of Injury, p. 740.)

A declaration in case against a canal company stated that, by the Canal Act (stat. 32 Geo. 3, c. 101), the company was formed to make and maintain the canal, with power to take tolls, and all persons had free liberty to navigate the canal; and if any boat should be sunk in the canal, and the owner or person having care of it should not without loss of time weigh it up, it was, by the statute, to be lawful for the company to weigh it up, and detain it till payment of expenses; that the company completed the canal, and took tolls on it; that a boat sunk in the canal, so that vessels passed with difficulty in the day, and at night were in danger of running foul of it; that although the company could and ought to have requested the owner, &c. to weigh it up, and if that was not done without loss of time, could and ought to have weighed it up, and in the meantime have caused a light or signal to be placed to enable boats to avoid it, yet the company did not cause the owner, &c. to weigh it up, nor did themselves weigh it up, nor place a light or signal, whereby plaintiff's boat, navigating the canal, ran foul of the sunken boat, and was damaged; held, by the Court of Exchequer Chamber (affirming the judgment of the Court of Q. B.), that the declaration disclosed a sufficient duty and breach. By the Court of Exchequer

Chamber: such duty was not created by the clause enabling the company to weigh the boat, but arose upon a common-law principle, that the owners of a canal, taking tolls for the navigation, were bound to use reasonable care in making the navigation secure, the want of which reasonable care might be collected from the declaration, although the complaint was ostensibly founded on the statute. Parnaby v. Lancaster Canal Company, 11 A. & E. 223; and 3 N. & P. 623.

The owners of a vessel disabled by the negligence of its crew are answerable for damage done by its accidentally drifting, when so disabled, against another vessel. Seccombe v. Wood, 2 M. & R. 290.

Where upon a grant of lands, houses, and premises, reserving all mines, &c., with liberty of ingress and egress for working the same, making compensation for damage, &c., the defendant worked so near the surface, without leaving proper supports, that the plaintiff's houses, lands, &c. fell in; it was held, that a plea, alleging the right to all mines, &c., and that the defendant was not bound to leave any support, could not be sustained, the defendant being bound to work in a reasonable mode. Harris v. Ryding, 5 M. & W. 60.

In case for causing offensive stenches to pass over plaintiff's land from a mixen made on the defendant's premises; plea, the occupation for twenty years before by the defendant of his land, and use of the mixen at all times, but not stating that the stenches therefrom had during all that time passed over the plaintiff's land; held that, non obst. vered. the plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Flight v. Thomas, 2 P. & D. 531; and 7 Dowl. 741.

In case for running down vessels, the question is, whether the plaintiff, by his negligence or improper conduct, substantially contributed to the occurrence of the injury of which he complains; not to the amount of it, but to its occurrence. Therefore, where a brig was carrying the anchor in a position contrary to the bye-laws of the river Thames, at the time when she came in collision with a barge, it was held, that the improper carrying of the anchor would not of itself be sufficient to make the owner of the brig responsible in damages, if the barge, by departing from the known rule of the river, brought herself into the situation in which the brig struck her, although but for the position of the anchor the collision would not have produced the injury complained of. Sills v. Brown, 9 C. & P. 601.

A nautical witness cannot be asked whether he thinks, having heard the evidence in the cause, that the conduct of the captain was correct or not. Ib.

The rule of the river is, that, if a light vessel is going free, and a loaded vessel is coming close hauled to the wind, it is the duty of the loaded vessel to keep her course, and of the vessel going free to bear away. Ib.

A steamer going with the usual speed during a fog, in a frequented channel, and after being hailed her speed is not diminished nor course altered, the owner is liable for the damage by collision, and the costs; vessels of this class being bound to use the utmost care. Perth, 3 Hagg. 414.

In a cause of collision, where it appeared that the vessel running down the other was on the larboard tack, and the latter on the starboard tack, and that a good look-out was not kept, the former was condemned in damages and costs. Chester, 3 Hagg. 316.

And where both vessels were beating to windward, but on contrary tacks, it was held that the one on the starboard tack ought to have held on her course, and that the damage having been occasioned by the wearing, she had no ground of action. Jupiter, 3 Hagg. 320.

The law of keeping on the proper side of the road applies to horses as well as carriages, but if a party be advancing furiously towards another who is on his proper side, the latter ought, nevertheless, if the road be sufficiently wide, to give way, for the purpose of preventing an accident, although in so doing he goes a little on to what would otherwise be the wrong side of the road. Turley v. Thomas, 8 C. & P. 103.

In case against commissioners of sewers for injury to the plaintiff's premises, by making a sewer by tunnelling, which it was found was proper to be made, and was skilfully and properly made, but that by proceeding with the work by open cutting, a greater chance of escape from injury would have been afforded; it was held that the court could not balance possibilities, and that to fix the commissioners, it should have been shown that the injury would not have happened if the sewer had been constructed by the latter mode of working. Grocers' Company v. Donne, 3 Bing. N. C. 34; and 3 Sc. 356.

(For continuing a Nuisance.)

Action on the case for continuing a nuisance to the plaintiff's market, by a building which excluded the public from a part of the space on which the market was lawfully held. It appeared that the building was erected in October 1838, under the superintendence and direction of the defendants, not on their own land, but on that of the corporation of K. (of which corporation they were members). The Earl of L. was the owner of the market in October 1838, and, in February 1839 he demised it to the plaintiff; and the market being afterwards obstructed by the building, this action was brought: held, that the defendants were liable for continuing the nuisance, although they had no right to enter upon the land to remove it, and that the action was therefore maintainable. Thompson v. Gibson, 7 M. & W. 456.

(Damages, p. 740.)

In case for injury to the plaintiff's horse by negligent driving, which after remaining six weeks at a farrier's was found to be permanently injured to the amount of 20*l.*, it was held, that the proper measure of damage was the amount of the farrier's charges for keep and attendance, and the difference in the value at the time of injury and at the end of the six weeks; but that the plaintiff could not claim the hire of another in the interval. Hughes v. Quentin, 8 C. & P. 703.

Under the 53 Geo 3, c. 159, limiting the extent of the liability of the owner to the value of the ship doing damage to another, such value must be by valuation and appraisement, and not of cost price and deduction: and the value of the ship occasioning the injury is to be ascertained at the time of the injury. Dobree v. Schroeder, 2 Myl. & Cr. 489. S. C. 6 Sim. 291.

(Defence, p. 741.)

In case for damage by the negligent driving of a cart by the defendant, it was held, that under the plea "not guilty," under the rule of Hil. 4, W. 4, the defendant could not show that the cart was not at the time driven by him nor in his possession, those being facts stated in the inducement, of which the plea could not operate as a denial, and the misconduct in driving being the only wrongful act put in issue thereby. Taverner v. Little, 5 Bing. N. C. 678; and 7 Sc. 796.

In case for keeping a ferocious dog, which bit the plaintiff, it was held that the defendant might under the general issue avail himself of the want of proof that he ever knew that the dog was accustomed to bite. Hogan v. Sharpe, 7 C. & P. 755.

In case against A. and B. for burning sulphur, &c. in a place where the plaintiff was, thereby choking and injuring him; plea, that the plaintiff was wrongfully in the said place, and that after being requested by A. to depart, B., by command of A., placed and lighted, &c. to cause him to depart; held, first, that to sustain the plea the request to depart, and A.'s authority to B. must be proved; but that to entitle the plaintiff to a verdict on the general issue, the plaintiff must show that he had sustained some substantial damage. Evans v. Lisle, 7 C. & P. 562.

Action for negligence in not properly securing a cow of the defendant in a slaughter-house,—the declaration stated, that by means thereof the cow "ran at, butted at, gored, killed and destroyed" a cow of the plaintiff; plea, a payment of 30 s. into court, and that the plaintiff had sustained no greater damages; replication, that the plaintiff had sustained greater damages; held, that the defendant could not go into evidence to show that his cow had not killed the plaintiff's cow, as the contrary was admitted by the defendant's plea. Lloyd v. Walkey, 9 C. & P. 771.

In an action to recover a compensation in damages for an injury occasioned by an obstruction in a highway, it is for the jury to say whether or not the plaintiff was himself in any degree the cause of the injury—whether he had acted with such a want of reasonable and ordinary care as to disentitle him to recover. Marriot v. Stanley, 1 Scott, N. S. 392.

In a cause of collision for damage done by a foreign vessel whilst in charge of a pilot in the river Thames, for which pilotage had been previously paid before the ship could be cleared at the Custom-house, it was held, that as a proceeding in rem the jurisdiction was not affected by 6 Geo. 4, c. 125, and that the having a pilot on board did not exempt the owners from the liability, and that if the fault was wholly with the pilot, they might have their remedy over against him; also, that a foreigner cannot set up in a suit here as a defence a municipal law made to regulate municipal courts only, and contrary to the general rule of international law. Girolamo, 3 Hagg. 169.

A foreign ship, under charge of a pilot, running foul of a ship at anchor, was held liable for the injury, but not for the consequential damage to the cargo, where there was great negligence on the part of the crew of the latter ship. Eolides, 3 Hagg. 367.

Where in a cause of collision it appeared that the injury arose from the mismanagement of the vessel lost, but in the opinion of the Masters of the Trinity House, the master of the other vessel was guilty of great and culpable omission to render assistance after the collision, the Court, in dismissing the suit, condemned the latter in all costs and expenses. Alt, 3 Hagg. 321.

In case for injuring a bridge, by negligence in navigating, the plea, after alleging that the plaintiffs had wrongfully narrowed the channel, traversed that the injury was occasioned by any carelessness of the defendant; held, that they were at liberty under such plea, upon failing to establish any default in the plaintiffs, to show also that they themselves had not been guilty of negligence. Cross Keys Co. v. Rawlings, 3 Bing. N. C. 71; and 3 Scott, N. S. 490.

In an action on the case for an injury occasioned to the plaintiff by the negligence of the defendant's servant in driving, it was held that if the injury were attributable in any degree to the incautious conduct of the plaintiff herself in crossing the road, the defendant would not be liable. Hawkins v. Cooper, 8 C. & P. 473.

In case by a servant against his employer, for injury by the breaking down of a van belonging to such employer, about which the plaintiff was employed in the carriage of goods, and which was alleged to be overloaded, it was held, that as the plaintiff must have known, probably better than his master, whether the van was likely to proceed safely, and as the making the master responsible would lead to the omission of the caution which a servant is bound to use in the service of his master, the action was not maintainable. Priestley v. Fowler, 3 M. & W. 1.

(Indictment, p. 748.)

Upon an indictment for obstructing a navigable river by the erection of a projecting embankment and causeway for landing, &c., the verdict of the jury being that they considered it to be a nuisance, but that the inconvenience was counterbalanced by the public benefit arising from the alteration by the defendant, it was held, that the Crown was entitled to the verdict; the Court disapproving of the principle of considering whether the act indicted as a nuisance was productive of more public benefit than public inconvenience. R. v. Ward, 6 N. & M. 38; overruling the dictum, in R. v. Russell, 6 B. & Cr. 566, of Bayley, J.

Upon an indictment for a nuisance in a public harbour, by erecting piles, and thereby obstructing and rendering it insecure, the verdict finding that, by the defendant's works, the harbour was, in some extreme cases, rendered less secure, it was held, that the Court could not necessarily infer that the works must be a nuisance for which the defendants were criminally responsible. R. v. Tindall, 1 Nev. & P. 719.

The prosecutor of an indictment was ordered to give the defendant notice of the nuisances intended to be proved; and a rule for that purpose may be obtained without any affidavit, upon reading the indictment only. R. v. Curwood, 5 N. & M. 369.

A party is liable to be indicted under the stat. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 97, s. 15, if he designedly place on a railway substances having a tendency to produce an obstruction of the carriages, though he may not have done the act expressly with that object. R. v. Holroyd, 2 M. & R. 339.

OATHS, p. 542.

Declaration in lieu of the test, see 9 Geo. 4, c. 17.

By Roman-catholics, see 10 Geo. 4, c. 7, s. 14; abolition of unnecessary oaths, 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 62; Mutiny Acts, 1 & 2 Vict. cc. 17 & 18.

Although the jury may use their general knowledge on the subject of any question, yet if any of the jurors have a particular knowledge as to which he can speak, arising from his being in the trade, he must be sworn as a witness. R. v. Rosser, 7 C. & P. 648.

Affirmations when permitted to be used in lieu of, in certain cases, see 1 & 2 Vict. c. 77.

OFFICER, p. 749.

See Com. Dig. tit. Officer, D. (2); 3 Mod. 150, as to a ministerial officer's appointing a deputy.

Where by the charter it was necessary that the constable of a borough should take the oath of office before he could be himself legally mayor of the borough and appoint a deputy, and he duly took the oath and appointed such deputy during the life of the then late king, and after the succession of his then present majesty he received a new grant of the office, it was held, that not having been sworn in before appointing the deputy, that appointment was invalid. R. v. Roberts, 5 N. & M. 130.

Where the Crown in a lease of lot and cope granted also to the same lessee the office of barmaster or steward of the barmote court, a judicial officer, regulating amongst other things the measure to be rendered by the miners to the lessee; it was held, that the grant of the office being to a party who was incapable of holding it, on the ground of his peculiar interest, was void. Arkwright v. Cantrell, 2 N. & P. 582; S. C. 7 Ad. & Ell. 565.

By charter the right of appointing a chaplain is in the governors, "una cum assensu" of the major part of the "inhabitants" of the vill; it was held, that it is not essential that the assent should be given at the same time as the nomination by the governors; assent at a meeting called subsequently is a sufficient compliance with the charter. The term "inhabitants" may receive its interpretation from the usage, and an usage restricting the right of assent to the payers of church and poor-rates, would be intended to be according to the charter. R. v. Davie, 6 Ad. & Ell. 374.

ORDER, p. 750.

Where impeachable by collateral evidence, see R. v. Justices of Somersetshire, R. v. Justices of Cambridgeshire, K. B. Mich. 1835; Welsh v. Nash, 8 East. In R. v. Justices of Lancashire, an order of removal was quashed on the ground of collateral affidavits showing that one of the justices making the order was interested in the removal. And see R. v. Bolton, 1 Ad. & Ell. N. S. 66.

An order to remove a clerk of the peace must set out the evidence. R. v. Lloyd, Str. 996.

OVERSEER.

An omission by an overseer to sign the burgess list under the 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 76, s. 15, whether it be wilful or not, subjects him to the penalty of sec. 48. R. v. Burrell, 4 P. & D. 207. Semble, that all the overseers should sign the list, and that where several overseers are appointed for several divisions of a parish, each acting separately for each division, it is not sufficient that each overseer should sign a separate list for his own division only. Ibid.

Trespass for levying a poors-rate under a warrant of distress issued by the defendants as justices, the rate being alleged to be void on the ground of the overseers having been unduly and fraudulently appointed at a meeting of borough justices; the jury having negatived the fraud, a new trial was refused; the appointment being a judicial act, and the validity of the appointment questionable on an appeal to the sessions, it cannot be questioned in a collateral way. Pinney v. Slade, 5 Bing. N. C. 319.

As to the appointment of overseers in a parish containing several chapelries, see R. v. Worcestershire Justices, 3 Nev. & P. 434.

The party having paid rent for the last three years to the parish officers for the tenement, and after having been once turned out having received the key again from them, it is not a case in which the justices have jurisdiction to expel him under 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 24. R. v. Midd. Justices, 7 Dowl. 767.

The 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, prohibiting a parish officer from supplying goods by way of relief to any person in the parish, repeals the penalty under the former Act, 55 Geo. 3, c. 137, s. 6; semble, therefore, an action cannot be maintained under the latter Act against an officer for a supply to an individual pauper, Henderson v. Sherborne, 2 M. & W. 237; supporting Proctor v. Mainwaring, 3 B. & Ad. 145.

An assistant overseer being a servant of the vestry, though with a limited authority, an appeal lies against his accounts; the time for giving notice of appeal to the next general sessions is to be calculated from the time of the parish having the opportunity of knowing the contents of the account, and the allowance of the account is to be considered as published at the time when deposited (according to 17 Geo. 2, c. 38, s. 2,) with the parish officers for public inspection; where, therefore, that was done on the 8th of May, the June sessions were the proper sessions to which the appeal was to be made. R. v. Watt, 2 N. & P. 367. See further, as to the liability of an overseer, Eaden v. Titchmarsh, 1 Ad. & Ell. 691.

PARLIAMENT.

Since the 3 Vict. c. 9, upon the certificate by the Speaker that an action is brought in respect of a publication made by the order of the House, it is imperative on the Court to stay the proceedings. Stockdale v. Hansard, 3 P. & D. 330; and 8 Dowl. 669.

PAROL EVIDENCE.

(Inadmissible where, as superseding, &c. p. 753.)

In covenant on a lease for breach in not repairing a greenhouse erected during the term, a plea that by an agreement, that in consideration of the erecting, &c. the party should be at liberty to remove, is bad, on motion in arrest of judgment. West v. Blakeway, 9 Dowl. 846.

Where, in the body of the bill it appeared as drawn for 200 l., but the figures in the margin expressed it to be for 245 l.; it was held, that the words in the body must be taken to be the amount to be paid, and that the ambiguity being patent on the bill, evidence could not be received to explain it (diss. Coltman, J.). Saunderson v. Piper, 5 Bing. N. C. 425.

Where the local Act, empowering proprietors to contract for and convey lands, directed such contracts, &c. to be enrolled, and copies to be evidence; it was held, that such conveyances of land could only be in writing. Doe v. Warwick Canal Co. 2 Bing. N. C. 483; and 2 Sc. 717.

(To contradict, &c. p. 757.)

Where premises were conveyed "with the appurtenances thereto belonging," it was held that the deed, being sufficient to include a strip of garden, used with the house sold, the conditions of sale, excepting it, were inadmissible to contradict the deed. Doe v. Wheeler, 4 P. & D. 273.

(In the case of a Will, p. 762.)

Devise to A. for life, with remainder to her three daughters, M. E. and A. in fee; E., a legitimate daughter of A., had died six years before, but E., an illegitimate daughter, was living at the date of the will. Evidence is admissible to show that the testator, not knowing of the death of the legitimate daughter, intended her as his devisee. Doe v. Beynon, 4 P. & D. 193.

Devise to J. A. the grandson of my brother T. A. in fee, charged with 100 l. to each of the brothers and sisters of the said J. A. T. A., the brother, had two sons, Richard and Thomas; Richard had six children, sons and daughters, living at the date of the will, of whom J. A., the lessor of the plaintiff, was one; Thomas had two sons, of whom J. A., the defendant, was one, and one daughter; evidence of delarations by the testatrix, some months after making the will, that she had left her property to the defendant, are admissible for him. Doe v. Allen, 4 P. & D. 220.

Where a testatrix, by a codicil, gave specific stock, "now standing in my name," and was possessed at the time of sufficient to satisfy that bequest, but not to satisfy other bequests charged on the same fund; it was held to be a case in which evidence ought to be received as to the state of the testatrix's funded property, and that, considered in connexion with the context of the several testamentary papers, it was to be construed a pecuniary and not a specific legacy. Boys v. Williams, 2 Russ. & M. 689.

(As explanatory, &c. p. 775.)

Where a doubt is raised by evidence upon the meaning of a mercantile contract, evidence of the usage or course of trade at the place where the contract was made, is admissible; as where in an action for freight of cotton from Bombay, the usage was to calculate it at the screw there; but where the usage appears unreasonable, on account of the difference between the measurement on the merchant's premises and at the time of shipment, evidence of such difference ought to be received as having weight with a jury, as to whether the usage does or does not exist. Bottomley v. Forbes, 5 Bing. N. C. 121; and 8 Sc. 866.

Assumpsit, for not receiving lead on a contract, deliverable in "I." plea, that the plaintiff was not ready to deliver within a reasonable time, in manner and form, &c., on which issue was joined; held, that the evidence of the broker of the defendant, that at the time of the contract the lead was said to be "ready for shipment," was admissible, not to vary the contract, but as material to the issue, what was a reasonable time for delivery; held also, that the usual places of shipment being at G. or L., it was rightly left to the jury to say whether one or other of those places was not to be intended as the place where the goods were ready to be shipped. Ellis v. Thomson, 3 M. & W. 445.

Where a parish consisted of a royal burgh and a landward district, both of which had been always considered as one district for the management of the poor, and no distinction ever made as to questions of settlement or assessment; it was held, that in questions turning upon statutory enactments, although where the enactments are clear, usage can have no effect, yet that when silent, or expressed in terms of doubtful import, it may afford the construction, as being a contemporaneous exposition, and that, in the particular case, the usage having been uninterrupted, the poor were entitled to relief indiscriminately from the parish funds. Dunbar Corporation v. Duchess of Roxburghe, 3 Cl. & Fi. 335.

A conveyance was made to the husband and wife, and their heirs, as joint tenants, the deed expressing the consideration as "now in hand duly paid by the husband and wife;" it appeared that the money was actually a legacy given to the wife, and paid by the executors to the vendor; in an action by the wife against the husband's assignees, he having become bankrupt shortly before his death, it was held that evidence of its being the wife's money was properly admitted as explanatory, and not contradictory, of the deed; the expression "by the husband and wife," raising a doubt as to whom the money really belonged. Doe d. Bambridge v. Statham, 7 D. & Ry. 141.

Where, in a covenant, in a lease of coal mines, the word level was used in reference to the raising coals, which, according to the nature of a trade, might have a peculiar meaning, it was held that evidence ought to have been received as to the meaning of the term among miners. Clayton v. Gregson, 4 N. & M. 602.

Where, by a memorandum on the margin of a lease of premises from Michaelmas, it was stated, that "it is hereby understood that he is to be tenant and pay rent from the preceding 12th August; it was held, that in an action for money alleged to have been paid upon a mistaken account, such memorandum ought to have been received in evidence, and a new trial was granted. Cowne v. Garment," 1 Bing. N. C. 318; and 1 Sc. 275.

A sold note is "18 pockets of hops at 100*s.*:" parol evidence is admissible to show that 100*s.* means the price per cwt. Spicer v. Cooper, 1 G. & D. 52.

(In case of Fraud, p. 768.)

Although the terms of a written contract cannot be varied by parol, yet if one party is induced to enter into the contract by the false representations of the other, it is competent to him to prove that fact by evidence aliunde. Wright v. Crookes, 1 Sc. N. S. 685.

(As collateral, p. 785.)

In ejectment by the grantee of an annuity to recover the premises on which it was secured, a covenant that the premises were of greater value than the annuity does not prevent the defendant from showing the contrary, in order to take the deed out of the exemption of the Act requiring enrolment. Doe v. Ford, 3 Ad. & Ell. 649.

Where a deed of feoffment, describing lands as situate in a particular parish, was produced on an appeal against an order of removal, to show a settlement in the appellant parish, it was held, that it was competent to the respondent parish to show, by parol evidence, that the particular lands were situate in the appellant parish, and not in the one where described by the deed. R. v. Wickham, 2 Ad. & Ell. 517.

Where the defendant, in order to prove an agreement with the plaintiff and other creditors for a composition, put in a letter containing the terms of such agreement, it was held, that evidence of a previous conversation and inquiry by the plaintiff, as to the probability of the other creditors concurring, was admissible to show the motive and intention of writing the letter, and entering into the agreement. Reay v. Richardson, 2 Cr. M. & R. 422.

Where the terms of hiring were by a third person written down, but never signed by the parties, nor proved to have been read over to them, it was held that parol evidence was admissible. R. v. Wrangle, 2 Ad. & Ell. 514.

PART

Of an entire claim is not transferable. The holder of a bill of exchange cannot indorse it for part. Hawkins v. Gardner, 12 Mod. 214. 72. 84; Co. Litt. 385 a.; 2 Wils. 262; Hunt v. Brainer, 6 Mod. 402.

PARTICULARS.

(Affidavit for, p. 793.)

In order to obtain a particular in the action of trespass, trover or case, an affidavit should be made that the defendant does not know what the plaintiff is going for. Snelling v. Chennells, 5 Dowl. 80.

(Granted when, p. 793.)

Assumpsit for money had, &c., to recover back the deposit, on the ground of objection to the title, the Court will oblige the plaintiff to give a particular of all objections to the abstract arising upon matters of fact, but not of law; those they must find out themselves. Roberts v. Rowlands, 3 M. & W. 543.

Where the plaintiff, after delivering a bill to the defendant as the attorney of A., by which A. was made debtor, obtained possession of the bill surreptitiously, and delivered another, making the defendant debtor, the Court stayed the proceedings until a copy of the first bill should be delivered, and directed it to be evidence. Edgington v. Nixon, 2 Bing. N. C. 316; and 2 Sc. 507.

In an action on two bills for 250 l. each, with counts on each, the particulars only stated the action to be brought for 500 l., the amount of the bills set out in the declaration, and it appeared that the defendant had been arrested only for 240 l., and that the bills were given as a security for money paid by the drawer, the Court (Alderson, B. diss.) granted a rule for further and better particulars. Dawes v. Anstruther, 5 Dowl. 738.

Upon a plea of payment of a sum in satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand, the defendant was ordered to furnish particulars, as in case of set off. Ireland v. Thompson, 4 Bing. N. C. 716, and 6 Sc. 601.

(In case of an Indictment, p. 793.)

Where the counts are framed in general terms, a Judge will order a particular of the charges to be given, so as to disclose the same information to the party as would be given by a special count, but not so as to disclose specific facts, dates or places; a particular ought not to state that the prosecutor will also go into other evidence. R. v. Hamilton and others, 7 C. & P. 448.

(Refused when, p. 793.)

The Court has no power to compel a party to give credits. Randall v. Ikey, 4 Dowl. 682.

The Court refused to compel a particular of sums paid, under a plea of payment. Phipps v. Southern, 8 Dowl. 208.

In assumpsit to recover damages sustained by the non-performance of an agreement to assign premises, the Court refused to compel the plaintiff to furnish a particular of the special damage. Retallick v. Hawkes, 1 M. & W. 573; and 1 Tyr. & Gr. 1134.

In debt by the assignee of a lease against the tenant, for breaches of covenant, non-payment of rent, and non-repair, the Court refused to compel a particular as to sums and dates. Sowter v. Hitchcock, 5 Dowl. 724.

Where the particulars omitted to give credit for sums received, the Court refused to compel it, to enable the defendant to pay the balance into Court. Penprase v. Crease, 3 Cr. M. & R. 36; 1 Tyr. & Gr. 468; and 4 Dowl. 711.

The declaration in an action against attornies by the plaintiff, their client, for negligence in permitting him, upon an assignment of leasehold premises, to enter into unqualified covenants, stated the grounds per quod the plaintiff sustained damages; the Court refused to compel a particular of the plaintiff's demand. Stanard v. Ullithorne, 3 Bing. N. C. 326; 3 Sc. 771; and 5 Dowl. 370.

A particular of a bill of exchange will not be given where the declaration contains only one count, unless under special circumstances. Brooks v. Fairlar, 5 Dowl. 361; 3 Bing. N. C. 291; and 3 Sc. 654.

A defendant cannot be compelled to deliver the particulars, pursuant to a Judge's order; but the refusal to obey has the effect of preventing his proceeding in the cause. Cane v. Spinks, 7 Dowl. 27.

In an action for the breach of a warranty of soundness of a horse, the Court will not compel the plaintiff to deliver particulars of the unsoundness. Pylie v. Stephen, 6 M. & W. 813.

(Sufficiency and effect of, p. 794.)

Particulars of set-off improperly intitled in another Court, were held to be sufficient. Lewis v. Helton, 5 Dowl. 267.

A., a broker, introduced a merchant and a shipowner together, to treat for a charter party: they finally made the charter party through B., another broker. In an action by A. for his commission, the particulars of demand were "for commission due to the plaintiff for procuring a charter for a vessel called the W.:"—Held, sufficient. Burnett v. Bouch, 9 C. & P. 620.

In an action to recover back a deposit, the particulars stated it to be, for the defendant not being able to make a good title; and a summons for a better particular having been dismissed on the ground that the objections consisted in matter of law only, a notice was afterwards delivered that the objections were set forth in the plaintiff's answer to a bill in equity, filed by the defendant, and at the trial it appeared that the objection was matter of fact; the Court refused a new trial, the defendant's attorney declining to swear he had been misled. Correll v. Cattle, 5 Dowl. 598.

In assumpsit on an undertaking by the defendant to pay such costs as the plaintiff (an attorney) might be subjected to in an action brought by him against G., a third party, on a bill, the second count was as against the indorser of the bill, and there were counts for money paid and on an account stated; the plaintiff first delivered a bill of particulars in general terms as for a balance of money due and for interest, and afterwards, under a Judge's order for particulars "of the bill of costs, charges and expenses mentioned in the first count," he delivered a second bill of particulars applicable only to such first count, in respect of which the defendant paid into court a sum covering the costs out of pocket; held first, that as the defendant could not be misled, the plaintiff was entitled under such particulars to recover the rest of his bill of costs upon the account stated; but secondly, that an unsigned account, including the plaintiff's bill of costs, which had been sent in for the purpose of proving under G.'s bankruptcy, was not such evidence of an account stated by the defendant as would entitle the plaintiff to recover on that count. Fisher v. Wainwright, 1 M. & W. 480.

Where the order for a particular of set-off required it to be with dates, and the one delivered stated only "from January 1828 to January 1834," the Judge refused to allow evidence to be gone into of the set-off. Swain v. Roberts, 1 Mo. & R. 452.

The plaintiff, in his declaration and particulars, claimed damages for certain articles deposited with the defendant, which had not been returned, and of which due care had not been taken; under the former description in his particulars he set out certain articles of glass, which, however, turned out to have been destroyed: held, that under such particulars he was not entitled to recover damages in respect of those articles. Moss v. Smith, 8 Dowl. 537.

Assumpsit for money had and received, alleged in the particulars to be deposits in the defendant's hands as a stakeholder, on a wager won by the plaintiff; the plaintiff failing to prove this is not entitled to recover even his own deposit on proof of having demanded back his stake before it was paid over. Davenport v. Davis, 1 M. & W. 570; 1 T. & G. 931.

In debt for 180 l. for two years' rent, plea, as to 135 l., parcel, &c., payment to a superior landlord to avoid a distress, which the replication admitted, but alleged to have been allowed and deducted from previous rent due, and that 135 l. was still due over and above the sum so deducted, on which issue was taken; the particulars of demand gave credit for payment of two years' rent, minus 16 l. 6 s. 2 d., and the plaintiff established in evidence, that after allowing the defendant all payments, a sum of 106 l. 16 s. 6 d. was due to him; held (before Reg. Trin. 1838), that the particulars were not to be taken as embodied in the declaration, but that the plea was not to be taken as pleaded to the balance remaining after deduction of the sum for which credit was given in the particular, and that the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict for such balance. Ferguson v. Mahon, 1 P. & D. 194.

On a declaration for goods sold to the amount of 883 l. 10 s., admitting 664 l. 3 s. 6 d. to have been paid, and claiming a balance remaining unpaid; one plea pleaded generally payment of all the sums in the declaration mentioned; the replication new assigned as to 175 l. 17 s., that the sum so paid was in respect of other sums than the causes of action stated in the declaration, and denied the payment of the residue; and issues were taken on the general plea of payment, and denial that the causes of action were other and different: held, that the plea to the declaration was not to be taken as pleaded to the balance only, and that the replication did not admit the payment of the sum stated, as part of the balance, so as to enable the defendant, by proof of payments, making up the difference between the sum claimed and the payment admitted, to be entitled to the verdict; and the jury having found that the defendant had not paid all that was due, a rule for a nonsuit was refused. Alston v. Mills, 1 P. & D. 197. See the Rule, T. T. 1838.

All that is necessary under Rule Trin. 1 W. 4, is, that the particular shall state the balance claimed to be due, and it need not specify sums received on account; although the plaintiff had not complied with the rule, and the cause was referred, the Court refused to interfere as to the costs occasioned by breach of the rule. Smith v. Elridge, 5 N. & M. 408.

The particulars were to recover "a sum of 27 l. 13*s.*, being the balance due after giving credit for all payments on account, and for such sums as the defendant might have to set off against the plaintiff"; and they stated items of the plaintiff's demand to the amount of 120*l.* These are not within the meaning of the rule of T. T. 1 Vic. Morris v. Jones, 1 G. & D. 13.

A plaintiff erroneously inserted in the particulars of demand, as among the payments for which he gave credit, an article which in fact had not been paid for, but returned; held that the Judge rightly left it to the jury to say whether in fact the balance of the whole account was or not in the plaintiff's favour. Lamb v. Micklethwaite, 9 Dowl. 531.

(Amendment, p. 797.)

Where the plaintiff's attorney gives credit in the particulars for a sum set up as a cross-demand, the Court will allow them to be amended. Preston v. Whiteheart, 5 Dowl. 720.

In debt for double rent on 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 18, with a count for use and occupation, the particulars claiming only the double rent, the Court refused to strike out the latter count, as the defendant could not be misled, and the defendant might amend his particulars. Thoroton v. Whitehead, 3 Cr. M. & R. 14; 1 Tyr. & Gr. 313; and 4 Dowl. 747.

Where the particular delivered was calculated to mislead the defendant as to the real nature of the demand, and to which he might have pleaded specially, the Court granted a new trial, with liberty to the plaintiff to amend the particulars, and the defendant to plead de novo. Stevens v. Willingale, 4 Sc. 255; and 7 C. & P. 702.

In assumpsit for money had and received, as the plaintiffs' clerk abroad, and particulars delivered according to an account stated by the defendant, but the suit having been suspended for several years, by the bankruptcy of one of the plaintiffs and absence of the other, the Court allowed the particulars to be amended, by inserting items of demand accruing in the interval. Staples v. Holdsworth, 4 Bing. N. C. 717; 6 Sc. 605; and 8 Dowl. 715.

PARTIES.

Three persons were indicted for a rape, and were also indicted for the murder of the party alleged to be ravished. Before the trial on the indictment for the rape, the counsel for the prosecution asked to have one of the prisoners acquitted, that he might call him as a witness against the others. This was opposed by the prisoners' counsel: held, that in cases of this kind the Court will, if it sees no cause to the contrary, entrust it to the discretion of the counsel for the prosecution to determine whether he will have one of the prisoners acquitted before the trial commences, in order that he may be enabled to call such prisoner as a witness against the other prisoners. R. v. Owen and others, 9 C. & P. 83.

It is almost of course to permit one of several indicted to be acquitted, and to give evidence, notwithstanding the finding of the bill against him. R. v. Owen, 9 C. & P. 83.

A written declaration of a deceased corporator seems to be evidence of a custom to exclude foreigners, although he could not have been called if alive. Davies v. Morgan, 1 C. & J. 587.

PARTNERS.

(By what Terms constituted, p. 800.)

See Brown v. Tapscott, 6 M. & W. 119.

(Proof of being, p. 800.)

The defendant advanced money to one W., with the avowed intention of becoming interested jointly with him in a market which M. was in the course of erecting. The defendant was consulted by W. upon every occasion during the progress of the work; but no definite share in the concern was allotted to him, nor was there any express contract between him and W. as to a partnership, until the 15th October 1833, when an agreement was entered into between them, to the effect that the market should be valued by a surveyor, and that the defendant should be interested in a seventh share. Profits had been made of the market prior to the date of the agreement, but had not been accounted for to the defendant, nor had he received any interest upon the sums advanced by him. Held, that the defendant was not a partner until the 15th October 1833, and consequently was not responsible to the builder for work done before that day. Howell v. Brodie, 8 Scott, 372.

A partner in a firm contracted to give his clerk one-third portion of his (the partner's) own share in the profits: the other parties knew of and assented to the arrangement; held, that this did not make the clerk a partner. Holmes's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 256.

Where the action on a contract was brought by the directors of a mining company, and it appeared that there had been another who, on becoming bankrupt, had ceased to act; held, that as his ceasing to become such could only be under the provisions of the deed, it ought to be produced. Phelps v. Lyle, 2 P. & D. 314; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 113.

In an action by two plaintiffs, as attornies, who carried on the business as partners, the defendant cannot object that by a contract inter se, one was to be secured a certain part of the profits at all events, the debt in the first instance being the joint property of both. Bond v. Pittard, 3 M. & W. 357. And see Waugh v. Carver, 2 H. Bl. 246.

(Pleading by, p. 802).

Where the count stated the defendant to be indebted to the plaintiffs and their deceased partner on an account then stated between them, and after alleging a promise to all, assigned as a breach that the defendant had not paid, it was held to be sufficient. Debenham v. Chambers, 6 Dowl. 101; and 2 M. & W. 128.

(Action by, p. 807.)

In an action brought in the name of the public officer of a banking co-partnership company, established under 7 Geo. 4, c. 46, it is not necessary to allege in the declaration that the plaintiff is a member of the company, that he is resident in England, or that he has been duly registered as required by the 4th section of that Act; it is sufficient to describe the plaintiff as one of the public officers of the company duly appointed. Spiller v. Johnson, 6 M. & W. 570.

The plaintiff sued as the payee of a note made payable on demand to "the manager of the National Provincial Bank of England," but did not sue as public officer; it was held, that upon proof that he was in fact the manager, and that a demand had been duly made on behalf of the bank, the plaintiff was entitled to recover; and that in the absence of a plea that the bank was established under the provisions of the 7 Geo. 4, c. 46, and that the plaintiff was not the public officer, it was not necessary for the plaintiff to show that he was, nor competent to the defendant to show that he was not such public officer. Robertson v. Sheward, 1 Scott, N. S. 419.

(Action by the Bank of England.)

The London Joint-stock Bank (under circumstances which would have made it illegal in them as a company, and a violation of the privileges of the Bank of England, to accept bills payable at a less date than six months), agreed with a bank in Canada, that G. P., the manager of the London Joint-stock Bank, but not a partner or shareholder therein, should accept bills drawn by the Canadian bank payable at a date short of six months, and that the London Joint-stock Bank would provide funds for the due payment of such bills; the money transactions arising therefrom being, in the accounts between them, to be treated in all respects as transactions between the two banks; it was held, first, that the acceptance of such bills, in execution of such agreement, was unlawful, regard being had to the Acts in force respecting the Bank of England. Secondly, that the acceptance of such bills would not have been lawful, even if the London Joint-stock Bank, at the time of such acceptances, had in their hands funds of the Canadian bank equal to the amount of the bills so accepted. Thirdly, that the acceptance of such bills would have been equally unlawful, if the London Joint-stock Bank had not, at the time of such acceptances, any funds in hand belonging to the bank in Canada, but that such bills were accepted on the credit of a contract by the Canadian bank to remit such funds to meet the acceptances. Fourthly, that the Bank of England might maintain an action against the London Joint-stock Bank, founded on such transactions, under either state of circumstances above supposed. Booth v. Bank of England, 1 Scott, N. S. 701.

(By one of several, p. 803.)

The plaintiff and his co-partners employed the defendants as accountants, to make out the accounts of the firm, and also the separate balance of each partner, which were so erroneously made out that the plaintiff individually suffered a considerable loss; he may maintain the action alone, and that the allegation that he had retained the defendants was not a variance. Story v. Richardson, 6 Bing. N. C. 123.

(Actions against—Notice of Action, p. 804.)

Where a Railway Act declared that no action should be brought against any person for anything done in pursuance of it, without twenty-one days' notice given to the intended defendant, it was held to include the company, and that they were entitled to notice of an action for obstructing a road which the plaintiff claimed to use. Boyd v. Croydon Railway Company, 4 Bing. N. C. 669; 6 Sc. 461; and 6 Dowl. 721.

(Action against several, p. 804.)

In assumpsit on a contract for the delivery of coals from a colliery, it appeared that the agreement (for supplying such coals, and for the demise of a coal wharf) purported to be made between the plaintiff and the partners in the colliery, three in number, and was executed by plaintiff and two of the partners; held that, admitting such contract to be one by which the partners might bind an absent co-partner, yet that the Judge, on trial, ought not to direct the jury as matter of law that the contract signed by two bound them, but should desire the jury to say whether it was intended to do so or not, if there are circumstances from which an intention can be inferred that no party should be bound unless all the partners signed: such as the nature and terms of the agreement; the distance of time at which it was to come into operation; the declarations and conduct of the parties respecting it: and the manner in which previous contracts between them, of the same kind, had been executed. Latch v. Wedlake, 11 A. & E. 959.

An agreement was entered into between the plaintiff and A. and B. by name (not as a firm), by which it was stipulated that the plaintiff should serve A. and B. as foreman in their business of type-founders for the period of seven years, if A. and B. or either of them should so long live. The plaintiff having subsequently discovered that, at the time this agreement was entered into, one C. was a dormant partner with A. and B., declared upon it as an agreement to serve A., B., and C., or the survivor of them, for the period and on the terms therein mentioned; held, that this was a total misdescription of the contract. Beckham v. Knight, 1 Scott, N. S. 675.

Where it was clearly established that there was a joint interest between the printer and publisher, in particular works, for which paper was furnished by the plaintiffs, and delivered to the printer by orders from the publisher, who afterwards became bankrupt; held, that if the jury were satisfied that at the time when the goods were furnished the defendants were partners in the concern for whose benefit they were furnished, the plaintiffs were entitled to recover, otherwise not. Gardiner v. Childs, 8 C. & P. 345.

In an action by the solicitor of an intended company for preparing their copartnership deed, a person may be liable without being one of the directors. The persons who are directors are liable, and other persons may be liable also, if they interfere in the management, and hold themselves out as persons giving the order; and in such a case the question will be, whether such persons as were not directors so acted as to become employers of the solicitor in preparing the deed. Bell v. Francis, 9 C. & P. 66.

Where the question was whether the defendant's liability accrued as trustee or shareholder; held, that it was essential to produce the deed creating the character of trustee, and that it was not sufficient to dispense with the production of it in evidence that the plea admitted the trust deed referred to in the recital of the deed of covenant. Gillett v. Abbott, 3 Nev. & P. 24; and see Phelps v. Lyle, supra, 1505.

There is no distinction between trading and mining companies: and where a party takes shares in a concern, on a prospectus holding out that a certain capital is to be raised for carrying it on, he will not be liable as a partner unless the terms of the prospectus be fulfilled, or it be shown that he knows and acquiesces in the directors carrying it on with a less capital; where the jury negatived such knowledge or acquiescence, and found the defendant not liable, the Court held the finding to be right. Pitchford v. Davis, 5 M. & W. 2.

It appears from the rules of a club, that the members are to provide funds to be administered by the committee, and to provide the means of carrying it on without dealing on credit; the committee cannot pledge the credit of individual members. Flemyng v. Hector, 2 M. & W. 172.

(Partner by Representation, p. 805.)

A club was formed, by the regulations of which the members paid entrance-money, and an annual subscription, and cash was paid for provisions supplied to the house. The funds of the club were deposited at a banker's, and a committee was appointed to manage the affairs of the club, and to administer the funds, but no member of the committee had authority to draw cheques, except three who were chosen for that purpose, and whose signatures were countersigned by the secretary; held, in an action brought against two of the committee by a tradesman who had supplied wine on credit, ordered by a member of the committee for the use of the club, that the tradesman was not entitled to recover, without proving either that the defendants were privy to the contract, or that the dealing on credit was in furtherance of the common object and purposes of the club. Todd v. Emly, 7 M. & W. 427.

Where a partner accustomed to issue notes on behalf of the firm indorses a particular note in a name differing from that of the partnership, and not previously used by them, which note is objected to on that account in an action brought upon it by the indorsee, the proper question for the jury is, whether the name used, though inaccurate, substantially describes the firm, or whether it so far varies that the indorser must be taken to have issued the note on his own account, and not in the exercise of his general authority as partner. Faith v. Richmond, 11 A. & E. 339. So where a partner in "The Newcastle and Sunderland Wall's End Coal Company" drew a note in the name of "The Newcastle Coal Company," and made it payable at a bank where the first-mentioned company had no account. Ib.

Where the jury found that the defendant was not a member of a joint-stock company when the order for the goods for which the action was brought was given, although they were delivered after his becoming so, it was held that he could not be made liable for what was supplied on the credit of others. Whitehead v. Barron, 2 Mo. & R. 248.

A mining concern is a trading concern, and the members of the company, unless a limited authority be shown, have power to bind each other by dealings on credit for the purpose of working them when it appears to be necessary or usual in the management of them; and where a shareholder by letter interfered, by requiring a meeting to be called for the purpose of changing a director, held that it amounted to an acquiescence in the concern going on, although the full number of shares originally held out had not been subscribed for. Tredwen v. Bourke, 6 M. & W. 464.

(Defence—Illegality, &c., p. 810.)

The 6 Geo. 4, c. 42, s. 2, enables partnerships in Ireland, of more than six persons, and not having establishments at places at less than 50 miles from Dublin, to carry on the banking business, and provides that actions might be brought in the name of the registered officer "against any person or bodies politic or corporate or others, whether members of such co-partnership or otherwise;" on a plea, in assumpsit, for money had and received to the use of the Commercial Bank of Ireland, and for an account stated, that the establishment of the company had been "from the time of the formation thereof until the commencement of the suit, and then were, at places in Ireland less than 50 miles from Dublin, contrary, &c.;" held, that it was not sufficient to show that at any time there had been such a branch bank, but that it must have been in existence for the whole time, viz. from the time of the formation of the company down to the time of the commencement of the suit, and that the whole allegation in the plea ought to be proved: qu. whether the action be maintainable against the defendant, as a member of a banking company. Hughes v. Thorpe, 5 M. & W. 656.

A joint-stock company, the shares of which might be increased to an unlimited extent, and be assigned or disposed of by deed or will to any persons at the discretion of the holders, is fraudulent and illegal. Blundell v. Windsor, 8 Sim. 601.

The trade of a banker is within the meaning of 57 Geo. 3, c. 99, and a plea that spiritual persons holding benefices were partners in the banking company, (the plaintiffs being the indorsers of the bill,) and the promise laid in the declaration void in law as against the statute, held good. Hall v. Franklin, 3 M. & W. 259.

But by the provisions of the stat. 4 Vict. c. 14., contracts by co-partnerships in trade are not to be invalidated by reason of any of its members being spiritual persons.

Actions and suits by companies against individuals, being co-partners, and vice versâ, are further regulated by 1 & 2 Vict. c. 96.

(Actions inter se for Calls, &c., p. 815.)

By the Cheltenham and Great Western Union Railway Act, 6 Will. 4, c. lxxvii, it is enacted, that in an action for calls on shares in that company, the book of shares, under the seal of the company, shall be primâ facie evidence that a party is proprietor of shares. It appeared that a call was made in October 1836, and that the book of shares, which contained the name of the defendant as a shareholder, was made up before the end of September 1836, from claims sent in by different parties, but that the seal was not affixed to it till November 1836: it was held, that this book was no evidence that the defendant was a proprietor of shares at the time of the call in October 1836. The Cheltenham Union Railway Company v. Price, 9 C. & P. 55.

Where the Act gave a general form of declaration for calls, and provided that it should only be necessary to prove the defendant to be a proprietor at the time of the calls being made, the fact of their being made, and notice, the Court allowed only the pleas, of nunq. indeb., that the defendant was not a proprietor, and that the shares were forfeited, and disallowed others raising issues, as to the legality of the meetings of the directors when the calls were made; of no notice, according to the Act, nor time nor place of payment appointed; of the calls not being made for the purposes of the Act, nor made upon all the shareholders, nor by competent persons. S. Eastern Railway Company v. Hebblewhite, 4 P. & D. 247.

In debt for calls on shares in the general form given by the Act, it was held that it is to be taken as if all the facts necessary to be proved were alleged, and that the defendant may by his plea deny a fact material to be proved, but must then conclude to the country; so, if the defence be a matter subsequent, he may show it by plea: it was held also, that in order to show that the company had exercised the right of option of declaring the shares forfeited, the plea must distinctly allege the acts required by the Act to be done to establish the forfeiture. Edinburgh and Leith Railway Company v. Hebblewhite, 6 M. & W. 707; and 8 Dowl. 892.

By the 84th section of the Act of Incorporation of the Southampton Dock Company, it is enacted, amongst other things, that in an action against a shareholder for calls, "in order to prove that the defendant was a proprietor of such shares in the undertaking as alleged, the production of the book in which the secretary of the company is by the Act directed to enter and keep a list of the names and additions and places of abode of the several proprietors of shares in the said undertaking, with the number of shares they are respectively entitled to hold, shall be primâ facie evidence that such defendant is a proprietor, and of the number or amount of his shares therein;" and by s. 89, the company are required "from time to time to cause the names and additions and places of abode of the several persons who shall be from time to time respectively entitled to shares in the said undertaking, with the number of shares which they are respectively entitled to hold, and the amount of the subscriptions paid thereon, and also the proper number by which every such share shall be distinguished, to be fairly and distinctly entered in a book to be kept by the secretary of the said company:" held, that this latter clause was directory only, and that a failure literally to comply with the directions as to the mode of making the entries —an omission to insert the numbers of the shares or the addresses of some of the proprietors—did not render the book inadmissible in evidence. The Southampton Dock Company v. Richards, 1 Scott, N. S. 219.

The 63d section enacts, that "the minutes or entries thereinafter provided to be kept of the orders and proceedings of the directors, when signed as thereinafter ordered, shall be deemed original orders and proceedings, and shall be allowed to be read in evidence in all courts, and before all judges, justices, and others, and that without proof of such meeting having been duly convened, or of the persons making or entering such orders or proceedings, being proprietors or directors of the said company, as the case may be;" and the 75th section enacts, "that the said directors shall keep a regular minute and entry of the orders and proceedings at every meeting of the said directors, which shall be signed by the chairman at each respective meeting:" held, that a signature by the chairman, at a subsequent meeting at which the minutes of the former meeting were read over and confirmed was a sufficient compliance with the Act. The Southampton Dock Company v. Richards, 1 Scott, N. S. 219.

(Calls—Railway Act—Form of Notice.)

As to the form of a notice of calls under a Railway Act, see Great North of England Railway v. Biddulph, 7 M. & W. 243; Sheffield, Ashton-under-Lyne, and Manchester Railway Company v. Woodcock, 7 M. & W. 574.

(Liability of Partners, inter se, p. 815.)

Where the defendant, the inventor of a machine, but wanting capital to carry it into execution, applied to the plaintiff for the advance of a sum, which, by an agreement, he expressly promised to repay, and undertook that if the invention succeeded and became in general use, the plaintiff should be entitled to one-third of the profit; held, in an action to recover the money advanced, that the express promise to pay the specific sum prevented its constituting any part of the partnership fund. Elgie v. Webster, 5 M & W. 518.

Where, upon an agreement for dissolution of partnership, the stock was to be left in the hands of the continuing partner, who was to pay the debts, and enter into a bond with the defendant as surety, to indemnify the plaintiff; in an action on the bond, the breach assigned was, that the plaintiff had been arrested for a partnership debt, for which the plaintiff had been sued with the continuing partner; the defendant pleaded that if the plaintiff had been dammified, it was through his own default; held, that upon such plea the defendant could not give in evidence that the bond to indemnify was made conditional upon an adjustment of the partnership accounts, and that the plaintiff had not paid over a balance alleged to be due, nor that the costs of the other partner defending the action were less than those of the plaintiff. White v Ansdell, 1 M. & W. 348.

Where the Act constituting a joint-stock company expressly directed that the money to be raised should be applied in the first instance in discharging the costs of obtaining the Act; held, that as soon as the sums subscribed came to the possession of the company, they became liable to pay those costs, and that the plaintiff, although a member of the company, might sue them in debt for the amount. Carden v. General Cemetery Company, 5 Bing. N. C. 253; and 7 Dowl. 275.

The plaintiff contracted to do certain work for a joint-stock company for a given sum; he afterwards caused his name to be inserted in the books of the company as a holder of shares therein; held, that this did not affect his right to sue the company in respect of the prior contract. Lucas v. Beach, 1 Scott, N. S. 350.

Where several of a company of proprietors of a steam-boat running during the summer months, by a memorandum, signed by the plaintiff, defendant, and others, authorized the plaintiff to charter a boat and make arrangements for its running during the winter months "on our joint account," each taking a portion of the profits proportionate to the amount of their subscriptions, and undertaking to pay their instalments by a certain time; held, that although an action for money paid might not lie for the instalments payable by the defendant advanced by the plaintiff, yet that a special assumpsit would lie for non-performance of the undertaking, founded on the consideration of the plaintiff's undertaking the management, and that a promise to pay was sufficient evidence to support the Court on an account stated, and the rule for a nonsuit discharged. Brown v. Tapscott, 6 M. & W. 119.

(Execution.)

On a judgment against the registered public officer of a banking co-partnership execution may issue against him without a scire facias. Parke, B. dubitante. Harwood v. Law, 8 Dowl. 899; 7 M. & W. 203; Cross v. Law, 8 Dowl. 789; Bosanquet v. Ransford, 3 P. & D. 296; Whittenbury v. Law, 8 Scott, 661.

(Competency, p. 817.)

Two partners being sued on a bill as indorsees, one pleaded his discharge by bankruptcy and certificate, and a non pros. was entered as to him; held, that as since the 49 Geo. 3, c. 121, s. 8, the solvent partner, after payment of the partnership debt, might prove against his insolvent partner's estate, and the certificate be a bar to any action for contribution, the bankrupt was an admissible witness for him. Afflalo v. Fourdrinier, 6 Bing. 306; and see tit. PARTIES; and Vol. I. tit. INTEREST.

Where B., a partner and acting director procured shares in a joint stock company for a party not a partner, and received the purchase-money, but the party afterwards refused to accept the transfer of the shares and to pay the calls, alleging that he had been induced to purchase the shares by false representations, and fraudulent concealment as to the solvency of the company; held, that on an issue to try the truth or falsehood of those allegations, partners of the company were not incompetent witnesses for B. Syme v. Brown, 3 Cl. & Fi. 412.

PART-OWNER.

Where the names of two partners only were named in the register, and they were sworn as sole owners, it was held that under 6 Geo. 4, c. 110, s. 32, a third partner could claim no interest in it or equitable title. Slater v. Willis, 1 Beav. 354.

PAWNBROKERS.

See TROVER. Tregoning v. Attenborough, 7 Bing. 9; Cowie v. Harrison, 1 Mo. & M. 141.

Trover by assignees for watches belonging to the bankrupt, plea that they were deposited as pledges with the defendant as a pawnbroker, for monies advanced, replication, alleging a corrupt contract for the loan, and for forbearance, to wit, one whole year from the making such loan, at illegal interest, the evidence being that they were deposited from time to time, without any agreement as to the time; held, that it must be inferred that the contract was meant to be on the usual terms of a pawnbroker. Nickesson v. Trotter, 3 M. & W. 130.

A pawnbroker is not entitled, under the 39 & 40 Geo. 3 c. 99, s. 2, allowing the rate of $\frac{1}{2}d.$ a month for the loan of $2s.\ 6d.$, to charge by monthly rests as on a monthly contract; and, quære, where the interest involves the fraction of $\frac{1}{4}d.$, if he can demand the full farthing. R. v. Goodburn, 3 Nev. & P. 468.

PAYMENT.

(Right to begin, p. 818.)

Assumpsit, plea of payment as to part, and a set-off as to the residue, the defendant is to begin; and payments in part only being proved, the plaintiff is bound to go into evidence to show how much he was entitled to; and it was held the delivery of the particulars before plea made no difference. Coxhead v. Huish, 7 C. & P. 63.

(Proof as to, under particular Pleas.)

The particulars of the plaintiff's demand in an action of assumpsit on a bill of exchange and for goods sold and delivered, stated goods sold and delivered to the amount of 42 l. 5 s.; they then gave credit for a bill of 36 l. 8 s., and to the balance of 5 l. 17 s. added a further sum of 10 l. 18 s. for goods; and to the amount, 16 l. 15 s., added the amount of 36 l. 8 s. for the bill mentioned in the declaration and indorsed by the defendant. It was held, that the defendant could not avail himself of the transfer of the bill to the plaintiff, without an appropriate plea, as the two items in the particulars with respect to the bill destroyed each other, so that there was no admission of payment. Green v. Smithies, 1 G. & D. 395.

Assumpsit for not receiving goods made to order, plea, payment into Court and that the plaintiff had not sustained damages beyond; held, that upon such a plea, the defendant could not give in evidence a countermand of the order, when only in part executed. Stevens v. Ufford, 7 C. & P. 97.

Assumpsit on an agreement for wages as a courier for five months certain, at five guineas a month, and, in case of discharge before that period, to pay fifty guineas and the expenses of return, assigning a double breach, the dismissal before the expiration of the five months, and the refusal to pay the fifty guineas, or any sum for expenses; there was also a count for wages generally; pleas, first, except as to 21 l., that the defendant wrongfully quitted the service; 2dly, as to the first count, except as to 21 l., dismissal for improper conduct. 3dly. As to the second count, except as to 21 l., non assumpsit; and 4thly, payment into Court on the whole declaration: replications joining issue on the first and third pleas; to the second, de injuria; and to the fourth, damages ultra: at the trial the jury found for the plaintiff on the first and fourth issues, and for the defendant on the others. Held, that there being no complete answer to the first issue, without referring to the plea of payment into Court, which was to be taken to go to the whole declaration, and admitted the contract as stated in the first count, and that something was due on both the causes of action therein stated, on each of which an undefined portion, not exceeding 21 l., was left unanswered, the plaintiff was entitled to nominal damages. Fischer v. Aide, 3 M. & W. 486.

Debt, with several counts, plea, that the defendant had paid to the plaintiff several sums, in the whole amounting to a large sum, to wit, the amount of the several debts in the declaration alleged; the plaintiff need not new assign, but is entitled to recover the balance betweeen the amount of debt proved and payment made. Freeman v. Crofts, 4 M. & W. 1, and 6 Dowl. 698.

Where a plaintiff gives credit in his particulars of demand for payments, whether made before or after action brought, and goes only for the balance, a plea of payment is to be taken as pleaded to such balance; and if the defendant proves payments to that amount, independently of the sums credited in the particulars, he is entitled to a verdict. Eastwich v. Harman, 6 M. & W. 13.

Where the particulars delivered claimed a balance, and alleged that a full particular, exceeding three folios, had been already delivered, and acknowledging the receipt of various sums; the payment was held not to be an admission within the rule of Trin. 1 Vict. preventing the necessity of a plea of payment. Bosley v. Moore, 8 Dowl. 375.

As to payments available under the plea of being in arrear, see Sapsford v. Fletcher, 4 T. R. 511; Taylor v. Zamira, 6 Taunt. 524; Carter v. Carter, 5 Bing. 406; Davies v. Stacy, 4 P. & D. 159.

(Credit given by Particulars.)

The admission of money received, in a bill of particulars, cannot be taken as evidence of payment without a plea of payment. Ernest v. Brown, 3 Bing. N. C. 674; 4 Sc. 385; and 5 Dowl. 637.

(Payment by whom, &c. p. 819.)

The payment of rates required under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 9, is deemed to mean a payment by the burgess himself, and not by another, although with his sanction. R. v. Bridgnorth Mayor, 2 P. & D. 317; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 66.

(To whom, p. 819.)

On a sale of tallow by auction the purchaser was, by the conditions of sale, to pay down a deposit, and the remainder of the purchase-money by a given day, and if desirous to pay before that day, to be allowed a discount, and, if required, to enter into an agreement and bond with one or more sureties for the performance of such conditions; the defendant, as the purchaser, a few days after the sale gave a bill dated on the day of the sale at six months, and indorsed it to the auctioneer, who, being in difficulties, indorsed it to a third person, to whom he was indebted on his own account, and it was duly paid; held, not to be a valid payment under the agreement of purchase, the auctioneer not being authorised to receive payment by a bill. Sykes v. Giles, 5 M. & W. 645.

Where an insurance broker or mercantile agent is employed to receive money for another in the general course of his business, and the known general usage is for the agent to keep a running account with the principal, and to credit him with sums received by credits in accounts with the debtors, with whom he also keeps running accounts, and an account is bonâ fide settled according to that known usage, the original debtor is discharged, and the agent becomes the debtor according to the intention and with the authority of the principal. Stewart v. Aberdein, 4 M. & W. 211.

(Evidence of the Fact, p. 822.)

On the issue of payment and a receipt in satisfaction, a receipt, signed by the London agent for the attorney, of the debt and costs indorsed on the writ of summons, is admissible, without calling the agent. Weary v. Alderson, 2 M. & R. 127.

In an action by a passenger against the captain for an insufficient supply of good and fresh provisions, an allegation of the passage money having been paid by the plaintiff was supported by showing that it was paid by the charterers, his employers. Young v. Fewson, 8 C. & P. 55.

Where on an agreement of demise, the defendants were to pay all rates, &c., land-tax excepted; held, that an extraordinary assessment by the commissioners of sewers, for works producing a permanent benefit to the land, was within the agreement; but the rate being made in proportions upon the owners and occupiers, and the tenant having for four years paid both, and in settling with the landlord's agent, who was ignorant of that agreement, deducted the former, and receipts were given for the balance; held, in an action on the agreement to recover the amount so deducted as arrears of rent, that the facts supported a plea of payment. Waller v. Andrews, 3 M. & W. 302.

A creditor is entitled to exercise his discretion whether he will treat a cheque as payment; à fortiori, if it be conditional, as when expressed to be for the balance of an account. Hough v. May, 6 N. & M. 535; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 954.

In support of a replication of payment of interest, in answer to a plea of the statute, a witness stated that he had settled all kinds of accounts for the defendant; he admitted his handwriting to an account having the item of a payment by the defendant for interest; and although he swore he did not recollect the fact, this was held to be evidence to go to a jury. Trentham v. Deverill, 3 Bing. N. C. 397; and 4 Sc. 128.

(Presumptive Evidence of, p. 823.)

On separation, in 1797, the husband granted an annuity, determinable on payment of a sum to the wife; the annuity was paid up to 1803, but discontinued ever since, and evidence was given of a bond having been executed by the husband about that time in a larger amount than the sum stipulated, but alleged to include it, to a party with whom the wife was then living in adultery; proof was also given of judgment having been entered up on the bond, and of another bond given for a lesser sum to the same party, which was shown to have been satisfied by payment; under such circumstances, after the lapse of 30 years a Court of Equity will presume payment of a stipulated sum in satisfaction of the annuity, with the approbation of the wife, and for her use. Haworth v. Bostock, 4 Younge & C. 1.

Where a judgment was obtained in 1805, and duly docketed, and upon the sale of the defendant's real estate in 1806, notice of the judgment remaining unsatisfied was given to the purchaser in 1806, after which for 28 years no steps were taken by the judgment-creditor for enforcing payment, although he might have resorted to a sufficient fund in equity; held, that after such unexplained laches, a Court of Equity, acting upon the principles of limitation of suits at law, would adopt the same inference as to satisfaction, and the bill to enforce the charge was dismissed with costs. Grenfell v. Girdlestone, 2 Younge & C. 662.

And it was held that the inference was not repelled by evidence of the debtor's insolvency during the lapse of time. An acknowledgment by the debtor to a third person will not take the case out of the statute. Ib.

(Application of, 824.)

One of two bankrupts, W. M., being a partner in another firm of M. & S., gave a security to the petitioners for any moneys that might become due, either from the house of the bankrupts or from the firm of M. & S.; held, that the proceeds of the security might be applied first in discharge of the debt due from the firm of M. & S. Ex parte Glyn & Masterman, 1 Mont. D. & D. 25.

Where upon one of two partners retiring, the other entered upon the same business with another, and it was agreed that, the continuing partner bringing into the business — l. of good debts of the late firm to meet the debts transferred to the new one, he should be entitled to two-thirds, and the new partner to one-third; no settlement of accounts was made for 14 years, and during the last five years an amount equal to the stipulated sum was paid in by the debtors to the old firm, although not so if subsequent advances to them by the new firm were deducted from the payments; held, that the agreement was performed, the monies so paid in, without appropriation, being to be applied in discharge of the oldest debts; (reversing the judgment below). Tralmin v. Copeland, 2 Cl. & Fi. 681; and 8 Bli. N. S. 918.

Where D., one of two partners, was also the private agent of a client of the firm, and upon the dissolution and a settlement, the latter assigned all the outstanding partnership debts to P., the other; but the latter, both before and after the dissolution, continued to receive moneys and rents of the client, and there was no evidence of any direction by him to appropriate them either to the partnership or private debt; in a suit by P. for the debt due to the firm, held that D.'s evidence was admissible to explain an ambiguous payment, and negative the appropriation; the presumption of law, that in the absence of any direction at the time of payment, priority of obligation prevails, is not extended to cases where the parties claim diverso jure. Nottidge v. Pritchard, 2 Cl. & Fi. 493, and 8 Bli. 493, affirming the judgment below, reversing that of the Master of the Rolls; see 1 Russ. & M. 199.

(Payment in Reduction of Damages.)

Evidence of partial payments, are held admissible in assumpsit, in mitigation of damages, but not as an answer to the action, the issue raising two points for the jury, viz., as to which party to be found, and, secondly, the amount of damages sustained. Lediard v. Bouchier, 7 C. & P. 1. S. P. Shirley v. Jacobs, ib. 3.

Where a payment had been made after action brought, but which was not pleaded, the Court, it not being denied, allowed the damages to be reduced; and semble, evidence may be given of such payment, though not specially pleaded. Richardson v. Robertson, 1 M. & W. 463.

In assumpsit, the defendant having proved a payment, there being only the general issue pleaded, the Court refused a new trial, the objection not being taken at the time, and no affidavit of surprise. Wright v. Skinner, 1 Tyr. & Gr. 277; and 4 Dowl. 741.

(Payment, demand of.)

Where money is ordered by rule of Court to be paid to a party or his agent, the demand made by a person acting for the plaintiff must be by power of attorney. Brown v. Jenks, 4 Dowl. 581.

(Payment into Court, plea of, p. 828.)

To a count on a bill of exchange or promissory note, a defendant cannot pay a smaller sum into Court, and plead that he was never indebted to a larger amount, but should show a failure of consideration, or some other valid defence as to part, and then pay the residue into Court. Armfield v. Burgin, 8 Dowl. 247.

(Admission by, p. 829.)

A plea of payment into Court on the general counts, merely admits a cause of action to that amount on one or more of the counts. Archer v.

English, 2 Scott, N. S. 156; 9 Dowl. 21. And see Dolby v. Iles, 3 P. & D. 287; Armfield v. Burgin, 6 M. & W. 281; 8 Dowl. 247; Kingham v. Robins, 7 Dowl. 352; 5 M. & W. 94. But see Meager v. Smith, 4 B. & Ad. 673; Walker v. Fawson, 5 C. & P. 486.

Where in assumpsit against two, for work and labour as an attorney for them as trustees, with the common indebitatus count, the defendants pleaded, except as to —l., non assumpsit, and as to that sum payment into Court, as to which the plaintiff took the money out of Court; held, that the latter plea, only admitting a liability to that amount on some contract, the plaintiff was bound to go on and prove a contract by which the defendant was further liable beyond the money paid in: where money is paid in on a count on a special contract, it is an admission of such contract. Archer v. Walker, 9 Dowl. 21.

A plea of payment into Court, by two defendants, pleaded to one or more indebitatus counts, admits only that the plaintiff has a cause of action on one or more of the contracts declared on, to the amount of the sum paid in; and does not admit the defendants' joint liability to any greater amount, although the plaintiff gives evidence aliunde to fix one of the defendants with liability to a greater amount. Stapleton v. Nowell, 6 M. & W. 9; and 8 Dowl. 196.

PEDIGREE.

The probate of the will of a deceased ancestor is inadmissible as evidence of a declaration by the testator of matter of pedigree. Doe v. Ormerod, 1 Mo. & R. 466.

A document found amongst an ancestor's papers, in the custody of a stranger in blood, and not signed by the ancestor, nor by any of his family, is inadmissible evidence in a case of pedigree. Vaux Peerage, 5 Cl. & Fi. 526.

A funeral certificate from the MS. in the Heralds' College, intituled "Funeral Certificates of the Nobility," is admissible as evidence of the statements therein. Ib.

Where the ancestor had seven sons, and proof was given of the issue of the first and second having become extinct, and of reputation of the four next having died without issue, there being no contemporaneous account of them nor any claimant through them in the course of a long contest for the dignity, held that it was to be presumed that they died without issue. Ib.

PEER.

On a claim by coheirs to the dignity of a baron, created in the reign of Hen. 8th, and in abeyance from the reign of Car. 2d, they proved that their ancestor sat among the peers in Parliament in the 25th of Hen. 8th; that he was duly summoned to and sat in the Parliament of the 28th of Hen. 8th; and that he and his heirs male, who were also his heirs general, were summoned to and sat in several succeeding Parliaments, by the style and title of Lord Vaux. To account for the want of evidence of a writ of summons prior to the sitting in the 25th of Hen. 8th, they showed that there were no Lords' Journals extant from the 7th to the 25th of Hen. 8th; that the enrolments of writs during that period were very imperfect, and that, although the Patent Rolls were complete, no patent or charter of creation of a barony of Vaux, nor any record or trace of such patent, was discovered, after the most diligent searches in all the offices for records. Held that the barony of Vaux was created by writ of summons and sitting in Parliament, and was therefore descendible to heirs general. Vaux Peerage, 5 Cl. & Fi. 526.

In the same case the following matters were resolved :

The statements of chroniclers or contemporary historians are not admissible as evidence of the creation of a peerage.

The admission of an inscription in a church-yard, by a former Committee of Privileges, does not make a copy from their minutes necessarily admissible in another case. A paper writing, found among an ancestor's papers in the custody of a stranger in blood, and not signed by the ancestor nor by any of his family, is not admissible to show the state of the family.

A manuscript book, intitled "Funeral Certificates of the Nobility," produced from the Heralds' College, is admissible evidence of the state of the deceased's family, and other statements contained in it. Ib. 5 Cl. & Fi. App. Cas. 526.

A monumental inscription, admitted in one case, is not as of course admissible in another. Ib. 541.

Upon a claim to a Scotch peerage, where no patent of creation can be found, but it appears from the record of the Parliament that the ancestor, from whom the dignity is alleged to have descended, sat in Parliament, an original instrument, purporting to be under the great seal of Scotland, and produced from the repositories of the heir of entail of the family estates, will be received as evidence of the creation of such peer, with a limitation to him and his heirs male therein stated. Huntley Peerage, 5 Cl. & Fi. 349.

B. claiming, of right, to be Lord Baron of Slane, in the peerage of Ireland, as heir general of the last Lord Slane, and alleging that the same was a barony in fee, showed by his statement and proofs, that from the first creation of a peerage in his ancestors to the year 1597, four such peers, dying at various periods without issue male, but leaving daughters or sisters, were severally succeeded in the dignity by the heirs male, uncles, or cousins, who were in possession of the family estates. The claimant further showed, that a Lord Baron of Slane, whom he alleged to be the last peer of the family, and of whom he stated himself to be sole heir general, left a daughter, an only child, who long survived him, but did not claim the peerage; and also two sisters, the elder of whom he stated to have died without issue, and from the younger the claimant derived his descent as her sole heir. Held that the claimant, though he might be heir general, had failed to make out his claim to the dignity, as it appeared by his own statement to have gone uniformly to the heirs male in exclusion of the heirs female, who had never made claim to it. Slane Peerage, 5 Cl. & Fi. 23.

In the same case the following points were ruled :—

In a claim of peerage, where there is no patent of creation or enrolment of such patent, and the contemporaneous Lords' Journals are not in existence, an old MS. book, purporting to be copied from the Journals by an officer whose duty it was to prepare lists of peers present and absent, will be received as evidence of a peer sitting in Parliament.

A return to a royal commission, not signed nor sealed by the commissioners, is not admissible to prove any matter therein stated.

A pedigree, made by a person with a view to a suit respecting property, is not receivable in a claim of peerage by his son, to prove his descent; nor is a case, stated for the opinion of counsel, produced from the family papers of a distant relation of the claimant.

Entries in a family missal are admitted as evidence of births, deaths, and marriages of members of the family, just like similar entries in a family Bible.

To make a copy of a record admissible in evidence, it is not enough that it was held by a witness while another read the original to him; there must be a change of hands, or the witness must himself read the copy with the original. Slane Peerage, 5 Cl. & Fi. App. Cas. 24.

Where the claim to vote in the election of Irish representative peers is in doubt or claimed adversely, the House will require a printed case, pedigree, and reference to proofs, to be given in. Where the right to the same dignity has been before investigated in the Irish House of Lords, the minutes of proceedings, evidence, and depositions of witnesses (since dead) were held to be admissible as against all parties. Roscommon, Earl of, Case of, 6 Cl. & Fi. 97.

(Sufficiency of description of, in an Indictment.)

The proper mode of describing a peer in an indictment is by his Christian name, and degree in the peerage; the describing him as "lord," not "baron," was held to be insufficient. R. v. Pitts, 8 C. & P. 771; Roscommon's Peerage Case, 6 Cl. & F. 97.

Peers against whom any indictment of felony found, are to plead, and upon conviction, to be liable to the same punishment as any other subject, by 4 Vict. c. 22.

A personal dignity (where there is no failure of issue or corruption of blood) held not to have been taken away by 28 H. 8, c. 3 (against the decision 12 Co. Rep.) The House of Peers is the only tribunal to determine claims to dignities; and where a question of law arises, the course is by petition to the Crown claiming the dignity, in order that it may be referred by the Crown to the House, with the report of the Crown law-officers annexed, when the House adjudicate on the right, and report to the Crown. Waterford, Earl of, Case, 6 Cl. & Fi. 134.

An adjudication in that form by the Irish House of Peers is as binding on that of the United Kingdom, as one by the latter on the claims to the British peerage; but a resolution of the House affirming the report of its Committee, is not equivalent to an adjudication upon a reference from the Crown. Lord Waterford's Case, 6 Cl. & Fi. 134.

PENAL ACTION.

As to proof of the commencement of the action, see Time.

Where the penalty results from want of qualification, the plaintiff is not bound to prove the negative. Apoth. Co. v. Bentley, R. & M. 159.

Where, in a penal action, counsel are regularly retained, the plaintiff cannot himself interpose and claim to be nonsuited. Marks v. Benjamin, 2 Mo. & R. 225.

(Hawker, sale by, &c.)

A party who lives and manufactures goods at B., and sends them to S. at an inn there, and employs an auctioneer to sell them, is liable to an information under the statute 50 Geo. 3, c. 4, s. 7, charging him as a trading person going from town to town, &c. The Act clearly contemplates other persons than hawkers, &c. selling at other towns and houses than that of the dealer's residence. Attorney-general v. Tongue, 12 Pri. 51; and see Attorney-general v. Woolhouse, Ib. 65, and 1 Y. & J. 463; and Dean v. Scholes, 12 Price, 58.

Where the defendant, a servant, was employed in going round the neighbourhood every fortnight in obtaining orders for tea, and at a subsequent round delivered the parcels as ordered, neither he nor his master having a hawker's licence; held, that it was not carrying "to sell or expose to sale" without a licence, for which he was liable to penalties within 50 Geo. 3, c. 41. R. v. Irie M'Knight, 10 B. & C. 734.

The exception in sec. 23 of 50 Geo. 3, c. 41, of the real "worker or makers of the goods sold," is not to be confined to parties actually engaged in the manual labour of the manufacture, but a party really a partner is within the protection; and a sale by an auctioneer in his presence as of the goods of the firm, held to be a sale by the principal. R. v. Faraday & Wood, 1 B. & Ad. 275.

(Fraudulent Removal, &c.—General Issue.)

In a penal action to recover the double value of goods removed to avoid a distress; the plea of the general issue (nil debet) puts all the facts in issue, as the new rules do not apply to penal actions; held, also, that the 21 Jac. 1, c. 4, s. 4, is applicable to subsequent statutes. Jones v. Williams, 4 M. & W. 375; and 7 Dowl. 207.

(Harbouring Goods.)

On an information upon 6 Geo. 4, c. 108, s. 45, for harbouring goods liable to the payment of duties, held that it was not supported by proof of receiving goods which, by reason of the quantities in which they were packed and imported, were expressly prohibited. Attorney-general v. Key, 1 Cr. & J. 159; and S. C. Attorney-general v. Bell, 1 Tyrw. 52.

(Master of Ship.)

The 6 Geo. 4, c. 125, s. 66, imposes a penalty on a pilot acting in that capacity without first producing his licence; held that the master of a ship was not subject to the penalty under s. 58, for refusing to employ him, the licence not having been produced by the pilot, although not demanded. Hammond v. Blake, 10 B. & C. 424.

(Officer.)

Where the only evidence of the voter being an excise officer was that he kept an inn, over the door of which were the words "Excise-office," and some loose parol evidence of a commission having been produced before the revising barrister, who rejected the claim, and that the defendant had formerly made entries, but it was also proved that he had been expressly directed by the superior officer not to make any more entries after a certain day; held insufficient to sustain the action for penalties under 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 51: and quær. if the keeper of an excise office is necessarily an excise officer within the Act. Gooday v. Clark, 2 Cr. M. & R. 277.

Where the corporation (Gravesend Pier Act) were empowered to appoint clerks, a treasurer, &c., but prohibited from appointing the clerk to be treasurer, and imposed a penalty on any clerk or his partner, or his clerk, who should officiate for the treasurer, and the corporation had appointed the clerk to be assistant treasurer, with a salary, and he had discharged some of the duties of the treasurer; held, that it was for the jury to say whether he acted bonâ fide in the belief of his being appointed an independent officer, or only colourably, and that in the latter case only he would be liable to the penalty. Hawkings v. Newman, 4 Mees. & W. 613.

(Overseer, p. 850.)

In debt for a penalty, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, ss. 15, 48, it was held that the neglect by an overseer to sign the burgh list rendered him liable, and that the word "wilful" was not to be imported in sec. 48; it is the duty of all the overseers to sign the parish list, and if one omits to sign that portion of the list which it is his duty to do, and which is necessary to make the list complete, he is liable, and the fact that the other overseers have signed particular portions of the list will not excuse him. King v. Burrell, 4 P. & D. 207.

(Pilot—Agent.)

Where the master of a coasting-vessel hired a steam-tug bonâ fide for the purpose of towing her up the river, held, that although the employing such power necessarily confides the selection of the course and management of the ship, yet the object being solely the employment of the moving power, the party so employed is not within the meaning of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 125, s. 70, as a pilot, and that he could not be deemed to have the charge or conduct of the vessel, and that no penalty was incurred under s. 70; held also, that such penalty might be sued for by a common informer; the consent of the Trinity House or warden respectively being necessary only in case of the pilots licensed by them, and not with reference to pilots not within the jurisdiction of either. Beilby v. Scott, 7 M. & W. 93.

(Plays.)

The 5 Geo. 4, c. 83, repealing all former Acts relating to rogues and vagabonds, and containing no enactment against stage-playing without licence, held not to affect the 10 Geo. 2, c. 28; held also, that proof of the defendant being the acting manager, paying and dismissing the performers, was sufficient evidence of his causing the performance to render him liable to the penalties, whether he acted as the agent of others or not. Parsons v. Chapman, 5 C. & P. 33.

(Post-office.)

Letters having arrived at a post-office, addressed to a party who had become bankrupt, the assignee (in that character) demanded them of the postmaster, and he believing bonâ fide that the assignee was entitled to have them for the purpose of the commission, delivered them up, this having been the practice of the office under similar circumstances for more than 30 years; held that the postmaster was not liable under the Act 9 Anne, c. 10, s. 40, for wittingly, willingly, and knowingly detaining letters, and causing them to be detained and opened. Meirrelles v. Banning, 2 B. & Ad. 909.

Where a trustee under a Turnpike Act accepted the office of treasurer, but allowed the clerk to receive the rent of the tolls, &c., and never himself exercised any control or made any profit of the money; held, in an action for penalties upon 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, s. 65, that the question for the jury was, not whether the defendant made any profit, but whether the average balance in the hands of the clerk was such that a man might reasonably be expected to make a profit. Delane v. Hillcoat, 9 B. & C. 310.

(Prohibited Goods.)

Where a vessel, having discharged prohibited goods beyond the prescribed limits, afterwards, and during the same voyage, enters within them, to assist in the landing or to receive back the crew, held liable to forfeiture within 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 53, s. 2. Attorney-general v. Schiers, 2 Cr. M. & R. 286.

In an action for penalties under 25 Geo. 2, c. 36, s. 2, for keeping a house for public dancing, music and other entertainments, without a licence; held that it must be kept with the knowledge of the plaintiff, and for the purpose, and habitually so, and to which all persons may have access, whether by payment or gratuitously; but that where the defendant let a room of his house (a public-house) to a dancing-master, who sold tickets, and took money at the door, and music, dancing, and masquerades were occasionally held there, but there was no evidence of the defendant's knowledge of the practice of taking money, there was evidence to go to a jury as to the letting a house by the defendant for the purposes mentioned in the statute. Marks v. Benjamin, 5 M. & W. 565.

(Slaves, p. 850.)

Under the 5 Geo. 4, c. 113, s. 7, to render parties liable to the penalties for having or receiving on board money or goods to be employed in the objects of the slave trade, it must be proved that they had a guilty knowledge of such purpose and object of the vessel, and the onus lies on the Crown of establishing such knowledge; and a conviction of felony under the Act is no bar to an appeal against the sentence of the Vice-Admiralty Court for penalties. R. v. Sherwill, 2 Moore, 1; S. P. Barton v. Sheriff, Ib. 19.

The offence being joint, and not several, only one penalty, under s. 7, can be sued for against the owner and master; held also, that the owner of a foreign vessel, and being a foreign subject residing without the jurisdiction, was liable to the forfeitures and penalties of the Act if the vessel came within a British port. Del Campo and others v. Rex, 2 Moore, 15.

The new rules of pleading do not apply to any penal action within the stat. 21 Jac. 1, c. 4, s. 4, and nil delict. is still a good plea to such an action. Earl Spencer v. Swannell, 3 M. & W. 154. See Faulkner v. Chevell, 5 Ad. & Ell. 213.

PERJURY, p. 854.

A. was indicted for perjury, alleged to have been committed on the trial of B. for perjury. The indictment against A. averred that the evidence he gave on the trial of B. was material, and that B. was convicted. It appeared that B. was convicted and sentenced, but that the judgment against B. was afterwards reversed on writ of error: the reversal of the judgment against B. is no ground of defence for A., as showing that his evidence could not have been material, and does not negative the allegation that B. had been convicted. R. v. Meek, 9 C. & P. 513.

On a charge of perjury, alleged to have been committed before commissioners to examine witnesses in a Chancery suit, the indictment stated that the four commissioners were commanded to examine the witnesses. Their commission was put in, and by it the commissioners, or any three or two of them, were commanded to examine the witnesses; held to be a fatal variance, and the Judge would not allow it to be amended under the stat. 9 Geo. 4 c. 15. R. v. Hewins, 9 C. & P. 786.

One witness in perjury not sufficient, unless supported by circumstantial evidence of the strongest kind. Champney's Case, 2 Lew. Cr. Cases, 258.

Where one of several defendants in an action which had been tried, was offered as a witness on an indictment for perjury preferred against a witness in the action, it was held that he was not rendered incompetent merely on the ground of the debt and costs not having been paid, and that a bill in equity had been filed; but that if the witness expected that the party would be called on a similar action coming on for trial, it would be such an immediate interest as would disqualify. R. v. Hulme, 7 C. & P. 8; questioning R. v. Dalby, Peake N. P. C. 12; and R. v. Eden, 1 Esp. N. P. C. 97. The witness, however, was not examined.

PERSONAL ESTATE.

Shares in the Chelsea Waterworks Company are personal estate; and so wherever real property is held for the purposes of a trading company, although a corporation, and the shares assignable, and the proprietors not answerable for the acts of one another as to acts relating to the concern. Bligh v. Brent, 2 Younge, 268.

A real estate held for partnership purposes, is held to be in the nature of personal estate. Morris v. Kearsley, 2 Younge, 141.

The personal property of a bankrupt, wherever situated, is considered as accompanying his person. Sill v. Worswick, 1 H. B. 665.

PEW, p. 861.

A possessory title to a pew is sufficient against a mere intruder; the Court will decide upon the admissibility of a plea according only to the facts stated therein. Spry v. Flood, 2 Curt. 356.

The churchwardens have a discretionary power to appropriate the pews in a church amongst the parishioners, and may remove persons intruding on seats already appropriated. Reynolds v. Monkton, 2 Mo. & R. 384.

POLICY.

(Right to begin, p. 867.)

Declaration of a policy of insurance alleged that the same was effected in pursuance of a declaration by the plaintiff, averring, amongst other things, that the party whose life was insured was not accustomed to any habits prejudicial to health, and was in a sound state of health, and the policy was to be void in case of misrepresentation; pleas, first, that the party was accustomed to habits prejudicial to health, to wit, of drunkenness; second, that the party was in a bad and unsound state of health; replication de injuria; held that the defendant was entitled to begin. Pole v. Rogers, 2 M. & R. 287.

Where the affirmative of any one material issue is on the plaintiff, and he undertakes to give evidence upon it, he is entitled to begin. Rawlins v. Desborough, 2 Mo. & R. 328.

(Construction of Terms, p. 867.)

It is for the Court to put a construction on what are "perils of the seas," which are terms of general import. Where casks of oil, which had not been shifted or damaged, had leaked, a witness may be asked to what he attributes it, but not whether, in such case, it is in practice considered as leakage, or loss by perils of the seas. Quære, whether counsel can refer to the authority of books on insurance, written by mercantile men? Crofts v. Marshall, 7 C. & P. 597.

The term "cargo" being of mercantile construction, that given by dictionaries is of no authority. Houghton v. Gildart, 7 C. & P. 701.

(Insurable Interest, p. 867.)

A mere moral certainty that a bounty will be paid to a vessel employed in the whale fishery is not an insurable interest. Devaux v. Steele, 8 Scott, 637.

(Description of the Interest.)

A policy was effected on freight from C. coast to B., and the ship put in for repair at a port on the C. coast, at seven miles from which the plaintiff procured a cargo ready to be loaded, but the ship was lost by accident in going out of dock; the risk attached, and the plaintiff's interest was properly described as freight; and the policy covering perils of the seas, and all other perils, losses and misfortunes, the loss was within the terms of the policy. Devaux v. Janson, 5 Bing. N. C. 519.

(Deviation, p. 873.)

Upon a policy at and from a port of lading, held that a proceeding from the port of C. to B. within the same bay, but having different port offices, although subject to the jurisdiction of the same custom-house, was a deviation avoiding the policy. Brown v. Tayleur, 5 Nev. & M. 472.

(Damages, p. 880.)

In an action on a time-policy for a year, and loss by perils of the seas, upon the question whether the defendant was entitled to deduct one-third new for old, upon the ground of the ship at the time being on her first voyage; held that the rule had grown up to avoid controversy, but that the voyage was not to be determined by the policy; and semb., it would be better to have a time specified in the policy, depending on the age of the ship. Pirie v. Steele, 8 C. & P. 200.

It appeared that the ship, newly built, was chartered from England to New South Wales, where the freight was payable, and, as was the custom, not being able to get a homeward cargo there, she proceeded to Madras, and was lost on the homeward voyage; held that it was to be deemed a new ship on her first voyage, and that the rule, allowing a deduction of one-third, as new for old, did not apply. S. C. 2 Mo. & R. 49.

(Defence, p. 885.)

Since the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, Reg. Hil. 4 Will. 4, want of interest must be specially pleaded. Mills v. Campbell, 2 Younge & C. 397.

Action for loss by perils, &c., plea that the ship was unseaworthy at the commencement of the voyage, it was proved that there had been considerable repairs done, and the jury found that the ship was seaworthy, but was abandoned by the crew too soon after a leak sprung, which the learned Judge said was a verdict for the plaintiff, to which no objection was made, a verdict passed for the full value of the goods, and the Court refused a new trial; semb. the intention of the new rules of pleading was, and the rule has been that proof of unseaworthiness lies on the party pleading it; held also, that the proof of deviation lies on the insurer; and that a policy "on goods valued at —l." was a valued policy. Franco v. Nalusch, 1 T. & G. 401.

(Fraud, Misrepresentation, &c., p. 885.)

A false representation in answer to parol questions, held to vitiate a policy, although only voidable by the articles of the office in case of false answers to written inquiries. Wainwright v. Bland, 3 Cr. M. & R. 32; and 1 T. & G. 417.

Where, by the rules of an insurance association the insurances were to commence from the time of acceptance, and continue in force for 12 months; held, that a policy executed within that period, although the ship was known to be lost by all parties at the time, was binding, and that an authority to execute policies in conformity with the rules applied to such a policy. Mead v. Davison, 4 Nev. & M. 701; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 303.

In an action on a policy of insurance, effected by the husband on the life of his wife, it appeared that she had been sent to the office to be examined, and had given general answers to the printed questions, and the jury found that the husband had no personal knowledge; it was held, that the allegations in the plea, as to the husband's knowledge of certain facts material to be disclosed, could not be considered as allegations that he had knowledge through the wife as his agent; but it appearing that before her marriage she had been long attended by a medical person, who ceased to be so upon her marriage, and subsequently the husband's usual family attendant had prescribed for her, once or twice, on slight indispositions, and she, to the inquiry, who was her usual medical attendant, had given the name of the latter; held, that it ought to have been left to the jury to say if he could be considered her medical attendant at all; and that, if in answering the question, she was aware that he could not be the proper person to give the account the office were desirous of obtaining, the answer must have been intended to deceive, and a new trial was granted. Huckman v. Fernie, 3 M. & W. 517.

A party whose life is insured is not the general agent for the assured, and therefore the policy is not void by reason that such party failed to communicate a material fact as to which he was not interrogated by the insurers, unless he was aware of the materiality of the fact, and studiously concealed it.

It is a question of fact for the jury, whether a fact not communicated was, under the circumstances, one which the assured ought to have communicated. Rawlins v. Desborough, 2 Mo. & R. 328.

(Warranty, p. 889.)

Where the policy contained a warranty that the mills insured should be worked by day only, upon a plea in an action, that the mill was worked by night and not by day only; held that it was to be confined to the usual manufacture carried on therein, and that it was no breach of the warranty that a steam-engine in the mill had on one occasion been used at night to turn machinery in an adjacent building; held, also, that a plea that a certain steam-engine and shafts, "these being respectively parts of the said mills," were worked at night, was bad. Mayall v. Milford, 1 N. & P. 732.

So in an insurance policy of a cotton-mill with a steam-engine, described as "worked by day only," the description was held to apply only to the working of the mill, and that a plea, alleging that after the making of the insurance the steam-engine was worked by night and not by day only, whereby a greater risk was incurred, was bad. Whitehead v. Price, 2 Cr. M. & R. 447.

A warranty that the assured has not been subject, amongst other things, to fits, means that he was not naturally so subject, and that having had fits once or more in consequence of an accident did not vacate the policy. Chattock v. Shaw, 1 Mo. & R. 498.

In an action upon an insurance policy against fire, upon a dwelling-house and a kiln attached to a granary for drying corn, it appeared that, a cargo of bark having been sunk near the premises, the plaintiff had permitted it to be dried gratis at his kiln, in the course of which the fire occurred; held, that such single act did not amount to an alteration in the business, of which, by one of the conditions, notice was to be given, or a misdescription in the policy of the trade carried on, although the jury found that corn-drying and bark-drying are different trades, and that the latter was more dangerous than the former; that there was nothing in the policy amounting to an express warranty that nothing but corn should ever be dried in the kiln; and lastly, that, in the absence of all fraud, there is no distinction between the fire having been occasioned by the negligence of servants or strangers, or of the assured himself. Shaw v. Robberds, 1 Nev. & P. 279. And see Dobson v. Sotheby, 1 Mo. & M. 90.

(Change of Interest.)

A change in the interest after the policy effected, still less after the loss has happened, is no answer by the underwriters to a claim for such loss. Sparkes v. Marshall, 2 Bing. N. S. 761.

(Non-payment of Premiums, p. 893.)

Upon a policy of assurance on the life of A., the premium became due on the 15th of March, but was not paid until the 12th of April, when the country agent of the insurance company, through whom the insurance had been effected, gave a receipt for the amount of the premium. The instructions given by the company to the agent were, that the premium on every life policy must be received within fifteen days from the time of its becoming due; if not paid within that time, he was to give immediate notice to the office of that fact, and in the event of his omitting to do so, that his account was to be debited for the amount, after the fifteen days had expired. No notice was given to the company of the non-payment of the premium within the fifteen days; it was therefore entered in their books as paid on the 15th of March, and the agent was debited for the amount: held, first, that the mere debiting the agent with the premium could not be considered as a payment to the company by the assured; secondly, that as the agent had no authority to contract for the company, the fact of his receiving the money after the expiration of the fifteen days, and the entry in the company's books debiting him with the amount, were no evidence of a new agreement between the company and the insured. Accy v. Fernie, 7 M. & W. 151.

(Implied collateral Contract, p. 893.)

Where, upon a capture by a foreign government for breach of blockade and offer of abandonment refused, an arrangement was entered into, that upon payment by the underwriters of a per-centage on the sum insured the policy should be cancelled, which was done, and some years after, upon a convention made between this and the foreign government, the goods were ordered by the latter to be restored, and compensation made, a claim was made by the underwriters for the whole or part of the compensation; held, that having originally refused the offer of abandonment, the payment made by them was to be deemed a compromise of their liability on the policy.

and that they were not entitled to receive any part of such compensation. Brooks v. M'Donnell, 1 Younge, 500.

One of several partners, after the dissolution, effected a policy of insurance on goods upon premises of the plaintiff, and received the amount of loss; held, that it not having been effected by any authority or in pursuance of any duty towards the partnership, the receipt of the money by him could not render the former partners liable on any implied contract to indemnify the landlord, or as for money received to his use. Armitage v. Winterbottom, 1 M. & G. 130; and 1 Sc. N. S. 23.

POLYGAMY, p. 893.

The prisoner after contracting a marriage in England was married to a Roman-catholic in Ireland by a Roman-catholic priest there, declaring himself to be a Roman-catholic; part of the ceremony was in English, part in Latin, after which the priest having respectively asked if each would take the other as man and wife, and on their answering in the affirmative, pronounced them married; it was held to be sufficient proof of the second marriage, and that the prisoner could not set up in defence that he was a protestant. R. v. Orgill, 9 C. & P. 80. And see R. v. Hanley, and Swift v. Swift, there cited.

A reputed first wife is not competent as a witness for her supposed husband. See Peat's Case, 2 Lew. C. C. 111.

To bring a party within the proviso of 9 Geo. 4, c. 31, s. 22, it must be shown to the satisfaction of the jury, not that the party must have known at the time of contracting the second marriage that the first wife had been alive during the seven years, but that he must have been ignorant during the whole of the period that she was so. R. v. Cullen, 9 C. & P. 681.

POSSESSION, p. 896.

A testatrix, seised of customary lands, made a dormant surrender to the use of her will, and devised them to her son, but without words of inheritance, and the dormant surrenderee, considering that the son took a fee under the will, afterwards surrendered to the use of the son, his heirs, &c., who surrendered them to a purchaser who had notice of the will; the son died 40 years before the filing of the bill by the equitable heir; held, that after so long an adverse possession he was barred, and the bill was dismissed with costs. Collard v. Hare, 2 Russ. & M. 675.

Possession is primâ facie evidence of a seisin in fee, until it be shown that the party has a less estate. Doe v. Penfold, 8 C. & P. 536.

POWER.

A lease made under a power, is referable to the deed creating the power, and has the same effect as if made under the instrument itself. Rogers v. Humphreys, 5 N. & M. 511.

Under a power to demise premises, or any part, a demise of part, with liberty of sporting over the whole, is not a good execution: a plea justifying under a leave from a tenant for life is bad, if it does not aver his continuing life. Daycell v. Hoare, 4 P. & D. 114; S. P. Fryer v. Coombes, Ib. n.; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 407. And see Thursby v. Plant, 1 Wm. Saund. 235, n. (8).

PRESCRIPTION.

(Reputation—Public Right, p. 907.)

Reputation being admissible evidence to establish a public right, is equally admissible to show that they have not that right; upon a question, therefore, whether land on a river was a public landing-place or not, reputation that it was the private landing-place of the defendant and his predecessor held admissible. Drinkwater v. Porter, 7 C. & P. 181.

Stat. 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71, p. 919.

Under the stat. 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71, sects. 3 & 4, a party is prescriptively entitled to the access and use of light, if his enjoyment commenced 20 years next before the bringing of an action in which the right is contested, provided such enjoyment has not at any time been interrupted, and the interruption acquiesced in for a whole year.

The clause sect. 4, requiring that the interruption to bar a prescriptive title shall have been acquiesced in for more than a year, is not limited to obstructions preceded and followed by portions of the 20 years, but applies to an obstruction ending with that period: therefore a prescriptive title to the access and use of light may be gained by an enjoyment for 19 years and 330 days, followed by an obstruction (not acquiesced in) for 35 days. Flight v. Thomas, 11 A. & E. 688.

Flight had raised a wall by which the light was partially excluded from the window of Thomas (the plaintiff below,) after an uninterrupted enjoyment of the light for 19 years and 330 days. Thomas had notice of the erection, and had brought his action within one year after the raising of the wall complained of. These acts were in substance disclosed in one of the defendant's pleas, and proved at the trial, when the learned Judge (Baron Parke) held that the plaintiff Thomas was entitled to recover. A bill of exceptions was tendered, and in the Court of Exchequer Chamber, and afterwards in the House of Lords, the ruling of the learned Judge was affirmed.

Plea, in trespass for taking cattle, damage feasant, first, prescribing for a right of pasture, under 2 & 3 Will. 4. c. 71, alleging enjoyment for 30 years next before, &c., and 2dly, a right of turning on cattle for 20 years; and it appeared, that although acts of depasturing were shown more than 30 years ago, that 28 years before the action commenced, a rail had been erected to interrupt the enjoyment, and which had been removed during that period; held, that the first plea was not proved, and that it did not lie on the defendant to prove that the erection of the rail was adverse to the plaintiff's right; 2dly, that the second plea was demurrable, for not showing the purpose for which the cattle were turned on, and the sole object of the evidence being to prove the right of pasture, which was a profit à prendre, and not a mere easement, the right claimed was neither definite nor supported by the evidence; and since the Act, the proof must be of actual enjoyment during the prescribed period, and no presumption is admissible. Bailey v. Appleyard, 3 Nev. & P. 257.

A plea, in trespass for chasing, and taking, and detaining sheep, prescribing for defendant and other occupiers of a messuage, &c., for 30 years before, &c., in a right of common of pasture in the place in which, &c., and justifying the taking as distress damage feasant; was held to be bad on demurrer, as being framed on the 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71, it did not allege the user to have been for that time before the commencement of the action; but held, that such a plea need not allege the user to have been "without interruption." Richards v. Fry, 3 Nev. & P. 67.

The grant to a person, his heirs and assigns, of "free liberty, with servants or otherwise, to come into and upon lands, and there to hawk, hunt, fish, and fowl," is a grant of a license of profit, and not of a mere personal license of pleasure; and therefore it authorizes the grantee, his heirs and assigns, to hawk, hunt, &c., by his servants in his absence.

Such a liberty is, therefore a profit a prendre within the Prescription Act, 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 2. Wickham v. Hawker, 7 M. & W. 63.

A plea of 40 or 20 years' user, under ss. 2 & 4, is not supported by proof of user from a period of 50 years before the commencement of the action down to within four years of it; and if the evidence go no farther, there is no case for the jury. Parker v. Mitchell, 11 Ad. & Ell. 788.

Facts showing that the user was not such as would before the statute have been sufficient to prove a claim by non-existing grant, must be replied specially, and cannot be given in evidence under a traverse of a right of way alleged in a plea. Kinlock v. Nevile, 6 M. & W. 795.

PRESUMPTIONS, p. 927.

Proof (before a Committee of Privileges in the House of Lords) that the claimant's ancestor sat in Parliament, and that no patent or charter of creation can be discovered, affords a presumption of creation by writ of summons. Braye Peerage, 6 C. & F. 657.

In a suit to enforce payment of certain sums in lieu of tithes, it being proved that the occupiers of certain houses, whether ancient or built on ancient sites, had for above one hundred years paid them, but that such sums had never been paid for houses built on new sites within the parish; such payments varying, and in no proportion to the value of the houses inter se: held, that the Court were warranted in inferring that such payments had been immemorial, and that a legal origin might be assigned, and that they might be enforced. Beresford v. Newton, 1 C. M. & R. 901.

Where by the custom a surrender by a feme covert could only be made with the consent of the husband, expressed in the surrender and admission, and if made by attorney, that it should be mentioned in the surrender as so made by the attorney duly authorized; held, that in the absence of his consent so expressed, the Court would not presume his consent against a person not claiming under the surrender, even where the husband had no personal interest in the premises. Doe d. Shelton v. Shelton, 4 Nev. & M. 857; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 265.

(Omnia rite esse acta, p. 935.)

Where the plaintiff being sheriff, a writ of ca. sa. at his suit, was directed to, and indorsed by, one of the coroners, and lodged as a detainer; held, that it need not appear on the writ that the sheriff was a party, nor (since the rule H. 2 Will. 4), that the proceedings should be entered on the roll in order to charge the defendant in execution; nor was it necessary that the coroner should make out a warrant to the gaoler; the Court would presume that the writ reached the coroner, and was duly lodged by him. Bastard v. Trutch, 3 Ad. & Ell. 451; and 5 Nev. & M. 109; S. C. 4 Dowl. 6.

Where a suit for non-payment of church-rates, instituted in the Ecclesiastical Court, had been appealed against, and referred to the Judicial Committee, no erroneous proceeding being shown there, the Court of King's Bench would not assume that the Ecclesiastical Court had acted incorrectly, and refused a motion for a prohibition, on the ground that the rate was bad. Chesterton v. Farlar, 7 Ad. & Ell. 713. And see St. Pancras Auditors, ex parte, 6 Dowl. 534.

See further Attorney-general v. Mayor, &c. of Norwich, 2 M. & C. 409.

(Natural Presumption, p. 937.)

Where a husband and wife perished in the same wreck, the Court held that it could not presume that he survived, but that there must be some evidence that he did so to entitle his representative to take administration to property vested in the wife. Satterthwaite v. Powell, 1 Curt. 705.

Less evidence is ordinarily sufficient where the adversary occasions a defect in proof. Retemeyer v. Obermuller, 2 Moore, 93.

PRIVILEGE.

(Copyright, p. 939.)

The question of piracy does not necessarily depend upon the quantity of the matter extracted; and if there be any doubt as to the exclusive legal title of the party claiming the interference of the Court, it will not exercise its jurisdiction until the title be first established at law. Bramwell v. Halcomb, 3 Myl. & Cr. 737.

(Patent, p. 939.)

In an action for infringing a patent, and plea alleging the user of the invention by other persons; held, that under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 5, a Judge has jurisdiction to order a further notice of objections, but not to order the names and addresses of all those alleged so to have used it. Bulnois v. Mackenzie, 4 Bing. N. C. 127; and 6 Dowl. 215.

See further as to the sufficiency of the specification, De Rosne v. Fairie, 2 Cr. M. & R. 476; and 5 Tyrw. 393.

A patent for an improvement cannot be sustained as for an original invention. Minter v. Mower, 1 Nev. & P. 595.

To an action for the infringement of a patent for certain improvements in a cabriolet, three pleas were pleaded: 1st, the general issue; 2d, that the alleged improvements were not new; and, 3d, that the plaintiffs were not the true and first inventors of the improvements; held, that on this state of the pleadings it could not be contended that the patent was illegal as being a monopoly. Gillett v. Wilby, 9 C. & P. 334.

Held, also, that though all the improvements claimed must be shown to be new, yet it need not be shown that the defendant's cabriolet was an imitation of the whole of them, but an imitation of one was sufficient to maintain the action. Ibid.

Held, also, that the validity of the patent might be considered as having come in question under the second plea, so as to entitle the plaintiff to a certificate to that effect under the third section of the statute 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83. Ibid.

Where the plaintiff, afterwards the assignee of a patent for an improvement, had one of the machines made at his own manufactory, and at his own expense, but under the direction of the patentee, and under an injunction of secresy, which was taken abroad, and used in a concern of which the plaintiff was a proprietor and principal manager; held not to be such a publication as to avoid the patent for the invention. If a patent be for several improvements, and the jury find one not to be so, the patent is void altogether. Morgan v. Seaward, 2 M. & W. 544.

The patentee of a patent, originally void, entered a disclaimer and memorandum of alteration of part of the specification, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83; held, that the Act was not retrospective, so as to enable him to maintain an action for the infringement, previous to the time of such amendment. Perry v. Skinner, 2 M. & W. 471.

In an action on a contract between the plaintiff and three defendants, stating that the plaintiff and each of the defendants were severally interested in patents, and that it had been agreed that they should mutually enjoy the benefit in certain proportions, and pay the plaintiff a certain annuity; it appearing that the plaintiff was only interested in his own patent with others not joined, held, on demurrer, that a plea showing that the subject of the plaintiff's patent was not at the time of the grant a new invention, whereby the grant was void, and which the plaintiff at the time of the agreement well knew, was a bar to the action; held, also, that the action ought to have been brought in the names of all the parties for whose benefit the contract was made, although the plaintiff only was to receive the consideration, and that the variance between the declaration and contract was a fatal objection, and ground of nonsuit. Chanter v. Leese, 4 M. & W. 295.

QUARE IMPEDIT, p. 941.

Where the plaintiff, in quare impedit, after tracing his title, and averring the death of a party, a joint-tenant with him for a term of years in the advowson, alleged that he became and was possessed thereof as of an advowson in gross for the remainder, &c., and the bishop took issue in terms of the traverse; held, that a fine, showing the title to be in third persons, was inadmissible, the parties to the suit not both claiming under the parties to the fine. Bishop of Meath v. Marquis of Winchester, 3 Bing. N. C. 183.

Declaration in qu. imp, alleging that the plaintiffs, being a majority of parties entitled to present, nominated W.; plea, that the defendants were the majority, and nominated P., traversing that the plaintiffs were the majority; a replication, that the defendants did not duly nominate P., was held to be had, on demurrer. Harrington, Earl of v. Bishop of Lichfield, 4 Bing. N. C. 77; and 3 Sc. 371.

Upon a sale by the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, under the stat. 57 Geo. 3, c. 97, of a manor, with all courts, fines, reliefs, rents, profits, &c., and all other rights, members, emoluments, and appurtenances thereto belonging, it was held that an advowson found afterwards to be appendant to the manor, does not pass; semble aliter, if the contract had been between subject and subject, although at the time of the contract it was not known to be appendant to the manor, nor intended to be included in the sale; held, also, that upon a sale under the statute, the issuing a special warrant from the Treasury to the Commissioners is not a condition precedent to the making any contract with purchasers; it is sufficient if it be issued before the certificate of sale be granted to the purchaser. Attorney-general v. Sitwell, 1 Younge, 559.

(Presentation, p. 942.)

In debt for penalties under 31 Eliz. c. 6, for a simoniacal contract to present, the declaration alleged a contract by the clerk to buy the advowson if he were presented to the living, and a presentation in pursuance of such contract; held, that proof of presentation was essential to the action; and that for that purpose it was not enough to show that the defendant prepared a presentation and tendered it to the bishop's secretary, but which never was in fact used or acted upon, the clerk having been afterwards instituted on his own petition as equitable owner of the advowson. Greenwood v. Woodham, 2 Mo. & R. 363.

QUO WARRANTO.

(Title of elector, p. 948.)

In R. v. Hughes, 4 B. & C. 368, it was held that the titles of electors to corporation offices cannot be impeached through the medium of the elected, and that the distinction as taken by Lord Kenyon in R. v. Mein, 3 T. R. 596, was between cases where the electors are members of a corporation, whose titles might have been questioned on quo warranto information, and those where it could not; and see R. v. Corporation of Penryn, 8 Mod. R. 216.

But upon the issue taken whether T. H. was mayor at the time of the defendant's election, evidence is admissible to impeach his title de jure as well as de facto. R. v. Smith, 5 M. & S. 280.

The omission to summon any one member of a corporate body avoids the meeting. Kynaston v. Mayor of Shrewsbury, Str. 1051.

Since the 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 76, the election of mayor must be the first business done on the 9th November, and the election of aldermen previously is void, but the outgoing aldermen may vote for the election of mayor, but not of the new aldermen. R. v. M'Gowan, 3 Perr. & D. 557; R. v. Maddy, R. v. Dudley, R. v. Stanley, ib.

RAILWAY COMPANY.

Powers of how far restrained by Courts of Equity. Webb v. Manchester and Leeds Railway Company, 4 Myl. & Cr. 116; Stone v. Commercial Railway Company, 4 Myl. & Cr. 122.

Lands required to be taken for the purposes of a railway, had been taken after an inquisition by the sheriff; in ejectment by the owner, it was held, 1st, that such inquisition need not state the compliance with every preliminary required by the Act, as a proviso and defeazance, and that, to do away with the effect of the inquisition, the non-compliance ought to come from the other side; 2dly, that a power to deviate from the intended line involved in it the power to make all necessary and incidental cuttings and embankments reasonable and proper thereto; 3dly, that the plaintiff could not object that the name of a third party, whose lands were taken, was omitted in the reference-book, and his consent was sufficient; and lastly, that the powers of taking such inquisition being under the original Act, which had expired, but its power revived, as if re-enacted in a subsequent Act, it was sufficient, although the payment of the value found had not been made into the Bank until after the expiration of the time limited by the original Act; and that the last Act gave effect to all the proceedings taken under the first Act. Doe v. Bristol and Exeter Railway Company, 6 M. & W. 320.

RAPE, p. 950.

The prisoner under the age of 14, was charged with carnally knowing and abusing a child under 10 years, the same rule applies as to the case of rape, and he cannot be convicted, although proved to be of full puberty. R. v. Jordan, 9 C. & P. 118.

Where the prisoner charged with an assault, with intent to commit a rape, was himself under 14; held, that he could not be convicted, nor was evidence admissible to show that he was capable of committing the offence of rape. R. v. Philips, 8 C. & P. 736.

A boy under the age of 14, when acquitted under the direction of the Judge of the crime of rape, is liable to be convicted of the assault under 1 Vict. c. 35, s. 11. R. v. Bromilow, 2 Mo. 122; and 9 C. & P. 366. But see R. v. Banks, 8 C. & P. 574.

Although it is not necessary that the hymen should be ruptured where penetration is proved, yet the jury may hesitate to conclude the latter, where the rupture is not proved. R. v. M'Rue, 8 C. & P. 641.

If the jury find penetration, although it may not have proceeded so far as to rupture the hymen, they ought to convict of the offence of rape. R. v. Hughes, 9 C. & P. 752.

Since 9 Geo. 4, c. 31, s. 18, proof of penetration alone is sufficient to the completion of the offence of rape; and proof of the prisoner being disturbed immediately after penetration, and before completion of his purpose, is immaterial. R. v. Allen, 9 C. & P. 31; S. P. R. v. Jordan, ib. 120.

If the jury are of opinion that non-resistance arose from being overpowered by actual force, or from intimidation by numbers, the jury ought to convict of the capital charge; but if after some resistance in the first instance, the party in a degree is afterwards consenting, then of the assault only. R. v. Hallett, 9 C. & P. 748.

(Present Complaint, p. 950.)

On the trial of an indictment for a rape, the person alleged to have been ravished (since dead) had come home evidently suffering from recent violence; on her return home she made a statement as to the injury she had received, and named the persons who had committed it; it was held that the particulars of this statement could not be given in evidence, as independent evidence, to show who were the persons who committed the offence, and that statements of this kind were only admissible to confirm the evidence of the prosecutrix, by showing that she made a recent complaint of the injury she had received. R. v. Megson, 9 C. & P. 420.

Counsel can only examine generally whether the prosecutrix made complaint of the ill-treatment; the particulars may be asked on cross-examination. R. v. Walker, 2 Mo. & R. 212.

In a case of rape, if it were proved on the part of the prosecution that the party alleged to have been ravished had been kept out of the way by the prisoner, the Judge would allow her deposition before the magistrate to be given in evidence; but where that was not proved, and the prosecutrix was not at the trial, evidence of complaints made by her recently after the outrage was rejected, as such evidence is received as confirmatory evidence only. R. v. Guttridges, 9 C. & P. 471.

The criminal intent of the prisoner cannot be shown by proof of former attempts, and the jury must be satisfied that he intended to complete the offence at all events, and notwithstanding any resistance. R. v. Lloyd, 7 C. & P. 318.

Where the female consented, believing the prisoner to be her husband, it was held that the offence did not amount to a rape, but that he might, under 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 11, be convicted of assault, and sentenced to imprisonment and hard labour. R. v. Saunders, 8 C. & P. 265; S. P. R. v. Williams, ib. 286.

Where the party was between the ages of ten and twelve, and the offence a misdemeanor only, it was held that the consent would put the charge of assault out of the question. R. v. Meredith, 8 C. & P. 589.

A count for an attempt, alleging that the prisoner assaulted, &c., was held to be bad; and a second count not alleging the age of the child, was also held to be bad, and not to be aided by the word "said" before the name of the party, as referring to the same party in the first count in which the age was stated. R. v. Martin, 9 C. & P. 213; and 2 Moody, 123.

But that in such a case, no penetration being proved, the prisoner is liable to be indicted, convicted of the attempt to commit a statutable misdemeanor. Ib.

RATE.

(For Relief of the Poor, p. 953.)

Shoots growing from the roots of oaks cut down, and which were regularly weeded, and, after 50 years' growth, cut regularly for colliery and firewood, which the sessions had decided not to be saleable under-wood, the Court refused to disturb the decision: whether such are to be deemed within the statute 43 Eliz. c. 2, must depend on the mode of treatment by the owner and the limits of the period in cuttings, and which are facts entirely for the decision of the sessions. R. v. Narberth N. 1 P. & D. 590; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 815.

Real property is to be rated according to its actual value, as combined with the machinery attached to it, without considering whether such machinery be real or personal property, so as to be liable to distress or seizure under a fi. fa., or whether it would belong to the heir or executor, landlord or tenant, at the expiration of the lease. R. v. Guest, 2 Nev. & P. 663; 8 Ad. & Ell. 950. And see R. v. Birmingham and Staffordshire Gas Comp., 6 Ad. & Ell. 634.

(On Corporation Lands.)

Where the rents and profits of lands vested in the corporation, by the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76 (Municipal Corporation Act), were received by the treasurer of the borough to the account of the borough fund, and under s. 92, applicable to public purposes, they were held not to be rateable to the poor. R. v. Liverpool Mayor, &c., 1 P. & D. 334.

(On Canals.)

Upon the construction of the several Acts regulating the Leeds and Liverpool Navigation Company, held that they were liable to be rated for the land occupied by the canal, basins, and towing-paths, according to the general value of the land immediately adjoining them; that for branches, not being part of the original line, but communicating therewith, they were to be considered as part of the whole navigation, and to be rated according to their amount in value as mere land at the time of rating; and that the wharfs and quays, as well as warehouses, &c., were to be rated according to the value of similar property in the parish. R. v. Leeds and Liverpool Navigation Company, 2 N. & P. 540; and 7 Ad. & Ell. 671; reviewing and supporting the case of R. v. Monmouthshire Canal Company, 3 Ad. & Ell. 619; 5 N. & M. 68.

Where a gas company had laid down pipes, &c. for the supply of gas, through various parishes and certain colleges, &c., extra parochial, held, 1st, that the principle of rating the company in one parish upon what amount a responsible tenant would give for the whole apparatus, after making deductions for the wear and tear of machinery, &c., was the correct criterion of rating; 2dly, that the proper deduction from such rent was such an annual sum as would replace the works when worn out; 3dly, that a claim of deduction for "the profits in trade," of the company, being independent of and beyond the rent, was properly disallowed; 4thly, that the distribution of the assessment in each parish, in proportion to the amount of profits received in each respectively, was wrong, the company being liable to be rated in respect of its occupation in each parish, and that none could be imposed upon such parts as were in extra-parochial places, the proportion of which was to be deducted. R. v. Cambridge Gas Company, 3 N. & P. 262.

Where a bridge, standing in the parishes of A. and W., consisted of a wooden structure resting on piles in the bed of the river and brick abutments on the sides, and in the parish of A., resting on piles in the river, was a toll-house, occupied by the collector of the bridge tolls; the repairs had been from time to time done by the appellant, who repaired also the planking of the carriage way, but not the road itself upon the bridge, and who, as grantee from the Crown, received the bridge tolls. It appeared that he demised them by parol agreement to E. from year to year, at a rent to be paid by monthly instalments, and secured by a warrant of attorney, but there was no grant or demise executed; and held, that there being no demise of land eo nomine, and the tolls passing only by deed, no interest passed out of the appellant, who was to be considered as still in possession of them, and therefore properly rated; held, also, that as it appeared he took under a grant by the description of a toll traverse, and that it was so described in ancient documents, the sessions were warranted in so treating it. R. v. Marquis of Salisbury, 3 N. & P. 476.

RECEIPT, p. 954.

A receipt was given by one of several partners, without the knowledge of the others; in an action to recover the partnership debt, evidence is admissible to show that the receipt was fraudulently given by a co-plaintiff: in all cases a receipt is only primâ facie evidence, which admits of explanation. Farrar v. Hutchinson, 1 P. & D. 437.

RECEIVERS.

An ostler assisted in removing from a waggon, which stopped at the inn where he was employed, a quantity of hay which had been taken by the waggoner from his master's stables and put into the waggon, such hay not being allowed for the horses on the journey; held, that the ostler was properly indicted for receiving, because, as the hay was not allowed for the horses, the moment it was removed by the waggoner to the stable animo furandi, the larceny was complete. R. v. Gruncell, 9 C. & P. 365.

RECOGNIZANCE.

(Estreat of, p. 957.)

Where a party entered into a recognizance to keep the peace before a single justice, and was subsequently convicted of an assault before a petty sessions, and paid a fine; held, that the forfeiture of the recognizance not having taken place at the quarter sessions, that court had no power to estreat it, the course being by removal into the superior court, and proceeding by sci. fa.; held, also, that although the order of the quarter sessions might be a nullity, yet that the party was entitled to remove it by certiorari, in order to its being quashed: held, also, that since the 3 Geo. 4, c. 46, the Court of Exchequer no longer retains jurisdiction over recognizances forfeited, taken either before justices out of sessions or at the quarter sessions; and as to the latter, it is the duty of the clerk of the peace to put the law in motion in order to levy the amount. R. v. West R. Yorks. Justices, 2 Nev. & P. 457.

RELEASE, p. 966.

A release has no operation unless some debt, or demand, or cause of action, exist at the time. Ashton v. Freestone, 2 Scott, N. S. 273.

Upon the sale of a policy of insurance, one of the conditions being for payment of interest on the purchase-money, if the completion of the purchase-money should be delayed; held, that being in the nature of an additional price, a release executed by the plaintiff, whereby he exonerated the defendant from the purchase-money and every part thereof, was a bar to an action for interest; so, on the purchase-money. Harding v. Ambler, 3 M. & W. 279.

(Pleading, p. 967.)

Plea, in debt on simple contract, that the plaintiff covenanted to forbear suing; held, that although the breach might render him liable to action, it was not pleadable in bar. Thimbleby v. Barron, 3 M. & W. 210.

A covenant by one partner not to sue, cannot be set up as a release in an action for the partnership debt. Walmsley v. Cooper, 3 P. & D. 149. See further, Wilkinson v. Lindo, 7 M. & W. 81.

(Fraudulent Release, p. 967)

The Court will not set aside a plea of release given by one of several plaintiffs, unless a clear case of fraud is made out between the releasor and the defendant. Fraud upon the releasor is not a ground for setting aside the plea, since that may be replied. Wild v. Williams, 6 M. & W. 490.

Where one of several assignees of a bankrupt released, which was pleaded, the Court, upon the circumstances, set aside the plea, the plaintiff being indemnified by his co-assignees. Johnson v. Holdsworth, 4 Dowl. 63.

(Presumption of, p. 968.)

To a bill filed for payment of a rent-charge, a plea of 26 years' possession of the lands out of which the same was claimed to be payable, without accounting for or payment over of any part of the rents and profits, allowed; courts of equity presuming a release after the same period, as juries are directed to presume it, whether the Statute of Limitations be applicable or not. Baldwin v. Peach, 1 Younge & C. 453.

Where upon an arrangement between a father and son for the payment of the debts of the latter, the father executed a bond which was agreed to be deposited in the hands of certain referees, being intended as a security for the son's future behaviour, and they were empowered within a certain period to direct it to be cancelled if they thought fit, which they omitted to do during the life-time of the father; the Court, under the circumstances, being of opinion that the bond was not intended to operate as a security for the debt, but for collateral purposes merely, which had been fully satisfied, and that, if that were doubtful, the conduct of the obligor during a long period and dealing with the instrument amounted in equity to a release, decreed it to be delivered up to be cancelled. Flower v. Marten, 2 Myl. & Cr. 459.

(Effect of, p. 968.)

By the release of a debt by a composition deed, the creditor loses the right to retain a written instrument deposited with him by the debtor as a security for the debt. Therefore the relinquishment of such security, for the benefit of the debtor, forms no consideration for a parol promise by the debtor to pay the residue of the debt, beyond the amount of the composition received under the deed. Cowper v. Green, 7 M. & W. 633.

(4 & 5 Vict. c. 21.)

Makes a deed of release executed after 15th May 1841, and expressed to be made in pursuance of that Act, as effectual for the conveyance of freehold estates, as a lease and release by the same parties; and enacts that the recital of a lease for a year in a release executed before the passing of this Act shall be evidence of the execution of such a lease for a year.

REPLEVIN, p. 969.

Debt by the assignee of a replevin bond, may be brought in another court than that in which the re. fa. lo. is returnable. Wilson v. Hartley, 7 Dowl. 461; overruling the dictum in Sellon's Pr. 367.

In replevin, upon the issue, no rent in arrear, the plaintiff must begin. Cooper v. Egginton, 8 C. & P. 748.

A replevin-bond may be taken and assigned by one of the sheriffs of London in his own name only. Thompson v. Farden, 1 Scott, N. S. 275.

Non Tenuit, p. 878.

Avowry for rent arrear, pleas, 1st a tender, 2d non-tenuit. The plaintiff proves a tender of the rent, this does not prove the tenancy for the defendant without the aid of the plea of tender, which cannot be allowed as evidence of it. Knight v. M'Dowall, 4 P. & D. 168.

Note, that Patteson, J., doubting whether the allegation in a plea can be evidence at all in the cause in which it is pleaded, except as an admission

(i. e. it is presumed for the purposes of the issue on that plea), says, "in other proceedings between the parties, perhaps it may sometimes be made available for certain purposes, but it is not necessary to discuss this point at present." See Harrington v. M'Morris, 5 Taunt. 228.

In replevin against the assignee of the reversion of part of the premises in respect of which the rent accrued, the defendant may avow generally, and, stating the special facts, leave the apportionment of the rent to the jury, or may avow generally under the statute; and the Court may amend by substituting an avowry at common law, or by altering the rent avowed for, according to the fact. Roberts v. Snell, M. & Gr. 577.

Avowry, for 20 l., a half-year's rent, pleas non-tenuit, and as to part, riens in arrear; it appeared that by the lease the rent reserved was 40 l., but that under the signatures was written a memorandum, before the execution, "the allowance for the road to be made as usual;" held not to be an alteration of the rent, but to operate as a mere covenant, and that it did not support the plea non-tenuit. Davies v. Stacy, 4 Perr. & D. 157.

(Coverture.)

Where the plaintiff in replevin, after suing out the writ, became coverte, it was held that the defendant could not give the coverture in evidence under the general issue, but should have pleaded it in abatement. Hollis v. Freer, 2 Bing. N. C. 719.

(Satisfaction, p. 795.)

Avowry for rent, a plea as to part, alleged that a note had been given, payable at a time which had not expired, but did not state it to have been accepted in satisfaction, nor that by any agreement or circumstance, the right of distraining had been suspended; this was held to be insufficient; a debt due for rent ranks with a specialty debt, and is not extinguished by a note which constitutes a debt of inferior degree. Davis v. Gyde, 2 Ad. & Ell. 623. See also Gage v. Acton, Carth. 511; 1 Salk. 236.

REPUDIATION.

Where a party, in entire ignorance of his legal right, and on a representation of a state of things which there was reason to believe was known to be very different by the party making it, renounced all right to interfere with or reserve money legally due to him, it was held that his representative was not bound thereby. M'Carthy v. Decaix, 2 Russ. & M. 614. (Reversing the judgment below.)

RES INTER ALIOS.

In assumpsit for a quarter's salary, for taking away a child from the plaintiff's school without giving a quarter's notice, according to the prospectus delivered to the defendants; it was held, that another person could not be called to prove the taking away a child without notice, or being called upon to pay the quarter's salary, but that she might prove that no prospectus had been given to her. Delamotte v. Lane, 9 C. & P. 261.

RESTITUTION.

Where the prisoner had left in the care of another a horse which had been clearly purchased with the proceeds of a bill which he was found guilty of stealing, the Court ordered the horse to be delivered to the prosecutor. R. v. Powell, 7 C. & P. 640.

REVERSION, p. 177.

(Action for Injury to, by whom brought.)

A lease was granted to the plaintiff and his wife, and the premises were underlet by the plaintiff to the defendant, and by him underlet for a part of the term; an action for an injury to the reversion is properly brought by the plaintiff alone; if the objection were valid, the objection could only have been taken advantage of by plea in abatement. Wallis v. Harrison, 5 M. & W. 142; 7 Dowl. 395.

(Nature of the Injury, p. 978.)

Where the plaintiff had demised cottages without any exception of mines, and the defendant, by excavating mines under the premises, had injured the walls, it was held, that the plaintiff was entitled to maintain case for the injury to his reversionary interest. Raine v. Alderson, 4 Bing. N. C. 702; and 6 Sc. 691. And see Wells v. Ody, 1 M. & W. 452.

An action may be maintained by a reversioner in respect of an injury by raising a permanent obstruction, to the diminution of light. Jesser v. Gifford, 4 Burr. 2141. Tomlinson v. Brown, cited ib. And per Lord Tenterden in Shadwell v. Hutchinson, 3 C. & P. 617. See further, Bell v. Twentyman, 1 G. & D. 223.

A reversioner cannot maintain an action on the case for non-repair of a road, which might easily be repaired, although the value of the premises may be thereby deteriorated for the time, the injury not being of a permanent nature. Hopwood v. Schofield, 2 Mo. & R. 34.

In case for injury to the plaintiff's reversionary interest, the defendants relied on the provisions of the Building Act; on a motion to amend the plea of not guilty, by adding "by statute," and to retain other pleas in defence not furnished by the statute, it was held, that the plea given by the statute remained unaffected by the new rules, and had the same operation as before they were made, and put in issue all defences which would arise at common law, and leave was therefore given to amend as prayed, and that the other pleas might be struck out. Ross v. Clifton, 11 Ad. & Ell. 631; and 1 Gale & D. 72.

(3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27.)

Where a party interested in a long term, sold the premises in fee to a railway company, having been in possession above twenty years without having paid any rent, it was held that the reversioner was barred; and semble, the provisions of 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, s. 9, apply to cases where no rent is paid, but not to those where no rent is reserved. Jones, ex parte, 4 Younge & Cr. 466.

RULES.

(New.)

If a defendant plead not guilty "by statute" to the declaration, that plea also extends to a new assignment. Mason v. Newland, 9 C. & P. 575.

If a defendant does not add the words "by statute" on the margin of the plea of not guilty, he cannot give special matter in evidence to bring himself within an Act of Parliament which allows a plea of not guilty; but if it, at the end of the plaintiff's case, appear that the defendant was entitled to notice of action and to have the venue laid in the proper county, and the plaintiff gave no notice of action, and the venue be in a wrong county, this is not aided by the defendant having omitted to add the words "by statute" on the margin of his plea. Mason v. Newland, 9 C. & P. 575.

The effect of the general issue by statute is not altered by the new rules. Ross v. Clifton, 1 G. & D. 72; 9 Dowl. 1033; 11 Ad. & Ell. 631.

SEAL.

Where an Act of Parliament constitutes a court with a seal, it is not necessary to prove the seal, but the Court will take judicial notice of it, the seal itself being the instrument of proof. Doe v. Edwards, 1 P. & D. 408.

SEDUCTION.

The daughter at the time of her seduction, was in the service of another person, but was to return home to her father's house when she quitted her place, unless she should immediately obtain another service; the father cannot support an action for her seduction. Blaymire v. Haley, 6 M. & W. 55.

Evidence of looseness of character is admissible. Carpenter v. Wahl, 3 P. & D. 457; 11 Ad. & Ell. 803.

The daughter may be cross-examined as to particular acts of unchastity, and witnesses be called to prove the facts and the time and place of their occurrence, in mitigation of damages, if the jury believe the plaintiff to have had such intercourse as caused him to be the father of the child. Verry v. Watkins, 7 C. & P. 308.

SEQUESTRATION.

In debt for penalties under 18 Geo. 2, c. 20, for acting as a justice without being duly qualified, it appeared that the defendant was vicar of a living under sequestration, but resided in the vicarage-house; held, that a sequestration is a charge within the Act, and that it is immaterial how the sequestrator has disposed of the profits, and that the receipt by the vicar of the stipend assigned is not a freehold qualification, being held not as vicar, but under the bishop's licence; held, also, that production of the judgment roll and writ of sequestration was sufficient evidence of the sequestration, although the writ was not awarded on the entry. Pack v. Tarpley, 1 P. & D. 478; and 9 Ad. & Ell. 468.

SET-OFF.

(Subject of.)

The defendant cannot set off sums received by the one plaintiff as clerk to the other, before the partnership, and still remaining in the hands of the other plaintiff. France and Hill v. White, 8 Dowl. 53; 6 Bing. N. C. 33.

If the contract declared on be such as would entitle the plaintiff to recover special damages, no set-off is given by the statute, although no special damage be alleged. P. C. Hardcastle v. Netherwood, 5 B. & A. 95.

A debt due from a testator cannot be set off in an action by the executor for money had and received to his use as executor. Schofield v. Corbett, 6 N. & M. 527.

Where the defendant in his set-off sought to avail himself of overcharges paid to the plaintiff by a third party, who settled the previous bills for the defendant, it was held, that such third party being dead, the accounts could not, in the absence of fraud, be opened. Lawes v. Eastmure, 8 C. & P. 205.

(Without Plea, p. 994.)

In assumpsit on a quantum meruit for labour, the defendant may give in evidence the amount of beer supplied to the plaintiff's men, although not pleaded as a set-off, as it may be that the plaintiff deserves to be paid less if the defendant supplied his men with beer. Grainger v. Raybould, 9 C. & P. 229.

Debt for work and labour, an agreement having been made to do the work for 40*l.*, and all, except to the amount of 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, having been disposed of under pleas of payment, &c., the defendant may, under the plea of non-indebitatus, show that the work, to the amount of 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, was done by himself, without pleading this by way of set-off. Turner v. Diaper, 2 Scott's N. S. 447.

On a contract for repairs it was stipulated, that if not completed within a certain time, the builder should forfeit 5*l.* for every week, to be deducted from what might remain due on the completion of the works; the party may either deduct the penalty as a set-off, or recover it in an action. Duckworth v. Alison, 1 M. & W. 412.

(Under particular Pleas, p. 994.)

Since the Rule of Hil., 4 W. 4, a defendant cannot give evidence of a set-off upon a mere notice; it must be specially pleaded, and the Judges are not restrained by the proviso contained in the 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 1, from making the rule as to pleading such matter of set-off. Graham v. Partridge, 1 M. & W. 395.

Pleas in assumpsit, of part payment and set-off, which the plaintiff consented to allow; held, that he was entitled to a verdict on the count for goods sold, but that the amounts allowed should be indorsed on the postea. Butt v. Burke, 7 C. & P. 806.

The new rules of pleading do not apply to replications; where, therefore, the plaintiff replies non indeb. to a set-off pleaded, and which the defendant established, it is not competent to the plaintiff to prove that the sum so proved had been paid, as being beside the issue. Brown v. Daubeny, 4 Dowl. 585. S. P. Jackson v. Robinson, 8 Dowl. 622.

It being no longer necessary in the action of debt to consider the plaintiff's demand as a precise sum, and a defendant being in the same condition, as to pleas of set-off, &c. in debt, as in assumpsit, he is not entitled under a plea of set-off to the whole declaration, where the defendant proves a less sum to be due to him from the plaintiff than the latter has established, to have the verdict on the issue found for him as to the part which he has proved; but he is only so entitled where the sum proved under the plea of set-off covers all that is not met by the other pleas. Tuck v. Tuck, 5 M. & W. 109; and 7 Dowl. 373. And see Cousins v. Paddon, 2 Cr. M & R. 547.

In an action by a banker as indorsee, against his customer as acceptor of a bill of exchange for 67*l.*, the defendant pleaded to the whole declaration a plea of set-off for money had and received; it was proved that the banker had a balance of 37*l.* in his hands belonging to the defendant, for which latter amount the banker refused to honour the defendant's cheque, alleging that he held the 37*l.* on account of this overdue acceptance: held, that the issue on the plea of set-off must be found for the plaintiff, because it was pleaded to the whole declaration, and not pleaded as to 37*l.* only; but that the jury ought to allow the 37 l. in reduction of the damages. Barnes v. Butcher, 9 C. & P. 725.

In indebitatus assumpsit for work and services, the defendants pleaded that the claim was in respect of wages for work done by plaintiff as master of a boat used by defendants for the carriage of goods, they being common carriers, and that it was agreed that the plaintiff, as master of the boat, should be chargeable for all pilferings, losses and damages to goods under his charge, and that the amount should be deducted from his wages, and might be pleaded as a set-off; the plea then alleged the pilfering of a pipe of wine while under plaintiff's charge, and claimed to set off the damage sustained by defendants in consequence thereof against the plaintiff's claim: held that the replication, de injuriâ, was bad; held also, by Abinger, C. B, that the plea was bad as amounting to the general issue. Clewerth v. Pickford & others, 8 Dowl. 873.

Debt for goods sold and delivered and on an account stated; the particulars claimed 9*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; the defendant pleaded as to all except two sums of 1*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.* and 8*l.* 17*s.*, nunquam indebitatus; as to 1*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.*, payment into court; and as to 8*l.* 17*s.*, a set-off. Issue on the first and third pleas; the plaintiff took out of court the money paid in under the second. Semble, that upon this record the plaintiff had nothing to prove, and that the only issue was on the defendant. Newhall v. Holt, 6 M. & W. 662.

SETTLEMENT.

(By Birth, p. 998.)

The appellants prove that the mother of the child has a place of settlement; this put an end to the primâ facie settlement of the child by birth. R. v. St. Mary's, Leicester, 5 N. & M. 215.

The sessions book containing a regular caption, stating the authority of the sessions, and having the order set out, (it not appearing that there was ever any other record,) is admissible to prove the quashing of the order of removal of the pauper's parent to the appellant parish; and such an adjudication in 1824 is primâ facie evidence of the parent's settlement being in some other parish; and it appearing that the child was unemancipated in 1817, the Court will presume that he continued so, although it was not shown that he had returned to his parent's family whilst under 21. R. v. Veaveley, 1 P. & D. 60.

(Hiring and Service—Contract of Hiring, p. 998.)

Several hirings for less periods than for a year, were held to be sufficient for the purpose of gaining a settlement, under 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 11, if the master obtained the dominion over the servant for an entire year. R. v. Ravenstondale, 3 P. & D. 469.

Service under a hiring for a year, during which the * 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, passed, was held not to be united with previous service, although completing a year before the passing of the Act. R. v. St. John the Evangelist, 6 Ad. & Ell. 300 n.

So where the pauper served under a monthly hiring until Michaelmas 1833, when she engaged for a year (the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 65, coming into operation on 14 August 1834), it was held that, the contract of hiring and service not having been completed at the time of the Act passing, no settlement was obtained. R. v. Rettenden, 1 Nev. & P. 448.

* This statute abolishes settlements by hiring and service or by office.

A party appointed turnkey to a county bridewell, being hired by the keeper, subject to the approbation of the visiting justices, and paid by the county treasurer, is not a servant either of the justices or of the keeper. R. v. Sharsholt, 6 N. & M. 8.

Where, upon the hiring, the servant told his master he should want some time to go to his feast, and the master agreed that he should have a holiday for that purpose, it was held to be an exceptive hiring. R. v. Threkingham, 8 Ad. & Ell. 866.

The pauper was hired from 5th April to 5th April, to do the work of a colliery, and was to forfeit the same pay for the days he should lay himself idle as he should receive when laid idle by the proprietors, except on pay Saturdays (every alternate one), when the pit was going single shift; and he was to do a full day's work on every working day, except a single shift pit on pay Saturdays, (a day of twelve hours being single shift, and when working all the twenty-four hours being double shift), or to forfeit 2*s.* 6*d.* for every default; when the pit was working double shift, the men made twelve shifts of twelve hours in alternate fortnights respectively, and the proviso as to working single shift on pay Saturdays applied only to men working twelve shifts in the fortnight; the pauper worked sometimes single and sometimes double shift; held, that the hiring was exceptive. R. v. Cowpen, 5 Ad. & Ell. 333; and 6 N. & M. 559.

As to defective contracts of apprenticeship, see below, Apprenticeship.

Where, by the terms of the contract with the father, the son was to serve the master for a certain period in his business of a wheelwright, the master to pay 5*l.* to the son at the expiration of the term, the father to find his son clothes and other necessaries, and the master to provide him meat and lodging, it was held to amount to a contract of hiring and service only, and not of apprenticeship. R. v. Billinghay, 1 N. & P. 149.

Where the sessions lay before the Court a written document, it is a question of law as to what is its effect; where the hiring and service are made vivâ voce, it is a question of fact; and the Court cannot attend to anything which takes place at the sessions which is not stated in the case; as whether conversations at the time of the contract were receivable or not. Ibid.

(Service, p. 1001.)

A residence by a servant at his father's house, in a different parish, having left his master's house during illness, is a sufficient residence. R. v. East Winch, 4 P. & D. 342; and see R. v. Sutton, 5 T. R. 657; R. v. Dremerchion, 3 B. & Ad. 420.

Secus, in case of residence from accident. R. v. St. James in Bury St. Edmunds, 10 East, 25. R. v. St. Lawrence, Ludlow, 4 B. & Ald. 660.

(Apprenticeship—Proof of Contract, p. 1001.)

It is a question for the sessions whether a contract be one of hiring or apprenticeship; the test being, what was the object of the parties? If that be, of one to teach and the other to learn, it will be a contract of apprenticeship; and it is not necessary that the word "teach" or "learn" should be expressly used. R. v. Great Wishford, 5 N. & M. 540.

At the time of the binding to a carpenter, the master declared he would take no apprentice unless he would agree to work on the land as well as at the trade, and the sessions found that it was a contract of hiring and service; the Court, upon the facts, held that it was a defective contract of apprenticeship, and quashed the order of sessions. R. v. Ightham, 6 N. & M. 320; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 937.

The pauper, being of age, entered into a contract of apprenticeship in a foreign country, under which he served and resided in this country 40 days; he gained a settlement. R. v. Closworth, 1 N. & P. 437.

Where the binding was within a local jurisdiction, but over which the county justices had a concurrent one, an order of allowance by two county justices only, was held to be sufficient; and the Court will presume notice to have been duly proved before them, without which they would not have properly allowed the indentures. R. v. Witney, 6 Nev. & M. 552; and 5 Ad. & Ell. 191.

Where 10*l.*, part of the premium, were paid by charity trustees, and alone expressed as the consideration in the indenture, and by a private agreement between the grandfather of the apprentice and the mistress, the former was to make it up 25*l.*, but the transaction was unknown to the trustees, it was held, that such agreement was a binding agreement, and avoided the indenture for not stating the full consideration, as required by 8 Anne, c. 9, s. 39. R. v. Amersham, 6 N. & M. 12. See R. v. Baildon, 3 B. & Ad. 427.

Indentures fraudulently ante-dated, with the view of contravening 5 Eliz. c. 4, s. 31, are altogether void, although the appellant parish was no party to the fraud. R. v. Barmston, 3 N. & P. 167.

Where the service was under the indenture with a second master, expressly with the assent of the original one, it is immaterial whether the second master knew of the pauper being an apprentice or not. R. v. Sandhurst, 1 Nev. & P. 296. And see R. v. Banbury, 5 B. & Ad. 176.

Where the pauper returned to his father in consequence of illness, and resided above forty days, until the indentures were cancelled, during which time his master occasionally visited him, and asked him to carry about and sell tickets for the disposal of articles manufactured by him, by way of lottery, giving him 1*s.* a ticket, it was held, that such residence and service were connected with the apprenticeship, and that a settlement was gained in the father's parish, and was not affected by any illegality of such employment. R. v. Somerby, 1 P. & D. 180.

The pauper, an illegitimate child, resided with his mother and a man whom she married, in parish B., and was maintained by them. While so resident he was apprenticed (by a charitable institution) to his mother's husband for seven years, to learn the trade of a bricklayer. He resided with his mother and her husband as before, during the seven years. During that time he never was taught nor served in the trade of a bricklayer, but worked at odd jobs about the house when he liked, and sometimes did work in the trade of a potter, under contracts of hiring entered into by his master's consent, with various persons in B., paying his master a part of his wages for maintenance, and disposing of the rest as he chose. The pauper gained a settlement by residence in B. during the apprenticeship, under the stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 11, s. 8. R. v. Burslem, 11 A. & E. 52.

A parish apprentice, bound for seven years to A., served him for four years, when A. agreed with B., who carried on the same business in another parish, that the pauper should work for B., B. paying 5*s.* a week to A. out of the pauper's earnings. The pauper accordingly went and continued to work for B. till the end of his apprenticeship, with the exception of ten days, when he was sent for by A. to assist him during illness. B. paid A. at the rate agreed upon, deducting the ten days' absence during A.'s illness. There being no consent of justices, this was a "placing out" or "putting away" of the apprentice, within 56 Geo. 3, c. 139, s. 9, and no settlement was gained by the service under B. R. v. Wainfleet All Saints, 3 P. & D. 72; 11 A. & E. 656.

Where a parish apprentice received a general permission from his master to seek work where he could, and he did so, and resided above 40 days in the appellant parish prior to the passing of the 56 Geo. 3, c. 139, after which his master was made acquainted with and expressed his assent to such service; it was held, not to be an assent (by relation back) to the particular service prior to the statute, and after the statute no valid assignment could take place but with assent of justices. R. v. Maidstone, 6 N. & M. 545; and 5 Ad. & Ell. 326.

(Serving an office, p. 1003.)

A verbal appointment by the rector to the office of parish-clerk and sexton is sufficient, and the execution of the duties and receipt of the emoluments were held to give a settlement, although at the time of the appointment the party was not settled in the parish; and semble, no notice need be given to the parish. R. v. Bobbing, 1 N. & P. 166.

(Renting a Tenement—Separate and Distinct, &c., p. 1004.)

Under the words "separate and distinct," in 6 Geo. 4, c. 57, the tenant must be unconnected with any other person, and be a separate occupier; no settlement is gained where the tenement is hired by distinct persons as joint tenants, although the quota paid by the pauper amount to 10 l. R. v. Caverswall, 1 P. & D. 426.

Where the pauper hired a granary, consisting of an entire floor above another, but having no communication with it, and only entered externally by a ladder from the ground, it was held not to be a separate and distinct tenement to confer a settlement. R. v. Henley-upon-Thames, 1 N. & P. 445.

But where a house consisted of three floors, and the access to each was by separate outer doors, it was held, that the occupier of one floor had a distinct tenement within the statute. R. v. Usworth and Biddick, 5 Ad. & Ell. 261.

(Occupation, p. 1004.)

Upon the construction of 1 Will. 4, c. 18, the subject-matter which forms the tenement must be occupied; where, therefore, the pauper hired two cottages and three acres of land at an entire rent, and let off one cottage, the one he occupied himself with the land, although of the value of 10 l., was held to be insufficient to gain a settlement. R. v. Berkswell, 1 N. & P. 432.

Where the pauper hired a house and land, and let the growing crops, it was held that he was not an occupier of the tenement for the whole year within the St. 1 W. 4, c. 18; and where the pauper before the end of the year removed his family and goods, but a son who had previously resided with him, but boarded with his master in another part of the parish, by the direction of his father continued to sleep in the house until the year expired, it was held not to be a continuance of the father's occupation. R. v. Pakefield, 6 N. & M. 16.

So, where the father left a portion of his goods which he could not conveniently remove; and the payment of the rent by a trustee to whom the pauper had assigned his goods in trust to pay the rent and taxes and his debts, was held not to be a payment by the tenant within the statute. Ibid.

A tenement of the annual value of 17 l. is let to A. and B. A. alone occupies and pays all the rent; he gains no settlement. R. v. Aberdaron, 1 G. & D. 178.

A party hiring and residing in a house of sufficient value for a year, does not defeat a settlement under 1 Will. 4, c. 18, by permitting persons to occupy beds for the night, where he retains the control over the whole house. R. v. St. Giles-in-the-Fields, 6 N. & M. 1.

Where an agreement throughout had reference to wages and service, and the sessions had found that the occupation of a cottage was in the character of servant and not of tenant, the Court refused to interfere with their decision. R. v. Snape, 1 N. & P. 429.

Where the owner of flax-mills was the proprietor of the cottage of the pauper, whose children worked at the mill, and the rent agreed to be paid by the pauper was to be deducted from the children's wages, but the pauper never was the servant of the employer, it was held, that although the occupation was ancillary to the service of his children, yet, it not being found to have been for the purpose of the service, the pauper gained a settlement. R. v. Bishopton, 1 P. & D. 598; S. C. 10 Ad. & Ell. 824.

Where the pauper occupied and paid 10 l. rent, it was held that his settlement was not invalidated by the fact that the tithe, amounting to 6 s., was paid by the landlord. R. v. St. John's Bedwardine, 3 N. & P. 302; and see R. v. Thurmaston, 1 B. & Ad. 731.

The pauper rented a cottage and garden (of less value than 10 l. by themselves), together with a ferry and the use of a boat and line, for which together he paid 10 l.; the right of ferry ought to be included in estimating the value of the cottage. R. v. Fladbury, 2 P. & D. 471.

(Coming to settle, p. 1004.)

The "coming to settle" animo morandi, is a fact to be determined by the sessions, and with whose finding the Court will not interfere, unless they see such finding to be necessarily wrong on the facts stated; where such finding was repugnant to the facts stated, the Court held that it was not concluded by the finding of the sessions. R. v. Woolpit, 3 N. & M. 526.

(By payment of rates, p. 1005.)

The 1 Will. 4, c. 18, extends to settlements by payment of rates, as well as by renting; where, therefore, the pauper had occupied for a year a tenement exceeding 10 l. a year, and had paid all the parochial rates made during such occupation, it was held that the settlement was gained, although he had not paid the rent due for the last quarter. R. v. Brighton, 1 G. & D. 54.

Where the occupation of the tenement rated is such as to satisfy the provisions of 6 Geo. 4, c. 57, the settlement is not affected by the 1 Will. 4, c. 18. R. v. Stoke Damarel, 1 N. & P. 453.

(Order, production of, p. 1005.)

Where on an appeal against an order of removal, the sessions having, according to the old rule in Burn, required the appellants to produce the original order, or if only a copy were served, to give notice to produce the original, which had not been done, refused to receive the copy in evidence; it was held to be correct, and that the 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 76, had not altered the law so as to render the ancient practice no longer applicable or legal. R. v. Sussex Justices, 9 Dowl. 125.

(Effect of, p. 1005.)

An appellant having given a statement of the grounds of appeal rightly signed by the parish officers, is not estopped from showing that it is by the proper number, although the notice of appeal may have been signed by a greater number; the order, good on the face of it, having been quashed at the instance of the respondents, from not being prepared with proof of facts, is to be taken as having been quashed on the merits, and the decision of the sessions is conclusive. R. v. Church Knowle, 2 N. & P. 359.

The pauper was removed by an order not appealed against, from A. to the parish of B., in the county of S., that parish consisting of two townships, C. and D., in the county of S., jointly maintaining their own poor, and of a third township in the county of W. maintaining its poor separately; semble, the order would be conclusive, on that part of the parish of B., which was in the county of S.; and the townships of C. and D. having afterwards been directed by mandamus to maintain their poor separately, and the pauper having been subsequently removed to the township of C., it was held that the latter township was not concluded by the former order. R. v. Oldbury, 5 Nev. & M. 547.

Where the order of removal was founded upon a statement in the examination of renting a tenement during a particular period, which proved to be erroneously stated, and the order was quashed, such order of sessions is conclusive, and a subsequent order made upon a fresh examination stating the period correctly, was quashed. R. v. Clint, 11 Ad. & Ell. 624, n.

A pauper was removed with his wife and six children (named) by an order confirmed on appeal, and by a subsequent order, a child born during the marriage, but not named in the first order, and unemancipated, was removed to the same parish; held, on appeal against the latter order, that although the former one was conclusive as to all the facts stated in it, it was competent to the appellants to show a state of facts which had arisen subsequently, viz. that by a decision of the Ecclesiastical Court the marriage had been declared void ab initio—and so to defeat the derivative settlement. R. v. Wye, 3 N. & P. 6.

(Notice of Appeal, &c., p. 1008.)

Under the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 79, the notice of chargeability must be served by the removing parish, together with the copy of the order of removal. R. v. Brixham, 3 N. & P. 408.

The statement of the grounds of appeal, signed by the majority of the parish officers, is sufficient; and so semb., service on one only, if without fraud. R. v. Warwickshire Justices, 2 Nev. & P. 153; and 6 Ad. & Ell. 873.

And see R. v. Derby Justices, 1 Nev. & P. 703; and 6 Ad. & Ell. 885.

An order of removal was served on the 18th of March, the next sessions were held on the 8th of April. By the practice of the sessions, seven days' notice of appeal was required; held, that since the 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 76, s. 78, the Midsummer sessions following was the next practicable sessions for the purpose of appealing. R. v. The Justices of Herefordshire, 8 Dowl. 638.

Service of the notice of appeal on an attorney, although appearing to be the attorney of the respondent parish, is insufficient; but the sessions having a power to adjourn, they may receive the appeal, although no statement of the grounds have been given; the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 81, only prevents the appeal being heard: the statement of grounds, and notice of appeal, are to be considered separate instruments. R. v. Kimbolton, 1 Nev. & P. 606.

On appeal against an order of removal, the appellants (under stat. 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 76, s. 81,) served a statement of grounds of objection, which only impugned the alleged settlement. On the hearing of the appeal, the bench, being equally divided, adjourned the case to the next sessions. Before the next sessions, the appellants served another statement, containing an objection to the notice of chargeability under sect. 79. The sessions having quashed the order of removal, on the objection last mentioned, it was held, that the objection ought not to have been entertained, since it was not mentioned in the original statement of grounds of appeal; and the Court sent the case back to sessions to be heard on the merits. R. v. Arlecdon, 11 A. & E. 87.

The grounds of appeal required to be stated in the notice are not confined to those on which evidence is to be given, and the sessions were therefore held to be justified in refusing to hear objections as to defects on the face of an order of removal. Quære, if the omission to state the names and ages of children removed be necessarily bad? R. v. Witheenwick, 1 Nev. & P. 423.

(Requisites of Notice, particularity.)

By sect. 81 of the 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 76, the grounds of appeal must be expressly stated in the notice; where, therefore, the notice only states that the pauper is settled in the appellant parish, evidence of a settlement by hiring and service is inadmissible. R. v. Eastville, 1 G. & D. 150.

Where the statement of the grounds of appeal alleged that the pauper gained a settlement by hiring and service in a third parish, it was held to be too general and insufficient, and the sessions having refused to hear the appeal, the Court refused a mandamus to them to enter continuances and hear it; it was also held, that the notice and statement signed by the two overseers was sufficient, although there was also one churchwarden. R. v. Derbyshire, Justices of, 4 N. & P. 703.

But in a later case, where the notice only stated the grounds to be, that the paupers were settled in another parish, without going on to state the nature of that settlement, it was held to be a sufficient compliance with 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 81. R. v. Cornwall Justices, 5 Ad. & Ell. 134; and 1 Nev. & P. 20.

A notice of appeal on an order of removal, alleging a hiring and service, must state the date and time of such service; though, semble, where it cannot be ascertained, the sessions may determine whether it is so essential as that the omission shall vitiate the notice or examination. R. v. Bridgewater, 10 Ad. & Ell. 693.

The stat. 56 Geo. 3, c. 139, ss. 1, 2, provides several requisites to the due binding of parish apprentices; among others, that the binding be ordered, and indenture allowed and signed, by particular justices; and where the child is bound by a parish to a party residing in another parish, that notice be given to the overseers of the latter, and proved or admitted before the justices by one of such overseers personally, before the indenture be signed. Sect. 5 enacts that no settlement shall be gained by such apprenticeship, unless such order be made, and such allowances signed, "as hereinbefore directed." An appellant parish stated (under sect. 81, of stat. 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76), as the ground of appeal against a removal founded on a settlement by parish apprenticeship, "that the requisites of stat. 56 Geo. 3, c. 139, and more particularly sect. 5, were not complied with." Held, that the appellant parish could not, under this statement, dispute the settlement at sessions, on the ground that their overseers had no notice, and were not present at the binding. R. v. Upper Whitley, 11 A. & E. 90.

Where the grounds of appeal, setting up a settlement by being rated to a tenement, omitted to state the name of the landlord, it was held to be insufficient to let in the evidence of such settlement. R. v. Sussex Justices, 3 P. & D. 42.

A ground of appeal was stated to be, that the respondent parish acknowledged the pauper to be an inhabitant of and legally settled in that parish, by relieving him and his family during the last six years out of the parish, and particularly during the years 1839 and 1840, while he and his family resided at Liverpool. This was held to be sufficiently explicit, the facts stated being more within the knowledge of the respondents than of the appellants. R. v. Justices of Carnarvonshire, 1 G. & D. 423.

(Variance, p. 1008.)

The notice stated that the contract of service in S. contained a stipulation that the pauper should be allowed "two days' holidays at S. club-feast," and, at the hearing, the pauper proved that he bargained "for one day's holiday to go to H. fair;" held, that such evidence was inadmissible, the parties being held strictly to the notice given; and the sessions having found it an exceptive hiring, quashed the order, and the Court quashed the order of sessions. R. v. Holbeach, 1 N. & P. 137.

Where the copy of the examination sent with the order of removal stated a hiring and service in 1813, but the proof at the hearing of the appeal was, that it took place in 1810, it was held to be a fatal variance, and that the sessions were right in rejecting the evidence of the hiring in 1810. Broseley, ex parte, 2 N. & P. 355.

(Objections to the Examination, p. 1008.)

The examination must show on the face of it such circumstances as are essential to give the justices jurisdiction to make the order; but where it is on the face of it regular, evidence will not be received afterwards to impeach its validity, as by showing the incompetency of the examinant, he being a convicted felon at the time. R. v. Alternon, 10 Ad. & Ell. 699.

Where the examination and order stated that the pauper's father rented, &c., but did not go on to state the sufficiency of such renting as to time to confer a settlement, it was held to be a substantial objection, as not showing that the justices had jurisdiction to make the removal. R. v. Middleton-in-Teesdale, 3 P. & D. 173; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 688.

The parish on which the order of removal is made is entitled to have the whole of the examinations on which it is founded, and not part only, and on which the justices may have adjudicated as to the particular settlement. R. v. Outwell, 1 P. & D. 610; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 836.

The justices having no jurisdiction to make an order of removal, unless the pauper be chargeable, it was held, that the examinations must state the fact of chargeability. R. v. Black Callerton, 2 P. & D. 475.

The same strictness is not to be applied to the pauper's examination and the statement of objections in the notice, but the sessions are to decide whether variances are substantial or immaterial, and such as could not mislead, and the Court will not interfere with their decisions in that respect. R. v. Yorkshire, W. Riding, Justices of, 10 Ad. & Ell. 685; and 3 P. & D. 462.

Where, from the copy of the examination, it appeared that the pauper stated that his father belonged to the parish of C., and that he was a certificated man from C., it was held, that under this notice, a settlement of the father by apprenticeship in C. might be shown. R. v. Helvedon, 1 Nev. & P. 138.

Where the pauper had been removed, with a copy of his examination, in which he had stated a hiring with Mr. P., and service with his wife, on which statement a notice of appeal was given, and the ground alleged was that no settlement appeared on the examination, it was held, that the respondents could not introduce a new state of facts, which if communicated might have induced the appellants to have withdrawn their appeal, or to have prepared themselves with fresh evidence. R. v. Misterton, 2 Nev. & P. 109; and 6 Ad. & Ell. 878.

It is a good ground of appeal that the examination upon which it was made, though it sets forth facts which show a settlement, does not disclose any legal evidence of such facts. Therefore, where an order of removal was made upon the examination of the pauper and his father, in which the father stated that the place of his father's settlement was E., as he had heard his father say, and believed to be true, and that he had heard his father say he had received relief from the overseers of E.; and the pauper himself stated that his father's place of settlement was at E., as he had heard him say, and believed to be true, it was held, that such order was bad on an appeal, stating, as one of the grounds, that the order was "bad and inoperative," and the examinations on which it was made "defective and insufficient to ground and support the same." R. v. Ecclesall Bierlow, 11 A. & E. 607.

See R. v. Tetbury, Ibid. 615.

Under sect. 81 of stat. 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 76, (precluding respondents from going into other grounds of removal than those set forth in the order and examination,) the sessions must reject evidence of any grounds of removal which do not appear, on the face of the examination, to have been proved before the removing justices by some legal evidence, provided the defect of evidence be pointed out by the notice of objections. Where, therefore, a a birth settlement of the pauper's husband was proved only by the husband stating that he was born in the appellant parish, "as I have heard and believe," and the objection was, that it was not proved or set forth "upon the oath of any credible witness" when or where the husband was born, it was held that the evidence of the birth was merely hearsay, that the objection was sufficiently taken, and that all evidence of the birth was inadmissible at sessions; although it appeared in the examination that the husband, when examined, was "confined in W. gaol for felony," and the respondents contended that the objection pointed only to the inadmissibility of a convicted felon. R. v. Lydeard St. Lawrence, 11 A. & E. 616.

An examination stated an apprenticeship, and a service in the appellant parish with a party other than the master, but did not state the master's consent; it was held, that the examination was bad on the face of it, so far as regarded a settlement by apprenticeship; although the examinant (the apprentice) stated that it was agreed in the indenture that he should serve the last forty days of his apprenticeship in L., the appellant parish, "and I served the last forty days" in L., "with A. H., my master's father." It was held also, that the objection was sufficiently taken by objecting that it did not appear that the examinant served A. H. with the consent of the master, or in any other manner, under any indenture of apprenticeship, alleging some additional defects, and then proceeding thus, "and the said examinations are too general, and are wanting in sufficient particularity in each of these last mentioned respects."

Semble, per Patteson, J., that, where the settlement relied on is a derivative one from the pauper's father, whose alleged settlement is by apprenticeship, the examination should give the date of the apprenticeship. Ibid.

(An Order not supersedable.)

After an appeal against an order of removal had been entered, and notice of trial given, it was held, that the power of the justices making the order was at an end, and that they had no power to supersede the order at the instance of the respondents. R. v. Middlesex Justices, 3 P. & D. 459; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 809.

(Relief, p. 1008.)

Where a female, born in England of Irish parents, became the mother of a bastard child whilst living unemancipated with her parents, it was held, first, that relief to her, rendered the father removable to Ireland under 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 40, s. 2; and that the 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 76, having objects purely and exclusively English, did not affect the father's liability to maintain her, and to render him chargeable by the relief given to her; and, secondly, that the child could not be removed with the mother to Ireland. R. v. Mile End Old Town, 5 Nev. & M. 581. And see R. v. Bennett and Broughton, 2 B. & Ad. 712.

SEWERS.

Where a parish consisted of two districts which had been assessed immemorially towards the repairs of a sea-wall, protecting both districts, under one assessment, collected by one dyke-reeve, and the commissioners of sewers, without any presentment, appointed separate officers, and made a rate on one district exclusively for the repairs of the wall, it was held, that the jurisdiction of the commissioners to make a rate being founded on the presentment of a jury, without which the rate was utterly void, the warrant to levy was also void, and the commissioners liable in trespass. Wingate v. Wayte, 6 M. & W. 739. See the 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 22, amended by the 4 & 5 Vict. c. 45.

The commissioners have power to amerce a township for neglect to repair works which by custom they are bound to repair, although they cannot tax a township in respect of the benefit they receive from drainage; and in the former case they may levy the rate by distress against one of the parties liable. Ramsey v. Nornabell, 3 P. & D. 253.

SHERIFF.

(Arrest, p. 1015.)

The plaintiff was arrested whilst returning from the Court of Chancery, where he had been engaged as a barrister in a cause, and he obtained a Judge's order for his discharge in that suit only; the sheriff was justified in detaining him on other writs at the suit of other parties, the Judge's order having reference only to the particular application; but it seems that the action might be maintainable against the sheriff if any oppressive conduct were shown. Watson v. Carroll, 4 M. & W. 592; and 7 Dowl. 217.

A party having been arrested by a sheriff's officer without any warrant, another officer obtained his name to be put in the warrant, which was directed to a different officer, it being in accordance with the practice of the office, and done without any collusion with the sheriff; held not to invalidate the arrest, nor to entitle the party to his discharge from that warrant or other detainers. Robinson v. Yewens, 5 M. & W. 149; and 7 Dowl. 377.

But where the defendant was arrested on a warrant from the late sheriff (but on none from the present one), at the suit of M., by his officer S., there being at the time another writ against him at the suit of R., the warrant on which from the present sheriff was in the hands of N., who delivered it to S., and the under-sheriff altered it to insert the name of S., and detained the defendant at the suit of the plaintiff; it was held, that the original caption of the defendant was illegal, and that he was entitled to be discharged, and was not precluded from showing the original illegality of the caption by his having removed himself from the original custody by suing out a habeas corpus. Pearson v. Yewens, 5 Bing. N. C. 489; and 7 Dowl. 451.

(Escape, p. 1015.)

A party, whilst in mesne custody, was taken after the return of the writ, in the gaoler's custody, to a distant place to attend before a revising barrister, and returned into gaol the same day; it was held to amount to an escape; but that the action was not maintainable without proof of some damage in fact or law. Williams v. Mostyn, 4 M. & W. 145; and 7 Dowl. 38; questioning Barker v. Green, 2 Bing. 317. And see Plancke v. Anderson, 5 T. R. 37.

In debt, by the assignee of A., a bankrupt, for an escape of a party in execution at the suit of A. before his bankruptcy, it was held, that the attorney on the record had no authority to direct the discharge, and a plea by the marshal that he discharged the party before notice of the bankruptcy, in pursuance of the requirement and direction of such attorney, was held to be bad, on demurrer. Savoury v. Chapman, 8 Dowl. 656; 3 P. & D. 604; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 829.

In an action for an escape, the marshal pleaded that the prisoner escaped without his knowledge, and to places unknown, and afterwards, and before the commencement of the suit, voluntarily returned into the custody of the defendant; the plea is insufficient, in not averring that the defendant had no such knowledge during any period of his absence, but leave to amend given. Davis v. Chapman, 5 Bing. N. C. 453; and 7 Dowl. 429.

In an action for an escape against the marshal, the plaintiff is bound to give a particular of the precise day of the escape if he is aware of it, and if not, to give such information as is in his power. Davis v. Chapman, 1 Nev. & P. 699.

A return of cepi corpus et paratum, &c. with evidence of no bail-bond in the office, is evidence for the jury in support of the count for an escape. Neck v. Humphrey, 3 Ad. & Ell. 130; and 4 N. & M. 707.

(False Return, p. 1009.)

The sheriff is bound by his return, both as to the fact of arrest, and also as to the day on which it was made. Cook v. Round, 1 Mo. & R. 512.

Where the sheriff levied and sold under a fi. fa., and, after notice of the defendant's having petitioned for his discharge under the Insolvent Act, returned fieri feci, it was held that he was bound by such return, notwithstanding the defendant's subsequent discharge. Field v. Smith, 2 M. & W. 388; and 5 Dowl. 735.

The sheriff's return is only conclusive in the same action, and may be traversed in any other. Jackson v. Hill, 2 P. & D. 455.

Case for a false return of nulla bona: under a plea that the party had no goods whereof the sheriff could levy the damages mentioned, the sheriff may show that the proceeds of the goods seized were exhausted by satisfaction of a year's rent, the expenses and a sum due under another writ of fi. fa. previously delivered to him. Wintle v. Freeman, 11 Ad. & Ell. 539; 1 Gale & D. 93.

A recovery in the original action is no bar to an action for a false return of nulla bona. Pilcher v. King, 1 P. & D. 297.

In case against the sheriff for a false return of nulla bona to a fi. fa., the defence being that the goods had passed to the assignees of the debtor, it was held to be unnecessary to put in the deposition of the petitioning creditor to show what the debt was, and that the defendant might show a different debt. Birt v. Stephenson, 8 C. & P. 741.

The acceptance by a plaintiff of part of a debt, under a return that part only has been levied, is no waiver of an action for a false return. Holmes v. Clifton, 4 P. & D. 112 (overruling Beynon v. Garratt, 1 C. & P. 154). See Watson v. Wace, 5 B. & C. 153; 7 D. & R. 633.

(Special Bailiff, p. 1011.)

A mere request to the sheriff to direct his warrant to a particular officer, does not make such officer a special bailiff of the plaintiff and so relieve the sheriff, nor is the latter relieved from the obligation to return the writ by the circumstance of a compromise between the parties. Balson v. Meggatt, 4 Dowl. 557.

Where the plaintiff's attorney requested the writ of ca. sa. to be executed by a particular bailiff, and himself accompanied such bailiff and directed him to do an act which constituted the arrest illegal, it was held, the defendant having afterwards escaped, that it amounted to making such officer a special bailiff, and that the plaintiff could not sue the sheriff for an escape from custody which was illegal, and rendered so by the conduct of the plaintiff's own attorney. Doe v. Trye, 5 Bing. N. C. 573; 7 Sc. 704; and 7 Dowl. 636.

A mere request that a particular person named should be employed, held not to constitute him a special bailiff of the party and to relieve the sheriff. Corbet v. Brown, 6 Dowl. 794.

(Damages, p. 1014.)

The sheriff being only liable to pay the plaintiff the damages which he has sustained, the Court will stay the proceedings in an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange on payment of debt and costs in that action only, although another action against the drawer may also be pending. Vaughan v. Harris, 3 M. & W. 542.

(Money had and received, p. 1023.)

The sheriff seized goods in the possession of S., to satisfy a fi. fa. issued against him upon a judgment of nonsuit for 67 l. S. had previously conveyed all his estate and effects to H. by a deed which it was contended was fraudulent and void as against creditors: and H. gave notice to the sheriff's officer not to sell, and demanded the goods. The officer refused to deliver them except on payment of 97 l., (the additional 30 l. being claimed for poundage, expenses, &c.) which the person sent by H. to demand the goods paid under protest. The sheriff, being ruled to return the writ, returned that he had levied of the goods and chattels of the plaintiff S. the sum of 67 l. In an action for money had and received, brought by S. against the sheriff to recover back the 30 l., it was held not to be necessary to prove a tender of the 67 l. Scarfe v. Halifax, 7 M. & W. 288.

Original writs having been wholly executed, ought not to be transferred to the new sheriff, under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 99, s. 7, and the balance of the proceeds constituting a debt from the former sheriff to the debtor, cannot be taken in execution under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 12, and the defendant is not rendered liable by having employed the same under-sheriff. Harrison v. Paynter, 6 M. & W. 387.

(Insufficient Sureties, p. 1025.)

In case against the sheriff for taking insufficient sureties in replevin, he is liable to the extent of the penalty of the bond given by them, and not merely of the value of the goods distrained. Paul v. Goodluck, 2 Bing. N. C. 220: and 2 Sc. 363.

(8 Ann, c. 14, s. 1, p. 1027.)

The sheriff is liable to the landlord, if he levy on the goods not of the tenant but a stranger, although he have been compelled to pay the whole amount to the owner. Forster v. Cookson, 1 G. & D. 58.

In an action against a sheriff for removing goods taken under a fi. fa. without paying a year's rent, which was due to the landlord, the defendant pleaded that no rent was in arrear, and that the sheriff had no notice that any rent was in arrear, thus admitting the execution and the taking by the defendant. It was proved that the goods were actually taken by M., and had never been taken except on that occasion; held, that as there had been no other seizure, this sufficiently showed M. to have acted by the authority of the defendant, without proof of any warrant. Read v. Thoyts, 9 C. & P. 515.

In the same action there was, in addition to the special count, a count in trover, to which the defendant pleaded not guilty, and that the plaintiff was not possessed; and the plaintiff, in addition to the proof that a year's rent was due, gave in evidence an absolute bill of sale, by which the tenant, before any rent had become due, assigned all his goods (including those taken in the fi. fa.), to the plaintiff for a debt, the tenant remaining in possession of the goods; held, that there being no evidence on the latter count to connect the sheriff with the taking of the goods, the plaintiff must fail on that count; but that if the jury thought the bill of sale void, as against the execution creditor, they might find for the plaintiff on the first count for the amount of the year's rent; and the jury having found for the plaintiff on the first count, and for the defendant on the second count, the Judge would not certify under the stat. 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 5, to exempt the defendant from costs on the pleas pleaded by him to the first count of the declaration. Read v. Thoyts, 9 C. & P. 515.

It was held also that the party against whose goods the execution issued was a competent witness. Ibid.

(Defence by Sheriff.)

The sheriff is not liable when he acts judicially only. Pilcher v. King, 1 P. & D. 297.

(Property seizable—Lien, p. 1028.)

The sheriff cannot take goods which the debtor holds as a lien only. Legge v. Evans and another, 8 Dowl. 177.

Goods purchased by a married woman out of the proceeds of property settled to her sole and separate use may be taken in execution on a judgment against her husband. Carne v. Brice and another, 8 Dowl. 884.

Declarations made by the officer whilst in possession under a fi. fa. are evidence against the sheriff, although they are made after the return of the writ. Jowles v. Humphrey, 2 C. & M. 413.

And a letter from the under-sheriff to the officer in possession, directing him to demand only the 67 l., if S., whose goods had been seized on a fi. fa. against them, came to pay the amount of the execution, is not admissible in evidence on behalf of the sheriff. Held, however, that it was a question for the jury, and ought to have been left to them, whether the money paid to redeem the goods was the money of S. or not, and that if it was not, he was not entitled to recover: and that the sheriff was not estopped by his return to say that the excess beyond the 67 l. was not the money of S. Searfe v. Hallifax, 7 M. & W. 288.

In trover for goods against the sheriff, an affidavit made by the sheriff's officer on a motion by the defendant under the Interpleader Act, is admissible to prove the seizure of the goods by the servant of the sheriff, having full knowledge of its contents, and using it for his own purposes. Burchell v. Hulse, 7 A. & E. 455; S. C. 2 N. & P. 426.

(Extortion, p. 1031.)

The statute of 23 Hen. 6, c. 10, regulating the fees to be taken by the sheriff on an arrest, being in force at the time of the action brought (prior to 7 Will. 4, & 1 Vict. c. 55), was held not to be repealed by any usage or practice in taxation, and that the liability of the officer for extortion was not varied by the fact of the party having appointed his own bailiff. Plevin v. Prince, 10 Ad. & Ell. 494.

The sheriff, although put to extra trouble and expense, &c., in making the levy on an execution, is entitled only to the fees allowed in the table under 7 Will. 4, & 1 Vict. c. 55. Slater v. Haines, 7 Mees. & W. 413; and 9 Dowl. 221.

(Poundage, p. 1023.)

Where the amount of the execution is tendered to the sheriff before actual levy, he cannot claim poundage; and where it was paid under protest, it was ordered to be refunded. Colls v. Coates, 3 P. & D. 511.

The right to poundage under 29 Eliz. c. 4, is not affected by the 7 Will. 4, and 1 Vict. c. 55, or the table of fees made under it. Davies v. Griffiths, 4 Mees. & W. 377; and 7 Dowl. 204.

STAMP, p. 1034.

(Time and Mode of objecting to.)

Plea, to an action on a bill, that it was not duly stamped, is ill, on special demurrer. Howard v. Smith, 4 Bing. N. C. 684; and 6 Sc. 438.

Where an I O U instrument had, whilst counsel were engaged, been inadvertently read, it was held that it was too late afterwards to object to the want of a stamp and withdraw it from the jury. Foss v. Wagner, 6. Ad. & Ell. 116.

Where, until inspection of the cheque on which the action was brought, it could not be known that it required a stamp, being post-dated, it was held that it was not too late to take the objection after it had been read, and that the fact of post-dating need not be specially pleaded. Field v. Woods, 2 Nev. & P. 117; and 6 Dowl. 23.

Where it is sought to draw up a rule for an attachment, it is competent for the officer of the Court to object to the absence of a stamp on an award, and therefore to refuse to draw up the rule. Hill v. Slocombe, 9 Dowl. 339.

An agreement for the sale of a house referring only to the title deeds, if it come to the knowledge of the Court that an agreement is not stamped, it is not competent to the parties to waive the objection, and no decree will be made until the instrument is produced to the registrar properly stamped. Owen v. Thomas, 3 M. & K. 353.

(Stamp, single, when Sufficient, p. 1052.)

A deed conveying lands in trust, and containing a declaration of a similar trust as to stock, requires but one stamp. Doe v. Fereday, 4 P. & D. 287.

Where an agreement was entered into pending disputes as to the boundaries of mining lands, declaring that a surveyor residing out of the neighbourhood should be appointed by the agent of the lord of the manor, to set them out, and subsequently a memorandum was executed, reciting that the parties not having been able to appoint a competent surveyor residing out of the neighbourhood, had agreed to appoint a particular surveyor for the purpose; it was held that the two memoranda constituted but one agreement, and that one stamp was sufficient. Taylor v. Parry, 1 Sc. N. S. 586; and 1 M. & G. 604.

So where the defendant, trading separately, and also in partnership, had goods consigned to him on both accounts and the bills of lading transmitted to him, and being desirous of receiving both consignments, signed an agreement in the name of the firm, containing an undertaking to be answerable for the amount of freight for his own goods, and another for that of the goods of the partnership, it was held, that having an interest in both, it was competent for him to make himself personally liable for the freight of both; and that although the agreement might contain a plurality of contracts, it did not require more than one stamp. Shipton v. Thornton, 1 P. & D. 216.

(Ad valorem.)

In debt on a bond, conditioned for the payment of a sum of money secured to be paid by a certain indenture, it was held, that it was necessary to produce the deed, in order to see whether it was such as required an ad valorem stamp, to exempt the bond from a higher stamp than 1*l.*, with which only it was stamped. Walmesly v. Brierley, 1 Mo. & R. 529.

(Affidavit, p. 1035.)

Affidavits used in answer to an application to set aside an award made pursuant to a submission to arbitration by deed, must be stamped, notwithstanding the 5 Geo. 4, c. 41, which repeals the 54 Geo. 3, c. 184, as to stamps on legal proceedings in general. Templeman v. Reed, 9 Dowl. 962.

(Agreement, p. 1035.)

An agreement for the sale of a house stated that the sale was subject to the covenants set forth "in a draft lease delivered this day;" held, that in calculating the number of words with reference to the stamp upon the agreement, the covenants in the lease were not to be included; and, the agreement containing less than 1,080 words, and being stamped with a 1*l.* stamp, that the stamp was sufficient. Sneezum v. Marshall, 7 M. & W. 417; and 9 Dowl. 267.

A letter in the terms "I have received the sum of ——l., which I borrowed of you, and I have to be accountable for the said sum, with legal interest;" is an agreement, and not a promissory note, and admissible with an agreement stamp. Horne v. Redfearne, 4 Bing. N. C. 433.

Where the defendant having money of the plaintiff's wife in his hands, the plaintiff gave a memorandum that he consented to take it in weekly payments, and to give a receipt in full upon the whole being paid, it was held to be inadmissible without a stamp. Remon v. Hayward, 2 A. & E. 666.

Where to the I O U were added the words, "to be paid on," &c., it was held to be either a note or an agreement, and a stamp therefore necessary. Brooks v. Elkins, 2 M. & W. 74.

A deed, purporting to be a surrender of a lease in consideration of a new one at an increased rent, does not require an agreement stamp, the agreement being incident to and part of the new conveyance. Doe v. Phillips, 3 P. & D. 603; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 796.

An agreement to make an engraver's press, without any contract as to fixing it, is a contract for the sale of goods within the exception of the Stamp Act. Pinner v. Arnold, 2 Cr. M. & R. 613; and 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 1; holding the case of Buxton v. Bedall, 3 East, 313, to have been overruled by those of Wilks v. Atkinson, 6 Taunt. 11, and Garbutt v. Watson, 5 B. & Ald. 613.

And an agreement for a sale of goods and goodwill is not a sale merely of goods within the exemption of the Stamp Act, and requires a stamp. South v. Finch, 3 Bing N. C. 506; and 4 Sc. 293.

A resolution of a company or association for the appointment of a clerk or secretary at a certain salary, is not an agreement or a minute or memorandum of an agreement that need be stamped, within the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184. Vaughton v. Brine, 1 Scott, N. S. 258.

A minute of a resolution entered in the books of a joint stock company for the acceptance of a tender for work to be done for the company, is not a minute or memorandum of an agreement that need be stamped, within the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184. Lucas v. Beach, 1 Scott, N. S. 350.

An agreement signed by the plaintiff only, is as against him valid in point of law as an agreement, and must therefore be stamped. Hughes v. Budd, 8 Dowl. 478.

A plaintiff in ejectment having adduced oral evidence of the terms of the defendant's tenancy under him, the defendant put in the following memorandum, signed by himself:—"July 13, 1838.—I acknowledge that I have held the estate," &c., "as tenant to T. F." (the lessor of the plaintiff), "at a yearly rent of 60 l., from 4th July 1837, the rent to be paid quarterly; and I further acknowledge to stand indebted to the said T. F. in 60 l. for the first year's rent, which was due on the 4th July instant. I have, on the signing hereof, paid the attorney of T. F. 6 d. in part of the rent so due." Held, that this paper was not a mere acknowledgment or attornment, but a contract or evidence of a contract within stat. 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, sched. Part I. tit. Agreement, and inadmissible without a stamp. Doe dem. Frankis v. Frankis, 11 A. & E. 792.

An I O U, which contains special terms that the sum to be paid shall be reduced in a certain event, and that part of the sum shall be disposed of in a particular manner, requires an agreement stamp, unless it relate to an amount under 20 l. Evans v. Philpotts, 9 C. & P. 270.

An agreement by an execution creditor to the sheriff to indemnify him on the sale of goods, requires a stamp, although the value of the goods be under 20 l., unless the indemnity be limited to a sum under that amount. Shepherd v. Wheeble, 8 C. & P. 534.

(Annuity.)

Where the grantor, in consideration of the marriage and of the portion of the intended wife, covenanted to pay an annuity to the plaintiff in trust for the inten'ed husband and wife, it was held that the deed did not require to be stamped, as upon the sale of an annuity, with an ad valorem stamp. Massey v. Hanney, 3 Bing. N. C. 478; and 4 Sc. 258.

(Apprentice, p. 1040.)

The exemption from the stamp-duty under 37 Geo. 3, c. 111, was held to apply only to contracts for valuable consideration, and not to extend to an indenture of apprenticeship, where no premium was given. R. v. Mabe, 5 Nev. & M. 241; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 531.

By an indenture of apprenticeship, the apprentice was bound to serve his master for five years and a half; a deed of assignment transferred the services of the apprentice to a new master for the remainder of the term of five years and a half, and the deed recited that instead of providing the apprentice with certain wages stipulated for in the original indenture, the new master would find him in food, lodging and washing, for the remainder of the said term and one year more; the deed then bound the apprentice to his new master for that additional term: the deed of assignment is liable only to a 1 l. assignment stamp, and no additional duty is payable on the creation of the new term of service. Morrice v. Cox, 9 Dowl. 661.

Where no consideration was expressed in the indenture, it was held not to be within the 8 Ann. c. 9; and the 55 Geo. 3, c. 144, only varying the amount of duty, and not limiting the imposition of the stamp to any particular period, it was held to be receivable in evidence, although stamped more than a year after its execution. Smith v. Agett, 8 Dowl. 411.

(Assignment, p. 1040.)

Where a party entitled to receive commission as architect of works in progress, assigned it in trust to pay a debt, with a power to receive it, and a covenant to pay the debt and not to receive the commission or do any act whereby the assignee might be hindered receiving it, it was held to operate as an absolute conveyance of the commission, and not as a mortgage, and that a stamp calculated upon the amount of commission eventually received, was sufficient. Pooley v. Goodwin, 5 N. & M. 466.

(Attorney, p. 1041.)

The non-payment of stamp-duty at the time of admission, though it may subject the party to penalties, does not render the admission void. Middleton v. Chambers, 1 Scott, N. S. 99.

(Authority, p 1041.)

Where the town clerk of a corporation was authorized in writing by the trustees to vote on their behalf, in respect of lands vested in them by the Municipal Reform Act, it was held that such writing required a stamp. R. v. Kelk, 4 P. & D. 185.

(Bill of Exchange, &c. p. 1042.)

"August 25th, 1837.—Memorandum, that I, Benjamin Payne, had 5*l.* 5*s.* for one month of my mother and Shrivell, from this date, to be paid by me to her.—Benjamin Payne," is a promissory note, and requires a stamp. Shrivell v. Payne, 8 Dowl. 441.

(Bond, p. 1044.)

A bond conditioned to secure a principal sum, with interest at 5*l.* per cent. commencing from a previous day, is only liable to stamp duty on the principal sum. Barker v. Smart, 7 M. & W. 590. And see 9 Dowl. 211.

(Charge on Land, p. 1045.)

Where, by a resolution in vestry, that the plaintiff should be reimbursed sums which he had paid for church repairs out of the rents of certain church lands, it was held that if such consent amounted to a charge on the land, the entry was inadmissible in evidence, for want of a stamp, in an action against the churchwardens to recover the rents received; and semb. the churchwardens would have no power to bind their successors in charging the land. Wrench v. Lord, 3 Bing. N. C. 672; and 4 Sc. 381.

(Deed, p. 1046.)

By indenture, to which A., executor and devisee in trust, and C. and D. were parties, it was agreed and declared that certain stock, formerly the testator's, should be transferred to C. and D. in trust, according to the dispositions of the will; and in pursuance of an agreement, which was recited, A. by the same indenture, bargained, sold, released, &c., lands of A. to C. and his heirs, in trust that C. should out of the proceeds make certain payments directed by the will; the indenture bore a 1*l.* 15*s.* stamp: it was held that such stamp was sufficient, under the stat. 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, sched. Part I., and that the indenture did not require to be stamped but "as a deed not otherwise charged," &c. in respect of the disposition of stock, and as a "conveyance not otherwise charged," &c. in respect of the bargain, sale, and release of lands. Doe v. Fereday, 12 A. & E. 23.

(Lease, p. 1047.)

A. being owner of a farm, let it for seven years to B., and by a written agreement of the same date as the lease it was agreed that A. should manage the farm for B., B. allowing A. 12*s.* a week, "and allowing him and his family to reside and have the use of the dwelling-house and furniture therein, free of rent," and this agreement was to be put an end to by three months' notice or three months' wages; it was held that this agreement did not require a lease stamp, as it did not contain a demise of the house, the occupation being the mere remuneration for services. Doe d. Hughes v. Derry, 9 C. & P. 494.

(Mortgage, p. 1048.)

On a mortgage of premises held for lives, for 130*l.*, with power to the mortgagee to expend not exceeding 70*l.* for a renewal, it was held, that a 2*l.* stamp was sufficient. Doe d. Jarman v. Larder, 3 Bing. N. C. 92; and 3 Sc. 407.

An assignment of a mortgage as a mere transfer of an old security for money previously due, was held to be sufficiently stamped with a 35*s.* stamp, although the seisin of the mortgagor was not proved. Doe v. Maple, 3 Bing. N. C. 832.

Where a mortgage term was transferred upon a further advance, and the fee conveyed as a further security, it was held that the deed required only an ad valorem stamp on the further sum advanced. Doe v. Gray, 3 Ad. & Ell. 89; and 4 N. & M. 719.

(Surrender, p. 1051.)

Where by agreement, dated in May, between A. and B., an estate was to be sold by auction, in lots, and if not all sold, then after — August and before — September, the part remaining unsold was to be divided into equal lots between them, and a sum to be paid by B. to C., the principal tenant on his giving up possession at Michaelmas, which he had consented to do, it was held that the agreement stamped with a 1*l.* stamp was sufficient, the instrument not amounting to a surrender, at the time of its being executed, of the tenant's term. Weddall v. Capes, 3 Cr. M. & R. 50; and 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 430.

(Trust, p. 1051.)

A memorandum signed by the defendant in the terms "I hold of M. T. 37*l.* to put into the savings' bank for her," is evidence of a debt, and not of a trust, although there was evidence that it was deposited in his hands to be applied to the use of M. T. at the defendant's discretion. Remon v. Hayward, 2 A. & E. 666.

STATUTE, p. 1059.

Words of, when compulsory. R. v. Leeds, 4 B. & A. 498.

Where a private Act incorporating an insurance company provided that it should be judicially taken notice of, and without being specially pleaded; it was held that it was sufficient to produce a copy from the King's printer. Beaumont v. Mountain, 4 M. & Sc. 177.

(Repeal of, p. 1059.)

The law does not favour the doctrine of repealing a statute by implication. Foster's Case, 11 Rep. 73, (a). Doe v. Grey, 2 T. R. 365; Dyer, 347.. R. v. Downes, 3 T. R. 569. Goldson v. Buck, 15 East, 376; Fortescue, c. 18.

A repealed statute has no operation, &c. See further, 2 M. & W. 848.

STOCK.

(Dividends.)

Where the tenant for life of stock dies on the day of the dividends becoming due, they belong to his residuary personal estate. Paton v. Sheppard, 10 Sim. 186.

STOCK-JOBBING.

Assumpsit for stock sold and transferred by plaintiff, and accepted by defendant; plea, stating an agreement for such sale, &c., and that at the time of making such agreement the plaintiff was not possessed of or entitled to the stock in his own right, &c.: held, that such contract was not void under 7 G. 2, c. 8, s. 8. Mortimer v. M'Callan, 7 M. & W. 20; and see S. C. 6 Id. 58.

See tit. ASSUMPSIT—ILLEGALITY.

SUICIDE.

A person cannot be tried for feloniously inciting another to commit suicide, although that other commit the suicide. R. v. Leddington, 9 C. & P. 79.

SURETY.

(Liability of, p. 1062.)

Where a bond was given by a merchant to his bankers as a security for a balance and for future advances, to which the respondent became a party as surety, and afterwards, the bond being defective, a fresh one was executed in a larger sum, to secure, as was alleged, a floating balance, with interest from the date of the execution, but was in the common form, which was also signed by the respondent as surety, but the purpose was not explained to him, it was held that he was liable only for the balance then actually due, subject to an account of payments subsequently made to the bankers by his principals. Walker v. Hardman, 11 Bli. N. S. 229.

In debt upon a bond given by a surety for the due performance of his duties by a collector of taxes, it was held, 1st, that such bond being given to the commissioners was good, although conditioned to pay the monies collected to the receiver-general and to the commissioners, notwithstanding the latter are required by the statute to pay over such monies to the receiver; 2dly, that payment of monies collected in one year to the account of a different year, in order to cover deficiencies, was a breach of the condition duly to pay over, &c.; 3dly, that the sale of the lands and goods of the defaulter, was a condition precedent to any action against the surety, (diss. Abinger, L. C. B., and Parke, B.), but that to make such condition available, the surety is bound to aver and prove notice to the commissioners, or that they had knowledge of the existence of such lands, &c. (diss. Denman, L. C. J., and Williams, J.); and, lastly, that upon the plea of general performance by the principal, one of the breaches being the failure to pay on the days and times appointed by the Act (which in fact did not appoint any, but empowered the receiver to do so), it would be presumed that the receiver had appointed days for such payment. Gwynne v. Burnell, 2 Sc. 16.

This judgment was reversed on error, in Dom. Pr., the Judges differing as to whether the property of the principal which only came to the knowledge of the commissioners, or the whole, was to be exhausted before the surety could be called upon; but the defendant having joined issue upon that plea (which would have been a good defence), in a manner which rendered it an immaterial one, and upon which he could not have judgment, and the plaintiff not being entitled to judgment, non obst. verec., the House reversed simpliciter the former judgment. Gwynne v. Burnell, 1 Sc. N. S. 711; and 6 Bing. N. C. 453.

In an action against a surety on a contract for works, to be paid for as the work proceeded, the contractor becoming bankrupt, and having received advances beyond what he was entitled to under the contract, and for which extra advances security had been taken, it was held that, in respect of the latter, the surety was not liable for the loss sustained by the non-fulfilment of the works. Warre v. Calvert, 2 N. & P. 126.

A. joins with B. as his surety in a joint note for money advanced by the payee to B.; an indorsement by the payee (since deceased) of the receipt of the money, and that it was money advanced to B., is evidence for A. in an action against B. for the money. Davies v. Humphries, C. M. & W. 153.

(Discharge of, p. 1064.)

Plea, to debt on bond, conditioned for the trustee of a bankrupt's estate in Scotland, appointed by the commissioners, faithfully, &c., that by the neglect of the obligees for thirteen years, and connivance, they had caused and permitted the trustee's default, but of which averment there was no proof; held that the defendant was not discharged: reversing the judgment below. M'Taggart v. Watson, 3 Cl. & Fi. 525.

J. H., being indebted on simple contract to W., prevailed on his father to execute a bond for the payment within four years, within which period the father died, and W. obtained from the son and representative of the father, a fresh bond for payment by yearly instalments: upon a creditor's suit for administering the father's estate, W. having claimed to come in upon the original bond, which he had retained, it was held, that the second bond was to be presumed to be a satisfaction of the first, and that the father was to be considered only as surety for the son, and that by giving time to the principal debtor, the creditor had discharged the surety. Clarke v. Henty, 3 Younge & C. 187.

On a bill for an injunction to stay proceedings at law against the sureties in a bond given by the principal on a contract for works, alleging that the defendants, by making advances beyond the value of the work done, had varied to the prejudice of the sureties, it was held that the sureties were thereby released, and entitled to have the injunction made perpetual. Calvert v. London Dock Co., 2 Keene, 638.

SURRENDER, p. 1067.

Where it was shown to be the practice in the office of the bishop's steward to have old leases returned, before a renewal or re-grant, a lease produced with the seals torn off, was held to be admissible in evidence, as a foundation for the jury to presume a surrender, by operation of law, of the former lease. Walker v. Richardson, 2 M. & W. 882.

TAXES.

(Land Tax.)

The plaintiff, being vicar of E., and owner and occupier of the vicarial tithes, and being also occupier of the rectorial tithes, which belonged to B., and on which the land tax had been redeemed, was assessed to the land tax in a gross sum for vicarial and rectorial tithes. The whole sum, up to the quarter-day last past, being demanded by defendant, who was collector, the plaintiff refused to pay the sum at which the rectorial tithes had been redeemed, but paid the residue of the assessment. The collector distrained on him, under stat. 38 G. 3, c. 5, s. 17, for the amount withheld. The distress warrant did not specify the property. Held, that the distress was illegal, as being for a sum not due, and because the assessment should have separated the tithes belonging to different proprietors, under stat. 20 G. 3, c. 17, s. 3. That trespass lay for the distress, and that the plaintiff was not bound to appeal, under the sect. 8 of stat. 38 G. 3, c. 5. And that the demand having been for the sum alleged to be due for a quarter then expired, the defendant could not justify the distress by showing that a sum was due at the expiration of the current quarter for vicarial tithes, which would cover the sum distrained for. Charlton v. Alway, 11 Ad. & Ell. 993.

As to collectors' bonds, see Gwynne v. Burnell, 1 Scott, N. S. 711.

TENDER.

(When sufficient, p. 1067.)

If a tender be made by a cheque contained in a letter requesting a receipt in return, and the plaintiff sends back the cheque, and, without objecting to the nature of the tender, demands a larger sum, it is a good tender. Jones v. Arthur, 8 Dowl. 442.

"I am instructed by the defendant, to say that 15 l. is more than is due, but that you may have it," is a good tender, the money being produced. Thorpe v. Burgess, 8 Dowl. 693.

A witness tells the plaintiff that he comes with the amount of D.'s bill, the plaintiff says he will not take it, that it is not his bill; the witness swears that he offered it as the amount of the bill: this is a good tender, the plaintiff might have accepted the amount without admitting that no more was due. Henwood v. Oliver, 1 G. & P. 25; qu. as to Sutton v. Hawkins, 8 C. & P. 259.

Though a party tendering money, demand a receipt for the sum tendered, if no objection be made on that account, the tender is good. Richardson v. Jackson, 9 Dowl. 715.

Where the plaintiff's attorney wrote to the defendant, that unless the debt and charge of the letter were paid at his office by ——— next, at 12 o'clock, proceedings would be commenced, and before that day an agent tendered the debt at the office, to a person who refused to receive it unless the charge for the letter was also paid, it was held to be a good tender. (Parke B. dub.) Kirton v. Braithwaite, 3 Cr. M. & R. 310.

Where the defendant's attorney tendered a sum, saying, "I tender you £.——, for your claim on M.," which the plaintiff refused to accept in discharge of his bill; and the former again said, "I tender you £.——;" the tender was held to be unconditional and sufficient. Jennings v. Major, 8 C. & P. 62.

A sum tendered, if the party will take it in full of the demand, is insufficient. Gordon v. Cox, 7 C. & P. 172.

Where the words of the tender were, "I have called to tender £.——, in settlement of R.'s bill," it was held, that it was for the jury to say if the offer was conditional or not. Eckstein v. Reynolds, 2 Nev. & P. 256.

(Pleading.)

To an action by payee against maker of a promissory note for 15*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* payable on demand, the defendant pleaded as to 3*l.* parcel, &c., a set-off at the time of demand. And as to 12*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* residue, &c., a tender of that sum, at the time of demand. The replication to the first plea denied the set-off at the time of the commencement of the suit: to the second plea, that before the making of the tender, the sum of 15*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* including the said sum of 12*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* was due upon the note, which sum the plaintiff demanded, but the defendant refused to pay the same, and that no set-off, or other just cause existed for the non-payment; held, that the replication was good. Cotton v. Godwin, 9 Dowl. 763.

(Costs.)

In debt for a sum above 20*l.*, the defendant pleaded a tender as to part, and nunquam indebitatus as to the residue. The plaintiff confessed the tender, and obtained a verdict for 13*l.*, which, together with the sum tendered, exceeded 20*l.*; held, that the plaintiff was only entitled to costs upon the lower scale. Dixon v. Walker, 8 Dowl. 887.

THREATS.

Upon an indictment for threatening to accuse of an infamous crime, the jury may take into their consideration, in reference to the expressions used before obtaining the money, if those expressions are equivocal, what was said afterwards by the prisoner relating thereto, when in custody. R. v. Kain, 8 C. & P. 187.

On an indictment under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, for threatening to accuse; it was held, that the words were not confined to an accusing by course of law, but were to be taken to mean, threatening to charge before any third person. R. v. Robinson, 2 M. & Rob. 14.

Where the threat was to accuse "of having taken indecent liberties," it was held not to be within 7 Will. 4, and 1 Vict. c. 87, s. 4, under which the threat must be to accuse of having committed the complete crime; but the prosecutor having parted with his money under the combined fear of personal violence and of the attack on his character, it was held to be not the less a robbery, because, in addition to the violence, there was the threat to accuse. R. v. Norton, 8 C. & P. 671.

Where the prisoner was indicted and convicted in the common form for robbery from the person, and it appeared that the property had been obtained under threats of charging the prosecutor with an infamous offence, it was held that such conviction was wrong, for as the stat. 7 W. 4, and 1 Vict. c. 87, created the obtaining property by means of such threats a distinct offence, it could no longer be charged as robbery under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29. R. v. Henry, 2 Moody, 118; and 9 C. & P. 309.

It is for the jury to say whether the terms of the letter amount to threats within the statute. R. v. Tyler, 1 Ry. & M. 428.

Sending a letter to A. B. threatening to burn a house of which he is owner, but let by him to and occupied by a tenant, is not an offence within the 4 Geo. 4, c. 54, s. 3. R. v. Burridge, 2 M. & R. 296.

TIME.

(Calculation exclusive, when, p. 1073.)

The rule is inflexible to construe "ten days' notice at least," to mean ten clear days. Mitchell v. Foster, 4 P. & D. 150; see also in the matter of Prangley, 4 Ad. & Ell. 781; 6 N. & M. 421; Blunt v. Heslop, 3 N. & P. 553; R. v. Jus. of Salop, 8 Ad. & Ell. 173. And where a clear ten days' summons is required to warrant a conviction, a conviction upon a shorter summons is without jurisdiction. Mitchell v. Foster, supra.

Under the 3 Geo. 4, c. 39, s. 1, which requires that every warrant of attorney to confess judgment, shall be filed "within twenty-one days after the execution," a warrant executed on the 9th day of the month may be filed on the 30th. Williams v. Burgess, 9 Dowl. 544.

A rule to plead was entered at the Rule-office on the 23d of May at three o'clock in the afternoon; on the same evening at six o'clock, a declaration and demand of plea were delivered to the defendant; on the 28th at half past eleven o'clock in the morning, the plaintiff signed judgment for want of a plea; held, that the judgment was regular. Chapman v. Davis, 8 Dowl. 831.

An order was obtained upon terms of seven days' time to plead; held, that the seven days commenced from the date of the order, and not from the expiration of the four days in which he was originally required to plead. Simpson v. Cooper, 2 Sc. 840.

The six days, in the case of notice of moving for the writ to remove an order of justices, under 13 Geo. 2, c. 18, s. 5, are to be reckoned one day inclusively and one exclusively. R. v. Goodenough, 2 Ad. & Ell. 463.

A party obtaining a Judge's order should serve it "forthwith;" that is, before the opposite party is entitled to take a fresh step. Kenny v. Hutchinson, 8 Dowl. 171.

A clause giving an appeal required the party to enter into a recognizance "forthwith;" it was held to mean "without unreasonable delay," and that a delay of nine days after notice of appeal, was not a sufficient compliance with the Act. R. v. Worcester Justices, 7 Dowl. 789.

In an action on an attorney's bill, the day on which it is delivered is not to be reckoned as one of the days of the month given to the client by the statute. Blunt v. Heslop, 9 Dowl. 982.

In a notice of action against a magistrate under the 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, s. 1, the time must be computed exclusive both of the day of giving notice and of the day of bringing the action. Young v. Higgon, 8 Dowl. 212.

By an agreement of reference to arbitrators with power to appoint an umpire, it was covenanted that the umpire should make his award two calendar months after his appointment. He was appointed on the 29th of June, and afterwards the time for making his award was enlarged by consent for three months further. The Court held, that the 29th of June was to be excluded from the calculation of time, and therefore that the award being made on the 29th of November, was made in due time. In re Higham and Jessop, 9 Dowl. 203.

Where the will appointed a person executor, provided he should apply for probate within three calendar months after the death of the testator, it was held that the day of the death was excluded. Wilmot, in the goods of, 1 Curt. 1.

Property is to be transferred to a party when she attains her 25th year; it is to be transferred when she becomes 24 years old. Grant v. Grant, 4 Younge & Cr. 256.

Goods were sold on the 5th October, to be paid for in two months; an action cannot be brought till after the 5th of December. Webb v. Fairmaner, 3 M. & W. 473.

And it seems that now the general rule is, that in giving notice, the day of giving the notice is to be excluded. R. v. Justices of Cumberland, 4 N. & M. 378; Pellew v. Inhabitants of Wonsford, 2 B. & C. 134; Lester v. Garland, 15 Ves. jun. 248; Hardy v. Ryle, 9 B. & C. 603; 4 M. & R. 295.

The rule laid down in Pellew v. Inhabitants of Wonsford, is (per Alderson, J.) a very excellent criterion, viz, to reduce the time to one day, and see whether you do not obtain an absurdity except by extending the first day.

(Day, Fraction of, p. 1079.)

Where a defendant died between eleven and twelve o'clock in the morning, and a writ of fi. fa. was sued out against his goods between two and three o'clock the same day, the Court set the writ aside as irregular. Chick v. Smith, 8 Dowl. 337.

(Evidence of—Fiat, p. 1079.)

The time of delivering out a fiat in bankruptcy as an operative instrument, is "the date and issuing," within 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29; and primâ facie the time of delivering it out of the Bankrupt-office is that time. Pewtress v. Arman, 9 Dowl. 828.

(Date, p. 1079.)

In an action by assignees for goods sold, &c., the defendant offered in evidence an account stated and settled, showing a balance to the defendant, and which was dated prior to the bankruptcy; held, that it was to be presumed to have been written at the time it bore date, and that it was properly received in evidence; if the fact were otherwise, or the paper a fraudulent contrivance, it was open for the plaintiff to show it. Sinclair v. Baggaley, 4 M. & W. 312.

Since the new rules the writ of trial is conclusive of the date of the writ of summons, and cannot be contradicted at the trial; although where there has been a mistake, the Court will allow the writ of trial to be amended. Whipple v. Manley, 1 M. & W. 432.

(Time of making an Appointment, &c. p. 1079.)

Where justices met in petty sessions to appoint overseers in due time after the 25th of March, pursuant to the 54 Geo. 3, c. 91, and in consequence of a difficulty with respect to certain appointments, they adjourned the consideration of those appointments to a day more than fourteen days from the 25th of March, an appointment made with respect to them, on such day of adjournment, was held to be good, as the sessions had become possessed of the subject-matter; and other appointments made for the same township, by other justices, within fourteen days after the 25th March, were held to be invalid. R. v. Sneyd, 9 Dowl. 1001.

Where the councillors of a borough did not immediately after the first election of aldermen, appoint who should go out of office in the year 1838, as required by 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 25, but delayed such appointment until the 29th October 1838, it was held that such delay vitiated the election of the aldermen chosen to succeed the aldermen so appointed to go out of office. R. v. Alderson, 1 G. & D. 429.

(Sundays and Holidays, p. 1079.)

In assumpsit for goods sold and delivered, plea, a sale on Sunday; replication, the subsequent retainer of the goods, whereby the defendant became liable to pay for them on a quantum valebant; the replication was held to be bad, on demurrer, no subsequent promise being alleged after such retainer. Simpson v. Nicholls, 6 Dowl. 355; and 3 M. & W. 240.

The law of Scotland prohibiting all work on Sundays, "except works of necessity and mercy," a master (a barber) cannot employ his apprentice in shaving his customers on any part of that day; and by a covenant in the indenture by the apprentice not to absent himself on "holidays or week days without leave," the term holiday does not apply to Sunday, but to other days, directed to be kept as holidays in Scotland. Phillips v. Innes, 4 Cl. & Fi. 234. Reversing the judgment below.

TITHES.

See as to time of claim, &c., stat. 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 100.

(Title to, p. 1080.)

A conveyance is of a house and land, "with all profits, hereditaments and appurtenances to the said premises belonging," the grantor having acquired at the time of the execution of the deed both the land and the tithes; held, 1st, that the tithes were not extinguished by the unity of possession; and, 2dly, that the word hereditaments being bound down by "belonging and appertaining to the said premises," passed only what was appurtenant to the land, which could not be predicated of tithes, and that in the absence of sufficient words appropriate to the transfer of tithes, they did not pass. Chapman v. Gatcombe, 2 Bing. N. C. 516; and 2 Sc. 738.

Where the ancient documents only showed an endowment of the vicarage, but not its character or extent, and the ecclesiastical survey recognised "privy tithes" as well as small tithes, but a subsequent terrier mentioned privy tithes in contradistinction to tithes in general, as payable to the vicar, and he had always received payments denominated privy tithes, it was held, that under such description, he was entitled to the small tithes. Hall v. Godson, 2 Younge, 153.

An ancient document, in the nature of a terrier, produced from the proper custody and under the proper authority, although without date, and signed by various persons, without designating their character, is admissible. Hall v. Farmer, 2 Younge, 145.

In a suit for tithe of oysters landed on a perch within a parish, the omission to rate property so situated, is insufficient evidence of its not being within the parish. Perrott v. Bryant, 2 Younge & C. 61.

The mere nonpayment of tithes is not a sufficient answer to the claim by a lay impropriator, against whom there can be no prescription in non decimando. Andrews v. Drever, 2 Sc. 1.

Where the evidence of money payments extended to the reign of C. 1, but more ancient documents made no mention of them, it was held that the origin of such payments was to be deemed subsequent to the time of legal memory, and an account was decreed. Lord Graves v. Fisher, 3 Cl. & Fi. 1; and 8 Bli. N. S. 937. Affirming the judgment below.

Where the defence set up was a distinct modus paid to the rector (the lord of the manor receiving the tithes from the terre tenants), which was proved to have been paid from the year 1690, and probably from an earlier period, under the name sometimes of "seizin or modus," and in some cases as "a rent," it was held that the prescription not being illegal, but improbable, and there being evidence of payment of some tithes within the district, the prescription going with tithes, and the evidence tending rather to show a lease and usurpation on the part of the lord, against ecclesiastical persons under his control and influence as patron, it was held, that such prescription was not made out, and an account was decreed. Knight v. Marquis of Waterford, 4 Younge & Co. 283.

A modus in lieu of tithes is inconsistent with the receipt of tithes in kind by another. Ib.

The rankness of a modus is not strictly an objection to it in point of law, but only a ground upon which the Court will determine, from the gross absurdity that any such bargain should ever have been made. Ib.

The reasonableness of a custom to set out for tithe every tenth turnip, instead of every tenth heap, depends upon the fact whether the parson has thereby an opportunity of seeing it set out fairly, and was disallowed. Clarke v. Clarke, 2 Younge & Co. 245.

Where at the time of the sale of an advowson, it was only voidable by reason of the incumbent having been instituted to another benefice, it was held that the right of presentation passed under the conveyance, and that the presentee of the vendee was therefore entitled to the tithes. Alston v. Atlay, 6 Nev. & M. 686. This case was reversed in the Exchequer Chamber, and removed into the House of Lords; but an arrangement having been made, was not argued there.

Upon an issue whether a farm modus was payable for a particular farm, it was held that a former occupier, who had always paid a sum as a modus, could not be admitted to prove what he had heard his father, who had also occupied the farm, say respecting it; as this would be evidence of reputation of a mere fact only. Wells v. New College, Oxford, 7 C. & P. 284.

See as to the recovery of tithes of small amount, 4 & 5 Vict. c. 36; as to the recovery of tithes from Quakers, 4 & 5 Vict. c. 37; Tithe Commutation Acts, 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 71; 1 Will. 4; and 1 Vict. c. 69.

TOLL.

The waggons of a wharfinger carrying goods brought by a canal to the defendants, the consignees, and in return collecting goods to carry to the wharf, are not stage-waggons within the meaning of a proviso in a local Turnpike Act, that, inter alia, stage-waggons conveying goods for hire should pay toll every time of passing and repassing. Semble, the description applies only to conveyances which carry goods, &c. for hire from one fixed point to another. R. v. Ruscoe, 3 N. & P. 428.

Bones uncrushed, carried to the plaintiff's farm to be there crushed for the purpose of manure, were held to be manure within the exemption from toll under 3 Geo. 4. c. 126, s. 32, and 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 18, s. 1. Pratt v. Brown, 8 C. & P. 244.

Where the tolls were fixed gross sums for given distances, it was held that the principle of rating parishes through which the navigation passed was by a mileage calculation, and, the repairs being equal throughout the line, that the deduction from the gross receipts was to be in the same proportion, and a further deduction of 10 per cent. for tenants' profits. R. v. Woking, 5 Nev. & M. 395. And see R. v. Kingswinford, 7 B. & Cr. 236; and R. v. Trustees of the Duke of Bridgewater, 9 B. & Cr. 68.

Where the toll was clearly imposed on the horses drawing the carriage, and by a subsequent section it was provided that no person should pay more than once in a day for passing or repassing with the same horses or carriage, but that every person having paid toll once and producing a ticket, should pass, with the same horses and carriage, toll-free during that day, it was held that the latter clause did not control the previous one, which was clear, and that a stage-coach which had paid the toll, but changed horses before arriving at the next gate, was liable to a second toll. Hopkins v. Thorogood, 2 B. & Ad. 916.

TRAVERSE.

If a person be indicted for a misdemeanor, and it be a different misdemeanor from that for which he has been committed or held to bail, he is entitled to traverse, although he has been committed or bailed more than twenty days. R. v. Howell, 9 C. & P. 437.

TREASON, p. 1095.

An objection to a witness on the score of misdescription, must be taken in the first instance. R. v. Watson, 2 Starkie's C. 158.

The description of a witness as of the parish of W., in the borough of W., was held sufficient, although the parish extended far beyond the bounds of the borough. R. v. Frost. 2 Mo. 147.

But where the description was of C., in the parish of L., and there were two places named C., and the witnesses lived between both, it was held insufficient. Ibid. 151.

And where the witness was well described as of the parish of W., in the county of M., "sometimes abiding at the house of his son J., in the parish of B., in the said county," it was held, that although the former part of the description, standing alone, would have been good, yet that the description of the son being incorrect, it vitiated the whole. S. C. 9 C. & P. 151.

A witness is described as lately abiding at a specified place; it appears on the voir dire that he had a later and different place of residence; the description is not sufficient. R. v. Watson, 2 Starkie's C. 116.

On a trial for high treason it was objected, after the jury had been charged with the prisoner, but before the first witness was examined, that the prisoner had had no list of witnesses delivered to him under the stat. 7 Anne, c. 21. It appeared that the indictment was found on the 11th of December, and that on the 12th of December a copy of it, and of the panel of the jurors intended to be returned by the sheriff, were delivered to the prisoner, and that on the 17th of December the list of witnesses was delivered to him. The prisoner was arraigned on the 31st of December. The objection to the delivery of the list of witnesses was, that the copy of the indictment and the lists of jurors and witnesses should have been all delivered at the same time, simul et semel; it was held, by a majority of the Judges, nine to six, that the delivery of the list of witnesses was not a good delivery in point of law; but it was held, by a majority of nine to six, that the objection to the delivery of the list of witnesses was not made in due time; and the Judges agreed that if the objection had been made in due time, the effect of it would have been a postponement of the trial, in order to give time for a proper delivery of the list. R. v. Frost, 9 C. & P. 162; 2 Moody, C. C. 140.

On a trial for high treason, any objection to the description of the witness in the list of witnesses must be taken on the voir dire, and comes too late after the witness is sworn in chief. Ibid. 9 C. & P. 183.

(Proof of the Crime.)

In a case of high treason or conspiracy, the prosecutor may either prove the conspiracy which renders the acts of the co-conspirators admissible in evidence, or he may prove the acts of the different persons, and thus prove the conspiracy: therefore, in a case of high treason, where it appeared that a party met, which was joined by the prisoner on the next day, the counsel for the prosecution was allowed to ask what directions one of the party gave on the day of their meeting as to where they were to go, and for what purpose. R. v. Frost, 9 C. & P. 149.

Where the treason charges an insurrection, it is necessary to show that there was force accompanying it, and that the object of it was of a general nature; and the onus of showing the object and meaning of the acts done lies on the prosecutors, and not on the prisoner. Ibid. 129.

In a case of high treason, evidence had been given for the prosecution that an armed party attacked the W. hotel, in which the magistrates and troops were stationed. To show that the intention of the party was not treasonable, but was merely to procure the release of certain prisoners, a witness was called to prove that on the party arriving at the hotel gate, they were asked by a special constable what they wanted, when one of them answered, "surrender up your prisoners:" it was proposed to call evidence in reply to show that that was not said at the hotel gate; held, that this was properly evidence in reply. Ibid. 159.

The Crown cannot recall witnesses to contradict matters offered in defence, unless they arise ex improviso, and the facts be new and which the Crown could not foresee; and then the evidence in reply must be confined to such matter only. Ibid. 160.

If, in an indictment for treason, it be stated as an overt act that the prisoner discharged at the Sovereign a pistol loaded with powder and a certain bullet, and thereby made a direct attempt on the life of the Sovereign, the jury must be satisfied that the pistol was a loaded pistol; that is, that there was something in it beyond the powder and wadding; but it seems that it is not necessary for them to be satisfied that it was actually loaded with that which is generally known by the name of a bullet. R. v. Oxford, 9 C. & P. 525.

TRESPASS.

(Variance, p. 1099.)

The plaintiff was possessed of a plot of ground called Hall Close, to which he added a strip of land from an adjoining highway, which was known by the name of Cow Lane; in an action to recover damages for a trespass committed on the newly inclosed land, it was held that it was properly described in the declaration as Hall Close. Brownlow v. Tomlinson and others, 8 Dowl. 827; 1 Scott's N. S. 426.

A description of the L. I. Q. as part of the sea beach, lying between high and low water mark, and abutting landward on five closes specified, is disproved by evidence of a waste strip of shingle, no part of the sea beach, intervening between their abuttals and the L. I. Q. Webber v. Richards, 1 G. & D. 114.

(Possession, p. 1099.)

Upon the expiration of the tenancy, the tenant is bound to give up the entire possession, unless by the custom he is entitled to hold over any part; which custom it lies on him to prove. Where the custom was to have one-third on tillage, which the tenant was entitled to hold until the harvest, and also, if there were an excess, when it was divided, and it was not clear whether a whole field was an excess or not, and the tenant might have a lien for the expenses of sowing; it was held that the outgoing tenant was entitled to maintain trespass for cutting and taking away the corn. Caldecot v. Smythies, 7 C. & P. 808.

A verbal permission by the landlord to sow beyond the one-third, would be good as against him and his in-coming tenant. Griffith v. Tombs, 7 C. & P. 810.

Where overseers enclosed common lands for the use of the poor, it was held that they might maintain trespass against a stranger and wrong-doer, although they had not obtained the consent of the lord, as required by 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 2, to perfect their title. Mayson v. Cook, 4 Bing. N. C. 392; 6 Scott, 179.

(Joint Trespass, p. 1104.)

In trespass against several, the plaintiff proved acts by two defendants only on one day, and acts by all on another day; the plaintiff, although he elected to rely on the former trespasses, may prove also other trespasses against those two, but cannot, it seems, recover as against them for trespasses in which they were implicated with others: where the defendants had pleaded specially, those against whom the plaintiff has abandoned his case are not entitled to acquittal, until the issue on those pleas is disposed of, as they might, by the new rules of pleading, be still subject to the costs of the special pleas. Hitchen v. Teale, 2 Mo. & R. 30.

The plaintiff, a sailor, lodged with one of the defendants, an innkeeper, and whilst in a state of intoxication the other defendant desired a party to take out what money he had in his pocket, which the other received, desiring the plaintiff to be told when he awoke that his money was lost, although he was afterwards told it was all right, and he desired 1*l.* of it to be given to a female, which was done, and the next morning the defendant, the landlord, offered him a small balance, after deducting his demand for lodging, &c.; held, that the one directing the money to be taken and the other taking advantage of it as soon as done, they were jointly liable in trespass, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover back the whole sum taken, minus the 1*l.* directed by him to be given. Peddell v. Rutter, 8 C. & P. 337.

Trespass for an expulsion by A. B. and C.; A. pleads not guilty, B. and C. admit the expulsion, but pay 20*s.* into Court, and plead that no greater damages had been sustained; if the jury (the 20*s.* being found by them to be a sufficient compensation for the expulsion, and being received from A.'s co-defendants) find A. to have sanctioned the expulsion, he is liable only to nominal damages. Walker v. Woolcott, 8 C. & P. 352.

Trespass is maintainable against husband and wife for their joint act. Vine v. Saunders, 4 Bing. N. C. 96; 3 Sc. 359; and 6 Dowl. 233.

(Assault, Proof of, p. 1104.)

In trespass for assault, and threatening to shoot the plaintiff with a pistol loaded with powder and ball, it appearing that the defendant was commander, and the plaintiff a mariner on board a ship, and that whilst the latter was fighting with another person, the defendant had laid his hands on the plaintiff to restrain him, and threatened, &c. for the preservation of discipline and order on board, it was held, that the plaintiff was bound to prove the allegation of the pistol being loaded, and that unless it was, there could be no assault; so, if at the time of presenting, the defendant added words showing he had no intention of shooting. Blake v. Barnard, 9 C & P. 626.

(When the proper Form of Action, p. 1108.)

The action for seduction of the plaintiff's servant may be either in case or trespass. Chamberlain v. Hazlewood, 5 M. & W. 315; and 7 Dowl. 816.

Case does not lie for arresting a plaintiff whilst attending as a witness on a trial. Stokes v. White, 1 C. M. & R. 223; and malice makes no difference as to the form of action. See Newton v. Constable, 1 G. & D. 408.

(By Agent, p. 1109.)

In trespass and false imprisonment against the Marshal of the Queen's Bench, proof was given that the act was done by the direction of the deputy marshal, but there was no evidence of the appointment of that person; held, that it was insufficient unless the defendant was proved to be cognisant of the acts of the deputy marshal. York v. Chapman, 3 P. & D. 496; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 813.

(Damages, p. 1114.)

In trespass for removing the plaintiff's soil, the measure of damages is not what it would cost to restore the premises to their former state, but what is the actual loss to the plaintiff. Jones v. Gooday, 8 M. & W. 146. Case of Regent's Canal Co. cited by Alderson. Ib.

If a trespasser let in the sea on the land of another, the land being worth 20 l., he is not to pay the expense of restoration by an engineering process. Per Alderson, B. Ib.

In trespass, the question of damages is peculiarly for the jury, they are not bound to weigh very accurately the quantum of damage sustained from a trespass. Lockley v. Pye, 8 M. & W. 133.

In trespass for breaking a dwelling-house, and assaulting and imprisoning, &c.; pleas, 1. not guilty; 2. justification under a ca. sa. except as to the breaking, &c., alleging the outer door to have been open; replication, de injuriâ; held that the outer door being open, being a condition precedent to the defendant's right to enter and arrest, it was a material averment, and that the plea was sufficiently traversed by the general replication. Secondly, it being proved that the defendants broke open the outer door, and so were trespassers ab initio, the Judge properly directed the jury that they might give damages in respect of the whole injury complained of. Kirbey v. Denby, 3 Cr. M. & R. 336.

In trespass for an assault, the defendant is entitled to offer in mitigation the publication of a libel upon him by the plaintiff; but the defendant having brought an action for such libel, he ought to derive no advantage from it in diminution of damages; held also, that the work of the defendant, on which the libel was a criticism, need not be read, but that the plaintiff might in reply read parts of the work as part of his speech, to show that the criticism was fair. Frazer v. Berkeley, 7 C. & P. 621.

In trespass for false imprisonment, by giving plaintiff in charge of a peace officer, the defendant, in mitigation of damages, may show the previous annoying conduct of the plaintiff towards him. Thomas v. Powell, 7 C. & P. 807.

(Defence—General Issue, p. 1117.)

Where in trespass, quare clausum fregit, the defendant pleads the general issue, intending to give the special matter in evidence by virtue of an Act of Parliament, if the jury find less than 40*s.* damages the plaintiff is entitled to costs, unless the defendant in pleading the general issue has inserted in the margin of the plea "by statute," pursuant to the rule of T. T. 1 Vict. Jones v. Thomas, 8 Dowl. 99.

And the Judges having, by 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, power to regulate the practice and pleading of the Courts, the non-compliance with such rule, precludes the defendant from giving special matter of defence in evidence under that plea. Bartholomew v. Carter, 9 Dowl. 896.

In trespass for taking goods as a distress for poor-rates, notwithstanding the new rules, the whole defence, and consequently that the goods were not the plaintiff's goods, may be gone into under the general issue. Haine v. Davey, 6 N. & M. 356; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 892.

(Plea, admission by.)

Trespass for assault on the plaintiff's wife, the defendant pleaded that the person assaulted was not the wife; held, not to involve an admission of battery on the record, or to prevent the effect of the Judge's certificate for costs under 43 Eliz. c. 6. Wilson v. Lainson, 3 Bing. N. C. 307; 3 Sc. 670; and 5 Dowl. 307.

(Lib. Tenementum, p. 1123.)

The plea of liberum tenementum admits the plaintiff's possession, and renders it incumbent on the defendant to prove title, either by deed or by showing twenty years' actual possession. Grice v. Lever, 9 Dowl. 246.

The plea is not supported by evidence of acts of ownership for a period less than twenty years, where the estates, previously to and during that period, were shown to have been in a third party. Brest v. Lever, 7 M. & W. 593.

(Denial of possession of Property, &c., p. 1127.)

Trespass for assault and battery; plea, that the defendant was in possession of a dwelling-house, and that the plaintiff disturbed him, and entered into it, wherefore, &c.; it appeared from the evidence that the defendant merely lodged in one room, the landlord keeping the key of the outer door; held, that the replication putting the whole plea in issue, the plea was not sustained by the evidence. Monks v. Dykes, 4 M. & W. 567.

Plea, in trespass for entering the plaintiff's house and taking his goods, that the house was not the house of the plaintiff, nor the goods his: on the trial, the jury found that certain parts of the goods only belonged to the plaintiff: held, that the issue as to the property in the goods was divisible, and the postea was ordered to be amended, as to the goods found not to be his. Routledge v. Abbott, 3 N. & P. 560.

On issue joined upon the plea of not possessed, in trespass quare clausum fregit, the defendant may use as evidence the deposition of a witness, formerly called by the plaintiff to prove his possession in a proceeding before justices for an alleged trespass on the same close. It makes no difference that the witness is still alive. Cole v. Hadley, 11 A. & E. 807.

Trespass for throwing down a wall; plea, first, that it was not the plaintiff's wall; secondly, that it was a party-wall, which latter issue was found for the defendant; he is entitled also to a verdict on the first. Marley v. M' Dermott, 3 N. & P. 356.

Upon a justification, in trespass, of force to remove the plaintiff from the defendant's house, when making a noise and disturbance, and replication, de injuriâ; held, 1st, that the general proposition, that motive and intention may be the subject of inquiry on the general traverse, cannot be supported; and 2dly, that the plea not justifying the excess of violence and wounding used towards the plaintiff, she was entitled to a verdict on the general issue. Oakes v. Wood, 2 M. & W. 791; questioning Lucas v. Nockells, 10 Bing. 182.

Plea, that the defendant was lawfully possessed of a dwelling-house, and that the plaintiff unlawfully, in the said house, at the said time when, &c. justifying the removal of the plaintiff after request, &c.; it appeared that the plaintiff had been tenant of apartments in the defendant's house, and continuing in possession after the determination of the tenancy by notice to quit, the defendant had turned the wife of the plaintiff out of possession, using no more force than was necessary to compel her to quit the premises; it was held, that if the entry of the defendant was with such force as to subject him to indictment for a forcible entry, and so his possession obtained by criminal means not lawful, that that point ought to have been expressly put and found by the Judge, (diss. Coltman, J.) Newton v. Harland, 1 Sc. N. S. 474; and 1 M. & Gr. 644.

(De Injuriâ, p. 1131.)

The right to follow goods fraudulently removed to avoid a distress, is one annexed by law to the contract, and de injuriâ is a bad replication to a plea justifying under such right, according to the resolution in Crogate's Case. Bowler v. Nicholson, 4 P. & D. 16.

(Son Assault, p. 1134.)

Where the trespass and assault alleged was, a beating with a bludgeon; and the pleas, as to the assaulting, beating, and ill-treating, first, a justification of molliter manus to remove the plaintiff from the defendant's house; and secondly, son assault demesne, and the Judge directed the jury that the striking with a bludgeon would not be justified on those pleas; it was held to be a misdirection; dub. whether the pleas justifying only the beating were an answer to the aggravated battery laid in the declaration. Oakes v. Wood, 3 M. & W. 150.

(Leave and Licence, p. 1137.)

Goods which were upon the plaintiff's land were sold to the defendant; by the conditions of sale to which the plaintiff was a party, the buyer was to be allowed to enter and take the goods; held, that after the sale, the plaintiff could not countermand the licence. And that the defendant having entered to take, and the plaintiff having brought trespass, and the defendant having pleaded leave and licence and a peaceable entry to take, to which plaintiff replied de injuriâ: the defendant was entitled to the verdict, though it appeared that the plaintiff had, between the sale and the entry, locked the gates and forbidden the defendant to enter, and defendant had broken down the gates and entered to take the goods. Wood v. Manley, 11 A. & E. 34.

Trespass q. c. f.; pleas, freehold in the defendant and leave and licence; replication to the first plea a demise (16 November 1836) by the defendant to the plaintiff; rejoinder denying the demise; an agreement to give up the possession whenever the defendant should require cannot be gone into, but should have been rejoined, nor, as being part of the original bargain, can it be received in support of the plea of leave and licence. Tomkyns v. Lawrence, 8 C. & P. 729.

In trespass for taking the plaintiff's goods, plea, leave and licence; it appeared that the plaintiff, an ignorant young person, on his father's bankruptcy, being told by the commissioners at an examination, the defendant not being present, that the goods were his father's, said, "he would give them up;" the Court granted a new trial, on the ground that the evidence did not sustain the plea. Roper v. Harper, 4 Bing. N. C. 20; and 3 Sc. 250.

Plea, in trespass for entering plaintiff's close, that the plaintiff had entered defendant's close and seized goods against his will, and placed them on the close in the declaration mentioned, and that the defendant made fresh pursuit and entered to retake the goods; held to be a good plea, the plaintiff giving an implied licence to enter for the purpose of recaption. Patrick v. Colerick, 3 M. & W. 483; and see Vin. Abr. tit. Trespass, 1 a.

A party is justified in entering and placing on the plaintiff's close goods wrongfully placed by the plaintiff on the adjoining premises of the defendant. Rea v. Sheward, 2 M. & W. 425.

Premises were surrendered to a trustee for a mortgagee, with power, in default of payment, to sell when the mortgagee should think proper; in trespass against the latter, he pleaded that default was made, and that he entered, but did not allege that it was for the purpose of selling, nor any request made to the trustee; held on demurrer that the deed did not operate as a licence to enter, so as to afford a justification of the trespasses; and leave to amend, by putting on the record a request by the mortgagee, was refused. Watson v. Waltham, 2 Bing. N. C. 485.

(Justification.— Process, p. 1139.)

The serjeant of a court of requests may justify under a warrant for the arrest of a defendant for not paying an instalment directed by the commissioners of a court of requests, although the execution is illegal, not having been awarded by commissioners present in court on proof of the default. Andrews v. Marris, 1 G. & D. 268.

His situation is analogous to that of a sheriff acting under the process of a superior court, Ib.; and see Cotes v. Michill, 3 Lev. 20; Moravia v. Sloper, Willes, 30. Seeus, where the officer joins in pleading with the party. Morse v. James, Willes, 122; Smith v. Boucher, 2 Str. 993; Phillips v. Biron, 1 Str. 509.

But where commissioners entertained a claim of debt against one not resident within their jurisdiction, it was held that the commissioners were liable. Carratt v. Morley, 1 G. &. D. 275. But that the party who had merely stated the facts of the case to the Court were not liable, Ib. And that the officer executing the process would not have been liable had the warrant been perfect in form; but that he was liable, the warrant being void, for not truly describing the Court of Requests, nor following the style and form prescribed by the Act. Ib.

Where the sheriff executed a fi. fa. after notice of the defendant's discharge under the Insolvent Act, it was held, that although the issuing the writ might be irregular, he could not be made a trespasser by obeying it. Whitworth v. Clifton, 1 Mo. & R. 531.

A party cannot justify under a warrant which describes the arrested party by a wrong Christian name. Hoye v. Bush, 2 Scott, N. S. 86.

Under a plea justifying detention by the defendant (the marshal of the King's Bench) for chamber rent, it was held that if proved, the defendant would have been entitled to a verdict; but the evidence being that the rent was demanded in connexion with another claim for fees, &c., the plea failed. Stockdale v. Chapman, 7 C. & P. 363.

Trespass against justices for false imprisonment, upon a conviction under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76; it appeared that the plaintiff had been removed, under sec. 65, by the council from his office of town-crier, and required to deliver up the bell used by him in such office: held that the justices, under sect. 60, had authority to commit the plaintiff for the refusal to deliver up such bell, as in case of any officer originally appointed by the council. Baylis v. Strickland, 1 Sc. N. S. 540; 1 M. & G. 591.

A warrant by commissioners to apprehend a bankrupt, directed to "J. A. and W. S., our messengers, and their assistants," does not justify the apprehension of the bankrupt by a party acting as an assistant, but not in the presence, actual or constructive, of J. A. or W. S., although with the warrant in his possession; and if death had ensued in the attempt to take the bankrupt, the crime would have amounted to no more than manslaughter. R. v. Whalley, 7 C. & P. 245.

Sheriffs' officers, in executing a ca. sa., entered through an opening in the outer wall of the house, leading into a small closet, where was a staircase window roughly boarded up; held, that if such opening had been intended to have had a door or window put therein, it was to be considered as the outer fence, which being open, the defendants might enter; but that if intended to be left open, then that the staircase window was to be deemed the fence of the house, and which the defendants could not justify the breaking of for the purpose of entering. Whalley v. Williamson, 7 C. & P. 294.

The defendant, the mayor of a borough, acting under the 92d section of the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, issued a warrant against the plaintiff, as overseer of a township, part of which was within and part without the borough, to levy the proportion of a borough-rate for that part of the township which was within the borough. In trespass against the mayor for a seizure of the plaintiff's goods under this warrant, it was held that the mayor had no jurisdiction to issue such warrant, and that trespass was the proper remedy. Fernley v. Worthington, 1 Scott, N. S. 432.

To justify a chairman of a meeting in giving a party in charge for disturbing the proceedings, it must be shown that the conduct of the party amounted to a breach of the peace, and mere cries of "hear," or asking questions, and making observations tending to throw ridicule on the meeting, will not be sufficient. Wooding v. Oxley, 9 C. & P. 1.

Where a local waterworks company were authorised to erect works within certain parishes named, making compensation for damages, but were not to deviate from a stated plan, it was held, that damages occasioned by works erected from a point within the plan to a mile beyond it, but within one of the parishes, was within the provision for compensation, and that the Act would be an answer to an action for such damages. R. v. Nottingham Old Waterworks Co., 5 N. & M. 498.

The defendant, an ostler, charged the plaintiff, a cab-driver, with having cruelly ill-used the horse, and gave him in charge to a police-officer; he not being the owner of the horse nor having seen the alleged cruel treatment, is liable for false imprisonment, as he had no right to give the plaintiff in charge, nor would the officer on such a statement have been justified in taking the party into custody of his own authority: held also that the defendant, having no right to apprehend the plaintiff, was not entitled to any notice of action under the 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 59, s. 19. Hopkins v. Crowe, 7 C. & P. 373.

The prosecutor was creating a disturbance and attempting to fight in a public-house, when the defendant interfered, and upon the former attempting to pass into a private parlour, the police, without being desired by the landlord to prevent him, collared him to prevent his so doing, when blows passed on each side; held, that unless the jury were satisfied that a breach of the peace was likely to be committed by the prosecutor in the place where he was going, it was no part of the officer's duty to prevent him entering; and if not, or if more violence was used by the defendant than was necessary, he was liable to be convicted of a common assault. R. v. Mabel, 9 C. & P. 474.

Trespass for an assault on and false imprisonment of the plaintiff, who was liable to be taken by the defendant upon a ca. sa.; held that the defendant having taken him when in custody of his bailiff, upon an unfounded charge of felony, he was liable for the illegal detention. Humphery v. Mitchell, 2 Bing. N. C. 619.

Where the defendant (a private person) had, without a previous application to a magistrate, given the plaintiff into custody on a charge of felony, which was afterwards dismissed on the hearing, it was held, in an action for the imprisonment, that the defendant was bound to show clearly that a felony had been committed, and that the circumstances were such as would induce a reasonable and dispassionate person to suspect the plaintiff guilty thereof. Allen v. Wright, 8 C. & P. 522.

In trespass for shooting a dog, a plea that he was ferocious and had attacked the plaintiff, is not supported where it appeared that the animal, after having attacked the defendant, was running away: the circumstance of the animal being of a ferocious disposition, will not justify the shooting him, unless actually attacking the party at the time. Morris v. Nugent, 7 C. & P. 572.

Where one defendant in an action for trespassing in pursuit of game, justified under the authority of the other, who being owner of the lands, had demised them, with an alleged reservation of the game, and it appeared that the former had been summoned before a magistrate for the trespass, and on being called, the case was dismissed, it was held that the other defendant having never actually entered on the lands, but only given leave to the former to do so, the proceedings before the magistrate, under 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 32, s. 46, were a bar to the action against both. Robinson v. Vaughton & Southwick, 8 C. & P. 252.

Threats of personal violence to the captain will justify the latter in excluding a passenger from the cuddy-table, although it may be difficult to say what degree of discourteous or vulgar behaviour would do so; and where a husband was so excluded, the voluntary withdrawal of the wife, so far as regards the wife, was held not to be a breach of the captain's contract as to the treatment of the passengers. Prendergast v. Compton, 8 C. & P. 454.

Where a police officer, although not present at any assault, afterwards, on the renewal of threats to break into a house forcibly, took the plaintiff into custody at the defendant's instance, and, in an action for the assault and false imprisonment, the defendant pleaded the previous violence, and that he was forced and obliged, "in order to preserve the peace," to give the plaintiff in charge, it was held that such plea was good after verdict. Ingle v. Bell, 1 M. & W. 516; and 1 T. & G. 801.

In an action for false imprisonment against a magistrate and two constables, the notice of action being, of imprisonment in the lock-up house, evidence of what passed before the magistrate is admissible, as part of the alleged illegal transaction; but what was said by the constables before proof of any joint act by the defendants, is not receivable. Edwards v. Ferris & others, 7 C. & P. 542.

Down lands, although private property, but not fenced off, are not "inclosed" lands, within the 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, s. 97. And the surveyor taking materials therefrom without the 'justices' order under s. 98 of that Act, is not liable in trespass. Tapsell v. Crosskey, 7 M. & W. 441.

(Defence—Former Recovery.)

Trespass for breaking, &c. plaintiff's close, and keeping up erections thereon without the plaintiff's licence, he having previously recovered damages with satisfaction in an action for the erecting; this was held to be distinguishable from the payment of the value, as in case of personal chattels, and did not operate as a purchase of the right to continue; and after notice to remove buttresses erected by turnpike trustees on the plaintiff's land, and refusal, a second action may be maintained for continuing the buttresses so erected. Holmes v. Wilson, 10 Ad. & Ell. 503.

(Defect of Fences.)

Plea, in trespass for chasing plaintiff's sheep from a certain close belonging to the defendant into the highway, and leaving them there, that the sheep were doing damage in the said close: replication, that they erred and escaped from the plaintiff's close into the defendant's through defect of defences, which the latter was bound to repair, and issue thereon: held, on a motion in arrest of judgment, that the replication was good, and that it was the defendant's duty to replace the sheep, and not to leave them in the highway, although it might be the proper road for them to return. Carruthers v. Hollis, 3 N. & P. 246.

(New Assignment, p. 1141.)

Trespass for arrest and false imprisonment; plea, a judgment and the taking in execution thereon; replication, new assigning another and different arrest, &c. than that justified; held, that although it was not essentially necessary to prove two arrests, and that it might be sufficient to prove an arrest different in its circumstances from the one pleaded, yet, that where the facts showed the arrest to have been founded on the same writ, such writ having been only altered in consequence of part payment, the jury might presume it to be the same arrest. Darby v. Smith, 2 Mo. & R. 184.

Plea, in trespass q. c. f., that the entry was under a search-warrant for goods clandestinely removed by W. F. to the plaintiff's house to avoid a distress; new assignment, that it was on another occasion, at a different time; to which the defendant pleaded the tenancy of W. F. at the rent of —— l., that one year's rent was due, and that W. F. fraudulently removed the goods as before; held that the new assignment was not an admission of the truth of the matter previously pleaded, which was to be taken to relate to another trespass, and that the defendant was bound to prove the demise at the rent stated, and the rent in arrear, as alleged in the new assignment. Norman v. Wescombe, 2 M. & W. 349.

Costs.

In trespass for an assault and false imprisonment, the defendant pleaded, as to the seizing and laying hold of the plaintiff, that it was done to prevent a breach of the peace. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, with 1 s. damages, and the Judge certified under the 43 Eliz. c. 6, s. 2. Held, that as a battery was admitted on the face of the record, the Judge had no power to certify, and therefore that the plaintiff was entitled to his costs. Scraton v. Taylor and another, 8 Dowl. 110.

The plea, denying the close in which, &c. to be the plaintiff's, was held to bring the title in issue within 22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 9, s. 136, and the plaintiff succeeding, was entitled, although with only one farthing damages, to full costs. Pugh v. Roberts, 6 Dowl. 561.

In trespass, quare clausum fregit, where there are several issues, and amongst them one on the plaintiff's possession of the close, the plaintiff has a right to a trial of all the other issues, although it appears on the opening of the evidence that he was not in possession of the close. Fry v. Monckton, 2 M. & R. 303.

TRIAL.

In a criminal case where the prosecutor has removed the record by certiorari, if the trial be put off by reason of the act of God, the defendant is not liable to the costs of the day. R. v. Barrett, 2 Lew. C. C. 263.

It is in the discretion of the Judge to bail the prisoner or not, when his trial is postponed on account of the absence of the prosecutor. Anon. 2 Lew. C. C. 260.

Where a party was incapacitated from giving evidence by a conviction for bigamy, the Judge allowed a trial for murder to be postponed, in order that, in case of a pardon obtained, the witness might be examined. R. v. Owen, 9 C. & P. 83.

It is competent for the Court to receive the affidavits of persons who swear of their own knowledge to the fact of jurymen misconducting themselves by drawing lots for their verdict, although statements by the jurors themselves could not be received. Harvey v. Hewitt, 8 Dowl. 598.

Where a jury have misconducted themselves in their demeanour during the trial, in such a way as to lead to the presumption that justice has not been properly administered, the Court will grant a new trial. Hughes v. Budd, 8 Dowl. 315.

Motions respecting causes tried by writ of trial must be made on affidavit verifying the Judge's notes, as well where the trial took place before the Judge of an inferior court of record as before the sheriff. Eden v. Bretton, 9 Dowl. 245.

Where a new trial is obtained ex debito justitiæ, on one of several issues, the rule for a new trial re-opens the whole record. Earl of Macclesfield v. Bradley, 7 M. & W. 570.

A notice of countermand given to a defendant residing in the country, whose cause is conducted by an attorney in London only, is insufficient. Margettson v. Rush, 8 Dowl. 388.

(Motion for New Trial, p. 1144.)

Where, from the pressure of business, the intended motions for new trials are put into the usual list to be made after the first four days, it is necessary to give notice to the other side, or judgment signed on the fifth day before the motion is made will be regular. Doe v. Edwards, 7 Dowl. 547.

The motion for a new trial, if made within four days after the return of the distringas, is sufficient, although more than that after the trial. Aymes v. Lettice, 8 Dowl. 202, and 6 M. & W. 216.

(Amount of Damages, &c. p. 1144.)

Where the jury found only 20*s.* damages in a case of slander, although very gross, the Court refused a new trial on the ground of the smallness of the damages. Rendall v. Hayward, 5 Bing. N. C. 424.

Where in trover the jury found for the plaintiff, but accompanied their verdict with a statement in writing, that whether the goods were delivered to the defendant as a loan or gift, they ought to have been returned, which statement the associate refused to receive, it was held that he was right, it amounting to a mere expression of private opinion. Whittett v. Bradford, 5 Sc. 711.

(Reception of Copy, p. 1144.)

Where the copy of an ancient grant in the chartulary of an abbey had been received, among other documents, to establish the antiquity of a weir on a public river, and objection was made to the whole class of evidence (which was afterwards held to have been properly received), and the objection as to the reception of the copy (no search having been first proved to have been made for the original) was not particularly pressed, the Court would not allow it afterwards to prevail, it being one of many other documents which were unquestionable, and its rejection not being sufficient to have varied the verdict. Williams v. Wilcox, 3 Nev. & P. 606. But see Vol. I. p. 532.

No objections can be taken at the trial for defects cured by 7 Geo. 4, c. 64, ss. 20, 21, but only by demurrer. R. v. Law, 2 Mo. & R. 197.

Where a prisoner has been arraigned on several indictments, and tried on one or more which have failed, it is against principle, as holding out a premium for getting fresh evidence, to permit the trial of the remaining ones to be postponed until the next session. R. v. Fuller and Others, 9 C. & P. 35.

TROVER.

(Fixtures, p. 1145.)

Fixtures, parcel of the freehold, although as against the landlord the tenant may have a right to remove them, cannot be deemed recoverable as goods and chattels in trover. Mackintosh v. Trotter, 3 M. & W. 184.

And see Minshull v. Lloyd, 2 M. & W. 450.

(Proof of Title, p. 1146.)

Where a customary heriot of the best beast is due, the property does not vest in the lord previously to selection. Abington v. Lipscombe, 1 G. & D. 230.

A selection of seven, where five only are due, will not vest property in any. Ib.

The plaintiffs were lessees of all mines and minerals under a large tract of waste land called Mold Mountain. In trover for ore wrongfully extracted by the defendant from a spot which the plaintiffs alleged to be part of Mold Mountain, it is not necessary for the plaintiffs to prove the title or seisin of their lessors, but it is enough, as against the defendants, who were wrong-doers, to show a possession and enjoyment by themselves under the lease; and for this purpose, acts of ownership exercised by the plaintiffs, by working mines on other parts of the mountain, are evidence of their right under the spot in question, being part of the waste. Taylor v. Parry, 1 Scott, N. S. 576.

Where large stones (probably fallen from adjoining cliffs, but uncertain when) were embedded in the land of the copyholder at the time of his admission, held that he could not remove them, and that the lord might maintain trover for such as he had removed and sold. Dearden v. Evans, 5 M. & W. 11.

Where a memorandum described the deeds deposited as of "my B. estate," it was held not to include the furniture in the house thereon. Hunt, ex parte, 1 Mont. D. & D. 139.

The plaintiff had authorised a party to purchase a cow, which he had done, but before the cow came to the plaintiff's hands, or she had assented to the purchase, it was taken away by the defendant; by bringing the action the plaintiff elected to take the bargain, and had a sufficient right of property to maintain the action. Thomas v. Philips, 7 C. & P. 573.

(Gift, p. 1148.)

A gift by a father to his son under age, made absolutely and accepted, cannot be reclaimed without the consent of the son. Smith v. Smith, 7 C. & P. 401.

(Bill of Exchange, p. 1149.)

Where a bill drawn by defendant and delivered to the plaintiff was stolen, and with the plaintiff's indorsement forged thereon was paid by the defendant's bankers, and returned to the defendant, it was held, that no title passing by the forgery, the plaintiff was entitled to recover the bill in trover, there being no negligence found on the part of the plaintiff, although six weeks elapsed before the loss was discovered and notice was given to the defendant. Johnson v. Windle, 3 Bing. N. C. 225; and 3 Sc. 606.

A., the drawer, residing abroad, indorsed the bill specially to C. and remitted it to his agent, who got it accepted by the drawees, informed C. that he had been directed to pay her money on account of it, and desired to know how it should be remitted, but whilst the bill remained in the agent's hands, A. desired him not to pay the proceeds, until the accounts of C. had been investigated, and after that to pay what might appear to be due; no such investigation took place, and the agent retained the bill; it was held that no change of the property having taken place, but it still remaining the property of the drawer, C. could not maintain trover for it. Brind v. Hampshire, 1 M. & W. 365.

(Factor, p. 1149.)

The relaxation of the former rule, as to pledges by agents, factors, &c., by 6 Geo. 4, c. 94, s. 2, applies only to cases where the factor is entrusted with the documents as the means of effecting the sale, &c. on behalf of his principal: where, therefore, the bill of lading only was transmitted, upon which the factors, not for the purpose of such sale, &c., but without authority, obtained dock-warrants which they pledged as securities for personal advances, it was held that the principals were entitled, on the factors becoming bankrupt, to recover from the parties with whom the dock-warrants had been pledged, the proceeds of the goods; also, that the amount for which such pledge was made, being in satisfaction of a former debt from the factor, and as it would not have been made except upon the understanding of its being so applied, that it was not an advance within the statute. Phillips v. Huth, 6 M. & W. 572.

Where a factor had goods consigned to him and the bills of lading indorsed, and received the dock-warrants and wharfinger's certificates in his own name, which he pledged for advances on his own account, it was held that the 6 Geo. 4, c. 94, did not extend to documents created by the factor himself, but only to pledges by him of documents entrusted to him by the owner; and that it made no difference that the pledgee knew that the goods were not the property of the factor. Close v. Holmes, 2 Mo. & R. 22.

I., a merchant in Ireland, employed the plaintiffs as his factors at Liverpool, and shipped a full cargo of oats on board a boat, No. 604, and took a boat-receipt or bill of lading from the master, acknowledging the receipt of the oats deliverable in Dublin in care for and to be shipped to the plaintiffs in Liverpool; on the same day I. received from the master of another boat, No. 54, a like receipt, but no part of the cargo was shipped, although prepared for loading, and he wrote to the plaintiffs that he "had valued on them for —— l. against those oats," and enclosing the receipts, and they accordingly accepted the bill, and remitted it to I.; in the meantime the defendant, a creditor of I., pressing him for security, he consented to give an order on his agent in Dublin to deliver the cargo of No. 604; held, that on the acceptance of the bill, the plaintiffs acquired a complete title to the cargo of that boat, but that, as to the second cargo, there being nothing at the time on which the undertaking of the boat-master could operate, and the intended cargo being afterwards otherwise appropriated by I., the plaintiffs could only support trover for the former cargo. Bryant v. Nix, 4 M. & W. 775.

(Sale, p. 1149.)

A sale within the city of London, in an open shop, of goods usually dealt in there, is a sale in market overt, although the premises are described in evidence as a warehouse, and are not sufficiently open to the street for a person on the outside to see what passes within. Lyons v. De Pass, 11 A. & E. 326; 9 C. & P. 68.

Semble, that the master of a ship has authority, when, in consequence of injury to the ship during the voyage, there is no prospect of bringing her to the termination of the voyage, to sell her for the benefit of all parties interested. At all events, where the proceeds of such sale have been received by the owner, that is a sufficient ratification by him of the act of the master in selling her, so as to prevent him from afterwards recovering back the ship from the purchaser or one claiming under him. Hunter v. Parker, 7 M. & W. 322.

So, it is equally a ratification of a sale by an auctioneer, acting under a parol authority from the master. Ib.

And where, under such circumstances, the ship was transferred by an instrument executed by the auctioneer, under seal, but in other respects complying with the requisitions of the Registry Act, 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 55, s. 31, it was held, that the ratification of the owner was sufficient to give validity to the transfer; for that, as the statute does not require a transfer under seal, the instrument might have the effect of a written transfer by the master according to the statute, as well as that of the deed of the auctioneer. Ib.

The purchaser of a vessel under such circumstances cannot set up any defence of lien against an action of trover by the owner. Ib.

The vessel having sprung a leak, put into a foreign port, and the master was advised by the agent of the charterer that he would take charge and do everything necessary for the vessel, but the master consigned her to a party, and then executed a bottomry bond, which was put up to public sale, and purchased by the claimant without inquiry as to the necessity, &c.; held, that the bond being clearly an imposition on the owner, was invalid, and that the purchaser, although bonâ fide, could not recover. Prince of Saxe Coburg, 3 Hagg. 387.

(Lien, p. 1148.)

If the possession of one entitled to a lien be unlawfully determined, the right remains, and trover lies. Dicas v. Stockley, 7 C. & P. 587. A lien is not destroyed, although the debt be barred by the statute of limitations. Spears v. Hartley, 4 Esp. C. 81. Nor although the vendor of the goods recover against the vendee for goods bargained and sold. Houlditch v. Desanges, 2 Starkie's C. 337.

(Demand, p. 1155–1161.)

A written demand by A. B. states that he has the plaintiff's power of attorney to make it; the defendants' attorney, in the presence of the defendants, says he will admit the service of the demand; it is not necessary to produce the power of attorney. Leuckart v. Cooper, 7 C. & P. 119.

(Conversion, p. 1155.)

A count alleging a delivery by Y. of a horse to the defendant, to be kept and delivered by the defendant on the request of Y., and satisfaction of all claims, and stating a request by Y. to the defendant to deliver it to the plaintiff, who paid all claims, and alleging that the defendant wrongfully detained the horse; held bad, in arrest of judgment, the duty arising to deliver to Y. only; and as a refusal is not a conversion in itself, although evidence of it, it could not be taken as a count in trover. Tollit v. Shenstone, 7 Dowl. 457.

In trover for chalk dug from plaintiff's wastes, it appearing that the plaintiff's bailiff had demanded payment for it, but whether as for a rent was not shown, and the refusal being on the score of poverty and not showing any disclaimer of the plaintiff's title, a new trial was granted on the defendant's motion. Williams v. Plumridge, 2 Sc. 799.

Where goods lent to a party, since deceased, came into defendant's possession, who, upon their being demanded of him, said he should do nothing but what the law required, and did not afterwards deliver them up, it was held to be a sufficient conversion. Davies v. Nicholas, 7 C. & P. 339.

Where the wife of the plaintiff, having pawned goods with the defendant in a false name, and lost the duplicate, having subsequently obtained two memorandums, and the plaintiff afterwards claiming them on the original duplicate, the defendant refused to deliver them up on account of the memorandums which had been delivered out, it was held, that it was a question whether the refusal was on a bonâ fide doubt of the plaintiff's title, and whether a reasonable time had elapsed for satisfying himself. Vaughan v. Watt, 6 M. & W. 492.

A horse being for sale, A. asked the agent of the vendor to let him have the horse for the purpose of trying it, and the agent did so; held, that A. was entitled to put a competent person on the horse for the purpose of trying it, and was not limited to merely trying it himself. Lord Camoys v. Scurr, 9 C. & P. 383.

(Damages, p. 1164.)

The declaration in trover being general, the plaintiff must show what goods the defendant took into his possession, the value of which goods is the proper measure of damages. Cook v. Hartle, 8 C. & P. 568.

(Defence, p. 1165.)

Under the general issue in trover, evidence of lien is inadmissible. White v. Teale, 4 P. & D. 43; 12 A. & E. 106.

(Not possessed.)

Under the plea in trover that the plaintiff was not possessed, &c., the defendant may give in evidence a right of lien. Brandao v. Barnett, 2 Sc. N. S. 96.

(Fraud.)

A. brought trover for a dog against B., and also against C., to whom B. had parted with it: in the former action A. recovered a verdict and 50*l.* damages, to be reduced to 1*s.* on the dog being given up; in the latter action C. recovered a verdict, and after the trial he allowed possession to be given to A., but at the same time claimed the property and required the delivery, which was refused: held, in trover by him against A., that as he had not by his conduct induced A. to enter into any disadvantageous compromise, he had not precluded himself from maintaining the action. Sandys v. Hodgson, 2 P. & D. 435.

The true owner of fixtures stood by and permitted a party to represent them as his own, in a transaction with a third party, who afterwards sold them to the defendant; he cannot maintain an action against the latter. Gregg v. Wells, 2 P. & D. 296; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 90.

(Estoppel.)

Where the plaintiff in trover for goods, was proved to have sworn that the goods described in her schedule, upon taking the benefit of the Insolvent Act, belonged to others, it was held that such oath did not estop her from claiming them in the action, although the contradiction was for the consideration of the jury. Thornes v. White, 1 T. & G. 110.

(New Assignment.)

Trover by assignees for four hundred bales, of cotton, plea as to the converting of three hundred and four bales, parcel, &c., that they were purchased by T. B. M. as agent for the bankrupts, and paid for by him, and shipped for and on account of the bankrupts, and that, they becoming insolvent, and the cottons coming to the hands of the defendant as owner of the vessel on board of which they were shipped, T. B. M. the consignor, stopped them in transitu. To this plea the plaintiffs new-assigned that they issued their writ, and declared thereupon, not for the supposed conversion in that plea mentioned, but for that the defendant converted and disposed to his own use of divers bales of cotton, "different to and other than the said bales of cotton in the introductory part of that plea mentioned;" and also for that the defendant converted and disposed of the last-mentioned bales of cotton "on other and different occasions and times, and for other and different purposes, and in another and different manner than in the said plea mentioned." Plea, not guilty:—It was held, that, however objectionable in point of form, the new assignment in substance alleged another and different conversion of the same subject-matter as that mentioned in the plea: and, a verdict having passed for the defendant on the trial, upon the assumption that the plaintiffs were bound to prove a conversion of cottons other than the three hundred and four bales mentioned in the plea to the declaration—the court directed a new trial. Brancker v. Molyneux, 1 Scott, N. S. 553.

Where in trover by assignees of an insolvent for five horses, harness, &c., one plea alleged that they were delivered to the insolvent by the defendant, on an agreement for a lien thereon by the defendant until the price paid; and it appeared that, of the five originally delivered, three had died, and others were substituted by the insolvent, who, upon his going to prison, sent an order for delivering the five to the defendant; the plaintiff having new-assigned that the conversion was of other horses, &c. than in the plea mentioned, it was held that, under this assignment, the plaintiff was entitled to prove the taking of horses, &c., not justified under the lien; and that the circumstances made out a sufficient primâ facie case for a jury, that the transfer, as regarded the three horses, was voluntary. Bolton v. Sherman, 2 M. & W. 395.

TRUSTEES.

Money having been embezzled by a clerk of a savings bank, no action lies against the trustees; the remedy is by arbitration under the statute 9 Geo. 4, c. 92. R. v. Mildenhall Savings Bank, 2 N. & P. 278. See Crisp v. Bunbury, 8 Bing. 394.

UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLY.

Any meeting assembled under such circumstances as, according to the opinion of rational and firm men, are likely to produce danger to the tranquillity and peace of the neighbourhood, is an unlawful assembly; and in viewing this question, the jury should take into their consideration the hour at which the parties met, and the language used by the persons assembled and by those who addressed them, and then consider whether firm and rational men, having their families and property there, would have reasonable ground to fear a breach of the peace; as the alarm must not be merely such as would frighten any foolish or timid person, but must be such as would alarm persons of reasonable firmness and courage. R. v. Vincent, 9 C. & P. 91.

Any assembly of persons attended with circumstances calculated to excite alarm is an unlawful assembly, and it is not only lawful for magistrates to disperse an unlawful assembly, even when no riot has occurred, but if they do not do so, and are guilty of criminal negligence in not putting down any unlawful assembly, they are liable to be prosecuted for a breach of their duty. R. v. Neale, 9 C. & P. 431.

On the trial of an indictment for a conspiracy to procure large numbers of persons to assemble, for the purpose of exciting terror in the minds of her Majesty's subjects, evidence was given of several meetings at which the defendants were present, and it was proposed to ask a witness, who was a superintendant of police, whether persons complained to him of being alarmed by these meetings; held, that the evidence was receivable, and that it was not necessary to call the persons who made the complaint. R. v. Vincent, 9 C. & P. 275.

USE AND OCCUPATION.

Debt will lie for use and occupation although there be no express demise, if it be not by deed. Gibson v. Kirk, 1 G. & D. 252.

Debt for use and occupation, on a parol demise, by the assignee of the reversion, is not maintainable as to the rent accruing for the occupation before the assignment. Mortimer v. Preedy, 3 M. & W. 602.

(Agreement, proof of, 1175.)

A., himself a leaseholder of a house, entered into an agreement with B. to grant him an under-lease of the house for twenty years and a fraction, from Midsummer 1836. B. entered into possession, and paid rent to A., and underlet a portion of the house to C. from Michaelmas 1836, and received from C. the first quarter's rent, due at Christmas 1836. On the 11th of January 1837, B., wishing to part with his interest before the execution of the lease, wrote to A. requesting him to insert the name of D. instead of his. D., a few days after, sent to A. a written consent to become his tenant, on the same terms as B. had agreed to; and, in consequence, the lease was, on the 15th of March 1837, granted by A. to D., instead of to B. D. brought an action for use and occupation against C., to whom B. had underlet a part of the house, and claimed the quarter's rent due at Lady-day 1837; held that he was entitled to recover. Green v. London Cemetery, 9 C. & P. 6.

A. let premises to four persons, B. C. D. and E., for a year certain, ending at Midsummer 1839, with a proviso that if, a month at least before the termination of the year, a request were made to him to that effect, A. would grant them a lease for seven, fourteen, or twenty-one years. The lessees were directors of a joint stock bank, and occupied the premises for the purpose of its business. B. ceased to be a director in January, and C. in March 1838. On the 31st of May, the solicitor of the directors applied to A. to renew the tenancy for another year to the then directors; but no agreement to that effect was finally executed. On the 20th of June, the solicitor applied for a renewal of the agreement for a quarter of a year; to which the plaintiff, on the 23d, replied "that he should consider of it." Nothing further passed between the parties, but at the Michaelmas following the premises were delivered up to A.; held, that the four original lessees were liable to A., in an action for use and occupation, for the rent of the quarter from Midsummer to Michaelmas. Christy v. Tancred, 7 M. & W. 127.

A house is demised by writing for a year and six months certain, from the date, at a yearly rent, payable at the usual periods, with a proviso that three calendar months' notice should be given on either side previous to the determination of the tenancy. The holding having been continued without any new express agreement, a notice to quit ending with the second year is sufficient. Doe v. Dobell, 1 G. & D. 218.

The yearly holding refers to the time of entry.

Where a yearly tenancy is continued for a number of years, it may be considered, after the expiration of the tenancy, as an original demise for the whole of the period; the liability during the time to determine the tenancy by notice makes no difference in the legal effect of the occupation. See R. v. Hurstmonceaux, 7 B. & C. 551; and the reporter's note, 1 G. & D. 229.

A party let into possession under a contract of sale, is liable for use and occupation from the time of breaking off the contract. Howard v. Shaw, 8 M. & W. 118.

A. B. and C. (being unmarried) entered into a contract in December 1834, for a term of seven years, at a rent payable quarterly, under which contract they entered, but which (the plaintiff not having executed it) could not operate as a demise; in the following September, C. married one of the defendants, and A. afterwards became bankrupt, and his assignees paid the quarter's rent at Michaelmas 1835, but it did not appear by whom the previous rent was paid, although admitted to have been paid; and there was no evidence of any payment having been made before C.'s marriage, or with her assent afterwards; held, that there was not sufficient evidence to raise an implied new tenancy, so as to charge the defendants (A. B. and C., and C.'s husband) in an action for use and occupation on a joint demise. Doidge v. Bowers, 2 M. & W. 365.

In debt for rent by a survivor, upon a joint demise by joint tenants; plea, that the parties were tenants in common, was held to be a good bar on demurrer. Berne v. Cambridge, 1 Mo. & R. 539; and see Doe v. Errington, 1 Ad. & Ell. 750; and 3 Nev. & M. 646.

Where the only evidence of the plaintiffs' title as owners was, that one of them told the defendant, the tenant, that he had bought the reversion, on which the defendant wished him joy of the purchase; but upon afterwards sending to demand the rent, the defendant refused to pay, saying he had notice to quit, and an action brought against him for the rent; held, that it was a question for the jury, whether the conduct of the defendant amounted to an admission of the plaintiffs' title, so as to render him liable to them: the jury found for the defendant. Stephens and Lemon v. Lynn, 8 C. & P. 389.

Upon a letting by auction, although there was nothing to show that the defendant, the lessee, was to hold of the plaintiff, the owner, and there was an express condition that the rent was to be paid to the auctioneers or their order, but the owner signed the conditions as approving of them, it was held that the auctioneers were to be considered only as agents, and that the plaintiff was entitled to maintain the action of debt for the use and occupation. Evans v. Evans, 3 Ad. & Ell. 132.

It appeared that lodgings let at a rent payable quarterly had been burnt down; held that, in use and occupation, the landlord was entitled to the rent accruing from the last quarter to the time of the fire taking place. Packer v. Gibbins, 1 G. & D. 10.

Stamped as a Lease.—Agreement, matter of, p. 1177.)

In all the cases where agreements have been held to amount to leases, there have been words of present demise, or both the parties have contemplated that possession should be taken, and the relation of landlord and tenant should commence before the final lease was executed; per Patteson, J. Jones v. Reynolds, 1 G. & D. 69.

The defendant by letter offered to take a lease for 40 years from June next, of the iron and manganese ore, at a sleeping rent, and a royalty of 1 s. per ton, and to work them in relative proportions together, as fixed by a competent person; to which the plaintiff replied, "I agree to the terms contained in your letter, and shall be ready to grant a lease conformable thereto from myself and all proper parties, whenever you require me;" this was held to constitute an agreement only, and not a demise. Ibid.

By an agreement for a demise of premises, to hold from a future day, at a rent payable quarterly, and to execute a lease, with the usual covenants for payment of rent, &c., it was stipulated that until such lease should be executed, the grantor might distrain for rent in arrear; held, that as such stipulation would have been nugatory if the instrument were intended to operate as a demise, it amounted only to an agreement, and that a lease stamp was unnecessary. Bicknell v. Hood, 5 M. & W. 104.

So if an agreement for a lease contain an express stipulation that it shall not operate as a demise. Perring v. Brook, 7 C. & P. 361.

So where after the execution of an agreement to make and execute a lease with stipulated terms and covenants, to be prepared at the cost of the lessee, and approved of by the lessor's solicitor, the intended lessor assigned the premises for a long term on mortgage, and afterwards became a bankrupt, and the mortgagee gave the lessee notice to pay the rent to him, it was held that the instrument was properly stamped as an agreement for a lease, and that after such notice he might maintain the action for use and occupation, for the occupation after the mortgage to him. Rawson v. Eicke, 2 Nev. & P. 423.

A memorandum, in the terms, "I, D. B., hereby certify that I remain in the house, at, &c., upon sufferance only, and agree to give immediate possession to him at any time he may require:" was held not to amount to an agreement for a tenancy, or to require a stamp. Barry v. Goodman, 2 M. & W. 768.

Where the terms of the agreement under which the defendant was to occupy the premises rent-free, taken altogether, amount only to a mode of remunerating him as bailiff, and not to a lease, a 1 l. stamp is sufficient. Doe d. Hughes v. Derry, 9 C. & P. 494.

Upon an agreement for a demise of premises for 99 years to a committee in trust for the parishioners of H., for the purpose of a poor-house, with a clause for purchasing in fee, and agreements by the committee to pay the rent, and keep in repair, &c., and to execute a lease, &c., but none was ever executed, it was held that the agreement operated as a demise from the date thereof, and not as a mere agreement for a lease, and that it vested in the overseers for the time being, by force of the 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 17, and that they were liable to the covenants. Alderman v. Neate, 4 M. & W. 704.

Upon a sale by auction of the "herbage of closes" for five months for 46 l., paying a deposit of 10 l. and giving a joint note for the remainder payable within that period, and if not given to the satisfaction of the vendor, that he should be at liberty to relet the premises, the instrument was held to be properly stamped with a 1 l. stamp as a conveyance or lease, upon the sale of any lands or tenements under 50 l. Cattle v. Gamble, 5 Bing. N. C. 46; 6 Sc. 733; and 7 Dowl. 98.

(Defence, p. 1180.)

As to the proper plea, see tit. Assumpsit—Debt—New Rules.

Action for refusing to perform a contract for taking a furnished house, plea, that the defendant was induced to enter into such contract by fraud and misrepresentation; the agreement was made with the plaintiff's agent, who, to a question whether there was anything objectionable about the house, replied, "that there was no objection whatever," but it was proved that the plaintiff knew of the adjoining house being a brothel; held (diss. Lord Abinger), that it was necessary to show the representation to have been fraudulently made; and the agent not knowing of the objection, and that the representation not being embodied in the contract, the circumstances did not constitute fraud sufficient to support the plea. Cornfoot v. Fowke, 6 M. & W. 358.

Where the conduct of a landlord was such as to justify the abrupt departure of the tenant of furnished lodgings, it was held that the landlord could only recover for the actual time of occupation, although the period of tenancy was not expired, and that he could not insist on the want of notice. Kirkman v. Jervis, 7 Dowl. 678.

Where trustees of an insolvent, to whom he had assigned all his effects, put in a person to carry on the trade and dispose of the stock, but it was never intended by them, nor was any act done to induce the landlord to believe that they intended to take possession as tenants, and the jury found that there was no occupation, it was held that they were not liable in an action for use and occupation. How v. Kennett and another, 5 N. & M. 1; questioning Carter v. Warne, 1 M. & M. 479. And see Nation v. Tozer, 1 Cr. M. & R. 172; and 4 Tyrw. 561.

Where premises were demised for a term, at a certain rent, and the landlord agreed to enlarge the buildings, the tenant agreeing to pay 10 l. per cent. on such outlay, it was held that it was to be deemed to be a collateral agreement, and not a contract running with the land, for which on the bankruptcy of the tenant his assignees were liable Lambert v. Norris, 2 M. & W. 333. And see Donellan v. Read, 3 B. & Ad. 899.

Where the tenant had with another person given a joint note to his landlord for the rent due, and in ejectment by the landlord, a verdict for the lessor of the plaintiff was agreed to be taken, he consenting that the defendant should remain in possession for a fortnight, and "not be called on for any rent now due," it was held that such agreement extinguished the claim on the note for rent. Howell v. Lewis, 7 C. & P. 566.

Where the defendant had been tenant to parties who entered into an agreement for a lease to the plaintiff, and afterwards, in the expectation that it would be carried into effect, the defendant paid to the plaintiff a quarter's rent, it was held, the agreement having been put an end to, that the defendant might, in an action brought against him by the plaintiff for subsequent use and occupation, show that the owners of the legal reversion were remitted to their original rights, and that the plaintiff had no title to the rent. Brook v. Biggs, 2 Bing. N. C. 572; and 2 Sc. 803. And see Waddelove v. Barnett, Ib. 538.

(Action for Double Value, p. 1185.)

The plaintiff, being the owner of a woollen mill and steam-engine, let to the defendant a room in the mill, together with a supply of power from the steam-engine by means of a revolving shaft in the room; in an action for double value, under stat. 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, against the tenant for holding over after the expiration of a notice to quit, in estimating such double value, the value of the power supplied cannot be included. Robinson v. Learoyd, 7 M. & W. 48.

In debt for double value for holding over, a notice to quit in the usual form at a given day, "or at such time as your holding shall expire after the expiration of half a year from the receipt of this notice," is a sufficient demand of possession to render the party holding over liable under 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, s. 1; a statement of a co-tenant, who had always paid the rent although he had not occupied, "that he had nothing to do with the land," is not admissible to show that there was no wilful holding over on his part. Hirst v. Horn, 6 M. & W. 393.

(Competency, p. 1185.)

Where, in an action for use and occupation, a witness was called by the plaintiff, who stated that he held the premises of the plaintiff, it was held that he could not, without being released, be asked whether he had not given up the premises to the defendant, as he had a direct interest that the money for their use and occupation should be obtained from the defendant, since that would put an end to all claim for rent against himself; and that the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27, s. 42, did not apply. Hodson v. Marshall, 7 C. & P. 16.

USURY.

Where, after a refusal to advance a sum of money on mortgage of leasehold premises, it was agreed that in consideration of 400*l.* the borrower should grant two annuities of 20*l.*, to be issuing out of the premises, it was held, that as the money to be paid would clearly exceed five per cent. on the sum advanced, the transaction was usurious. Chillingworth v. Chillingworth, 8 Sim. 404.

Where, by the terms of dealing between an English house and a foreign merchant, 6*l.* per cent. was to be paid on future balances, which by the foreign law was legal, it was held that the questions were, first, whether the contract was to be performed in England, and that it was a fit case for an issue to be tried by a jury as to the intention of the parties, and if it was to be performed in England, that it was to be deemed an English contract; secondly, that, to constitute the agreement usurious, the jury were to be satisfied that the substance of the contract was that the interest was to be taken for the loan or forbearance of money. Guillebert, ex parte, 2 Deac. 509; and 3 Mont. & Ayr. 455.

The statute 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 98, s. 7, which protects bills of exchange payable at three months or less from the usury laws, was held to extend also to warrants of attorney, given to secure payment of such bills. Connop v. Meaks, 2 Ad. & Ell. 326.

But where the inference to be drawn by the Court from the facts stated was, that a loan was agreed upon and made upon the security of the deposit of a lease, and that the security of a note and warrant of attorney were added for the purpose of legalising the demand of interest beyond five per cent., it was held that the transaction was not within 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 98, s. 7, or 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 80, those Acts contemplating the case of interest taken upon or secured by a bill or note, as the real and bonâ fide ground of the debt. Berrington v. Collis, 5 Bing. N. C. 332.

In ex parte Terrewest, cited in Holt v. Miers, 5 M. & W. 168, the Judge of the Court of Bankruptcy held that a bill of exchange given to secure an usurious loan, was not within the protection of the statute 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 98; but the Court in Holt v. Miers held otherwise; and see Connop v. Meaks, 2 Ad. & Ell. 326.

The statute 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 80, protects a bill of exchange payable three months after date, although it be given to secure a debt due, and more than five per cent. interest. King v. Braddon, 10 Ad. & Ell. 675; Holt v. Miers, 5 M. & W. 168.

According to Vallance v. Siddell, 6 Ad. & Ell. 932, a warrant of attorney taken as a security for a debt and usurious interest, would have been void; but if taken bonâ fide to secure a bill of exchange, or if the latter were given as the original security for usurious interest, it would have been good. Berrington v. Collis turned entirely on the question of fact, whether the security for the original loan was the lease or bill of exchange; the Court considered it to be the former, and consequently that the transaction was not at all protected or made valid by the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 98, s. 7; see the observation of Parke, B. in Holt v. Miers, 5 M. & W. 174.

As to pawnbrokers, Cowie v. Harrison, 1 Mo. & M. 141; Tregoning v. Attenborough, 7 Bing. 97.

The statute 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 80, was amended and continued until 1st January 1842, by 2 & 3 Vict. c. 37; was further continued to 1st January 1843, by 3 & 4 Vict. c. 83; and is further continued to the 1st January 1844, by 4 & 5 Vict. c. 54.

VAGRANT.

The 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 40, and 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 10, as to the removal of Irish and Scotch vagrants, further continued by 3 & 4 Vict. c. 27.

VENDOR AND VENDEE.

As to the protection of purchasers against judgments, &c., see 2 & 3 Vict. c. 11.

(Action by Vendor of Real Property, p. 1188.—Contract.)

Assumpsit on a contract for the sale of railway shares, to be conveyed on or before the ——; on the first issue, non assumpsit, it was held, that the option of time was to be with the party who was to do the first act, viz. the purchaser, and that the verdict ought to be entered for the plaintiffs; and being a matter that would have been material to the parties, it was not a subject of amendment of the record by the Judge at Nisi Prius. Hare v. Waring, 3 M. & W. 362.

In the same action, on the plea that the plaintiffs were not the proprietors of, and had no title to convey the shares, the mere entry of their names in the transfer book is no proof of title, although their title would have been incomplete without: upon the plea, that the plaintiffs tendered certificates of the shares, it was held that the meaning of the contract was, that the party was to convey, and deliver certificates, showing either on the face of them, or from the indorsements, that the title was in the party conveying. Ibid.

(Condition Precedent, p. 1188.)

It being the duty of the purchaser to procure the proper conveyance, it is not necessary, in an action by the vendor for not completing the purchase, to aver a conveyance or offer to convey, but only that the vendor was ready and willing to execute a conveyance. Poole v. Hill, 9 Dowl. 300; and 6 M. & W. 835.

Upon a demise of premises by agreement, stipulating inter alia that the lessor would, at the request and costs of the lessee, grant and execute a lease thereof, the landlord cannot charge the latter with the expense of a counterpart if he (the landlord) require one. Jennings v. Turner, 8 C. & P. 61.

(Usual Covenants, p. 1190.)

Upon an agreement for a lease with the usual covenants, and with one that the premises shall not be converted into a school, the former are not to be extended to covenants in restraint of trade, and it is immaterial whether or no the lessee had notice of the nature of the lessor's own tenure. Van v. Corpe, 3 M. & K. 269; S. P. Propert v. Parker, Ib. 280.

Where a party agreed for an underlease, and took possession of the premises, his attorney having had an opportunity of inspecting the original lease, it was held that the under lessee was bound to accept a lease with the covenants in the original lease, although of an unusual nature, it being his duty to have informed himself thereof; and a specific performance was decreed, with costs. Cosser v. Collinge, 3 M. & K. 283.

(Title, p. 1190.)

The purchaser may refuse to take a conveyance executed under a warrant of attorney, for it multiplies proofs. Coore v. Calloway, 1 Esp. C. 116; and Richards v. Barton, Ib. 268.

In an action to recover back the deposit and expenses, upon the ground of the vendor's having failed to make out a good title, a Court of Law will not consider whether the title be so doubtful that a Court of Equity would not compel a purchaser to take it, but only whether the party has a legal title to convey. Boyman v. Gutch, 7 Bing. 379; and 5 M. & P. 222.

Where there is only such a kind of doubt as to render it probable that the purchaser's right may become matter of investigation, the Court will not compel him to complete the purchase; where, therefore, a mortgaged policy was advertised by the mortgagee for sale as under a power, and the mortgagor refused to concur in the conveyance, and there was a reasonable doubt whether the power might not, in a Court of Equity, be deemed suspended for not being mentioned in a subsequent mortgage-deed of further charge, it was held that the purchaser might recover back the deposit-money, but that no interest could be claimed unless it were proved that the auctioneer made interest of it. Curling v. Shuttleworth, 6 Bing. 121; and 3 M. & P. 368. But see Boyman v. Gutch, supra.

Where the words of a devise, relied on as giving a fee, were much too doubtful to be settled without litigation, the Court would not compel a purchaser to take a title depending thereon. Sharp v. Alcock, 4 Russ. 374.

Upon the purchase of an entire estate, the Coust would not compel a purchaser to take six undivided seventh parts; it appearing also that, by the sale under a decree, a party was represented in the abstract as heir of D., which the vendor's solicitor confirmed, and the title was approved by the Master, but it afterwards turned out that the real heir was a different person, information of which had been given to the solicitor, and he concealed it, and only produced certain registers, without going further back than that of the alleged heir, the Court refused to compel the purchaser to take the title, notwithstanding a release had been obtained from the true heir. Dalby v. Pullen, 3 Sim. 29.

Where a policy, good at the time it was effected, was afterwards assigned, and it was subsequently sold for a valuable consideration, it was held that the purchaser was entitled to stand in the place of the original assignor, so as to bring an action in his name for the sum insured, and that he was therefore bound to complete his purchase. Ashley v. Ashley, 3 Sim. 149.

Upon a devise to trustees and their heirs of premises, the rents to accumulate until M. P. should attain twenty-one, and then to suffer her to take the rents, &c. for life, for her sole and separate use, and after her death to her heirs for ever, it was held that the equitable estate for life was not executed, and could not unite with the legal remainder in fee; the Court would not therefore compel a purchaser to take the title. Playford v. Hoare, 3 Y. & J. 175.

After the contract, but before acceptance of the title, the deeds were destroyed by fire, and it was admitted that no evidence could be furnished that the deeds mentioned in the abstract had been duly executed and delivered, it was held that the purchaser was entitled to be discharged. Bryant v. Bush, 4 Russ. 1.

Where the purchaser had been in possession for twenty years, and the objections made from time to time to the title appeared to be rather excuses for not completing the purchase than serious, it was held, that the continuing for so long a time in possession was to be taken to be a waiver of the objections, and that he was to be considered as having accepted the title. Hall v. Laver, 3 Younge & Cr. 191.

Where a party is either agent for the vendor or purchaser, or is himself vendor and also agent for the purchaser, whatever notice he may have will affect the purchaser; and where the latter takes a conveyance from a vendor, who has not the title-deeds, he is to be taken as having notice of the claim of the party who has the possession of them; and semble, the lien of the vendor for the unpaid purchase-money may be assigned by parol to a third party. Dryden v. Frost, 3 Myl. & Cr. 670.

1190, note (l).

In Morgan v. Bissell, 3 Taunt. 7, Mansfield, C. J. observes, the landlord thinks that he is injured by a breach of covenant, and brings his action, and then it is to be gone into, what are the proper covenants according to the custom of the country; in like manner they must go to a jury to see what is the rent of the excepted land.

(Damages, p. 1191.)

Where a party let into possession under a contract to purchase land, refuses to complete the purchase or pay the purchase-money, the vendors are not entitled to recover the whole of the purchase-money, but only the damages actually sustained by breach of contract. Laird v. Pim, 7 M. & W. 474.

Upon an agreement for the purchase of an estate, the purchase-money to be paid by yearly instalments, with interest, but the four last to be retained by the purchaser as an indemnity until the title should be made, it was held that the vendor was not entitled to compound interest on such instalments, where it appeared that until the filing of a bill for specific performance, no good title could be made. Stratton v. Symon, 2 Moore, 125.

(Action by Vendee of Real Property, p. 1191.)

See further as to the expense of investigating a title, Metcalfe v. Fowler, 6 Mees. & W. 831.

On a bill filed by a legatee, and a sale directed by the Court of real estate, the purchaser, on a good title not being made, was held entitled to recover the costs and expenses of investigating the title and confirming the purchase from the plaintiff, who might recover them in the suit. Berry v. Johnson, 2 Younge & C. 564.

The vendor is liable to the expense of the purchaser's solicitor going from place to place to compare the abstract with the deeds, and he is not bound to send the abstract to an agent in a country town for that purpose. Hughes v. Wynne, 8 Sim. 85.

(Action by Vendee of Real Property, Deposit, p. 1193.)

Where the defendant's answer to the plaintiff's demand, to transfer shares agreed to be bought, admitted his inability to do so, and requested time to arrange matters, it was held that no tender of the price was necessary; and semb. a tender to the broker employed in the sale would be good. Jackson v. Jacob, 3 Bing. N. C. 869.

In assumpsit against an auctioneer to recover back the deposit paid on the sale of premises, of which the title had not been completed, it was held that, as it appeared that the defendant was in the character of stakeholder between the parties, he was not entitled to notice of the contract having been rescinded. Duncan v. Cafe, 2 M. & W. 244.

Premises liable to be taken under the provisions of a local Act, being sold without notice of such liability, the purchaser is entitled to rescind the contract. Ballard v. Way, 1 M. & W. 520; 1 T. & G. 851.

On the sale of premises by auction, the memorandum of agreement to purchase and sell was signed by the auctioneer as agent for the purchaser, and by the vendor's attorney, subscribing himself as "agent for the said S. S." the vendor. The purchaser paid his deposit to the attorney, who gave a receipt, signed by himself as "agent for S. S." The sale going off through the vendor's default, and the deposit money not being returned, it was held, that the purchaser could not bring an action for money had and received against the attorney, for that he was not a stakeholder, but merely the vendor's agent, and that payment of the deposit to him was payment to the vendor. Bamford v. Shuttleworth, 11 Ad. & Ell. 926.

In assumpsit to recover back the deposit paid by the plaintiff upon a contract for the purchase of an estate from the defendant, on the ground of the latter's being unable to make a good title, it appeared that being devisee in remainder after his mother's death, subject to a small annuity to his sister, in the conditions of sale it was stated that the sister claimed under a deed of assignment of the premises to her in trust, but which deed was alleged to be a forgery; and that it was stipulated that the purchaser should not make any objection on account of the alleged indenture, and that part of the purchase-money might remain on mortgage as an indemnity; held, that the plaintiff having purchased, with notice of the defect, and precluded himself from objecting at all to the supposed deed, he could not insist upon it as a defect in the title which he had agreed to take, and was therefore not entitled to recover back the deposit on that ground. Corrall v. Cottell, 4 M. & W. 794; and a specific performance was afterwards decreed, 3 Younge & C. 413.

On an agreement for the purchase of premises, a sum was to be paid down by way of deposit and in part of the purchase-money, and it was stipulated that in default by either the vendor or vendee in completing the purchase, the one making default should pay the other 1,000 l. liquidated damages; the purchaser having thrown up the contract, on the ground of the vendor being unable to complete it on the day stated, sued the vendor for the penalty, and for the deposit as money had and received, but the defendant obtained the verdict, and afterwards sold the premises to another; held, first, that the former action having failed on the ground that it was prematurely brought, the plaintiff might sustain a second action; and, secondly, that in the absence of any specific promise, the question whether the deposit shall be forfeited depends on the intent of the parties, to be collected from the whole instrument; and that, in the principal case, as a particular forfeiture was stipulated, the vendee could not retain the deposit. Palmer v. Temple, 1 P. & D. 379.

(By Vendor of Goods, p. 1195.)

In assumpsit for goods sold and delivered, where the price is above 10 l. and nothing was paid as earnest to bind the bargain, nor was there any memorandum in writing signed by the defendant or his agent, two things must be proved to entitle the plaintiff to recover: first, that the defendant in fact ordered the goods; and secondly, that he accepted them with an intent to take them as owner. Smith v. Rolt, 9 C. & P. 696.

(By Vendor of Goods; Condition precedent, p. 1199.)

The defendants contracted for fifty tons of palm-oil, to arrive by a particular ship, and on non-arrival or not having so much on board after delivery of former contracts, the contract to be void; the ship was originally laden with a cargo sufficient to satisfy the contract in question, but previously to arrival, the defendants' agent transhipped part into another vessel, leaving sufficient to fulfil the contract: held, in an action for not delivering fifty tons, that the contract was entire, and that the arrival in the particular vessel was a condition precedent, and that the plaintiff could not recover for that which did arrive in it. Lovatt v. Hamilton, 5 M. & W. 639.

Where in assumpsit for clothes, &c., and on proof of their having been supplied, the defendant put in an agreement between him and the plaintiff, that he should procure customers for the plaintiff and be allowed a percentage on their accounts, to be paid in clothes as he should want them, and that a settlement of accounts should take place every six months, or twelve months at the farthest; held, that it lay on the plaintiff to show that a debt existed and that a settlement of accounts had taken place; and that no action could be maintained until the end of twelve months. Garey v. Pike, 2 P. & D. 427.

Where there was an agreement to print a certain number of copies, and before the delivery of the whole the printing premises were destroyed by fire, and the remaining copies consumed, it was held that, unless the whole number were printed off, the party was not entitled to recover for those delivered. Adlard v. Booth, 7 C. & P. 108.

(Damages—not accepting, p. 1200.)

Assumpsit for not accepting wheat, "to be delivered at B. as soon as vessels could be obtained for the carriage;" the measure of damages is the difference between the contract price and the market price of the day when tendered and refused. Phillpotts v. Evans, 5 M. & W. 475. And see Leigh v. Paterson, 2 Moore, 588.

By the custom of the tea trade, when teas are sold at a given prompt or future day of payment, the buyer pays a deposit in part of the purchase-money, and the vendor retains the teas or the warrant representing them, until the day of prompt, when, if he fails to pay the balance of the purchase-money, the vendor is at liberty to resell the teas and to charge the purchaser with any deficiency, together with interest from the prompt day, warehouse rent, &c.; held, that where the vendee became bankrupt before the day of prompt, and the assignees refused to take the teas, or pay the balance of the purchase-money, the vendor might resell them, and prove for the amount of the deficiency. Ex parte Moffatt, 1 Mo. D. & D. 282.

(Goods sold and delivered, p. 1202.)

After a previous negotiation and trial, the defendant wrote to the plaintiff to say he would purchase his mare at —— guineas, "of course warranted," which, not being attended to, he, by a second letter, desired the mare to be sent, with a receipt, including "sound and quiet in harness," on which the plaintiff wrote to say that he would send it, and that it was warranted sound and quiet in double harness, never having been tried in single; he accordingly sent it to the place appointed, and left it, with injunctions not to be parted with unless the price was paid; but the defendant's son afterwards came, and took her away without payment, and in the course of two days she was sent back as unsound; held, that there was no evidence of a final contract, nor of a delivery accordingly, so as to entitle the plaintiff to recover. Jordan v. Norton, 4 M. & W. 155.

(Waiver of Tort, p. 1203.)

Where an intestate, lessee of coal mines, had improperly worked parts expressly excepted, and sold the coal raised together with the proceeds of his own parts, it was held that the lessor might waive the tort, and sue the representative of his lessee for money had and received for the coal so taken from such excepted places. Powell v. Rees, 7 Ad. & Ell. 426; and 2 N. & P. 571.

(Value, p. 1207.)

On a count on a quantum valebant, the plaintiff may give evidence of an agreed price for the goods, and the defendant, in such a case, on a plea of non assumpsit, may also go into evidence to induce the jury not to give that price, by showing that the articles delivered were inferior to those that the price was agreed to be paid for. Pegg v. Stead, 9 C. & P. 636.

(Reduction of Plaintiff's Claim, p. 1210 (q).

And see Duncan v. Blundell, 3 Starkie's C. 6; Montriou v. Jefferys, R. & M. 317.

(Defence by Vendee, p. 1212.)

An order (in equity) for a resale, made in consequence of the purchaser's default in completing his purchase, should not discharge him from his purchase. 4 Myl. & Cr. 514.

(Fraud and Misdescription, p. 1213.)

A policy of insurance on the life of A. had been assigned to M.; N. having privately ascertained that A. was dangerously ill, treats with M. for the purchase of the policy for a small sum, representing such sum to be the then value of the policy, M. not being aware of A's illness; held, that the sale was void, and that M. might recover the value of the policy in an action of trover. Jones v. Keene, 2 M. & R. 348.

Where any substantial part of the property purporting to be sold turns out to have no existence, or cannot anywhere be found, or if the description be so exagerated as to be quite beyond the truth, and the vendor not acting bonâ fide in giving it, the purchaser is entitled to rescind the contract, notwithstanding a clause that any mistake in the description shall not vitiate the contract, but be a ground of compensation. Robinson v. Musgrove, 2 Mo. & Rob. 92.

A yard, being an essential part of the premises, being held only from year to year, instead of for a term of 21 years, as stated in the particulars, amounts to a misdescription, rendering the sale void. Dobell v. Hutchinson, 5 N. & M. 251; and 2 Ad. & Ell. 355.

Where the printed particulars of sale and plans fully set out roads, &c., but disclosed a right of footpath only by reference to a lease of other premises, which might be seen at the office, and was calculated to mislead bidders who could not by ordinary vigilance discover that any such right existed, it was held to amount to such a misdescription as entitled the purchaser to rescind the contract; and the purchase of two lots having been included in one agreement for the sale at one aggregate price, and as the purchaser might have been led into the contract for both by the power he might obtain from unity of seisin of extinguishing rights of way, and rendering the whole more valuable, he was held to be entitled to annul the contract as to both lots. Dykes v. Blake, 4 Bing. N. C. 463.

At the auction, premises are represented as good and substantial, although unfinished buildings, being in fact in so ruinous a state as only fit to be pulled down; the sale is void. Robinson v. Musgrove, 8 C. & P. 469.

Where the conditions of sale described the manor as entitled to fines arbitrary, and it turned out that they were so only on alienation, but fixed in case of descents; it was held to be a case for compensation, the conditions providing so, in the case of error in description of the property. Cudden v. Cartwright, 4 Younge & C. 25.

In assumpsit to recover back the deposit paid by the plaintiff upon a contract for the purchase of an estate from the defendant, on the ground of his being unable to make a good title, it appeared that being devisee in remainder after his mother's death, and subject to a small annuity to his sister, in the conditions of sale it was stated that the sister claimed under a deed of assignment of the premises to her in trust, but which deed was alleged to be a forgery; and it was stipulated that the purchaser should not make any objection on account of the alleged indenture, and that part of the purchase-money might remain on mortgage as an indemnity; held, that the plaintiff having purchased, with notice of the defect, and precluded himself from objecting at all to the supposed deed, he could not insist upon it as a defect in the title which he had agreed to take, and was therefore not entitled to recover back the deposit on that ground. Corrall v. Cottell, 4 M. & W. 794; and a specific performance was afterwards decreed, 3 Younge & C. 413.

Where the purchaser of leaseholds omits to inquire into the covenants of the original lease, he will be bound by his contract, notwithstanding variations therefrom in the description by the particular of sale. Pope v. Garland, 4 Younge & C. 394.

But where such variation consisted in an unseen projection of adjoining premises, it was held to be an objection sufficient to avoid the contract. Pope v. Garland, 4 Younge & C. 394.

(Defence by Vendee of Goods—Payment, p. 1216.)

Where, upon the sale of a ship to A. and B., in which A. was to be interested in one-third, and B. in two-thirds, and upon the execution of the bill of sale, although expressing that B. had paid two-thirds of the purchase-money, only one-third was actually paid, and A.'s acceptances given for the remainder, which were, from A. becoming bankrupt, dishonoured, it was held that B. remained liable for the payment of the unpaid purchase-money, notwithstanding the form of the bills given for the amount. Lynn v. Chaters, 2 Keene, 521.

(Defence by Vendee of Goods—Illegality, p. 1216.)

It is no answer to an action for not accepting stock, that at the time of the contract the plaintiff was not actually possessed or entitled to the stock in his own right. Mortimer v. M'Callan, 7 M. & W. 20.

On a treaty for the sale of a public-house between the defendant and B., the defendant made a false representation as to the profits, which B. afterwards, with the defendant's knowledge, communicated to the plaintiff, who became the purchaser in his stead; the contract is as much vitiated by the fraud as if actually repeated by the defendant to the plaintiff. Pilmore v. Hood, 5 Bing. N. C. 97; 6 Sc. 827.

It is no objection to a contract for the sale of goods, that the vendor had not possession at the time of the bargain, nor entered into any contract for procuring them, nor had ground of expectation of obtaining them. Hibblewhite v. M'Morine, 5 M. & W. 462; overruling Bryan v. Lewis, Ry. & M. 386.

Although the plaintiff has not the stock sold in his possession at the time of sale, it is not illegal under 7 Geo. 2, c. 8, s. 8, which applies only to fictitious sales, and not where stock is actually transferred; held, also, that what passed, immediately after the transfer, as to the giving the broker's cheque in payment was admissible as part of the res gestæ. Mortimer v. Callan, 6 M. & W. 58.

The object of the provision in 17 Geo. 3, c. 50, s. 8, for making void the contract of sale upon neglect or refusal by the purchaser to pay the auction duty, being to protect the revenue, avoids the contract only at the option of the vendor, and the purchaser cannot by his own wrong avoid his own contract. Malins v. Freeman, 4 Bing. N. C. 395.

(Goods sold and delivered; Credit to whom given.)

The defendant employed a stock-broker to procure him stock, which the broker did from the plaintiff, a stock-jobber, who procured it from a third party, and it was transferred by the last into the defendant's name; it is for the jury to decide whether the plaintiff gave credit for the price to the broker or to the principal, and a verdict against the defendant (the principal) will be supported. Mortimer v. Callan, 6 M. & W. 58; see also Rose v. Edwards, 1 M. & W. 734; 1 T. & G. 975.

(Trover by Vendee, p. 1221.)

Where oats were sold to be paid for in twelve weeks from the date of the contract, with liberty for them to remain on the vendor's premises, it was held, that although he had a right to detain the goods until the price was paid, he could not rescind the contract, and, by a notice before the end of the twelve weeks, justify a resale after the end of the twelve weeks. Martindale v. Smith, 1 G. & D. 1.

The vendee, on tender of the price after the expiration of the credit, may maintain trover. Ib.

Upon a contract for a ship then building, specifying the description and particulars, for a certain sum, "and payment as follows opposite each name subscribed," and which was signed by several, and amongst the rest by the plaintiff for one-fourth, it was held not to amount to a present bargain and sale, but of the ship when finished, and that until then no part vested so as to enable the plaintiff to maintain trover. Laidler v. Burlinson, 2 M. & W. 602.

The defendant having sold wheat to the plaintiffs, to be paid for by a draft, which not being remitted, the defendant took back the wheat from the carmen to whom he had delivered it for the plaintiffs, it was held that the plaintiffs could not maintain trover for the wheat. Wilmshurst v. Bowker, 5 Bing. N. C. 541.

Where, upon the sale by the defendant of wheat in the warehouse of his agent, he gave directions for the transfer, and the wheat was accordingly transferred into the plaintiff's name, it was held, that the property passed thereby, and that the defendant could not give evidence that others were jointly interested with the plaintiff in the purchase. Kieran v. Sandars, 1 N. & P. 625.

(Fixtures, p. 1224, note i.)

See also R. v. Inhabitants of St. Dunstan, 4 B. & C. 686.

(Stoppage in Transitu, p. 1226.)

The vendors directed the defendants (wharfingers) to deliver 1,028 bushels of oats, bin 40, to the purchaser, and "to weigh and charge the expense" to them; the oats comprised the whole in the bin, and were transferred in the defendants' books, and the price paid, but no weighing ever took place; held, that being only for the satisfaction, and not with the view of ascertaining the quantity or price, the right of stoppage was at an end. Swanwick v. Sothern, 1 P. & D. 648; and 10 Ad. & Ell. 815.

(Competency, p. 1228.)

Where the business was carried on in the names of the father and son, and bills and receipts were given in their joint names, it was held that the former not being precluded from showing that his son had no interest in the trade, the son was a competent witness in an action by the father for goods sold. Barker v. Stubbs, 1 M. & G. 45; and 1 Sc. N. S. 131.

VENUE.

Where, in an action on a warranty of a horse, the venue had been changed from M. to W., it was held that a letter written by the plaintiff's attorney in M., informing the defendant of the breach of warranty, and that the horse was standing at his expense, the receipt of which letter was admitted by the defendant's agent in M., was a sufficient compliance with the undertaking to give material evidence in M., on bringing back the venue. Collins v. Jenkins, 4 Bing. N. C. 225.

An undertaking to give material evidence of some matter in issue arising in a particular county, is satisfied by evidence arising in that county, which bears on the amount of damages. In an action for breach of warranty of a horse, in which the issue raised on the pleadings was, whether the plaintiff bought the horse of the defendant or not, payment in Middlesex of the keep of the horse, after notice to the defendant of its unsoundness, was held sufficient to satisfy the undertaking to give material evidence in that county. Quære, whether a letter of the plaintiff's attorney to the defendant, written in Middlesex, but posted in London, giving notice of the unsoundness, and requiring the defendant to take back the horse, otherwise it would be sold by a certain day (verbal notice to the same effect having been previously given to him), was sufficient to satisfy such undertaking? Greenway v. Titchmarsh, 7 M. & W. 221; 9 Dowl. P. C. 279.

On an information, under the stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 108, for being concerned in the unshipping of prohibited goods, which were received on board on the high seas, in prosecution of an agreement arranged at R. and in London, and carried strictly into effect, and the goods landed in Ireland; held, that the latter was an unshipping, in which the defendant was concerned, in England, within the meaning of the Act, and the offence properly triable in England. Attorney-general v. Catt, 3 M. & W. 7.

VERDICT.

In an action against the owner of a brig for an injury done to a sloop belonging to the plaintiff, the amount of damage proved was upwards of 500*l.*, the jury gave a verdict for 250*l.* only, and on being asked how they made up their verdict, replied, that in their opinion there were faults on both sides; held, that notwithstanding this, the plaintiff was entitled to the verdict, as there might be faults in the plaintiff to a certain extent, and yet not to such an extent as to prevent his recovering. Raisin v. Mitchell, 9 C. & P. 613.

It is hard that a party should be compelled to elect at Nisi Prius, in the heat of the cause, on what count he will take a verdict. P. C. Lee v. Muggeridge, 5 Taunt. 42.

VESTRY.

The rector has the right to preside at a vestry for electing churchwardens, to grant a poll if demanded, and fix the time and place. R. v. Doyley, 4 P. & D. 52.

Where a vestry is to nominate a number of persons, from whom the justices are afterwards to select one, a poll being demanded on the meeting to nominate, may lawfully be had at a future day, when inhabitants may vote, though not present at the meeting to nominate. R. v. Hedger, 4 P. & D. 61.

On the nomination of eight inspectors to act in the election of vestrymen, under the stat. 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 60, the decision of the chairman, on a show of hands, that one or the other party has a majority, is not conclusive; he is bound, on requisition from either side, to take steps for ascertaining the numbers. Quære, whether the proper course, on such requisition, be to divide, or at once to take a poll. Semble, that under stat. 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 60, s. 14, a division is proper. The mere existence of party feeling in the chairman is not a sufficient ground for impeaching a nomination of inspectors under the statute, but if, after improperly refusing to ascertain the numbers voting, he has declared certain persons to be the inspectors nominated by the meeting, and the election of vestrymen has thereupon taken place, the Court will grant a mandamus for a new election, although a considerable time has elapsed. Ex. gr. where the election took place May 6th, and a mandamus was moved for on June 6th, and cause was shown November 4th, the rule was made absolute November 21st. If four inspectors have been improperly declared to be nominated by the meeting, such mandamus will be granted, although the other four inspectors were duly nominated by the churchwardens, and officiated at the election. R. v. St. Pancras Vestrymen, &c. 11 A. & E. 15.

Sect. 51 of the local statute, 51 Geo. 3, c. 151, enacts, "That the said vestrymen (of St. Marylebone) shall set out and appropriate such a number of seats for the gratuitous accommodation of the poor of the said parish for the time being, and also such other pews or seats for the use of the parishioners of the said parish, as the said vestrymen shall think necessary, proper, and convenient;" the clause is imperative upon the vestrymen, and empowers them to set out and appropriate the pews (other than those for the poor) without restriction, and not subject to the superintendence of the ordinary. Spry v. Flood, 2 Curt. 362.

The right to demand a poll is by law incidental to the election of a parish officer by a show of hands, where there is no special custom to exclude it; and the demand of a poll may be properly made after the show of hands; at any rate, if a poll be afterwards taken, it is a waiver of any irregularity as to the demand. Where, although the usual mode of election had always been by show of hands, yet there being no evidence of a poll ever having been demanded, and so no custom to exclude a poll, held that the right existed. A local Act for government of the parish having specially reserved the powers of the vestry, and of any ancient or special usage, and thereby reserved the right of demanding a poll; held, that the taking of it was to be governed by the law then in being (58 Geo. 3, c. 69), which gives a plurality of votes according to the quantity of the voter's estate. Campbell v. Maund, 1 N. & P. 558; and see Anthony v. Seger, 1 Hagg. Cons. Rep. 9.

VOTING

For an incapacitated Candidate.

See R. v. Hawkins, 10 East, 211.

WAGER.

A wager of 50 l. to 1 l. that a horse named had not won a by-gone horse-race, is lawful. Pugh v. Jenkins, 1 G. & D. 40.

So, a wager on the price of foreign stock is not void at common law, or within the 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, which is confined to wagering policies of insurance. Morgan v. Pebrer, 3 Bing. N. C. 457; and 4 Sc. 230.

WAIVER.

On the sale of a real estate, it was stipulated in the agreement of purchase, that it should be void if the money was not paid on a day stated, and the vendor authorised to resell; the purchaser continuing in possession, and giving a warrant to confess judgment in ejectment, is a waiver of the forfeiture. Gardner, ex parte, 4 Younge & C. 503; as to the waiver of an agreement, see further Jenkins v. Portman, 1 K. 435.

Where the purchaser had been in possession for twenty years, and the objections made from time to time to the title appeared to be rather excuses for not completing the purchase than serious; it was held, that the continuing for so long a time in possession was to be taken to be a waiver of the objections, and that he was to be considered as having accepted the title. Hall v. Laver, 3 Younge & Cr. 191.

Where the terms of a composition deed were not complied with as to the petitioner, and no absolute release executed, it was held that the original debt revived, it being competent to the debtor to waive the release, and for the parties, by subsequent agreement, to keep alive the original security. Crosbie, ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 393; and 1 Deac. 107.

WARRANT OF ATTORNEY.

The omission to take out judgment or file the warrant of attorney within twenty-one days after the execution, renders it liable to be treated as a secret warrant of attorney, and void as against assignees, where the party subsequently becomes bankrupt, although there might not at the time be a good petitioning creditor's debt. Everett v. Wells, 9 Dowl. 424; S. P. Williams v. Burgess, Ib. 544; and see Ex parte Fallon, 5 T. R. 283.

A warrant of attorney given by an attorney to induce the plaintiff to stay proceedings against him, on a rule to strike him off the rolls, is illegal and void. Kirwan v. Goodman, 9 Dowl. 330.

A party jointly executed a warrant of attorney; it was held to be no objection that the other had been taken in execution on a judgment for a larger sum, including the debt secured by the warrant, which had not been satisfied, or that no appearance had been entered prior to signing the judgment. Bircham v. Tucker, 8 Sc. 469.

Where on a bonâ fide loan the defendant executed a lease for 99 years of his living, and on the same day executed a warrant of attorney for the same amount, reciting in the defeasance that it was given as a collateral security, and that the sum was further secured by the demise; held, that the lease being void, did not affect the validity of the warrant, and that the warrant being an independent security for a loan, was not a charging the benefice within the stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20; and the sequestration issued was the ordinary one of execution, and not affected by the statute. Bendry v. Price, 7 Dowl. 753.

And in determining whether such security amounts to a charging the benefice within the statute, the Court will not look for the intention of the parties beyond the instruments, nor receive affidavits for that purpose. Bishop v. Hatch, 7 Dowl. 763.

Where an attesting witness to a warrant of attorney refused to make an affidavit of the execution, to support a motion for judgment upon it, and it appeared that he was colluding with the defendant, the Court made a rule absolute, with costs, to compel him to do so. Ex parte Morrison in Croft v. Lord Perciral, 8 Dowl. 94.

The mere fact of a plaintiff's attorney mentioning the name of another attorney to the defendant, is no ground of objection to a cognovit under the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 9, if the defendant freely adopt him. Pease v. Wells, 8 Dowl. 626.

If a defendant inform the attorney attending on his behalf, that the warrant has been read over to him, and that he understands it, the attorney need not read it over to, and explain it to the defendant. Taylor and another v. Nicholl, 8 Dowl. 242.

Where a defendant who is about to execute a warrant of attorney, declines the attendance of his own usual attorney, but adopts freely an attorney suggested by the plaintiff's attorney, that is a sufficient nomination of an attorney by the defendant, pursuant to 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 9. Hale v. Dale, 8 Dowl. P. C. 599.

Where it appeared that an attorney was acting both for the plaintiff and the defendant in a transaction, in the course of which a warrant of attorney was given, and that the instrument was attested by a clerk of the attorney, he being also an admitted attorney, it was held, that the attestation was insufficient within the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 9. Durrant v. Blurton, 9 Dowl. 1015.

A warrant of attorney to confess judgment for 1,000*l.* was executed by the defendant, and an attestation of the execution was subscribed by an attorney, pursuant to the stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 9. An alteration was afterwards made by consent in the sum by substituting 2,000*l.*, and the defendant retraced his signature with a dry pen, and redelivered the instrument. The attorney, who was present, wrote his initials opposite to the alteration, and drew a dry pen over the attestation and over each letter of his own signature; held, that the warrant of attorney was not duly attested under the 9th section of the statute. Bailey v. Bellamy and others, 9 Dowl. 507.

To render a warrant of attorney void as against the assignees of a bankrupt under the provisions of the 3 Geo. 4, c. 39, ss. 1 & 2, on the ground of its not having been filed, or judgment signed within twenty-one days of the date of its execution, it is not necessary that the petitioning creditor's debt shall have accrued within the same twenty-one days. Everett v. Wells, 9 Dowl. 424.

When on the execution of a warrant of attorney there was but one attorney present, who had previously acted for the plaintiff, and who on that occasion made out his bill to the plaintiff, but delivered it to the defendant, and was paid by him; held, that he was not such an attorney acting on behalf of defendant as required by 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 9. Sanderson v. Westley, 8 Dowl. 412.

The attorney for the defendant must, under the statute and new rules, be an attorney other than the attorney of the plaintiff, otherwise the cognovit is void. Mason v. Kiddle, 5 M. & W. 513; and 8 Dowl. 207.

Where the clerk of the plaintiff, at the request of the defendant, procured an attorney to act for him, and a request was written by the plaintiff's attorney on the margin of the cognovit; held, that under the circumstances, the party not having had an opportunity of exercising his own discretion, the instrument was invalid under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 9. Barnes v. Pendrey, 7 Dowl. 747; distinguishing the cases of Bligh v. Brewer, 3 Dowl. 266; and Oliver v. Woodruffe, 7 Dowl. 166.

The attestation only described the party as the defendant's attorney, and attending at his request, without declaring that he subscribed as such attorney; this is not a compliance with the 1 & 2 Viet. c. 110, s. 9. Poole v. Hobbs, 8 Dowl. 113.

Where the party was in custody in execution for the same debt, held that the release from custody was a good consideration for the cognovit as a new security, but that a new writ must be sued out; and it lies on the party impeaching its validity to show that in fact no new writ has been sued out. Shanley v. Colwell, 6 M. & W. 543; and 8 Dowl. 373.

The defendant having agreed to give the plaintiffs a warrant of attorney to secure his debt to them, the plaintiffs employed P., an attorney, to prepare it. P. called with it on the defendant, and told him it must be signed in the presence of some professional man, and that he should procure Mr. S. to attest it; and the defendant accordingly went to procure S.'s attendance, but met him in the street, when P. told him they were coming to his, S.'s office, that he might witness the execution of a warrant of attorney by the defendant. The defendant then suggested that they had better go to P.'s office, which was nearer. They went there accordingly; P. placed the paper in S.'s hands, and S. then read over and explained the warrant of attorney to the defendant, and asked him whether he wished him to witness the execution of it as his attorney. The defendant replied that he did, and then he signed it, and S. attested it; P. offered to pay S. for his attendance, but he said, as it would come out of the defendant's pocket, he should make no charge; for which the defendant expressed himself obliged; held, that S. was not expressly named by the defendant and attending on his behalf, so as to satisfy the stat. 1 & 2 Viet. c. 110, s. 9; and the warrant of attorney and judgment signed thereon were set aside. Gripper v. Bristow, 6 M. & W. 807; 8 Dowl. 797; and see Kemp v. Matthew, 8 Scott, 799.

Semble, that this is an objection which cannot be waived by the defendant. Gripper v. Bristow, 6 M. & W. 807.

The witness to a cognovit executed since the 1 & 2 Viet. c. 110, s. 3, must not only declare himself in the attestation to be the attorney for the party, but also that he subscribes his name as such. Potter v. Nicholson, 9 Dowl. 808.

WARRANTY.

Parol evidence may be given of the warranty, although the memorandum given of the price is silent as to that point, being merely a receipt, and not containing the terms of the contract. Allen v. Pink, 4 M. & W. 140; and 6 Dowl. 668.

(Implied, p. 1239.)

It seems that a warranty is to be implied in all cases where an article is supplied for a particular purpose, that it will answer the purpose, if the buyer rely on the skill and judgment of the seller, whether the seller be or be not the manufacturer. Brown v. Edgington, 2 Scott, N. S. 496.

As where a wine merchant orders a crane rope for the purpose of raising pipes of wine from a cellar, and the seller not having one to answer the purpose, undertakes to get one made. Ib.

Where the defendant sold a gun to the plaintiff's father, with a warranty that it was of a certain maker, and knowing that it was purchased for the plaintiff's use: the plaintiff having sustained injury by its bursting, being of an inferior make, and not according to the warranty; held, that he might sustain an action on the case for the injury consequent upon the defendant's fraud, although (semb.) he could not upon the contract, it being made with another party. Langridge v. Levy, 2 M. & W. 519.

(Breach of Warranty of Soundness, p. 1242.)

In an action on the warranty of a horse sold, alleging that it was unsound, to which the defendant pleaded only that it was sound; the plaintiff is entitled to begin. Osborne v. Thompson, 9 C. & P. 337; and 2 Mo. & R. 255.

A bone spavin existing at the time of sale is a breach, although not occasioning lameness until some time after. Watson v. Denton, 7 C. & P. 85.

A slight disorder, as influenza, at the time of sale of a horse, not diminishing the usefulness, and of which he ultimately recovered, does not constitute a breach of warranty of soundness. Bolden v. Brogden, 2 Mo. & R. 113.

Defective formation which has not produced lameness in a horse at the time of the sale (e. g. curly hocks), is not an unsoundness, although it may tend to produce future lameness. Brown v. Elkington, 8 M. & W. 132.

(Damages, p. 1242.)

The plaintiff having purchased a picture, warranted by the defendant as a Claude, sold it with a similar warranty, and upon an action brought by the purchaser, paid damages and costs; held, in an action against the defendant for the breach of the warranty, that if the sale to such third party was bonâ fide and in the ordinary course of business, the plaintiff was entitled to recover such damages and costs, and also his own costs. Pennell v. Woodburn, 7 C. & P. 117.

In a declaration on a warranty of a horse sold to the plaintiff, which he had resold at an advanced price, and had returned upon his hands, there was no allegation that the increased price arose from improvement in the interval, by money laid out by the plaintiff; it was held that the plaintiff could not recover for the mere loss of a good bargain, nor could he recover the expenses of taking a veterinary surgeon's or counsel's opinion, or his attorney's charges, which were steps taken for his own safety in bringing the action. Clare v. Maynard, 1 N. & P. 701; and 7 C. & P. 741. And see Walker v. Moore, 10 B. & Cr. 416.

Upon a breach of warranty of a horse, and refusal to receive it back when tendered, it was held, that the purchaser may keep it a reasonable time, with the view to effect a better sale, and recover for the keep. Ellis v. Chinnock, 7 C. & P. 169.

(Defence, p. 1243.)

Declaration on a warranty of a horse, sound and quiet in harness, plea non assumpsit, "modo et formâ," held, that proof of the warranty being that the horse was sound and quiet in all respects, supported the declaration, and that upon the issue the defendant could not go into the fact of soundness. Smith v. Parsons, 8 C. & P. 199.

Assumpsit on the breach of a warranty of seed to produce certain crops, with the common counts, the particulars being only of the price of the seed, and applying only to the common counts, evidence of the value of the crops is admissible, as applying to the damage stated in the first count. Page v. Parcy, 8 C. & P. 769.

Where the declaration on a contract for the sale of a horse, with a verbal warranty alleged to have been falsely and fraudulently made, was in substance an action to recover back the price paid, under 20*l.*, it was held to be within the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 47, s. 17.

WASTE.

(Messuage, p. 1244.)

A covenant by a lessor to repair the external parts of the demised messuage comprises the boundary walls of it, though they adjoin other buildings. At all events, the lessor is liable under it to compensate the lessee for the damage arising from non-repair of such a wall which arises after the adjoining building has been pulled down, though the damage be a consequence of such pulling down, he having made no attempt to prevent the damage arising from the further sinking of the wall, and though the adjoining building was pulled down in execution of powers given by an Act of Parliament which contained a clause for the compensation of persons sustaining damage from the execution of them. Quære, whether in such a case an action will lie against the lessor before a reasonable time has elapsed for the restoration of the wall by him? and held, that even if so, an action would be maintainable before such reasonable time had elapsed, he having on application contested his liability to do repairs, and given an unqualified refusal to do them. In such an action the lessee, after such refusal, having rebuilt an external wall, is entitled to recover the cost thereof, the jury having found that this was the proper mode of restoring it.

He may also recover the price of damage done to plate-glass and fixtures, in consequence of the sinking of the wall. But the lessee cannot recover the rent paid by him for the occupation of other premises during the progress of the repairs, though during that time the demised premises were not safely habitable. Green v. Eales, 1 G. & D. 468.

(Farm, p. 1244.)

Where the defendant entered into a bond with his creditors, stipulating for not selling or carrying any manure off the farm, and having sold off his stock, he permitted the purchaser to let two cows remain on the farm, the latter finding them provender, and who removed the manure made by them to his own land; held a breach of the condition of the bond. Hindle v. Pollett, 6 M. & W. 529.

Where the defendant entered on premises under an assignment of a void lease, and continued to occupy and pay the rent until the term expired, he was held to be liable to the stipulations in the lease to repair, the damages to be estimated according to the state at the end of the lease. Beale v. Sanders, 3 Bing. N. C. 850.

Where allotments, fenced in by the commissioners, were made to an incumbent upon an inclosure, which at his death were out of repair; held that such allotments followed the same rule as the ancient glebe land, and that his executors were liable for such dilapidations. Bird v. Relph, 2 Ad. & Ell. 773; 4 Nev. & M. 878.

Case for mismanaging a farm, &c. contrary to the custom of the country, plea traversing that the defendant was such tenant to the plaintiff, modo et formâ; held, that upon this issue, which put only in issue a tenancy in fact, the plaintiff was not obliged to produce the lease to show that the terms of it were consistent with the alleged obligation to cultivate according to the custom. Hallifax v. Chambers, 7 Dowl. 343; and 4 M. & W. 661.

Where the declaration, in case against a tenant from year to year, charged a voluntary waste, and the evidence was of permissive waste only, the Court made a rule for a nonsuit absolute. Martin v. Gilham, 2 N. & P. 568; and 7 Ad. & Ell. 540.

(Removal of Fixtures, p. 1245.)

The defendant's testator was the surviving lessee, under a renewed lease, of certain salt-works, which renewed lease recited the former lease, and also the fact that the lessees "had erected and set up divers engines, machines, roads, and other conveniences, as well for the use and for the convenience as for the managing and carrying on at, in, or upon the said demised premises the trade or business of rock salt, or rock salt getters and refiners, or manufacturers of white salt," and contained a demise of "all and every the messuages, dwelling-houses, wick-houses, salt-works, erections, buildings, and other matters and things since made at, in, or upon, or under the said demised premises for the use and convenience of carrying on the said demised trades," and a covenant by the lessee to keep and maintain in good and sufficient repair "the buildings, kays, and works then standing and being on the premises, and all and every other such edifices and engines as should be at any time during the term erected, set up, built or made in or upon the demised premises," and, at the determination of the term, to deliver up "all the premises mentioned to be thereby demised, and all such buildings, kays, works, edifices and engines, in good and complete repair and condition;" held that salt pans in which the brine was manufactured into salt, and pipes by which the brine was conveyed from the salt springs to the brine pits —the salt pans being made of plates of iron, supported upon brick-work, and having rings on their sides by which they were lifted off to be repaired —the pipes being metal pipes, partly carried under ground and partly along troughs supported by tressels—were not removable by the lessees at the expiration of the term. Earl Mansfield v. Blackburne, 8 Scott, 720.

Where the tenant erected staddles with stone caps, and placed thereon a wooden and thatched building, connected in no other way than by resting the beams on the staddles, and might be taken to pieces and removed without injury to the soil; held, that the tenant was entitled to remove them, and might maintain trover for the materials. Wansborough v. Maton, 6 N. & M. 367; and 4 Ad. & Ell. 884; and see R. v. Otley, 1 B. & Ad. 161.

In trespass by a lessor against the lessee, the issue being whether a cornice of wood fixed by screws was removable by law; held that it raised a question of fact, and not of law, and that the Judge properly directed the jury as to the fact of removal without substantial injury as a test of its being so affixed that it could be removed without injury to the freehold. Avery v. Chesslyn, 5 Nev. & M. 372; 3 Ad. & Ell. 75.

The right of a tenant to remove tenant's fixtures continues only during his original term, and during such further period of possession by him as he holds the premises under a right still to consider himself as tenant. Where, therefore, the term, pursuant to a proviso in the lease, was forfeited by the bankruptcy of the lessee, and the lessor entered upon the assignees, in order to enforce the forfeiture, and three weeks afterwards the assignees of the lessee, still continuing in possession, removed and sold a fixture put up by the lessee for the purposes of trade; and the jury found that it was not removed within a reasonable time after the entry of the lessor; it was held, that they had no right so to remove it, and that the lessor might recover it in trover. And semble, such would have been the case even without such finding of the jury. Weeton v. Woodcock, 7 M. & W. 14.

Fixtures in a leasehold pass under a devise of a testator's household furniture. Paton v. Sheppard, 10 Sim. 186.

(Wastes, p. 1248.)

The presumption is that strips of land adjoining on highways belong to the owners of the adjoining inclosures. Scoones v. Morrell, 1 Beav. 250; supra, 1125.

Where a tenant annexes to his farm part of the waste, it enures to the benefit of the landlord. Doe v. Murrell, 8 C. & P. 135; supra, 696.

WATERCOURSE.

In the absence of a special custom, artificial watercourses are not distinguishable in law from natural ones; and a title may be gained by twenty years' user, as well to the former as the latter. Mine-owners made an adit through their lands to drain the mine, which they afterwards ceased to work, and the owner of a brewery through whose premises the water flowed for twenty years after the working had ceased, had during that time used it for brewing; it was held, that he thereby gained a right to the undisturbed enjoyment of the water, and that mines could not afterwards be so worked as to pollute it. Quære, whether a universal practice in the neighbourhood to resume the use of such adit waters, for mining purposes, after a long interval, might not have been set up in answer to the claim of easement, thereby raising the inference that the party claiming used the water, not of right, but only during the accidental disuse of the adit, and with knowledge that the mine-owners reserved to themselves a power to recommence working, and thereby disturbing the waters. Mayor v. Chadwick, 11 A. & E. 571; and 3 P. & D. 367.

The use of a right to water, claimed for the purpose of watering cattle, and also for the more convenient use and enjoyment of a messuage, is not, it seems, a profit à prendre from the soil of another, but a mere easement, and claimable by custom. Manning v. Wasdale, 1 N. & P. 172.

(Sea Shore, &c., p. 1254, note (x).

For Spring Tides, read High Tides.

(Sea-shore, p. 1254.)

By an Act of Parliament, reciting that a certain tract of land, daily overflowed by the sea, and to which the King, in right of his Crown, claimed title, might be rendered productive if embanked, and that his Majesty had consented to such embankment, a part of the said land, called Lipson Bay, was granted to a company for that purpose; on one side of the bay was the northern side of an estate called Lipson Ground, forming an irregular declivity, in parts perpendicular, and in parts sloping down to the seashore, and overgrown with brushwood and old trees. The company, in embanking the bay, made a drain on this side in the same direction with the cliff, cutting through it in parts, but leaving several recesses of small extent between the projecting points. These recesses used to be overspread with sea-weed and beach, and were covered by the high water of the ordinary spring tides, but not by the medium tides. Held, in the absence of proof as to acts of ownership, that the soil of these recesses must be presumed to have belonged to the owner of the adjoining estate, and not to the Crown, and did not therefore pass to the embankment company by the Act of Parliament. Lowe v. Govett, 3 B. & Ad. 863.

Upon an issue whether certain defendants had wrongfully fished for salmon, by means of stake-nets placed in situations prohibited by statute, where the question was, what was to be considered "river," and what "sea," a direction that the thing to be looked to is the fact of the absence or the prevalence of the fresh water, though strongly impregnated with salt, is erroneous. The mouth of a river comprehends the whole space between the lowest ebb and the highest flood mark. Horne and another v. Mackenzie and another, 6 Cl. & Fi. 628.

Where the sea had, by gradual encroachment upon the land of a subject, covered and washed away the part formerly uncovered, so as to render it undistinguishable from the foreshore; held, that it became the property of the Crown. Hull and Selby Railway, in re, 5 M. & W. 327. And see R. v. Lord Harborough, 3 B. & Cr. 91; and Scratton v. Brown, 4 B. & C. 485.

In trespass, the plaintiff claimed to the whole extent of the bed of a river between his and the defendant's close; evidence of acts of ownership by the plaintiff as to adjoining parts being a continuous part of the plaintiff's estate is admissible. Jones v. Williams, 3 M. & W. 327; and see Doe v. Kemp, 2 Bing. N. C. 102.

A right of ferry is a matter in which the public are so interested as to make evidence of reputation relating thereto admissible. Price v. Currell, 6 M. & W. 234.

The establishment of a new ferry is actionable, whether the party intend to defraud the grantee of the ferry or not. Huzzey v. Field, 2 C. M. & R. 432.

(Fishery, p. 1254.)

In trespass for breaking, &c., it appearing that the plaintiff's close, in which, &c. was a public navigable river, plea, justifying the taking under a public right of fishing and dredging for oysters and oyster spat, replication that oyster spat was unfit for food; a rejoinder that the public had a right of fishery for oyster spat in a public river, was held bad on demurrer, oyster spat being in the nature of spawn, and within the prohibition of 13 Ric. 2, st. 1, c. 19. Maldon Mayor, &c. v. Woolvet, 4 P. & D. 26.

(Fishery several, what, p. 1254.)

See Salk. 637. Smith v. Kemp; Seymour v. Lord Courteney, 5 Burr. 2814. It is a several fishery where no other has a co-extensive right. Qu. Whether the right of soil be essential.

(Sea-Wall, p. 1254.)

The liability to repair a sea-wall, ratione tenuræ, may not be limited to such as are sufficient to resist ordinary tides and weather, and the orders of commissioners, made long back, are admissible evidence of the extent of the liability of those who are bound by precedent, prescription, customs, and tenures. R. v. Leigh and others, 2 P. & D. 357.

WAY.

(Title, p. 1255.)

See as to the presumption of a grant, R. v. Scarisbrick; Doe v. Kemp, 2 Bing. N. C. 102.

From a covenant in the defendant's lease to contribute, with other occupiers of the lessor's property, a rateable proportion of the expense of keeping up paths used in common between them, coupled with the fact that the plaintiff had always used a path between his house and the defendant's, from a period anterior to the defendant's lease, and that there was no other path to which the covenant could apply, the Court inferred that the soil of the path which was included in the demise to the defendant, was demised, subject to a right of way, to the plaintiff. Oakley v. Adamson, 8 Bing. 356.

On a plea of right of way to a certain close, formerly part of an uninclosed common, the defendant proved the use of the way long before and since the Inclosure Act, under which the close had been allotted to the defendant's ancestor, the jury found the immemorial right; held, that it might fairly be inferred that the lord originally had the right, and that it passed, with the allotments, and the Court would not disturb the verdict. Codling v. Johnson, 9 B. & C. 933.

A reservation in a lease of a right of way on foot, and for horses, oxen, cattle, and sheep, does not give any right of way to load manure. Brunton v. Hall, 1 G. & D. 207.

See the distinctions of the Roman law as to the rights of "iter actus" or "via." "Qui sellâ aut lecticâ vehitur ire non agere dicitur, jumentum vero ducere non potest qui iter tantum habet. Qui actum habet et plaustrum ducere, et jumentum agere potest. Sed trahendi lapidem aut tignum neutri eorum est." L. vii. Off. de Serv. Præd. Rust.; and the note of the Reporters, 1 G. & D. 210.

In trespass quare clausum fregit, it appeared that B., being the owner of the locus in quo, and also of certain other land, with houses, and a stable, loft, and chaise-house, conveyed to A. a part of the premises, consisting of a house and land comprehending the locus in quo, reserving to himself, his heirs, &c., occupiers for the time being of a messuage (not conveyed) a right of way and passage over the locus in quo to a stable and loft over the same, and the space or opening under the loft, and then used as a woodhouse, and to the chaise-house standing on the side of the locus in quo (the stable, loft, woodhouse, and chaise-house, not being conveyed), and also the use of the locus in quo in common with A., his heirs, &c., and their tenants for the time being; it being expressed to be the intent of the parties that the whole of the yard comprehending the locus in quo should lie open and undivided, as the same then was, and be used in common by the occupiers of both messuages as the tenants thereof had been accustomed theretofore to use them. Afterwards B. built a cottage on the site of the opening under the loft: it was held, 1st. That the reservation of the use of the locus in quo did not authorise B. to use it for the purpose of passing to the cottage; 2d. That the reservation of the right of way was not limited to a right of passage to the space so long as it was used as a woodhouse, but gave a way generally to the space so described, while it was open; 3d. But that B. was not entitled to use that way for the purpose of passing to a newly erected cottage on that space. The defendant pleaded also a justification, under the use of the right of passing to the stable, loft, and chaise-house. The plaintiff new assigned, that the defendant had converted the loft and opening into the cottage, and ceased to use it as a woodhouse, and passed to the cottage, and broke, &c., for other purposes than in the plea mentioned. To which the defendant pleaded that such passing was done for the purposes mentioned in the reservation, and as the tenants of the messuage not conveyed had been accustomed to use the locus in quo, without this, that the defendant committed the trespasses newly assigned in manner, &c.; held, 1st. That the facts proved supported the new assignment; 2d. That, even if the facts had justified the use described in the new assignment, the defendant could not have had the verdict, inasmuch as the plea to the new assignment amounted only to not guilty, and not to a justification. Allan v. Gomme, 11 A. & E. 759.

The words, "with all ways thereto belonging, or in any wise appertaining," will not pass a way not strictly appurtenant, unless it can be collected that the parties intended to use the words in a larger than their ordinary legal sense; and it seems that such intention cannot be collected from anything dehors the deed. Barlow v. Rhodes, 1 Cr. & M. 439.

Where vacant land had been let on a building lease, which expired in 1824, and the plaintiff had become possessed of a house erected thereon, from an under-lessee, and had enjoyed therewith a right of using a passage adjoining for shooting coals into his cellar, and laying waterpipes thereto, and the original lessor had, pending the lease, granted a reversionary lease of the plaintiff's house to him, with all and singular the appurtenances, to hold from the day, &c. at which the original lease would end and determine; held, that the right of passage, and of using it for such purposes, passed under the reversionary lease as a necessary incident to the subject-matter demised, although not specially named in it, and that upon the expiration of the original lease, the lessor never having for a moment a right of possession, such easement was not extinguished by any unity of possession. Hinchliffe v. Earl of Kinnoul, 5 Bing. N. C. 2; and 6 Sc. 650.

Trespass for entering a close, &c.; plea, that before the plaintiff had any title therein, A. was seised in fee of that and certain other closes, of which the plaintiff's close was then parcel, and by himself and tenants, during all that time, used and enjoyed a right of way over the part, being plaintiff's close, to the other closes, and that A. afterwards conveyed the defendant's closes, "together with all ways and appurtenances whatsoever thereunto belonging;" it was held, that the way not being appurtenant at the time of the conveyance the defendant should have pleaded that he was enfeoffed of the close and way, or that there was no way appurtenant in alieno solo. Wilson v. Bagshaw, 5 M. & Ry. 448.

(Stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, p. 1257.)

Pleas in trespass, claiming a foot and carriage-way enjoyed for 20 years, under 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71; replication traversing so much of the plea as claimed the carriage-way, and as to the residue of the plea, before the commencement of the 20 years, the making of a haling-path by a navigation company under a private Act across the locus in quo into B. field, and that the occupiers enjoyed a way along the said path, under and by virtue of the said Act, and that after the commencement of 20 years, under the powers of another Act, a towing-path nearer the river was made, also across the said locus in quo into B. field, and that the company thereupon abandoned the former path, and which ceased to be used; the replication then alleged that before and at the commencement of the 20 years, the occupiers of B. field used as of right, &c. a way along the first haling-path, by and under the provision of the first Act, which ceased and determined on the abandonment, but from that time until when, &c. the occupiers of the B. field continued to use the same way as a continuation of the former right; held, on demurrer, that the replication was good, as pleading facts showing that the right claimed was not such as would be inferred to exist by custom, prescription or non-existing grant, within the meaning of the 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71. ss. 2, 3: the right of way along the haling-path continuing only so long as that existed, and ceasing with it. Kinloch v. Neville, 6 M. & W. 795.

In trespass, the plea alleged the user of a way for 40 years as of right without interruption, the replication traversed the user as of right; held that evidence of the user having been by leave and license was admissible, and a new trial was refused. Beasley v. Clarke, 2 Bing. N. C. 705.

Where the Act authorised the commissioners to divert and stop up public and private roads, and to prepare and sign a map describing them, and to hold a meeting for hearing objections in which they were to be assisted by a justice of the division, who, with the commissioners, might alter or confirm the map; and it provided that all roads not so set out and confirmed, should be extinguished, but by a proviso, no roads passing through old enclosures were to be diverted or stopped up, but by an order of two justices, under their hands and seals, which was to be subject to appeal; held that old roads not set out and confirmed by the commissioners, but which passed partly through old enclosures and partly over the lands to be enclosed, were not extinguished by not being set out in the map or award. The Act requiring also, that the order of justices should stop up, &c., if upon the view they were satisfied of their being unnecessary: held, that an order stating that the justices had particularly viewed, &c. and being satisfied, that they unnecessarily did order, &c., was invalid, if not appearing on the face of it that they were upon the view satisfied, &c., the allegation of a particular view not necessarily extending over the whole. R. v. Marquis of Downshire, 6 N. & M. 92.

Where a canal company originally erected a bridge for the use of the tenants of particular lands, but for 10 years the public had crossed it without interruption: held, that it was properly left to the jury to say whether the company intended or not to dedicate it to the public, and the jury having so found, the Court, in the absence of any misdirection in law, refused to interfere with such finding. Surrey Canal Company v. Hall, 1 Sc. N. S. 264; and 1 M. & G. 382.

(Variance, p. 1258.)

It is not necessary to describe all the intervening closes between the premises; plea that defendant was seised in fee of land next adjoining to one of the said closes in which, &c., and in right of said land claimed a way from the said land unto and into, through, over, and along the said closes in which, &c., to a common highway, proof of a presumptive right of way from the defendant's land over the land of third persons, and thence into the plaintiff's land, and into a common highway; it was held that the plea was proved, although it also appeared that part of the defendant's land adjoined to one of the plaintiff's closes, and that the defendant had by permission sometimes used a way from that part of his land over the plaintiff's adjoining closes as well as the way in question.

Description of a footpath as "a road towards and unto the parish church of O.," sufficient, although it in fact made a circuitous angle, no part of it being to be retraced in going to the church. R. v. Downshire, Marq. of, 5 N. & M. 662.

To a declaration in trespass quare clausum fregit, the defendant pleaded a right of way in the close in which, &c.; the plaintiff new assigned extra the way in the plea mentioned, to which the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff obstructed the way in the plea mentioned, wherefore the defendant deviated; the plaintiff replied de injuriâ; held, that on this record, the plaintiff was entitled to apply the evidence to a way across the close which he admitted, and which had not been obstructed; and that the defendant could not prove his case by showing that another way which he claimed across the close, which was disputed by plaintiff, had been obstructed. Ellison v. Isles, 11 A. & E. 665.

Where in trespass, issues were joined, 1st, on a right of public carriage-way; 2d, of a bridle-way; and 3d, of a footway, and the jury found on the first for the plaintiff, and on the third for defendant, and were discharged as to the second without the plaintiff's consent; held, that the second issue was material, and a new trial was granted, although the plaintiff had consented to merely nominal damages. Tinkler v. Rowland, 4 A. & E. 808.

(Public Way.)

An action cannot be maintained for a nuisance to a public highway, unless some special damage can be alleged and proved. Fineux v. Horendon, Cro. Eliz. 664; Hubert v. Groves, 1 Esp. C. 148.

But it is sufficient to show that the business of a shopkeeper, whose shop adjoins the obstructed highway has been injured by the unlawful obstruction of passengers. Wilkes v. Hungerford Market Company, 2 Bing. N. C. 281; or that the plaintiff has been compelled to use a more circuitous or difficult way. Griesley v. Codling, Com. Dig. tit. Action on the Case for Nuisance.

And see Baker v. Moore, and Iveson v. Moore, 1 Lord Raym. 486; Rose v. Miles, 4 M. & S. 101; and Greasley v. Codling, 2 Bing. 263; questioning Hubert v. Groves, 1 Esp. C. 148.

(Competency.)

Per Patteson and Coleridge, Judges. On issue upon claim of way in right of occupation of the messuage and land of G., the occupier of a part of the house occupied by G. is not a competent witness to support the affirmative, though his part of the house have no communication with the part which G. occupies. Parker v. Mitchell, 11 A. & E. 788.

WILL.

(Secondary Evidence, p. 1268.)

Where a will, dated above thirty years, was produced from one of the testator's family, although not strictly a proper custody, and never proved; held, that it was not necessary to produce the subscribing witness. Doe v. Pearce, 2 Mo. & R. 240.

(Capacity, p. 1276.)

On an issue from the Court of Chancery to try whether A. B. was at a certain time of sound mind, the party affirming the soundness is entitled to begin. In such issues it will be presumed that the party ordered to be plaintiff was intended to begin. Frank v. Frank, 2 M. & R. 314.

On an issue as to the sanity of A., it cannot be asked whether a sister of A. was not insane. Doe v. Whitefoot, 8 C. & P. 272.

On an indictment for seditious words, and, upon the arraignment, an inquest being taken whether the prisoner were insane or not; held, that the jury might form their opinion from his demeanour without calling in the evidence of a medical man, and that it was not necessary for him to be asked if he would cross-examine the witnesses, or make any remarks to the jury on the evidence. R. v. Goode, 7 Ad. & Ell. 536.

The will dated and executed on the 15th November 1839, of a testator who was labouring under certain delusions on the three previous days to its execution, and who destroyed himself on the day following (the 16th) while under temporary insanity, pronounced for, and the costs of the Queen's Proctor, who opposed the will on behalf of the Crown, refused. Chambers & Yatman v. the Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt. 415.

Provisions made for the safe custody of persons insane, and having the purpose of committing indictable offences, by 1 & 2 Vict. c. 14.

(Revocation, p. 1285.)

The testator in a fit of displeasure threw his will, contained in an envelope, into the fire, but it was secretly withdrawn, and no part of the will itself burnt, of which he was afterwards aware, and expressed great annoyance, and an intention to make a new will instead thereof; held, in ejectment, by the heir for copyhold premises, that although, to satisfy the Statute of Frauds, there must have been a burning of the instrument to some extent to effect a revocation as to a devise of freehold, yet in the case of property not within the statute, it being a case of revocation at common law, it was a question of intention, evidence of which might be found in an imperfect act, or mere attempt, and that it was the province of a jury to say whether the facts proved amounted to a revocation. Doe v Harris, 2 N. & P. 615; and see S. C. 1 N. & P. 495.

Where the animus revocandi was clear, and the deceased had requested a friend to write to the executor in whose custody the will was, to destroy it, and it was accordingly forwarded to him, but did not arrive until after death; held to amount to a revocation reduced into writing in the deceased's lifetime, and satisfying the Statute of Frauds. Walcott v. Ochterlony, 1 Curt. 580.

Where a testatrix devised to a trustee and his heirs, estates, upon the trust and confidence that he would receive the rents, and pay the same to S. for life, and after her decease convey the estates to such uses as S. should appoint, and S. died in the lifetime of the testatrix, it was held, first, that the events did not operate as an implied revocation of the will; secondly, that the legal estate being vested in the trustee, the devise did not lapse; and, lastly, that as the trust could not cease until the conveyance by the trustee, the legal estate remained in him, and that the lessor of the plaintiff claiming as heir-at-law, could not recover in ejectment. Doe d. Shelley v. Edlin, 1 Nev. & P. 582.

(Implied Revocation, &c., p. 1287.)

The deceased died, on the 20th of April 1836, possessed of real and personal estate, together of the value of about 1,000,000*l.* Two papers (A.) and (B.), alleged to have been found, at the deceased's death, in his fast-locked repositories, annexed together by wafers, and sealed up in an envelope, indorsed, "The Will of James Wood, Esq., 2d and 3d December, 1834," were propounded as together containing the will. (A.), which was headed, "Instructions for the Will of me, James Wood, Esq., of Gloucester," was dated 2d of December 1834, and was signed by the deceased, but not attested, purported to appoint four gentlemen by name executors, to desire them to take possession of his personal estates, subject to the payment of debts, and "such legacies as I may hereafter direct," and to declare he would dispose of his real estates by writing indorsed thereon. Paper (B.), a separate paper, dated 3d December 1834, signed by the deceased and attested by three witnesses, began, "I, James Wood, Esq., do declare this to be my will, for disposing my estates, as directed by my instructions," gave all his real and personal estates "which I may not dispose of," and "subject to my debts, and to any legacies or bequests, of any part thereof, which I may hereafter make," &c. "to my executors," not naming or otherwise describing them. Both papers were very informal; were in the handwriting of one of the executors (the deceased's attorney), and ultimately appeared to have been, by such attorney, annexed together, sealed up in the envelope, indorsed, and locked up in the deceased's bureau during his last illness, and, without his directions or knowledge; it was held, that the presumption of law that instructions are superseded by the execution of a will was not repelled; that the two papers, not being published together as the will of the deceased, nor annexed with his knowledge, and (A.) not being unequivocally referred to in (B.), (A.) formed no part of the deceased's will; that, consequently, the interest of the four parties named in it as executors was at an end, and that there was no party before the Court with an admitted interest, who could propound (B.), pray probate of it, or administration with it annexed: the Court, therefore, pronounced against it, made no decree as to (B.), and condemned the parties propounding (A.) and (B.) in the costs of one of the next of kin. Another paper propounded as a codicil, by legatees named in it, opposed by the asserted executors and by all the next of kin, dated July 1835, alleged to be an holograph of and signed by the deceased, and to have been sent in an anonymous note, by the threepenny-post, to one of the legatees, leaving legacies amounting altogether to 210,000 l., and referring to a legacy in another codicil, not forthcoming; which paper was partially torn and partially burnt, and was alleged to have been so done, and other testamentary papers to have been destroyed, after the deceased's death, or in his lifetime unknown to him; held, that as the evidence of handwriting was contradictory, though the affirmative preponderated and the disposition was probable, the Court could not judicially pronounce the codicil to have been the act of the deceased, and consequently would not inquire whether it were cancelled or not, or, if cancelled, whether such cancellation was the act of the deceased. Wood & others v. Goodlake & others, 2 Curteis, 82. The judgment as to the third paper was afterwards reversed by the judicial committee of the Privy Council.

Where a will, traced to the testator's possession, is not forthcoming at his decease, the presumption is that he has destroyed it, and must prevail, unless there be evidence to repel it by raising a higher probability to the contrary, and the onus lies on the party propounding the revoked will. Welch v. Phillips, 1 Moore, 299 (reversing the judgment below).

Where, after executing a will of real and personal estate, the testator married, having made a settlement of the real estate, it was held that the marriage and birth of a child amounted to a revocation of the entire will. Israell v. Rodon, 2 Moore, 51.

Revocation of a will by marriage and the birth of a child (previously to the 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26), was held to take place in consequence of a principle of law, independently of any question of intention of the testator himself, consequently no evidence is admissible to rebut the presumption of law, nor can the circumstance of after-acquired property descending upon the child have any effect. Marston v. Roe, 2 Nev. & P. 504; affirming the judgment below, 8 Ad. & Ell. 14.

(Presumed Influence, p. 1829.)

The will of an aged person of doubtful capacity, prepared by a solicitor, who was appointed an executor and one of the residuary legatees, was pronounced against, and the parties propounding it condemned in costs. Bare execution in such a case is not sufficient. Durling & another v. Loveland, 2 Curt. 225.

(7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26, p. 1289.)

Where the will disposing of residue was executed in 1830, and a codicil was found at the death of the testatrix, who died in 1839, without date, containing a direction and referring to the execution of a power as to part of such residue, it was held, that in the absence of anything to show that it was executed after the passing of the 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26, the Court would presume it to have been executed previously to the statute, and probate was decreed. Pechell v. Jenkinson, 2 Curt. 273.

Probate having been granted at the Cape of Good Hope of a will and an unattested codicil thereto, made there in March 1838 (the 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26, having come into operation on the 1st January of that year), by an officer in the East India Company's service, probate of both papers was also allowed to pass here. Foy, Wm. Henry, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 328.

(Signing at the Foot, &c. p. 1290.)

Probate was allowed of a will, concluding, "Signed and sealed as and for the will of me C. E. T. Woodington, in the presence of us Thomas Hughes, Ellen Hughes," as being signed at the foot or end thereof. Woodington, C. E. T., in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 324.

A testatrix signs her will with a mark, but her name does not appear; this is a sufficient signing under the stat. 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 9. Bryce, Eleanor, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 325. And see Taylor v. Dening, 3 N. & P. 229.

Where a party at the request of the testator (he being too ill to do it himself) signed the will for him, but in his own name, and not in that of the testator, which was duly attested, it was held to be a sufficient compliance with the statute. Clarke, in the Goods, &c., 2 Curt. 329.

The appointment of the executors in a will, being made in a clause after the signature of the testator, administration with the will annexed was granted to the residuary legatee, the clause appointing the executors not being part of the will. Howell, Thomas, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 342.

(Acknowledgment of Signature, p. 1290.)

The testatrix signed her will, and on a subsequent day sent for two witnesses to attest the same; upon their arrival they said that they were come for the purpose of signing their names as witnesses to her will, which was then produced, upon which the testatrix said, "I am glad of it, thank God," and they subscribed the will as witnesses; held, to be an acknowledgment of her signature by the deceased, under the 7 W. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 9. Warden, Mary, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 334.

The deceased signed her will, by a mark, in the presence of one witness who subscribed the will as attesting it, and on a subsequent day she acknowledged her signature in the presence of that witness and of another who also subscribed the will, but the former witness did not again subscribe the will; probate was refused. Allen, Ann, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 331.

The deceased signed her will, not in the presence of witnesses, and subsequently produced her will before two witnesses, and said to them, "Sign your names to this paper," held not to be an acknowledgment of her signature under the 9th section of stat. 7 W. 4 and 1 Vict. c. 26. Rawlins, Ann, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 326.

(In Presence, Sect. 9, p. 1290.)

A testator intending to execute a codicil, signed the same while lying in bed, there being present in the room two witnesses who attested the codicil; the curtains at the foot of the bed being drawn at the time, one of the witnesses could not actually see the testator sign his name, nor could the testator see that witness subscribe the codicil as attesting it; held, that the testator and the witness signed their names in the presence of each other, as required by the stat. 7 W. 4 and 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 9. Newton & another v. Clarke, 2 Curt. 320.

A motion for probate of a will signed by the deceased in the presence of two witnesses, present at the same time, who went into an adjoining room and signed their names, was rejected. In the Goods of Alexander Ellis, Esq., 2 Curt. 395.

(Sect. 10. p. 1290.)

Where by a settlement the wife had a power of disposing by any will "signed and published by her, and attested by two or more credible witnesses," and the attestation clause was as to her execution only, it was held, that evidence aliunde of actual publication not being admissible, the power was not well executed, and that the will therefore could not be pronounced for. George v. Reilly, 2 Curt. 1.

(Sect. 11, p. 1290.)

Where the purser of a man-of-war, whilst at sea, executed a codicil not attested, it was held to be within the exception of the 11th sect. of the 7 W. 4 and 1 Vict. c. 26, the term marine or seaman including superior officers. Hayes, in the Goods, &c., 2 Curt. 339.

The will of a seaman who went on shore, and there died in consequence of an accident, was allowed to pass as that of a seaman "at sea," under the stat. 7 W. 4 and 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 11. In the Goods of E. J. Lay, deceased, 2 Curt. 375.

An unattested will made by an officer on service at Berbice, was allowed to pass as that of a "soldier in actual military service," under 7 W. 4 and 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 11, at the prayer of the party whose interest was prejudiced by such will. In the Goods of Constantine Edward Phipps, 2 Curt. 368.

(Competency, Sect. 15.)

The testator's wife, being an executrix, is a good witness, although she would lose her legacy under the 15th sect. of the 7 W. 4 and 1 Vict. c. 26. Clarke, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 330.

(Sect. 20, Revocation, p. 1291.)

A cancellation of a will is not a revocation thereof, under the words "otherwise destroying" the same, in the stat. 7 W. 4 and 1 Viet. c. 26, s. 20. Stephens v. Taprell, 2 Curt. 458.

A testator having left two substantive wills, the latter disposing of the whole of his property, although not expressly revoking the former will, nor the appointment of executors therein, was held to have revoked the former, and to be alone the will of the testator. Henfrey v. Henfrey, 2 Curt. 468.

Cheques written in 1833 by the deceased upon his bankers, but not intended to have effect until after his death, pronounced for as part of the testamentary disposition of the deceased, he having in 1834 formally executed a will disposing of the whole of his property, and containing a full clause of revocation. Gladstone v. Tempest and others, 2 Curt. 650.

(Sect. 21, Alteration—Erasure, p. 1291.)

A testator, after the execution of his will, having partly erased the word four and substituted the word five, (the alteration not being attested as required by the statute 7 W. 4 and 1 Viet. c. 26,) probate of the will passed as it originally stood, the word four being sufficiently apparent upon the paper. In the Goods of James Beavan, deceased, 2 Curt. 369.

A testator duly executed his will with a legacy therein of fifty pounds to S. S.; subsequently to the execution the testator erased the word fifty and substituted the word thirty; this alteration being unattested, probate of the will passed in blank, the word fifty having been entirely erased. Rippin, Chas. N., in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 332.

Where the testator gave a legacy to his sister, the wife of F. B., or to such persons as E. B. should appoint, to the intent that the same might be for the separate use of E. B., and the receipt of the said E. B. to be a sufficient discharge, and the name "E. B." was afterwards drawn through with a pen, but as the description, and in some cases the name of E. B. remained uncancelled, it was held not to amount to a revocation. Martins v. Gardiner, 8 Sim. 73.

Where the testator having erased certain words and inserted others, wrote a memorandum stating what the words erased had been, but such memorandum was not attested, it was held to be inoperative, and the Court refused probate of the will as it originally stood. Brooke, in the Goods, &c. 2 Curt. 343.

(Execution of Power, p. 1292.)

A power in a married woman to dispose of certain property by will, to be signed and published by her in the presence of two witnesses, is not duly exercised by a paper (executed before the 1st January 1838) purporting to be signed and sealed as a will, in the presence of two witnesses, omitting to state in the attestation clause that it was published: but as the power did not require that the will should be attested, parole evidence was admitted to show that publication had taken place; the evidence, however, on that point being insufficient, the Court pronounced against the paper. Walters v. Mayford, 2 Curt. 221.

A married woman having under her marriage settlement a power to dispose of property "by will to be published by her in the presence of and to be attested by two credible witnesses," published her will in the presence of two witnesses, who attested the same, one of those witnesses being the wife of the executor, who was also a legatee under the will, and had not renounced or released his legacy. Probate granted, leaving the question as to the due execution of the power open. Biggar, Sarah, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 336.

(Presumptive Evidence of due Attestation, p. 1294.)

Probate was allowed of a will executed in India, and attested by two witnesses, but without a full attestation clause, the Court presuming that the statute had been complied with. Johnson, John, in the Goods of, 2 Curt. 341.

(Donatio Causâ Mortis.)

Where the obligee of a bond, five days before his death, gave it to a niece and signed a memorandum amounting to an immediate and absolute assignment of it, it was held, that in the absence of evidence of how it came into the donee's possession, and the assignment being unconditional and not importing that it was to be restored if the donor should recover, it was not to be deemed a donatio causâ mortis, and a bill praying that the donee might be declared entitled, was dismissed. Edwards v. Jones, 7 Sim. 325; affirmed, 1 My. & Cr. 226.

Where A. the donor, delivered a cash box to B., the donee, desiring him to go after his death to his son for the key, and stating that the box contained money to be entirely at B.'s disposal, but that he should want it every three months as long as he lived, and it was twice delivered back, but was in B.'s possession at the time of the death, the key being in the son's possession, ticketed in the name of B., it was held not to be a sufficient donatio causâ mortis, nor such a trust for B. as the Court would execute. Reddel v. Dobree, 10 Sim. 244.

WINDOWS.

In case for a nuisance against the occupier of adjoining premises, the plaintiff is bound, upon the general issue, to show that the defendant occupied, and was the party causing the nuisance. Dawson v. Moore, 7 C. & P. 25.

In case for obstructing ancient lights, it was held that a party might so alter the mode in which he had been permitted to enjoy the easement, as to lose the right altogether; where evidence as to the alteration in the mode of enjoyment had not been put for the consideration of the jury, a new trial was granted. Garritt v. Sharpe, 4 Nev. & M. 834; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 325.

In case for darkening windows by building against them, it appeared that, in 1816, the land whereon the plaintiff's windows were, had been conveyed as a parcel of arable land, and that it was, two or three years afterwards, sold to a party, who built a cottage thereon; that such party having entered without any conveyance, afterwards contracted to sell it, and the vendee obtained from the owner of the adjoining land a few feet additional on one side of the cottage, and that a conveyance of the entire premises was, in 1822, made by all proper parties, and the purchaser carried out his building to the extremity of the land, and inserted a window at one end, and substituted, where there had before been only a passage, windows at the other end, not in the same places, but in the same direction as before; held that there not having been acquiescence for 20 years, there was nothing in the grant made by the owner of the adjoining lands which could be converted into a licence, or preclude him from building on his own land, although, in so doing, he obstructed the newly-erected window. Blanchard v. Bridges, 5 N. & M. 567.

WORK AND LABOUR.

Special Contract.

If an agreement cannot be read in evidence for want of a stamp, the plaintiff cannot recover the value of the work and labour to which the agreement refers, although the defendant may have had the benefit of it. Hughes v. Budd, 8 Dowl. 478.

(Indebitatus Assumpsit, p. 1296.)

R. having undertaken, by a written contract, to build for the Corporation of Henley a house on a farm occupied by A., engaged S. to do the carpenter's work; and the following agreement was made and signed by R. and S., and witnessed by A.:—"It having been arranged that A. shall build a new house on the farm occupied by Mr. A., it is hereby agreed and understood between the said R. and S., that S. shall do all the carpenter's work, &c. under the inspection and control of the said A., and that the amount of the said work shall be paid by Mr. A. to S. only, and that this agreement shall be his guarantee for so doing." On the same day, A. wrote to S. as follows: "It having been agreed that R. shall build a new house on the farm occupied by me, and that by an agreement this day shown me between you and S. you are to do the carpenter's work, &c., and that the payment, when done, is to be made by me to you, and to no other person, according to plan and specification, I hereby undertake to pay the same, by having a proper discharge": held, that S. having done the work, could not maintain an action of indebitatus assumpsit for work and labour against A. for the value of it. Sweeting v. Asplin, 7 M. & W. 165.

Where the plaintiff has contracted to do certain work for a specified sum, he cannot maintain an action for the value of the work done, on the ground of fraud in the representation by the defendant of the quantity; for, as to the work, he must recover on the contract, although he might sue for the deceit. Selway v. Fogg, 5 M. & W. 83.

In assumpsit on a contract for services, at a salary after the rate, &c. per annum, determinable at a month's notice, alleging a dismissal without notice, whereby the plaintiff lost all wages which he might have earned if continued in the service, he can only recover as damages the wages of one month, and for the arrears due he can only recover in a separate count for work and labour. Hartley v. Harman, 3 P. & D. 567; and 11 Ad. & Ell. 798.

After an agreement at an annual salary, proof of acceptance by quarterly payments, is sufficient to authorize a jury to infer an agreement to pay quarterly; held also, that a master may avail himself of a lawful cause of dismissal, whether the dismissal proceeded on that ground or not; it is sufficient that he should have sufficient cause previously to the dismissal. Ridgway v. Hungerford Market Co., 4 N. & M. 797; and 3 Ad. & Ell. 171.

In an action for works done extra, upon a building contract, the plaintiff must produce the written contract, to enable the jury to see what are extras. Jones v. Howell, 4 Dowl. 176.

Where the jury found the hiring to be by the year, but that the wages were payable quarterly, and the plaintiff having been dismissed had, after tender and refusal of his services, brought an action before the quarter for which he claimed to be paid had expired, it was held, that he could not maintain the action for service done and performed. Smith v. Hayward, 2 Nev. & P. 432; and see Archard v. Hornor, 3 C. & P. 349; Gandell v. Pontigny, 4 Campb. 375.

In debt, for work and labour as a performer at the defendant's theatre, a letter from the defendant, "that the plaintiff must be contented with his present salary until I know what turn the season takes;" was held to be an admission of the plaintiff's being in his service, and not requiring any stamp as an agreement. It appeared also that the plaintiff was to be paid for certain nights, although there should be no performance; held that he should have declared for arrears of salary as a hired performer, but the Judge permitted the declaration to be amended; and a payment having been made without expressing it to be on any particular account, it was held that the plaintiff was at liberty to apply it to any part of his demand really due, and to recover for the rest of his claim. Frazer v. Bunn, 8 C. & P. 704.

The causing a servant to be sent to prison on a charge afterwards abandoned, was held not to amount to a dissolution of the contract, and that the party was therefore entitled to the wages which would have accrued in the interval, until actual dismissal. Smith v. Kingsford, 3 Sc. 279.

A contract for service at a yearly salary is, by resignation on the part of the plaintiff and acceptance on the part of the defendant, put an end to in the middle of a quarter; whether the servant be or be not entitled to recover pro rata, is a question for the jury. Lamburn v. Cruden, 2 Scott's N. S. 533.

By a memorandum contained in a letter, the plaintiff agreed to enter into the defendant's service as manager, and "the amount of payment I am to receive I leave entirely to you to determine;" it was held, (diss. Parke, B.) to imply that, at all events, something was to be paid, and that on a quantum meruit, it was for the jury to decide the value of the services performed. Bryant v. Flight, 5 M. & W. 114.

Where there was no proof of any hiring, but only of service, and payments had been made without reference to any definite period or yearly amount, and the plaintiff left in the middle of the year from sickness, and was never required to return, it was held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover upon a quantum meruit. Bayley v. Rimmell, 1 M. & W. 506; and 1 T. & G. 806.

(Credit to whom, &c., p. 1301.)

Where a local committee is formed for the purpose of forwarding the project of an intended railway, they are the persons who are liable to pay the salaries of their secretary, &c., unless it be shown that the secretary &c. agreed to look to some other fund for payment. Kerridge v. Hesse, 9 C. & P. 200.

Where the captain alone of the owners signed the articles, and the seamen agreed thereby to sue him alone, it was held that they could maintain no action against the other owners, although such owners received and sold the proceeds of the voyage, and adjusted and paid the seamen their wages; held also, that the seamen having, after remonstrance against certain deductions, usual in trading voyages, accepted the balance struck, and signed a receipt for the whole wages, they could not afterwards sue for such deductions, and that it was not necessary that such deductions should be made the subject of a set-off. M'Auliffe v. Bicknell, 2 Cr. M. & R. 263.

Where a father, on the marriage of his daughter, executed an appointment of a sum which was settled on the marriage, the expense of the settlement was paid by the husband, but he refused to pay for the expense of the deed of appointment, it was held not to be a matter of usage, but for the jury to say to whose credit the business was done. Hayward v. Fiott, 3 C. & P. 59.

(Performance, p. 1303.)

Where the ship was in extreme danger, and the service occupied five days, and was performed with great perseverance and skill, 1,000*l.* were awarded out of a value of 4,600*l.*, and 100*l.* to a second smack, with the expenses. Almon, 3 Hagg. 254.

See further as to salvage, case of the Thetis, 3 Hagg. 14; William Hamilton, ib. 168; London Merchant, ib. 394; Nicholaas Witzen, ib. 369; Dantzig Packet, ib. 383.

Where a ship was chartered for an outward voyage to I., and homeward, either from a port or ports in I., or from a port in S., to a port in the United Kingdom, and provided that if she should be required to go to two or more ports in I., 25*l.* more should be paid, and in case she should be ordered to S., 4*l.* should be paid for every day after the twenty-fifth day of arrival at I. until dispatched from the loading port, it was held, that the going to S. from I. was not to be deemed an intermediate voyage, but that having gone for the homeward voyage to S., that was to be deemed the homeward voyage, and that the 4*l.* per day extra time was payable. Crozier v. Smith, 1 Sc. N. S. 338; and 1 M. & G. 407.

Where the ship was detained after the loading was complete, by the ice preventing her sailing, it was held that the charterer was not liable for the detention. Pringle v. Mollett, 6 M. & W. 80.

See further as to freight, Cockburn v. Wright, 6 Bing. N. C. 223; Capper v. Forster, 3 Bing. N. C. 938; Tobin v. Crawford, 5 M. & W. 235; Mitchell v. Darthez, 2 Bing. N. C. 555; 2 Scott, 771.

Where the contract was silent as to demurrage, it was held, that damages occasioned by unreasonable detention could only be recovered under a special count. Horn v. Bensusan, 9 C. & P. 709; and 2 Mo. & R. 326.

(Commission, Custom, &c. p. 1307.)

The practice was found by the jury to be for the broker to receive five per cent. commission for obtaining freight, where there is no special agreement, or unless the ship be chartered on a tender. Brown v. Nairne, 9 C. & P. 204.

The usage is, that when a broker has introduced the captain of a ship and a merchant together, and they by his means enter into some negotiation as to the intended voyage, the broker is entitled to commission, if a charter-party be effected between them for that voyage, even though they may employ another broker to prepare the charter-party, or may write the charter-party themselves. Burnett v. Bouch, 9 C. & P. 620.

If a broker be authorized by both parties, and acting as the agent of each, communicate to the merchant what the shipowner charges, and also communicate to the shipowner what the merchant will give, and he name the ship and the parties, so as to identify the transaction, and a charter-party be ultimately effected for that voyage, this broker is entitled to his commission; but if he do not mention the names so as to identify the transaction, he does not get his commission to the exclusion of another broker, who afterwards introduced the parties personally to each other. Ib.

Where the jury found the usage for architects, employed to provide plans and estimates, to be assisted by surveyors to make out the quantities, who are paid by the successful competitor, it was held, that the defendants, who employed an architect and made no objection to the charge, having, by declining to go on with the work, prevented competition, were liable for the surveyor's charges on the implied authority of their architect to employ him. Moon v. Witney Guardians, 3 Bing. N. C. 814.

In assumpsit for work and attendances at Somerset House, on the inspection of patterns of goods, for the sale of which the plaintiff was the defendant's commission agent, it was held, that if the jury considered such attendances to be within the course of the plaintiff's duty as agent, he was paid by his commission, and not entitled to recover beyond; the jury found for the defendant. Marshall v. Parsons, 9 C. & P. 656.

The plaintiff was employed so sell ground rents by auction, on the terms of receiving a commission of one per cent "on sale." After he had advertized the sale, but before the day of sale, the defendant sold the ground rents by private contract. Three auctioneers proved the custom of the trade to be that after an auctioneer was employed and the property advertized by him, he was entitled to the full commission on a sale being effected, although not effected through his direct agency. The question left to the jury was, whether this custom was so notorious that the defendant must have known it; and that if so, it was engrafted on the contract. The jury found for the plaintiff for the full commission. Rainy v. Vernon, 9 C. & P. 559.

Where the plaintiff with others was employed as land agent to sell the defendant's estates, and a party inquiring of the plaintiff as to one estate, was told that it was out of the market, but the plaintiff mentioned that of the defendant being to be sold, and gave him a particular, and the party afterwards concluded a bargain for it with another agent, it was held, that the plaintiff might be said to have found the purchaser, and was entitled to such commission as the jury should think proper. Murray v. Currie, 7 C. & P. 584.

Where one broker procured the cargo, and afterwards obtained the freight, and another, also referred to by the shipowner, cleared out the ship, and paid the charges, it was held that, by the usage, he must share the commission, and could not sue the shipowner. The usage and general course of business must be proved by witnesses speaking to instances in which, to their own knowledge, it has been acted upon. Hall v. Benson, 7 C. & P. 711.

The broker was held to be entitled to his commission on the sale of a ship, where up to a certain point he acted as middleman, although the contract was completed without his instrumentality: but the mere fact of his having introduced the parties, unless the negotiation proceeds thereupon, would not be sufficient to entitle him to it. Wilkinson v. Martin, 8 C. & P. 1.

The custom is that when butty colliers leave off working a coal mine, without giving notice, they are not entitled to be paid for gate roading, air heading or coals undergone; but if they leave after having given notice, they are entitled to be paid for these things by the owner of the mine; and if the mine be not worked, they are not bound to wait till the working is recommenced, and to be then paid by the succeeding butty collier. Bannister v. Bannister, 9 C. & P. 743.

(Defence, Dismissal, &c. p. 1308.)

Upon a special plea in an action for dismissing the plaintiff under a contract for service, justifying the dismissal, the defendant was held to have the right to begin. Harnett v. Johnson, 9 C. & P. 206.

Where the defendant had retained the plaintiff as French teacher in his school, at a yearly salary, it was held, that his having absented himself for two days on the expiration of the vacation, was not such a breach of duty arising out of the contract, express or implied, as could justify the defendant in putting an end to it. Fillieul v. Armstrong, 2 N. & P. 406.

Where an acting manager conducted himself so indifferently and improperly as to make his continuance in the duties injurious to the success of the concern, it was held that he might be lawfully dismissed; held also, that the representation made by the stage-manager to the audience, as to the success of the season, was admissible against the lessee or proprietor upon that subject. Lacy v. Osbaldiston, 8 C. & P. 80.

Where a salaried clerk claimed to be recognized as a partner with his employer, it was held to be a sufficient ground for dismissal, and that without notice. Amor v. Fearon, 1 P. & D. 398.

In case for wrongfully discharging from the defendant's service, a plea, that the party obstinately refused to work, wherefore he discharged, &c., was held to be bad, as not showing a disobedience of reasonable commands of the defendant. Jacquot v. Bourra, 7 Dowl. 348.

If a master carpenter send his men from London to work at a gentleman's house in the country, he may dismiss them for improper conduct, although it does not amount to either moral misconduct, wilful disobedience, or habitual neglect; and where, in such a case, a journeymen was found in one of the preserves of the gentleman at whose house the work was done, after a caution had been given to him to keep the paths, and upon complaint by the gentleman, the master dismissed the journeyman, the Judge left it to the jury to say whether the master was not justified in such dismissal. Read v. Dunsmore, 9 C. & P. 588.

Where the plaintiff ordered specifically a machine of which the plaintiff was the patentee, "to be put up in his brewhouse," which the plaintiff accordingly put up, but it was found not to answer the purpose of a brewhouse, it was held, that there being no fraud, and the contract containing no guarantee that it was fit for such purpose, the plaintiff was entitled to recover the stipulated price. Chanter v. Hopkins, 4 M. & W. 399.

By the stat. 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 37, s. 5, in an action brought by any of the artificers enumerated in that statute for the recovery of his wages, no set-off or claim to reduction by his employer shall be allowed, by reason or in respect of goods supplied, or on account of wages, or of any goods, &c. sold, delivered, or supplied to such artificer at any shop kept by or belonging to such employer, or in the profits of which he shall have any share or interest.

(Order to View, &c.)

In an action for work and labour, a Judge has no power to make an order for the plaintiff or his witnesses to enter the defendant's premises, in order to inspect the work done. Turquand and another, Assignees of Taylor, a Bankrupt, v. The Guardians of the Strand Union, 8 Dowl. 201.

(Summary Jurisdiction.)

It is not necessary to show a yearly hiring to bring a party within the benefit of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 48; but it must be more than a weekly one. Collier, ex parte, 4 D. & Ch. 520; denying the accuracy of ex parte Skinner, 3 ib. 332.

Upon an information before Justices for non-payment of wages, under 20 Geo. 2, c. 19, and 4 Geo. 4, c. 34, it was held, 1st, that it must appear upon the information that the relation of master and servant exists, and 2dly, that the 5 Geo 4, c. 18, applying only to penalties and forfeitures, justices have no power to commit for non-payment of the sum adjudged to be due. Wiles v. Cooper, 5 N. & M. 276; and 3. Ad. & Ell. 524.

The jurisdiction under 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 19, s. 15, extends only to the case of quantum of wages, and not to questions of law, as of forfeiture, &c., and appearance under protest was overruled. Edwin, 3 Hagg. 365.

WRITS, Forms of.

See R. G. 1 Scott, N.S. 7.

WRIT OF INQUIRY.

When a counsel has been present at the trial of an issue on a writ of trial, the Court will take a statement of what occurred at the trial, from the counsel, on moving to set aside the verdict, without the production of the notes taken by the presiding officer. Flower v. Adams, 8 Dowl. 292.

The Court will not, at the instance of the sheriff, stay the execution of a writ of inquiry on a judgment by default, in an action for a libel, on the ground that the House of Commons has voted the libel to be a privileged publication, and that all persons concerned in bringing any action in respect of such publication are guilty of a breach of the privileges of that House. Stockdale v. Hansard, 8 Dowl. 148.

INDEX.

ABANDONMENT,
notice of, where necessary, iii. 880.
proof of, ib.

ABATEMENT.
onus probandi, ii. 1. See Onus Probandi.
usually lies on the defendant, ii. 1.
the practice has not been uniform, ib.
is discretionary with the court, ib.
when convenient that the plaintiff should begin, ib.
when plaintiff begins, should go into the whole of his case, ib.
issue on plea of; right to begin, ii. 1.
on plea that assignees ought to be joined, ii. 1.
may depend on the form of the issue, ib.
on plea of nonjoinder, ib.
plea of nonjoinder, st. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, ii. 3.
evidence on plea of, ii. 2.
proof of dormant partner not available, ii. 2.
proof of damage, ib.
plea of peerage, ii. 3.
misnomer, provisions of stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 64, as to, ib. effect of pleading by way of conclusion, ii. 4.
competency, ib.
of suit, ii. 3.
by death of co-plaintiff not suggested on the record, iii. 854. provisions of the stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, app. ii. iii. 1313.
detinue by one only of two joint tenants must be pleaded in abatement, ib.
plea in may be no abatement to part, and bar to the residue, ib.
refusal to amend on plea of, ib.

ABBEY,
proof of endowment of, i. 395–397.

ABET,
meaning of the term, ii. 7.

ABILITY,
of witness, how judged of, i. 545.
to be estimated by the jury, ib.

AB INITIO,
trespasser, iii. 1108.
trespass when, iii. 1143.

ABJURATION
of the realm by the husband, effect of, ii. 547.

ABORTION,
indictment for attempt to procure, ii. 693.

ABSENCE,
of attesting witness, proof in excuse of, i. 375.
secondary proof, i. 379.
proof of hand-writing of, when sufficient, ib.
proof of identity of obligor, &c., i. 380.

ABSENCE—continued.
fact of, how proved in action to recover penalties for non-residence, iii. 964, 965.
of evidence tending to a different conclusion, effect of, i. 503.

ABSENT
witness, motion to examine on interrogatories, i. 87.

ABSENTING,
act of bankruptcy, &c., ii. 134.

ABUTTALS,
proof of, iii. 1099.
variance from description of, in trespass, ib.

ACCEPTANCE,
of bill of exchange, admission by, ii. 203.
of bill of exchange, what amounts to, ii. 205. provisions of stat. 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, ib.
of bill of exchange, proof of, ib.
of bill of exchange, power of corporation as to, ib.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
conditional, ii. 207.
when absolute, ii. 208.
unnecessarily alleged need not be proved, ii. 225.
divisible, ii. 243.
may be for value as to part, and for accommodation as to residue, ib.
presumption from allowing acceptance given as a security to remain, ii. 249.
is primâ facie evidence of money received by the acceptor, ii. 262.
of bill payable to fictitious payee, ib.
of what evidence, ib.
waiver of, ii. 252.
effect of exchanging, ii. 239.
of lease by assignees of bankrupt or insolvent, evidence of, ii. 350. of goods within the Statute of Frauds, ii. 488.
of part of goods sold, what amounts to an, within the Statute of Frauds, ii. 489, 490.
of charter, proof of, iii. 947.
of lease by assignee, presumptive evidence of, ii. 180.

ACCEPTANCES,
exchange of, ii. 148.

ACCEPTOR. See Bill of Exchange.

ACCESS,
presumptions as to and proof of, ii. 196.

ACCESSORY.
principal and accessory, who, ii. 4.
principal in second degree, ib.
proof of his being present, ii. 5. aiding and abetting, ii. 7. accessory before the fact, ii. 8, 9. cannot take advantage of error in the attainder of the principal, i. 307, iii. 958.
wife may be convicted as principal, the husband as accessory, ii. 9.
may controvert guilt of principal, i. 295.
proof against, in forgery, ii. 468, 469.
proof against, on charge of larceny, ii. 517.
to an unknown principal, ib. ii. 468.

ACCESSORY—continued.
accessory after the fact, ii. 9.
variance, ii. 10.
who is, app. ii. iii. 1314.
counts charging one as accessory before and after the fact, may be joined, ib.
after the fact, who is, ib.
things accessory to a principal, what are, ib.

ACCESSORIES,
in forgery, ii. 467.

ACCIDENTAL INJURY,
not a trespass, when, iii. 1119.

ACCIDENTAL KILLING,
evidence of, ii. 713, 714.

ACCOMMODATION,
set-off against bill accepted by bankrupt, when allowable, ii. 177.
acceptor, action by, iii. 1059.

ACCOMPLICE,
competency, ii. 10.
in civil actions, ib.
in criminal proceedings, ii. 11.
under particular statutes entitling him to pardon, ib.
present practice as to admitting accomplices to give evidence, ii. 12.
competency when indicted with others, ii. 13.
value of such testimony, ib. confirmation of an accomplice, ii. 13, 14, 15.
confirmation of, as to identity, app. ii. iii. 1315.

ACCORD,
and satisfaction, when evidence, ii. 16.
when a bar, ib.
in what cases it must be pleaded, ib.
performance when to be proved, ib.
evidence on non assumpsit, ib.
satisfaction by one of several persons protects the rest, ii. 17.
non-acceptance of sum as, puts payment in issue, app. ii. iii. 1315.
with one of several plaintiffs, ib.
with a third person, ib.

ACCOUNT, BOOKS OF,
admissible when, in tithe suits, iii. 1091.

ACCOUNT,
state of, provable by general evidence, when, i. 502.
evidence in action of, ii. 18.
plea, never receiver, &c. ib.
onus probandi on whom, ib.
transfer of, ii. 99.
settlement of, by giving bill of exchange, cannot be opened, ii. 243.
evidence on plea of plene computavit, app. ii. iii. 1316.
books of of preceding rector, admissibility of, iii. 1091.

ACCOUNT STATED, ii. 97. See Assumpsit. between partners, ib.
by husband and wife, ii. 98, 99.
by one as administrator, ib.
evidence on, ii. 97.
promissory note, ib.

ACCOUNT STATED—continued.
does not bind an infant, ii. 97.
alters nature of debt, ib.
with partner, ii. 99.
maintainable, notwithstanding special agreement, ii. 98.
agreement amounts to, when, ii. 74.
variance, ib.
acknowledgment, evidence on, ii. 264.

ACCUSTOMED RENT,
evidence to prove what is the, iii. 901.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT,
of title, what amounts to, ii. 419. taking a case out of the statute of limitations, ii. 662.
evidence of, in answer to the statute of limitations, ii. 662.
must be in writing, ii. 663–665.
by one of several, ii. 672.

ACQUIESCENCE,
evidence as a tacit admission, ii. 26.
by tenant, on service of notice, ib.
inference of, rebutted by want of notice, iii. 729. effect of, app. ii. iii. 1316. effect of in preventing the opening of accounts, app. ii. iii. 1428.
effect of in excluding inquiry as to fraud, ib.
presumption from, iii. 961.
in commission of bankrupt, when evidence of bankruptcy, ii. 22. 126. 150. 184.

ACQUITTAL. See Autre foits acquit—Judgment. of indicted party, sometimes directed in order to make him competent, ii. 13.
of one of several defendants in tort, ii. 297.
of co-defendant against whom no evidence is given, 799.
in criminal case, effect of evidence, i. 278.
upon indictment for non-repair of public road, ii. 529.

ACT,
variance in allegation of, ii. 40. See Vol. i. tit. Variance.
rule qui facit per alium, &c. ii. 41.
in what cases applicable, ib.
authority to do, proof of, ib.
of one, in case of conspiracy, the act of all, ii. 325.
presumption of intention from, i. 565. injurious when sufficient to maintain an action. See Vol. iii. Nuisance.
firing near plaintiff's decoy, ib.
single effect of, &c. ii. 128.

ACT DONE,
by agent when equivalent to act by principal, i. 475, 476.
alleged to be in writing, what proof necessary, i. 474.

ACT OF GOD,
excuses from performance of contract, when, ii. 286, 287.

ACT OF ONE OF SEVERAL,
binding on others entitled, when, ii. 179.

ACT OF OWNERSHIP,
on other land, when evidence to prove title, iii. 1125, 1126.

ACTING
of parties as constables, evidence of being such, ii. 593.

ACTS
admissible to prove conspiracy, when, ii. 328.
ACT OF PARLIAMENT,
requiring notice of action, effect of, iii. 729.
ACTS OF PARLIAMENT,
kinds of, i. 231.
public when, i. 231.
private when, ib.
public statute, proof of not requisite, i. 231.
private requires proof, i. 232.
how proved, i. 233.
by copy printed by the King's printer, ib.
Irish Act, proof of, ib.
41 Geo. 3, c. 90, s. 9, provisions as to, ib.
recitals in, when evidence, ib.
ACTS OF STATE,
how proved, i. 233.
by the Gazette, ib.
by printed proclamations, ib.
book of acts in ecclesiastical courts, effect of, i. 301, ii. 441–444.
ACTIO PERSONALIS MORITUR CUM PERSONA, to what causes the maxim is applicable, ii. 453.
ACTION,
notice of, iii. 729.
notice of action against a magistrate, ii. 580.
commencement of proof of, ii. 424. 584. 657.
termination of proof of, ii. 688.
variance from description of, i. 463.
proof of commencement of, by the writ, i. 328.
on a contract may be brought in the name of the principal for whose benefit the contract was made, iii. 802.
malicious suit, action does not lie for, ii. 691.
cannot be founded on breach of plaintiff's duty, iii. 1034.
determination of proof of, ii. 687.
sustainable when without notice, where an Act requires notice for things done under the Act, iii. 729.
ACTUAL EMPLOYMENT of agent during stipulated time of service, not essential in an action by such agent, when, iii. 1304.
ACTUAL ENTRY,
proof of, where necessary to avoid a fine, ii. 401.
ACTUAL RESTRAINT
in case of false imprisonment, ii. 180.
ADDRESS. See Gazette—Libel. given by party committing a nuisance admissible, iii. 749.
ADJUDICATION
of fact by competent authority not traversable, ii. 586.
ADJUSTMENT, proof of, in an action on a policy, iii. 880.
effect of, iii. 883.
proof of, ib.
ADMINISTRATION,
proof of title to a term, ii. 407.
order of administration by an executor, ii. 449.

ADMINISTRATION—continued.
letters of, not evidence of death, i. 266. stamp duty on, iii. 1034. See Stamp. repeal of letters of, ii. 443. effect of, on payments, ib.
ADMINISTRATOR,
not estopped by verdict, when, i. 264. possession of goods by bankrupt as, ii. 159. See Executor.
avoidance of by extrinsic matter to be specially pleaded, ii. 441.
ADMIRALTY COURT, decisions, effect of, i. 292.
ADMISSIONS,
general value of the evidence, ii. 18.
effect of, ib.
always evidence against the party, i. 19.
distinction between the several kinds of, ii. 18, 19.
general principle, ib.
admissions with a view to evidence, ii. 19.
admission in a plea, ib.
of the contents or effect of a written testament admissible, app. ii. 69.
admission by deed, ii. 20.
recital in a deed, ib.
admissions on which others have acted, ii. 21.
cohabitation as man and wife, ii. 22.
recognizance estops as to name, ib.
tenant cannot dispute landlord's title, ib.
party concluded by representation as to name, ib.
by giving bill or note for goods, ib.
acquiescence in commission of bankrupt, ib. receipt given for money not conclusive, ii. 22.
obtaining of discharge as bankrupt, ib.
where surrender does not bind, ii. 23. proof of debt under commissioners of bankrupt does not conclude, ii. 23.
parish certificate, ii. 22.
collateral admissions, ii. 23.
not conclusive, ib.
dealing with one as farmer of post-horse duties, ib.
by reference to another's opinion, effect of, ii. 30. rule of H. T. 2 Will. 4, as to admission of document, ii. 34.
oral, of an assignment and affidavit, when, ii. 55.
proving of debt under fiat, ii. 151.
by party of his bankruptcy, ii. 181.
by joint acceptor of bill, effect of, ii. 205.
of indorsement, presumptive evidence of, ii. 219.
by corporator, evidence, when, ii. 340.
by one of several executors, ii. 447.
supersedes the effect of the statute, when, ii. 476.
of being a partner, effect of, iii. 807.
by parol of that to which a writing is necessary, effect of, iii. 816.
by under sheriff where admissible against the sheriff, iii. 1012.
by recital in lease, app. ii. iii. 1317.
letter, declaration of a prisoner as to, makes it admissible, when, ib.
construction of, ib.
identity of the plaintiff with the party making the admission, ib.
on former trial, ib.
with a view to trial, ib.
by a party relating to contents of deed, ib. 1318.

ADMISSIONS—continued.
by record, app. ii. iii. 1318.
in one plea cannot be called in aid of the issue in another, ib.
by party to record, ib.
by one suing in representative character before he became such, ib.
by party in interest, ib.
by claimant, eodem jure, ib. 1319.
by an agent, ib.
against a representative, ib.
under judge's order, ib.
confession in criminal cases, ib.
must be voluntary, ib. 1320.
fact discovered in consequence of an admission, ib. 1321.
examined on oath, ib.
proof of examination, ib. 1322.
the whole to be read, ib.
effect of, ib.
officiating as priest, ii. 24.
acting as rector, ib.
payment of tithes, ib.
acknowledgment of nuisance, ib.
giving security for payment of duties on newspapers, ib.
oath before commissioners of income-tax, ib.
omission of debt by insolvent in his schedule, ib.
offer to bribe, ib.
admission of marriage, ib.
answer in Chancery, ib.
do not supersede the usual proof of the execution of a deed, ii. 25.
voluntary affidavit, ib.
from acquiescence or silence, ii. 26.
on being served with notice to quit, ib.
when presumed, ib.
for the purpose of buying peace,
not admissible, ii. 26.
when made conditionally, ii. 27.
with qualifications, ib.
cannot be used generally, ib.
made under compulsion, when admissible, ib.
by a bankrupt, ii. 28.
by a witness, ib.
admission by a party on the record, ib.
is evidence, though he be but a trustee, ib.
by a guardian not admissible against the ward, ii. 28.
by a rated parishioner, ib.
by party really interested, ii. 29.
under-sheriffs, ib.
shipowners, ib.
by one who indemnifies, ib.
by third persons, ib.
to whom reference is made, ib.
by agents, ii. 30.
proof of agent's authority, ib.
to what extent his admissions, &c. bind his principal, ib.
by an under-sheriff, ib.
by a consigner of goods, ib.
where there is a community of design, ii. 31.
by partners, ib.

ADMISSIONS—continued.
after dissolution of partnership, ii. 31.
by one of two joint covenantors, ib.
by a wife, when binding, ii. 32.
by joint conspirators, ii. 33.
by a bankrupt against his assignees, ib.
by a party represented against his representatives, ib.
by an owner against one who claims title under him, ib.
by a debtor against the sheriff, in an action for an escape, ii. 34.
by a principal is not evidence against his surety, ib.
general rule that the whole is to be read, ib.
confession in criminal proceedings, ii. 36.
must be voluntary, ib.
excluded by threat or promise, ib.
in what cases, ii. 36.
confession by witness in giving evidence generally admissible, ii. 38.
facts admissible, though the knowledge be obtained by an extorted admission, ii. 39. effect of statutes of Philip & Mary, &c. as to admissions, ii. 38.
directions of those statutes, ib.
written examination precludes parol evidence when, ib.
prisoner's refusal to sign his examination, effect of, ii. 39.
examinations to be returned, &c. ib.
proof of examination before a magistrate, ib.
force and effect of, ib.
confession affects the prisoner only, ii. 40.
practice where it affects others, ib.
proof of written instrument by, ii. 442.
proof by, of execution of instrument, i. 401.
of execution of deed does not preclude objection on score of variance, when, i. 487.
by party of particular character, ii. 308, 309.
of bankruptcy, ii. 188.
of bankruptcy where evidence of the facts, ii. 150.
proof of bill by, ii. 210.
of due notice of dishonour, ii. 232. of having parted with copyright, iii. 940.
evidence of in action for dilapidation, iii. 964.
by paying money into court, iii. 829.
by giving bill of exchange for goods is binding, ii. 242.
by pleadings, i. 436.
of item in a set-off does not supersede the necessity of proof by plaintiff, iii. 997.
of an agreement renders the proofs prescribed by statute of frauds unnecessary, ii. 476.
by one when evidence against another, ii. 217.
by an indorser, of indorsement of bill of exchange, ib.
by the debtor, evidence against the sheriff, when, iii. 1014.
by one of several partners, effect of, ii. 205.
by one of several trespassers, when evidence against the rest, iii. 1113.
where evidence to prove a marriage, ii. 352.
in answer may be discharged by the same, i. 335.
evidence admissible to explain, iii. 786.
of fact by slanderous words, ii. 106.
by prisoner, of another kind of offence, inadmissible to prove intention, iii. 952.
to clergy, effect of on testimony, i. 96.
to copyhold, evidence as to construction of, ii. 337.

ADMITTANCE,
to copyhold, proof of, ii. 332.
of copyhold tenant, necessity for and effect of, ib.
ADULTERY,
proof of, ii. 352.
of wife, where a defence in an action against the husband, ii. 547.
AD VALOREM,
stamp on conveyance, iii. 1045.
ADVANCEMENT,
evidence as to legacy, iii. 783.
ADVANTAGE,
unfair, by an agent, avoids a transaction, when, ii. 47.
ADVERSARY,
possession by relieves from proof of instrument, when, i. 40.
after refusal of to produce instrument, slight proof sufficient, i. 408.
ADVERSE ENJOYMENT,
for twenty years will not bar a public right, iii. 1253.
possession, evidence of, ii. 401. 405.
ADVERSE POSSESSION,
effect of in ejectment, ii. 400.
ADVERTISEMENT,
in newspaper, proof of notice by, ii. 289.
ADVOCATE,
right to be heard before justices, iii. 1140.
in superior courts, ib.
ADVOWSON,
passes under commission of bankrupt, ii. 176.
grant of, presumable against the Crown, where, iii. 916.
AFFIDAVIT,
voluntary not admissible, i. 25. 314.
is evidence by way of confession, ii. 25.
stamp on, iii. 1034. See Stamp. title of, in case of certiorari, app. ii. iii. 1322.
AFFIDAVIT OF CONFORMITY, evidence, where, ii. 187.
AFFIRMANCE,
of a transaction, partial, ii. 168.
partial not allowed, when, ii. 177.
of contract by form of action, ii. 177.
AFFIRMATION
by Quaker, i. 23.
AFFIRMATIVE
allegation, proof of lies on the party alleging, i. 363.
when presumed by law, the onus probandi is on the party who denies the fact, i. 421.
AFTER DUE,
indorsement of title, effect of, ii. 253.
AGENCY,
of wife, evidence of, ii. 539.
proof of in trespass, iii. 1109.
AGENT,
the act of the agent is that of the principal, ii. 41.
and may be so alleged, ib.

AGENT—continued.
evidence of agency, ii. 41.
direct evidence, ib.
evidence from relative situation, ii. 42.
in case of an under-sheriff, ib.
sale of books by a servant in a shop, ib.
act of an attorney, ib.
from habit and course of dealing, ib.
in case of brokers, ii. 43.
in payment for work, ib.
in case of authority to servants, ib. wife, ii. 43.
evidenced by custody of instruments, when, ib.
from recognition of authority, ib.
payment of policies subscribed by agent, ib.
using affidavit of third person stating the agency, ib.
acquiescence in payment of a bill instead of money to a servant, ii. 44.
authority to commit a trespass, not implied, ib.
declarations by agent when admissible, ii. 45.
in what cases the agent must be called, ib.
when personally liable, ii. 46.
admission by. See Admission, ii. 29. authority of, ii. 43.
declaration by drawer of bill of exchange. See Bill of Exchange.
moral, must be taken to contemplate the natural effects of his acts, i. 566.
proof of being, in action of trespass, iii. 1109.
proof of warrant to prove agency no evidence of the judgment, ib.
proof of authority to indorse bills, ii. 233.
who is within the 17th section of the statute of frauds, ii. 492.
proof of act by, when it satisfies the allegation of an act by the principal, i. 474.
variance as to number of agents material, when, i. 476.
of husband, where the wife is, iii. 976.
principal when liable for acts of, iii. 1111.
not liable for wilful act of, ib.
entry by, when admissible, i. 358, 359.
declaration or admission by, when evidence, ii. 29.
power of to bind his principal, ii. 30.
proof of acceptance by, ib.
tender to, when sufficient, iii. 1070. of corporation, notice to when notice to the corporation, ii. 169, 170.
promise by to make compensation, when binding, ii. 102.
proof of negligence by, in an action against the principal, iii. 727.
wilful injury by, principal not liable for, ib.
proof of publication of a libel by, ii. 621.
refusal by a general agent not evidence of a conversion by his principal, iii. 1163.
what a conversion by, ii. 844.
proof of payment to, iii. 820.
notice to when sufficient, iii. 729.
action against for money received, ii. 88.
excise officer, ib.
cannot object the illegality of the contract on which the money was paid, ii. 95.
discharge of by payment over, ii. 88.

AGENT—continued.
cannot discharge himself when it has been received malâ fide, ii. 69.
who pays over money without notice, not liable, when, ii. 88.
when liable for receipt of money, ii. 88, 89.
must show it paid over, when, ii. 88.
when not responsible for negligence, ii. 295. negligence of principal, responsible for, when, iii. 738.
liable when he buys in his own name, iii. 1198.
secus when he declares his character, ib.
liability of principal when discovered, ib. liable if the act commanded by his principal be illegal, though it be apparently legal, iii. 1167.
action by in his own name, iii. 1196.
proof of being, from relative situation, app. ii. iii. 1322. recognition of authority of, ib. 1323.
acts and declarations of, when admissible, ib.
in trespass, proof of being, iii. 1109.
goods in possession of in case of bankruptcy, ii. 157.
authority of to hold money revocable, when, ii. 79.
act of limited by his authority, iii. 1149.
need not be called, when, ii. 470.
admission by, ii. 29.
presumptive evidence of employment by principal, iii. 737.
who is under the statute of frauds, ii. 486.
liability of principal for negligence of, iii. 737.
acceptance of bill by, ii. 206.
liable who pays over money after notice, ii. 83.
receiving goods from another, may refuse to deliver them, when, iii. 1166.
may controvert title of principal, when, iii. 1166.
estoppel of, ii. 95.
proof of being from being placed in counting-house, iii. 820.
need not be called, when, ib. authority of, by custom, app. ii. iii. 1323.
defence by, ib. 1324.

AGGRAVATION,
matter of, need not be proved, i. 439.
of damages, evidence in, iii. 1115.
evidence not admissible of distinct and substantive cause of action, ib.
evidence in, in action of trespass, iii. 1114.

AGREEMENT, to be valid must be in writing, when. See Frauds, Statute of.
stamp on, iii. 1035.
stamp duty upon, ib.
written, cannot be varied by parol evidence, when, iii. 759.
may be altered by subsequent independent agreement, ib.
for work and labour, proof of, iii. 1298.
a branch of provable by parol, although another is written, iii. 789.
to waive a contract, when it must be in writing, iii. 790.
for a future lease, operation of, ii. 473.
special, when evidence under general counts, ii. 71.
when written must be produced, ii. 72.
illegal, when, ii. 63. 103.

AID,
proof of acting in aid of a constable, &c. ii. 603.

AIDER AND ABETTOR,
when one, ii. 4, 5, 6.

AISLE
of church, seat in, proof of right to, iii. 863, 864.

ALIA ENORMIA,
evidence under, iii. 1116.

ALIEN,
competency of. See tit. Witness.

ALIEN AMY,
may maintain an action, app. ii. iii. 1324.

ALIMONY,
decree of, effect of, app. i. 610.

ALLEGATION. See Variance.

ALLOCATUR. See Payment. of master, effect of in evidence, ii. 107.

ALLOWANCE. See Bankrupt—Husband and Wife.

ALLUVION,
right of land recovered by, iii. 1253.
gradual—land recovered from sea by title to, ib.

ALTERATION. See Bill of Exchange—Stamp of deed, ii. 379, 380.
of deed, evidence as to, ii. 377.
effect of, ib.
of written instrument, effect of, i. 369.
of bill of exchange, effect of, ii. 254.
of bill of exchange, whether to be pleaded, ii. 241.
of a written agreement by an oral one, effect of, ii. 491.
of bill, explanation of, ii. 211.
when material, ii. 254, 255.
proof of time of making, on whom incumbent, ii. 255, 256.
renders new stamp necessary, when, iii. 1049.
in policy renders a new stamp necessary, when, iii. 867.

AMBIGUITY,
in will, when removable by parol evidence, iii. 1269, 1270, 1271.
in a written instrument, kinds of, iii. 755.
latent ambiguity, ib.
latent in case of will, iii. 1269. apparent, iii. 1271.

AMBIGUOUS
instrument, may be treated as a bill or note, ii. 222.

AMENDMENT,
9 G. 4, c. 15, i. 494.
decisions on this statute, i. 495.
3 & 4. W. 4, c. 42, provisions of, i. 496.
decisions on this statute, i. 496, 497, 498, 499.
when allowed, app. i. 628.

AMENDS,
tender of, ii. 594.
proof of tender of, iii. 975.
tender of by a commissioner under a commission of bankrupt, ii. 180.
See tit. Tender—Trespass.

AMERCIAMENT,
may be by a jury without affeerment, app. ii. iii. 1324.

ANCIENT INSTRUMENTS,
when evidence, iii. 907.
presumptions from, i. 66, 67.
proof of, iii. 903.
presumptions from, how to be supported, ib.
1. by antiquity, ib.
2. confirmation from place of deposit, i. 383, 384, 385, 386.
3. must be free from suspicion, ib.
4. must be supported by proof of enjoyment, ib.
counterparts of old leases, evidence of prescriptive right of lord of manor, i. 67, 68.
general rule as to place of deposit, i. 239.
what custody sufficient, ib.
bishop's endowment, ib.
grant to a religious house, ib.
extent of crown lands, i. 240.
ecclesiastical terriers, ib.
ancient deeds, ib.
letter, i. 381.
certificate, i. 382.
counterparts of leases, ib.
licenses, i. 68.

ANIMAL,
mischievous, nuisance by, iii. 734.

ANIMUS INJURIANDI,
when essential to the right of action, ib.

ANNEXATION,
of chattel to freehold, effect of, iii. 866.

ANNUITY,
action for consideration on deed set aside, ii. 90.
setting aside of deeds, how proved, ib.

ANNUITY BOND,
proof in action on, ii. 269.

ANNUITY DEED,
stamp on, iii. 1044.

ANSWER IN EQUITY,
admissibility of, i. 332.
against whom, ib.
answer by alienor of land, ib.
answer by guardian, i. 333.
by a feme covert, ib.
by one of several parties, ib.
the whole must be read, i. 334.
unless the object be to show incompetency, ib.
effect of matter in discharge of defendant, ib.
practice in equity, ib.
at common law, i. 335.
does not cure defective evidence, ib.
how proved, ib.
production and proof of the bill, ib.
identity of parties, ib.
may be accredited in part, i. 334.

ANSWER,
when it must be read, in order to read an exhibit, i. 335, 336.
operates as an admission, ii. 25.
first may be explained by a second, iii. 858.

APART,
from each other, examination of witnesses, i. 189.
rule of Court of Exchequer, ib.

APOTHECARY,
proof by under the stat. 55 Geo. 3, c. 194, s. 2, ii. 47.
proof in action by, ii. 102, app. ii. iii. 1325.
right of, to charge for visits as well as medicines, ib.

APPARENT AMBIGUITY,
in the case of a will, iii. 1271, 1272.

APPEAL,
matter of not available in answer to a sentence, i. 305.
against rate, notice of, iii. 952.
course of proceeding on trial of, ib.
further evidence admissible on, when, i. 222.
evidence confined to same witnesses, when, ib.
in case of attaint, ib.

APPEARANCE,
of party essential to the validity of a conviction against him, ii. 589, 590.
by an attorney without authority is good, ii. 115.

APPELLANTS,
may join in notice of appeal, iii. 953.

APPENDANT,
common, ii. 314.

APPLICATION,
of payment, ii. 148. iii. 824.
proof of, iii. 824.
by the law, ib.

APPOINTEE,
under a power, takes under the instrument creating the power, iii. 901.

APPOINTMENT,
stamp upon, iii. 1040.
to situation or office, proof of, ii. 41.
of officer presumed to be in his possession, i. 399.
variance from allegation of, i. 483.
illusory, rendered valid by 1 W. 4, c. 46, iii. 901.
not to be affected by conjecture, when, ib.

APPRAISEMENT,
stamp on, iii. 1040. See Stamp.

APPORTIONMENT, provisions of stat. 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 22, s. 2, app. ii. iii. 1325.
parol evidence as to inadmissible, when, ib. 1326.
of a chattel in progress, ib.

APPRENTICE,
proof of being by indentures, ii. 308.
book of names of, i. 240. stamp on indentures of, iii. 1040, 1041. See Stamp.
proof of service of, iii. 1029.

APPRENTICE—continued.
fee given with, when recoverable, ii. 243.
indictment for conspiracy to prevent taking of, ii. 330, 331.
conviction of, form of, ii. 585.

APPRENTICE DEED,
stamp upon, iii. 1040.

APPRENTICESHIP,
proof of, iii. 1001.
certificate of examiners conclusive as to, ii. 47.

APPROPRIATION,
proof of, where the original is lost, i. 230.
to situation or office, proof of, ii. 41.
of money to pay bill, effect of, iii. 825.
of payment. See Payment. of payment, at what time to be made, iii. 824.
illegal, when, iii. 827.
not revoked by bankruptcy, when, app. ii. iii. 1326.
subsequent payments, right of receiver to appropriate, ib.
of trader's funds revoked by bankruptcy, when, ii. 176.

APPROVE,
right to, iii. 1129.

APPROVED BILL,
meaning of the term, iii. 1228.

APPROVEMENT. See Trespass.

APPROVER,
incompetency of, ii. 11.
practice of admitting him to approve, ib.

APPURTENANT,
appurtenant to house, when, iii. 861.
common, may be claimed by grant within time of legal memory, ii. 314.

ARBITRATION,
submission to by an executor, what it admits, ii. 322. 448.

ARBITRATOR. See Award. authority of revocable, ii. 89. 117.
demand for compensation by, ii. 119.
competent when, ii. 119.
incompetent when, in an action for a malicious arrest, ii. 69.
liability of, app. ii. iii. 1344.
not liable as a stakeholder, ib.
competency of in action for malicious arrest, ii. 691.

ARGUMENTS,
of counsel, order of, i. 422.
rules as to, app. i. 625.

ARGYLE,
Marquis of, historical variances as to his death, i. 553.

ARREST,
for debt, how proved, ii. 145, 146.
manner of, ii. 49.
proof of, iii. 1019.
by delivery of ca. sa. to sheriff, ib.
proof of, in action against a sheriff for an escape, iii. 1015.

ARREST—continued.
proof of, in an action for a malicious arrest, ii. 686.
by private person, when justifiable, ii. 604.
by private persons, app. ii. iii. 1456.
evidence of in action against the sheriff, iii. 1015.
on suspicion, reasonable grounds of, ii. 603.
what amounts to, ii. 686, 687.
proof in action for a malicious arrest, ii. 680.
who may lawfully, ii. 717.
without warrant, ii. 717.

ARREST MALICIOUS,
evidence of malice, ii. 689.

ARSON,
essentials to proof of the offence, ii. 49.
evidence of setting fire to, &c. ib.
consumption of any part of the house sufficient, ib.
of dwelling house, &c. ib.
common gaol, ib.
outhouse, ib.
barn, ib.
ownership and possession, ii. 50.
must be shown to be a possession, sub jure, ib.
possession by sufferance as a pauper, ib.
widow entitled to dower, ib.
variance as to ownership, ib.
felonious intent, evidence of, ii. 51.
general evidence, ii. 52.
variance, ib.
burning what sufficient, app. ii. iii. 1327.
intent, ib. 1328.
outhouse, what, ib.
evidence as to malice, ib.

ARTICLES OF THE CHURCH. See Quare Impedit.

ARTICLES,
thirty-nine, presumption as to reading of, iii. 1080.

ARTICLES OF WAR,
how proved, i. 234.
production of, on charge of murder, ii. 718.

ARTIFICIAL EVIDENCE,
records, i. 73.
conventional evidence, i. 74.
grants, ib.
agreements, ib.
efficacy annexed to conventional evidence, i. 74, 75.
manner and form prescribed by the law, when, i. 74.
estoppels, doctrine of, i. 75.
presumptions, kinds of, ib.
from habit, i. 54, 55.
nature of, iii. 925.
sheriff's return, effect of, iii. 1053.

ASSAULT,
what amounts to, iii. 1112.
intention, materiality of, ib.
striking justifiable in self defence, app. ii. iii. 1327.

ASSAULT—continued.
what amounts to, app. ii. iii. 1327.
conviction of an, under stat. 1 Vict. c. 85, s. 11, ib.
for assaulting and indecently exposing the person, not within the stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 64, s. 24, as to costs, ib. 1328.
variance as to allegation of intent, i. 477.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY, evidence on an indictment, ii. 52.
son assault demesne when available in defence, ib.
assault with intent to murder, ii. 53.
with intent to rob, ib.
variance in the allegation of the instrument, ib.
assault with intent to spoil clothes, ib.
assault on account of money won at play, ii. 54.

ASSENT,
proof of master's assent to service of apprentice with another, iii. 1002.
implied when, ii. 75.

ASSETS,
proof of, in action against an executor, ii. 448.
proof of amount in hands of executor, app. ii. iii. 1417.
what are in the hands of the heir, ii. 519.
proof of, in action against the heir, ii. 519.
variance as to county not material, ib.

ASSIGNEE,
evidence by, in general, ii. 55.
admission of assignment by lessee, ib.
when bound by covenant, ii. 350.
of term, liable before entry, ii. 351.
of lease, proof of being, ii. 350.
action by, ii. 349.
action against, ib.
competency of, ii. 194.
of bankrupt, liability of, ii. 180.
notice in action against, ii. 179.
what passes, under the commission, ii. 175, 176.
in action to recover goods sold after the act of bankruptcy, but without notice, must prove a tender of the price, iii. 1226.
of a bankrupt partner, suit by, iii. 802.
of an insolvent, title of, ii. 561.
action by, ib.
a parol admission of an assignment of premises evidence against the party making it, ii. 55.

ASSIGNEES,
of bankrupt liable as assignees of lease, when, ii. 350.
of bankrupt, evidence by under plea denying property in the plaintiff, ii. 182.
under joint fiat, ii. 123.
of parties, action by, iii. 802.
of bankrupt proof by in particular action, ii. 152.
do not claim under the bankrupt, ib. assumpsit by, for M. H. & R. when proper, ii. 153.
unliquidated damages recoverable by, ib.
may sue on contract subsequent to the bankruptcy, ib.
may bring either trover or assumpsit, when, ib.

ASSIGNEES—continued.
of bankrupt acceptance of lease by, ii. 189.
of bankrupt vendor of goods bound to pay duties, when, ii. 152.

ASSIGNMENT,
by sheriff, evidence of, iii. 1033.
of reversion, proof of, ii. 350. of lease, ib.
in case of bankruptcy, ib.
by operation of law, ii. 346.
not a breach of covenant not to assign, ib.
admission of by lessee, ii. 55.
of copyright, &c. iii. 940.
whether it may be proved by admission, ib.
of deed proved by indorsement, ii. 346.
by commissioners of bankrupt, proof of, ii. 151.
of estates or interests in land, effect of statute of frauds as to, ii. 474.
of lease, proof by admission, ii. 25. breach of covenant not to assign, ii. 348.
fraudulent, to defeat execution, iii. 1031.
grand trial by, i. 11.
of debt, ii. 80.
by operation of law a breach, when, ii. 346. notice of act of bankruptcy, when, ii. 179.
with intent to petition the Insolvent Court, ii. 141.

ASSIGNMENTS,
mesne, must be proved, when, ii. 351.

ASPORTAVIT,
proof of, on charge of larceny, ii. 604.

ASSOCIATE. See Perjury.

ASSUMPSIT,
evidence of the promise, ii. 56.
written agreement, ib.
stamp, ib. and see tit. STAMP.
proof of written contract, ii. 56.
contract by oral evidence, ib.
written contract, production of, ib.
consequence of omission to produce it, ib.
memorandum, when it need not be produced, ii. 57.
contract implied from circumstances, ii. 58.
variance, ii. 58, and see tit. VARIANCE. parties, ib.
promise, ii. 60.
consideration, ii. 61.
dates, sums, &c. ii. 62, 63.
legality of contract, ii. 63.
condition precedent, ii. 64.
indebitatus assumpsit, ii. 69.
proof of request, ib.
express request, ib.
implied request from subsequent assent, ib.
from subsequent promise, ib.
from legal obligation, ib.
to pay for medical attendance on paupers, servants, &c. ib.
general indebitatus assumpsit, when maintainable, ii. 69.
in case of special agreement, ii. 71.

ASSUMPSIT—continued.
failure to prove special contract, ii. 71.
deviations from special contract, ii. 72.
recovery on quantum meruit, when, ib.
dispensation with performance, ii. 73.
variance, ib.
joinder of different claims, ib.
money paid, ii. 74.
proof of payment, ib.
giving security not a payment, ib. receipt of stock, ii. 75.
damages, ib.
consent of defendant, ib.
express, ib.
implied, ib.
by surety, ib.
contribution by co-defendants, ii. 76, 77.
money paid through defendant's default, ib.
to redeem goods, &c. ib.
costs paid by an accommodation acceptor, ib.
debt paid by joint debtor, ii. 77.
in furtherance of an illegal contract, ib.
money lent, ii. 61.
receipt of money by defendant, ii. 79.
money had and received, ib.
receipt of the money, ii. 80.
acceptance of bill of exchange, ii. 81.
receipt of provincial notes, ib.
money received by defendant and deceased partner, ib.
privity between the parties, ii. 63.
revocation of order before payment, ii. 81.
receipt by banker, when conclusive, ib.
presumptive evidence of receipt, ii. 82.
the net sum, &c. recoverable, ib.
to the use of the plaintiff, ib.
implied undertaking to pay over the money, ib.
title in plaintiff to demand it, ib.
money paid by a solvent partner who afterwards becomes bankrupt, ii. 83.
by a trustee, ib.
general rule as to maintaining the action, ib.
money obtained by fraud, ib.
title to an office may be tried, ib.
legal title must be proved, ib.
gratuitous donations not recoverable, ib.
waiver of tort, ii. 83, 84.
does not lie for rents, against one who claims title, ii. 83.
lies against one who receives rents by fraud, ii. 84.
for money paid under fraudulent composition, ib.
money obtained by duress, ii. 85.
to relieve goods from pawn, ib.
money levied under a conviction afterwards quashed, ib.
to revenue officer to release goods, ib.
cannot be substituted for trespass or replevin, ib.
money paid under mistake, ii. 86.
to assignees of debtor, without claiming a set-off, ib.
money paid under a mistake of law, not recoverable, ii. 87.

ASSUMPSIT—continued.
money paid on attorney's bill, ii. 88.
paid to an agent, who has paid it over, ib.
money deposited with an agent, ii. 89.
revocation of authority, ib.
stakeholder, ib.
failure of consideration, ib. 89, 90.
money recoverable, ib.
when not, ii. 91.
rescinded contract, ib.
not recoverable where the contract is still open, ii. 92.
money recovered by legal process, ib.
money paid on an illegal consideration, ib.
when recoverable, ib.
by one not particeps, ii. 93.
lottery insurance, ib.
to induce a creditor to sign a certificate, ib.
where the illegal agreement is executory, ib.
where not, ii. 95.
in hands of stakeholder, ib.
or other agent, ib.
where the illegal agreement is executed, ib.
account stated, ii. 97.
evidence of, ib.
promissory note, ii. 98.
unnecessary to prove the items, ib.
not maintainable against an infant, ib.
claim of what is due on one side sufficient, ib.
between partners, ib.
by husband and wife, ii. 100.
by one as administrator, ib.
account, including items due on two accounts, ib.
interest, ib.
variance, ib.
breach, ib.
non assumpsit, evidence under, ib.
specialty, ib.
denial of promise, ib.
avoidance of, ib.
discharge of, ii. 103.
subsequent promise, ib.
accord and satisfaction, ib.
release, ib.
merger, ii. 104.
impossibility of performance, ib.
want of consideration, ii. 104, 105.
failure of through act of plaintiff, ib.
performance of promise, ib.
matter subsequent to action inadmissible, ii. 106.
admissible in diminution of damages, ib.
limitations, statute of, no bar, ib.
non-joinder of co-defendant, ib.
lies at suit of a corporation when, ii. 338.
does not lie where a deed has been executed, iii. 747.
for use and occupation, founded on stat. 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, ii. 152.
plea of non-joinder in abatement, ii. 3. defence under the new rules, ii. 101.

ASSUMPSIT—continued.
lies not on contract under seal, ii. 104.
consideration, app. ii. iii. 1328.
proof by written agreement, ib. 1329.
implied when, ib.
parties to joint contract, ib. 1331.
legality of consideration, ib.
restraint of trade, ib.
wager, ib. 1332.
stipulation by pier with railroad company to withdraw opposition, &c. ib.
condition precedent, ib. 1333.
moral consideration, ib.
for money paid, ib.
money lent, ib. 1334.
money had and received, ib.
detained by fraud, ib. 1336.
paid under ignorance of fact, ib. 1337. account stated, ib.
defence under the new rules, ib. 1338.
gift, ib. 1339.
performance, ib.
merger, ib.
performance impossible, ib.

ATHEIST,
incompetency of, i. 16–21.

ATTACHMENT,
against witness for non-attendance, i. 80.
nature of affidavit on motion for, ib.
See Witness.

ATTAINDER,
when pleadable, ii. 106.
proof of, ib.
of principal, when presumed to be known, ii. 9. conveyance by party convicted of bigamy not void, app. ii. iii. 1339.

ATTAINT,
evidence admissible on, i. 223.
of jury, i. 6.

ATTEMPT,
to discharge fire-arms, what, ii. 692.
to commit a misdemeanor is a misdemeanor, app. ii. iii. 1340.

ATTENTION,
probability that circumstances would attract his attention, i. 548.

ATTESTING WITNESS,
proof by, i. 370.
proof by, when necessary, app. i. 617.
must be called, i. 370.
principle of the rule, i. 371.
need not know the contents of instrument, i. 374.
testimony of not conclusive, ib.
proof in excuse of absence of, i. 375.
character of may be confirmed, when, i. 221.
may impeach the will, ii. 10.

ATTORNEY,
proof of retainer and business done by, app. ii. iii. 1340.
of delivery of bill by, ib. negligence of proof of in defence, ib. 1341.
action against, ib.
not liable for refreshments supplied to witnesses, ib.
practising in county court not liable to penalties, when, ib.
undue influence by, ib. 1342.
revocation of authority of, ib.
proof of being such, ii. 106. 308.
proof by, in action for costs, ii. 106.
in action for libel, ib.
retainer, ii. 107.
delivery of bill, ii. 108.
guarantee by as to costs, ii. 107.
contracts by with clients as to costs, ib. liable for M. H. & R. when, ii. 114.
personally liable, when, ib.
commencement of action, ii. 111.
proof of delivery unnecessary in case of set-off, ii. 110.
proof by solicitor to assignee of bankrupt, ib.
proof in defence, ii. 111.
negligence in conduct of cause, whether a ground of defence, ib.
former bill evidence in diminution, &c., ib.
action against an attorney, ib.
proof that he is an attorney, ib.
proof of negligence, ib.
variance in proof of negligence, ib.
lien of, ii. 648.
amount of damages, ii. 113.
competency of, ii. 114.
admission by, ii. 115.
not allowed to reveal a communication by his client, ii. 320.
communication to, privileged when, i. 70.
confidential communications, ii. 320. liable in trespass when, for suing out process, iii. 1110.
liable when he selects the person to execute a writ, ii. 114.
when liable to be joined in action for malicious arrest, ii. 689.
admission by, when evidence, ii. 43.
entry by, in books, evidence when, i. 362.
by a clerk of, bill delivered, i. 363.
proof of payment to, iii. 821.
bill of, when it may be set-off, iii. 993.
paid, amount reduced on taxation, excess not recoverable, ii. 88.
of one court when entitled to practise in another, ii. 107.

ATTORNEY AND CLIENT, confidential communication between, cannot be disclosed by the attorney, i. 186.

AUCTION,
fraud in sale of goods by, ii. 487. iii. 1213.
sales by within the statute of frauds, ii. 487.
puffing at, ii. 103.

AUCTIONEER,
action lies against him to recover a deposit on purchase of an estate, when, iii. 1194, 1195.
liable for interest, when, ii. 571. iii. 1194.

AUCTIONEER—continued.
considered as a stakeholder, ii. 571, iii. 1194.
as the agent of both parties, iii. 1106.
an authorized agent within the statute of frauds, ii. 152.
agent of the parties, when considered to be, ii. 492.
liability of to interest upon a deposit, ii. 576.
right of set-off against, iii. 995.
AUGMENTATION
of curacy, proof of, ii. 115.
AUTERFOITS ACQUIT,
record of acquittal how procured, i. 223.
evidence on plea of, ib.
AUTREFOITS ACQUIT,
plea of in case of burglary, app. ii. iii. 1377.
ASSIZE,
remedy by for rent, iii. 970.
AUTHOR, privilege of. See Privilege.
AUTHORITY,
to arbitrator, proof of, ii. 116.
of an agent, extent of, ii. 44.
to indorse bills, presumptive evidence, ii. 215.
of agent to indorse bills, ii. 233.
of agent to warrant article of sale, iii. 1240.
of partner when implied, ii. 219.
of one partner to pledge the credit of another, iii. 808.
of a broker, proof of, ii. 42.
to pledge goods, ib.
to receive payment, evidence of, ii. 43.
not proved by recital in direction given by a principal to his agent, i. 416.
should appear on face of the instrument by which executed, when, iii. 901.
a commissioner liable for exceeding, iii. 1111.
excess of amounts to trespass, when, ib.
oppressive exercise of does not make a party a trespasser, iii. 1141.
AVERMENT,
substantial proof of, when sufficient, i. 454.
variance may be reconciled by, when, i. 494.
AVOIDANCE,
proof of, iii. 943.
variance from allegation, ib.
AVOWRY,
for rent, variance, iii. 972.
for rent, averment of the precise quantity not material, ib.
in replevin, how differing from a justification in trespass, ib.
AWARD,
effect of, in evidence, ii. 116.
proof of submission, ib.
of the award, i. 304, ii. 116.
of the appointment of an umpire, ib.
order of reference by rule of court, proof of, ii. 117.
under an inclosure Act, ib.
defence in action on, ib.

AWARD—continued.
evidence to explain, iii. 778.
where conclusive, i. 304, ii. 118, 119.
a bar, when, i. 262.
stamp on, iii. 1041.
error in making of an, app. ii. iii. 1342.
on the part of an arbitrator, ib.
in case of an umpire, ib.
publication of, ib. 1343.
defective, when, ib.
revocation of authority, ib.
statement of objections to, ib. 1344.

BADGER,
trespass cannot be justified in pursuit of a, iii. 565.

BAIL,
estoppel of, ii. 120.
incompetency of, ii. 119.

BAIL-BOND,
evidence on plea of non est factum, ii. 119.
taken by sheriff after return of writ, ib. unnecessary to suggest breaches on, ii. 268.

BAILEE,
gratuitous liability of, iii. 726, 727.
may detain goods from the bailor, when, iii. 1066, 1161, 1162.

BAILIFF,
act of, when the act of the sheriff, iii. 1009.
admission by, when evidence, ii. 30.
action by, against a creditor at whose suit he has seized a bankrupt's goods, ii. 76–78.
evidence on traverse of being, iii. 975.
evidence on plea traversing fact of being, iii. 976 to sheriff, his authority must be proved, ii. 30.
or his acts or declaration inadmissible, ib.
proof of sheriff's warrant to, iii. 1009.
declarations by, when evidence against the sheriff, iii. 1013.
entitled to recover from the attorney, iii. 1298.
action against for money detained under tenor of process, ii. 88, 89.
who makes cognizance, may sue the sheriff for taking insufficient sureties, iii. 1024.

BAILMENT, effect of, defeated by previous felonious intent, 609–612.
proof of determination of, ii. 612. excludes larceny, when, ii. 609.

BALANCE,
due to plaintiff, evidence of malice in an action for malicious arrest, ii. 689.

BANK AGENT,
proof of, being, ii. 308.

BANK OF ENGLAND,
action by, app. ii. iii. 1506.
proof of appointment by, ii. 41.

BANK NOTE,
filed at the bank, may be proved by a copy, i. 228.
country, time for presentment of, ii. 223.

BANK NOTES
may be followed, when, ii. 221. 267.

BANKERS,
goods deposited with, pass to assignees, when, ii. 164, 165.
cannot discount a bill without executing the trust reposed in them, ii. 152.
proof of property in, ii. 164.
general principal of law between bankers and customers, ii. 165.
holds collateral securities for value, when, ii. 220.
when reputed owners, ii. 157, 158. receipt of money by, for criminal purpose, ii. 325.
property in bills transmitted to, ii. 165.

BANKERS' DRAFTS,
stamp upon, iii. 1043.

BANKRUPT,
entitled to recover for money had and received, when, ii. 84.
action by, ii. 182.
indorsement of bill by, ii. 248.

BANKRUPTCY,
issuing of fiat, time of, app. ii. iii. 1356.
proofs in defence against assignees, ib.
concerted, ib. 1357.
set-off, ib.
mutual credit, ib.
damages, right of sheriff to reduce by payments, ib. 1358.
assignees, action against, by landlord, ib.
bankrupt, action against, ib.
certificate, ib. 1359.
under second commission, ib.
under third, ib.
compounding with creditors, illegal effect of, ib.
competency, ib.
property in bankers, ib. 1364.
payments bonâ fide made, ib. 1355.
notice of, ib.
provisions of 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29, ib.
trading by builders, ib. 1345.
joint and separate property, ib. 1350.
farmer, ib. 1345.
what passes to assignees, ib. 1350.
auctioneer, ib. 1345.
bill broker, ib.
trover by assignees, ib. 1351.
single act of, ib. 1345.
order and disposition, ib. 1352.
act of, otherwise absent himself, ib. 1346.
denial to creditor, ib.
fraudulent conveyance, ib. 1347.
fraudulent preference, ib.
concerted, ib. 1348.
petitioning creditor's debt, ib.
depositions, admissibility of, ib. 1344.
trading, what sufficient, ib.
before commission, not presumable, ii. 185.
proof of title to sue as assignees, ii. 120.

BANKRUPTCY—continued.
when necessary, ii. 120.
proof of the commission or fiat, ii. 121.
action by assignees under separate commissions, ii. 123.
under joint commission, ib.
proof where no notice has been given under the statute of disputing the commission, ib.
proof where due notice has been given, ib.
proof by depositions, ii. 125.
of the trading, ii. 126.
what persons liable, ii. 127.
intention to trade, ib.
proof of the act of bankruptcy, ii. 129.
intention, &c. ii. 131.
declaration cotemporary with the act, ib.
departing the realm, ii. 132.
inference of intention to delay, ii. 133.
mere act of departure insufficient, ib. departure from the dwelling-house, ii. 133, 134.
otherwise absenting himself, ii. 134. intention, ib.
beginning to keep house, ii. 135.
evidence of, ib.
denial to creditors, ii. 136.
intention, ii. 137.
proof of actual delay unnecessary, ii. 135.
intention, a question of fact, ib.
yielding himself to prison, ii. 137.
fraudulent conveyance, ii. 138.
proof of the conveyance, ib.
that it was fraudulent, ii. 138, 139.
fraud in law, ib.
fraud in fact, ib.
proof of privity to a fraudulent deed, ii. 144, 145.
fraudulent preference, ii. 140, 141.
compulsion, ii. 142.
importunity, ib.
continuance in possession, ii. 144.
lying in prison for two months, ii. 145.
evidence of, ib.
escape after arrest, ib.
proof of arrest or detention, ib.
relation of the act of bankruptcy to the time of arrest, ib.
petitioning creditor's debt, ii. 146.
nature of the debt, ii. 146, 147.
debt sufficient, though time of credit has not expired, when, ii. 148.
interest cannot be added, ib.
part-payment of debt, ii. 148, 149. judgment creditor, ii. 149.
unliquidated damages, ib.
warrant of attorney, ib.
admission by the bankrupt, ib.
entries before the bankruptcy, ib.
evidence to show prior existence of, ib.
joint creditors must join in petition, ii. 146.
debt due to petitioner as assignee, ii. 150.
evidence by way of admission of the bankruptcy, ii. 131.

BANKRUPTCY—continued.
proof of the assignment, ii. 151.
evidence by assignees in particular actions, ii. 152.
trover, ib.
reputed ownership, ii. 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159. proof in answer, ii. 159.
that actual possession cannot be given, ib.
possession as executor, ib.
as banker, ib.
reputation and usage, ii. 162.
stoppage in transitu, ib.
title in the trader, ib.
termination of the transitus, ib.
property in a banker, ii. 163, 164, 165.
evidence in disaffirmance of a bankrupt's acts, ii. 169, 170.
notice of prior act of bankruptcy, ii. 169.
statute 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 81, ib.
money had and received, ib.
notice of insolvency, ii. 173.
voluntary preference, ii. 140.
evidence of, ib.
presumptive, ib.
onus probandi, ib.
defence of actions brought by assignees, ii. 173.
denial of their character, ib.
nonjoinder of co-assignee, ib.
joint commission, separate property, ib.
depositions, ii. 121.
prior act of bankruptcy, ii. 174.
stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 19, ii. 170.
payment of money to the petitioning creditor, ii. 174.
proof to impeach the debt, ib.
to impeach the act of bankruptcy, ii. 175.
concerted commission, ib.
evidence to impeach the right of action, ib.
set-off, ii. 177.
declaration in assumpsit affirms the act, ib.
mutual credit, ib.
stat. 5 Geo. 3, c. 32, s. 28, ii. 178.
stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 50, ib.
proof as to time when set-off occurred, ib.
of discharge, ii. 179.
by one assignee, ib.
actions against commissioners, assignees, &c. ib. against commissioners, ii. 180.
for imprisonment, ib.
must prove restraint, ib.
liability of assignees on lease to bankrupt, ib.
defence by assignees, ii. 181.
under the general issue, ib.
action by the bankrupt, ii. 182.
insolvency of plaintiff no defence, ib.
or that he is an uncertificated bankrupt, ib.
defence by assignees against an action by the bankrupt, ii. 181, 182.
the steps of bankruptcy when to be proved, ii. 181.
or an admission by the plaintiff, ib.
proof of surrender not sufficient, ib.

BANKRUPTCY—continued.
actions by and against a bankrupt, ii. 182, 183.
defence by bankrupt, ib.
plea of certificate, ib.
stat. 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 126, effect of, ib.
certificate obtained after commencement of action, ib.
effect of certificate, ib.
costs of action, ii. 184.
are accessary to the original debt, ib.
bankruptcy subsequent to commencement of action, ib.
effect of certificate, ib.
in case of surety, ii. 186.
stat. 49 G. 3, c. 121, ib.
under a joint commission, ib.
unliquidated damages, ib.
foreign certificate, ib.
effect of, ib.
evidence in answer to certificate, ib concealment of effects, ib.
fraud, ib.
under second commission, ib.
stat. 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 127, ib.
evidence of former bankruptcy, ii. 187.
action brought before dividend under second commission, ib.
compounding with creditors, ii. 188.
delivery of estate and effects, and release, ib.
discharge under insolvent act, ib.
gift of money to creditor to sign certificate, ib.
subsequent promise to pay, ib.
promise made before certificate obtained, ii. 189.
mere admission insufficient, ib.
proof under commission, an election not to sue at law, ib.
discharge from lease, accepted by assignees, ib.
indictment against a bankrupt, ii. 190.
steps of bankruptcy to be proved, ib.
allegation of commission, ib.
variance from, ib. & i. 493.
indictment for perjury, ib.
perjury before the commissioners, ib competency of witnesses, ii. 190.
of the bankrupt, ii. 191.
of creditors, ii. 193.
of assignees, ii. 194.
production of documents, ib.
acquittal of one who proves his certificate, not allowed in order to make him competent, ib.
action to recover amount fraudulently received beyond a composition, ii. 84.
partner, suit by assignees of, iii. 802.
admissions by, are evidence against, although he might have demurred, ii. 27.
proof of acquiescence under his commission, ii. 24, and see Bankrupt.
proof that cash notes came into hands of defendant before bankruptcy, incumbent on the defendant, ii. 178.
proof of set-off against assignees of, iii. 993, 994.
of dates of notes set-off, iii. 993, 994.

BANKRUPTCY—continued.
commissioners' power to summon witnesses, i. 86. assignees of, joinder of, ii. 2.

BANNS,
publication of, ii. 699, 700. 702.

BAPTISM,
register of, admissibility of, i. 243.
register of, inadmissible to prove age, when, i. 244.
not provable by register of foreign chapel, ib.
or of a dissenting chapel, ib. or of Guernsey, ib.

BARGAIN, meaning of, in the 17th sec. of the statute of frauds, ii. 491.

BARGAIN AND SALE,
proof of enrolment of, i. 410.

BARGAINEE,
estate rests in, before enrolment, ii. 335.

BARGAINED AND SOLD,
goods, action for, iii. 1195.

BARON. See Husband and Wife.

BARRATRY,
notice of particular facts to be proved, ii. 304.
evidence to prove, iii. 879.

BARREN LANDS,
exemption of, from tithes, iii. 1093.

BARRISTER. See Witness.

BASTARD,
liability on promise to support, ii. 186.
order of filiation, form of, ii. 196.
character of reputed child acquired by, ib.
after death of parties, marriage not questionable, ii. 198.
ill-fame of mother admissible, when, ii. 199.
declarations, evidence of, ii. 200.
reputed father not compellable to give evidence, when, ii. 201.

BASTARDY,
trial of, by certificate, ii. 196. 302.
of child born in wedlock, ib.
proof of non-access in such case, ib.
separation by consent, effect of, ii. 197.
divorce à mensa et thoro, ib.
proof, natural impossibility, by ancient law, ib.
ante-nuptial conception, ib.
proof of nullity of marriage, ib.
of divorce à vinculo, ib.
legitimacy of posthumous child, ii. 198.
character of the mother, ib.
birth after second marriage, ib.
competency, ii. 199.
of parents, ii. 199.
cannot prove non-access, ii. 200

BASTARDY—continued.
as to adultery, ib.
access, ib.
declaration of mother, ib.
cohabitation and repute, ib.
declarations of deceased parents, ib.
as to what points admissible, ii. 199, 200. examination of pregnant women, ii. 201. issue cannot be bastardized by sentence after death of parties, i. 288.
evidence as to the mother's character, when admissible, ii. 305.
money paid by putative father of, when recoverable, ii. 91.
non-access, app. ii. iii. 1360.
of person born in Scotland, ib.
provision of statute 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 36, ib.

BATTERY,
usually included in false imprisonment, iii. 1113. See Assault—Trespass.

BEARER,
mere, of money not suable, ii. 83.
of money not liable to assignees, when, ii. 169.

BEECH,
may be timber by custom, ii. 359.

BEGINNING TO KEEP HOUSE,
act of bankruptcy, when, ii. 135.
in case of partners, ii. 136.

BENEFICE,
curacy augmented is a benefice, iii. 944.

BENEFIT OF CLERGY,
effect of, in restoring competency, i. 97.

BEST EVIDENCE,
rule as to, i. 500.
principle of, ib.
application of the maxim to cross-examination as to written matters, i. 199.
comparative nature of the rule, i. 501.
does not apply when the superior evidence fails, ib.
or where no presumption of fraud arises, i. 501, 502, 503.
nor in case of an admission by a party, i. 503.
excludes oral evidence to prove a writing, i. 500.
distinction between secondary and defective evidence, i. 505.
in case of written document, app. i. 634.

BEYOND SEAS,
marriage, proof of, ii. 704.

BIBLE,
entries in, admissible in case of pedigree, iii. 842.

BIDDING,
fraudulent at a sale, effect of, iii. 1212.

BIGAMY. See Polygamy.
proof of marriage, ii. 698.
indictment for, proof of marriage, ii. 309.

BIGAMY—continued.
admission as to marriage, whether evidence, ii. 25.
conviction for, effect of as to first marriage, ii. 702.

BILL IN EQUITY,
evidence against the plaintiff, ii. 25.
admissible in proof of pedigree, iii. 836.

BILL AND ANSWER,
evidence when, in tithe suit, iii. 1089.

BILL OF EXCEPTIONS,
where it lies, i. 526.
on what founded, ib.
stat. 13 Ed. 1, s. 31, i. 526, 527. provisions of the stat., ib. time of tendering the bill, i. 528.
form of the bill, ib.
course of proceeding upon it, i. 529.
containing part only of a lease, app. i. 635.

BILL OF EXCHANGE,
proof how it differs from that of other contracts, ii. 201.
action by the payee against the drawer or acceptor, ii. 202.
production of the note or bill, ii. 202, 203.
proof of the making or accepting, ii. 203.
by the attesting witness, ib.
variance as to hand-writing, ii. 204.
identity of defendant, ib.
stat. 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, s. 2, ib.
drawing of bill admitted by the acceptance, when, ib.
acceptance by several, ib.
implied authority, ii. 205.
where one suffers judgment by default, ib.
admission by one of several, ib.
proof of acceptance by an agent, ib. time of acceptance, ii. 206.
collateral acceptance, ib.
presumptive evidence of acceptance, ii. 207. acceptance by mistake, ii. 208.
conditional acceptance, ib.
stat. 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, ib.
identity of payee where bill is drawn in blank, ii. 210.
proof by admission, ib.
proof that acceptance was cancelled by mistake, ii. 211.
objections previous to reading of, ib.
want of stamp, ib.
cancellation, ib.
variance, ib.
date, ib.
name, ib.
parties, ii. 213.
in legal effect, ib.
in allegation of signature, ib.
direction, ib.
consideration, ib.
allegation of delivery, ii. 214.
of acceptance in action against drawer, ib.

BILL OF EXCHANGE—continued.
indorsements, ii. 214.
presentment, ib.
by an indorsee against the maker or acceptor, ib.
proof of transfer, ii. 215.
by a bankrupt, ii. 217.
an executor, ib.
a trustee, ib.
a feme covert, ib.
infant, ib.
variance in proof, ib.
special indorsement, proof of, ii. 218.
indorsement in blank, ib.
transfer by delivery, ib.
proof of money paid to subsequent indorsee, ii. 219.
delivery for special purpose, ib.
by one of several partners, ib.
superseding evidence, ib.
proof of value, where necessary, ii. 220. effect of notice to prove value, ii. 221.
by payee against the drawer, ii. 221, 222.
essentials of proof, ib.
drawing of the bill, ib.
proof of presentment, ib.
time of presentment, ii. 223.
place, ib.
proof of drawee's default, ib.
notice to the drawer, ib.
general rule, ib.
by whom given, ib.
when, ib.
foreign bill, ii. 228.
writing not necessary, ib.
by the post, ii. 227.
form of notice, ii. 228.
to one of several, ii. 229.
evidence in excuse of notice, ib.
want of effects, ii. 229, 230. absence, ii. 230.
knowledge of drawer, ib.
declaration by drawee, evidence of want of effects, ii. 230.
ignorance of drawer's residence, ib.
evidence to disprove loss from want of notice, not admissible, ii. 231.
expectation of assets, ib.
fluctuating accounts, ib.
notice not dispensed with, when, ib.
protest, proof of, when necessary, ii. 232.
by an indorsee against the drawer, ii. 233.
particulars of proof, ib.
indorsement, ib.
by an agent, ib.
by an indorsee against an indorser, ib.
particulars of proof, ib.
indorsement by defendant, ii. 234.
what it proves, ib.
evidence of indorsement, ib.

BILL OF EXCHANGE—continued.
presentment, ii. 234.
dishonour, ib.
notice, ib.
time of, ib.
excuse for want of notice, ii. 235.
protest, ii. 237.
variance, ib.
presumptive evidence in case of bills, ib.
part payment, ib.
application for time, ib.
knowledge of default, ib.
promise by one of several indorsers, ii. 239.
made under ignorance of law, ib.
drawer against the acceptor, ib.
proof of acceptance, ib.
presentment, ib.
payment by plaintiff, ib.
effects in hands of acceptor, ib.
acceptor against the drawer, ib.
drawing of the bill, ib.
absence of consideration for acceptance, ii. 240.
payment by plaintiff, ib.
damages, ib.
interest, ib.
evidence in defence, ii. 241.
to disprove the contract, ib.
extrinsic evidence to vary the contract inadmissible, ib.
want of consideration, ib.
partial failure from fraud, &c. ii. 247.
illegality, ib.
stat. of gaming, ii. 246.
of usury, ib.
compounding felony, ib.
penalties, ib.
fraud, ii. 248.
defect of title in the plaintiff, ib.
satisfaction of the bill, ib.
when available, ii. 249.
lapse of time, ib.
to one of several, ib.
release of, ib.
effect of, ib.
tender after the day, ib.
discharge by laches, ii. 250.
by giving time, ib.
waiver, ib.
indorsement after the bill comes due, ii. 253.
want of stamp, ii. 254.
when bill has altered, ib.
competency, ii. 257.
incompetency of party to prove forgery of his signature, ib.
of a drawer, ib.
maker, ii. 258.
acceptor, ib.
indorser, ib.
copartner, ii. 260.

BILL OF EXCHANGE—continued.
declaration by a holder, ii. 260. effect of a bill or note, in evidence, ii. 261.
on the money counts, ii. 263.
resort to the common counts, ib.
operation of bill in payment, ii. 81. 265.
property in bills deposited in case of bankruptcy, ii. 165.
indorsee competent to prove usury, ii. 11.
stamp on, iii. 1042. See Stamp.
indorsement, proof, app. ii. iii. 1364.
presentment of cheque, ib.
notice of dishonour, ib.
form of notice, ib. 1365.
excuse for want of, ib.
collateral liability, ib.
damages, ib.
verdict on, ib. 1366.
defence to action on, ib.
want of consideration, ib.
illegality, ib. 1369.
satisfaction, ib.
giving time, ib. 1370.
alteration, ib. 1371.
effect of in payment, ib.
competency, ib.
what amounts to, ib. 1362.
right to begin in action of, ib.
production of the bill or note, ib. 1363.
acceptance, proof of, ib.
identity of payee, proof of, ib.
alteration, ib.
effect of not alterable by parol evidence, when, iii. 759.
form of, ii. 201.
lost or stolen, evidence in action on, ii. 220.
given for debt estops the debtor, when, ii. 87. stolen property in, iii. 1149.

BILLS OF EXCHANGE,
in hands of bankers pass to assignees, when, ii. 165.

BILL OF LADING,
evidence of property in goods shipped, ii. 284.
negotiability of, ii. 267.
proof of property by means of, iii. 871.
effect of indorsement of, ib.
stamp on, iii. 1044.
indorsement of, destroys the right of stoppage in transitu, ii. 163.
evidence of authority to transfer, iii. 872.
not conclusive, when, app. ii. iii. 1372.

BILL OF MIDDLESEX,
suing out, the commencement of an action, when, ii. 583.

BILL OF SALE,
by the sheriff, is evidence of the taking, iii. 1028.
stamp on, iii. 1044.

BILL
to perpetuate testimony, i. 322.

BILLS,
property in proceeds of in case of bankruptcy, ii. 161.

BIRTH,
in parish, primâ facie evidence of settlement, iii. 998.
concealment of, app. ii. iii. 1487.

BISHOP,
certificate by, ii. 302.
register of evidence as to custom, i. 246.
certificate of value in action for non-residence, iii. 965.
judge of fitness of clerk presented, iii. 944.

BLACK ART. See tit. Arson—Hundred—Malicious Mischief.

BLAME,
attributable to plaintiff excludes action, when, iii. 741. 746.

BLANK,
cannot be supplied by parol evidence, when, iii. 754.
in will cannot be supplied by parol evidence, iii. 772.

BODLEIAN LIBRARY,
agreement in book of, provable by copy, i. 228.
evidence of contents of books in, ib.

BONA NOTABILIA. See Executor.
in another diocese, effect of, ii. 442.

BOND,
proof of, ii. 268.
breaches of, ib.
annuity-bond, ib.
damages, ii. 270.
not replacing stock, ii. 269.
interest on, ib.
evidence in defence, ii. 270.
plea of payment, ib.
presumption of payment, i. 350.
indorsements on bond, effect of, ib. condition of, variance as to, i. 448. conditioned for securing advances by partners, discharged on death of one, when, iii. 825.
stamp on, iii. 1044.
outstanding, plea of, by an executor, ii. 452.
illegality of must be pleaded, ii. 270.
indorsements on, effect of, ib.
performance of condition of, on whom the proof lies, ii. 269.
damages recoverable by trustee, app. ii. iii. 1372.
validity of, ib.
construction of, ib.
breach of, ib. 1373.
surety by discharged, when, ib.
satisfaction of, ib. 1374.
on bottomry, ib.

BOOKS,
of a corporation, i. 248.
of East India Company, i. 228. of Bank of England, i. 228. 247.

BOOKS—continued.
of public offices, i. 228. 247.
of register of Navy-office, i. 247.
muster-book of ship, ib.
log-book of man of war, ib.
books of Queen's Bench and Fleet prisons, i. 248.
of master of Queen's Bench office, ib. kept by order of Chancellor, ib.
clerk of peace, ib.
poll-books at elections, ib.
of ship, i. 248.
Heralds' office, i. 249.
of public history, i. 250, 251.
of admission of attornies, evidence by, ii. 106.
at bankrupt office, evidence when, ii. 187.
of account, evidence when, in tithe suit of vicar, iii. 1091.
BOOKSELLER,
evidence of sale by agent, ii. 42.
BOROUGH ENGLISH,
custom of. See Custom, ii. 357.
BOTTOMRY BOND,
valid, when, app. ii. iii. 1374.
BOUGHT AND SOLD NOTES,
by the broker, the proper evidence of the contract of sale, iii. 1196.
sale note, alteration in effect of, iii. 1197.
BOUNDARY,
evidence of, i. 33. 181.
of parishes and manors, evidence of, ib.
tradition as to, ii. 697.
evidence to prove, app. i. 601.
verdict admissible, when, ib.
reputation as to, admissible when, ib.
perambulations, admissible when, ib. 602.
BREACH,
of covenant, proof of, ii. 346, 347.
of assumpsit, proof of, ii. 56. 100.
assignment of, ii. 268.
stat. 8 & 9 W. 3, c. 11, s. 8, ib.
of condition, to be assigned, when, iii. 852.
when there is a stipulation as to amount, ib.
damages assessable on, under the common venire, ii. 269.
BRIBERY,
stat. 2 G. 2, c. 24, ii. 271.
evidence to prove that A. B. was a candidate, ib.
variance, ib.
competency, ii. 11.
evidence in action for, ii. 25.
offer of bribe is evidence of the right to vote, ib.
proof of, app. ii. iii. 1374.
reward, what is, ib. 1375.
BRIDGE,
evidence of being a public bridge, ii. 272.
proof in defence, ii. 274.
by county, on plea of not guilty, ib.
special plea by a county, ib.

BRIDGE—continued.
prescription, ii. 274, 275.
liability ratione tenuræ, ib.
defence by private individual, ib.
competency, ib.
liability of company for non-repair of, app. ii. iii. 1375.
to repair highway at each end, ib.
public road at each end of, repairable by the county, ii. 527.
property in materials of, ii. 272.

BROKER,
proof of authority of, ii. 42, 43.
proof of determination of authority, iii. 1220.
evidence of sale by, iii. 1196.
proved by bought and sold notes, ib.
secus, if they differ, iii. 1197.
in selling goods without disclosing the name of his principal, acts beyond his authority, iii. 995.
set-off by, ib.
payment to, where valid, iii. 821.
authority of, revocable, ii. 493.
is the agent of both parties to a sale, ib.
book of evidence of contract, ib.
debt of, may be set off, when, iii. 995.

BULL OF POPE,
when evidence, i. 242. See Tithes.

BURGLARY,
evidence of breaking, ii. 276.
constructive breaking, ii. 277.
entry, ib.
dwelling-house, ii. 278.
inhabitancy, ib.
animus revertend, ib.
extent of dwelling-house, ii. 279.
ownership, ib.
night-time, ii. 280.
intent, ib.
principal and accessory, ii. 282.
proof of breaking, app. ii. iii. 1376.
property, ib.
autrefoits acquit, ib. 1377.

BURIAL FEES,
paid over, when recoverable, ii. 88. See app. ii. iii. 1377.

BURNING. See Arson.

BURTHEN OF PROOF. See Onus Probandi.

BYE-LAW,
proof of, iii. 947.

CALENDAR,
noticed by the courts, i. 509.

CALICO PRINTER,
lien of, ii. 648.

CAMDEN. See History.

CANAL,
rating of, app. ii. iii. 1568.

CANAL COMPANY,
action against, for a nuisance, iii. 1252, 1253.
CANAL NAVIGATION. shares not good, &c. within the statute of frauds, ii. 487.
CANAL SHARES,
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 154.
CANCELLATION,
of will, iii. 1286. See Will.
by rasure, i. 369.
of deed destroys title, when, ii. 379.
of bill of exchange, ii. 211.
CANDIDATE,
proof of being, ii. 271.
CAPACITY,
of an infant, ii. 558.
of a testator, evidence as to, iii. 1276.
to make a will, ib.
to commit a crime, iii. 1277.
CAPIAS AD RESPONDENDUM, in the Common Pleas, proves the commencement of the action, iii. 1076.
CAPTION OF SEISIN,
by Duke of Cornwall, i. 235.
CAPTION,
proof of, on charge of larceny, ii. 604.
CAPTURE. See Policy.
CARRIER,
particulars of proof, in actions against, ii. 282.
contract, ib.
implied contract, ii. 283.
express contract, ib.
parties, ii. 284.
variance, i. 408, ii. 284.
proof of delivery, ii. 286.
of loss, ib.
promise by book-keeper, ib.
proof of loss will not sustain trover, ib.
proof in defence, ii. 287.
for what losses liable, ib.
loss by act of God, ib.
limitation of responsibility, ib.
proof of notice, ii. 288.
by advertisement, ii. 289.
different notices, ib.
proof in reply to notice, ii. 292.
negligence, ib.
notice of value, ib.
fraud, ib.
action against coach-owner for injury to a passenger, ii. 295.
defence by, on an action of trover by vendor, iii. 1166. admission by payment of money into court, iii. 830.
lien of, ii. 647.
averment of readiness to pay for carriage, app. ii. iii. 1377.

CARRIER—continued.
priority of contract, app. ii. iii. 1377.
defence by, ib.
special plea, when necessary, ib.
delivery of goods to, effect of, ii. 284.
evidence by, under plea of not guilty, ii. 287.
delivery of goods to a, delivery to a vendee, when, iii. 1206.
lien of, ii. 648.
limitation of responsibility, by stat. 11 G. 4 and 1 W. 4, c. 68, ii. 294.

CASE, ACTION ON.
variance, ii. 298.
material averment, ib.
contracts, averment of, ib. See tit. Variance.
extent and magnitude, ii. 299.
parties, ii. 297.
time, ii. 298.
place, ib.
agency, 298, 299.
sums, dates, &c. ii. 299.
damages, ib.
proof in bar, ii. 300.
evidence in defence, ib.
defence under general issue, ii. 392.

CASE,
special, sufficient if circumstances can be found from which the Court can infer facts, i. 511.
for counsel's opinion where evidence, i. 397.
proper form of action, when, app. ii. iii. 1378. variance in, ib.
in what respect differs from trespass, iii. 1106.

CATHOLIC PRIEST,
marriage by, valid, when, ii. 704.

CASUAL PAUPER,
claim for attendance on, ii. 70.

CATTLE,
proof of being levant and couchant, ii. 318, 319.
commonable what, ii. 315.
proof on an indictment for maiming, ii. 694.
returning from pasture, provision as to, ii. 85.

CAUSE of action. See Limitations. plaintiff may recover on cause of action not stated by counsel, i. 430.

CAUSE, PROBABLE,
question of law, when, i. 522.
of fact, when, ib.
proof of, in reference to the court, &c. iii. 107.
in suit in the Common Pleas at Lancaster, ib.

CAUSING,
to be taken, evidence of, ii. 694.

CAVEAT EMPTOR,
maxim of law, iii. 1213.
application of the maxim, iii. 1237.

CELLAR,
nuisance by leaving open flap of, iii. 734.

CERTIFICATE,
admissibility of, when made by persons in authority, i. 242.
by chirographer, ib.
copies by officers of court, i. 242.
entries of returns under stat. 7 & 8 W. 3, c. 7, s. 5, ib.
of conviction of felony, ii. 302.
stat. 3 & 4 W. & M., c. 9, s. 7, ib.
of uttering counterfeit coin, ib.
stat. 15 G. 2, c. 28, s. 9, ib.
of former conviction, ib.
stat. 6 G. 1, c. 23, s. 6, ib.
7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 11, ib.
in general when admissible, ib.
of court, in nature of an adjudication, ib.
of bishop, ib.
of magistrates, ii. 302.
of customs, ib.
of discharge of insolvent debtor, ib.
of settlement, execution of, ib.
parish, ii. 22.
trial of bastardy, by. See Bastardy.
indorsement of enrolment on deed of bargain and sale, ii. 242.
trial by. See Bastardy. entry by clerks of Crown, under stat. 7 & 8 W. 3, c. 7, s. 50, i. 242.
parish where evidence, ii. 22.
where conclusive, ib.
of settlement not provable by parish book, i. 246.
unlawfully returning without one, conviction for, ii. 585.
of vice-consul, not admissible, iii. 893.
of attorney, when to be proved in action by, ii. 106.
omission to take out, effect of, ib.
action for obtaining bankrupt's, ii. 108.
under a joint commission, available in respect of separate debt, ii. 186.
not a bar when, ib.
in an action for unliquidated damages, ib.
foreign, effect of, ii. 186.
proof in answer to, ii. 186, 187. gaming, &c. ib.
fraudulent promise, ii. 187.
proof of discharge under, when there is a variance in name, ii. 185.
plea of, by a bankrupt, ii. 182.
when obtained after the commencement of the action, ii. 183.
effect of, ib.
debt bound by, when, ii. 184, 185.
verdict before, but judgment after act of bankruptcy, ib. provision of 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 51, as to credit given before, in respect of sum payable after bankruptcy, ib.
proof of, on information under the Game Act, ii. 501. omission of attorney to take out, ii. 111.
what amounts to, ib.
in bankruptcy, effect of, ii. 184.
of conformity under a fiat, proof of, ii. 183.
of speaker, presumption as to, app. ii. iii. 1378.
election of party suing on as to the defendant, ib.
of British consul abroad inadmissible, iii. 893.

CERTIFICATED BANKRUPT, promise by, must be in writing, ii. 79. liability of a new promise, ii. 70.

CERTIORARI,
removal of a record by, i. 223.

CHALLENGE of a juror, i. 194.

CHAMBERS in Lincoln's Inn, admission to, ii. 437.

CHANCEL,
repairs of, by whom made, iii. 864.
in London by churchwardens, ib.

CHANCELLOR,
books kept by order of, when evidence, i. 248.

CHANCERY, answer in, admissibility of, i. 332. See tit. Judgment.

CHAPEL,
proof of marriage in a, ii. 699.
marriage in, when legal, ii. 699–702.

CHAPELWARDEN, liability of, ii. 2. See Churchwarden.

CHAPLAIN,
proof of appointment, iii. 965.

CHARACTER,
moral character in society, ii. 303.
when evidence in criminal cases, ii. 304.
nature of the evidence, ib.
in civil proceedings when admissible, ib.
information to recover penalties, ib.
action of slander, ib.
of third person, ii. 305.
of mother, in case of bastardy, ib.
of prosecutrix, in case of rape, ib.
with a view to lessen damages, ib.
in action for adultery, ib.
for malicious prosecution, ii. 306.
of good character not admissible by plaintiff, ib.
in case of seduction, iii. 990.
evidence of special character, ii. 307.
in case of peace officers, &c. ib.
excise and custom-house officers, ib.
surrogate, ib.
physician, ib.
attorney, ii. 308.
direct proof, ib.
proof by admission, ib.
of witness, when it may be confirmed, i. 221.
by proof that he has given the same account before, ib.
of witness, cannot be impeached by the party who calls him, i. 215.
of witness, when impeached, may be supported by general evidence, i. 221.
of instrumentory witness, may be confirmed when, ib.
of wife, when evidence in action for crim. con., ii. 355.
in case of rape, iii. 951.
badness of, evidence in defence of an action for breach of promise of marriage, ii. 707.

CHARACTER—continued.
for chastity, in action for seduction, iii. 991.
of witness, impeachable by general evidence only, i. 211.
variance from allegation of, i. 450. 473.
evidence of, in case of seduction, iii. 990.
in action for malicious prosecution, evidence of, ii. 685.
proof of, by physicians, &c. in case of libel, ii. 627.
good, of attorney not receiveable although attempted to be impeached on cross-examination, app. ii. iii. 1378.

CHARGES, to juries, observation on, i. 537, 538.

CHARTER,
proof of acceptance of, iii. 947.
cannot be partially accepted, iii. 948.
admissibility of extrinsic evidence to explain the terms of, iii. 775.

CHARTERPARTY,
contract, condition, precedent, ii. 68.

CHARTULARY,
of abbey, proof by, i. 385.
proof of custody of, ib.

CHATTEL, annexed to the freehold, becomes the property of the owner of the freehold, iii. 866.
ordered to be made property in during the making, iii. 1148.

CHATTEL REAL,
proof of title to, by demise, ii. 409.

CHEQUE,
delivery of, evidence of what, ii. 263.
time allowed for presentment of, ii. 222.
rule as to presentment of, ib.
presentment of, app. ii. iii. 1364.

CHIEF CLERK,
of company, instrument of binds the company, when, ii. 42.

CHILD,
competency of, iii. 950.
cannot give evidence unless he be sworn, i. 24.
a husband not liable to maintain wife's children by a former husband, ii. 546.

CHIROGRAPH,
of fine, admissible why, 225.
evidence of it, ii. 457.
proof by, iii. 964.

CHIROGRAPHER,
an authorized officer, i. 225.
certificate of, i. 242.

CHRONICLES,
of public history, admissibility of, i. 250.

CHURCH,
freehold of, is the incumbent's, iii. 866. See Pew—Prescription—Tithes.
parish, marriage in proof of, ii. 698.

CHURCHWARDEN. See Overseer. authority to dispose of seats in a church, iii. 863.
ejectment by, ii. 413.
title of, as landlords, may be denied when, iii. 974.
when liable to be sued, ii. 2. 413.
liability of, on contract, iii. 1171.
a trespasser, in executing a distress for an illegal rate, ii. 438.
book of, entry in, evidence of reputation, i. 245.
parish lands vested in when, notwithstanding the stat. 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, and 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 69, s. 3, app. ii. iii. 1378. protection under stat. 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, ib. 1379.
election of voters cannot legally be excluded, ib.
entitled to be sworn in by archdeacon, ib.
ejectment by, ii. 413.
suit for money paid parties, ii. 2.
title of to land may be disputed by one who has paid them, but when, iii. 974.

CINQUE PORTS,
custom of, ii. 359.

CIRCUITY OF ACTION,
defence when, ii. 105.

CIRCUMSTANCES,
means of judging in case of conflict of, i. 586.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE, grounds of, i. 55.
general rule as to the admissibility of collateral facts, ii. 312.
distinction between a mere presumption and presumptive or circumstantial evidence, i. 558.
force of circumstantial evidence, i. 561. necessity for relying on it, i. 558.
caution respecting the use of it, ib.
grounds of circumstantial proof, i. 559.
philosophical proofs as to relations between cause and effect, i. 561.
different kinds of coincidences, i. 562.
mechanical, ib.
moral i. 563.
foundation of, ib.
examples of, ib.
omission to produce evidence beneficial to the party who has it in his power, ib.
substitution of weaker for stronger evidence, i. 564.
spoliation, ib.
observations on the Douglas cause, ib.
fabrication of evidence, ib.
corruption of evidence, ib.
caution to be observed, i. 565.
connection between conduct and intention, ib. between motive and conduct in criminal cases, i. 566.
connection arising out of ordinary experience, ib. absence of evidence tending to support any other hypothesis, i. 567.
independent and dependent circumstances, ib.
whether the coincidence of a number of inconclusive circumstances be sufficient to warrant a conviction, i. 508.
force of probability derived from a number of independent proofs, ib.
abstract principle of increase, i. 568.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE—continued.
essentials to circumstantial proof, i. 571. establishment of the facts, ib.
simulated facts, ib.
consistency of the facts with the hypothesis, i. 573.
conclusive nature and tendency of the circumstances, ib.
that they should exclude every other hypothesis, i. 575.
the failure of direct evidence, i. 578.
evidence which leaves it indifferent which of several hypotheses is true, is insufficient, i. 573.
mere coincidences, when sufficient, i. 574.
test of the conclusive tendency of evidence, ib.
inconclusive circumstances, when rendered conclusive, i. 575.
the corpus delicti must be fully proved, ib.
inquiry as to other hypotheses, i. 576.
in the case of possession of goods stolen, ib.
for the jury to judge of the conclusiveness of circumstances, i. 577 Sir W. Blackstone's division of, i. 541.
Lord Coke's ditto, ib.
proof of title by, iii. 922, 923.
as to the execution of deeds, ib.
of a release, ib.
of a conveyance, iii. 923.
jury to draw the conclusion when, iii. 925.
where the evidence is circumstantial the jury or court below must make the inference, iii. 999.
of tender sufficient, iii. 1070.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL PROOF, inconsistency of with any other hypothesis, when essential, app. i. 636.

CIVIL LAW,
required two witnesses, i. 550.
observations on the doctrine of, ib.

CLANDESTINE
removal of goods to avoid distress, ii. 393, 394.

CLAUDIUS,
order of, historical variance as to time of, i. 553.

CLERGY,
benefit of, effect of as to competency, i. 97.

CLERGYMAN,
trial of, i. 97.

CLERK
answer of, at counting-house of principals, ii. 42. of the peace, books of, i. 248. See Certificate. to trustees, liable to be sued, not liable to execution, iii. 1172.
to commissioners of taxes, bound to produce their books under a subpœna, i. 91. of commissioners of property-tax, cannot refuse to be examined, ii. 322.
to commissioners or trustees, not liable where they could not be sued, iii. 1172.
answer by, evidence against principal, ii. 42.
admissible when, i. 248.
fitness of, how tried, iii. 944.
embezzling his master's property, competency of, ii. 10.

CLERK—continued.
to trustees when responsible for acts of deputy, ii. 46.
of an agent has not authority to sue for his principal, when, ii. 486.
CLOSE,
parol evidence inadmissible to show meaning of, iii. 771.
CLOTHES,
assault with intent to spoil, ii. 54.
CLUB,
members of, liable for goods supplied to the club, iii. 1197.
COACH OWNER,
nuisance by negligent driving of, iii. 736.
liability for negligence, iii. 728.
COALS,
within a manor, title to, ii. 697.
within copyhold, right of, ii. 696.
CO-EXECUTORS,
notice to one of, ii. 244.
CO-DEFENDANT,
how made competent, ii. 11.
against whom no evidence is given, acquittal of, pending the trial, iii. 799.
when a competent witness for the rest, ib.
competent when, i. 147.
in ejectment, i. 148.
stat. 54 Geo. 3, c. 170, s. 9, i. 158.
3 & 4 Vict. c. 26, i. 159. 161.
where competent after judgment by default, i. 165.
COERCION,
of wife, when presumed, ii. 549.
by the husband, when a defence on an indictment against the wife, ii. 548.
COGNOVIT,
must be stamped, when, iii. 1046.
after action not evidence of an account stated, ii. 98.
COHABITATION,
as man and wife, when conclusive as evidence of marriage, ii. 22.
evidence by, ii. 198.
CO-CONSPIRATOR. See Conspiracy—Treason—Trespass.
CO-DEFENDANTS. See Parties.
COGNOVIT. See Stamp.
COIN,
evidence of currency, ii. 310.
proof of recall, ib.
evidence of counterfeiting, ib.
what resemblance requisite, ib.
stat. 8 & 9 W. 3, c. 26, ib.
number of witnesses, ib.
indictment for having implements in possession, ii. 311.
with intent to coin foreign money, ib.
proof of putting off, &c. ib.
stat. 8 & 9 W. 3, c. 26, ib.
proof of scienter, ib.
commencement of suit, when, ii. 312.

COIN—continued.
proof of former conviction, ii. 312.
what intent to defraud essential in case of indictment for uttering, app. ii. iii. 1379.
evidence on indictments for having base coin in possession, uttering, &c. ib.

COINCIDENCES,
in testimony, importance of, i. 552.
effect of, in circumstantial proof, i. 561.
moral effect of, i. 565.

COLLATERAL DESCENT. See Pedigree.

COLLATERAL FACTS,
facts when irrelevant, ii. 312.
instances, ii. 313.
not admissible in order to discredit a witness, ib.
evidence to prove malice, ib.
to prove contract where it is doubtful, ib.
to prove knowledge that an acceptance was fictitious, admissible when, i. 65.
proof, inadmissible to impeach a record, iii. 958.

COLLATERAL UNDERTAKING, indebitatus assumpsit does not lie. See Assumpsit.

COLLATERAL WRITING,
admissible when, i. 504.

COLLATERAL SECURITIES, held for value, when, ii. 220.
given by an acceptor, do not discharge the drawer, ii. 249.
effect of, in general, ib.

COLLECTOR. See Interest—Tithes.
entries by, i. 359.
of tithes, entry by, i. 364.

COLLECTOR OF RATES,
commitment of, ii. 590.

COLLECTOR OF TAXES,
book of deceased, admissibility of, iii. 1064.

COLLECTOR'S ACCOUNTS, i. 358.

COLLEGE. See Judgment.

COLLOQUIUM,
proof of, in action of slander, ii. 628.
evidence of in case of libel, ib.

COLLUSION,
judgment may be avoided by, when, i. 306.
proof of, to impeach receipt, iii. 954, 955.
avoids sentence, when, ii. 706.

COLONIAL COURT,
effect of judgment in, i. 267.
law, how proved, i 294.

COLONIAL JUDGMENT,
effect of, i. 267.

COMMAND,
proof of, on traverse of, iii. 1130.
traverse, effect of, ib.

COMMENCEMENT,
of action, iii. 1075.
proof of, ii. 657.
by an irregular writ, iii. 1077.
by an attorney, ii. 111.
proof of, in a suit for a penalty, iii. 849.
matter subsequent to, inadmissible, ii. 106.
in bar, but not in reduction of damages, ii. 79.
of prosecution, evidence of, ii. 312.
under game laws, proof of, ii. 502. of action, proof of, iii. 1079. of action, ii. 109. 111.

COMMISSION, PUBLIC,
when evidence, i. 237, 238.
of bankrupt, allegation and proof of, ii. 191.
variance from allegation of, i. 493.
proved by recital, when, iii. 956. effect of, as to notice, ii. 170.
superseded, evidence of being, ii. 497.
joint action by assignees under, ii. 174.
second, proof of, to defeat a certificate, ii. 186.
effect of superseding, ii. 181.

COMMISSION,
usual, the test of value in an action for work and labour, iii. 1307.
to make survey, absence of, app. i. 608.

COMMISSIONERS,
of bankrupt, notice to, on action against, ii. 179.
to inquire of seisin of lands, return of, admissibility of, i. 238.
appointed to inquire of debts, certificate by, ii. 302.
certificate of, effect of, i. 292.
allowance of debt by commissioners of bankrupts, i. 272.
of excise, judgment of, ib.
liability of. See Trustees, iii. 1169. of taxes, effect of judgment of, i. 290.
of excise, excess of authority by, ii. 588. liability of general principle as to, iii. 1169. See Trustees. actions by, iii. 1172.
public, liable for damage, when, iii. 740.
not liable for nuisance, when, iii. 747.

COMMISSIONERS' BOOKS,
admissibility of, app. i. 609.

COMMITMENT,
proof of, under a conviction, ii. 593.
may be by parole, when, ib.
for a reasonable time, ib.
justification by a defendant under, ib. of collector of rates, ii. 590.
of a rogue and vagabond, ib.
for maintenance of bastard child, ii. 591.
for maliciously carrying away a post from a fence, ib.
of overseer for not delivering up parish book, ib.
for destroying fish, ib.
for refusing to give evidence before a justice, ii. 592.

COMMITMENT—continued.
for further examination, when good, ii. 592.
unreasonable one, ib.
for felony without information, not justifiable, ib.

COMMITTITUR,
proof by, iii. 1020.

COMMON,
kinds of, ii. 314.
appendant, how claimed, ib.
appurtenant, ib.
in gross, ib.
levancy and couchancy, ii. 315.
evidence of, ib.
variance in proof of, ii. 316.
disturbance of, ib.
proof of title in action of, ib.
of damage, ii. 317.
plea of justification of right of, ii. 316.
variance, ib.
release evidence, though not pleaded, ib.
proof on issue joined on the right, ib.
exercise of right on adjoining common, when evidence, ii. 313.
of pasture, proof of, in plea of trespass, iii. 1130.
in replevin, ii. 318.
trespass, ii. 319.
proof on special issue, ib.
reputation, ib.
competency, ib.
extinguished by unity of possession, ii. 316.
by inclosure, ib.
right of prescription for, iii. 909.

COMMON PRACTICE,
evidence, when, ii. 44.

COMMON COUNTS,
may be resorted to, when, in action on bill of exchange, ii. 262.

COMMON, Tenant in. See Tenant in Common.
right of, app. ii. iii. 1380.
levancy and couchancy, proof, ib. 1330.

COMMON PLEAS,
commencement of action in, iii. 1076.

COMMONER. See Common.

COMMUNITY OF INTEREST,
effect of as to admissions, ii. 31.

COMPANY, JOINT-STOCK, action against member of, iii. 805.

COMPARISON,
of hands, evidence of, when admissible, ii. 515.

COMPENSATION,
a second, for the same injury, not allowed, ii. 300, 301.
final, when, app. ii. iii. 1392.

COMPETENCY. See Witness. circumstances which disqualify, i. 92.
want of religious belief, i. 93.
of an infant, i. 94.
postponement of trial, ib.
lunatic, i. 92.
party outlawed, i. 97.
infamy of witness. See Infamy.
objection, when to be taken, i. 92.
when on the ground of interest, i. 93.
former practice, ib.
modern practice, ib.
of a convicted witness, how restored, i. 97–99.
of accomplices, ii. 11.
of witnesses in actions on bills of exchange, ii. 257.
general principle, ib.
of drawer, ib.
maker of note, ib.
acceptor of bill, ib.
indorser of bill, ii. 260.
partner, ib.
holder of bill, declaration by, ib.
on indictment for bigamy, iii. 896.
in case of custom, ii. 364.
in case of forgery, ii. 468.
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 190. app. ii. iii. 1359.
in actions between vendor and vendee, iii. 1228.
on trial of indictment for non-repair of highway, ii. 529.
of witnesses under the game act, ii. 501.
in case of will, iii. 1275.
in action for usury, iii. 1187.
in case of bill of exchange, ii. 257.
in action of trover, iii. 1169.
in case of partner, iii. 817.
of witness, in an action against the sheriff, iii. 1031.
in case of quo warranto, iii. 948.
of corporators, ii. 339.
as to rights of common, ii. 319.
in action on policy, iii. 893.
of witness in actions against the sheriff, iii. 1031.
in case of husband and wife, ii. 549.
in case of pedigree, iii. 845.
in action by and against executors, ib. 1419.

COMPOSITION REAL,
proof, iii. 1085. See Tithes.

COMPOSITION. See Creditors.
for tithes, proof of, iii. 1082. determination of, ib.
with creditors by executor, effect of, ii. 448.
receipt of larger sum, when fraudulent, ii. 84.
with principal discharges surety, when, iii. 1065. determination of proof of, iii. 1083.

COMPOSITION DEED, iii. 1045.
stamp on, ib.
fraud against, ii. 94.

COMPOUNDING,
with creditors, when a bar to certificate, ii. 188.
of misdemeanor illegal, ii. 538. 545.
with creditors illegal, when, app. ii. iii. 1359.
of prosecution for misdemeanor, illegal, ib. 1333.
suppressing information under a penal statute, ib. 1332.

COMPROMISE. See Admission.

COMPULSION,
money obtained by, ii. 85.
payment by, ii. 85. See Duress.
action for money paid under, ii. 76.

COMPULSORY DECLARATION, admissible, ii. 27.

COMPULSORY,
payment, amount of, recoverable, ii. 75. special declaration unnecessary, ib.
delivery of books by trader does not exclude an action of trover, iii. 1157.

CONCERTED FIAT,
not objectionable, ii. 175.

CONCERTED ACT OF BANKRUPTCY, may be objected, when, ii. 175.

CONCESSI,
purports a covenant in law, ii. 348.

CONCERTED BANKRUPTCY,
when a defence, ii. 175.

CONCLUSION,
of party by admission, &c. See Estoppel. of party by his own representation, ii. 309. See Admission.

CONCLUSIVE,
written instrument, when, iii. 786.

CONCURRENCE,
of circumstances, effect of, i. 566.

CONDEMNATION,
in Exchequer, effect of, i. 290.
by foreign court of Admiralty, effect of, i. 292. sentence of, effect of, iii. 891.

CONDITION,
for residence in mansion-house, effect of bankruptcy on, ii. 176.

CONDITION PRECEDENT,
averment of, ii. 64.
proof of, ii. 64, 65.
performance of must be shown, ii. 70.
what, on contract of sale of goods, iii. 1199.
evidence of performance of, ib.
proof of, in an action by vendor, iii. 1188. performance of, by vendee of goods, iii. 1219. tender of bill, iii. 1220.
proof of, in covenant, ii. 344. identity of condition in bond with that suggested, must be proved, ii. 269.

CONDITION PRECEDENT—continued.
proof of discharge from performance of, iii. 1188.
impossible, ii. 103.
proof of, in action by vendor, iii. 1188.
in action for work and labour, iii. 1303.
in action by vendee of goods, iii. 1129.
in action by vendor of goods, iii. 1199.

CONDITIONAL,
acceptance of bill, ii. 208, 209.

CONDITIONAL DELIVERY,
does not vest property in a vendee, when, iii. 1224.

CONDITIONAL PROMISE, not performed, does not take away the remedy to distrain, iii. 974.

CONDUCT,
connexion between conduct and motives, i. 565.
of parties, importance of attending to, i. 550.
presumption from, iii. 937.

CONFESSION,
in criminal cases, i. 52, ii. 36. See tit. Admission.
not conclusive, iii. 786.
extorted by duress, not evidence, ii. 36.
evidence of, when excluded, in consequence of promise or threat, ii. 36.
admits of explanation, when, iii. 786.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION, principle of the rule, i. 184, 185. ii. 320.
to what persons it extends, ib.
to an interpreter, ib.
not to professional persons, except barristers and attornies, ib.
nor to stewards, trustees, &c. ib.
time of the communication, ii. 322.
nature of, ii. 323.
is the privilege of the client, ii. 114.
cannot be waived by the attorney, ii. 323.
rule applies to cross-examination, ib.
exceptions, ii. 324.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS, applications of the rule as to, app. ii. iii. 1380.

CONFIRMATION. See Witness. of accomplice's testimony, rule as to, ii. 13, 14, 15.
of witness, when allowed, i. 221.
by issue in tail, ii. 324.
to a customary tenant, effect of, ii. 697.

CONFIRMATORY EVIDENCE,
in case of rape, iii. 950.

CONFLICT,
of testimony, i. 578.

CONFLICTING TESTIMONY,
observations on, i. 578.

CONFORMITY,
with circumstances, effect of, i. 558.

CONSCIENCE,
effect of judgment of court of, i. 271.
money received against, ii. 88.

CONSENT,
to marriage, age of, iii. 896.
of father or guardian to marriage, evidence of, ii. 702.

CONSEQUENCE,
allegation of, variance as to, i. 416, 417.

CONSEQUENTIAL INJURY, case, the proper remedy for, iii. 1108.

CONSIDERATION,
failure of, ii. 105. See Assumpsit.
illegal, ii. 63. 103. 246. iii. 1184, 1185, 1186.
legal, what constitutes, ii. 242.
general rule as to proof of, in action ex contractu, ib.
proof of, ii. 61.
executory, ib.
executed, ib.
for a promise, must be in writing, when, ii. 479.
failure of, when a defence in assumpsit, ii. 90.
original may be resorted to when bill, &c. is void, ii. 254.
original may be resorted to, when, ii. 264.
on failure of action by vendee, ii. 89, 90.
moral obligation, when sufficient, ii. 70.
failure of, ii. 90.
money recoverable on, when, ii. 89, 90.
proof of failure, ib.
rescinded contract, ii. 91.
want of, when a defence to action on bill, ii. 142, 143.
bill primâ facie evidence of, ii. 242.
failure of, when available by way of defence, ii. 242, 243.
partial failure no defence, when, ii. 243.
recoverable when contract is rescinded, ii. 91. or prevented by act of other party, ii. 91, 92.
secus, when still open, ii. 92.
variance from allegation of, i. 448. 455.
laid as executory, not proved by evidence of executed consideration, i. 464.
evidence of not reciting the true one in an apprentice deed, ii. 21.
of bill of exchange, proof of, when necessary, ii. 221.
for bill of exchange, presumption as to, ii. 242.
what sufficient, ib.
want of proof of plea incumbent on defendant, when, ii. 244.
new promise upon binding on executor, ii. 454.

CONSIGNEE,
not liable for freight, when, iii. 1300.

CONSISTENCY,
of testimony, effect of, as a test, i. 551.
importance of, ib.
with circumstances, i. 582.
with written documents, i. 583.

CONSPIRACY,
proof direct or presumptive, ii. 324.
of concert, ib.
connection between distant conspirators, ib.
conspiracies in distant counties, ib.
evidence of, not admissible unless they be connected, ib.
conspirators may be connected by separate acts, ib.
the conspiracy may be collected from circumstances, ii. 324, 325.
acts of conspiracy, what are, ib.
one when evidence against the rest, ib.
others, when admissible, ib.
evidence to prove the existence of a conspiracy, ib.
declarations of parties, ii. 327.
acts to prove a conspiracy, ib.
conspiracy to marry paupers, ii. 330.
proof as to means used, ib.
competency, ii. 238.
variance, ib.
proof of acquittal of one conspirator, ib.
admission by conspirator. See Admission.
acts and declarations of one of several conspirators, when evidence, ii. 33.
indictment for, when triable, iii. 1232.
venue, in case of, ib.
evidence in joining in, app. ii. iii. 1381.
in case of indictment for conspiring to excite seditious meetings, ib. 1382.

CONSTABLE,
proof of being, ii. 331.
proof in action against one, ii. 594.
stat. 24 G. 2, c. 44, provisions of, ib.
demand of perusal and copy of warrant, ii. 595.
duty of, in execution of a warrant, ib.
where it may be executed, ib.
when, ib.
how, ib.
may break doors, when, ii. 597.
previous notification, ii. 435, 436.
may break doors to arrest without a warrant, when, ii. 597.
defence by, at common law, ii. 437.
may justify under a legal warrant, ib.
may retake one illegally allowed to go at large, ii. 438.
who acts without a warrant, defence by, ib.
under the stat. 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, and 21 J. 1, c. 12, s. 5, ii. 600.
proof of being, ii. 307.
may arrest without warrant, when, ii. 601. reasonable cause of arrest by a question for the jury, ii. 602.
high constable, appointment of, app. ii. iii. 1383.

CONSTRUCTION,
of written document, a matter of law, when, i. 525.
extrinsic evidence not admissible in order to vary the construction of a written testament, ii. 554.
of guarantees, ii. 508, 509.
of a policy of insurance, iii. 867.

CONSTRUCTION OF LAW,
as to murder, ii. 8.

CONSTRUCTIVE,
conversion of goods, iii. 1157.
payment, ii. 74.
receipt of money, ib.
request, ii. 75.
breaking, in case of burglary, ii. 277.
conversion, iii. 1158.
notice, what amounts to, iii. 732.

CONSTRUCTIVE MALICE,
what, ii. 713.

CONTEMPT,
of court of requests, fine for, justification for levying, iii. 1140.

CONTEMPORANEOUS,
letters admissible to prove usury, ii. 261.

CONTENTS,
of manner, evidence to prove the, ii. 697.

CONTINGENT INTERESTS,
pass under a commission of bankrupt, ii. 176.
seeus of mere possibility, ib.
in case of bankruptcy, ib.

CONTINGENT DEBT,
value of may be proved under a commission of bankrupt, when, ii. 185.

CONTINGENCY,
debt payable in bankruptcy, ii. 185.

CONTINUANCE,
in possession by an infant after attaining age, evidence of assent, ii. 185.
of nuisance, action for, iii. 745.
presumption of law as to, ii. 270.
of life, presumption as to, iii. 895.
mere presumption insufficient on indictment for bigamy, ib.
of writs, proof of, iii. 1077.
of injury not the same injury, iii. 978.
by landlord in possession after rent paid is a tresspass, ii. 389.

CONTINUING DAMAGE,
limitation how computed, ii. 660.

CONTINUING POSSESSION,
by party conveying evidence of fraud, when, ii. 494.

CONTRACT,
in whose name to be enforced, ii. 59.
action on may be brought in name of agent or principal, when, ib.
written proof of, ii. 56.
arising from circumstances, ii. 58.
terms of, explainable by collateral evidence, when, ii. 313.
entire and cannot be split, ii. 71.
for several articles at different prices, when entire, ii. 488.
variance from, i. 447.
variation from, obligation of, i. 448. 455. 457.
proof of, according to legal effect of, i. 462, 463.

CONTRACT—continued.
for use and occupation implied, when, iii. 1180.
rescinded, action to recover the consideration, when maintainable, ii. 91.
may be rescinded when, for non-performance, ii. 103, 104.
discharged when, by a later contract, ib.
waived when, ib.
whilst open, action for money had and received not maintainable, ii. 92.
cannot be rescinded where parties cannot be placed in statu quo, ib.
when illegal, ii. 63. 103. cannot be waived without writing, when, iii. 790.
may be part by parol, part in writing, when, iii. 789.
CONTRADICTION,
of witness, i. 198.
questions preparatory to, ib.
of witness as to writings, i. 203. of witness by his own declarations, &c. when allowed, i. 213.
what previous questions are necessary, ib.
by his own acts, i. 213, 214.
of a party's own witness, i. 215.
when allowed, i. 216.
of witness, laying ground for, app. i. 605.
evidence admissible, ib. 606.
CONTRIBUTION,
liability to, ii. 4.
action for, ii. 76.
in case of co-trespassers, ii. 76, 77.
wrongdoers in general, ib.
not recoverable against parishioners, on order to repair the church, iii. 1127.
towards joint debt not maintainable against an insolvent, ii. 74.
right to maintain action for, iii. 815.
action for by co-surety, iii. 1061. action to recover, ii. 74.
in the case of joint tort-feasors, app. ii. iii. 1383.
CONUSEE,
of statute merchant, proof of title by, ii. 408.
CONVENTIONAL,
receipt of money, ii. 79.
CONVENTIONARY TENANTS,
rights of evidence as to, ii. 697.
CONVERSATION,
evidence of, caution as to receiving, i. 549.
evidence of, when admissible, ii. 331.
CONVERSION,
evidence of, iii. 1155.
by carrier in misdelivering goods, ii. 286.
proof of in trover, iii. 1155.
by a servant or agent, iii. 1162, 1163. liability of agent for, iii. 1168.
CONVEYANCE,
tender of, in action by vendor for non-performance of contract, iii. 1188.
fraudulent evidence of, iii. 1031.
continuance of possession, ib.

CONVEYANCE—continued.
tender of, when necessary in order to recover a deposit, iii. 1073.
stamp on, iii. 1045, 1046.
CONVEYANCING BUSINESS.
action for, ii. 107, 108.
CONVICTION,
by justices, proof of, i. 303.
of offender, what sufficient, ii. 271.
not traversable, when, ib.
form of, i. 426, ii. 592.
must show an offence which warrants a conviction, ii. 592.
should pursue the words of the stat., ib.
justices, order of, defective for not doing, ib.
for not doing statute duty, ii. 587.
proof of, by a magistrate in his defence, ii. 589.
where the statute gives a summary form, ib.
subsisting, a ground of defence when, ii. 585.
by magistrates, how far conclusive, i. 283, 284.
when conclusive, ii. 332.
under the Bum-boat Act, ib. of one as an apprentice, ib.
by a magistrate, evidence in answer to one, ii. 593.
quashed, damages in action on, ii. 584. statute 43 Geo. 3, c. 141, provisions as to, ib.
action for money paid under, when quashed, ii. 85.
in criminal case, effect of, i. 278, 279.
on indictment for bigamy, i. 279.
for battery, i. 281.
for an assault, not evidence in civil action, iii. 1113.
on information, effect of, i. 280.
of principal, evidence against the accessory when, iii. 860, 861.
for adulterating spirits, not evidence between other parties, i. 291.
stating testimony of witness, not admissible to prove it, i. 215.
of felony, certificate of, ii. 302.
for previous uttering of coin, proof of, ii. 312.
proof of, in order to incapacitate a witness, i. 96.
not evidence in collateral proceedings, ii. 331. province of magistrates in adjudications, ib.
evidence to warrant conviction, ib.
effect of conviction in defence of magistrates, ib. defence under. See tit. Justices.
regularity of must be shown, ii. 589.
proof of, ib.
former ought not to be charged, when, app. ii. iii. 1383.
identity of prisoner, ib.
when insufficient, ii. 585.
illegal, money levied under, ii. 92.
COPARCENERS,
must join in avowry for rent, iii. 972.
CO-PLAINTIFF. See Admissions—Parties.
COPY,
proof by, when admissible, i. 226.
office copy, i. ib.
admissible of,
bank-note, i. 288.
London, books of, ib.
books of East India Company, ib.

COPY—continued.
journals of Houses of Parliament, i. 228.
books in Bodleian Library, ib.
probate, ib.
of a copy, not admissible, ib.
how proved, ib.
not admissible when the original is produced, i. 229.
of lost record, ib.
evidence to warrant reception of, ib.
of decree of tithes, ib.
exemplification of recovery of lands in ancient demesne, ib.
of record of city of Bristol, which had been burned, ib.
by authorized officer, admissible when, i. 225.
of public record, general rule as to admissibility, i. 251.
stamp on, ii. 1046.

COPY, EXAMINED,
of public document, in general admissible, i. 226. 251.
is evidence,
of judicial proceedings, i. 226, 227.
proceedings in bankruptcy, ii. 122.
proceedings in chancery, i. 227.
bill in chancery, ib.
when not evidence.
upon indictment for perjury, i. 227.
where record is incomplete, ib.
when evidence,
in general where the original is of a public nature, i. 226.
in general admissible when original would require no further proof, i. 227, 228.
of bank-note filed at the Bank, i. 228.
books of East India Company, ib.
book of city of London, ib.
court-rolls, ib.
journals of Houses of Parliament, ib.
books in Bodleian Library, ib.
grant of probate, ib.
parish register, ib.
poll-book at an election, ib.
book in Secretary of State's office, ib.
registry of leases in bishopric of Durham, ib.
copy of a copy not evidence, ib.
how proved, ib.
of public document, how proved, ib.
not admissible where the original is produced, 26.
record when lost, proof of, ib.
decree of tithes in London, ib. conviction of recusant, how proved, ib. estreats in Exchequer, proof of conviction when the record has been lost, ib.
recovery provable by oral evidence where the original is lost, ib.
of public documents not judicial, i. 230.
why admissible, ib.
of acts of parliament, public, i. 231.
proof of, ib.
copies of return and amendments under stat. 7 & 8 W. 3, c. 7, s. 5, i. 242.

COPY OF RECORD of acquittal is evidence in an action for a malicious prosecution, though not allowed by the court, ii. 677.

COPYHOLD,
proof of title, ii. 332.
title of tenant, ii. 334.
by will, ib.
by descent, ib.
customary heir, ib.
tenant by custom, ib.
evidence of manorial rights, ii. 336.
title of the lord, ib.
lord's fine, ii. 337.
proof of forfeiture, ib. See Ejectment.
lord of, entitled to indemnity, when, app. ii. iii. 1422. entitled to what fine, ib.
transfer of, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 176.
right as to coals within a, ii. 696.
of timber, ib.
surrender and admission unnecessary when, app. ii. iii. 1384.
custom as to surrender, what valid, ib.

COPYHOLD LANDS,
the demise of, in ejectment, may be laid between the time of surrender and admittance, ii. 431.
demise of, proof of title by, ii. 409.
effect of stat. of bankruptcy as to, ii. 176.

COPYHOLDER,
evidence of right of common in waste without the manor, ii. 315.
feoffment by, effect of, iii. 979.

COPYRIGHT. See Privilege.

CORONER,
inquisition by, effect of, i. 308.
duty of as to binding over witnesses, app. ii. iii. 1487.

CORNWALL,
duke of, caption of seisin by, i. 235.

CORPORATION,
variance in name, ii. 338.
evidence of title, ib.
actions against, ib.
competency, ii. 339.
proof of disfranchisement, ib. ejectment stating demise by deed. See tit. Ejectment.
seal of, how proved, i. 342.
name of, in grant, evidence as against a grantor, ii. 21.
power of, to accept bills, ii. 339. indictment against for non-repair of bridge, ii. 275.
deed of, proof of, i. 373.
election in, app. ii. iii. 1385.
costs payable out of funds, ib. 1386.
Municipal Reform Act does not create a new corporation, ib. 1384.
presumption from a place being included in the Municipal Reform Act, ib. actions by, ib. 1385.

CORPORATION—continued.
actions against, app. ii. iii. 1385.
books of, ib. 1386.
rate, ib.

CORPORATION BOOKS,
admissibility of, iii. 945.
when inadmissible, ib.
how proved, ib.
inspection of, ib.
of what the proper evidence, iii. 946.
proof by copy, iii. 950.
not evidence for the corporation, i. 341.

CORPORATOR,
not incompetent as a party when, in a suit by or against the corporation, iii. 797, 798.

CORPUS DELICTI,
necessity as to proof of, in criminalibus, i. 527.

CORRESPONDENCE,
whole to be read where part is given in evidence in conspiracy, ii. 329, 330.
letters admissible in course of, app. ii. iii. 1386.

COSTS,
liability to, renders a witness incompetent, i. 575.
of apprehension, when allowed, i. 84.
prosecution, when allowed, i. 84, 85.
when recoverable as money paid, ii. 77.
in action on attorney's bill, not taxable at the trial, ii. 111.
provable under commission of bankrupt, when, ii. 186.
of defending suit, recoverable as money paid, when, ii. 264.
of action against sureties when recoverable against the sheriff, iii. 1025.
not recoverable by indorsee against acceptor, when, ii. 221.
payable by executor when, under stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, app. ii. iii. 418.
liability of executor to, ii. 444.
when recoverable by an accommodation acceptor, ii. 479.
payable out of corporation funds, when, app. ii. iii. 1386.
of producing ancient record from, ib. 1387.
extra, recoverable when, ii. 690.

CO-SURETY,
action by, iii. 1060.
action against, iii. 1060, 1061.
liability to costs, iii. 1061.

CO-TRESPASSER, competency of. See Interest, i. 145. admission by one of several, when evidence against the rest, iii. 1113.

COTTAGE,
presumed to include land, when, ii. 315.

COTTAGER.
possession by, of lord's waste, effect of, ii. 101.
evidence of title to waste, ii. 413.

COUNSEL, ii. 341.
may be examined, when, ii. 320.
clerk of, whether examinable as to retainer, ib.
not permitted to divulge confidential and professional communications, ib.
arguments of, i. 422.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY. See Coin.

COUNTERMAND
of authority. See Revocation, ii. 89.

COUNTERPART,
proof by, when sufficient, i. 372.
proof by, sufficient in ejectment against the assignee of lessee, ii. 422.
admissible when, without notice to produce the original, ii. 482.
is a duplicate original, ib.
of deed to lead the uses of a fine, proof of, i. 413.
of ancient lease, when admissible, i. 383.
of ancient leases of portions of land cleared from moss, admissible for the lord, i. 68.
of agreement unstamped, admissible when, i. 408, 409.
defect in first indictment not available, i. 307.
execution of, by lessee, effect of, ii. 342.

COUNTING HOUSE,
person conducting business in, presumed to be an agent, iii. 820.

COUNTY. See Venue, iii. 1230. locality of offences, ii. 341.
homicide, ib.
stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6, c. 10, ib.
the local rule does not exclude collateral evidence, ib. See Venue.
provisions of stat. 7 Geo. 4, c. 94, s. 12, ib.
proof of cause of action within, ii. 585.
proof of cause of action within, in suit for a penalty, iii. 847.
evidence of killing game within a, ii. 501.
proof of committing forgery within a, ii. 461.
proof of cause of action within, under the stat. 21 J. 1, c. 12, s. 5, ii. 585.
goods taken burglariously carried into another, ii. 282. provision of the stat. 21 J. 1, c. 12, s. 5, as to, in proceedings against constables, &c. ii. 603.

COUNTY BRIDGE,
bridge when deemed to be, ii. 274.

COURSE OF OFFICE,
evidence to prove bailiff's appointment, against the sheriff, iii. 1012.

COURSE OF ACCOUNTS,
party estopped by, from denying payment, iii. 823.

COURSE OF BUSINESS,
warrants receipt of copy as secondary evidence, when, 396.

COURSE OF DEALING,
when evidence of terms of agreement, ii. 360.

COURSE OF TRADE,
general evidence admissible as to, ii. 361.

COURT,
variance from description of, i. 434.
holding of, variance as to, i. 475.

COURT—continued.
in case of court leet, i. 475.
inferior, effect of judgment in, i. 273.
jurisdiction of, not ousted by agreement of parties, ii. 87.

COURTS,
of general jurisdiction, notice of, i. 507.
holding of evidence of title to manor, ii. 411.

COURT BARON,
steward of, is a judicial officer, iii. 1112.
proof of judgment of, i. 303.

COURT LEET,
variance in allegation of, i. 475.

COURT ROLLS,
when evidence, i. 339.
to prove the mode of descent, ib.
how proved, ib.
inspection of, ii. 568, iii. 945.
provable by a copy, i. 228.
proof of, by examined copies, ii. 332.
entry by homage on, what it proves, ii. 359.
evidence of proclamations which they recite, ii. 337. inspection when allowed, ii. 569.

COVENANT,
non est factum, ii. 342.
variance, ii. 343.
duress, ib.
condition precedent, ii. 344.
breach, ib.
not to assign without license, ii. 345.
quiet enjoyment, ii. 346.
entry and eviction, ii. 347.
denial of title, ii. 348.
of derivative liability of defendant, ii. 349.
of liability as assignee, ib.
release, ib.
for non-performance of an award, ii. 118.
particulars of breaches of, ii. 421.
not to let, assign, &c. ib.
to repair, ib.
evidence of waiver of breach, by notice to quit, ib.
liability of executor to breaches of, since the testator's death, ii. 454.
not to sue, operates as a release, when, iii. 966.
does not operate as a release, when, iii. 1066.
not to occupy a pew, illegal when, iii. 865.
construction of, app. ii. iii. 1387.
in law, ib.
illegal, ib. 1388.
variance from, ib.
breach of, ib.
not to assign, ib. 1389.
by assignee of lessee, ib.
by assignee of reversion, ib.
damages, ib.
defence, ib. 1390.

COVENANT—continued.
lies against a devisee, ii. 521.
several, when, ii. 343.
to lease, is not a lease, ii. 414.
action of, when local, ii. 349.
when controlled by recital, ii. 539.
not to sue, effect of, ii. 147.

COVENANT NOT TO ASSIGN, proof of breach of, ii. 346.

COVENANT NOT TO SUE,
does not operate as a release, iii. 1066.

COVENANTER,
Scotch, how sworn, i. 22.

COVENANTS,
usual covenants in a lease a question of fact, iii. 1190.

COVERTURE,
when it must be pleaded in defence, ii. 547.
when evidence under the general issue, ib.
of drawer, no defence to acceptor, ii. 241.
must be pleaded in abatement, ii. 537.

COVIN,
alienation by, when provable against an heir, ii. 520.

CRASSA NEGLIGENTIA,
in case of an attorney, ii. 113.

CREDIT,
due to a witness, is for the jury, ii. 12.
of witness, how impeached, i. 211.
allowed to be impeached by general evidence only, ib.
the question on whose credit work has been done, is one of fact for the jury, iii. 1301.
to whom given, usually a question of fact, iii. 1203.
mutual, in bankruptcy, iii. 995, 996. to whom given is a question for the jury, ii. 477. to whom given in action against shipowner not duly registered, iii. 1302.

CREDITOR,
competency of, ii. 193.
securities, &c. as consideration for signing bankrupt's certificate, void, ii. 93, 94.
contract to sue out commission not fraudulent, ii. 248.
not estopped by proving under a commission, ii. 23.
fraud on, in obtaining a certificate, ii. 187.
contract in fraud of, avoids the bill, &c. ii. 245.
money, taken in fraud of, moveable, ii. 93.
agreement to take less, on a third person becoming surety, ii. 17, 18.
fraud on, in receiving more than the amount of composition, ii. 84.
may retain against the rightful administrator, after administration repealed, ii. 443.
competency of, bankruptcy, ii. 190.
execution, when liable in trover, ii. 168.
unsatisfied, competency of, in an action against the administrator, i. 107.

CREDITORS, fraud upon, ii. 248.
agreement of, to contribute to watching a commission, may be explained by parol, iii. 756.

CRIMEN FALSI. See Infamy.

CRIMINAL CONVERSATION.
evidence as to character admissible, when, ii. 305.
particulars of proof, ii. 352.
marriage, ib.
fact of adultery, ii. 353.
damages, ib.
evidence in aggravation, ii. 355.
evidence for defendant, in bar, ii. 356.
to disprove the marriage, ib.
license, &c. ib.
consent, ii. 355.
evidence in mitigation, ii. 356.
admission by defendant, ii. 25.
proof of good character when admissible, ii. 355.
maintainable after death of wife, app. ii. iii. 1391.

CRIMINALITY,
in employing an agent, not to be presumed, i. 215.
proof of, in order to raise a presumption against a prosecutor, ib.

CRIMINATION,
witness not bound to answer question tending to, i. 192.
but bound to answer question tending to his disgrace, i. 192, 193.
of witness, questions tending to, i. 190.
in general the witness is not bound to answer such questions, ib.
if he answers, the answers may be used as evidence against him, although he might have demurred, i. 198.
if he answer in part, must answer the whole, ib.

CRIMINATORY
questions, witness protected from, i. 71.

CRITICISM,
when privileged in action for libel, ii. 633.

CROSS-ACCEPTANCE,
good consideration for bill, ii. 242.

CROSS ACTION,
the proper remedy when, ii. 73.

CROSS-EXAMINATION. See tit. Witness. a strong test of truth, i. 24.
excludes res inter alios, i. 25.
instances, depositions in cases of felony, ib.
answer in chancery, ib.
not essential that witness should be cross-examined at the trial, ib.
does not exclude death-bed declaration, when, i. 26.
excluding operation of this test, i. 25, 26.
does not exclude judgments in rem, ib.
in the Exchequer, ib.
judgments of Ecclesiastical Court, ib.
Admiralty Court, ib.
court of quarter sessions, ib.
reason of this, ib.
excludes depositions taken in the absence of prisoners, i. 26, 27.

CROSS-EXAMINATION—continued.
excellency of, as a test of truth, i. 24.
excludes depositions under the statute, when, i. 26, 27.
voluntary affidavits, ib.
of witness, not allowed when, i. 207.
as to writings, i. 199.
advantage of, i. 205.
a material test for the ascertainment of truth, i. 186.
witness when subject to, i. 187.
witness called but not examined in chief, not subject to cross-examination, ib.
what questions may be asked on, i. 188.
as to collateral facts, i. 189.
when allowable, ib.

CROWN,
public acts of, i. 235.
why admissible in evidence, ib.
enrolment of lease of land belonging to the Crown in right of the duchy of Lancaster, ib.
caption of seisin to use of Duke of Cornwall, ib.
presumption against, from length of enjoyment, iii. 916.
presumption against, iii. 946.
grant from, when presumable, iii. 915.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS, ii. 356, 357.

CUMULATIVE,
what allegations are, i. 438.
instances when admissible, ii. 325.
evidence of crimes admissible, when, ii. 311

CURATE, nomination of, iii. 942.
right of nomination, ib.
custom as to election of, iii. 943.

CURRENCY,
of coin, proof of, ii. 309.

CURRENT,
proof of coin being, ii. 309.

CURTESY,
custom to hold by, proof of within a manor, ii. 336.
proof of title by the, iii. 898.
tenant by, possession of, ii. 401.

CURTILAGE,
essential to common, when, ii. 315.

CUSTODY,
proof as to, in case of entry by a receiver, i. 359.
legal, of appointment to office, i. 390.
of ancient document, proof as to, i. 239, 240.
of warrant by constable, ii. 331.

CUSTOM,
different kinds of, ii. 357.
general customs, ib.
local customs, ib.
of gavelkind, ib.
of borough-English, ib.

CUSTOM—continued.
of London, ii. 357.
proof to establish a custom, ii. 358.
time, ib.
continuance, ib.
must be reasonable, ii. 359.
reputation, ib.
court-rolls, ib.
customs of different districts, ib.
mercantile customs, ii. 360.
variation of, ib.
must be sanctioned as reasonable, ib.
common usage, ii. 360.
admissibility and effect of, ib.
with respect to a contract, ib.
time of entry, ii. 362.
mercantile contract, ib.
not admissible when terms are not doubtful, ib.
variance, i. 449, ii. 364, iii. 946.
what number of instances sufficient to prove, ii. 335.
variance from, in proof, i. 449, ii. 364, iii. 946.
competency of witness to prove, who has acted under it, iii. 948, 1095.
of one manor, when admissible to prove the custom of another, ii. 336.
in one parish, not evidence of custom in another, ii. 313.
of tithing in other parishes, not admissible, iii. 1092.
evidenced by a judgment when, i. 297.
proof of, by deposition, i. 319. evidenced by court-rolls, i. 339.
notice of, by courts, i. 508. for churchwardens to place and displace persons in and from pews, is bad, iii. 862.
of tithing, iii. 1094.
variance from custom alleged, ii. 364.
of parishioners to elect a curate, iii. 943.
in case of copyhold, proof of, ii. 336.
of manors, evidence of, ii. 336. See Manor.
for lord to dig clay-pits, in diminution of rights of common, ii. 315. to let parts for building, ii. 227. of London, to build on ancient foundation, although light may be obstructed, ii. 300.
for a landlord to compensate the off-going tenant for tillage, &c. is reasonable, iii. 782.
right to begin, app. ii. iii. 1391.
reasonable, when, ib.
presumption of continuance of, ib.
when noticed by the courts, ii. 518.
evidence of, admissible to explain an agreement, ii. 313.
traverse of, does not admit antiquity of messuage, iii. 1130.
of other parishes not admissible in action for tithes, iii. 1092.
in one parish not evidence as to another, ii. 313.

CUSTOMARY,
where evidence, i. 339.
of manor, ib.
found in books of corporation, i. 341.
heir, proof of title by, ii. 335.

CUSTOMARY RIGHT,
evidence of, in trespass, iii. 1130.
disproval of, iii. 1129.

CUSTOMARY INCIDENTS, may be annexed to a written contract by parol evidence, iii. 780.

CUSTOMARY TENANT,
confirmation of estate to, discharged of customs, operates as a release when, ii. 697.

CUSTOM-HOUSE,
copy of searcher's report admissible, when, i. 247.

CUSTOM-HOUSE OFFICER. See Officer.

DAMAGE,
when an inference of law, iii. 1014.
in law, when presumed, ii. 300.
actual, when it must be proved, ii. 317.
in suit by commoner against the lord, ib.
actual, when unnecessary to be proved, ib.
in action of disturbance of common, ib.
fishing in several fishery, ib.
must be specially alleged, when, ii. 299.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
to the smallest amount, when sufficient, ii. 396.
too remote, when, iii. 740.
particular, when essential to an action, ib.
connexion of with defendant's act, ib.
what sufficient to support an action, iii. 741.
in case of lands, ib.
to a house, variance from description of, iii. 733.
continuing, limitation of action, how computed, ii. 660.
done in execution, a lawful thing, liability for, ii. 574.

DAMAGES,
limited by the description in declaration, i. 461.
liquidated, when recoverable, iii. 852.
evidence of character when admissible to diminish, ii. 305.
measure of, recoverable from an attorney, ii. 112.
include costs, ii. 364.
in law and fact, ib.
how estimated in action on bond, ii. 269.
may exceed penalty, when, ib.
for breach of contract, defective performance by plaintiff when admissible in reduction of damages, iii. 1210.
proof of, in action for a disturbance, ii. 396.
in ejectment under the stat. 1 G. 4, c. 87, s. 2, ii. 424.
proof of, in action for a nuisance, iii. 747.
in an action for a malicious prosecution, ii. 685.
amount of, in action against sheriff, iii. 1025.
in an action for slander, &c. ii. 636.
special proof of, ii. 637.
in trespass, evidence in aggravation of, iii. 1114.
cannot be severed, iii. 1115.
matters not stated on record, inadmissible when, iii. 1116.
alia enormia, evidence under, ib.
to the reversion, evidence of, iii. 978, 979.
by opening a new door, iii. 978.

DAMAGES—continued.
proof of, in action for seduction, iii. 991.
in action for seduction of servant, ib.
in trover, iii. 1164, 1165.
for conversion of instrument, ib.
special, not recoverable in trover, when, ii. 299.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
in action for not accepting goods, iii. 1200.
what recoverable by vendor of property, for breach of contract, iii. 1192.
by vendee, iii. 1120.
measure of, in action for breach of warranty, iii. 1243.
resulting from breach of warranty, ib.
unliquidated, cannot be set-off, iii. 993.
proof of, in action for libel, ii. 636.
proof of connexion of the damage with the slander, ii. 637. proof of, in action for crim. con., ii. 354.
in trespass, iii. 1114.
unliquidated, exclude set-off, when, ii. 177.
admitted, when, app. ii. iii. 1392.
bar further proceedings, when, ib.
consequential, ib. 1393.
prospective, ib.
excessive, ib.
effect of, as to costs, not to be considered by a jury, ib.
general, where one count is bad, effect of, ib.

DAMAGE-FEASANT,
evidence on plea of, iii. 975.

DATE,
of writing, variance from, i. 486.
formal, when, ib.
when to be taken exclusively, ib.
of lease, evidence of what, ii. 21.
on promissory note, whether evidence of true date, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 149.
of note payable on demand, stat. of limitations runs from, ii. 661.
of cash-notes, effect of, ii. 178.
of note, effect of, ii. 147, 148.
parol evidence to show execution of instrument after, iii. 761.
construction of the term, ib.
party bound by, when, ib.
bill of exchange, a debt from time of, ii. 148.
of bond not conclusive as to delivery, iii. 787.

DAUGHTER. See Seduction.

DAY,
fraction of, iii. 1079.

DAY-BOOK,
when to be produced, i. 360.

DEAF AND DUMB. See Witness.
plea by one, to a charge of felony, app. ii. iii. 1394.

DEATH. See Pedigree.
proof of, on whom incumbent, ii. 364.
presumption of continuance of life, ib.

DEATH—continued.
proof of survivorship, ii. 364.
proof of, iii. 834, 845. See tit. Pedigree.
of particular person, proof of, iii. 845.
of seaman, evidence of, i. 247.
presumption as to, from mere lapse of time, iii. 895.
of party, when a revocation of submission, ii. 118.
presumption of, app. ii. iii. 1394.
proof of, ib.

DEATH-BED DECLARATIONS, ground of admissibility, i. 22, ii. 365.
when inadmissible, ii. 366.
how given in evidence, ib.
force and effect of, ii. 367.
caution in admitting, ib.
in civil proceedings, when admissible, ib.
admissibility of, app. ii. iii. 1394.
effect of, ib. 1395.
in civil actions, ib. 1396.

DEBT. See tit. Bond—Covenant—Deed. lies for use and occupation at common law, iii. 1174.
lies for escape in execution, iii. 1019.
on bill of exchange, lies when, app. ii. iii. 1365.
lies on foreign judgment, ii. 69.
transfer of, ii. 80.
evidence under plea of nunquam indebitatus, app. ii. iii. 1396.
evidence on plea of payment, ib.
for use and occupation, lies at common law, iii. 1174.
proof of payment not admissible under plea of nunquam indem, app. ii. iii. 1396.
nil debet, proof by plaintiff, ii. 369.
debt for rent, ib.
evidence for defendant under plea of nil debet, ib.

DEBT OF ANOTHER,
provisions of stat. of frauds as to, ii. 476, 477.
new consideration, effect of, ii. 478.
transfer of, by mutual arrangement, ii. 79.
suggesting a devastavit, action of, ii. 453.
by assignee of reversion, ii. 350. effect of proving under a commission, &c. ii. 188, 189. promise to pay, when binding, ii. 482.

DEBTOR,
competency of, in actions against sheriffs, iii. 1033.
on judgment, competency of, in action of trover against the sheriff who has taken goods in execution, iii. 1031.
admission by, evidence against the sheriff, ii. 34.
admission by, evidence against a trustee for creditors, ib.

DECEASED PARENT,
entry by, as to birth of child, i. 243.

DECEIT,
particulars of proof, ii. 371.
deceitful means, ib.
proof of fraud, ib.

DECEIT—continued.
false character, ii. 372.
competency, ii. 372, 373.
deception the gist of the action, ib.
does not lie where plaintiff cognizant, &c. ib.
fraud in sale of goods, ib.
proof of damage, ii. 375.
variance from, allegation of, i. 445.
as to value of goods carried, effect, ii. 291.
in sale, app. ii. iii. 1396.
false representation, ib.

DECISION,
judicial, binding force of, ii. 690.

DECLARATION,
admissibility of, as explanatory evidence, i. 68.
to show knowledge, motive, intention, i. 69. by third person, admissible when, i. 346. See tit. Entry.
by party in extremis, admissible when, ii. 365.
excluded by written evidence, when, ib.
proof of, ib.
force and effect of, ib.
in extremis, when admissible in civil cases, ii. 367.
by person in possession of premises, admissible when, ii. 401.
by a wife, when evidence against the husband, ii. 551, 552.
made by the wife at time of absconding from her husband, ii. 356.
by parents, in case of pedigree, iii. 845.
as to legitimacy, ii. 199.
by deceased husband, as to legitimacy of wife, ii. 201.
of deceased members of a family, are admissible to prove pedigree, iii. 834.
what declarations admissible, iii. 841.
made by a bankrupt, when admissible, ii. 131.
by bankrupt before bankruptcy, ii. 175.
an under-sheriff, iii. 1013.
a bailiff, ib.
holder of bill, when admissible, ii. 260.
a wife, i. 351.
tenant, i. 352.
occupant of a house, ib.
made at the time of executing an instrument, evidence to prove fraudulent intention, iii. 1031.
by a co-conspirator, when admissible, ii. 327, 328.
of party to be supplied with goods, not evidence against one who guarantees payment, iii. 1063.
by principal, not evidence against his surety, ib.
of war by a foreign government, evidence of the fact, iii. 1236.
sued within time presumed to be connected with the writ, iii. 1076. accompanying an act, when evidence, i. 350, 351. See Bankrupt—Entries.
declarations made post litem motam, are not admissible, i. 43.
by a wife, when admissible against the husband, ii. 553.
by wife, as executrix, do not affect the husband, ii. 455.
by petitioning creditor, inadmissible when, ii. 175.
evidence to prove conspiracy, when, ii. 327.
by holders of bills, ii. 260.
in case of pedigree, iii. 833.

DECLARATION—continued.
by bankrupt and others, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 195.
by defendant, what admissible in case of seduction, iii. 990.
by party committing a nuisance, admissible when, iii. 749.
by an obligee, not admissible against a co-surety, when, iii. 1063.
by wife, when admissible, ii. 356.
by a bankrupt, ii. 149.
by prosecutor in his evidence, whether admissible for him in action for a malicious prosecution, ii. 685.
as to marriage, evidence of, iii. 845.
of principal, when admissible against a surety, iii. 1063.
by one who indemnifies a party, admissible when, ib.
by an apprentice, evidence of being such in action for seduction, iii. 991.
by trustee, admissible when, iii. 762.
by a bailiff, when admissible against the sheriff, iii. 1034.
accompanying an act, app. i. 613.
by an owner, where admissible, ib. 614.
by an intestate, ib.
by a party, ib.
by a steward, ib. See Entry.

DECREE,
in Chancery, proof by, i. 300.
proof of, i. 297, 298.
for alimony, does not discharge the husband when in respect of goods supplied to the wife, ii. 541.

DEDIMUS POTESTATEM, action for preparing, &c. ii. 80.

DEED,
proof on issue of non est factum, ii. 379.
production of, i. 308, ii. 376.
execution of, ib.
alteration in, i. 369.
proof of sealing, i. 372, ii. 377.
proof of delivery, i. 373, ii. 377.
takes effect from delivery, ii. 381.
execution by agent, i. 373, ii. 378.
variance, ii. 378.
evidence for defendant, on issue of non est factum, deed originally void, ii. 379.
delivery as an escrow, ib.
cancellation, ib.
erasure, ib.
alteration, ib.
addition, ib.
must impeach the execution or continuance, ib.
plea of duress, ii. 380, 381.
tender, ib.
payment, ib.
proof by deed, when necessary, ib.
production, when essential, ib.
when unnecessary, ii. 380.
claim by act of law, ib.
deed of feoffment is evidence of livery, ii. 381.
and of release, ib.

DEED—continued.
cancelled deed when evidence, ii. 381.
where the thing lies in livery, ib.
presumptive evidence of execution, ib.
possession of lands, ib.
not proved by admission in answer in Chancery, i. 371.
execution of, not provable by parol, ib.
admission of, by plea, ii. 347.
no more admitted than is stated in the declaration, ib.
terms of, cannot be explained by extrinsic evidence, iii. 1274.
evidence of all recited facts, ii. 346.
party estopped from disputing, when, i. 372.
of composition, stamp on, iii. 1045.
trover for, iii. 1145.
stamp on, iii. 1046.
at what time intended to have been delivered, iii. 1080.
of infant, effect of, ib.
secondary evidence of, in the absence of the attesting witness, app. i. 618. when 30 years old, ib.
proof of, in case of loss, ib.
when in possession of the adversary, ib. 620.
proof of notice to produce, ib. 621.
proof of coming from the adversary's possession, ib. 622.
recital, app. ii. iii. 1397.
invalidity of parol evidence when admissible to show, iii. 765.
contract by excludes assumpsit when, iii. 757.
parol evidence to explain, iii. 778.

DEEDS,
property in, iii. 1146.

DE FACTO,
proof of, when sufficient, iii. 948.
act of officer valid when, iii. 749.

DEFAULT,
judgment by, effect of, in evidence, i. 268.

DEFEAZANCE
on bill, effect of, ii. 215.

DEFECT,
in contract, not available in action for seducing a servant, iii. 991. latent. See Latent Defect.

DEFECTIVE
performance of work, when available in an action for work and labour, iii. 1307.

DEFECTIVE EVIDENCE,
how differing from secondary, i. 505.

DEFENCE OF POSSESSION,
plea of, in trespass, iii. 1136.
proof of request to depart, ib.

DEFENCE OF PROPERTY,
plea of, in trespass, iii. 1137.

DEFICIENCY,
proof of allegation of, lies on the party who alleges it, i. 420.
in respect of thing purchased, effect of, iii. 1213, 1214.
DEGREES
of evidence, i. 543.
DE INJURIA,
proof of, on issue on plea of, iii. 1131.
partial proof, effect of, ib.
replication of, puts the whole plea in issue, ib.
does not admit evidence to qualify the fact alleged in justification, iii. 1132.
replication of, does not put excess or sufficiency in issue, iii. 1133. effect of plea in trespass, iii. 1131.
DE JURE,
when put in issue, iii. 948.
DE JURE ET DE FACTO,
distinction as to, iii. 365.
DELAY,
unnecessary, in the execution of an act, action for, iii. 746.
DELIVERY,
of deed, proof of, i. 373.
of bill, what constitutes a negotiation of, ii. 256.
of bill, evidence of ownership, ii. 218. of goods, proof of, in action against carrier, ii. 286.
of goods by carriers, ib.
of goods obtained by false pretences does not alter property, iii. 1225.
of chattel, when essential to property in, iii. 1147 conditional, does not vest property, iii. 1148. of goods to carriers, what sufficient, ii. 286.
of goods, proof of in action for goods sold and delivered, iii. 1205.
to a carrier, when sufficient, iii. 1206.
to carrier vests property, when, iii. 1151.
vis termini, ii. 138.
to an agent vests property, when, ii. 489.
of writ to sheriff, iii. 1009. of writ to sheriff, effect of in binding goods, iii. 1017.
of dock-warrant vests property in vendee, when, iii. 1224.
of deed, proof of, ii. 377.
DELIVERY OF GOODS
in satisfaction of bill of exchange, effect of under section 82 of 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, ii. 172.
DEMAND,
must be proved, to avoid a collusive sale of goods by trader on eve of bankruptcy, iii. 1163.
of possession necessary, when, to maintain ejectment, iii. 1191.
on sheriff, of money levied, not essential to action against him, iii. 1023.
of money, when essential, is not superseded by a tender, iii. 1072.
proof of subsequent, to avoid a tender, ib.
when necessary in trover, iii. 1160.
in case of tortious execution unnecessary, ii. 167.
DEMAND AND REFUSAL,
finding of, insufficient in action of trover, i. 512.
when essential to proof of conversion of goods, iii. 1161.

DEMEANOUR
of witnesses, a test of, for judging of credibility, i. 582.

DEMESNE LANDS,
what are, ii. 504.

DEMISE,
variance from, i. 464.
not proved by possession under an agreement of sale, iii. 974.
variance from allegation of, i. 442, 443. 455. 457.
proof of title by, ii. 409.

DEMONSTRATION, FALSE,
effect of, iii. 771.

DEMURRER,
an admission when, i. 338.
to evidence, i. 530.

DEPARTURE,
act of bankruptcy, &c. ii. 132.

DEPENDENT
circumstances, coincidence of, i. 567.

DEPOSIT,
proof as to place of, to render ancient document admissible, i. 239.
presumption as to custody of ancient extent of crown lands, i. 240.
action by purchaser to recover, iii. 1194.
proof of title to, by forfeiture, iii. 1220.
action by vendee to recover, iii. 1227.

DEPOSITION,
on interrogatories, proof of, app. i. 612.
identity of parties, ib.
evidence when of reputation, ib. 611.

DEPOSITIONS,
before a magistrate, practice as to, app. ii. iii. 1398.
copy of, prisoners when entitled to, ib.
right of prisoner to have them read, ib. 1414.
in bankruptcy, conclusive when, ii. 124.
admissibility of, in case of tithe, iii. 1089.
of witnesses, when admissible, i. 510, ii. 382.
absence or death of witness, i. 300.
interest subsequently accruing, i. 311, 312.
identity of parties, i. 312.
identity of cause of action not requisite, i. 313.
legality of the proceeding in which, &c. i. 314.
extra-judicial depositions, ib.
inadmissible, ib.
in irregular proceedings, ib.
when admissible, i. 310.
depositions in spiritual court, i. 315.
in court not of record, ib.
whether admissible, ib.
leading interrogatories, i. 316. 327.
when they exclude the deposition, i. 316. power to cross-examine, ib.
examination de bene esse, i. 317.
neglect to cross-examine, ib.

DEPOSITIONS—continued.
where admissible to prove reputation, i. 319.
time of making, ib.
post litem motam, ib.
depositions of witnesses residing abroad, i. 320.
of witnesses in India, i. 321.
stat. 13 Geo. 3, c. 63, s. 40 & 44, ib.
stat. 1 W. 4, c. 22, i. 323.
depositions how proved, i. 324–326.
death of witness, i. 324. existence of the cause, ib.
bill and answer in Chancery, i. 325.
signature of master in Chancery, i. 326.
testimony on former trial, i. 327.
proof of, by copy from judge's chambers, ib.
in case of bankruptcy, ib. See Bankruptcy.
under stat. 7 G. 4, c. 64, ii. 382.
object of the statute, ib.
preparatory proof, ii. 383.
death of witness, ib.
kept away by the defendant, ib.
inability to travel, ib.
taken in the presence of the prisoner, ib.
depositions before a coroner, ii. 384.
admissible in cases of felony only, ii. 382.
examination before justices, ii. 387.
on removal of pauper, ib.
in case of filiation, ib.
of deceased witness, when excluded for want of opportunity to cross-examine, i. 25.
death of witness essential, i. 360.
practice in Chancery as to, i. 311. effect of the usual order, ib.
in perpetuam memoriam, ib.
evidence when, in tithe suit, iii. 1089.

DEPRIVATION,
sentence of, effect of, i. 288.

DEPUTATION,
of gamekeepers, proof of, i. 248.
as gamekeeper, proof of under the Game Act, ii. 501.

DEPUTY,
negligence of, principal responsible for, when, ii. 46.

DESCENT,
proof of, iii. 832. See tit. Pedigree.

DESCRIPTION,
a party bound by, when, ii. 23.
what is matter of, i. 383.
imperfect, of thing sold, when it avoids the sale, iii. 1213.
allegations, when descriptive, i. 433. 443.

DE SON TORT,
executor of, of what payments he may avail himself, ii. 451.
who is, ii. 443. 446. effect of acts done by, ii. 446.
executor, ib.
action against executor, app. ii. iii. 1417.

DESTROYING FISH,
commitment for, ii. 591.

DETENTION OF TOOLS,
special damage from, how recoverable, ii. 299.

DETERMINATION,
of action, proof of, ii. 688.
of tenancy, proof incumbent on the tenant, when, iii. 1180.
how proved, ib.
of action, proof of, ii. 687.

DETINUE,
particulars of proof, ii. 387.
property in the goods, ib.
action by husband and wife, ib.
by heir, ib.
possession by defendant, ii. 388.
against the husband, ib.
proof under plea of non detinet, ib.
jury must find the value, ib.
joinder of counts in, app. ii. iii. 1399.
evidence under non detinet, ib.

DEVASTAVIT,
action of debt, suggesting a, ii. 453.
non-devastavit, evidence on plea of, ib.
what amounts to, ii. 443. 453.

DEVISE,
is imperative where the heir takes by descent, ii. 519.

DEVISEE,
of freehold, proof of title, ii. 407.
of leasehold, ii. 408.
one claiming as, entitled to begin, when, i. 425.
to what fixtures entitled, iii. 1247.

DILAPIDATIONS,
proof in action for, iii. 964.
by admission, ib.
damages, ib.
action for, against executor of deceased rector, ib.

DIPLOMA,
proof of, ii. 307, app. ii. iii. 1399.
when necessary, ii. 307.

DIRECT,
or testimonial evidence, i. 15.
consideration of, by a jury, i. 522.
ought not to be superseded by circumstantial, i. 578.
in conflict with circumstantial, force of, i. 584.

DIRECTORY,
statute is, when, app. ii. iii. 1399.

DISABILITY,
proof of, in ejectment, ii. 403.
evidence of, in answer to the statute of limitations, ii. 672.
proof of, in ejectment, ii. 403.

DISCHARGE,
of prisoner, how proved, ii. 113.
by taking one of several in execution, ii. 249.
of prisoner before breach, ii. 103.
may be proved by parol, ib.
by one assignee, effect of, ii. 179.
of servant, or other agent, when legal, iii. 1304.
of, when justifiable, ib.
of surety by composition with principal, iii. 1065.

DISCLAIMER,
by tenant, effect of, ii. 414. 419.
what amounts to, ii. 419.

DISCONTINUANCE,
proof of, ii. 690.

DISCOVERY,
of offender, what amounts to, ii. 271.
effect of, as to competency under statutes, ib.
evidence under nil debet, when, ii. 272.

DISCREPANCIES,
in evidence, effect of, i. 552.
instances of, ib.

DISFRANCHISEMENT. See Corporation.

DISGRACE,
witness, whether bound to give an answer tending to his disgrace, i. 193.
question tending to disgrace may be put, i. 197.

DISHONOUR,
of bill of exchange, ii. 225.
presumptive evidence of, ii. 237.

DISHONOUR AND DISGRACE, ground for awarding damages, when, iii. 990.

DISMISSAL,
of servant for misconduct, &c. iii. 1304.

DISPENSATION,
how proved, iii. 944.

DISSEISIN,
evidence of, ii. 403.

DISSENTING CHAPEL,
register of, inadmissible to prove baptism, i. 244.

DISSENTING MINISTER,
proof of foreign marriage by a, ii. 703.

DISSOLUTION,
of partnership, by bankruptcy of one, effect of, iii. 802.
proof and effect of, in action against partners, iii. 808.
proof of notice of, iii. 812.
of partnership, proof in answer to, iii. 816.
of partnership, proof of, iii. 811.

DISSOLVED MONASTERY, proof of lands belonging to, iii. 1093.

DISTRESS,
form of action,
for an irregular distress, ii. 389.
for distraining when no rent is due, ii. 390.
for an excessive distress, ib.
driving distress beyond the hundred, ii. 390, 391.
impounding goods on premises without notice, ib.
refusing to restore goods after tender, ib.
selling within five days after notice, ib.
not removing within a reasonable time after five days, ii. 391.
not selling for the best price, ib.
not leaving the surplus with sheriff, ib.
count in trover, ib.
onus probandi, ib.
evidence in defence, ii. 392.
justification, rent due, ib.
action for fraudulent removal, ii. 391.
stat. 11 G. 2, c. 19, s. 1, ii. 393.
fact of removal, ib.
fraudulent intention, ii. 392.
defence by landlord, ib.
liability of goods of bankrupt to, ii. 158.
detention of cattle distrained for damage-feasant, after tender of amends, ii. 85, 86.
case does not lie for, when, ib.
made after tender of rent, ii. 300.
for poor's-rate, trespass lies for, when, ii. 389.
for rate illegally made, trespass lies for, 599.
landlord, when liable for negligence by broker, iii. 737.
liability to, iii. 971.
for several rates, one of which is bad, iii. 1139.
what distrainable, app. ii. iii. 1399.
proof of distraining, ib. 1400.
liability of principal for act of bailiff, ib.
irregular, ib.
excessive, ib.
stat. 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 59, as to impounding, ib. 1401.
tender of rent, ib. 1402.
defence in action of, ib.
by executors, under 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 37, ib.
for rates, ib.
rescue of, ib. 1403.
when replevin lies for goods taken under a distress, iii. 960.
by executors, ib.
by a husband, ib.
tenant pur autre vie, ib.
may be justified in the name of another, when, ii. 475.
authority to be proved, when, ib.

DISTRESS-WARRANT,
for several rates, ii. 393.
seizure and sale of growing crops before they are ripe, ii. 392, 393.
case not maintainable for, ib.

DISTURBANCE,
particulars of proof, ii. 394.
proof by the plaintiff, ib.

DISTURBANCE—continued.
plaintiff's title, ii. 395.
presumptive evidence of title, ib.
proof of the disturbance, ii. 396.
damages, ib.
of right of common, proof of title, ii. 346.
of common, proof of damage, ii. 31.
of fishery, ib.
of a pew, iii. 862.
proof of, in quare impedit, iii. 943.

DITCH,
proof of title to, iii. 1126.
property in, iii. 1127.

DIVERSION,
of highways, provisions as to, ii. 522.
order for, when sufficient, ii. 523.

DIVIDEND,
proof of amount of, in bankruptcy, ii. 187.

DIVINE,
confidential communication to, ii. 322.

DIVISIBILITY,
of averments, i. 442.
of plea of license, iii. 1131. of plea, in trespass, iii. 1124

DIVISIBLE,
plea, divisibility of, iii. 1124.

DIVISION of the subject, i. 1.

DIVORCE,
sentence of, cannot be pronounced after death of parties, i. 288.
sentence of, avoided by proof of collusion, i. 306.
cannot be prosecuted after death of parties, ii. 198.
by sentence of Ecclesiastical Court, effect of, on a charge of bigamy, iii. 896.
for impotence, effect of, in proof, ii. 197.

DOCKET. See Bankruptcy.

DOCK TICKETS, possession of by trader, ii. 154.

DOCK WARRANT,
delivery of vests goods sold, when, iii. 1224.

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE,
its principal excellence, i. 549.

DOCUMENTS,
production of in bankruptcy, ii. 194.
proof of, when in the possession of the adversary, app. i. 620. notice to produce, ib. 621.

DOG,
trespass for killing, ii. 595.
justification, ib.
nuisance by keeping, iii. 735.

DOING AN ACT,
under a statute, applicable, when, ii. 181.

DOMESDAY, book, i. 236.
proof of ancient demesne by, ib.
variance from description in Domesday, effect of, i. 494, ii. 697.

DOOR
may be broken when, in the execution of process, ii. 597. See Warrant—Constable.

DORMANT PARTNER,
may relieve himself when, by proof of dissolution, iii. 812.
share of, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 157.
liability of, iii. 809.
effect of possession by as to reputed ownership, ii. 154. liability of. See Partner.

DOUGLAS
cause, observations on, i. 588.

DRAWEE,
proof in action by, against a drawer, ii. 239.

DRAWER,
evidence in action by, ii. 239.

DRAWING OF BILL,
proof of, ii. 222.

DRAYMAN,
entry by, on delivering out beer, i. 359.

DRUNKARD,
Lord Coke's description of one, iii. 1279.

DRUNKENNESS,
evidence under plea of non est factum, ii. 396.
rule of equity as to giving relief, ib.
is no excuse on criminal charge, ii. 397.
effect of as to criminal liability, app. ii. iii. 1403.

DUCES TECUM. See Subpœna duces tecum, i. 87.

DUCHY OFFICER,
book of, admissibility of, app. i. 607.

DUE DILIGENCE,
to discover an indorser's place of abode, ii. 236.
a question of law, when, ii. 224.

DUGDALE. See History.

DUPLICATE ORIGINAL. See Copy.

DUPLICATIO,
of the Roman law, i. 5.

DURATION
of life, presumption as to, iii. 895.

DURESS,
what constitutes, ii. 397.
by imprisonment, ib.

DURESS—continued.
money obtained by, ii. 398.
plea of, ii. 380, 381. See Deed.
proof of, ii. 344.
evidence of, in case of deed, ii. 380, 381.
bill obtained by, holder must prove value, ii. 220.
bill obtained by, throws proof of value given on plaintiff, ii. 247.
evidence under plea of non-assumpsit, ii. 102.
admission or confession resulting from, ii. 36.
money obtained by, recoverable, ii. 85.
what amounts to, app. ii. iii. 1403.

DURHAM,
enrolment-book of leases in bishopric of, provable by copy, i. 228.
books of auditor of bishop, admissibility of, i. 235.

DUTCH AMBASSADOR,
assertion of, to the king of Siam, i. 554.

DUTY,
and collateral undertaking, distinction between, ii. 69.
when implied in the case of a shipowner, iii. 727.

DWELLING-HOUSE,
in case of burglary, 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 29, s. 13, ii. 279.
what, ii. 278.

DYER,
lien of, ii. 648.

DYING DECLARATION,
admission of in evidence, an exception to the general rules of evidence, i. 26, 27.
ground of admitting evidence of, i. 26, ii. 365.

EARNEST,
to bind a bargain, what sufficient within the statute of frauds, ii. 490.

EASEMENT,
proof of, iii. 1127.
cannot be created without a deed, ii. 473, iii. 748.
contract for, within the statute of frauds, when, ii. 480.
in land, deed when necessary to, ii. 473.
See Nuisance, iii. 743.

EAST INDIA COMPANY,
books of, may be proved by a copy, i. 228.
books of, proof of, ib.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURT,
proof of sentence of, i. 302.
books of, ib.
judgment of, effect of, i. 272.
effect of sentence of on trial for bigamy, ii. 707.
sentence of in case of marriage, ii. 705.

EJECTMENT, ii. 398.
right of entry, ii. 399.
right of entry within 20 years, ib.
stat. 21 J. 1, c. 16, ib.
where the title has accrued within 20 years, ii. 399, 400. possession within 20 years, ii. 401.

EJECTMENT—continued.
by lord of manor, ii. 400.
joint tenant, ib.
agent, ib.
ouster by joint tenant, ib.
of mines, ib.
by tenant by the curtesy, ib.
actual entry, ii. 401.
proof of, when unnecessary, ib.
when necessary, ib.
ratification of entry by another, ib.
in case of fine levied with proclamations, ib.
claim to be on the land, ib.
actual entry, when necessary, ib.
fine levied without proclamation, ib.
levied by tenant for years, ii. 402.
by parties who had no possession, ib.
by son of tenant, by sufferance, who holds over, ib.
proof of disability, ib.
stat. 21 J. 1, c. 16, ii. 405.
proof that the right of entry is divested, ib.
evidence in disseisin, ib.
disseisin at election, ii. 403.
descent cast tolls the entry, when, ib.
proof of title in general, ib.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
from possession, ii. 405.
acts of ownership, ib.
in case of waste lands, ib.
how rebutted, ib.
outstanding term, effect of, ib.
presumption of surrender, ib.
proof by an administrator or executor, ii. 407.
conusee of statute merchant, ii. 408.
statute staple, ib.
devisee of freehold, ii. 409.
copyhold, ib.
leasehold, ib.
tenant by elegit, ii 410.
guardian, ib.
heir-at-law, ii. 411.
landlord, ib.
demise, ib.
determination of lease, ii. 414.
notice to quit, ii. 415, 416, 417.
time of entry, ii. 415, 416.
in case of tenant at will, ii. 420.
forfeiture, ib.
for non-payment of rent, ii. 422, 423.
stat. 4 G. 2, c. 28, ib.
damages, ii. 424.
stat. 1 G. 4, c. 87, s. 2, ib.
evidence for tenant, ii. 425.
tenant estopped from disputing landlord's title, ii. 424, 425.
tender, ii. 425.
receipt of subsequent rent, ii. 425.
waiver of forfeiture, ib.

EJECTMENT—continued.
by mortgagee, ii. 427.
by a rector, ib.
tenant in common, ii. 430.
proof of ouster, ib.
by joint tenant, ib.
variance, ib.
proof of defendant's possession, ii. 432.
competency, ib.
mesne profits, action for, ii. 434.
particulars of proof, ii. 434, 435.
effect of judgment in ejectment, ii. 435.
for tithes, iii. 1095.
maintainable by rightful presentee against simoniacal presentee, iii. 965.
variance in description of situation of premises, i. 470.
lawful possession at time of action brought, is a defence without regard to the time of the demise, iii. 1191.
notice to quit, ii. 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420.
not maintainable by vendor, who has let the vendee into possession on condition not to sell without previous demand of possession, iii. 1191.
recovery in does not bar an action for use and occupation up to the time of the demise, iii. 1180.
to recover premises no defence in action for use and occupation, ib.
service of declaration where the right of action accrues in vacation, ii. 424. provisions of the stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, ii. 399.
judgment in an estoppel, when, iii. 1128. is maintainable although trespass be barred by the statute of limitations, ii. 659.
does not lie, when, app. ii. iii. 1404.
variance from demise by omission of year, ib.
estoppel, ib.
by copartner, ib. 1405.
copyhold, ib.
under an elegit, ib.
fine, entry to avoid, ib.
by heir, ib. 1406.
effect of entry under stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, ii. 402.
by landlord, app. ii. iii. 1406.
proof of tenancy, ib.
notice to quit, ib. 1407.
by whom given, ib.
service of, ib.
form of notice, ib. 1408.
disclaimer, ib.
tenant at will, ib. 1409.
for forfeiture, ib. 1410.
damages, ib. 1411.
by mortgagee, ib.
tenant in common, ib.
competency, ib.

ELECTION. See Bankrupt—Bribery. to proceed against one or more defendants, iii. 1105.
to bring trespass on case, iii. 1108.
to waive trespass and bring assumpsit, iii. 1103.
of creditor to prove under the commission, ii. 189.

ELECTION—continued.
by select number, iii. 947.
parol evidence to raise a case of, when admissible, iii. 771.
to purchase, proof of, ii. 436.
to be made by a prosecutor, when, app. i. 627.
by assignees, effect of, ii. 177.
of creditor by proving under commission, ii. 189.
frivolous petition, app. ii. iii. 1412.
expenses of, ib. 1413.
by prosecutor, ib.
to an office, ib.
under a will, ib.

ELEGIT,
proof of title of tenant by, ii. 410.

EMBEZZLEMENT,
by a bankrupt, proof of on indictment for, ii. 190.
by a servant or clerk, proof of, ii. 615.

EMBLEMENTS,
sale of, effect as to tithe, iii. 1083.

EMPIRIC,
not entitled to recover for pretended services, ii. 1310.

ENDEAVOUR MADE,
a good consideration, ii. 69.

ENDOWMENT,
proof of, iii. 1082.
of abbey, proof of by chartulary, i. 395–397.
proof of, of vicarage, iii. 1081.

ENFRANCHISEMENT,
of copyhold, when presumable, ii. 337.
may be presumed when against the Crown, iii. 916.

ENGINE,
includes what, ii. 500.

ENGINEER,
negligence of, liability of employer for, iii. 739.

ENGRAVING,
piracy of, iii. 941.

ENJOYMENT,
inference of legal right from, iii. 743.
primâ facie evidence of property, when, iii. 1152.

ENLARGEMENT
of time for making an award, proof of, ii. 116.

ENLISTMENT,
fraudulent, by an apprentice, proof of, ii. 308.

ENROLMENT,
of conveyance of bankrupt's real estate, ii. 194.
of memorial, presumable when, ii. 407.
proof of instrument by, i. 368.
of patent in action for infringing, iii. 938.
presumable when, ii. 407.

ENTIRE,
title may be put in issue, ii. 318.
allegation, variance from, i. 457, 458, 459.
sum, variance from, material when, i. 489.
document, when part is used the whole is to be read, i. 414.
secus where the additional entry is distinct, i. 415.
contract for several articles, ii. 488.
contract for goods, when entire, iii. 1200.
contract for work and labour, payment for, recoverable when, under general counts, iii. 1297.

ENTIRETY,
of contract, ii. 71, iii. 1212.
rule as to, in case of admission, ii. 34.
of custom and prescription, ii. 364.

ENTRIES.—Written.
made in the usual course of business, when evidence, i. 345.
by party having peculiar knowledge of the fact, and no interest to misrepresent it, ib.
and declarations made against the interest of the party, admissible as evidence, ib.

ENTRY See tit. Declaration.
by third person, admissible when, i. 346.
principle of admissibility, ib.
by an attorney in his books, i. 348.
private, by a deceased parent, i. 243.
by a third person against his interest, i. 355.
of receipt of interest on a bond, i. 356.
by bailiffs, receivers, &c. i. 357.
parish officer of sum received, i. 358.
steward, ib.
banker's clerk, ib.
agent in course of trade, i. 359.
collector of rents, ib.
proof of proper custody, i. 358.
by sheriff's bailiff, i. 360.
in usual course of business, i. 361.
by a deceased clerk to an attorney, ib.
a scrivener, i. 362.
midwife, ib.
limitation of right of, ii. 651.
in bibles, &c. admissible to prove a pedigree, iii. 842.
proof of right of, ii. 399.
to constitute actual seisin, proof of, iii. 898.
what amounts to an actual entry, ib.
by an agent, proof of, iii. 899.
peaceable, is justifiable when a wrongdoer is in possession, ii. 459.
by owner is legal, iii. 1118.
not essential to the liability of an assignee, ii. 350.
made by principal, admissible against his surety when, iii. 1063.
entry in book not communicated, not binding, iii. 824.
in a public office importing joint property, not evidence, when, iii. 807.
by a party, app. i. 614.
by a steward, ib.
in course of business, ib. 615.
by an agent, ib.

ENTRY—continued.
as to what facts admissible, app. 1. 616.
by a deceased occupier, ib. 617. effect of, under stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, s. 10, ii. 402.

EQUITABLE DEBT
will not support commission of bankruptcy, ii. 146.

EQUITABLE OBJECTIONS to a title will be noticed by a court of law, iii. 1191.

EQUITABLE RIGHT,
a release of, is a good consideration in law, ii. 56.

EQUITABLE TITLE, to an estate sold not sufficient to enable the vendor to recover, iii. 1191.
title to money sufficient in action for money had and received, ii. 82, 83.

EQUITY,
presumption of evidence to rebut, iii. 783.
rules of, devolve on courts of law, when, ii. 436.
parol evidence to rebut, iii. 763.
observes the common law rules of evidence, iii. 764.

EQUITY OF REDEMPTION,
not assets, when, ii. 520.

ERASURE,
felonious, proof of, ii. 41.
in deed, evidence to explain, ii. 377, 378.
in deed, effect of, ii. 378.
in a confession, cured by attestation, iii. 787.

ERROR, app. ii. iii. 1413.
in judgment, when available, i. 307.
effect of, iii. 958.
act done under a subsisting decree valid, although it be afterwards revoked, ii.
in process unavailable to sheriff, when, iii. 1022.
in record does not defeat judgment unrevoked, ii. 436.
erroneous judgment, sheriff may justify under, ii. 437.
so party, ib.
party cannot justify under an irregular judgment, ib.
pendency of, does not exclude pleading the judgment by way of set-off, iii. 993.
in record of judgment, effect of, ii. 436.
of judgment in convicting, cannot be objected in a collateral proceeding, the objection not appearing on the proceedings, ii. 587.

ESCAPE,
what will amount to, iii. 1020.
evidence in action for, against the sheriff on mesne process, iii. 1014.
in execution, iii. 1019.
action by sheriff against party, iii. 1032.
act of bankruptcy, proof of, ii. 145.

ESCHEAT. See Manor.

ESCROW,
evidence of, ii. 378. 380.
delivery essential to, i. 374.

ESTATE,
proof of settlement by, iii. 1003.
settlement by, ib.

ESTOPPEL,
kinds of, ii. 437.
act of livery, ib.
effect of, ib.
by deed, ib.
by fraud, ib.
of tenant from disputing his landlord's title, ii. 424, iii. 973. 1180. 1280.
of petitioning creditor from disputing the commission, ii. 22.
of bankrupt after acquiescence, ib.
of cousee of recognizance of bail, ib.
of tenant, ib.
of one who has given a false description, ib.
of vendee of goods by giving note, &c. ib.
of party by admission, &c. ii. 19.
by admission under seal, i. 343, ii. 19.
by recital in deed, ii. 20.
deed-poll does not estop, i. 344.
by representation of one that he is a partner with another, iii. 805.
of party, i. 344.
court when bound by, ib.
in pais, effect of, ib.
from taking advantage of misnomer, i. 490.
of party from objection of misnomer, ii. 709.
of tenant from denying his landlord's title, ii. 424, 425.
of mortgagor from impeaching his own title at the time of the mortgage, ib.
of bankrupt obtaining his discharge, &c. ii. 22.
by payment made under a mistake of the law, ii. 88.
by giving bill, &c. for amount of goods, ii. 74.
of attorney by delivery of a former bi'l, ii. 111.
from contesting title in ejectment, ii. 402.
goods of wife as executrix but treated as goods of husband, may be taken in execution for his debt, iii. 1029.
party who has induced sheriff to arrest him by false representation cannot maintain trespass, ib.
bailee not estopped from denying title of bailor where the property is claimed by another, iii. 1227.
bailee not estopped from denying the title of the bailor, iii. 1166.
of party by giving bill of exchange, ii. 242, 243.
by giving release, iii. 967.
whether a receipt operates as an estoppel, ib.
of tenant from disputing his landlord's title, iii. 1180.
trustees who have wrongfully let a toll-house, are not estopped from recovering in ejectment, iii. 1172.
verdict operates as, when, i. 264.
of lessee, &c. app. ii. iii. 1404. of tenant of chambers in Lincoln's Inn, ib. 1414.
not created by an erroneous act, ib.
by recitals, ib.

ESTOPPEL—continued.
from denying payment, iii. 823.
an agent having received money for his principal, estopped from saying he received it for another, ii. 47.
by giving bill, payment, &c. ii. 87, 88.
of agent, ii. 95.
by judgment in ejectment, iii. 1128.
of a tenant, exists when, ii. 424. of bail, ii. 120.
by fraud, ii. 438

ESTOVER,
common of, ii. 314

EVICTION. See Appointment.
effect of, iii. 1183.
proof of, ii. 351.
of tenant from part of premises demised, effect of, iii. 1183

EVIDENCE,
what, i. 9.
advantages of a rational system of, i. 9, 10.
its general relation to the law, i. 2.
division of the subject, i. 11, 12.
general principles on which the law of evidence is founded, i. 12, 13.
these are,
1. natural reason
2. artificial policy,
which exclude by artificial tests or create, ib.
or give an artificial effect to evidence, ib.
of natural reason and experience, ib.
ordinary means of inquiry concerning a past transaction, are,
1. direct.
2. indirect.
reason for excluding direct evidence by artificial tests, i. 16, 17.
direct evidence of two kinds, i. 15, 16.
1. immediate, ib.
2. mediate, ib.
principles which govern the reception of immediate testimony, i. 16.
administration of an oath, ib.
effect is,
to exclude those who cannot be bound by an oath, ib.
by reason of turpitude, ib.
interest, i. 16, 17.
nature of the interest, i. 19, 20.
exceptions, i. 19.
belief in the obligation essential, i. 21.
form of the oath, i. 21, 22.
must be a judicial oath, i. 22.
exceptions, i. 22, 23.
declaration by a party in extremis, ib.
affirmation by Quaker, ib.
test of cross-examination, i. 24.
excludes hearsay evidence, i. 25.
exception in case of dying declaration, i. 26.
mediate testimony, i. 27.
original, ib.
reputation, ib.

EVIDENCE—continued.
when admissible, i. 31.
reception of, by what conditions guarded, ib.
1. must be of a public nature, ib.
2. must be general, i. 33.
3. supported by acts of enjoyment, ib.
admissions by party or privy, i. 34.
declarations accompanying acts, i. 35.
mediate secondary evidence, ib.
inferiority of, in degree, i. 35. 36.
in general, is inadmissible, i. 36. grounds of exclusion, i. 37, 38, 39.
under what sanctions admissible, i. 42.
traditionary evidence, ib.
under what sanctions admissible, ib.
1. must be of a public nature, ib.
2. must be as to general, not particular facts, ib.
3. derived from persons likely to know the fact, i. 43.
4. free from suspicion, ib.
5. supported by collateral evidence of user, &c. ib.
mediate secondary evidence, in what other cases admissible, i. 45.
special grounds of admission, i. 45, 46. necessity, i. 45.
peculiar means of knowledge, ib.
improbability of misrepresentation, i. 45, 46.
indirect evidence, i. 47, 48.
necessity for resorting to, i. 47. 49.
failure of direct evidence, i. 47.
presumptions and inferences, by virtue of experience, i. 50.
from conduct, ib.
as to motives, i. 51, 52.
from course of dealings, i. 53, 54.
as to continuance, ib.
circumstantial evidence in general, i. 55. principles of admissibility, ib.
extent of the principle, i. 56, 57.
res inter alios, rule as to, i. 57, 58.
grounds of the rule, i. 58.
to what it extends, ib.
declarations by strangers, ib.
does not exclude,
evidence of the acts and admissions of parties, i. 61.
of laws and customs, ib.
facts which have a legal operation, &c. i. 61. effect of the rule as to declarations, &c. by deceased persons, i. 61, 62.
in matters of reputation, i. 62.
declarations and accompanying acts, ib.
recitals, i. 64.
collateral facts, i. 65. general admissibility of, ib.
evidence of possession, &c. i. 67.
explained by ancient instruments, ib.
ancient instruments, under what conditions admissible, ib.
must be ancient, ib.
found in the proper repository, ib.
free from suspicion, ib.

EVIDENCE—continued.
supported by acts of enjoyment, i. 67.
declarations admissible for the purpose of explanation, when, i. 68.
evidence in aid of the jury on questions of skill, &c. i. 69.
exclusion on principles of artificial policy, i. 69, 70.
of secondary evidence, ib.
in the case of husband and wife, i. 70.
confidential communication, ib.
witness not bound to criminate himself, i. 71.
on grounds of state policy, ib.
artificial and conventional evidence, i. 72.
artificial evidence, where necessary, ib.
in what instances created, ib.
rolls of Parliament, i. 73.
records, ib.
other instances, ib.
artificial weight, when annexed to evidence, i. 73 verdict, ib.
conventional evidence, i. 74.
how far interfered with by the law, ib.
in prescribing the manner and form, ib.
in annexing artificial effect, ib.
estoppels, ib.
presumptions, i. 75.
of law:
conclusive, 176.
inconclusive, ib.
of law and fact, ib.
must be relevant, i. 430.
must correspond with the allegations, ib., tit. Variance.
the substance of the issue must be proved, i. 430.
matters admitted by the pleadings, i. 499.
the best evidence must be adduced, i. 500.
quantity and measure of evidence, i. 507.
in what cases the law interferes as to the quantity of evidence, ib.
essential that the plaintiff should adduce some primâ facie evidence in support of every material allegation, ib.
direct, i. 545.
on what its force depends, ib.
integrity of witnesses, ib.
to be estimated by the jury, ib.
exceptionable witnesses are yet competent, i. 546.
but require confirmation, ib.
accomplice, ib.
degrees of proof, and mere preponderance of, i. 543.
full proof, what amounts to, ib.
when requisite, ib.
mere preponderance, when sufficient, ib.
when insufficient in civil cases, ib.
primâ facie and conclusive evidence, i. 544.
comparative nature of evidence, ib.
primâ facie, when it becomes conclusive, ib.
evidence to be weighed by a jury, i. 545. circumstantial evidence. See tit. Circumstantial Evidence. conflicting evidence, i. 578.
process of inquiry as to, ib.
whether the evidence be reconcilable, ib.

EVIDENCE—continued
effect of partial incongruities, i. 578 probability of mistake or error, ib. positive and negative evidence, i. 579. conflict of testimony, i. 580.
process of comparison, ib. circumstances by which witnesses are likely to be influenced, i. 581 contradiction from former declarations, ib.
internal marks of insincerity, i. 582.
comparison of testimony with circumstances, ib.
with written documents, i. 583.
witness who gives false testimony to be rejected altogether, ib.
exception where he gives evidence in favour of the adverse party, ib.
effect of his perjury on other evidence, ib.
comparison of direct and circumstantial evidence, ib.
characteristic excellence of direct evidence, ib.
of circumstantial, i. 585.
circumstantial when superior to direct evidence, ib. hearsay evidence. See Hearsay. parol evidence. See Parol Evidence.
best evidence. See Best Evidence. secondary evidence. See Secondary Evidence.

EXAMINATION,
of a witness in chief, i. 170.
as to what examinable, i. 173.
actual knowledge, when necessary, ib.
as to belief, when, i. 173, 174.
judgment on questions of skill, i. 174.
of prisoner taken on oath, inadmissible, ii. 28.
under Act of Parliament, admissibility of, ii. 384.
of woman pregnant with bastard, when admissible, ii. 201.
of prisoner, presumed to have been taken in writing, ii. 422. of soldier under the stat. 55 Geo. 3, c. 108, s. 70, ii. 1007.
of bankrupt, in action for commitment of, must be read, ii. 180.
so of any other person committed under the statute, ii. 181.
of prisoner not to be taken before the grand jury, ii. 39.
of witness under the stat. 1 W. 4, c. 22, app. ii. 611.
on interrogatories, ib.
of prisoner not an answer to the depositions, app. ii. 1111.

EXAMINATIONS,
in case of felony, ii. 138. See Admissions.
when admissible, ib.
of pauper, ib.
pregnant women, ib.
under Mutiny Act, ib.
to be taken in writing, when, ii. 422.

EXCAVATION
of land, a nuisance, when, ii. 747.

EXCEPTIO,
of the Roman law, i. 5.

EXCEPTION,
incumbent on party to bring himself within one, when, i. 422.
of liberty of hawking, how it operates, ii. 505.

EXCEPTIONS, Rule of. See Bill of Exceptions.

EXCESS, of proof which does not alter the legal effect, immaterial, i. 456.
of proof, effect of, ib.
of proof not admissible to extend the damages, i. 461.
of jurisdiction, magistrates liable for, ii. 427.
must be replied, when, iii. 1134.
replication of, iii. 1143.
of authority, action for, iii. 1140. replication of, unnecessary when, iii. 1133.
replication of, what admitted by, iii. 1143. issue taken on, ib. See Trespass.

EXCESSIVE DISTRESS,
action for, ii. 390.

EXCHANGE,
of acceptances, effect of, ii. 108–239.
of acceptances a negotiation, ii. 256.
new stamp necessary in case of alteration after, ib.
of securities, a good consideration for an acceptance, ii. 242.
damage from course of, ii. 240.

EXCISE
commissioners of, excess of authority by, ii. 388.

EXCISE OFFICER,
non-liability of, ii. 97.

EXCUSE
for not giving notice of dishonour, ii. 229.

EXCOMMUNICATION,
sentence of, effect of in evidence, i. 280.

EXECUTION,
available to creditor against assignees, when, ii. 170.
against one of several partners, effect of purchase under, iii. 803.
levied on property does not alter the property before sale, iii. 1149.
of deed, proof of, ii. 377.
of power, proof of, iii. 901.
does not divest property till sale, iii. 1036.
creditor who takes goods of bankrupt, when liable to assignees, ii. 167, 168.
against goods of bankrupt, when protected, ib. taking of subsequent indictee is no discharge of prior one, ii. 249.

EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS, proof in actions by, ii. 439.
proof of probate, &c. ib.
character admitted by plea of general issue, ib.
proof on trial, when necessary, ib.
proof of title, ii. 439.
of executor, ib.
where probate has been lost, ii. 441.
how disproved, ii. 442.
bona notabilia, ib.
of administrator, ib.
of the cause of action, ii. 443, 444.
payments, when protected, ii. 443.
by executor de son tort, ib.
promise to administrator, ib.
does not support promise to intestate, ib.

EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS—continued. actions against executors, ii. 445.
proof on plea of ne unques executor, ib.
executor de son tort, ii. 446.
defence by, ib.
proof on plea of plene administravit, ii. 447.
proof of assets, ib.
inventory, ii. 448
separate debts, ib.
due administration, ii. 449.
payment of debts, ib.
before action, ib.
payment of bond debts, ib.
competency of creditors, ib.
where action is on a speciality, ib.
judgment not docketed, ib.
retainer, ii. 451.
by executor de son tort, ib.
proof of amount of debt, ib.
outstanding bonds, plea of, ii. 452, 453.
judgment recovered, ib.
debt on judgment suggesting a devastavit, ii. 453.
plea, non devastavit, ib.
non detinet, ii. 454.
promise by, when binding, ib.
liability for funeral expenses, ib.
action does not lie against for legacy, ib assent to legacy, ii. 454.

EXECUTOR,
proof of assent by to a legacy, ii. 109.
possession of goods as, ii. 159. entitled to an attachment for non-performance of an award, ii. 118.
bona notabilia, what, app. ii. iii. 1115.
of executor becomes the executor of the first testator ib.
to recover legacy, ib. 1116.
against executor de son tort, ib. 1117. assets, ib.
payments by, ib. 1118.
costs under stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 31, ib.
competency, ib. 1119.
liability of on implied contract, ii. 70.
liability to costs, ii. 444.
liability of to rent, ii. 450.
bound by testator's agreement, when, ii. 453.

EXECUTORS,
admission by one of several, ii. 447.
joinder in action by, ii. 441.

EXECUTOR DE SON TORT, may prove payment of debts of deceased in diminution of damages, iii. 1168.

EXECUTORY, consideration, allegation of not proved by evidence of execution, i. 464.

EXECUTORY—continued.
difference between illegal contracts, executory and executed, ii. 94, 95.
money paid over on executed illegal consideration not recoverable, ii. 96.
whilst agreement is executory, though illegal, money recoverable, ii. 94.

EXEMPLIFICATIONS, different kinds of, i. 224.
under the great seal, ib.
of what courts, ib.
the whole must be exemplified, ib.
exemplification under the great seal is a record, i. 224, 225.
under the seal of a particular court, ib.
why received in evidence, ib.
of what records, i. 225.
of proceedings in ecclesiastical courts, ib.
pope's bull, ib.
letters of administration, ib.
under seal of university not admissible, ib.
of foreign judgments requires collateral proof of seal, ib.
proof by, i. 224.
of record, admissible on proof of the destruction of the original, i. 229.

EX GRAVI QUERELA, remedy by writ of, ii. 104.

EX PARTE, examination, whether admissible, ii. 200.
statement of proceeding before a magistrate, when libellous, ii. 639.

EXPENSES,
of prosecutions for felony, &c. i. 84, 85.

EXPERIENCE,
ordinary presumption in favour, i. 566.
conformity with, its effect in strengthening the force of evidence, i. 554.

EXPLANATION. See Parol Evidence.
declarations admissible for purpose of, when, i. 68.

EXPULSION. See Eviction—Trespass.

EXTENT. See Sheriff—Elegit.
when evidence by the heir, ii. 520.
variance from effect of, i. 110.
ancient, of crown lands, admissibility of, i. 237, 238.

EXTENUATION,
evidence in on charge of homicide, ii. 721.
provocation, ii. 721, 722.

EXTINCTION,
of right by unity of possession, ii. 316.
of right of common, ib.

EXTINGUISHMENT,
by unity of possession, ii. 318.
of right of way, iii. 910, app. ii. iii. 1119.

EXTORTION,
action for, iii. 1031.

EXTORTION—continued.
sheriff liable for extortion of bailiff, iii. 1031 action for against sheriff, ib.
EXTRA COSTS,
recoverable, when, ii. 690.
EXTRA WORK. See Work and Labour EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE, to explain the intention of a testator admissible, when, iii. 774 FACT AND LAW. See Law and Fact FACTS,
jury must find facts, not evidence of facts, i. 511.
recitals of, when admissible, i. 64 real, what, i. 65.
context of must be consistent with truth, i. 65, 66.
spurious, how detected, ib allegation according to the fact is sufficient, although it be not according to the legal effect, i. 461.
FACTOR,
set-off by, iii. 996
property received by, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 176.
stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 94, provisions of as to, iii. 1149.
debt of may be set off, when, iii. 995.
taking notes in payment do not pass to assignees, when, ii. 161 proof of his being intrusted under 6 Geo. 4, c. 94, app. ii. iii. 1419
lien of, ii. 648.
FACULTY,
right to enjoy a pew under, iii. 862, 863 right to a pew by, iii. 863.
FAILURE,
partial, of consideration for bill or exchange, ii. 243 FALSE DEBT, allowing of by bankrupt avoids his certificate, ii. 187 evidence of proving one under commission, ii. 187.
FALSE ANSWER,
indictment for giving, under 2 W. 4, c. 45, app. ii. iii. 1421.
FALSE ASSERTION,
not a conversion, when, iii. 1157.
FALSE DESCRIPTION of subject of sale avoids the sale, when, iii. 1213, 1214.
FALSE IMPRISONMENT,
what amounts to, iii. 1112.
FALSE MARKING,
what amounts to a forgery, ii. 461 FALSE PRETENCES, ii. 455. proof of the false pretence, ib.
the obtaining, ii. 456
ownership, ib.
by means of false pretence, ib.
bills obtained by, ii. 175.
goods obtained by fraud, ib.
what amount to, app. ii. iii. 1420.
action for, ii. 371.
must be in writing to support action, when ii. 372.

FALSE REPRESENTATION. See Deceit.
action for, ii. 371. 373.
must be in writing to support action, when, ii. 372.
stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 6, provisions of, ii. 373.
a fraud in law, ii. 371.

FALSE RETURN. See Sheriff.
evidence in action for, iii. 1016, 1017, 1018.
proof in defence, iii. 1018.
waiver of right of priority, iii. 1019.

FALSITY, of pretence, sufficient to prove part to be false, ii. 456.
proof of, in action for libel, ii. 634.

FARM MODUS,
effect of terrier to, what, i. 241, iii. 1089.
evidence to establish, iii. 1088.

FARMS,
what may be included in the term, iii. 1275.

FEES,
table of to be proved in an action against sheriff for extortion, when, iii. 1032.
due on surrender and admission to copyhold, ii. 696.
what claimable by sheriff, iii. 1031.

FELO DE SE,
effect of finding of, i. 397.
how traversable, ib.

FELON,
wife of, subject to the bankrupt law, ii. 127.

FELONIOUS INTENTION,
general felonious intention, when sufficient, ii. 177.

FELONY,
compounding of, ii. 248.
certificate of conviction of, ii. 301. conviction of, effect of, i. 295.
general rule as to a statute creating a new felony, ii. 7.
felony by husband, effect of as to the civil liability of the wife, ii. 537.

FEME COVERTE. See Husband and Wife. escape by, on execution against baron and feme, iii. 1021. action for goods supplied to, ii. 71.
submission to a reference not binding, ii. 117.
how subpœnaed, i. 79.
expenses to be tendered, ib.
sureties for attendance of in criminal case, i. 83.
living apart from husband, goods supplied to, ii. 71. liability on promise to pay bond executed during coverture, ii. 70.

FEME SOLE,
interest of in bill of exchange passes to the husband on marriage, ii. 217.
indorsement of bill by, ib.

FEME SOLE TRADER,
liability of by the custom of London to be sued, ii. 536.
joinder of husband for conformity, ib.

FENCE,
evidence of title to, iii. 1126.

FEOFFMENT,
variance from allegation of, i. 453.

FEOFFMENT continued
deed of, without living evidence of a release, iii. 968 deed of, evidence to prove livery, ii. 382.
evidence on issue of feoffment vel non, ii. 457 deed of, evidence of livery, ib.
proof of when the land is in lease, ib.
livery when presumed, app. ii. iii. 1421 FERRY,
action for disturbance of, iii. 1252.
nature of the liberty, ib.
proof in action for disturbance of, ib.
FIAT
in bankruptcy to be entered of record, ii. 122 FICTITIOUS
acceptance of bill, indorsee entitled to retain, ii. 256 FIERI FACIAS ORDER,
defective when, app. ii. iii. 1361.
FINE. See Recovery.
how proved, ii. 457.
does not operate till execution, ii. 458
when a bar, ib.
when inoperative, ib.
evidence of seisin, ib.
proof of fine levied with proclamations, iii. 964 proof of seisin, when necessary, ib provable by chirograph, i. 225.
deed to lead the uses of, when admissible, i. 443 or parcel of a manor the residue being in possession of tenant, evidence it from the manor, ii. 696.
recoverable on admission to copyhold, ii. 337 assessment of, ib.
statute of limitations, by, iii. 944 title of lord to, ii. 337 in case of copyhold, ii. 696.
evidence of, app. ii. iii. 1421 copyhold, indemnity for on corporation becoming tenant, ib. 1422 commutation of, under 4 Vic. c. 35, ib.
FISHERY. See Watercourse.
title to, iii. 1253.
action for fishing in plaintiff's several fishery, proof of actual damage not material, ii. 317.
ownership of soil, evidence of, iii. 1253.
right of, evidence of, ib.
proof of title to, app. ii. iii. 1609.
FIXTURE,
when removable, iii. 1247, 1248.
materials wrongfully affixed, the property of the owner of the freehold, iii. 866.
cannot be recovered as goods sold and delivered, iii. 1207.
not recoverable in trade, iii. 1167.
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 155.
what removable, iii. 1245.
ris termini, iii. 1167.
FLEET BOOKS. See Marriage.
FLEET PRISON,
books of inadmissible to prove a marriage, i. 244.

FOOTWAY,
order for stopping one, ii. 592.
should pursue the form given by the statute, ib.

FORCE,
essential to action of trespass, iii. 1106.

FORCE OF TESTIMONY,
observations on, i. 545.

FORCIBLE ENTRY,
right to take peaceable, not forcible possession, ii. 459.
forcible entry does not affect civil rights, ib.
not justifiable in action, app. ii. iii. 1422.

FORCIBLE MARRIAGE,
admissibility of prosecutrix's deposition on indictment for, i. 316.

FOREIGN BILL,
production of sets of, essential, ii. 203.
presentment of, ii. 235.
stamp on, ii. 254.

FOREIGN CHAPEL,
register of inadmissible to prove a marriage, i. 244.

FOREIGN CONSUL,
material acts by, under 6 Geo. 4, c. 87, s. 20, app. ii. iii. 1423

FOREIGN COUNTRY, marriage in, when valid, ii. 703, 704

FOREIGN COURT,
effect of sentence of, i. 294.

FOREIGN COURTS,
their seal must be proved, ii. 459.
if they have a seal it should be used to authenticate their judgment, ib.

FOREIGN INSTRUMENT,
stamp on, iii. 1047.
proof of, i. 304.

FOREIGN JUDGMENT,
proof, of i. 304.
not provable by copy signed by clerk of court, i. 225.
effect of, i. 270.
impeachable for fraud, app. ii. iii. 1423.

FOREIGN LAW,
proof of, ii. 459.
when written, ib.
unwritten, ib.
violation of, when a bar to an action, ii. 301.
evidence of, admissible to show intention of parties, when, ii. 364.
provable as matter of fact, ii. 450, 451.
conformity with law of England not presumed, ib.
how proved, ib.
as to marriage, ii. 704.
court when bound by the rules of construction which would prevail in the country where the party is domiciled, app. ii. iii. 1423.

FOREIGN MARRIAGE, ii. 704.

FOREIGN POSSESSIONS, effect of introducing the English municipal law into, app. ii. iii. 1424.
aliens in, not incapacitated from holding real estate, when, ib.

FOREIGN CREDITOR, barred by certificate, when, ii. 186

FOREIGNERS,
custom to exclude from exercise of trade, ii. 559

FORFEITURE, proof of tender by, ii. 120, 121 in case of inconstancy, &c., ii. 333 custom as to, how proved, ib.
by non-payment of rent, ejectment on, ii. 423 provisions of the stat. 4 Geo. 2, c. 28, ib.
no sufficient distress, proof of, ib.
by underletting, evidence of declaration by person in possession whether admissible, ii. 34.
of copyhold by cutting down trees, ii. 337, 338 evidence as to intention, ib.
proof of, to enable vendor to retain deposit, iii. 1220 proof of waiver of, ii. 425 prior to grant, ii. [illegible] 979.
in respect of assignment by bankrupt, ii. 176 ejectment for evidence in, ii. 421 breach of covenant what amounts to, ii. 441 proof of by admissions, iii. 978, 979.

FORGED BILL, money paid in respect of, ii. 90

FORGERY,
particulars of proof on an indictment, ii. 460.
county, ii. 461.
false making in law, ib.
in fact, ii. 464
proof of descriptive averments, ii. 465.
variance, ii. 466, 467.
intent, ib.
principals and accessories, ii. 467, 468.
uttering with guilty knowledge, &c. ib.
competency, ib.
evidence of uttering forged notes, ii. 6.
what amounts to, supp. ii. iii. 1424.
proof of joint, ib.
intent, ib. 1425.
forged request, ib. 1426

FORM of conviction prescribed by statute must be observed when, i. 592.

FORM OF ACTION,
form ex contractu affirms the act of the bankrupt, ii. 177.
in case of seduction, iii. 988.

FORMAL
allegation, effect of variance from, i. 451.

FORMER BANKRUPTCY,
replication of, ii. 122.

FORMER CONVICTION,
evidence when, ii. 470.

FORMER TRIAL,
evidence of witness on, when admissible, i. 327

FOUNDATION
of a house, weakening the, action for, iii. 743. 747.

FOX,
justification in trespass for the following of a, ii. 505.

FRACTION
of a day, when noticed by the law, iii. 1079.

FRANCHISE,
proof of right to, iii. 744.
proof of, iii. 946.

FRAUD. See Deceit.
presumption of, the ground of the rule for requiring the best evidence, i. 500.
a question of law, when, i. 524.
of fact, when, ib.
admissible to impeach the validity of a written instrument, iii. 765.
fraudulent taking of tenement not presumable, iii. 1005.
the foundation of an action, when, ii. 371.
property in goods obtained under false pretence of purchase does not pass, iii. 1220.
vitiates a contract to exchange securities, ii. 267.
action for money obtained by, ii. 83, 84.
bill obtained by, proof by plaintiff, ii. 244.
bills and goods obtained by, whether they pass under a commission of bankruptcy, ii. 175.
in procuring an assignment by operation of law, ii. 346.
presumption from, i. 564.
in the case of destroying a will, ib.
judgment impeached by reason of, i. 295.
general effect of, to impeach all acts, ib.
when not allowed to impeach a judgment, i. 296.
evidence to impeach record, when, iii. 958.
proof of, in defence of an action on a policy, iii. 885.
suppressio veri, iii. 886.
suggestio falsi, iii. 888.
a defence to action on bill, when, ii. 248.
continuance of vendor's possession, evidence of, iii. 1031.
in concealing the value of goods avoids contract with a carrier, ii. 293.
in concealing other circumstances, ib.
a defence to an action by party employed in profession of skill, when, iii. 1310.
in description of thing sold, when a defence in an action for the price, iii. 1213.
when a bar to an action for the price of goods, ib.
to an action on a bill given for the price, ib.
in sale of goods a defence to an action by vendor or vendee, ib.
in sale by auction, ib.
effect of as a defence to an action for breach of promise of marriage, ii. 708.
effect of in answer to a conviction, &c. i. 282.
evidence of, admissible to impeach a release, iii. 993.
evidence when to impeach a receipt, iii. 954, 955.
bill of exchange, ii. 248.
money obtained by, ii. 83, 84
in case of policy, iii. 885.

FRAUD—continued
when a defence by a vendee, iii. 1213, 1214.
effect of, in general, ii. 471.
in civil suits, ib.
ecclesiastical proceedings, ii. 472.
estopped of party from alleging, ib.
in obtaining the judgment, evidence in an action against the sheriff for an escape, iii. 1019.
as to name in case of marriage, effect of, ii. 700, 701.
in an action for breach of promise of marriage, effect of, ii. 707.
proof of, by carrier in defence, ii. 293.
a question of law, when, ii. 494.
defence of, in action by a vendor, iii. 1212.
an unfair advantage taken by an agent, avoids a transaction by him, when, ii. 47.
proof of, between a co-partner and a stranger, effect of, ii. 810.
by agent vitiates a contract as to the principal, ii. 44, 45.
recovery of money paid in ignorance of, i. 87.
concurrent jurisdiction of courts of law and equity in case of, ii. 965.
liability where bill has been obtained by, ii. 220.
money detained by, ii. 83.
estopped by, ii. 438.
in law, what amounts to, ii. 371.
by one executor does not affect the rest, ii. 455.
of partner in taking an undue advantage, effect of, ii. 814.
avoids a guarantee, when, ii. 514. evidence of, appeal in, iii. 1420. composition with creditors, ib. 1427.
laches, amounting to, ib. 1428.
acquiescence in, effect of, ib.
of one partner, effect of, ii. 452.

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.
statute of, 29 C. 2, c. 3, ii. 472.
sect. 1. creation of estates, ii. 473.
2. exception as to leases, ib.
3. assignments and surrenders, ii. 474.
surrender by operation of law, ib.
4. executory promises and agreements, ii. 475.
money paid on executed consideration, ii. 476.
debt of another, ii. 476, 477.
new consideration, ii. 478. promise to marry, ii. 479.
sale of lands, ib.
within a year, ii. 482.
agreement, what it comprehends, ib.
consideration, ib.
memorandum or note, ii. 483.
signature of party, ii. 485.
to be charged, ib.
of lawful agent, ib.
sec. 17. contract for sale of goods, ib.
value of, &c. ii. 488.
sale by auction, ii. 487, 490.
materials, to be worked up, ii. 488.
a chariot to be made, ii. 487. provisions of the stat. 9 G. 4, c. 14, s. 7, ib.

FRAUDS—continued.
contract to procure goods and carry them, not within the statute, ii. 487.
acceptance of goods, ii. 488.
where several articles are purchased at separate prices, ib.
acceptance when the goods are ponderous, ii. 488.
constructive delivery, ib.
acceptance, question of for the jury, when, ib.
delivery to an agent sufficient, when, ib.
in a carrier, ib.
former decisions on the subject, ib.
later doctrine, ii. 489.
no acceptance whilst lien remains to seller, ib.
acceptance, question of how taken, ib.
earnest, giving of, ii. 490.
note or memorandum, ib.
may be collected from different documents, ib.
construction of the word bargain, ii. 491. signature by the parties, ii. 492.
what sufficient, ib.
by an agent, ib.
sale by auction, ib.

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF,
debt or under, when to be pleaded, ii. 472.
surrender by operation of law, app. ii. iii. 1428.
original consideration, ib.
within one year, &c. ib. 1429.
interest in land, ib.
sec. 17, goods, wares, &c. ib.
acceptance, ib.
alteration, waiver, &c. ib. 1430.

FRAUDULENT ASSIGNMENT,
proof of, by sheriff, iii. 1030.

FRAUDULENT COMPOSITION, with creditors, fraud as to, app. ii. iii. 1427.

FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE,
an act of bankruptcy, when, ii. 138.
general rule of law as to preference, ii. 494.
to what extent preference is permitted, ib.
when prohibited, ib.
a question of law, when, ib.
provision of the stat. 13 Eliz. c. 5, ib.
question usually one of fact, ib.
continuance of possession evidence of fraud, ii. 495.
not conclusive, when, ib.
decisions on the subject, ii. 495, 496, 497.
possession not evidence of fraud, when, ii. 497.
proof that party conveying was indebted at time of the conveyance, ii. 498.
assignment pending suit for the benefit of creditors, ib.
intention a question of fact, ii. 497.
proof of fraud, app. ii. iii. 1430.

FRAUDULENT GRANT,
when it amounts to an act of bankruptcy, ii. 138.

FRAUDULENT OMISSION,
parol evidence as to, iii. 765

FRAUDULENT REMOVAL
of goods to avoid distress, ii. 393, 394.

FRAUDULENT REPRESENTATION, party guilty of, cannot maintain an action for consequence of, iii. 1029.

FRAUDULENT SALE
after a secret act of bankruptcy, not protected, ii. 171

FREE FROM AVERAGE, construction of the clause in a policy of insurance, iii. 878

FREE WARREN, ii. 504. See Game evidence of title to, ii. 505

FREEHOLD,
personal chattel, when annexed to, iii. 1248.
easement, cannot be created without deed, ii. 173 materials wrongfully affixed to, the property of the owner of the freehold, iii. 866.
seat in church illegally set up, materials of belong to the incumbent, ib.

FREEHOLDERS' OATH,
assignment of perjury on, iii. 857

FREIGHT,
consignee, liability of, to pay, iii. 1300.
risk on, attaches when, iii. 874

FRIENDLY SOCIETY,
provisions of stat. 33 G. 3, c. 54, s. 13, ii. 198 10 G. 4, c. 56, s. 8, ib
proof on indictment for disobedience of order of justices, ii. 498.
suits by stewards, &c. ib.
authority of, to make resolutions, app. ii. iii. 1451

FUGAM FECIT, not traversable, i. 308

FUNDS, PUBLIC,
dealing in, what avoids a certificate, ii. 187

FUNERAL, expenses of, liability of executor to, though ordered by another, ii. 464.

FURNITURE, vested in trustees, property of in case of bankruptcy, ii. 160.

FUTURE ESTATE,
of bankrupt, ii. 187.

GAME,
proof of want of qualification by parties' oath before commissioners, ii. 24.
appointment of gamekeeper, proof of, ii. 505 indictment under stat. 9 G. 4, c. 60, s. 6, ib.
competency of witnesses, ii. 501. 507.
evidence on information under stat. 1 & 2 W. 4, c. 1, s. 2, ii. 501.
proof of keeping dog, &c. ii. 500 using a dog, &c. ib.
fact done within the county, ii. 501.
of want of certificate, ib.

GAME—continued.
defence as gamekeeper, ii. 501.
title to the manor cannot be tried on proceeding to recover a penalty, ib.
commencement of prosecution, ii. 502.
proof to explain possession of game, ii. 503.
evidence with a view to costs in an action of trespass, ii. 503, 504.
as to damages, ii. 504.
of right of free warren, ii. 505.
justification killing dog, &c. in pursuit of game, ib.
of entry to destroy a fox, ib.
evidence of property in, ii. 504.
in owner of land, when, ib.
justification by gamekeeper, app. ii. iii. 1431.
right of sporting, ib.
indictment for poaching, &c. ib.
buying or selling, ii. 503.
illegal, when, ii. 507.
landlord entitled to, when, ii. 504.

GAMEKEEPER,
proof of deputation to, ii. 501.

GAMING,
stat. of, ii. 507.
indictment for keeping a gaming-house, ib.
winning more than 10*l.*, &c. ib stat. 9 Ann. c. 14, s. 5, ib.
gaming-houses, ib.
stat. 18 G. 2, c. 34, s. 1. See Bill of Exchange—Wager. effect of stat. 9 Ann. c. 14, s. 2, on contracts for money won at play, ii. 508.
avoids certificate, when, ii. 187.
in public funds, ib.
under bankrupt law, ii. 186.
statutes against, app. ii. iii. 1432.

GAMING DEBT, securities for, avoided by stat. 9 Ann. c. 14, s. 1, ii. 246.
effect of statute, ib.

GAOLER,
refusal to show prisoner in execution, iii. 1021.
note of having prisoner in custody under stat. 8 & 9 W. 3, c. 7, ib.

GARNISHEE,
defence by, iii. 960.

GAS SHARES,
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 154.

GAVELKIND,
custom of, ii. 357. See Custom.
custom of noticed by law, ii. 518.

GAZETTE,
evidence of acts of State, i. 233.
what it proves, i. 233, 234.
proclamation of peace, ib.
quarantine, ib.
for reprisals, ib.
not evidence of private matters, ib.
of appointment to a commission in the army, ib.

GAZETTE—continued.
evidence to prove notice, when, i. 233. of dissolution of partnership, i. 234. See Partners.
of bankruptcy, ib.
inadmissible to prove order in council, when, app. i. 607.
GENERAL EVIDENCE.
when admissible as to state of accounts, i. 503.
GENERAL ISSUE,
in assumpsit, ii. 101
case, ii. 300.
in trover, iii. 1165.
evidence under in trespass, iii. 1117, 1118.
not guilty, evidence under plea of in action on the case, ii. 300.
right of common not admissible under, ii. 318.
in trespass, right of common not evidence under, ii. 319.
in trover, evidence under, iii. 1165.
plea of in action on a policy, iii. 885.
fraud, effect of in case of policy, ib.
properly pleaded by assignees of bankrupt, when, ii. 169.
proof in an action for a malicious prosecution, ii. 682.
evidence under for obstructing a right of way, iii. 1259.
in case of slander and libel, evidence under plea of, ii. 638.
not abolished by new rules, app. ii. iii. 1432. facts which might have been pleaded in trespass not evidence under, iii. 1122 GENERALITY of pleading allowed by the law, i. 3 GENTOOS,
how sworn, i. 21, 22.
GIFT,
oral, of chattel, iii. 1148.
GIVING TIME. See Surety. to a principal, effect of, iii. 1064.
GLANVILLE mentions the trial by jury, i. 7.
GOODS. See Variance—Picture.
insured, proof of interest in, iii. 871. acquired after bankruptcy, property in, ii. 182.
GOODS BARGAINED AND SOLD, iii. 1201.
proof in action for, iii. 1203.
GOODS AND CHATTELS,
a bond not included under, app. ii. iii. 1431.
GOODS DISTRAINED,
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 158.
GOODS SOLD AND DELIVERED,
indeb. assump. for, when maintainable in case of special agreement, ii. 71. See Assumpsit.
contract, iii. 1202.
express, ib.
implied, ib.
by an agent, ib.
waiver of tort, iii. 1203
special contract, ib.
indebitatus lies where the credit has expired, iii. 1204.

GOODS SOLD AND DELIVERED—continued.
proof of delivery, iii. 1206.
to a carrier, ib.
by entry of deceased agent, iii. 1207.
fixtures, price of cannot be recovered when described as goods, ib.
value, ib.
evidence in reduction of value, when admissible, iii. 1209, 1210.
general rule, iii. 1210.
notice of disputing the value, ib.
value in case of warranty, ib.
notice in case of warranty, ib.
part delivery of articles ordered jointly, ib. and see Vendor and Vendee.
defence, illegality. See Vendor and Vendee. variance. See tit. Variance. neglect on part of the vendor to insure the goods, an answer to the action, iii. 1216.
illegality of contract a defence to the action, iii. 1216, 1217.
plaintiff may recover on general count, when, iii. 1204.
notwithstanding special contract, when the time of credit has expired, ib.
delivery of the goods, proof of, iii. 1205.
action for, iii. 1202.

GOODS SOLD,
reputed ownership of, ii. 157.

GOODS, WARES, AND MERCHANDIZES, what are, within the statute of frauds, ii. 486, 487.
and the stat. 9 G. 4, c. 14, s. 7, ii. 487.

GOSPEL. See Oath—Perjury.

GOVERNMENT, acts of, how proved. See Gazette.

GRACE,
days of, when allowed, ii. 222.

GRAND ASSIZE,
introduction of trial by the, i. 11.

GRAND JURY,
communication to, not revealable, ii. 324.
evidence given before, revealable when, ib.

GRANT,
of a close imports a grant of the whole, iii. 1125.
right of common may be severed by, when, ii. 318.
title by, when presumed, iii. 904.
of lights, presumption of, iii. 1295.
not presumable against the public from 20 years' use, iii. 1253.
of land with common appurtenant, what it passes, ii. 314.
presumption of, how rebutted, iii. 912. effect of non-user on indictment for a nuisance, iii. 1254.
of easement, provisions of the stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, as to claim by, iii. 919.
of mines, effect of, app. ii. iii. 1432.

GRANTEE,
cannot enter or maintain ejectment, when, iii. 979.

GREAT SEAL,
allegation and proof, ii. 190.

GROUND OF DECISION,
not to be collected by inference or argument, i. 293.

GROWING CROPS
may be considered as chattels, when, i. 482, 483.
GUARANTEE,
what amounts to, ii. 483.
death a revocation of, ii. 511.
GUARANTY,
proof of contract, ii. 508.
of notice of acceptance, ii. 511.
of non-payment of bill, ib.
of compliance with conditions, ib.
nature of the contract, ii. 509, 510.
when continuing, ib.
discharged, when, ii. 511.
defeated by fraud, when, ib.
declaration of party guaranteed not evidence against party who guarantees, iii. 1063.
for goods to be paid for by bill, when entitled to notice of dishonour, ii. 226.
against contingent damages not within Statute of Bankruptcy as a mutual credit, iii. 994.
damages in action for breach of, appointment, iii. 1433
what amounts to, ib.
when continuing, ib. 1434
GUARDIAN,
in socage, proof of title, ii. 410.
consent of, to the marriage of a minor, ii. 704.
answer of, not evidence against an infant, i. 333.
cannot release the agent in an action for a tort against the ward, iii. 967.
GUARDIAN OF POOR,
action against, iii. 751.
action against under stat. 5 & 6, c. 139, s. 7, 752 GUERNSEY,
register of baptisms of, inadmissible, i. 214 HABEAS CORPUS ad subjiciendum, i. 81 provisions of stat. 11 G. 3, c. 102, ib.
application for the writ, ib.
must be accompanied by an affidavit, ib. evidence of. See Sheriff. to bring up the body of a prisoner to testify, when granted, i. 81.
See tit. Sheriff, ii. 513.
HALF BLOOD,
provisions as to, by 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 106, iii. 883.
HANDWRITING,
proof of handwriting, ii. 513.
by knowledge of general character, ib.
grounds of belief, ii. 512.
knowledge of superscription of letters at post-office, ii. 514.
of writing after commencement of action, ii. 515.
comparison of hands, ib.
general rule, ib.
former meaning of the terms, ib.
Algernon Sydney's case, ib.
Seven Bishops' case, ib. reason of the rule, ii. 516.

HANDWRITING—continued.
not satisfactory, ii. 516.
in what cases admissible, ib.
evidence by post-office inspectors as to imitated characters, ii. 518.
knowledge of by witness to prove, app. ii. iii. 1435.
HAWKER AND PEDLAR, proof of licence. See Penal Action.
HAYRICK,
negligent forming of, iii. 734.
HEADBOROUGH, protection of. See Justices.
HEARSAY,
in general is not evidence, i. 25. 27. 34. 36. 39, 40.
mere hearsay, why inadmissible, i. 25.
general rule as to its exclusion, ib.
cases to which the objection does not apply, i. 27, 28. 42.
when part of res gestæ, i. 34, 35.
when admissible, ib.
may be evidence for particular purposes, i. 64.
the rule does not exclude admissions by a party, i. 34 evidence for introductory purposes, i. 64.
objection to, does not exclude admissions by a party, i. 34. 59. 61.
declarations made against the interest of the party, ib.
in case of reputation, i. 27, 28.
traditionary declarations, i. 30, 31. 181. 184.
depositions by deceased witnesses in a former suit, i. 42.
examination as to, i. 181.
examination as to, as secondary evidence, ib. declarations by holders of bills. See Declaration—Bill of Exchange.
HEDGE. See Fence.
HEIR,
proof of heirship, ii. 409. 411. 412. 518.
course of descent noticed by the law, when, ii. 518.
when to be proved, ib.
foreign laws of Christian countries are adopted by the law of England, ii. 519.
consequences not adopted, ib.
instances, ib.
child born of unmarried parents in Scotland who afterwards intermarry, ib.
covenant against infant heir, ib.
proof of vesting of reversion in defendant, ib.
proof on issue on riens per discent, ib.
under the stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 5, s. 6, ii. 520. ejectment by. See Ejectment.
proof of title to copyhold, ib.
possession by, when presumed, iii. 898.
to what fixtures entitled, iii. 1248.
entry by, does not bar the right, when, ii. 402.
may recover on a demise laid on the day of the ancestor's death, ii. 431.
in tail, bound by sale of trees by tenant in tail, iii. 1118.
takes by descent and not devise, when, ii. 519.
customary proof of title by, ii. 335.
not estopped from questioning the deed of his ancestor, when, app. ii. iii. 1435.

HEIRLESS, possession by not presumed to entitle lord to land to claim by the curtesy, iii. 828.

HERALDS' BOOKS,
of pedigrees inadmissible, i. 249.
minute-books of visitations, ib.
admissibility of, iii. 842.

HERIOT,
avowry for variance from, i. 749.
proof of being due by custom, ii. 362, 363.

HIGHWAY. See Road. indictment against a parish, ii. 521.
particulars of proof, ib.
variance in description, ib.
proof of being a public highway, ib.
stat. 13 Ch. 2, c. 78, s. 19, ib. effect of order of [illegible], ii. 522.
extent of highway and ditches, ii. 523.
presumption of dedication of highway, ib.
enjoyment by the public, ib.
manner of enjoyment, ib.
repairs, ii. 524.
length of enjoyment, ii. 525. reputation, ii. 526.
against an individual, &c. ib.
prescriptive obligation, ii. 527.
to repair particular road, ib.
to repair all roads, &c. ib.
[illegible], ib.
[illegible], ib.
obligation by reason of inclosure, ii. 528.
ground of, ib.
when it ceases, ib.
defence by a parish, ib.
on plea of not guilty, ib.
by an inferior district, ib.
by an individual, ib.
indictment for obstructing a highway, ii. 528, 529.
acquittal on former indictment, ib.
competency, ib.
provisions of the Highway Act, as to, ii. 530.
acquittal on indictment for non-repair of, effect of, i. 282.
conviction, effect of, ib.
verdict on indictment for non-repair of, evidence when, i. 223, 264.
nuisance to, by allowing house to be ruinous, iii. 748.
commissioners of, cannot maintain ejectment for land adjoining the highway, ii. 530.
road made by private person to be deemed a public highway, when, ii. 526.
proof of, app. ii. iii. 1426.
diversion of, ib.
completion of, ib. 1427.
ratione tenuræ, liability, ib.
rate, ib.
turnpike, jurisdiction of special sessions as to, ib.

HIGHWAY—continued.
competency, app. ii. iii.. 1438.
action for calls, ib.

HIGHWAY ACT,
provisions of, as to competency, ii. 530.

HIRER OF CARRIAGE,
whether liable for nuisance by driver of, iii. 737.

HIRING AND SERVICE,
proof of, iii. 998.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
fact of hiring to be inferred by the Court below, iii. 1000.
of servants, custom as to, when evidence, ii. 362.

HISTORIAN,
statement by, not admissible, app. ii. iii. 1518.

HISTORY,
books of public, admissibility of, i. 250.

HISTORIES,
not admissible to prove particular facts, i. 250, 251.
otherwise as to fact of public notoriety, ib.

HOLDER,
of negotiable security, admission by, ii. 33, 34.
admission by, effect of, ii. 33.
of bill obtained by fraud, proof by, ii. 220

HOLDERS OF BILLS,
declarations by, ii. 260

HOLDING OVER,
amounts to a trespass, when, iii. 1202

HOMICIDE,
proof as to locality, ii. 341.
See Murder.

HONORARY ENGAGEMENT. See Interested Witness.

HORSE,
unsoundness of, iii. 1242.
warranty of, action on, iii. 1240.

HORSES,
toll on, ii. 85.
attending cattle returning from pasture, exemption as to, ib

HOUND,
not within the stat. 5 Ann. c. 14, ii. 500.

HOUSE. See Arson—Burglary—Dwelling-house. may be recovered under the description of land, ii. 430.
nuisance to, iii. 741.
what is within the statute 57 Geo. 3, c. 19, ii. 533.
occupier of, negligence by, iii. 734.
ruinous adjoining highway, nuisance to, iii. 748.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE,
reputed ownership of, ii. 157.
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 155.

HOUSEHOLDER,
who is, app. ii. iii. 1438.
HOUSE OF COMMONS,
journals of, i. 235.
HOUSE OF LORDS,
journals of, i. 235.
judgment of, how proved, ib.
journals of, what they prove, ib.
address to the king, and his answer, ib.
existence of differences with a foreign power, ib.
not admitted to prove the existence of a plot, ib.
disallowance of peerage by, ib.
journals of, provable by a copy, ib.
HUE AND CRY,
description of, ii. 604.
law as to, ib.
HUMAN TESTIMONY,
general character of, i. 552.
HUME,
his doctrine on the subject of miracles, i. 555.
HUNDRED,
action against under the stat. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 31, ii. 530.
particulars of proof, ii. 531.
compliance with the requisites of the act, ib.
statement before justices, ii. 532.
submission to examination, ib.
recognizances, ib.
felonious demolition, &c. ib.
proof of beginning to demolish, ii. 533. dwelling-house, ib.
proof of ownership, ib.
possession, primâ facie evidence of, ib.
ownership as trustee, ib.
commencement of action, ii. 534.
competency, ib.
proof of demolition in action against, app. ii. iii. 1438.
HUSBAND AND WIFE, action by husband and wife, ii. 534.
wife must be joined, when, ib.
may be joined, when, ii. 535.
must not be joined, when, ib.
evidence by, under general issue, ib.
unnecessary to prove the marriage, ib.
consequential damages, ib.
by the husband alone, ii. 535, 536.
in respect of what injuries maintainable, ib.
evidence in aggravation, ii. 536.
must prove the marriage, ib.
for services of the wife, ib.
no defence that wife has a former husband still living, ib.
by the wife alone, ii. 536.
coverture to be pleaded in abatement, ii. 537.
but cause of action may be disproved by proof that the husband is entitled, ib.

HUSBAND AND WIFE—continued.
such evidence rebutted by proof of civil death of husband, &c. ii. 537.
action against husband and wife, ii. 538.
presumptive proof of marriage, ib.
in respect of wife's previous contract, ib. against the husband alone, ii. 538, 539.
act of wife, when binding, ib.
for goods supplied to the wife, ii. 539.
during cohabitation, ib.
liability, presumptive only, ib.
credit given to wife alone, ib.
where the husband has turned the wife out of doors, ii. 540.
separation by mutual consent, ii. 541.
proof that the goods supplied were necessaries, ii. 543.
separation by act of law, ii. 544. defence by the husband, ii. 544, 545.
elopement, ii. 545.
adultery, ii. 545. 547.
notice to plaintiff not material, ii. 545.
return of wife after elopement, ib.
separate maintenance, ii. 546.
adequacy of a question of fact, ib.
proof of deed unnecessary, ib.
execution of deed without proof of payment insufficient, ib.
proof that the wife has adequate funds, ib.
proof in negation of marriage no defence, ib.
secus, in case of separation, ib.
husband is not liable to maintain wife's children by former husband, ib.
liable on promise implied from adoption, &c. ib.
against the wife alone, ii. 547.
coverture, when it must be pleaded in abatement, ib.
where evidence under general issue, ib.
evidence in answer to coverture, ib.
that the husband has abjured the realm, ib.
temporary absence insufficient, ib.
indictment against husband and wife, ii. 548.
when indictable jointly, ii. 548, 549. wife to be acquitted on indictment of felony, ii. 548.
except in case of homicide, ib.
treason and misdemeanor, ib.
reason of the rule, ii. 548, 549.
crime committed by wife in absence of husband, ii. 549.
may be convicted as principal, the husband as accessory, ib.
not guilty in receiving the husband after treason or felony committed by him, ib.
competency,
cannot be witnesses for or against each other, ib.
even by agreement, ii. 550.
where one of them is a party, ib.
in case of bigamy, ib.
in case of conspiracy, ib.
when interested in the result, ib.
general rule, ib.
in case of bankruptcy of husband, ib.
action as to separate estate of wife, ib.

HUSBAND AND WIFE—continued.
interest must be vested, ii. 551.
where the husband must have answered, ib.
where neither party is interested, ib.
general rule, ib.
neither can criminate the other, ib.
position in the case of R. v. Cliviger, ib.
rule as to examination in a collateral proceeding, ib.
wife, de facto, not within this rule, ib.
indictment for forcible abduction and marriage, ib.
Qu. whether she be competent to give evidence for him, ib.
declarations in nature of facts, ii. 553.
declaration by the wife, as agent, &c. ib.
witness, ex necessitate, when, ib. 554.
on charge against the husband, ib.
in case of bastardy, ib. trover, by, iii. 1163. See Trover.
proof of title in ejectment, ii. 412.
joint demise by, in ejectment by virtue of a power of attorney executed by both, is a variance, ii. 431.
variance in allegation as to contract with, i. 480.
demise by, in ejectment, ii. 412.
action on account with wife when sole, ii. 100.
proof of conversion in action against, iii. 1163.
action by husband against trustees of wife, app. ii. iii. 1438.
right of husband to the property of the wife, ib.
interest of wife by survivorship, ib. 1439.
payment to the wife, effect of, ib.
right of husband to restrain the person of the wife, ib.
action against both, proof in, ib.
against the husband, ib.
coverture, proof of, ib. 1440.
proof under plea of, ib.
joint offences by, ib. 1440, 1441.
separation of, ib. 1441.

HUSBAND,
liability of, for goods supplied to wife living apart, ii. 71.
liability of, for funeral expenses of wife, ib.
when barred by act of wife as agent, iii. 976. liability of, in detinue of goods delivered by himself and wife, ii. 387.
testimony of, excluded on grounds of policy, when, i. 70.
answer of, in equity, not evidence against the wife, i. 333.
although she join, ib.
judgment in ejectment against the wife, whether evidence against the husband, ii. 434, 435.
his authority to wife to indorse a bill, when presumed, ii. 217. proof of authority to the wife, ii. 43.

HYPOTHESIS,
consistency of facts with, i. 573.

IDEM SONANS,
name is not a variance, ii. 708.
several names may be used indifferently, when, ii. 709.
of peer, what correct, ib.
party when estopped, as to, ib.

IDENTITY,
of cause of action, i. 262.
test of, ib.
of indorser, proof of, ii. 219.
of payee of bill, proof of, ii. 210.
of obligor, &c. where proof of handwriting is given, i. 379, 380.
of payee of bill, ii. 210.
blot upon bill of exchange, effect of, ii. 211.
of bond, proof of, ii. 269.
proof of, in action for malicious prosecution, ii. 677.

IDIOT. See Lunatic—Will.

IGNORANCE,
of law, does not excuse, ii. 88. 239, iii. 728.
of facts, when it saves forfeiture, ii. 96. waiver, ii. 239.
no excuse for a breach of the law, ii. 575.

ILLEGAL AGREEMENT,
interest arising from does not incapacitate, i. 167.

ILLEGALITY,
of note, cotemporary letter from payee to, when evidence of, ii. 246.
will not be presumed, ii. 294. cannot be objected where the law is devised for the protection of the party, ii. 94.
is a bar where the act is immoral, ib.
or contrary to public policy, ib.
effect of, where the agreement remains executory, ib.
when the agreement is grossly immoral, ib.
where the money is in hands of a stakeholder, ii. 95.
of an agent, ib.
of transaction, when a bar to an action, ii. 93.
not where plaintiff is not in pari delicto, ii. 94.
when it excludes right of action, iii. 1033.
where sheriff has permitted a prisoner to go at large, ib.
of agreement, in case of bastardy, ii. 91.
of bond must be pleaded, &c. ii. 270.
of contract, bars the action, ii. 77.
of consideration,
procuring of pardon for an attainted felon, ii. 94.
no defence for an agent, ii. 95.
for bill, effect of, ii. 246.
indorsee when affected by, ib.
illegal insurance, ii. 95, 96.
money lent to obtain illegal liberation and ransom, ii. 247.
sale of spirituous liquors, ib.
fraudulent preference, ib.
illegal binding of an apprentice for not inserting premium, ib.
note given for amount of penalties, legal when, ib.
compounding of misdemeanor, ib. to procure discharge of receiver committed by Court of Chancery, ii. 247, 248.
to secure composition for debt on consideration of suing out commission, ib.
of contract, a defence to an action on, iii. 1216, 1217.

ILLEGALITY—continued.
illegal voyage, iii. 1217.
bricks under statutable size, ib.
libellous prints, ib.
dress sold for purpose of prostitution, ib.
drugs sold to be used in brewery, ib.
illegal race, ib.
books printed without the printer's name, ib.
newspapers published without affidavit lodged, ib. provisions supplied by innkeeper at an election after teste of writ, ib.
sale of command of ship, ib.
transfer of ship, not reciting certificate, ib.
sale in contravention of law designed for the protection of the public, iii. 1218.
stockjobbing, ii. 77.
misconduct on part of sheriff's officer, ii. 78.
insurance, ib.
of contract by tenant not to occupy a pew, iii. 865.
of profits, a bar to an action for lessening them, ii. 300.
violation of law of foreign country, ii. 301.
of purpose for which premises are let, a defence to an action for use and occupation, iii. 1184.
of wager, iii. 1235.
effect of substituting new security, ii. 246, 247.
effect of, ii. 63.
excludes action, when, ii. 77.
procuring place, ii. 94.
effect of in assumpsit, ii. 103.
of bill of exchange, ii. 245.
2 & 3 Vict. c. 37, provisions as to, ii. 246.
parole evidence admissible to prove, iii. 766.
in trading without licence, iii. 875. of purpose, a defence to an action for use and occupation, iii. 1185.
a defence when, in an action for work and labour, iii. 1310.
a defence when, in actions relating to the sale of goods, iii. 1217.
apprehension of parties as to, is immaterial, iii. 1817.
of covenant, ii. 351.
of wager, iii. 1233.

IMMEDIATE TESTIMONY,
when admissible, i. 16.

IMMORAL
publication, no action lies for piracy of, iii. 938.

IMMORALITY,
of clerk, how tried, iii. 944.

IMPLIED CONTRACT,
evidence of, ii. 58.

IMPLIED PROMISE. See Assumpsit, ii. 58.

IMPOSSIBILITY
of performance, when it discharges, ii. 104.

IMPRISONMENT. See False Imprisonment, iii. 1112. in action for, against commissioners of bankrupt, what amounts to, ii. 180.

IMPRISONMENT—continued. caused by influencing the fears of another, whether trespass lies for, iii. 1109.

IMPOUNDED CATTLE, provision of stat. 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 59, app. ii. iii. 1400.

IMPROPRIATION,
evidence to prove, i. 242.

IMPROPRIATOR,
proof of title, iii. 1083.

IMPROVEMENT,
patent for, iii. 939.
does not amount to breach of covenant, when, ii. 348.

INADEQUACY OF PRICE, effect of in respect of conveyance, ii. 494. See Fraudulent Conveyance.

INCITEMENT,
what degree of essential to make a party an accessory before, &c. ii. 9.

INCLOSURE,
from common, effect of, ii. 316.
continuance of, evidence of licence, ib.
of common for twenty years, effect of, ib.
of waste by tenant, presumption as to, ii. 696.
obligation to repair by reason of, ii. 528.
extinguishment of road by act of, app. ii. iii. 1441.
proof of commissioner's qualification, ib.
effect of as to rights of common, ib.

INCLOSURE ACT,
commissioners under, when liable for advances, iii. 1170.
right under presumption as to soil in waste adjoining, iii. 1125.

INCOMPETENCY,
to testify, different kinds of, i. 92.
time of objecting to, ib.
from turpitude, i. 94. See Infamy.
from crime, effect of, i. 102. of witness from interest, i. 103. See Interested Witness. of witness, effect of as to the admissibility of secondary evidence i. 134.

INCONSISTENCY of testimony, effect of, i. 552.

INCONVENIENCE,
the occasioning not actionable, iii. 742.

INCORPOREAL RIGHT,
proof of, iii. 743.
presumptive evidence of grant of, iii. 911.

INCUMBENT,
title of to the freehold of the church, iii. 866.

INDEBITATUS ASSUMPSIT. See Assumpsit. on what founded, ii. 69.
request when presumed, ib.

INDEBITATUS ASSUMPSIT—continued.
when maintainable in case of special agreement, ii. 72, 73.
does not lie on a collateral undertaking, ii. 71.
count in, will comprehend many claims, ii. 73.
does not lie on an acceptance, ii. 263.
lies only on some duty, ib.
upon, ii. 71.
maintainable, when, ib.

INDEMNITY,
statutes which confer, do not render parties incompetent, ii. 11, 12.
promise of, when binding, ii. 76, 77.
when implied, iii. 1063.
of one who convicts another, effect of as to competency, ii. 271.
action on, when maintainable, ii. 75, 76.
implied, when, ii. 76.
promise to indemnify, when valid, ib.
acts of, app. ii. iii. 1442.

INDENTURES
of apprenticeship, proof of, iii. 1001.

INDEPENDENCY
of coincident circumstance, consideration of, i. 567.

INDEPENDENT
circumstances, coincidence of effect of, i. 568.

INDIA,
examination of witnesses resident in, i. 321.

INDICTMENT,
proof of, i. 252.
against several, is several as to each, ii. 13.
for an assault, evidence on, ii. 52.

INDIRECT EVIDENCE,
what, i. 15.
admissibility of, i. 47.
general rule as to the admissibility of collateral facts, i. 56.

INDORSEE,
proofs by, in action against drawer, ii. 234.
of note, competent to prove usury, ii. 10, 11. cannot recover costs against acceptor, when, ii. 221.

INDORSEMENT,
allegation of, variance from, ii. 217.
evidence of transfer of bill, ib.
special, effect of, ii. 218.
in blank, ib.
of bill, proof of, ii. 233.
of bill after it is due, effect of, ii. 253.
presumptive proof of, ii. 219.
of payment on bond, effect of, ii. 270.
presumptive evidence of, ii. 237.
on bond, effect, iii. 824.

INDORSER,
proof of identity of, ii. 219.
who pays part of bill may recover against acceptor as for money paid, ii. 217.

INDORSER—continued.
of bill of exchange considered as a new drawer, when, ii. 233.
declaration by inadmissible, when, ii. 248.
of a dishonoured note to indemnify the holder, effect of, ii. 479.

INDUCEMENT,
variance in matter of, i. 450, 451.
when admitted by plea under new rules, iii. 1017.

INDUCTION,
proof of, iii. 942.
proof of as part of a rector's title, ii. 427.

INFAMY,
incompetency from, i. 16. 94.
nature of the crime, i. 94, 95, 96.
infamous crime, ib.
treason, ib.
felony, ib.
offences which do not disqualify, i. 96.
proof of the conviction, ib.
competency, how restored, i. 97. 102.
doctrine of clerical purgation, i. 97.
admission to clergy, ib.
stat. 4 Hen. 7, c. 13, ib.
18 Eliz. c. 7, ib.
4 G. 1, c. 11, i. 98.
19 G. 3, c. 74, s. 3, i. 99.
effect of fine, &c. instead of burning in the hand, ib.
pardon, i. 99, 100.
under great seal, ib.
by act of parliament, ib.
pardon restores competency, when, ib.
general pardon, i. 101.
pardon under the king's sign manual, ib.
provisions of the stat. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 13, ib.
9 G. 4, c. 32, s. 3, ib.
one who returns from transportation before the expiration of his term, i. 102.
reversal of judgment, ib.
proof of, ib.
effect of disability, ib.

INFANCY,
onus probandi, i. 420.
of drawer, no defence to acceptor, ii. 241.
incompetency from, app. i. 594.

INFANT,
non-age, how tried, ii. 555.
infancy, where evidence in bar, ib.
proof in reply to infancy, ii. 556.
ratification on attaining his age, ib.
necessaries, ii. 557.
criminal liability, ii. 558.
his capacity matter of proof, ib.
competency of, ib.
examination of as to competency, ib.

INFANT—continued.
partner, notice by, necessary when of age, iii. 812.
for want of discretion, not a principal, when, ii. 195. 198.
indorsement of bill by, ii. 217.
submission by to an arbitrator, not binding, ii. 117.
account stated by, ii. 98.
fiat against, ii. 122.
liability of, app. ii. iii. 1442.
ratification by, ib.
necessaries, what are, ib.
father's liability, ib. 1443.
abduction of, ib.

INFERIOR COURT,
proof of judgment of, i. 303.
effect of judgment of, i. 273. 277.

INFERIOR TRADESMAN,
proof of being, ii. 504.

INFERIORITY of thing made or sold, proof of, when admissible, iii. 1207.

INFIDEL. See Witness.

INFLUENCE,
on mind of witness, to be estimated by the jury, i. 524.
degree and effect of to be weighed by the jury, i. 540.

INFORMATION
before magistrate, proof of loss of, i. 391.

INFORMER,
competency of, i. 157.
confidential communication by, to a magistrate, cannot be disclosed in evidence, ii. 324.
an incompetent witness when, under the game laws, ii. 507.

INHABITANT. See Rate. of parish, how far a party in a settlement case, iii. 798.
of county, obligation to repair bridges, ii. 274.
of county, when competent on indictment for non-repair of bridge, ii. 275.
competency of, i. 157.
of place, common in right of inhabitancy, ii. 316.
meaning of the term, app. ii. iii. 1444.

INHABITANTS of parishes, &c. competency of, iii. 798.

INJURIA, DE,
proof on replication of, iii. 1131.

INJURIOUS
intention, when essential to the right of action, ii. 574.

INNKEEPER,
rule of law as to his liability, ii. 559.
proof in action by guest for loss of goods, ii. 560.
reception of plaintiff as a guest, ib.

INNKEEPER—continued.
loss and value of the goods, ii. 560.
landlord how discharged, ib.
negligence on the part of the guest, ii. 561.
lien of innkeeper, ii. 561. 648.
when a defence, ii. 561.
liability of, app. ii. iii. 1444.
refusal of guest by, ib.

INNOCENCE,
presumption of, iii. 934.

INNUENDO,
evidence to prove, ii. 628.
proof of in case of libel, ib.

IN PARI DELICTO, &c. effect of the maxim, ii. 96.

INQUEST OF OFFICE. See Inquisition, i. 307.

INQUIRY, WRIT OF. See Writ of Inquiry.
in action for a malicious prosecution, ii. 686.
unnecessary for the plaintiff to give any evidence, ib.

INQUISITIONES NOVARUM, i. 239.
admissibility of, ib.

INQUISITION,
insufficiency of, app. i. 610.
not taken under legal authority, is inadmissible, i. 310.

INQUISITIONS,
admissibility of, i. 307, 308.
when conclusive, ib.
by a coroner, i. 281. 307.
inquisitio post mortem, iii. 843.
inquisition of lunacy, i. 291.
nature of, i. 291. 307.
admissibility of, ib.
authority of inquisitions, ib.
valor beneficiorum, i. 291.
inquisition without legal authority, i. 291. 309.
out of the exchequer, and return, i. 238.
by sheriff under fi. fa. not evidence, i. 310.
are evidence to prove a pedigree, iii. 843.
under commission from the crown, effect of, i. 236. 237. 239. 309.
proof of, ib.
made by order of House of Commons as to officers, admissibility of, i. 237, 238.
verdict on inquisition to ascertain property, not admissible in action against a sheriff for a false return, iii. 1019.
public, proof of commission, &c. i. 238. 309, 310.

INQUISITIO POST MORTEM, admissible, although it be voidable, iii. 843.

IN REM, judgments operating in rem are not excluded by the right of cross-examination, i. 25, 26.
judgment in rem, when conclusive, i. 285, 286.

INROLMENT,
proof by, i. 410.
under stat. 27 H. 8, ib.
proof of, on whom incumbent, i. 370.
proof by, app. i. 622.

INSANITY,
proof of existence of, iii. 1283.
of plaintiff, a justification when for confining him, iii. 1140.

INSCRIPTIONS
on rings, &c. admissible to prove a pedigree, iii. 842.

INSOLVENCY,
proof of notice of, ii. 167.
meaning of, under Bankrupt Act, ii. 173. of husband, defeats the settlement, when, ii. 498.

INSOLVENT,
suit by assignees of, ii. 561.
copies of proceedings made evidence, ii. 562. discharge of insolvent, ii. 563.
proof of, by schedule, ib.
defence by, ii. 564.
identity of debt a fact for the jury, ib.
evidence of proceedings under the statutes of, ib.
omission by, of debt in schedule, evidence against him, ii. 25.
not liable to share of joint debt, ii. 74.
who is, app. ii. iii. 1444.
action by assignees of, ib. 1445.
assignment of estate of, ib.
fraudulent assignment by, ib. 1446.
liability of, ib. 1447.

INSOLVENT COURT,
action for business in, ii. 108.

INSPECTION,
general rule that a party shall not be compelled to produce evidence against himself, ii. 565.
secus, where plaintiff an actual party, or party interested, ii. 566.
where action is brought by a sailor, ib.
where a party holds as a trustee, ib.
oyer of specialty, ib.
when granted, ib.
of instrument to be stamped, ib.
or copy taken, ib.
of what documents, ii. 567.
when refused, ii. 568.
suggestion of forgery, ib.
where each party has his own part, ib.
party not compellable to discover evidence, ib.
of court-rolls and corporation books, ib.
public books, ii. 574.
parish books, ib.
rolls of manor, ii. 569.
bank books, ii. 570.
East India Company's books, ib.
in criminal cases, not allowed, ii. 571.

INSPECTION—continued.
allowed in cases of quo warranto, when, ii. 571.
not allowed to enable a defendant to plead in abatement, ib.
right of corporator, iii. 945.
of thing sold, right of, iii. 1215.
of overseers' accounts, right of under 17 Geo. 2, iii. 752.
corporator entitled to, when, iii. 945. of bulk, where a thing is sold by sample, right of, iii. 1215.
denial of, effect of, ib.
of document, when granted, app. ii. iii. 1148.

INSPECTOR, of franks at post-office, evidence of, when admissible, ii. 518.
of franks, evidence of opinion of, ii. 517.

INSPEXIMUS,
evidence of, i. 239.
of bishop, custody of, ib.
secretum abbatis, ib.

INSTANT. See Time, iii. 1079.
Lord Coke's learning of, ib.

INSTITUTION,
proof of, as part of rector's title, ii. 427, iii. 842. 942.

INSTRUMENTS OF EVIDENCE, i. 1. 77.
what they are in general, ib.
oral witnesses, ib.
written documents, ib.
written instruments, i. 223.
different kinds of, ib.
of a public or private, or mixed nature, ib.
judicial or not judicial, ib.
of record or not of record, ib.
private writings, i. 343.
when admissible, ib.
against a party, ib.
proof by, when essential, ib.
under seal, ib.
effect of, ib.
estoppel by, ib.
waiver of estoppel, i. 344.
who are bound by an estoppel, i. 345.
entries by third persons, ib.
when admissible, i. 346.
declarations accompanying acts, i. 351.
declarations by a bankrupt absenting himself, ib.
entries or declarations against the interest of the party, i. 355.
obligor's indorsement of receipt of interest, i. 356.
entries by receivers and stewards, i. 357.
by agents, in course of professional business, i. 359.
by attornies, i. 362, 363.
general principle, i. 348.
entry by a rector, i. 364.
declaration by tenants, i. 365.
admissibility of title deeds, i. 354.
surveys and maps, ib.

INSTRUMENTS OF EVIDENCE—continued.
proof of a private instrument, i. 368.
production, ib.
erasure, i. 369.
by an attesting witness, i. 370.
instrument, if attested, must be proved by the attesting witness, ib.
proof of the sealing of a deed, i. 372.
of the execution of an instrument under some special authority, ib.
of a certificate under the stat. 8 & 9 W. 3, c. 30, ib. proof of delivery, i. 373.
by one of several witnesses, ib.
proof of identity of parties, i. 374.
proof where the witness denies his attestation, ib.
proof in excuse of the absence of the attesting witness, i. 375.
death, ib.
insanity, ib.
incompetency through infamy, ib.
through interest, i. 376.
that he cannot be found, ib.
that the name was introduced without the assent of the parties, i. 379.
secondary evidence, ib.
handwriting of the attesting witness, ib.
of one of several insufficient, ib.
where one of two cannot be found, and the other is interested, i. 381.
stat. 20 G. 3, c. 57, s. 38, as to deeds executed in India, i. 381.
deed thirty years old, ib.
admissible without proof, though the witness be living, i. 381, 382.
otherwise where suspicion of fraud arises, ib.
proof of custody of ancient documents, i. 383.
terriers, i. 384.
inspeximus, ib.
endowment by a bishop, ib.
rector's books, ib.
collector's accounts, ib.
receipts, i. 385.
ledger-book and chartulary of abbey, ib.
appropriation, ib.
proof where there are no attesting witnesses, i. 386.
in case of the loss of a deed, &c. ib.
evidence of search, ib.
proof of loss of counterpart, ib. of agreement for lease, i. 389. loss how proved, i. 387.
of libel, i. 398.
licence to trade, i. 390.
appointment to an office, ib.
evidence that the lost instrument was stamped, i. 393.
that the duty was paid in case of an apprentice deed, ib.
of execution, ib.
secondary evidence of contracts, ib.
by counterpart, ib.
by copy, i. 394.
abstract, ib.
parol evidence, ib.
proof of copy of letter entered by a deceased clerk, i. 396.

INSTRUMENTS OF EVIDENCE—continued.
entry in memorandum-book, i. 396.
not admissible as secondary evidence, ib.
may be used to refresh the memory, ib. instrument in possession of the adversary, i. 398 proof of possession, ib.
presumptive evidence of possession, ib.
proof of notice to produce, i. 400.
does not make document evidence unless it be called for, i. 403. party giving notice makes it evidence by calling for and inspecting it, ib. parol evidence of contents inadmissible till the adversary's case has been closed, ib.
notice, when necessary, ib.
trover for bill or note, ib.
trial for treason, ib.
where a witness served with a subpœna duces tecum has delivered the writing to the adversary, i. 404.
in case of duplicate original, ib.
where a counterpart recites the original, i. 405.
such counterpart may be used against the party who executed it, ib.
but not against a third person, i. 405.
proof of execution where the instrument is produced, ib.
where unnecessary, i. 406, 407.
where the instrument is ancient without signature or seals, i. 407.
where the party producing it takes a beneficial interest under it, i. 406, 407. evidence that the instrument was duly stamped, i. 407, 408.
presumptive evidence, ib.
secondary evidence where the instrument is in custody of the Court of Chancery, i. 409.
proof by admission, &c. ib.
by virtue of rule of court, ib.
admission by the adversary, i. 409, 410.
proof of, by enrolment, i. 410.
enrolment when evidence, ib.
stat. 10 Ann. c. 18, s. 3, as to enrolment, i. 412.
deed to lead the uses of a fine, i. 413.
proof of a recital in another deed, ib.
intrinsic objection to a deed not available, ib.
the whole of an instrument is to be read, i. 414. so is an instrument to which the instrument read refers, ib.
otherwise where the instrument is read to establish the incompetency of a witness, i. 416.
or where the books or other document contains matters unconnected with that given in evidence, ib.
or where the evidence is merely formal, ib.
credit due to the whole or part, to be judged of by the jury, ib.
private, proof of by case submitted to counsel, i. 397.
notice to produce, i. 91.
when insufficient, party need not produce it, ib.
in hands of third person, production of how enforced, i. 87. See Inspection.
judicial, kinds of, i. 252.

INSUFFICIENT SURETIES, iii. 1024. See Sheriff. evidence of insufficiency, ib.

INSURANCE,
illegal, money paid in furtherance of, ii. 95.
money paid by reason of, ib.
premiums paid for, ii. 93. action on policy of. See Policy.

INSURER. See Policy—Interest.

INTEGRITY,
of witness, consideration as to, i. 545.
of witnesses, observations on, ib.

INTENTION, ii. 571.
when a question of law, ii. 571, 572.
in criminal cases, ib.
general felonious intention a question of law, when, ib.
general intention to commit one felony applicable to another, ib.
particular intention, ib.
when a question of fact, ib.
general presumption as to the intention of the agent from his acts, ii. 573.
a conclusion from all the facts, when, ib.
difference in respect of intention between civil and criminal liability, ib.
primary and collateral intention, ib.
ground of presumptions as to, ii. 574.
fraudulent, evidence of, ii. 392.
presumption as to, ii. 52.
from conduct, i. 565.
of copyhold tenant in cutting down trees, a question for the jury, ii. 338.
in case of assault, is material, iii. 1112. 1119.
in case of burglary, ii. 276.
variance from allegation of, i. 477.
in case of libel, ib.
felonious, on charge of larceny, ii. 604.
to injure, proof of on charge of murder, ii. 713.
proof of, on an indictment for a malicious injury, ii. 692.
in an action on a policy, iii. 873.
to deviate, proof of in action on policy of insurance, ib.
to coin foreign money, whether an excuse for having implements in possession, ii. 311.
proof of, on indictment for forgery, ii. 467.
how far material in trespass, iii. 1106, 1107.
corrupt, proof of on indictment for perjury, iii. 860.
in case of bankruptcy, how far material, ii. 131, 132.
of a testator, evidence of not admissible to vary the terms of the will, iii. 761.
proof of when necessary, app. ii. iii. 1450.
what, essential to act of bankruptcy, ii. 131.
of tenant to apply trees, evidence of, ii. 337.
of tenant in removing goods, a question of fact, ii. 393.
when material in an action for libel, ii. 571.
when question of fact, ib.
when traversable, ib.
primary and collateral, ii. 573.
of testator, parol evidence as to, iii. 762.
concurrent of parties, parol evidence as to, iii. 767.

INTENTION—continued.
to injury, immaterial when, iii. 1107.
in trespass, when, ib.
in case of battery not essential to the action, iii. 1119.
in an action for assault, is material, iii. 1112.
restoration of competency,
stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, i. 122.
construction of this stat. i. 123.
modes in which a record operates as evidence, i. 124.
decisions on the st. ib.
in cases of custom, ib.
issue from equity, i. 125.
in the case of an agent, i. 125, 126.
in case of a guaranty, i. 127.
general result of the decisions, i. 128.
witness primâ facie liable to the plaintiff's claim, i. 129.
liability to contribute, ib.

INTEREST,
to disqualify a witness must be present and certain, i. 105.
stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, i. 107.
when part of petitioning creditor's debt, ii. 148.
may be given by way of damages when in an action of trover for a bill, ii. 576.
when allowed, app. ii. iii. 1450.

INTEREST OF WITNESS,
principle of the rule of exclusion, i. 16, 17, 18.
nature of to disqualify, i. 105.
must be a legal interest, ib.
must be direct and certain, ib.
may be in the result, or in the record, i. 103.
in the immediate result simply, i. 107.
may consist either in actual gain or loss, or right or liability, i. 107, 108.
in the result, or depending on some particular fact, i. 114.
in the case of an agent, i. 116.
interest in the record, i. 119.
magnitude of the interest, i. 129.
time and manner of acquiring the interest, i. 129.
neutral witness, i. 130.
admission of ex necessitate, i. 132. effect of the objection as to secondary evidence, i. 134.
objection, when to be taken, i. 135, 136, 137.
examination on voir dire, i. 135.
removal by evidence, i. 138.
inquiry as to contents of written instrument, not allowed, when, i. 136. interest discovered in course of cause, effect of, i. 137.
proper time for objecting, ib.
removal of interest, i. 138.
release, ib.
offer to release, i. 140.
surrender, offer of in ejectment, ib.
payment of legacy, i. 141.
recovery of the money, ib.
proof of the release, ib.
release by one of several, sufficient when, i. 142.
cannot be taken advantage of by plea puis darrein continuance, ib.
bail, competency how restored, i. 150.

INTEREST OF WITNESS—continued.
indemnity by third person does not render witness competent, i. 142.
accomplice, i. 143.
expectation of pardon, ib.
bribery, ib.
stat. 2 G. 2, c. 24, ib.
practice not to indict the accomplice, ib.
co-defendant, ib.
when competent for his associates, i. 145.
when not, ib.
co-trespasser in civil cases, ib.
competent for plaintiff, ib.
for defendant, ib.
co-trespasser joined as defendant, i. 147.
practice where made a defendant by mistake, ib.
not competent for plaintiff, i. 147, 148.
practice where there is no evidence against one of several, i. 147.
co-trespasser who lets judgment go by default, ib.
competent witness for co-defendant, ib.
but not for the plaintiff, ib.
agent, i. 148.
competency of ex necessitate, ib.
in what cases, i. 148, 149, 150. factor, i. 148.
entitled to per-centage for commission, ib.
action against principal for negligence of agent, i. 149.
incompetency of agent in such case, i. 149, 150.
bail,
incompetency of, i. 150.
practice when one who is bail is a material witness, ib.
corporator. see tit. Corporation.
costs, i. 150.
liability to renders witness incompetent, ib.
executors and trustees, when incompetent, i. 151. liability of prosecutor on removal by certiorari, &c. ib.
creditor,
when incompetent, i. 150.
criminal proceedings, i. 152.
party injured, in general competent, ib.
formerly held to be incompetent, ib. record of conviction not evidence for civil purposes, i. 153.
expectation of recovery of goods, ib.
of reward, i. 153, 154.
of claim to costs on removal by certiorari, i. 155.
motive, in all cases, to be judged of by the jury, ib.
where statute gives a specific remedy, ib.
prosecutions for forgery, ib.
executor,
competent to support testator's sanity, i. 156.
competent as a bare trustee, ib.
surety of administrator competent witness for defence, ib.
creditor competent to prove due administration, ib.
heir-at-law, competency of, i. 157.
informer, incompetency of, ib.
inhabitant, incompetent when liable to contribute, ib.
stat. 1 Anne, c. 18, s. 13, in case of bridges, ib.
8 G. 2, c. 16, s. 13, in case of action against the hundred, ib.

INTEREST OF WITNESS—continued.
7 & 8 G. 4, c. 31, s. 5, i. 158.
3 & 4 W. & M. c. 11, ib.
in settlement cases, ib.
stat. 54 G. 3, c. 170, s. 9, ib.
penalties given to the poor, ib.
stat. 27 G. 3, c. 29, ib.
3 & 4 W. & M. c. 11, ib.
highway, i. 159.
liability to be rated, ib.
3 & 4 Vict. c. 26, i. 159. 161.
insolvent, i. 162.
joint interest in subject-matter, ib.
distinction between an interest in the facts and an interest in the event, i. 163.
joint purchaser of annuity, ib.
purchaser of share under plaintiff, ib.
joint obligor of bond, ib.
co-contractor, i. 164, 165.
co-partner, ib.
co-part-owner, ib.
legatee, i. 167. See tit. Will.
parties in cause. See Parties. partners. See Partners. policy of insurance. See Policy.
prochein ami, i. 168.
prosecutors, i. 151, 152, 153. sheriff. See tit. Sheriff, i. 137. surety, i. 168. And see tit. Surety.
co-obligor of bond to the ordinary, i. 168.
trustee, i. 169. See tit. Executor—Will.
vendor and vendee, ib. See tit. Vendor and Vendee.
in action on bills, ii. 257. liability to costs, ii. 258.
on plea in abatement, ii. 4. inhabitant of county, ii. 275.
party bribed a competent witness, ii. 271.
in case of custom, ii. 364.
in case of custom which witness has acted under, iii. 948.
bail, incompetency of, ii. 119.
handwriting of, not admissible, when, i. 375.
witness a party entitled to present if the bishop omit, not competent in qu. imp., iii. 945.
joint contractor, i. 164.
must be direct and certain, app. i. 594, 595.
legal liability resulting from evidence disqualifies, when, ib. 595.
liability over, ib.
stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, effect of, ib.
time of objecting to, ib. 596.
release of, ib. 597.
incompetency from, of a sheriff's bailiff, ib.
incompetency of creditor, ib. 598.
in criminal proceedings, ib.
of a devisee, ib.
of an inhabitant, ib.
of one jointly interested, ib.
of a legatee, ib. 599.

INTEREST OF WITNESS—continued.
of an overseer, app. i. 599.
of a party, ib.
remainder-man, ib. 600.
trustee, ib.

INTEREST IN LAND,
amounts to a lease, when, ii. 473.
party having, notice to be taken by, when, iii. 728.

INTEREST OF MONEY, ii. 575.
when recoverable in assumpsit, ib.
evidence of contract to pay interest, ib.
written securities, ii. 576.
when not recoverable, ii. 577.
in actions of tort, ib.
not recoverable without contract, ii. 100.
when recoverable from the auctioneer, iii. 1194, 1195.
on bill of exchange recoverable without protest, ii. 232.
what recoverable in action on bill of exchange, ii. 240.
recoverable, though not stated in the particulars, ib.
of money had and received, not recoverable, ii. 82.
how calculated on foreign note, ii. 240, 241.
of money when recoverable on money lent, ii. 79.
stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, provisions of, ii. 575.

INTERPLEADER ACT, app. ii. iii. 1451. rules and orders under, to be entered of record, ii. 579.

INTERPRETER,
not allowed to divulge communication, when, ii. 320.

INTERROGATORIES. See Depositions.

INTOXICATION,
evidence under plea of non assumpsit, ii. 102, 103.
plea of, no defence, iii. 1279.

IN TRANSITU,
premium in, if not actually paid to the insurer, ii. 95.
money paid in course of illegal transaction may be stopped whilst in transitu, ib.

INTRINSIC OBJECTION
does not prevent the reading of a deed, i. 413.

INTRINSIC MATTER will not obviate an extrinsic objection to reading of deed, ib.

INTRODUCTORY MATTERS, evidence admissible as to, i. 503.

INVENTORY,
in Ecclesiastical Court, evidence of, ii. 448.
effect of, ib.

INVESTIGATION,
rude manner of in early times, i. 10, 11.
process, what essential to, i. 3.

INVESTIGATIVE PROCESS, i. 3.

INVOICE,
parol evidence of time of sale admissible when the invoice is silent, iii. 1197.

I O U,
effect of, ii. 98.

IRELAND,
included in the words "parts beyond the seas," app. ii. iii. 1451.
marriage in, by dissenting minister, ii. 703.

IRISH COMMISSION of bankruptcy, assignees may sue here under an, app. ii. iii. 1344.

IRREGULAR DISTRESS,
action for, ii. 389.

IRREGULAR JUDGMENT,
how it differs from an erroneous one, ii. 437.

IRREGULAR WRIT,
a commencement of action, iii. 1077.

IRREGULARITY,
of process, effect of on sale by sheriff, iii. 1035.
in distress for rent, effect of, iii. 1133.

IRRELEVANT FACTS,
not evidence, i. 430.

IRRELEVANT QUESTIONS. See Examination—Witness.

ISSUE,
what matters are admitted by the pleadings, i. 499.

ISSUE OUT OF CHANCERY, evidence when, i. 260.

JACTITATION SUIT,
sentence in, when admissible, i. 289.
on what founded, ib.
effect of judgment in, i. 267. 270, 271. 281.
sentence in, effect of as to marriage, ii. 706.

JAMAICA,
judgment in courts of, i. 271.

JEWS,
how sworn, i. 21.
marriage of, ii. 703.

JEWISH FESTIVAL,
notice of dishonour of bill on, ii. 227.

JEWISH MARRIAGE,
evidence of law of, ii. 459.

JOINDER,
of executors or administrators, ii. 439.
of counts by executors, ii. 443.
in replevin, iii. 969.
in action by husband and wife, ii. 534.

JOINT
cause of action must be proved in tort, ii. 298. damage from injury to several interests, ii. 297.

JOINT AND SEVERAL,
variance in proof, i. 456.

JOINT COMMISSION,
action by assignees under, ii. 174.
JOINT COVENANTER,
admission by, effect of, ii. 32.
JOINT DISTRESS,
illegal, when, ii. 392. 394.
JOINT INTEREST,
in goods, proof of conversion by one, iii. 1158.
declaration by one of several, having joint interests, when admissible, ii. 31.
effect of as to competency, i. 163.
JOINT STOCK COMPANY, liability of member of, iii. 805.
JOINT-TENANCY,
evidence of, ii. 430.
JOINT-TENANT,
proof, by, in ejectment, ii. 430.
each of several may, after notice, recover on separate demises, ib.
not ousted by mere perception of profits, ii. 401.
avowry by, iii. 973.
JOINT-TENANTS,
ejectment by, ii. 418.
notice to quit by, ib.
JOURNALS,
of House of Lords, i. 235.
evidence of proceedings, ib.
of House of Commons, ib.
JUDGE. See Law and Fact—New Trial, &c. act of, traversable, when, ii. 121.
JUDGMENT,
is merely inducement in action for false return, iii. 1016.
by judicial authority, not traversable, ii. 588. manner of, app. i. 610.
a bar, when, ib. 609.
on indictment for non-repair of a highway conclusive, when, ii. 529.
in trover changes the property, when, iii. 1168.
against testator not docketed, effect of, ii. 450.
JUDGMENTS AND DECREES, principles of admissibilty, i. 252, 253.
admissible, with a view to all legal consequences, i. 251. always admissible, to prove the judgment or decree as a mere fact, i. 251. 255.
admissibility, with a view to the proof of facts recited in the judgment, i. 256.
as to facts of a private nature, ib. between the same parties, i. 257. or those who claim in privity, i. 258.
heir and ancestor, ib.
executor and testator, ib.
verdict for one in remainder evidence against another, ib.
judgment of ouster against a mayor evidence in quo warranto against one admitted by him, i. 259.

JUDGMENTS AND DECREES—continued.
sufficient, if the parties be substantially the same, i. 260.
in ejectment the law notices the real parties, i. 260.
record evidence against one who might have been a party, ib.
want of mutuality, i. 261.
a verdict in a civil proceeding not evidence in a criminal case, ib.
recovery, when a bar, i. 262.
identity of the fact to be proved, ib.
not essential that the fact should have been specifically put in issue, ib.
party sued in different capacity, not concluded, i. 264.
nature and manner of the adjudication, ib.
must be direct, not collateral, ib.
but judgment on a collateral point is evidence as between the same parties if issue be joined upon it, i. 265.
must be conclusive, i. 267. effect of an adjudication, on the same fact, for the same purpose, i. 268.
conclusive as between the same parties, i. 268.
provided it be pleaded as an estoppel, ib.
but if it be not pleaded, the jury are not estopped from finding according to the truth, i. 268, 269.
to what judgments the rule extends, ib.
judgments of inferior courts, ib.
foreign judgments, i. 271.
semble, the rule extends to all judgments of courts of competent jurisdiction, i. 271, 272, 273.
judgments of foreign courts, how far examinable, i. 270. 276.
of inferior courts, i. 273. 277. effect of an adjudication to prove the same fact for a collateral purpose, i. 277.
by a court of exclusive jurisdiction, i. 278.
by a court not of exclusive jurisdiction, ib.
verdicts and judgments in criminal cases, i. 278, 279.
in general not admissible to establish a particular fact, ib.
acquittal of a defendant on an indictment, not evidence in a civil proceeding, ib.
otherwise, where a defendant pleads that he is guilty, ib.
conviction on indictment for bigamy, ib.
whether admissible in civil action, i. 280.
a verdict in a criminal, not evidence in a civil case, ib.
record of acquittal on conviction in a criminal proceeding, i. 281.
when pleadable in bar of a second prosecution, ib.
acquittal on indictment for non-repair of road, i. 282.
inconclusive, ib.
but a conviction would be conclusive, ib.
unless fraud were proved, ib.
a penal judgment is conclusive as to all legal consequences, i. 282, 283.
exception in case of principal and accessory, ib.
judgments of inferior courts, i. 283.
are evidence of fact of adjudication, ib.
and as to all legal consequences, ib.
convictions by magistrates, ib.
sentences by visitors, i. 285. judgments in rem, i. 285, 286, 287.
marriage, ib.

JUDGMENTS AND DECREES—continued.
bastardy, i. 285, 286, 287.
when final, ib.
reasons for this, i. 286.
of the spiritual courts, i. 288, 289.
probate, ib.
sentence of nullity of marriage, ib.
of deprivation, ib.
jactitation suit, ib.
not conclusive, ib.
nor evidence, but inter partes, ib.
nature of jactitation suit, ib.
of condemnation in the exchequer, i. 298.
judgment of commissioners of taxes, i. 291.
sentences of courts of admiralty, i. 292.
foreign courts, i. 294.
order of filiation, i. 294, 295.
orders of justices in settlement cases, ib.
judgment in quo warranto, i. 295.
judgment in rem, when conclusive, ib.
against one not a party, ib. impeachable for fraud, i. 295, 296. against parties, i. 296.
not impeachable, ib.
effect of judgment in proof of custom, i. 296, 297.
reputation, ib.
right of way, ib.
prescription, ib.
pedigree, ib.
when conclusive, i. 295.
judgment, how proved, i. 297.
record, ib.
when a judgment becomes a record, i. 298.
of House of Lords, ib.
verdict how proved, ib.
decree in chancery, i. 300.
sentence in spiritual court, i. 301.
probate, ib.
letters of administration, ib.
ledger-books of spiritual court, ib.
when evidence, i. 302.
revocation of probate, i. 302, 303.
judgment of inferior court, i. 303.
county court, ib.
court baron, ib.
hundred court, ib.
convictions by justices, ib.
award, i. 304.
foreign judgment, ib.
judgment or decree, how rebutted, i. 305.
proof that it is null and void, ib.
that it was fraudulent, i. 305, 306. reversed, i. 307.
not proved by writ of execution, i. 298.
except as against a party, ib.
day-book at judgment-office, not evidence at time of, ib.
reversal of, i. 307.

JUDGMENTS AND DECREES—continued.
execution on an erroneous judgment is good till reversed, i. 309.
of condemnation, iii. 891.
proof of judgment by rule of court, iii. 979.
proof of the allegation of, in an action against the sheriff, iii. 1009.
variance from, description of, i. 444. 492.
for what purposes offered in evidence, i. 252.
to prove the mere fact, ib.
to prove the contested fact, i. 253. 255.
is in its nature presumptive evidence only, ib.
conclusive, why, i. 253.
when it operates in rem, i. 255.
always evidence as a fact, i. 255, 256.
admissibility and effect of considered, with a view to the proof of the judgment itself, and its legal consequences, i. 256.
is admissible generally for that purpose, ib.
effect of attainder of felony, ib.
conviction of a crime, ib.
judgment in civil action, i. 255.
of assumpsit, ib.
for negligence, i. 256.
malicious prosecution, ib.
in proof of a contested and decided fact, ib.
in civil cases inter partes, ib.
must be against a party or privy, i. 257.
case of ejectment, ib.
tenant for life, i. 258.
one claiming in privity, ib.
as heir, ib.
executor, ib.
lessee of plaintiff in ejectment, ib.
tenant for life or remainder-man, ib.
form of action not material, i. 260.
is evidence against one who might have been a party, ib.
how impeached, i. 305.
proof of want of jurisdiction, ib. impeachable for fraud when, in an action against the sheriff for an escape, iii. 1019.
in ejectment against the wife, whether evidence against the husband, ii. 434, 435.
capable of application by parol evidence, i. 265.
operates as an estoppel, when, i. 208.
when an estoppel ought to be pleaded, ii. 300.
otherwise not conclusive, ib.
in ejectment not conclusive as to the right, ii. 435.
in ejectment sufficient to support joint action of trespass, iii. 1102.
in trover, effect of, iii. 1168. 1169. operation of, as evidence, i. 268.
not admissible on a collateral point not necessarily involved in the adjudication, iii. 1006.
recovered, plea of, by an executor, ii. 452.
by default, effect of, as to proof of contract, ii. 205.
erroneous, effect of, ii. 436, 437.
irregular, ib.
effect of reversal, ib.
signed in vacation, pleadable, puis darrein continuance, iii. 1075.
void against one who has not appeared in the county court, iii. 1110.

JUDGMENTS AND DECREES—continued.
of inferior court, plea to, i. 303.
foreign, proof of, i. 304.

JUDICES,
in the time of Bracton, i. 6.

JUDICIAL ACT,
not a cause of action, iii. 1031.

JUDICIAL AUTHORITY, differs from special, how, iii. 1140.

JUDICIAL DOCUMENTS,
kinds of, i. 252.
judgments, ib.
depositions, examinations, and inquisitions. See those titles.
writs, warrants, &c. See those titles.

JUDICIAL OFFICER,
not liable in trespass for a judicial act, iii. 1112.
secus, where a commissioner has mere authority to do an act, and misbehaves, iii. 1111.
steward of Court Baron is, iii. 750.
trespass does not lie against, when, iii. 1112.

JUDICIAL PROCEEDING, report of not libellous, when, ii. 639.

JURATA PATRIÆ,
of Glanville, what, i. 6.

JURISDICTION,
excess of, magistrate liable for, ii. 588.
of courts, not ousted by agreement of parties, ii. 119.
special, how it may be circumscribed, ii. 586.
of trustees at sessions during the assizes, app. ii. iii. 1451.
proof of, when necessary, ib. of inferior court, where the amount is reduced by a set-off, &c. ii. 579 of superior courts when ousted, ib. justices liable for acts not within, ii. 586.

JUROR,
cannot be asked question tending to his crimination, i. 194.
present duties of when first exercised, i. 7, 8. formerly were mere witnesses, i. 7. 11.

JURY,
remarks on the antiquity of the trial by, i. 5.
the jurata patriæ consisted in a selection made from the body of suitors, ib.
doubtful at what time the trial by a select body was first established, ib.
the practice of high antiquity, i. 6. jurors formerly acted in the double capacity of witnesses and jurors, i. 7.
formerly returnable from the vicinage, i. 6. duties of, i. 4, 5, 6.
similar to the Roman judices, i. 5.
in what respect the trial differed, ib.
fitness of for investigation of facts, i. 8.
duty of in finding a general verdict, i. 4.

JURY—continued.
liable to an attaint, i. 4, 5.
must rely upon the information of others, i. 12.
to judge by means of their own experience in ordinary cases, i. 11. 13.
how to decide upon questions of skill, i. 69.
on what grounds of belief they must depend, i. 13.
practice as to advising, i. 537.
are the legal judges as to probabilities, i. 539.
advantages derived from the institution, ib.
how far limited by rules of law, i. 540, 541.
bound by all legal presumptions, ib.
by estoppels, when, i. 542.
must decide on the evidence, not on private knowledge, ib.
trial by, observations on, i. 48. 539. advantages of, i. 539.
duty of, ib.
how far restrained by law, i. 540, 541.
bound by legal rules, i. 541.
not bound by estoppels, when, i. 208. to judge of the credit due to the whole, or part of any particular statement, i. 416.
mistake, motion for new trial on ground of, i. 533.
general verdict by, app. ii. iii. 1451.
challenge of, ib.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE,
proof of being, ii. 307.
has no authority to promise a pardon, ii. 12.

JUSTICES, ii. 580.
proof of notice of action, ib.
notice when necessary, ib.
proof of service, ii. 581.
form of notice, ib.
indorsement on, ii. 580.
time of the notice, ii. 583.
commencement of action, ib.
cause of action, ii. 504.
in case of quashed conviction, ib.
stat. 43 G. 3, c. 141, ib.
form of action when the conviction has been quashed, ii. 586.
evidence by magistrates in defence, ib.
stat. 21 J. 1, c. 12. s. 5, ii. 585.
action local, ib.
defence, under the general issue, ib.
defence by, under a conviction, ii. 580. conviction, when a bar, ii. 586, 587, 588, 589.
must be valid on the face of it, ib.
when insufficient, ii. 586.
want of jurisdiction, ii. 588.
special jurisdiction, how limited, ib.
as to place, ib.
person, ib.
subject matter, ii. 586.
conclusive, as to what facts, ii. 587, 588, 589.
proof of the conviction, ii. 589.
time of drawing up, ii. 592.
want of form, effect of, ib.

JUSTICES—continued.
regularity of previous proceedings, ii. 592.
should appear on the conviction, ib.
evidence in answer to, ii. 593, 594.
justification under a commitment, ii. 593.
tender of amends, ii. 594. defence by a constable under a warrant, ii. 594, 595.
stat. 24 G. 2, c. 44. ib.
provisions of the statute, ib. proof of warrant. See vol. i. & vol. ii. tit. Justices.
requisites to the validity of a warrant, ii. 595.
of acting in obedience, &c. ib.
illegal execution of, ii. 595, 596.
execution of search-warrant, ii. 596.
proof by plaintiff, where the constable has acted in obedience, &c. ii. 595, 596. defence where the officer has not acted in obedience, &c. ii. 600.
not liable where the justice has jurisdiction, and the warrant per se valid, ib.
secus, where the justice had no jurisdiction, ii. 597.
or where the warrant is manifestly illegal, ii. 598.
search-warrant, goods not found, ii. 600.
by a constable who acts without warrant, ib.
within the stat. 24 G. 2, c. 44, s. 8, ib.
also within the stat. 21 J. 1, c. 12, s. 5, ib.
when he may arrest without warrant, ii. 600, 601.
on charge made by another, ii. 601.
on suspicion where no charge is made, ii. 601.
by one who directs a constable to arrest, ii. 603.
by private person, without warrant, ii. 604.
orders of removal by, iii. 1005.
proof of convictions by, i. 303.
costs, certificate for, app. ii. iii. 1456.
having jurisdiction are not responsible for mistakes in matters of law, ii. 588. not liable for what they do at sessions, when, ii. 586. qualification of, app. ii. iii. 1452.
form of conviction by, ib.
time of drawing up conviction, ib. 1453. commitment by, ib.
previous summons by, ib.
warrant of commitment by, ib. 1454.
warrant of distress by, ib. 1455.
notice to, under 24 G. 2, ib. 1456.
JUSTIFICATION,
proof of, in an action for a libel, ii. 643.
on charge of homicide, ii. 720.
under process of law, ib.
self-defence, ii. 721.
in trespass, plea of, iii. 1131.
partial proof, when sufficient, ib.
KILLING,
of malice aforethought, when, ii. 709.
voluntary, when, ib.
KING,
sign-manual of, effect of, 241, 242.

KING'S BENCH,
books in master's office, admissibility of, i. 248.

KING'S BOOKS,
when conclusive evidence, iii. 1090.

KING'S PROCLAMATION. See Coin—Forgery—Negligence—Notice when necessary to prove coin current, ii. 310.

KNOWLEDGE,
allegation of, when surplusage, i. 437.
guilty, evidence of, ii. 468.
of accessory, presumption as to, ii. 10.
of counterfeit coin, ii. 311.
by acceptor that payee was fictitious, ii. 313.
that bill will not be paid, equivalent to notice, when, ii. 235.
of illegality precludes plaintiff from recovering, when, ii. 246.
of accessory, to be inferred when, ii. 9, 10.
of bankruptcy, evidence of, ii. 172, 173.
of both parties renders notice unnecessary, when, iii. 728.
by one of several poachers that others are armed, effect of, ii. 507.
of party, effect of as to evidence, ii. 683.
proof of in case of uttering forged bill, ii. 468.
that payee of a bill is a fictitious person, ii. 314.

LABOURERS,
what are within the stat. 22 G. 3, c. 19, ii. 586.

LACHES,
effect of as to bill of exchange delivered without indorsement, ii. 266.
discharge of, liability on a bill by, ii. 248.
by obligee in suing principal does not discharge a surety, iii. 1066.
a defence, when, app. ii. iii. 1428. effect of in excluding a remedy, ib.

LADING,
bill of, stamp on, iii. 1044.

LADY-DAY,
may be shown by evidence to mean Old Lady-day, when, ii. 416.

LAND,
title to chattel annexed to, iii. 866.
nuisance to, action for, iii. 747.

LANDS,
nuisance to, iii. 741.
interest in within the statute of frauds, when, ii. 481.

LANDS ABROAD,
property in, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 155.

LANDLORD,
proof of title by, ii. 412.
of demise, ib.
determination of lease, ii. 414.
title of may be disputed, when, iii. 1181.
title of, when it may be denied by tenant, iii. 973.
proof of title of in ejectment, ii. 412.
evidence of the demise, ib.

LANDLORD—continued.
determination of the lease, ii. 412.
time of entry, ib.
notice to quit, ii. 411.
agreement to give up portion of demised land, &c. operates as a covenant, when, ii. 414.
action by, against sheriff, for year's rent, iii. 1026, 1027.
cannot recover for money had and received from sheriff omitting to pay rent, &c. ii. 83.
of an inn, lien of, ii. 561. of premises, lien on of goods deposited, ii. 649.
liable for act of broker making distress, when, iii. 737.
has no property in a thing distrained, iii. 1145.

LAND-TAX,
usage to compensate the off-going tenant variable, iii. 782.
where tenant may claim to deduct payment of, iii. 974.

LAPSE,
title by, iii. 944.

LARCENY,
particulars of proof, ii. 604.
caption and asportation, ib.
felonicè, ib.
ownership and possession, ii. 607.
rule of law as to possession, ib.
ownership, ii. 608.
of party described, ib.
bailment to prisoner when available, ii. 609.
bailment by wife, ib.
proof to defeat, ib.
in case of mere servant, ii. 609.
precedent felonious intent, ib.
determination of by tort, ii. 612.
variance, ii. 614.
presumptive evidence of larceny, ib.
possession of stolen property, ii. 615. force of the presumption, ib.
not conclusive, ib.
when sufficient where the goods cannot be identified, ib.
embezzlement, stat. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 29, s. 46, ib.
particulars of proof, ib.
identity of the goods or money, ib. receipt on account of the master, ii. 616.
proof of embezzlement, ib.
accessories, ii. 617.
variance, ii. 618.
venue, app. ii. iii. 1457.
variance, ib.
ownership, ib.
consent to part with possession, ib.
to part with property, ib. 1458.
felonious intention, ib. 1459.
presumptive evidence, ib.
robbery, ib.
embezzlement, ib. 1460.

LATENT AMBIGUITY,
may be removed by extrinsic evidence, iii. 768, 769.
in the case of a will, iii. 1270, 1271.

LATENT DEFECT,
action by reason of, iii. 1240.
in subject of sale, avoids the sale, when, iii. 1215.

LATITAT,
suing out of the, commencement of the action, when, ii. 583.

LAW,
ignorance of, does not excuse, ii. 87.
mistake of, money paid under, not recoverable, ii. 87, 88.
presumption of, i. 509.
questions of, are for the decision of the court, i. 510.
foreign, proof of, i. 294.
covenant in, ii. 346.

LAW OF EVIDENCE,
its relation to the system of English law, i. 1. 4, 5.

LAWFUL ACT,
damage from liability for, ii. 574.

LAW AND FACT,
questions of law, i. 510.
jury to find facts, and not mere evidence, i. 511.
distinction between law and fact, i. 513.
in case of general technical inference, i. 516.
of reasonable time, probable cause, &c. i. 514, 515.
general technical terms, why allowed, ib.
they involve law as well as fact, ib.
reasonable time when a question of law, i. 517.
when of fact, ib.
notice of dishonour of bill, ib.
when a question of law, when of fact, ib.
in what cases the legal conclusion depends on the conclusion in fact, i. 516.
grounds of decision in the absence of legal rules, i. 518.
reasonable time, &c. is not in the abstract a question of mere law or of mere fact, i. 519.
mixed questions of law and fact, ib.
what are, ib.
question as to the accuracy of the expression, ib.
reasonable time, i. 521.
instances where it is a question of law, ib.
of fact, ib.
probable cause, i. 522.
may be a pure question of law, ib.
may depend on an inference of fact, ib.
fraud, i. 523.
may be a mere question of law, ib.
question of nuisance is for the jury, iii. 749.
terms of contract, app. i. 635.
probable cause, question of, ii. 668.
may be a mere question of law, i. 524.
or of mere fact, ib.

LAW AND FACT—continued. or depend on fraud in fact, i. 524.
malice, ib.
negligence, ib.
usually a question of fact, ib.
reputed ownership, ib.
meaning of written instrument, ib.
when to be inferred by the jury, ib.
law and fact, why mixture of in an issue allowed, i. 3. law and fact comprised in every issue, i. 3, 4. doubt whether particular question be of law or fact, i. 513. grounds of distinction, ib.
due diligence, ii. 225.
due diligence to discover indorser's place of abode, when a question of fact, ii. 236.
reasonable caution in taking negotiable security, ii. 220.
a question of fact, when, ib.
put in issue by traverse of fact, iii. 1130.
presumptions of, iii. 931.

LAWS,
are either substantive or adjective, i. 1.
adjective are either preventive or remedial, i. 2.

LEADING QUESTION. See Examination—Witness.
rule as to, i. 169.
when necessary, i. 171.
when allowed, i. 170, 171.
may be put on cross-examination, i. 188.
although the witness be favourable to the party cross-examining, ib.

LEASE,
what amounts to a, iii. 1177.
at will, provision of statute of frauds as to, ii. 473.
terms of holding explicable by custom, when, ii. 363.
one who has possession under a void lease may maintain trespass, iii. 1100.
acceptance of by assignees, what amounts to, ii. 189.
effect of acceptance of by assignees of bankrupt, ib.
delivery up by bankrupt of, ib.
by infant, ii. 555.
to an infant, affirmance of, ib.
avoidance of, ib.
stamp on, iii. 1047.
commencement of according to the date, iii. 1080.
with covenant not to assign, effect of bankruptcy upon, ii. 176.
discharge from under bankruptcy, ii. 189.
what amounts to, iii. 1177.

LEASE VOID,
terms of holding, when regulated by, ii. 413.

LEASES,
when admissible to prove lessor's right, ii. 336.
effect of, ib.

LEATHER SEARCHERS,
liable in trespass if they exceed their authority, ii. 586.
trespassers in seizing leather sufficiently dried, iii. 1111, 1112.

LEAVE AND LICENSE. See Trespass.
proof, on issue of, iii. 1137, 1138.
LEDGER BOOK,
of Ecclesiastical Court, i. 302.
proof by copy of, ib.
LEET,
presentment in, not traversable, ii. 617.
LEGACY,
not recoverable by action, ii. 454.
parol, evidence as to, iii. 763.
right to recover, app. ii. iii. 1416.
LEGAL EFFECT,
proof according to, where sufficient, i. 461.
allegation according to, sufficient on indictments, i. 462.
contracts, i. 462, 463.
variance from, in case of written instrument, i. 480, 481, 482, 483.
LEGAL OBLIGATION,
implied promise, when founded on, ii. 74.
a husband is not obliged to maintain his wife's children by a former husband, ii. 546.
LEGAL PRESUMPTION, nature and effect of, iii. 916.
LEGAL PROCEEDING,
notice when essential to its validity, iii. 732.
LEGAL PROCESS,
justification under, iii. 1111.
setting in motion makes the party a trespasser, iii. 1110.
money recovered by, ii. 92.
LEGALITY,
of contract, ii. 63. 103.
when it vitiates the contract, ib.
LEGATEE. See Will.
LEGITIMACY
of child born in matrimony, proofs and presumptions as to, ii. 196, 197, 198.
LESSEE,
estoppel of, iii. 973.
discharged from lease under bankruptcy, ii. 189.
LESSOR,
title of may be disputed, when, iii. 1181.
LETTER. See Post Mark.
proof on indictment for stealing, ii. 308.
cross-examination as to contents of, i. 199. containing ambiguous evidence for a jury, ii. 232.
LETTERS
written by wife, admissible, when, ii. 354. 356.
LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION. See Executor.
LETTERS PATENT,
must be produced, when, ii. 3.

LEVANCY AND COUCHANCY, actual, when to be proved, ii. 315.
when incident, ii. 319.
divisibility of allegation, iii. 975.
LEVANT AND COUCHANT. See Common.
cattle, claim of common for, ii. 315.
what are, ib.
proof of being, ii. 315, 316.
whole of plea claiming right for cattle may be put in issue, ii. 319.
proof under plea of, ib.
justification, onus probandi, ii. 318.
partial proof, effect of, ib.
LEX LOCI,
recognized by the law of England, ii. 519.
LEX MERCATORIA,
branch of general law of England, ii. 260.
LIBEL AND SLANDER,
proof in civil action, particulars of, ii. 618.
fact of publication, ib.
of the words, &c. ib.
variance, ib.
publication of the libel, ib.
in general, ib.
by an agent, ii. 621.
in particular county, ii. 622, 623. admission, ii. 623.
in case of newspaper, ii. 624.
stat. 38 G. 3, c. 78, ib.
variance, ii. 626.
proof of averments, ib.
character, ii. 627.
of attorney, physician, &c. ib.
proof, when unnecessary, ii. 628.
colloquium, ib.
innuendos, ii. 628, 629.
evidence of malice, ii. 629.
from the contents, ib.
from extrinsic circumstances, ii. 630.
claim of title to land, ii. 631.
character of servant, ib.
communication by party interested, ii. 632.
by way of admonition, &c. ib.
criticism, ib.
occasion of speaking but colourable, ib.
unnecessary publication, ib.
falsity of the communication, ib.
collateral proof of malice, ib.
publication of other libels, ii. 633.
speaking of other slander, ib.
their truth may be proved by the defendant, ib.
damages, ii. 636.
special damage, ii. 637.
evidence of, not admissible unless it be averred, ib.
loss of marriage, ib.
of customers, ib.

LIBEL AND SLANDER—continued.
prevention of sales, ii. 637.
general loss of profits, ib.
connection between the injury and the special damage, ib.
evidence in defence, ii. 638.
under the general issue, ib.
of circumstances connected with the libel, ib.
publication in course of duty, ib.
as a member of parliament, ib.
judge or juror, ib.
petitioner, ib.
counsel, ib.
report of judicial proceedings, &c. ii. 639.
publication procured by contrivance, ib. accord and satisfaction, ii. 640.
evidence in mitigation, ii. 641.
justification, ii. 643.
hearsay, ii. 471.
indictment, particulars of proof, ii. 644.
publication, ib.
malice, ib.
proof in defence, ii. 645.
stat. 32 G. 3, c. 60, ib.
effect of this stat. ib.
variance from averments in action, i. 446. meaning of a question of fact, when, i. 525.

LIBEL,
what amounts to, app. ii. iii. 1461.
proof of publication, ib. 1462.
amendment in action for, ib.
prefatory averments, innuendos, proof of, ib. privileged communication, ib. 1463.
malice, ib. 1465.
special damage, ib.
evidence in mitigation, ib. 1466.
justification, ib.
costs, ib. 1467.
indictment lies, when, ib.
province of jury, ib.
competency, iii. 1123.

LIBERARI FECI,
an estoppel, when, ii. 407.

LIBERTY of hawking to grantor and heirs reserved in grant, operates as a grant, ii. 505.

LIBERUM TENEMENTUM, object of the plea, iii. 1123, 1124.
election of defendant on issue joined on, ib.
divisibility of the plea, ib.
plea of, when necessary to compel a new assignment, iii. 1133.
plea of, iii. 1123.

LICENSE,
plea of, iii. 1131.

LICENSE—continued.
proof on issue on plea of, iii. 1137, 1138.
in law, what, ib.
must be specially replied, when, ib.
effect of license as an authority, ib.
for pleasure or for profit, ib.
distinction between them, ib.
from Crown, secondary evidence of, i. 396.
to legalize a particular voyage, proof of, iii. 875.
to trade, proof of search for in case of loss, i. 390. 396.
by lord of manor to fish, ii. 336.
to inclose common, presumptive evidence of, ii. 316.
ancient, to fish, admissible, i. 68.
of pope, evidence to prove an impropriation, i. 242. essential to create title to recover, ii. 83.
secus, in case of donation, ib.
public,
under the king's sign-manual, i. 241, 242.
of the pope, i. 242
when admissible, ib.
copy whether admissible, ib.
book of licensing officer of entry of stage-coach not evidence to prove ownership, i. 249.
for prisoner's discharge, evidence of, i. 241, 242.
of pope, i. 242.
of what evidence, ib.
to trade with enemy, evidence of, iii. 875.
not revocable, when, app. ii. iii. 1468.
parol, when binding, ib.
to marry by superintendant registrar, ii. 703.
deed when essential to, ii. 473.
plea of in trespass, iii. 1137.
different kinds of, ib.
personal, when, ib.
abuse of must be pleaded, when, iii. 1138.

LICENSES,
to fish, evidence of title, when, ii. 336.

LIEN,
express agreement, ii. 646.
notice of terms, ib.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
general usage of trade, ii. 647, 648, 649.
of a workman, ii. 648.
right of, when a defence in action of trover, iii. 1166.
waiver of, ib.
proof of tender to relieve goods from, iii. 1072.
on bill of exchange for advances, iii. 993.
of carrier does not divert the right of stopping in transitu, ii. 647.
proof of not admissible under plea of general issue, app. ii. iii. 1468.
when existing, ib.
right to detain for, to be pleaded, when, iii. 1166.

LIGHT,
provisions of stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, as to, iii. 921.

LIGHTS. See Windows.
obstruction of. See Windows, iii. 1294.
proof of right to, iii. 744.
presumptive evidence of grant of, iii. 912.
windows cannot be obstructed, when, although not existing for twenty years, iii. 743.

LIMITATIONS.
stat. 21 Jac. 1, c. 16, s. 1, ii. 651.
right of entry within twenty years, ib.
adverse possession, ib.
for the jury, ib.
debt, when barred by, ib.
issue of non accrevit, &c. ii. 657.
proof on whom incumbent, ib.
commencement of action, ib.
cause of action, ii. 658.
in trespass, ib.
negligence, ii. 659.
slander, ib.
thing done, &c. ib.
promises, ii. 661.
money lent, ib.
promissory note, ib.
in case of factor for not accounting, ib.
special damage, ib.
cutting down trees, ii. 662.
replication of promise within six years, ib.
admission of debt, ib.
presumption raised by the stat. ib.
acknowledgment, ib.
provisions of the stat. 9 G. 4, c. 14, s. 1. ii. 665.
on oral promise insufficient, ib.
even when made previous to the passing the act, ib.
the promise must be express, or amount to a clear admission of a still subsisting liability, ii. 666.
a question for the jury where the words are ambiguous, ib.
circumstances to be proved in avoidance of the stat., ib.
existence of the debt, ib.
admission of existence, and that it is unsatisfied, ib.
allegation of discharge on false grounds, ib.
evidence to falsify, when admissible, ib.
denial of debt, admitting the receipt of the money, ib.
acknowledgment by one of several, ii. 667.
ground of admitting, ib.
subsequent promise, agreement of with the original promise, ii. 670.
mutual accounts, ib.
disability, ii. 672.
in case of set-off, ib.
by statute,
in case of writ of right, iii. 911.
mort d'ancester and action possessory on possession of ancestor, ib.
on plaintiff's own seisin, ib.
to writ of formedon, ib.

LIMITATIONS—continued.
statute of, when a defence in an action for use and occupation, iii. 1185.
of action, from what time imputed, ii. 585.
in trespass, ib.
trover, ib.
statute of, must be pleaded in an action on the case, ii. 300.
must be replied to plea of set-off, iii. 996.
stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, construction of, app. ii. iii. 1470.
3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, ib. 1471.
non accrevit, evidence under plea of, ib.
part payment, ib. 1472.
stat. 9 G. 4, c. 14, ib. 1473.
merchants' accounts, ib. 1474.
general acknowledgment, when sufficient, under the stat. 9 G. 4, ii. 668.
giving bill after expiration of six years is not sufficient, though it be paid within six years, ii. 668.
acknowledgment may be implied from circumstances, ii. 669.
receiving a dividend under a commission, effect of, ib.
acknowledgment by one of several joint contractors sufficient, ib.
stat. of, effect as to set-off, iii. 996.
from an act done does not extend to an action for money had and received, ii. 660.
does not attach to a debt proved in bankruptcy, ii. 181.
stat. 9 G. 4, c, 14, s. 1, provisions of, ii. 665.
cases decided under, ib.
provisions of stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, as to making entry, &c. ii. 652.
of the stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, as to actions of debt for rent, &c. ii. 656.
stat. of, q. whether lien barred by, ii. 650.
stat. of, runs from the conversion in trover, ii. 660.
stat. of, which bars trespass does not bar ejectment, ii. 659.
as to anything done from what time it runs, ib.
in case of trespass, ib.
in action for consequential damage, ib.

LIQUIDATED DAMAGES,
stipulation for, construction of, iii. 852.

LIS MOTA,
excludes declarations in matter of pedigree, when, app. i. 602.
effect of in excluding evidence, iii. 835.

LIVERY,
proof of, ii. 381.
in fact to be presumed, when, iii. 900.

LIVERY-STABLE KEEPER,
lien of, ii. 649.

LLOYD'S BOOKS. See Policy.

LOAN,
conventional lending, ii. 79.

LOCAL CUSTOMS. See Customs.

LOCALITY,
of offences, ii. 341.
of action at common law, ii. 344, 345.

LOCUS IN QUO,
meaning of in trespass, iii. 1123.

LODGER,
in a house, right of a, iii. 743.

LOG-BOOK,
of man-of-war admissible, when, i. 247.

LONDON,
customs of, how ascertained, ii. 303.
city of, books of, i. 228.
books of city of, provable by a copy, ib.

LORD,
right of by custom in diminution of common, ii. 317.

LORDS,
Journals of House of, app. i. 607.

LOSS,
of ship, proof of, iii. 876.
presumptive evidence of, iii. 878.
of goods, proof of, ii. 284.
proof of amount, iii. 880.
of bill of exchange, remedy upon, ii. 203.
of bill insufficient to prove in action on, ii. 265.
of goods by carrier, proof of, ii. 286.
a conversion, when, iii. 1157.

LOST BILL,
proof in action on, ii. 244.
proof of value given, ib.
action upon, ii. 220.

LOST DEED,
proof of execution of, i. 387.
of search for, ib.

LOST INSTRUMENT,
proof of stamp, i. 393.
of execution of, ib.
secondary evidence of, ib.
by counterpart, ib.
copy, i. 394.
registry, i. 394, 395.
chartulary, i. 395.
by oral evidence, i. 393.

LUNACY,
finding of by coroner's inquest, effect of, i. 309.
when a defence in a civil action, ii. 103.
evidence of, iii. 1276.

LUNATIC,
provision as to marriage of, ii. 704.
competency of, i 92.

MACHINE,
patent for. See Privilege.

MACHINERY,
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 157.

MAGISTRATE,
evidence by, under the general issue, ii. 585.
stat. of J. 1, c. 12, s. 5, provisions of, ib.
liable in case he exceed his jurisdiction, ii. 586.
evidence to warrant conviction by, ii. 331. certificates by, of repair of road, ii. 308.

MAIMING,
what is, ii. 694.

MAJORITY,
to act for the whole, when, ii. 672.
when binding, ib.

MAGNITUDE,
variance from, effect of, i. 440, 441, 445.

MAINTENANCE,
separate, of wife, when a defence to the husband, ii. 546.

MALA FIDE,
conduct in taking transfer of bill, ii. 220, 245.
a question for the jury, ii. 373.

MALICE,
a question of law, when, i. 524.
of fact, when, ib.
proof of, in case of murder, ii. 712.
inference of law as to, ib.
actual intention to destroy, proof of, ib.
in maiming cattle, ii. 694.
implied, when, ii. 718.
gross negligence equivalent to, iii. 725.
constructive, what amounts to, ii. 713.
evidence of, in case of arson, ii. 51.
proof of, in an action for a malicious prosecution, ii. 686, 687.
evidence to rebut, in an action for a malicious arrest, ii. 691.
proof of, in an action for slander or libel, ii. 629.
an inference of law, when, ib.
proof of, in an indictment for a libel, ii. 644.
legal sense of the term, ii. 673.
malice in law, ii. 52. 674. fact, ii. 675.
presumptions as to malice, ib.
a question of fact, when, ib.
in case of libel, ib.
in case of murder, proof of, ii. 711.
implied, when, in action for malicious arrest, ii. 690.

MALICE AFORETHOUGHT,
what is, ii. 709.
evidence of in case of libel, ii. 629.
presumable, when, in case of murder, ii. 716.
proof of in action for malicious prosecution, ii. 683.
evidence of, ii. 313.

MALICIOUS ARREST. See Malicious Prosecution.

MALICIOUS INJURIES, indictment under the stat. 9 G. 4, c. 31, s. 12, ii. 691.
maliciously cutting, &c. ib.
intention, a question for the jury, ii. 692.
evidence of intent, ib.
variance, ii. 693.
indictment for administering poison to a woman quick with child, ib.
indictment for maiming cattle, ii. 694.
proof of malice, ib.
malicious wounding, app. ii. iii. 1478.
malicious shooting, ib. 1479.
lawful apprehension, ib.
for poaching, ib. 1480.
administering poison, ib.
malicious mischief, ib.

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION,
particulars of proof, ii. 676, 677.
prosecution by the defendant, ii. 677.
identity of plaintiff, ib.
variance as to the charge, ii. 678.
acquittal, ib.
malicious charge before a magistrate, ii. 679.
probable cause, want of, ii. 680.
when a question of law, ib.
when of fact, ib.
proof of mere acquittal not sufficient, ii. 685.
proof of malice, ii. 686, 687.
damages, ii. 690.
costs to be estimated as between attorney and client, ib.
malicious arrest, ii. 686. app. ii. iii. 1476.
proof of the arrest, ib.
determination of the action, ib.
variance, ii. 688, 689.
malice, ib.
defence, ib.
action for, lies when, app. ii. iii. 1475.
probable cause, direction as to, ib. costs, 43 Geo. 3, c. 46, ib. 1477.

MALICIOUS TRESPASS, act of, iii. 1143.

MAL-PERFORMANCE
of contract, where evidence in reduction of damages, iii. 1210.
when a defence, ii. 105.

MALUM IN SE,
distinction between, and malum prohibitum, ii. 94.

MAN-OF-WAR,
log-book of, admissibility of, i. 247.

MANDAMUS,
not granted to justice to compel production of deposition, i. 323.
not grantable till the proceedings on the first record are complete, app. ii. iii. 1480.
presumption as to, iii. 936.
to justices to set out facts in a conviction, ii. 695.

MANNER
of giving testimony, observations on the, i. 547.
to be estimated by the jury, i. 524.

MANNER OF INJURY,
essential to trespass, iii. 1106.

MANOR,
evidence to prove a manor, ii. 695.
by reputation, ib.
of ancient demesne, ib.
proof by muniments of manor, ib.
proof of manorial rights, ii. 696, 697. presumption as to an inclosure by a tenant, ii. 636.
variance in proof of manor, ii. 697.
evidence to prove nature of tenure, ii. 336.
where lands are held according to the custom of husbandry, ib. title to, cannot be inquired into on an information under the game laws, ii. 502.
evidence of title to, ib.
custom of, ii. 363.
custom of, when evidenced by custom of another, ii. 336.
lord of, not necessarily entitled to a court, ii. 502.
proof of by reputation, ii. 336.
title to not triable in an action under the game laws, when, ii. 502. right of lord to slip of waste in, iii. 1125.
proof as to right of waste of, app. ii. iii. 1481.

MANOR COURT,
rolls of, evidence of custom, ii. 332.

MANSLAUGHTER,
when committed by administration of drugs, ii. 715.
what amounts to, ii. 714.

MANURE,
taking of, action for, ii. 317.
on farm, property in, iii. 1148.

MAP. See Survey. of private estate, when admissible, i. 354.
effect of in proof, app. ii. iii. 1481.

MARINER'S WAGES,
action for, iii. 1302.
liability of owners, ib.

MARK. See Hand-writing.

MARKET,
proof of right to hold, iii. 744.
proof as to place of holding of, app. ii. iii. 1481.
action for disturbance of, ib. 1403.
holding of, a nuisance, when, iii. 748.

MARKET OVERT,
proof of sale in, iii. 1227. effect of sale in, iii. 1148. 1227.

MARRIAGE,
jurisdiction in questions of marriage, ii. 698.
evidence of marriage in fact, ib.

MARRIAGE—continued.
by the register, ii. 699.
in parish church, ib.
chapel, ib.
registration not essential, ii. 700.
publication of banns, ib.
variance as to names of parties, ib.
by licence, ii. 702.
consent in case of minor, ib.
provisions of stat. 3 G. 4, c. 75, ib.
4 G. 4, c. 76, ii. 508. residence, ii. 703.
in foreign country, ii. 704.
evidence in avoidance, ib.
lunacy, ib.
stat. 15 G. 2, c. 30, ib.
marriages beyond seas, ib.
judgments in ecclesiastical courts, ii. 705, 706.
effect of, ib.
presumptive evidence of, ii. 705.
action for breach of promise of marriage, ii. 706.
proof of promise, ib.
general promise, ib.
refusal to marry, ii. 707.
evidence in defence, ib.
admission of, not evidence in action for adultery, ii. 352. registry of. See Crim. Con.—Polygamy. books of Fleet prison not evidence of, i. 244.
of dissenting meeting-house, ib.
identity of parties not proved by the register, ib.
proof of nullity of, ib.
in fact must be proved on an indictment for bigamy, iii. 894.
proof in action for adultery, ii. 352.
certificate by bishop, ii. 302.
laws of all Christian countries as to, recognized by the law of England, ii. 704.
evidence and effect of marriage in Scotland, ib.
when disprovable to show bastardy, ii. 198.
proof of consent, app. ii. iii. 1482. dissolution of, ib. 1483.
foreign divorce, ib.
breach of promise of, ib.
action against clergyman for refusing to marry, whether maintainable, ib. 1484.
effect of admission as to, ii. 352. avoided by incapacity, when, ii. 703.

MARRIED MAN,
pretending to be single, marries, action against, ii. 84.

MARRIED WOMAN,
submission by to an award, ii. 117.

MARRIAGE ACT,
26 G. 2, c. 33, s. 14, provisions of as to registers, i. 243.

MARRY,
promise to marry not within the statute of frauds, ii. 479.

MARSHALMAN,
striking one of a crowd, cannot justify, iii. 1140.

MARSHALLING
of assets, ii. 55.

MARY, SAINT,
nunnery of, survey of possessions of, i. 237.

MASTER,
of King's Bench, proof by books of, i. 248.
when bound by the act of his servant, ii. 44.
not in case of trespass by the servant, ib.
proof of authority by, ii. 42, 43. liable in trespass for act of servant, when, iii. 738.
liable for act of servant, when, iii. 737.
not liable for medical assistance to a menial servant, iii. 1299.

MASTER OF VESSEL,
lien of, ii. 649.
negligence by, iii. 728.

MATERIAL EVIDENCE,
proof of, iii. 1134. 1231. See Venue.

MATERIALITY
of matter sworn, proof of on trial for perjury, iii. 859.

MATERIALS,
wrongfully annexed to the freehold, the property of the owner of the freehold, iii. 866.

MATTERS ADMITTED BY THE PLEADINGS, no proof of necessary, i. 499.

MEANS of obtaining evidence, no objection to the evidence itself, ii. 12.

MEANS AND MANNER of trying, ii. 298.

MEASURE OF EVIDENCE,
how far the law interferes as to, i. 506.

MEDIATE EVIDENCE,
kinds of, i. 34.
confession by a party, ib.
declaration accompanying an act, ib.
principle of admission, ib.
mediate secondary evidence, ib.
excluded, when, i. 36. 42.
in what cases admissible, i. 42.

MEDIATE TESTIMONY,
when admissible, i. 27.
general reputation, ib.
under what limitations receivable, i. 31.
declarations and entries by deceased persons against their interest, i. 44.
by deceased tenants, i. 44, 45.

MEDICAL WITNESS, provisions as to, app. ii. iii. 1484.

MEMORANDUM,
may be referred to, to refresh the memory, i. 175.
when it must be given in evidence, i. 180.
to refresh memory need not be contemporary with the fact, i. 177.
of agreement, when valid within the statute of frauds, ii. 482.
what sufficient within the statute, ii. 483.

MEMORANDUM ON RECORD, in proceeding by bill in the King's Bench, what term, iii. 1075.
by original or in the Common Pleas, ib.

MEMORIAL. See Annuity.

MEMORY,
of witness may be refreshed, how, i. 175.

MERCANTILE CONTRACT,
admissibility of parol evidence to explain, iii. 779.

MERCANTILE CUSTOMS,
parcel of common law, ii. 360.

MERCANTILE INSTRUMENT, construction of, iii. 867.

MERCHANTS,
custom of, ii. 360, 361. See Custom.

MERE LAW,
presumption of, iii. 930.

MERGER,
of parol contract, doctrine of, ii. 104.
evidence under non-assumpsit, ib.
of civil action in felony, iii. 1120.
a defence, when, ii. 104.

MESNE PROCESS. See Sheriff.

MESNE PROFITS. See Ejectment.

MESSUAGE,
includes land, when, ii. 315.
demise of, what it includes, iii. 773.
parol evidence as to, ib.

MICHAELMAS,
being expressed, evidence inadmissible to show Old Michaelmas meant, iii. 759. in general means New Michaelmas, ii. 363.

MIDWIFE,
entry by, i. 262.

MILL,
right of water to. See Watercourses, iii. 1248. obligation to grind at, ii. 696.

MILLED MONEY,
what, ii. 311.

MILLER,
lien of, ii. 649.

MINERALS,
proof of title, to, iii. 1152.
evidence of right to, ii. 697.

MINES,
ejectment for, evidence in, ii. 401.
may be followed, when, app. ii. iii. 1484.

MINISTERS' ACCOUNTS,
evidence when, iii. 1091.

MINISTERIAL OFFICER, liable for excess of authority, iii. 1112.

MINOR,
marriage of, ii. 701.
proof of, ib.

MIRACLE,
Mr. Hume's doctrine on the subject of miracles considered, i. 555.

MISDELIVERY
of goods, a conversion, iii. 1157.

MISDEMEANOR, compounding of, illegal, when, ii. 248. 538. 545. See tit. Illegality.

MISDESCRIPTION
of thing sold, vitiates a sale, when, iii. 1213.

MISFEASANCE,
action founded on, maintainable against one of several, ii. 286.
carrier liable for, though the contract be vitiated by fraud, ii. 293.

MISJOINDER,
of plaintiffs, effect of, ii. 59.
in case of felony, effect of, app. ii. iii. 1484.

MISNOMER, app. ii. iii. 1484. effect of, as to variance, i. 478.
when material, i. 489.
must be pleaded in abatement, when, ii. 708.
when not, ib.
plea of, in abatement, ii. 3.
of corporation, i. 470.
of persons, i. 471, 472, 473.
of parties to a deed, i. 471.
how taken advantage of, i. 473. effect of, under stat. 7 G. 4, c. 64, s. 19, ii. 3. plea of, in abatement, now abolished, ii. 709.
in fiat, effect of, app. ii. iii. 1344.

MISREPRESENTATION
avoids policy, when, iii. 885.

MIS-SPELLING constitutes variance, when, i. 484.

MISTAKE,
proof to show, when admissible, ii. 208.
acceptance of bill of exchange by, ib.
in written instrument may be proved by extrinsic evidence, iii. 766.
when evidence to impeach a receipt, iii. 954.
in particulars not material, unless it may have misled, ii. 110.
correction of does not render new stamp necessary, ii. 256.
alteration of does not render new stamp necessary, when, iii. 1049.
action for money paid under, ii. 86, 87.
does not lie, when, ii. 87.
must be mistake of fact, ib.
not of law, ii. 87, 88.
does not excuse a trespass, iii. 1120.
ship taken as prize and acquitted, false imprisonment not maintainable, ib.
or misdirection of judge, motion for new trial on ground of, i. 531.
no defence in an action of trespass, iii. 1120.
parol evidence admissible to prove, iii. 766.
does not defeat a right, when, ii. 170.
alteration to correct, ii. 256.

MITIGATION,
in trespass, iii. 1120.
matters pleadable in bar inadmissible under the general issue, ib.
evidence in, in action for a libel, ii. 641.
of damages in case of crim. con. ii. 356.

MIXED QUESTION
of law and fact, meaning of, i. 519.

MODUS. See Tithes.
proof of discharge by, iii. 1087, 1088.
validity of, iii. 1087.

MOLLIS IMPOSITIO,
a defence, when, iii. 1136.

MONASTERY, DISSOLVED,
proof that lands belong to, iii. 1093.

MONEY, recovered by legal process, action does not lie for, ii. 92.
in hands of agent, may be followed, when, ii. 709.
although changed by purchase of chattel, ib.
variance from allegation of, i. 493.
may be followed and recovered, when, ii. 109.
attached by a creditor abroad may be recovered by assignees, when, ii. 168.
may be recovered by assignees of bankrupt, when, ib.
paid in respect of forged bill, ii. 90.
satisfied by receipt of bank-note, when, ii. 80.
deposited with stockholder, recoverable when, ii. 83.

MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED. See Assumpsit, ii. 79. proof of actual receipt, ib.
constructive receipt, ii. 74, 75. 80. 457.
conventional receipt, ii. 80, 81.
receipt of provincial notes, ib.
by one of several, ib.
by giving credit, ib.
receipt of by agent, ii. 44. 46, 47. 82.

MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED—continued.
revocation of order for payment of, ii. 82.
admission of receipt of, ib.
presumptive evidence of receipt of, ii. 82, iii. 996.
proof of agreement to pay money received, ii. 82.
action for, not maintainable without privity, when, ib.
action for, on failure of consideration, ii. 90.
action for, when maintainable on breach of contract of sale, iii. 1194.
on breach of contract by a vendee may be maintained by the principal, ib.
cannot be maintained by agent, when, ib.
by assignee of bankrupt, when the action lies, ii. 168.
does not lie to recover the difference in value of goods fraudulently sold by the bankrupt, ii. 169.
when maintainable by vendee of goods, iii. 1227.
vendee cannot recover price paid as on failure of consideration by means of defect in the goods, ib.
by party to a bill to the use of the holder, ii. 184. 262. action for does not lie where the contract is still open, ii. 92.
nor for money recovered by legal process, ib.
purchaser on breach of contract cannot recover more than the money paid, iii. 1194.
does not lie for rent against one who claims title, ii. 85.
sheriff liable for, when, iii. 1023.
action for vendee, iii. 1193.
action for, when maintainable against a sheriff, iii. 1023.
not recoverable by assignees, when, ii. 169.

MONEY LENT,
action for, ii. 79.
proof of loan, ib.
by medium of agent, ib.

MONEY PAID. See Assumpsit. proof of payment, ii. 74.
of request, ii. 75.
when implied, ib.
payment under compulsion, ii. 76.
in an illegal transaction, ii. 77. amount recoverable, ii. 75.
indorsee who pays part of bill may recover from the acceptor as for money paid, ii. 218.
in course of illegal transaction may be stopped whilst in transitu, ii. 94.
costs of suit recoverable as, when, ii. 263.
contrary to law devised for protection of party is recoverable, ii. 93.

MONEY PAID INTO COURT, payment of, effect of, iii. 828.
operates by way of admission, when, ib. cannot be recovered back, iii. 832.

MONEY WON AT PLAY,
assault on account of, ii. 54.

MONTH. See Time.

MORAL OBLIGATION,
when a sufficient consideration to support a promise, ii. 70.
promise must be express, ib.

MORTGAGE,
by lessor of premises let, effect of, iii. 1181.
stat. 1 Will. 4, c. 60, extended by 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 25, to mortgagees or their heirs, app. ii. iii. 1484.

MORTGAGEE. See Ejectment. of tolls, ejectment by, ii. 427.
evidence by, in ejectment, ib.
title of, to rent, ii. 709. of ship, when not liable for work done by authority of the master, iii. 1301.

MORTGAGES
of goods and chattels in case of bankruptcy, ii. 155.

MORTGAGOR,
warranty of title by, ii. 92.
cannot defeat mortgagee's title, ii. 405.
not properly tenant at will, ii. 709.
remaining in possession, title of, ii. 428.
may be considered tenant at will, when, ii. 180.

MORTMAIN,
act of, whether extending to East India British possessions, app. ii. iii. 1424.

MOTIVE,
variance from allegation of, i. 477.
consideration of, in case of murder, ii. 719.

MUNICIPAL LAW,
objects of, i. 1.

MURDER,
definition of, ii. 709.
evidence of the killing, ib.
proof of the death, ib.
must be direct and positive, ib.
proof of the cause of the death, ii. 710.
connection of the act with the death, ii. 711.
proof of malice, ib.
kinds of malice, ii. 711, 712.
malice in fact, ib.
actual intention to destroy or injure, ib.
negligence, ii. 713.
malice in law, ib.
killing by accident, ii. 715.
negligence in lawful business, ib.
malice resulting from legal situation, ii. 716.
officers of justice, ib.
authority under warrant, ib.
without warrant, ii. 717.
arrest by private person, ib.
notice, proof of, ib.
breaking of outward doors, ii. 718.
evidence of homicide, by the prisoner, ib.
presumptive evidence of guilt, 719.
evidence for the prisoner, ii. 720
justification, ib.
process of law, ib.
self-defence, ii. 721.

MURDER—continued.
excuse, ii. 721.
extenuation, ib.
provocation, ib.
trespass to property, ii. 723.
words of reproach or insult, ib.
fighting in heat of blood, ii. 724 accessories, ib.
proof of death, app. ii. iii. 1484. principals and accessories, ib. 1485 cause of death, ib.
venue, ib.
malice prepence, ib.
manslaughter, ib. 1486.
proof of, ib.
concealment of birth, proof of, ib. 1487.

MUSIC,
piracy of, iii. 938.

MUTINY ACT, provisions of as to soldier's affidavit of place of settlement, ii. 438.
examination under, i. 242.

MUTUAL ACCOUNTS,
excepted, when, from statute of limitations, ii. 671.
in bankruptcy, ii. 177.
securities by bankers, ib.
credit, ib.

MUTUAL CREDIT,
what within statute of bankruptcy, iii. 995.
with broker, ii. 177, 178, 179. in case of bankruptcy, what recoverable under, ii. 177.
proof under the statute, ib.

MUTUAL DEBTS,
stat. 8 Geo. 2, c. 24, as to setting off, iii. 995.

MUTUAL NEGLIGENCE,
excludes an action, when, iii. 741. 746.

MUTUALITY,
when essential to admissibility of evidence, i. 261.

NAME. See Misnomer.
variance from allegation of, i. 470.
variance as to, when material, i. 488.
marriage under false name, effect of, ii. 701.
mistake of, when ground of plea in abatement, ii. 708.
peer, by what name he should sue, ii. 709.

NAMES,
true, of parties in case of marriage, ii. 700.

NATURAL CONSEQUENCE of an act cogent evidence to infer intention, ii. 572.

NATURAL PRESUMPTIONS,
what, as distinguished from artificial, iii. 932.

NATURAL SOURCES
of evidence, i. 12, 13, 14.

NAVIGABLE RIVER,
evidence of being one, iii. 1253.
proof of being, ib.

NAVIGATION,
public right of, how it may be extinguished, iii. 1253.

NAVY OFFICE,
register of, evidence, when, i. 247.

NECESSARIES
supplied to wife, what are, ii. 543.

NECESSITY,
testimony of wife when admissible on the principle of, ii. 554.
admission of witness from, i. 132.
proof of goods thrown overboard from, a defence in action of trover, iii. 1168. principle of, in admitting evidence by a wife, ii. 554.

NEGATIVE EVIDENCE,
how affected by the rule that the best shall be produced, i. 502.
proof of, when incumbent on the party alleging, i. 421.

NEGLIGENCE,
action for, iii. 725.
particulars of proof, iii. 727.
contract or undertaking, iii. 725.
gratuitous agent, iii. 726.
undertaking for reward, iii. 726, 727.
a question of fact, iii. 727.
damages, iii. 728.
in performance of work agreed for at a stipulated price, when a defence, iii. 1307, 1308, 1309.
allegation of per quod, &c. variance as to, immaterial when, i. 476.
effect of, as to civil liability, ii. 87.
where negligence is imputable to both parties, ib.
by an attorney, proof of, ii. 111.
what sufficient to support an action, ib.
where he acts for both parties, ib.
responsibility for stating his own conclusions, ib.
immaterial, when, ii. 111, 112. ground of action when, ii. 87, 88. See Assumpsit.
action for, on injury arising from, iii. 728.
gross, party liable for, independently of contract, ii. 291.
in carrier of persons, evidence of, ii. 295.
limitation of action for, ii. 659.
bar to an action by an attorney, when, ii. 111.
evidence of, to constitute felonious homicide, ii. 713.
in execution of commission, iii. 726.
precludes money, when, ii. 86.
by attorney, a defence, ii. 109.
in respect of alteration of policy of insurance, iii. 888.
plaintiff cannot recover where there is mutual negligence, app. ii. iii. 1487.
variance, damages, ib. 1488.
general effect of, as to civil liability, iii. 725.
by an agent, iii. 726, 727.
a defence, when, in an action for work and labour, iii. 1308.

NEGLIGENCE—continued.
proof of, in action against carrier, ii. 295.
of plaintiff, excludes an action for a nuisance, when, iii. 741. 746.

NE UNQUES EXECUTOR,
proof under plea of, ii. 445.

NEW ASSIGNMENT,
when necessary in trespass, iii. 1122.
unnecessary to admit evidence to defeat a special justification not supported by facts, iii. 1133.
when unnecessary in general, ib.
waives trespasses in places mentioned in the bar, iii. 1141.
on other occasions admits one trespass to be justified, ib.
when unnecessary, iii. 1142.
when improper, ib.
of excess, iii. 1143.
when necessary, on plea of liberum tenementum, iii. 1123.
evidence under, iii. 1141.

NEW CONSIDERATION,
when a foundation for a promise, ii. 478.

NEW PROMISE,
under statute of limitations, ii. 662.

NEWSPAPER,
evidence of being proprietor of, ii. 24.

NEW SHERIFF,
not liable for escape, when, iii. 1020.
transfer to, of writs and money, iii. 1017.

NEW TRIAL,
grounds of, i. 531.
mistake or misdirection of judge, i. 532.
in penal action, ib.
waiver of misdirection, i. 533.
mistake of jury, ib.
excessive damages, i. 534.
after acquittal on indictment, ib.
nonsuit, practice as to, i. 535. grounds for granting, app. i. 636.

NICHOLAS (Pope). See Survey.

NIL DEBET. See Debt.
evidence on, ii. 369.
general rule, ii. 370.
effect of issue taken on, to a declaration on a bond, ii. 376. evidence under, before the new rules, ii. 369.
since the new rules, ii. 371. effect of joining issue on, where the plaintiff might have demurred, ii. 119.

NIL HABUIT IN TENEMENTIS, not pleadable by tenant against his landlord, iii. 1180.

NOLLE PROSEQUI,
entry of by commoner, ii. 319.

NON ACCESS. See Bastardy.

NON-AGE,
trial of, ii. 555.

NON ASSUMPSIT. See Assumpsit.
proof on issue taken on, ii. 131. evidence under, in case of bill of exchange, ii. 241.

NON CEPIT,
evidence on. See Replevin, iii. 969.

NON COMPOS,
who is, iii. 1278.

NON DETINET,
in debt, suggesting devastavit, is on the defendant, ii. 454.
evidence under plea of, ii. 388.

NON EST FACTUM. See Bond. proof on issue of, ii. 376.
evidence for the defendant, ii. 379.
plea of, is not a general issue, iii. 992.
under plea of, may be shown bond was taken after the return of the writ, ii. 119.
plea of in covenant, ii. 342. effect of plea of, ii. 268.
evidence under plea of, in case of covenant, ii. 342, 343.

NON FEASANCE,
does not amount to a conversion, iii. 1158.
not a conversion, when, ib.
action in respect of, from what time limitation runs, ii. 660.

NON-JOINDER,
of an assignee as plaintiff, ii. 174.

NON-RESIDENCE. See Rector.
proof in action for, ii. 308, 309, iii. 964.
proof of being parson, ii. 24.
action for time, how reckoned, iii. 964.

NONSUIT,
practice as to, i. 535.
where facts alleged do not prove a cause of action, app. i. 636. cannot be set aside by party electing to be non-suited, app. ii. iii. 1488.

NON TENUIT,
evidence on plea of, iii. 970, 971, 972, 973.

NOTARY,
certificate of, ii. 302.

NOTE OR MEMORANDUM, of contract for goods, what sufficient within the statute of frauds, ii. 490.

NOT GUILTY,
evidence under, in action of trespass, by the new rules, iii. 1118, 1119.
general issue in action of trespass, quære clausum fregit, ib.
evidence under, in action for malicious prosecution, ii. 682.
effect of plea in action against carrier, ii. 287.
in an action for libel, evidence under plea of, ii. 638.
evidence in issue, in an action against the sheriff, iii. 1017.
in trover, evidence under, iii. 1165.

NOT GUILTY—continued.
evidence under, app. ii. iii. 1488.
plea of, in action for maliciously outlawing the plaintiff, ii. 682.

NOTICE,
general rules as to, iii. 728, 729.
as to the laws of the realm, ib.
acts concerning land, ib.
every man answerable at his peril for the legality of his own act, ib.
of act of forfeiture, essential when, iii. 729.
one of several, notice to, effect of, ib.
under Act of Parliament, iii. 729, 730.
when in general necessary, ib.
what sufficient according to the rule in equity, iii. 730.
direct evidence of, iii. 731.
to produce a notice unnecessary, iii. 730. extent of the rule, ib.
when unnecessary, ib.
proof of duplicate notice, iii. 731.
service of, ib.
proof of copy written at the same time, ib.
must be entitled in the proper cause, ib.
where notice is alleged, not sufficient to prove circumstances in excuse, ib.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
recital in deed executed by the party, ib.
from reading newspaper, &c. iii. 732.
subscription of deed as a witness, ib.
notice essential to validity of a decree, &c. iii. 732.
proof of possession by the adversary, ib.
legal notice of adverse proceeding, ib.
general and equitable rule as to, ib.
notice to an agent, when sufficient, ib.
notice of disputing steps of bankruptcy, iii. 733.
insolvency, ib.
dishonour of bill, ib.
of value given, ib.
of distress, ib.
of disputing the value of goods sold, ib.
of robbery in action against the hundred, ib.
and see Husband and Wife—Justices—Partners—Policy of Insurance—Trespass.
effect of giving different notices, ii. 289.
of proceeding against a party essential to a conviction, ii. 589.
by commissioners under Inclosure Act, when presumed to have been given, ii. 117.
to the under-sheriff's agent in London not sufficient in an action against the sheriff, iii. 1013.
of bankruptcy to a corporation, what, ii. 169, 170.
of bankruptcy, when material, ii. 169. of dishonour of a bill to a stranger is unnecessary, ii. 265.
to what parties necessary, ib.
of dishonour of bill, ii. 225.
from any party is sufficient, ib.
of dishonour of bill need not be in writing, ii. 226.
by the post, when sufficient, ib. of dishonour of bill supplied by knowledge, ii. 235.

NOTICE—continued.
in case of framer of accommodation bill, ii. 235.
of dishonour of bill, rule as to time of, ii. 517.
of dishonour of bill, excuse for not giving, ii. 230.
necessity for giving, when superseded, ii. 232.
facts in excuse of, in action by indorsee against indorser of bill, ii. 235, 236.
of dishonour, general principle on which it is excused, ib.
of dishonour by indorsee of bill, ii. 236.
to prove value given for bill of exchange, ii. 221.
when necessary, ib.
of defect in bill, when material, ib.
of non-responsibility by a carrier, ii. 288, 289.
to whom sufficient, ii. 288.
to principal where goods were delivered to his agent, ib.
by advertisement, when effectual, ii. 289.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
to quit in ejectment, proof of, ii. 415.
proof of in an action on a guaranty, ii. 511.
of set-off not evidence of a debt, iii. 997.
to sheriff selling under an execution of previous act of bankruptcy, ii. 167.
of dissolution of partnership, proof of, iii. 812.
of action in trespass, iii. 1117.
of disputing the value of goods, &c. iii. 1210.
in case of warranty, iii. 1210, 1211. to determine tenancy, evidence of custom as to, ii. 362. 363.
in trover, when essential to a conversion, iii. 1159.
to quit disproves prior trespass, iii. 1118. to produce a document, i. 400.
time of, ib.
mode of giving, i. 401.
form of, ib.
when unnecessary, i. 403.
of particulars on indictment for barretry, ii. 304.
revocation, imports when, ii. 118. of prior act of bankruptcy, by issuing commission, ii. 172.
money paid over by an agent after, ii. 82.
of disputing value of goods, &c. when necessary, iii. 1210.
in case of warranty, ib.
of dissolution of partnership, effect of by way of admission, iii. 816.
of disputing consideration of bill of exchange, necessary, when, ii. 221.
to officer, when act not done colore officii, ii. 97.
of title, when essential to trover, iii. 1159.
of bankruptcy not proved by issuing fiat, ii. 170.
of dishonour, excuse for want of, ii. 235.
to principal, renders notice to his agent unnecessary, when, iii. 729.
to rescuer of felon, essential when, iii. 728.
of dishonour of bill of exchange, manner of, ii. 227.
of insolvency, proof of, ii. 167. effect of in creating lien, ii. 647.
of disputing bankruptcy, ii. 125.
omission to give effect of, ii. 126. judicial, general rule as to, app. i. 635. manner of proving, app. ii. iii. 1489.
of action, ib.
of appeal, ib.

NOTICE—continued.
proof of service of, app. ii. iii. 1489.
constructive, ib. 1490.

NOTICE BY THE COURT, i. 507. general customs of the realm, i. 508.
artificial regulations prescribed by public authority, ib.
computation of time by the calendar, i. 509.
known divisions of the kingdom, ib.
public matters recited in Acts of Parliament, ib.
royal proclamations, ib.
equitable objections to a title, iii. 1191. matters of legal presumption, i. 509.
a juror ought not to act on his own private knowledge, i. 510.

NOTICE OF ACTION,
in actions against justices, ii. 580.
when necessary, ib.
of action against commissioners and assignees under a commission of bankrupt, ii. 179.
when necessary in action against tollgate keepers, ii. 85.
necessary where the party acted bonâ fide under a statute requiring notice, ii. 597.
to justices, where necessary, ii. 580.
form of, ii. 581.
time of, ii. 583.

NOTIFICATION,
of intent to apprehend, when necessary, ii. 693.
of authority to arrest in case of murder, ii. 718.

NOTING,
of bill of exchange not known or distinguishable from protest, ii. 232.
of bill of exchange, use of, ib.

NUDUM PACTUM,
promise by executor, when a, ii. 448. 454.

NUISANCE,
to persons and personal property, iii. 733.
particulars of proof, ib.
proof of the nuisance, ib.
of the property, &c. ib.
general rule of law, ib.
keeping mischievous animals, iii. 734.
proof of the scienter, ib.
placing of spring-guns, iii. 735. negligence of coach-owner, iii. 728.
wilful injury, ib.
waiver of, ib.
negligence of agent, ib.
where there is an intermediate agent, iii. 737. provisions of the Pilot Act, 52 G. 3, c. 39, s. 30, iii. 739. liability of public commissioners, iii. 740.
of an occupier of land for non-repair of fences, ib.
damage, ib.
evidence in defence, iii. 741.
to real property, ib.
particulars of proof, iii. 742, 743.
variance, iii. 742.

NUISANCE—continued.
proof of incorporeal right, iii. 743.
presumptive evidence of, iii. 743, 744.
in case of lights, iii. 744.
market, ib.
act of injury by the defendant, iii. 745.
continuance of nuisance, ib.
notice, when necessary, ib.
damage, iii. 747.
proof in defence, iii. 748.
evidence of, by way of admission, ii. 24.
question of bridge, when amounting to, ii. 272.
to reversionary interest, iii. 978.
action for against a canal company, proof necessary in, iii. 1253.
by agent, liability for, iii. 737.
by building bridge, ii. 273.
action for excluded by plaintiff's negligence, when, iii. 741. 746.
proof under general issue, app. ii. iii. 1494. agency, proof of, ib. 1491. proof of injury, ib. 1492.
rule as to vessels, ib. 1493. indictment for, ib. 1496.
to a railway, ib.

NULLUM TEMPUS OCCURRIT ECCLESIÆ,
a maxim of law, iii. 1084.

NULLUM TEMPUS OCCURRIT REGI,
application of the maxim, iii. 915.
grant presumable against the Crown, when, iii. 915, 916.

NUL TIEL RECORD,
variance from in allegation of name, i. 478.

NUMBER,
of parties, variance as to, i. 477.
effect of variance from, i. 440.
of witnesses, observations as to, i. 550.
two required by the civil law, ib. of witnesses, effect of in measuring the force of testimony, i. 553.

OATH,
obligation of, one great test of truth, i. 16. 21, 22.
in what it consists, i. 21.
who may be sworn, ib.
form of the oath, i. 21, 22.
infamous witness cannot be sworn, i. 16.
interested witness, ib.
must be a judicial oath, i. 22.
this test excludes hearsay evidence, i. 25. 27. 36, 37. 39. 41.
exceptions, reputation, &c. i. 27, 28, 29.
traditionary declarations, i. 42.
affirmations of Quakers, i. 23.
in general essential to evidence, i. 21, 22.
extends to peers, i. 23.
children, ib.
witnesses for prisoners, ib.
formerly otherwise, ib.
statutes relating to witnesses for prisoners, i. 23, 24.
must be administered in open court, ib.

OATH—continued.
Quaker, affirmation of, when allowed, i. 23.
competency, religious belief, what questions to be asked, i. 93.
infant examined as to his competency before he goes before the grand jury, i. 94.
questions to be put to a witness previous to administering an oath, ib.
examination of child as to competency to take an oath, ib.
course taken when incompetent from under age, ib.
must be taken by a child, i. 24.
confession of prisoner made on, not receivable, ii. 38.
multiplication of, in ancient times, i. 10.
not to disclose communications excludes evidence, when, ii. 322 of allegiance, &c. ii. 338. form of, to be administered to a witness, app. i. 589. provisions of stat. 1 & 2 Vict. c. 105, as to, ib.
affirmation by a Quaker, ib.
by a seceding Quaker, ib.

OATHS,
declaration in lieu of test, app. ii. iii. 1496.

OBEDIENCE to warrant, proof of acting in, ii. 595.

OBLIGATION,
legal promise implied from, ii. 69.
moral, ii. 90.
party bound without sealing, when, ii. 377.
variance from allegation of, i. 506.

OCCUPANT
of tenement, declaration by, when admissible, ii. 33.

OCCUPATION,
by lessee, an occupation by the lessor, iii. 1176.
proof of in action for use and occupation, iii. 1175. ceases, when, iii. 1176.

ODO,
bishop of Baieux, trial before, i. 6.

OFFICE,
title to, when triable in action for money had and received, ii. 83.
saleable, passes under a commission of bankrupt, ii. 176.
proof of title to, ii. 307.
title to, how triable, ii. 83.
by assumpsit, M. H. R, when, ib. incompatible holding an, effect of, iii. 749.

OFFICE COPY,
admissible when, i. 226, ii. 336. 749.
of deposition admissible, when, i. 326.
of rule, sufficient to prove order for making submission to reference a rule of court, ii. 117.

OFFICE, PUBLIC,
proof of serving, iii. 1003.

OFFICER, PUBLIC,
acting as agent, when liable, ii. 46.
liability on contracts, iii. 1170.
for acts of negligence, ib.

OFFICER, PUBLIC—continued.
entry by deputy of, when admissible, i. 341, 342. duty of, in executing a warrant, ii. 596, 597. See Constable. of justice, killing of, when murder, ii. 716.

OFFICER,
judicial, who, iii. 750.
not liable in trespass, when, ib.
affirmations in lieu of, app. ii. iii. 1296.
taking oath by proof of, ib. 1497.

OFFICERS. See Justices—Constables, &c. of excise, iii. 749.
of customs, &c. ib.
action against, ib.
notice of action, iii. 750.
authorized certificates by, when evidence, ib.
steward of a court baron a judicial officer, ib.

OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS. See Libel.

OLD WRITINGS. See Instruments of Evidence.

OMISSION,
to plead matter, when conclusive, i. 268.

OMNIA RITE ESSE ACTA, presumption of law, iii. 935.

ONE OF SEVERAL,
an act by, the act of all, when, ii. 456.
authority to bind the rest, ii. 206.
admission by, ii. 205.
partner's act or declaration of, when admissible against the rest, iii. 800.
partner, admission by, iii. 805. promise by one of several indorsees, when evidence against the rest, ii. 239. executors, a release by, binds the rest, ii. 454.
discharge by one of several assignees of a bankrupt effectual, when, ii. 179.
admission by one of several wrong-doers, when evidence against the rest, iii. 1113.
satisfaction to, effect of, iii. 803.
partners, fraud by, effect of, ib.
satisfaction to, a satisfaction to all, when, ii. 249.
indorsers of bill, ib.
creditors, tender to, iii. 1068.
request to, ib.
acceptance by, effect of, ii. 205.
partners, acceptance by, ii. 241.
when binding on the rest, ib.
indorsement by, ii. 218.
indorsers, promise by, ii. 239.
owners, demand of goods by, iii. 1163.
notice to, when sufficient, ii. 229. 258, iii. 728, 729.
act by one of several, when binding, &c. ii. 108.
partners, effect of the bankruptcy of one, iii. 802.
non-joinder of, effect of, iii. 803.
may be found guilty in action for misfeasance, ii. 286.
satisfaction to, iii. 802.

ONE OF SEVERAL—continued.
action by, iii. 803.
notice to, when sufficient, iii. 729.
jointly entitled, discharge by, effect of, ii. 179.
joint creditors, tender to, sufficient as to all, iii. 1070. trespassers, admission by, effect of, iii. 1113.

ONUS PROBANDI,
lies on the party who alleges the affirmation, i. 418.
who has peculiar means of knowledge, i. 420.
otherwise where the negative involves a criminal omission, ib.
and in general, where the law presumes the affirmative, ib.
on issue on plea in abatement, i. 428.
appeal against an order of removal, ib.
against an order of bastardy, ib.
in account, ii. 18.
in replevin, iii. 909.
general rule as to, app. i. 623.

OPERATION OF LAW,
assignment by, effect of, ii. 346.

OPINION,
of underwriters, admissibility of, iii. 887.
agreement to be bound by, effect of, ii. 116.

OPINIONS,
on questions of skill and judgment, ii. 517.
as to genuineness of handwriting, when admissible, ib.

ORAL EVIDENCE. See tit. Parol Evidence. priority of consideration, i. 77.
when admissible notwithstanding written evidence on same point, iii. 790, 791.
of contract, when excluded, i. 505.
of writing, admissible, when, ib.

ORDEAL,
the abolition of the trial by, its effect on the trial by jury, i. 7.
the trial by ordeal partly occasioned by inability to decide by circumstances, i. 10.
fell into disuse, when, i. 7. election of, app. ii. iii. 1497.

ORDER,
of Lord Chancellor for superseding a commission, whether admissible, ii. 607.
of court, proof of, ii. 117.
of Judge, proof of, i. 309. of justices, in settlement cases, effect of, i. 294, iii. 1006.
of justices, when made corruptly, remedy against, ii. 588.
form of, prescribed by a statute, must be used, when, ib.
of justices, form of, ii. 593.
should pursue the words of the statute, ib.
for stopping a footway, ii. 593.
of justices to collect a composition in lieu of statute duty, what essential to, ii. 586.
for payment of labourers' wages, ib.
for wages, what essential to sue, ib.
of sessions, conclusive when, ii. 582.
for goods, evidence for vendee, when, although time and price are not mentioned, ii. 790.

ORDER—continued.
how impeachable, app. ii. iii. 1479. of Chancellor, validity, ii. 124.

ORDER OF COUNCIL,
recognition by, that particular places are in the possession of an enemy, is an evidence of the fact, iii. 1236.

ORDER OF PROOF. See Onus Probandi. defendant when entitled to begin, i. 428. justification, i. 426.
appeal, ib.
where there are several pleas and issues, ib.
by different defendants, ib.
in case of several issues, app. i. 627.

ORDER OF REMOVAL,
effect of, iii. 1005.

ORDINARY,
certificate by, effect of, i. 285.
in cases of marriage and bastardy, i. 285, 286, 287, 288, 289.
proof of right to pew, against the, iii. 866.
right to dispose of seats in a church, iii. 862.

ORDINATION,
proof of, in case of marriage, ii. 703.

OUSTER,
from a rectory, not proved by evidence of taking tithes only, ii. 431.
of joint-tenant, what amounts to, ii. 430.

OUTER DOOR,
not to be broken in execution of civil process, when, ii. 718.

OUTLAWRY,
competency of party outlawed, i. 97.
malicious, ii. 682.

OUVERTURE DE LA FACILITE, established, when, app. ii. iii. 1424.

OVERCHARGES,
by agent, principal entitled to recover for, ii. 47.

OVERSEER. See Churchwarden—Settlement.
proof of appointment of, ii. 308.
presumption as to custody of appointment of, 390.
custom to appoint separate, ii. 358.
evidence of request to a surgeon to attend a pauper, iii. 1299.
a trespasser in executing distress for a rate illegally made, ii. 438.
books of rates to be kept by, i. 246. provisions of stat. 17 G. 2, c. 38, s. 14, ib.
of 42 G. 3, c. 46, as to parish apprentices, ib. proof to justify appointment of overseers for a subdivision, iii. 750, 751. whether a parish can have the benefit of the stat. of Eliz. is a question of fact, iii. 750.
appointment of, may be by parol, iii. 751. action against, for not returning surplus, under 27 G. 2, c. 20, s. 2, ib.
for money lent, ib.
for refusing inspection, &c. iii. 752.

OVERSEER—continued.
action against, for supplying poor with provisions, iii. 752.
appointment of, how questionable, app. ii. iii. 1497.
appointment of, in a parish containing several chapelries, ib.
refusing to deliver up book, commitment of, 591.
omission by, to sign the burgess list, ib.

OVERSEERS OF PARISH, constitute one officer, iii. 750.
money paid by request of one of several, whether recoverable against all, iii. 751.

OVERT ACT. See Treason.

OWNER,
declaration by, when admissible against one claiming title through him, ii. 33.

OWNER OF LAND,
guilty of a nuisance when, in digging, iii. 743.

OWNERS OF PACKET employed by Government, liable for stores ordered by captain, iii. 1301.

OWNERSHIP,
acts of, evidence to prove title, iii. 1125, 1126.
on other lands, when evidence, ib.
acts of necessity for, to give weight to ancient documents, i. 68.
proof of, on charge of larceny, ii. 607.
of property, proof of, on indictment for obtaining, &c. ii. 456.
of dwelling-house in case of burglary, ii. 280.

PARCEL OR NOT,
provable by extrinsic evidence, iii. 773, 774.

PACKER,
lien of, ii. 649.

PARDON,
promise of, does not take away competency, ii. 11.
effect of statutes which entitle offender to a pardon on discovery, &c. ib.
justice of peace has no authority to promise pardon, ib.
effect of, to restore competency, i. 100.
7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, s. 13, provisions of, 101.
9 G. 4, c. 12, s. 3, provisions of, ib.

PARENTS
may give evidence to bastardise issue, ii. 10.

PARISH,
variance in description of, i. 465.
parish books, when evidence, i. 245.
vestry-book, entry in as to a pew, ib.
book from parish chest not evidence to prove parish certificate, i. 246.
election of treasurer of, i. 245. of rates and assessments, i. 246.
of parish apprentices, ib.
variance from description of, i. 468, 469.
evidence of conspiracy to charge, ii. 330.
proof of cause of action within a particular parish in a penal action, iii. 848.

PARISHIONERS,
rated, admissions by, ii. 28.
liability of, on order to repair a church, iii. 1172.

PARISH REGISTER,
when admissible, i. 243.
proof of, i. 22. 228. 247.

PARLIAMENT,
a member of, not examinable as to what has passed in parliament, i. 185.
journals of, evidence of, i. 228.
prorogation of, noticed by courts, i. 508.
member of, act of bankruptcy, ii. 194. certificate by Speaker of House of Commons, under 3 Vict. c. 9, is conclusive, app. ii. iii. 1498.

PARLIAMENTARY SURVEYS,
under the Commonwealth, admissibility of, i. 237.
evidence, when, iii. 1091.

PAROL EVIDENCE,
admission of, with reference to written evidence, iii. 752.
general principle, ib.
general rules, iii. 752, 753.
not admissible
to supersede written evidence, iii. 753.
by supplying a defect, &c. ib.
apparent and latent ambiguities, iii. 755. apparent ambiguity, what within the rule, ib.
not admissible to remove an apparent ambiguity, iii. 755.
nor to contradict or vary the meaning of a written agreement, iii. 757, 758.
or to extend or limit the terms of a written agreement, ib.
nor to contradict it, ib.
nor to extend or limit its terms, ib.
nor to contradict the consideration expressed, ib.
although a further consideration may be proved, ib.
nor to add an exception or qualification, ib.
nor to show a difference prior or contemporary agreement, ib nor to add to the terms, iii. 760.
nor to alter the legal operation of an agreement, iii. 761.
nor to alter the terms of a will, ib.
nor to explain the intention of a testator, ib.
nor to vary the legal construction of a will, iii. 762.
situation and circumstances of the testator, when admitted to aid the construction of a will of personality, iii. 764.
but not admissible to support a construction different from that which the words themselves imply, iii. 764, 765.
admissible to disprove an instrument, ib.
in case of fraud, ib.
by showing its illegality, iii. 766.
to prove mistake, iii. 766, 767.
to discharge a written instrument, iii. 768.
admissible in aid of written evidence, ib.
to establish it in evidence, ib.
to apply its terms, ib.
to remove a latent ambiguity, iii. 768, 769, 770, 771, 772.
to show whether parcel or not, iii. 773.

PAROL EVIDENCE—continued. to explain ancient charters, iii. 775.
where the terms are doubtful, ib.
otherwise where the words are plain, ib.
and otherwise of private deeds, iii. 778.
to explain mercantile contracts, ib.
to annex customary incidents, iii. 781.
to rebut a presumption, iii. 783, 784.
secus, where the revocation is by act of law, iii. 784.
as to the state and circumstances of a testator, admissible when, iii. 784.
for the purpose of determining the meaning of the testator's words, iii. 785.
independent force and effect of, ib.
admissible conjunctively with written, when, ib.
written, when exclusive, ib.
matters of record, iii. 786.
examinations of prisoners, ib.
official returns, ib.
not exclusive, when, ib.
entry in parish register, ib.
proclamations, ib.
gazette, ib.
receipts, ib.
confession, when, ib.
as to what facts inconclusive inter partes, ib.
in case of record, iii. 786.
facts which consist with the instrument, iii. 788.
consideration, iii. 788, 789.
variation of contract within statute of frauds by subsequent oral agreement, iii. 789.
as to a further and more general agreement, ib.
as to a collateral and distinct contract, ib.
to show a substitution of contract, ib.
inconclusive against strangers, when, iii. 790.
judgment in rem. conclusive, ib.
record admissible, but not conclusive, ib. against an accessory, ib.
agreement or deed, ib.
general rule as to independent operation, iii. 790, 791.
when letters are dubious, without the aid of extrinsic evidence, their meaning is to be ascertained by a jury, iii. 793.
a defective instrument may be used conjunctively with parol evidence, when, ib.
to prove time of holding admissible, when, ii. 363.
what sufficient to exclude in action for use and occupation, iii. 1178.
inadmissible to vary contract apparent on bill, ii. 241.
of foreign law, when admissible, ii. 459.
admissible to apply a verdict or judgment, i. 265.
when admissible to remove an ambiguity in the case of a will, iii. 1269.
inadmissible when, as superseding, &c. app. ii. iii. 1498.
to contradict, &c. ib. 1398.
in the case of a will, ib. 1499.
as explanatory, ib.
in case of fraud, ib. 1500.
as collateral, ib.

PARSON. See Quare Impedit—Rector. title of, to the chief seat in a chancel, iii. 864.

PART,
if part of entire document be read, the whole is evidence, i. 414.
proof of, when sufficient, iii. 1122.
in pleadings in trespass, ib.
in trespass, sufficient to take possession of part for the whole, iii. 1100.
of an entire claim not transferable, app. ii. iii. 1501.

PART ASSIGNMENT,
act of bankruptcy, when, ii. 139.

PART DELIVERY, effect of, in action on sale of goods, iii. 1212.

PART OWNER,
admission by, effect of, ii. 32.
lien of, ii. 649.
are partners, when, iii. 801.
proof of being, by the register, in the case of a ship, app. ii. iii. 1512.
underwriter liable to, after receiving amount of loss on policy, iii. 892.

PART PERFORMANCE. See Assumpsit. takes a case out of the statute of frauds, when, ii. 490.

PARTES FINIS NIHIL HABUERUNT, plea of, ii. 458.

PARTIAL,
proof, when sufficient, i. 432.
insufficient where the allegation is entire, i. 401.
insufficient, when, i. 438.
proof of justification, ii. 319.
of plea, &c., effect of, in trespass, iii. 1122.

PARTIAL FAILURE,
of consideration, when a defence, ii. 243.

PARTICEPS CRIMINIS, is competent as a witness, ii. 10.
excluded from recovering, when, ii. 96.
who considered to be, in an action of money had and received, ii. ib.
general rule, ii. 96.

PARTICULARS,
affidavit for, app. ii. iii. 1501.
granted, when, ib.
in case of an indenture, ib.
rule of courts as to, iii. 793.
defects in, iii. 794.
effect of, by way of admission, iii. 795.
refused, when, app. ii. iii. 1501. sufficiency and effect of, ib. 1502. amendment of, ib. 1504.

PARTICULARS, BILL OF,
object of, iii. 793.
sufficiency of, iii. 794.
objection to defective particulars, ib.
how taken, ib.
defect in, ib.
when immaterial, iii. 795.

PARTICULARS, BILL OF—continued.
effect of, by way of admission, iii. 795.
how far restrictive, iii. 796.
plaintiff may claim beyond the particulars on defendant's evidence, ib.
effect of omission to deliver particulars, iii. 797.
of breaches of covenant in ejectment, ii. 421.
of objections to title, iii. 1192. of set-off, time of objecting to, iii. 997.
interest recoverable though not mentioned in, ii. 241

PARTIES,
admission by. See tit. Admission.
ground of their incompetency, iii. 797. party allowed to be examined, when, ib.
corporator, ib.
inhabitants of parish, &c. iii. 798.
party to the record, ib.
acquittal of co-defendant against whom there is no evidence, iii. 799.
co-defendant cannot be examined by a plaintiff, ib.
competent for a co-defendant when, ib.
defendant in ejectment after judgment by default competent for either party, ib.
co-defendant in assumpsit, after judgment by default, not competent for defendant, iii. 799, 800.
otherwise when he has pleaded bankruptcy, and plaintiff has entered a nolle pros., iii. 799.
variance as to parties, i. 417, iii. 799, 800.
direction of court of equity to examine a party, ii. 796.
to an action, iii. 797, 798.
in case of contract, iii. 802.
action may be brought in the name of the agent by whom the contract was made, or of the principal, ib.
plaintiffs in action on the case, ii. 297.
variance from allegation of, i. 473, 474.
in case of principal and agent, ib. power to examine, extent of, ii. 118.
in case of bankruptcy,
suit by assignees of a bankrupt partner, ii. 802.
to bill of exchange, variance from allegation of, i. 490. incompetency of, iii. 797.
one of several, acquittal of, iii. 798.
several may sue, when, although the contract be with one only, iii. 801.
in action on case, ii. 297. acquittal of prisoner in felony to make him a witness against others, app. ii. iii. 1504.

PARTNERS,
identified in law, to what extent, iii. 800.
presumption as to mutual authority to act, ib.
how rebutted, ib.
rules of evidence as to, on what considerations founded, iii. 801.
action by several, ib.
proof of partnership, ib.
assignees of partners, action by, iii. 802.
satisfaction to one of several, iii. 803.
act of one of several binding on the rest, ib.

PARTNERS—continued.
illegal act of one affects the other who sues jointly with him, iii. 803.
non-joinder of partner a ground of nonsuit, ib.
a retired partner need not be joined, though his name be used, ib.
action against several partners, iii. 804.
proof of partnership, iii. 804, 805, 806.
admission by one of several, iii. 805, 806.
defence by, iii. 809.
proof of notice not to trust, iii. 810.
of fraud and covin, ib.
dissolution of partnership, iii. 811.
proof of notice of, iii. 812, 813.
when unnecessary, iii. 813.
proof in answer to notice, ib.
proof of non-joinder on plea in abatement, iii. 814.
joinder of demands, ib.
actions inter se, &c. iii. 815.
evidence of balance struck, ib.
implied promise, ib.
notice of dissolution evidence of the fact, ib.
competency, ii. 4.
action by against another, when maintainable, ii. 99.
authority of one of several to bind the rest, ii. 205.
by drawing of bill, &c. ib.
admission or declaration by one of several, when evidence, ii. 31.
answer of in equity, i. 332.
may set off debt, when, iii. 995.
evidence of secret partner not admissible, ii. 2.
notice, &c. to one, when sufficient, ii. 108.
deceased, receipt of money by, ii. 79.
deceased, when unnecessary to name, ii. 94.
admission by, ii. 31.
fiat against, ii. 123.
effect of fraud by one, ii. 152.
actions between, in respect of balance, ii. 99.
implied authority of, ii. 204.
liability on promissory note, ii. 2.
proof of being, app. ii. iii. 1505.
pleading account as to deceased partner, ib.
action by public officer, ib.
by Bank of England, action by, ib. 1506.
by one of several, ib.
actions against, notice, ib. 1507.
against several, ib.
proof of by representation made, &c. ib. 1508.
defence, illegality, &c. ib. 1509. actions for calls, ib.
under Railway Act, ib. 1511.
liability of, inter se, ib.
execution against, ib. 1512.
conspiracy, ib.

PARTNERSHIP,
proof of in action by several partners, ii. 59.
proof of, when a bar, ii. 100.
dissolution of, iii. 812.
proof of, iii. 804.

PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY, interest in, under execution against property of one, iii. 803.

PARTY,
may be bound by deed without sealing, when, ii. 377.
admission by in evidence, ii. 28.
admissions by party on record always evidence against him, ib.
really interested, admission by, ib.
in case of indemnity, ii. 29. action on policies, ib.
not allowed to discredit his own witness, i. 215.
but in some cases allowed to contradict him, i. 216.
liability of for negligence of agent, ii 286.
action for negligence should be brought against the principal, ii. 284.
identified in situation and interest, administration by, i. 34.
attending execution, liable when, iii. 1140.

PARTY-WALL,
evidence of, iii. 1126.
property in, iii. 1127.

PASTURE,
common of, ii. 314.
proof of right of common of, ii. 316.

PATENT. See Privilege.
recital of surrender of, ii. 21. consideration paid for, whether recoverable, the patent being void, ii. 90, 91.

PATENTEE,
title of proof by exemplification, iii. 957.

PAUPER,
legal obligation to maintain, ii. 69.
action for medical attendance on, ib.
evidence of conspiracy to marry, &c. ii. 330.
ex parte examination of, not evidence in a settlement case, ii. 438.
does not occupy parochial house as tenant, i. 437.
liability of parish overseer for attendance on by parish surgeon, iii. 1299.

PAWNBROKERS,
contract by, when illegal, app. ii. iii. 1512.
charges by, what allowed, ib.

PAYEE OF BILL,
proof in action by, ii. 222.

PAYMENT,
evidence under the general issue, when, iii. 818.
onus probandi lies on party seeking to discharge himself, ib.
direct evidence of, iii. 819.
to an agent, ib.
proof of his authority, iii. 820.
mode of payment, ib.
by a bill or note, &c. iii. 822.
remittance of bill by post, iii. 822, 823.

PAYMENT—continued.
by compulsion of law, effect of, iii. 823.
presumptive evidence of, ib.
transfer of money primâ facie evidence of payment, ib.
presumption from lapse of time, ib. receipt for later rent, iii. 824. application of payment, ib.
to be made by the debtor, ib.
in default may be made by the creditor, ib.
application by the law, ib.
payment after ceasing to trade, ib.
new and old debts, iii. 826.
legal and equitable claim, ib.
retiring partner, ib.
surety, ib.
to broker, by one indebted in respect of goods of several vendors, ib.
legal and illegal claim, iii. 826, 827.
solvit ad diem, ib.
payment of money into court, iii. 828. effect of it, iii. 828, 829, 830, 831, 832.
in an action of covenant, ib.
taking money out of court, iii. 832.
not conclusive to show that no more was due, ib.
money paid into court not recoverable, ib. to a bankrupt. See Bankrupt.
plea of solvit post diem, proof of under, ii. 270.
may be alleged in money, although the vendor took a chattel in part payment, iii. 1241.
of money, proof of, in an action by a surety, iii. 1060.
by bill of exchange, effect of, ii. 265.
by notes payable to third person, ii. 266.
under legal authority, protected when, i. 288.
enforced by coercion of law, valid, ii. 182.
is protected when made under a legal compulsory authority at the time, ii. 443.
notwithstanding subsequent revocation, ib.
to one who has obtained probate under a forged will, is good, ib.
for goods bought of bankrupt, when protected, ii. 169.
under forged order no discharge, ii. 250.
by dishonoured bill, does not bar an action for the goods sold, iii. 1216.
by bill or note, when a satisfaction of the debt, ii. 265.
constructive, ii. 74.
authority to receive, ii. 43.
to sheriff by debtor in execution, not valid, iii. 1023.
to the agent of the vendor discharges the principal, when, iii. 819.
voluntary, will not support an action, ii. 87. 92.
party paying may tender receipt and demand payment for the stamp, iii. 954.
right to begin, app. ii. iii. 1513.
proof as to, under particular pleas, ib.
admission by particulars, ib. 1514.
by whom, &c. ib.
to whom, &c. ib.
evidence of the fact of, ib.
presumptive evidence of, ib. 1515.
application of, ib.

PAYMENT—continued.
in reduction of damages, app. ii. iii. 1516.
into court, plea of, ib.
admission by, ib.
must in all cases be pleaded, iii. 828.
by defendant of debt and costs a discharge, when, ii. 689.
effect of bill of exchange, ii. 264.
new rules as to pleading, iii. 818.
must be pleaded in bar, ii. 105. authority to receive, presumable when, ii. 42.
what sufficient under the bankrupt Act, s. 82, ii. 171.
of debt by debtor in execution a defence, when, iii. 1022.
of rent, plea of, satisfied by proof of payment to landlord's mortgagee, iii. 974.
to wife, when sufficient, iii. 975.

PAYMENT OF MONEY INTO COURT, admits the character in which plaintiff sues, ii. 14.
on covenant admits the deed, i. 371.

PAYMENT OF RENT, evidence of seisin, ii. 458.

PEACE,
admission made for purpose of, ii. 26.
offer for purpose of buying, not admissible, ii. 239.

PEACEABLE ENTRY
is justifiable, ii. 459.

PEACE OFFICER. See Constable—Warrant. execution of warrant by, ii. 596, 597.
proof of being, ii. 307.

PEDIGREE,
requisites to be proved, iii. 832.
presumptive evidence of, iii. 833.
cohabitation, &c. ib.
declarations, iii. 834.
by whom made, ib.
proof of death, iii. 835.
absence of suspicion, iii. 835, 836.
declaration made post litem motam, iii. 837.
lis mota what for this purpose, iii. 838.
necessary to prove knowledge of the lis mota by the declarant, ib.
distinctions between traditionary declarations in matters of pedigree, and those relating to ancient rights, iii. 841.
declarations as to what facts admissible in questions of pedigree, ib.
answers in equity, iii. 836.
deposition in equity, ib.
entries in family bible, iii. 836, 837.
other written entries and descriptions, iii. 842, 843.
bill in chancery, iii. 842.
inscriptions on rings and tomb-stones, &c. ib.
papers found in drawer of person last seised, ib.
general reputation, iii. 843, 844, 845.
proof of death, iii. 845.
competency, ib.
declarations of persons deceased, ib.

PEDIGREE—continued.
not provable by bill in equity, i. 331.
depositions, when evidence of, ib. mere extract from records of Herald's College not admissible, i. 250.
proof of by a judgment, i. 297.
principle on which reputation is admitted to prove, i. 29.
probate of will, admissibility of, app. ii. iii. 1517.
funeral certificate, ib.

PEER,
entitled to benefit of clergy without burning in the hand, i. 98.
plea of misnomer by, ii. 3. proof of title by, app. ii. iii. 1517.
description of in an indictment, ib. 1519.

PEERAGE,
plea of, ii. 3.
proof of title to, app. ii. ii. 1517.

PEERS, HOUSE OF,
the only tribunal to determine claims to dignities, app. ii. iii. 1519.

PENAL ACTION,
particulars of proof, iii. 846.
onus probandi, in case of negative, ib.
averment of contract, ib.
apprenticeship, ib.
variance, ib.
time, ib.
amount of penalties, iii. 847.
county, ib.
sale of coals, iii. 848.
driving distress out of hundred, ib.
usury, ib.
non-residence, ib.
change of venue, ib.
parish, variance, ib.
description by popular name, iii. 849.
commencement of action, ib.
defence, iii. 850.
proviso, exception, ib.
recovery by third person, ib.
competency, ib.
former recovery, ib.
prohibited goods, app. ii. iii. 1521.
slaves, ib. 1522.
proof of negative, when necessary, ib. 1519.
hawker, sale by, ib.
fraudulent removal, general issue, ib. 1520.
harbouring goods, ib.
master of ship, ib.
officer, ib.
overseer, ib. 1521.
pilot, ib.
plays, ib.
post-office, ib.

PENALTY,
question whether penalty intended, on what it depends, iii. 851.
form of the instrument, ib.
intention of parties, ib.
intention to be collected from the instrument, iii. 852.
amount not decisive, ii. 121. recovery of against servant, bar to an action for seducing, ii. 300.

PENCIL,
indorsement in, ii. 234.

PERAMBULATION,
evidence of boundary, i. 33. See Boundary. admissible to prove boundary, when, app. i. 602.

PERFORMANCE,
averment and proof of. See Assumpsit. of works, a condition precedent to the right to recover the price, iii. 1303, 1304.
proof of, in action for work and labour, iii. 1303.

PER FRAUDEM,
replication of to plea of outstanding bonds, ii. 452, 453.

PERJURY,
indictment for, iii. 854.
particulars of proof, ib.
authority to administer the oath, ib. occasion of administering the oath, iii. 855.
variance from, iii. 857.
proof of taking the oath, ib.
identity of defendant, iii. 856, 857.
variance as to the oath, iii. 857, 858. substance and effect of matter sworn, iii. 858.
omission to prove the whole, ib.
averments and innuendos, iii. 859.
materiality of matter sworn, ib.
falsity of matter sworn, ib.
proof of one assignment sufficient, iii. 860.
proof of corrupt intent, ib.
subornation, ib.
proof in defence, ib.
competency, ib.
proof on indictment against a bankrupt for, ii. 190.
proof of abatement of action, ii. 4.
rude and uneducated nations most addicted to, i. 10.
proof on indictment for, app. ii. iii. 1522.
defendant may show abatement of action, &c. ii. 4. indictment against bankrupt for, ii. 190.

PERMISSION to occupy, evidence of, iii. 1177, 1178.

PERSON LAWFULLY AUTHORIZED, who is a, within the provisions of the statute of frauds, ii. 485.

PERSONAL ESTATE,
shares in water-works company, app. ii. iii. 1523.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY, of trustees of roads taken away, iii. 1172.

PERSONALTY,
title to, after annexation to the freehold, iii. 866.

PERSONATION,
effect of, in forgery, ii. 463.

PETITIONING CREDITOR, cannot dispute the amount of the debt, ii. 175.

PETIT TREASON. See Murder.

PEW, right to, recognised merely as an easement appurtenant to a messuage, iii. 861.
right, how obtained, iii. 862.
proof by faculty, ib.
indirect by evidence of use, iii. 863, 864.
aisle in a church, lord of a manor may prescribe for, ib.
seat in body of church, householder may prescribe for, iii. 864.
or claim by faculty, ib.
so for seat in the chancel, ib.
aisles, lesser chancels and chapels, how regarded by the law, ii. 430.
aisle or chapel may be part of private freehold, ib.
right to pew in body of church cannot be claimed by resident in another parish, ib.
secus of a seat in an aisle, ib.
presumptions as to faculties, iii. 863, 864.
severable by contract, when, iii. 865.
evidence in action for disturbance of, ib.
incumbent may maintain trespass for disturbance of the freehold of, from the body of the church, iii. 866.
action for disturbance of, ii. 395. action for disturbing possessor's title, when sufficient, app. ii. iii. 1523.

PHYSICIAN,
one who signs himself M. D., concluded by his representation, ii. 22.
examinable as to confidential communications, ii. 322.
proof of being, ii. 307.

PILOT,
negligence of, effect of, iii. 739.

PILOT ACT,
stat. 52 G. 3, c. 39, s. 30, provisions of, iii. 739.
owner or master not liable for negligence of pilot, ib.
effect of, as to the liability of the master of a vessel, ib.

PIRACY. See Privilege.

PISCARY,
common of, ii. 314.

PLACE,
allegation of, formal when, i. 465.
in doubtful cases ascribed to venue, ib.
description of, when it may be regarded as surplusage, i. 465, 466.
allegation of, when descriptive, i. 467, 468.
in action against a carrier, i. 467. trespass, i. 468.

PLACE—continued.
of premises in other cases, i. 468.
parish, i. 469.
execution of deed, variance from, effect of, i. 486.

PLACE IN WHICH,
meaning of, iii. 1124.

PLACE OF DEPOSIT,
what to be considered the proper, app. i. 608.

PLAINTIFF, negligence by, excludes an action for a nuisance, when, iii. 741. 746.

PLEA,
to declaration, effect of in evidence, i. 377.
admission of fact alleged in, effect of, ii. 19, 20.
of puis darrein continuance, ii. 183. delivery of without notice, &c. ii. 124.
denying plaintiffs to be assignees, effect of, iii. 173.
not evidence to prove a fact denied in another plea, iii. 997.

PLEADINGS,
at law, admissibility of, i. 337.
elements of, i. 3.
admission in, i. 499.
traverse of prescriptive right claimed as appurtenant to an ancient messuage, admits the seisin, iii. 1258.
allegation in one count not evidence to prove fact stated in another, i. 337.
protestation, use of, i. 338.
pleadings, office of, i. 3.
what matters are admitted by, i. 499.
not admissible as evidence, app. i. 613.

PLEDGE,
of goods, under stat. 4 G. 4, c. 83, ii. 42.

PLENE ADMINISTRAVIT,
on issue when on plea of, it lies on the plaintiff to prove assets, i. 119.
proof under plea of, ii. 447.
evidence to support the plea, ii. 449.
evidence under, ii. 445.

PLURAL AND SINGULAR,
variance between, i. 488.

POLICY,
exclusion of evidence on grounds of, i. 70.
witness not to disclose names of those to whom information has been given of practices against the state, i. 71.
nor to prove the accuracy of a map of the Tower, ib.
nor to disclose official communications, i. 72.
nor minutes taken before the privy council, ib.
nor letters written to a secretary of state, ib.
examination as to what facts excluded on the ground of, i. 184, 185.
exclusion of evidence on grounds of, i. 70.
in case of husband and wife, ib.
confidential communications, ib. extent of the privilege, i. 71. See vol. ii. tit. Confidential Communication.

POLICY—continued.
witness not bound to criminate himself, i. 74 grounds of state policy, ib.

POLICY OF INSURANCE,
particulars of proof, iii. 866.
policy, proof of, ib.
signing of, ib.
by agent, ib.
alteration of, iii. 867.
construction of, ib.
interest, proof of, ib.
in case of ship, iii. 868.
possession evidence of ownership, ib when disproved by register, ib.
proof by register, when essential, ib proof by evidence of transfer, ib.
requisitions of registry acts, iii. 868, 869.
object of the registry acts, iii. 870.
neglect to comply with registry acts, ib transfer to another port, iii. 869.
registry not evidence of ownership, iii. 870 evidence to disprove ownership, ib.
interest in goods, iii. 871.
variance in, proof of, iii. 872.
inception of risk, iii. 873.
deviation, effect of, ib.
warranty, compliance with, iii. 874 legality of voyage, iii. 875.
license, ib.
proof of loss, iii. 876.
presumptive evidence of, iii. 878
by capture, iii. 879.
foreign sentence, ib.
books at Lloyd's, ib.
barratry, ib.
amount of loss, iii. 880.
abandonment, ib.
notice of, ib.
form and manner of the notice, iii. 881.
partial notice may be recovered under allegation of total loss, iii 880. adjustment, ib.
effect of, iii. 883.
money paid under knowledge of facts not recoverable, iii 885 action to recover premium, ib.
defence, ib.
fraud, ib.
suppression of material fact, iii. 886. breach of warranty, iii. 889.
proof of, ib.
presumptive evidence that the ship was not neutral, iii. 890.
sentence of condemnation, ib.
on what points conclusive, iii. 891.
general inference from the decisions, ib.
illegality of the voyage, ib.
return of part of premium, effect of, iii. 892.

POLICY OF INSURANCE—continued. liability of insurer to principal, iii. 892 after total loss and adjustment, &c. ib.
competency, iii. 893.
protest by captain, ib.
inadmissible as original evidence, ib.
certificate of vice-consul not admissible to prove sale according to law of foreign courts, ib.
certificate of agent at Lloyd's inadmissible, ib.
search in case of loss of, i. 390.
stamp on, iii. 1049.
declaration by party interested, ii. 29.
plaintiff having proved barratrous act by the master, it is not incumbent on him to prove that he was not the owner or freighter, i. 419.
right to begin, app. ii. iii. 1523.
construction of terms, ib.
insurable interest, app. ii. iii. 1524.
description of the interest, ib.
deviation, ib.
damages, ib.
defence, ib.
fraud, misrepresentation, ib.
warranty, ib. 1525.
change of interest, ib. 1526.
nonpayment of premium, ib.
implied collateral contract, ib.
property in, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 154.

POLICY ON LIFE,
interest in to warrant, iii. 868.

POLL-BOOKS,
proof by, ii. 271.
proof of, i. 228.
at an election, evidence by, i. 248.
when evidence, ib.

POLYGAMY,
particulars of proof, iii. 893.
proof of the first marriage, ib. necessary to prove a marriage in fact, iii. 894.
prisoner's admission of, ib.
of the second marriage, iii. 895.
evidence in defence, ib.
provision of the stat. 1 J. 1, c. 11, s. 12, iii. 896. effect of sentence in ecclesiastical court, ib.
competency, ib.
proof of marriage in Ireland, app. ii. iii. 1527. defence under exceptions in stat. 9 Geo. 4, c. 31, s. 22, iii. 895.

PONTAGE,
grant of, i. 309.

POOR,
supplying of by overseer, with provisions, penalty for, iii. 752.
stat. 55 G. 3, c. 139, provisions of, ib.

POPE,
bull of, exemplification of, i. 225.
license of, evidence to prove an impropriation, i. 242.

POPE NICHOLAS,
taxation of, iii. 1090.

PORTS,
ancient survey of, in Exchequer, i. 236.

POSITIVE
testimony, effect of as compared with negative, i. 579.
comparison of with circumstances, i. 586.

POSSESSION,
essential to title, when, iii. 896.
what essential to a complete title, ib. mere naked possession evidence of right against a stranger, iii. 897.
when a bar, ib.
proof of, ib.
seisin in fact, ib.
proof of entry, iii. 898.
by an agent, iii. 899.
effect of, as presumptive evidence, iii. 900.
from possession, ib.
of personal chattel, follows the right of property, iii. 1152.
when sufficient evidence in trover, iii. 1153.
allegation of, when sufficient, ii. 392. enjoyment for 20 years, presumption from, ii. 395. declaration of party in possession, when admissible, ii. 33, 34.
of property, effect of on evidence of right, i. 67.
continued, evidence of right to land, iii. 915.
within 20 years, evidence of in ejectment, ii. 400.
by a cottager, ii. 401.
effect of stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, as to, ii. 651.
of bill, evidence of property, ii. 210.
evidence of interest in a ship, iii. 867.
of goods, raises a presumption of ownership, ii. 372.
of a pew, evidence of, iii. 865.
continuing by vendor, evidence of fraud when, ii. 495. 1030, iii. 494. 1031.
constructive, sufficient to support trespass, iii. 1103. of game, evidence in explanation of, ii. 503.
recent, of stolen property, effect of in evidence, i. 517.
proof of defendants in ejectment, ii. 432.
of instrument by the adversary, proof of, i. 398.
direct proof, ib.
presumptive, ib.
transfer of document when in fraudem legis, i. 399.
by one in privity, ib.
by captain of ship, i. 400.
under-sheriff, ib.
banker, ib.
by adversary, relieves from proof of deed, when, i. 406.
of game by unqualified person, may be explained, ii. 503.
right of vests in vendee, when, iii. 1155.
continuing in vendor in case of bankruptcy, ii. 156. doctrine of non adverse superseded by stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 27, ii. 400.
effect of, as presumptive evidence of title, ii. 411.
plea in defence of, iii. 1136.
in case of trespass, proof of, iii. 1090.
effect of in proof, app. ii. iii. 1527.

POSSESSION—continued.
of mortgaged premises by mortgagor, being a trader, effect of, ii. 180.
follows right of property, iii. 1152.
when sufficient evidence of property in trover, iii. 1153.
of land demised by assignees, effect of, ii. 180.
continuance of, presumption from as to fraud, ii. 144.
long continued, presumption from, iii. 914. right of, when a defence in case of larceny, ii. 609.
of goods purchased in case of bankruptcy, ii. 161.

POSSIBILITY of damage, when sufficient, ii. 364.

POST,
proof of sending a letter by. See Bill of Exchange—Notice.

POSTEA,
without the judgment, when evidence, i. 248.
production of, sufficient to prove trial had, iii. 855.
stamp on, iii. 1049.

POST-HORSE ACT,
proof in action for penalties under, ii. 309.
action on, variance as to number, ii. 299.

POSTHUMOUS CHILD,
legitimacy of, how triable, ii. 199.

POST LITEM MOTAM,
objection of, to evidence of hearsay, &c. i. 319.
effect of making deposition, iii. 837.
declaration made is inadmissible, iii. 837.
the objection, when available, i. 319.

POST-MARK,
on letter, evidence when, iii. 900.

POSTMASTER,
not liable for loss of bill, &c. iii. 739.
negligence by, iii. 728.
liable for negligence, when, iii. 739.

POST-OBIT
bond, assignment of breaches unnecessary, ii. 268.

POUNDAGE,
right of sheriff to deduct, iii. 1023.

POUND-KEEPER, action does not lie against, for receiving a distress, ii. 392.
defence by, under the general issue, iii. 1120.

POWER,
general rule as to specification of authority, iii. 901.
certificate of churchwardens, ib.
powers given by public statutes, iii. 902.
by private instruments, ib.
award, ib.
appointment, iii. 901.
to grant leases, whether extrinsic evidence be admissible to explain it, iii. 1274.

POWER—continued. effect of lease made under, app. ii. iii. 1527.
demise of a part of premises, ib.
under power to demise not a good execution, ib.
operation of, iii. 901.
of appointment, on surrender of copyhold well executed, when, ib.

POWER OF ATTORNEY,
execution of deed under, i. 373.

PRACTICE,
upon the trial, i. 417.
order of proof, i. 424.
arguments of counsel, i. 422.
onus probandi, ib.

PRÆMUNIRE. See Witness.

PREAMBLE. See Statute.

PREFERENCE,
fraudulent, ii. 140.

PREMIUM
paid for illegal insurance, when recoverable, ii. 95, 96.
for policy, action to recover, iii. 885.

PREPONDERANCE of evidence, when sufficient, i. 543.

PRESCRIPTION,
inclosure of common for twenty years, ii. 318.
limitation of, by exception, ib.
presumption of, not destroyed by a grant, iii. 946.
variance from, ii. 364. provisions of stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, as to, iii. 919, app. ii. iii. 1528.
reputation, app. ii. iii. 1528.
in case of tithe provisions of stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 100, iii. 1088.

PRESCRIPTION GRANT, &c. ground of presuming a title, iii. 904.
prescription, essentials to, iii. 905.
time of, ib.
consideration, ib.
in case of toll, &c. iii. 906.
usage, ib.
presumptive evidence of prescription, ib.
ancient deeds, iii. 907.
reputation, ib.
variance from prescription, ii. 318. iii. 909.
evidence in answer, iii. 910.
statutes of limitation, iii. 911; and see app. vol. ii. tit. Prescription.
stat. 32 H. 8, c. 2, iii. 911.
21 J. 1, c. 16, iii. 913.
presumption of grant, ib.
twenty years' enjoyment, ib.
how rebutted and explained, ib.
laches of tenant, ib.
acquiescence of owner, ib.
incapacity to grant, ib.

PRESCRIPTION GRANT, &c.—continued.
enrolment, presumption of, iii. 914.
must be a foundation for the presumption, ib.
effect of possession and usage in general, ib.
presumption of grant from the crown, iii. 915.
legal presumption of title, iii. 916. conveyance by trustees, iii. 917.
surrender of satisfied term, iii. 916, 917. of conveyance by trustees to the beneficial owner, iii. 917.
plaintiff in ejectment not to be nonsuited by term outstanding in trustee, iii. 917.
satisfied term not to be set up by mortgagor against mortgagee, iii. 918.
to be made by the jury, iii. 917.
breach of trust not presumed, ib.
object of such presumption, ib.
distinction between legal presumptions made in furtherance of justice and mere natural presumptions, iii. 918.
mere natural presumptions, ib.
circumstantial evidence of title, iii. 922. limitation of legal and artificial presumptions, iii. 924.
distinction between such conclusions warranted by circumstantial evidence, iii. 924, 925.
effect of circumstantial evidence when the time and circumstances of enjoyment furnish no definite legal rule, iii. 923.
observations on the doctrine of legal presumptions, iii. 924, 925.
objections to presumptive evidence in such cases, properly applicable to legal presumptions only, not to circumstantial evidence of title, ib.

PRESCRIPTIVE OBLIGATION to repair road, ii. 526.

PRESENTATION,
to a living, proof of, ii. 427, iii. 842. 942.
sale of, whilst incumbent is in extremis, iii. 944.

PRESENTMENT,
of bill to acceptor, when necessary, ii. 209.
of bill, proof of, ii. 222.
need not be proved, when, ib.
of cheque, time allowed for, ib.
by a notary, not evidence of former presentment within banking hours, ib.
time of, ii. 223.
under stat. 1 & 2 G. 4, c. 77, ii. 224.
may still be made to the acceptor himself, ib.
by the homage, admissibility of, i. 339.
ancient, as to the liability to repair a bridge, i. 309.
of bill of exchange, proof of, ii. 222. presumptive evidence of, ii. 237.

PRESSURE,
effect of in bankruptcy, ii. 143.

PRESUMPTIO JURIS
of the Roman law, iii. 931.

PRESUMPTIO JURIS ET DE JURE
of the Roman law, iii. 930.

PRESUMPTION,
as to payment of bill from lapse of 20 years, made when, ii. 249.
where a gamekeeper kills game within a manor, ii. 505.
of authority to receive payment, iii. 820.
from possession, iii. 914.

PRESUMPTIONS, grounds of, iii. 927.
definition of, ib.
kinds of, ib.
artificial presumptions, ib.
immediate and mediate presumptions, iii. 929.
presumptions of mere law, iii. 930.
conclusive, ib.
inconclusive, ib.
nature of artificial and conclusive presumptions, ib.
of artificial, but inconclusive presumptions, iii. 931.
presumptions of law and fact, i. 76, ii. 683.
natural presumptions, iii. 932.
presumption in favour of innocence, iii. 934.
presumption omnia ritè esse acta, iii. 935.
presumption of continuance, iii. 937.
from conduct, i. 51, iii. 937.
instances of, i. 51.
common experience, ib.
course and order of dealing, i. 53, 54. iii. 938.
from artificial habits, i. 53.
presumptions as to intention, i. 49, 50.
from conduct, i. 50, ii. 688.
when founded on reputation, &c. i. 31.
why it is necessary to resort to them, i. 49.
of title. iii. 935.
what noticed by the courts, i. 508, 509.
juris et de jure, ib.
of law and fact, i. 510.
natural presumptions, ib.
artificial, i. 76.
omnia ritè esse acta, does not apply to proceedings of inferior courts, iii. 1007.
of due execution of instrument, i. 408.
in case of sheriff, ib.
that an instrument was properly stamped, iii. 1055.
continuance, i. 54.
that a man will consult his own interest, i. 563.
application of the doctrine, i. 563, 564.
that a party would not make an admission contrary to his interest, ii. 19.
consequences from this, ib.
legal, from enjoyment, iii. 904.
on other grounds, iii. 916.
from enjoyment, ii. 395.
from long usage, iii. 904.
when conclusive, iii. 905.
as to execution of instrument from age of, i. 381.
from acquiescence, iii. 961.

PRESUMPTIONS—continued
in case of recovery suffered, iii. 961.
of grant to support enjoyment, ii. 337. of money received, ii. 82. of death, ii. 304.
of law as to legitimacy, ii. 196.
of innocence from good character, ii. 303.
formerly admitted in capital cases only, ii. 304.
in general where admissible, ib.
in criminal proceedings, ib.
in civil, ib.
in favour of infants, ii. 555.
as to the continuance of life, iii. 895.
arising from instrument, may be rebutted by parol evidence, when, iii. 783.
omnia ritè esse acta, app. ii. iii. 1529. natural presumption, ib. 1530.
of a peer's creation by writ, ib. 1529.
of law, iii. 916.

PRESUMPTIVE EVIDENCE. See Circumstantial Evidence
necessity for resorting to, i. 49.
of liability on bill of exchange, ii. 237.
of notice by carrier, ii. 289.
of notice, iii. 732.
on charge of homicide, ii. 719.
of a conversion, iii. 1161.
of payment, iii. 823.
of a lien, iii. 1017.
of release, iii. 967.
of acceptance, ii. 207.
as to payment, iii. 823.
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 150
in case of murder, ii. 719.
of service of notice, iii. 732. evidence of title, ii. 405. of surrender, ii. 406.

PREVENTIVE,
provisions of the law, i. 2.

PRIEST,
evidence of being, in case of marriage, ii. 704.

PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE,
rule as to, i. 567.
and conclusive evidence, distinction between, i. 544.

PRIMA TONSURA, right to, may be distinct from title to the soil, iii. 1125.
right of, in case of land, ib.

PRIMAGE,
action for, by captain, iii. 1300.

PRIME MOVER,
in case of an arrest by constable, liability, ii. 603

PRINCIPAL. See Accessory.
may sue in his own name or that of the contracting agent, iii. 802.
may recover for breach of contract, although the contract is made by his agent, iii. 1194.
when bound by his reference to the agent, ii. 46.
where not liable on the contract of his agent, iii. 1203.
having contracted with a surveyor, not liable for goods ordered by the latter for the defendant's house, ib.
who buys through an agent may be sued, iii. 1198.
who hires carriage and horses for a day, whether liable for the negligence of the driver, ii. 737.
not liable for the wilful trespass of his agent, iii. 1111.
secus, in case of sheriff and his bailiff, ib.
to be sued in action for negligence, ii. 284.
allegation of negligence by, proved by negligence of agent, when, ii. 298.
declaration by, not evidence against his surety, iii. 1063. giving time to, discharges the surety, when, iii. 1064.
two degrees, ii. 4.
in first degree, ii. 5.
who is, in case of burglary, ii. 282.
affected by the agent's fraud, ii. 44.
giving time to, effect of, ii. 251.
in felony, who is, app. ii. iii. 1313, 1314.

PRINCIPLES,
general, on which the law of evidence is founded, i. 11, 12, 13.
1. of natural reason and experience, independently of artificial rules, ib.
2. of artificial exclusion, by admitting such only as is warranted by certain tests, ib.
3. which create artificial evidence, or give an artificial effect to mere natural evidence, ib.

PRINT,
piracy of. See Privilege.

PRINTER,
lien of, ii. 649.

PRIOR ACT OF BANKRUPTCY,
effect of, ii. 174.

PRIORITY,
in sale of goods distrained, not prescribed by law, ii. 391.
in execution, waiver of, iii. 1018.

PRISON
books, when admissible, i. 248.

PRISONER,
how procured as a witness, i. 81.

PRISONERS,
witnesses for, to be sworn, i. 24.
former rule, ib.
whether examination evidence against him where questions have been put, ii. 38.
attendance to testify, how procured, i. 82. discharge from arrest, how proved, ii. 113.

PRISONER OF WAR,
procured as a witness, how, i. 82.

PRIVATE PERSON,
protected when, as acting in aid of a peace officer, ii. 604.
defence by, in acting, &c. without a warrant, ii. 600, 601.
killing of, on attempt to arrest another, amounts to murder, when, ii. 717.
may justify an arrest, when, ib.
may arrest, when, ii. 603.

PRIVATE WRITINGS, proof of. See Instrument.

PRIVIES,
to a fine are barred by it, ii. 457.
in blood and estate, estopped when, ii. 458.

PRIVILEGE,
of copyright, app. ii. iii. 1530.
patent, ib.

PRIVILEGE OF COPYRIGHT, &c. proof of interest, iii. 939.
enrolment of specification, ib.
proof of machine by means of a drawing, iii. 940.
in action for piracy of a print, the plate need not be produced, ib.
proprietorship, proof of, ib.
assignment, proof of, ib.
piracy, what amounts to, iii. 941.
entry at Stationers' Hall not essential to an action, ib. piracy of engraving, provisions of stat. 8 G. 2, c. 13, s. 1, ib.
specification, essentials of, iii. 939.
statutory provisions as to copyrights, &c. iii. 938.
action for pirating a print, iii. 940.
evidence that plaintiff is proprietor, &c. iii. 939.
assignment, proof of, iii. 940.
declaration by plaintiff that he has not parted with the right, ib.

PRIVILEGE OF WITNESS. See Witness.

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS. See Confidential Communication. in case of slander, ii. 631.
in action for slander, ib.

PRIVILEGED ORDERS,
what were, iii. 1093.
extent of privilege, ib.

PRIVITY, of party to be effected by a document, when necessary, i. 248.
answer in equity, evidence against one claiming in privity, i. 333, 334.
as to fraudulent deed, excludes petition in bankruptcy, ii. 144.
party when claiming in, app. i. 610.
of contract-money had and received, ii. 82.

PRIZE,
judgment on question of. See Judgment.

PROBABILITY,
from coincidence of independent circumstances, i. 567, 568, 569.

PROBABLE CAUSE,
evidence as to the existence of, ii. 686.
evidence to exclude, ii. 680.
proof of, by one laying claim to land in case of slander of title, ii. 631. put in issue in an action for malicious prosecution, by the plea of not guilty, ii. 682.

PROBATE,
when conclusive, i. 287, 288.
does not operate as an estoppel, when, i. 265.
not conclusive to rebut forgery, i. 290.
evidence of executor's title, ii. 441. 445.
the right is derived from the will, ii. 441.
how proved, ib.
by the act books, ib.
by the original will indorsed, ib.
title under, how impeached, ii. 441, 442.
by showing bona notabilia in another diocese, ii. 442.
not admissible as secondary evidence of a will, iii. 1261.
provable by copy, i. 228.
does not prove will of copyhold, ii. 333.

PROBATIO INARTIFICIALIS,
of the Roman law, i. 422.

PROCEEDINGS
in bankruptcy, conclusive when, ii. 124.

PROCESS,
justification under, in trespass, iii. 1139.
purpose not material, ib.
proof of issuing for same cause of action, iii. 1076.
variance from description of, i. 492.
parties, i. 474, 475.
entry by virtue of, iii. 1139.

PROCHEIN AMY. See Admission—Infant.

PROCLAMATION,
public, evidence of state of war, i. 233.
of the king, what it proves, ib.
recital in, what it proves, i. 234.
evidence of, ib.
peace, ib.
reprisals, ib.
quarantine, ib.
king's, when necessary to prove coin current, ii. 310 within a manor evidenced by the court rolls, ii. 337.

PROCUREMENT
of imprisonment amounts to trespass, when, iii. 1109.

PRODUCE,
of a substitute follows the original, ii. 176.
of a thing converted, receiving part of not a waiver of action, iii. 1167.

PRODUCT, of a substitute for a thing, follows the original, ii. 176.

PRODUCTION,
of written instrument essential to proof of, i. 368.
of bill or note, when essential, ii. 203.

PROFERT
of deed, when necessary, ii. 380.

PROFESSIONAL PERSONS,
examinable, when, ii. 320.

PROFESSORS
of law of foreign state, opinion of inadmissible, ii. 704.

PROFITS,
perception of, amounts to ouster, when, ii. 401.

PROMISE,
variance from allegation of, i. 479.
to an executor, does not support a count alleging a promise to the testator, ii. 443, 444.
subsequent, to pay a debt discharged by certificate, ii. 130, 131. 189, 190.
by a testator that his executor shall pay, action on, ii. 454.
express, by bankrupt, ii. 189.
how discharged, ii. 103.
by later contract, ib.
accord and satisfaction, ib.
impossibility of performance, ib.
illegality of consideration, ib.
excludes evidence of confession when, ii. 36.
does not exclude evidence of fact ascertained by means of confession, ii. 37.

PROMISE OF MARRIAGE, action for breach of, ii. 706.

PROMISSORY NOTE,
effect of, as primâ facie evidence, ii. 261.
evidence of money lent, ii. 79.
indorsee of, competent to prove usury, ii. 10, 11.

PROOFS,
on whom incumbent, i. 418.
maxim of civil law, ib.
general division of, i. 417.
order of, where there are several issues, i. 424.

PROPERTY,
remains in judgment-debtor till sale, iii. 1033.
in owner, till execution executed, iii. 1103 vests in executor from time of death, ii. 444.
in administrator from grant, ib.
in goods, vests by delivery to the carrier, when, iii. 1166. evidenced by possession, when, ii. 210.
in bill evidenced by possession, ii. 210. 218.
how transferred, ib.
does not vest by award for delivering up, ii. 119.
in instrument to be held until repayment, iii. 1147.
in goods purchased before delivery, ii. 162.

PROPERTY TAX,
amount of, not deducted, cannot be recovered, ii. 88.

PROSECUTION,
by a defendant, proof of, ii. 676, 677.
agreement to forego, illegal, ii. 248.

PROSECUTOR,
evidence against, to prove him to be a party to a conspiracy against the defendant on a criminal charge, i. 215.
evidence of being, ii. 677.
proof of being, ib.

PROSPECTIVE
statute, when, ii. 123. 126.

PROTECTION,
the law protects a payment made under authority of law, ii. 443.

PROTECTION OF WITNESS,
from arrest, i. 91.

PROTEST,
proof of, ii. 322.
must be stamped, ii. 254.
on dishonour of bill, when necessary, ii. 232.
necessity for proof, how superseded, ib.
by captain, admissible when, iii. 893.
by assignees, effect of, ii. 180.

PROTESTATION,
in pleading, effect of, i. 338.

PROUT PATET,
allegation of, when it renders a variance material, i. 487. 488.
variance from instrument under allegation of, i. 492.

PROVOCATION,
evidence of, in extenuation on charge of homicide, ii. 721 on an indictment for murder, ii. 712.
in case of murder, ii. 721.

PUBLIC ACTS OF CROWN,
admissibility of, app. i. 607.

PUBLIC BOOKS,
inspection of, when allowed, ii. 570.
what admissible, app. i. 607.

PUBLIC DOCUMENT,
kinds of, i. 223.
proof of, ib.

PUBLIC FUNCTIONARY,
acting without emolument, liable for nuisance, when, iii. 747.

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS,
right of soil in, iii. 1133.

PUBLIC NOTORIETY,
evidence to prove a state of war, iii. 1236.

PUBLIC OFFICE,
proof of settlement by, iii. 1003.

PUBLIC OFFICER,
liability of, for acts of negligence, iii. 1169.
not liable for work and labour, when, iii. 1301.

PUBLICATION,
in a particular county, ii. 622.
newspaper, &c. ii. 624.
what within statute, as to copyright, iii. 941. in action for slander or libel. ii. 618. See tit. Libel.
of libel, ii. 619.
by an agent, ii. 621.
in a particular county, proof of, ii. 622.
6 & 7 W. 4, c. 76, provisions of, ii. 624.

PUBLIC HISTORIES,
inadmissibility of, app. i. 609.

PUBLIC,
interest of, not bound by the representation of private parties, iii. 766.

PUBLIC JUDICIAL DOCUMENT, app. i. 607.

PUFFERS,
employment of, fraudulent, iii. 1213.

PUFFING
at a sale, effect of, iii. 1212.

PUIS DARREIN CONTINUANCE,
plea of, on judgment recovered, ii. 452.
plea of, ii. 183.

PURCHASE,
party let into possession on contract for, when liable for use and occupation, iii. 1183.

PURCHASEE,
action by, for breach of contract, iii. 1194.

PURCHASER,
set-off by, iii. 995.
under execution against one of several partners, interest of, iii. 803.

PUTATIVE FATHER of bastard, commitment of, ii. 591.
commitment of, when invalid, ii. 593. liability of transferred to husband, when, app. ii. iii. 1361.
liability of, ib.

PUTTING OFF
of counterfeit coin, proof of, ii. 311.

QUAKERS,
not within the Marriage Act, ii. 703. See Oath.
affirmation by, app. i. 589.

QUALIFICATION. See Game.

QUALITY,
of evidence, i. 509.
best must be adduced, ib.

QUANTITY,
of evidence, i. 504.
how far the law interferes as to, ib.
of thing sold, material by way of defence, when, iii. 12, 13.

QUANTUM MERUIT,
when it may be resorted to, ii. 72, 73.
QUANTUM VALEBANT,
when available, ii. 72.
QUARANTINE,
direction to perform, proved by king's proclamation, i. 233.
QUARE IMPEDIT,
proof of title, iii. 942.
presentation, ib.
induction, ib.
avoidance, iii. 943.
curacies augmented become benefices when, iii. 944.
qualification of presentee, ib.
defendant's evidence, iii. 945.
proof of title in, app. ii. iii. 1531. presentation, ib. 1532.
QUEEN,
case of. See Examination—Witness.
QUIET ENJOYMENT,
covenant for, breach of, ii. 346.
QUIRE,
proof of property in, iii. 864.
QUI TAM ACTION. See Penal Action.
QUO WARRANTO,
proof by corporation books, iii. 945.
inspection, when granted, ib.
direct evidence of the franchise, iii. 946.
presumptive, ib.
proof of custom, ib.
variance from proof, ib.
in respect of mere ministerial act not material, iii. 947.
proof of bye-law, ib.
acceptance of charter, ib.
evidence to impeach title, iii. 948.
competency, ib.
effect of judgment, iii. 949. corporation books, proof of by copy, iii. 950.
judgment in, ii. 295.
title of elector, app. ii. iii. 1532.
RAILWAY,
nuisance to, app. ii. iii. 1496.
RAILWAY ACT,
action for calls, app. ii. iii. 1507.
RAILWAY COMPANY,
liability of as carriers, iii. 283.
powers of how far restrained, app. ii. iii. 1532.
inquisition under statute, ib.
RAPE,
provisions of stat. 7 G. 4, c. 71. s. 18, iii. 950.
age of the witness, iii. 951.
confirmatory evidence, iii. 950.
competency, iii. 951.

RAPE—continued.
of a wife, iii. 951
defence, ib.
character, ib.
indictment for, evidence as to character of prosecutrix, when admissible, ii. 305.
evidence as to character, admissible when, ii. 305 age of puberty, app. ii. iii. 1533. conviction of assault, ib. present complaint, ib.

RASURE,
evidence to explain in case of ancient instrument, i. 382 evidence to explain, i. 369.
effect of, ib.

RATE,
proof on part of appellant, iii. 952, 953.
notice, iii. 952.
onus probandi, iii. 953.
inhabitant, meaning of within the stat. of Eliz. ib.
validity of rate cannot be objected to by plaintiff in action of trespass, iii. 953.
nor can he object to the form of the warrant, ib.
question of occupation of lands may be contested after an appeal, ib.
rates and assessments, copies of, where kept, i. 216.
validity of when questionable, iii. 955.
for relief of the poor, app. ii. iii. 1531.
on cuttings of trees, ib.
on corporation lands, ib.
on canals, ib.
on gas company, ib. 1535.

RATE-BOOK,
inspection of, iii. 953.

RATED INHABITANT. See Witness.

RATI HABITIO,
rule as to, ii. 401, 402.
time of assent in action of ejectment, iii. 951.
inapplicable, when, ib.

RATIONE TENURÆ,
liability by to repair a bridge, ii. 272.
obligation to repair, ii. 527. liability of occupiers of divided parts of an entire estate, ii. 528

READING of document, the whole to be read, i. 414.

READY MONEY,
sale on terms of, does not exclude set-off, iii. 997.

REAL ESTATE,
effect of words in a demise, ii. 381.
of parties in case of fiat, ii. 154.

REASONABLE,
customs to be valid must be, ii. 358.
cause for arresting by a constable, ii. 602.
cause for arrest by private person, ii. 602.

REAL ESTATES,
actions for injuries to by executors, ii. 439.
REAL PROPERTY,
nuisance to, what amounts to a, iii. 741.
REASONABLE,
customs to be valid must be, ii. 358.
REASONABLENESS
of charges, ii. 108.
REASONABLE CARE,
whether used in taking negotiable security, ii. 220.
an attorney undertakes to use, ii. 111.
REASONABLE CAUSE
for arresting by a constable, ii. 602.
for arrest by private person, ib.
REASONABLE TIME,
a question of law, when, i. 517. 519. 521.
inference of law as to, where the written instrument is silent, iii. 760, 761.
proof of, iii. 1079.
for tendering the amount of a dishonoured bill, ii. 257.
of detention of prisoner for examination under a criminal charge, ii. 591 for repudiation of a contract, ii. 60, 61.
for setting out tithes, iii. 1095.
for taking party arrested to prison, iii. 1021.
for setting out tithe, iii. 1094. of commitment for further examination, ii. 591.
a question for the jury, ib.
a question of law, when, iii. 1079.
RECEIPT,
is primâ facie evidence of payment, iii. 819.
not conclusive, iii. 786.
evidence of warranty, when, iii. 1237.
for tithes by deputy of receiver, not admissible, iii. 1082.
indorsed on bill, of what evidence, ii. 264.
by a wife not evidence of payment of maintenance by the husband, ii. 546.
stamp on, iii. 1047.
effect of in evidence, iii. 954.
for money not conclusive, iii. 954, 955.
the giving one does not exclude parol evidence of payment, iii. 956.
in full, given without fraud, conclusive, ib.
of money from agent, when conclusive, ib.
acknowledgment in policy of receipt of premium, ib.
on back of bill of exchange, ib.
of money, proof of, ii. 80.
presumptive evidence of, ii. 82.
fraudulent, by one of several executors, ii. 455.
by one of several partners, when fraudulent, app. ii. iii. 1535.
signed by three trustees, whether conclusive as to all, iii. 786.
RECEIPT OF MONEY,
constructive, when sufficient, ii. 79, 80.
when presumable, ii. 456.
mere fact of, what it proves, ib.
RECEIVER,
evidence that defendant was such, ii. 16.
evidence on plea denying that the defendant was, ib.

RECEIVER—continued.
books of, when admissible, i. 359.
proof as to custody of, i. 358, 359.
proof against, app. ii. iii. 1461.

RECEIVERS
of stolen goods, proof against, app. ii. iii. 1536.

RECITAL, of facts, observations on in contradistinction to real facts, i. 64, 65.
does not operate as an estoppel, when, ii. 21.
in deed, effect of, ii. 20, 21.
whole must be taken, ib.
of facts in deed is evidence of them, ii. 343.
in a deed evidence to prove recited deed, when, i. 413.
of authority in instrument produced to connect a principal with the acts of his agent, not evidence of such authority, i. 416, ii. 957.
may be evidence for one purpose, but not for another, i. 64.
in preamble of public Act of Parliament, evidence when, i. 233.
in writ of supersedeas, evidence of former commission, iii. 957.
in a deed of a former deed, evidence against a party to the latter, ib.
in lease amounts to a covenant, when, ii. 342.
in deed as to pecuniary consideration not conclusive, when, iii. 789.

RECOGNITION. of authority, proof by, ii. 43.
recognition of act of agent, when sufficient, ii. 42.

RECOGNIZANCE,
variance from allegation of, i. 485.
estreat of, app. ii. iii. 1536.

RECORD,
proof of, i. 188, iii. 957.
where it is a record of the same court, ib.
of a different court, ib.
of an inferior court, ib.
proof of by production, i. 223, 224.
by exemplification, i. 224, 225, iii. 957 copy by authorized officer, i. 225.
office copy, i. 226.
by examined copy, i. 226.
copy, why allowed in evidence, i. 226.
how proved when lost, i. 225.
when conclusive, iii. 958.
how impeached, ib.
effect of in evidence, iii. 958.
former verdict for defendant for diverting water, &c. effect of, in evidence, iii. 958.
in qui tam action, iii. 959.
recovery in trespass or trover, iii. 959.
effect of, ib.
where not pleaded, iii. 960, 961.
judgment recovered, where a bar, ib.
recovery against a garnishee, ib.
award when conclusive, ib.
inspection of, when allowed, ib.
in criminal cases, ib.
in replevin suit, evidence when, iii. 977.
operates as an estoppel, when, i. 268.
interest in, when it disqualifies, i. 120.

RECOVERY,
presumptions as to, i. 362, iii. 914. 961.
from possession, iii. 961.
length of time, how reckoned, iii. 962 stat. 14 G. 2, c. 20, iii. 963.
to what cases applicable, ib.
fine, how proved, iii. 964.
presumption that it was levied with proclamations, ib.
seisin, what necessary to render a fine available, ib.
proof of use of, ii. 377.
of damages in action of trover, effect of, iii. 1166.
former, in qui tam action must be pleaded, iii. 959.
when a bar under the general issue, ib.
when conclusive, ib.
against another defendant for adultery no bar, ii. 356.
without payment is no satisfaction. See Payment. against another defendant, no bar to an action for crim. con., ii. 357.

RECTOR,
proof of title in ejectment, ii. 427.
may maintain ejectment on a lease avoided by non-residence, ii. 428.
entry by of receipt of tithes, i. 364.
action by for dilapidation, iii. 964.
title, ib.
action against for non-residence, ib.
holding of the benefice, iii. 965. absence, &c. ib.
value, ib.
variance, ib.
entries by, i. 364.
when evidence for his successor, ib.
ejectment by, ii. 428.

RECTOR AND CHURCHWARDENS of a parish, ejectment by, ii. 413.

RECTORY,
ejectment for, iii. 965. And see Ejectment.

REDUNDANCY
of proof, effect of, i. 175.

RE-EXAMINATION,
of witness, as to what points, i. 208.
what questions may be asked on, ib.
as to motives, when allowable, ib.
as to a conversation as to which a witness has been cross-examined, i. 208, 209.
of witness, app. i. 605. commitment for, when justifiable, ii. 591.

REFERENCE,
by one instrument to another, iii. 760.
virtually incorporates the latter, ib.

REFRESHING OF MEMORY of witness, means allowable for, i. 176, 177, 178, 179, 180.

REFUSAL,
to deliver goods, evidence of a conversion, iii. 1161.
secus, where qualified, ib.

REFUSAL—continued.
by an agent not sufficient to prove a conversion by the principal, iii. 1163.
to sign order for discharge, action for, ii. 689.
evidence of malice, ib.
to execute composition deed, iii. 966.
actual, must be proved by creditor, by party seeking to avoid a composition-deed, iii. 967.
to discharge a defendant out of custody, evidence of malice, when, ii. 689.
not proved by evidence of omission, iii. 966.

REGISTERS,
public are evidence, i. 243.
of births, marriages, &c. ib.
day-book from which made not evidence, ib.
copies where deposited, ib.
of foreign marriage not evidence, i. 244.
nor on books of Fleet prison, ib.
of dissenting congregation not evidence, ib not evidence of identity, ib.
nor of age, i. 222. 244.
of place of birth, when, i. 245.
entry in, how proved, ib.
of the bishop, ib.
of navy office, i. 247.
of ship, evidence to negative ownership, i. 248 but not to prove ownership, ib.
of marriage, ii. 700.
provable by copy, i. 228.
of parish, proof of, ib.
of ship, stat. 4 G. 4, c. 4, provisions of, iii. 868.
proof by when necessary, ib.
public, when admissible, app. i. 608. of marriage, evidence by, ii. 699.

REGISTERED OWNER OF SHIP, not liable, when, iii. 1302.

REGISTRY ACT, provisions of, iii. 868, 869.

REGISTRY ACTS, iii. 870.

RELATION,
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 146.
of title of executor on probate granted, iii. 1147.
of bill by indorsement, ii. 170.
not to prejudice third party, iii. 966.

RELATIONSHIP,
proof of, iii. 833.

RELEASE,
proof of, iii. 966.
effect of, ib.
under the general issue, ib.
how impeachable, ib.
on the ground of fraud, iii. 968.

RELEASE—continued.
deed of feoffment evidence of a release, iii. 968.
not evidence in account under the plea that the defendant was not a receiver, &c. ib.
covenant not to sue does not amount to, when, iii. 1066.
confirmation amounting to a, ii. 697.
evidence under general issue in case, ii. 300.
not evidence under plea that defendant was not a receiver, ii. 18.
to subsequent parties to a bill does not discharge prior ones, ii. 250.
of right of common, evidence on issue joined on the right, ii. 318.
by joint maker of note, effect of, ii. 250.
effect of in restoring competency, i. 166.
by one assignee, effect of, ii. 179.
confirmation amounting to, ii. 697.
of right of common, evidence when, ii. 318.
when operative, app. ii. iii. 1536.
pleading of, ib.
fraudulent, when, ib.
covenant not to sue, does not amount to, iii. 1066.

RELEVANCY, of evidence, app. i. 627. See Evidence.

RELIEF,
to a pauper, when admissible on question of settlement, iii. 1008.
effect of giving, as to settlement, ib.

REMAINDER,
on a freehold, admits of no mesne seisin, iii. 978.

REMAINDER-MAN,
proof of title by, ii. 411.

REMEDIAL
provisions of the law, i. 2.

REMITTANCE,
proof of payment, iii. 822.

REMOVAL,
order of, effect of on question of settlement, iii. 1005.
conclusive, when, ib.
of goods to avoid distress, ii. 393, 394.

RENT,
definition of, iii. 970.
rent-service, ib.
remedy for, ib.
rentcharge, ib.
how created, ib.
remedy for, ib.
rent-seek, iii. 971.
remedy for, ib.
by distress, ib.
distress for rent, iii. 969.
by executors, ib.
husbands, ib.
tenants per autre vie, ib.
appointment of, ib.
suspension of, ib.

RENT—continued.
extinguishment of, iii. 969. forfeiture for non-payment of. See Ejectment reservation of, iii. 969.
when it must be by deed, ib.
when divisible, ib.
apportionment of, ib.
suspension of, ib.
extinguishment of, ib.
presumption from payment of may be rebutted, when, iii. 971.
in arrear, amount of, when to be proved in replevin, iii. 971, 972.
distress for, when it lies, iii. 969, 970.
distress for, when it may be joint, ib.
entering to distrain for, evidence under the general issue, iii. 1121. action against sheriff for not paying year's rent to the landlord on execution against the tenant, iii. 1026.
action against sheriff by tenant for wrongful payment of, iii. 1028.
competency of landlord in such action, ib.
construction of the stat. 8 Ann. c. 14, s. 1, iii. 1026.
liability of executor to, ii. 450.

RENTCHARGE, replevin for distress for, within 11 G. 2, c. 19, s. 23, iii. 970

RENTS,
small, payment of, presumption from, iii. 1125.

RENT-SECK,
what, iii. 971.
distress for, ib.

RENT-SERVICE,
what, iii. 970.

REPAIRS,
of ship, liability of owner to, iii. 1301.
of pew, when necessary to be proved as against the ordinary, iii. 865, 866.
covenant for not repairing, ii. 347.
covenant for action on, ii. 348.
proof of non-repair, ii. 351. liability to, under covenant, ii. 348.

REPLEVIN,
issue on right of property, iii. 969.
onus probandi, ib.
non cepit, ib.
non tenuit, iii. 970.
riens in arrear, iii. 974.
traverse that defendant is bailiff, iii. 976.
amount of rent and value of distress, iii. 975.
stat. 17 C. 2, c. 7, ib.
damage feasant issue, on right of common, ib.
tender of amends, ib.
replevin bond, iii. 977.
competency, iii. 796.
declaration by party under whom defendant makes cognizance, not admissible for plaintiff, ii. 29, 30.
where a bar in trespass, i. 262.

REPLEVY,
authority to, iii. 969.
grant of authority, effect of, ib.

REPLICATION,
traversing custom alleged by a customary tenant of a messuage, does not admit the antiquity of the messuage to which, &c. iii. 1130.

REPLY,
evidence in, app. i. 626.

REPOSITORY,
proof as to, in case of ancient documents, i. 239. See tit. Ancient Instrument—Deposit.

REPRESENTATIVE,
admission by represented party, evidence against, when, ii. 33.

REPRISALS,
proclamation for, i. 234.

REPUTATION,
evidence of, when admissible, i. 181.
on questions of boundary, ib. rights of common, i. 181, 182.
customary rights, i. 182.
public highways, ib.
pedigree, i. 183.
character, i. 33.
modus, ib. See Tithes.
general principles of admissibility, i. 27, 28.
sanctions essential to its reception, i. 31.
publicity of fact to be proved, ib.
inadmissible to prove a particular fact, i. 33.
must be supported by proof of enjoyment since, &c. ib.
evidence of, on what principle admissible, i. 28.
examination as to, i. 181.
when admissible, ib.
admissible to prove customary right, ii. 319. effect of, in proof of a custom, i. 296, 297.
judgment admissible to prove matter of, ib.
evidence of admissible to prove the existence of a manor, ii. 336. 695, 696.
admissible in suit for tithes, when, iii. 1092.
general evidence to prove a pedigree, iii. 843.
when admissible as to reputed ownership, ii. 162.
admissible on question of public way, ii. 526.
inadmissible to prove a private prescription, iii. 907.
admissibility of, on a question where numbers are interested, iii. 907, 908.
as to manorial rights, ii. 336.
evidence to prove customary rights, ii. 319.
evidence of, iii. 907.
of wife, whether admissible in case of crim. con. ii. 356.
as to right of digging stone upon waste of a manor, iii. 907.
of particular fact inadmissible, iii. 908.
admissible as to boundaries, ib.
as to mode of electing a schoolmaster, ib.
to negative a custom admissible, when, app. i. 602.

REPUTATION—continued.
evidence of, in case of reputed ownership, ii. 159.
proof of custom, when, ii. 359.
proof of by deposition, app. i. 611.
admissible to prove boundary, when, ib. 601.
to prove custom, when, ib. 602.

REPUTED OWNERSHIP,
evidence of, ii. 157.
of ship, ib.
of goods sold, ib.
of public-house, ii. 158, 159.

REQUEST,
proof of in action for work and labour, iii. 1297.
implied, when, ib.
to pay money, when implied, ii. 75.
compulsory payment, ib.
implication of from legal obligation, ii. 454.
when presumed, ii. 69.
from legal obligation, ib.
to depart, proof of when necessary under plea of defence of possession, iii. 1136.
proof of actual, ib.
when presumed, ii. 69. 75.
proof of in action for work and labour, iii. 1298.

RESCINDED CONTRACT, general rule as to recovery of money paid under, ii. 91

RESCUE,
a defence to the sheriff, when, iii. 1022.

RESCUE OF CATTLE,
indictment for, app. ii. iii. 1403.

RES GESTÆ,
in general evidence, i. 56.

RESIDENCE,
proof of unnecessary to validity of marriage, ii. 702.

RESIGNATION BOND, iii. 966. damages in action on, ii. 269.

RES INTER ALIOS,
inadmissible, i. 58, 59.
principle of the rule, i. 59.
effect of the rule, i. 61.
does not exclude admissions by a party, ib.
or the operation of general laws or customs, ib.
nor facts which have a legal operation, i. 62.
nor any memorandum or declaration which under particular sanctions are evidence, ib.
on evidence of reputation, &c. ib.
on declarations part of the res gestæ, i. 63.
on collateral facts, i. 64.
public and judicial proceedings, i. 61.
confessions by prisoners, &c. i. 39, 40. 59, 60.
by a principal felon, ii. 40.
judgment of ouster in quo warranto, i. 295.

RES INTER ALIOS—continued.
in general inadmissible, i. 58.
instances of, i. 58, 59, 60.
when a fact, is admissible, i. 64.
exception to the general rule, i. 61.
entry by party dead, against his own interest, i. 62.
application of the rule to written entries, i. 249.
custom of tithing in other parishes, iii. 1092.

RESOLUTION,
of house of lords, i. 235.

RESULTING TRUST,
evidence to prove a, iii. 788.

RESPONDEAT SUPERIOR,
a maxim of law, iii. 738.
application of, ib.

RESPONDENTIA BOND,
assumpsit lies against the obligor of, when, iii. 757.
action against obligor who indorses, ii. 114.

RESTRAINT,
of insane person, plea of, iii. 1140.

RETAINER,
of an attorney, proof of, ii. 107.
by an executor, proof of, ii. 451.
by executor, ii. 450.

RETAKING,
of party improperly allowed to go at large, justifiable when, ii. 600.

RETURN,
by sheriff, effect of, i. 330.
by sheriff, evidence against third persons, when, iii. 1033.
against defendant on an indictment for rescue, ib.
binding on the sheriff, iii. 1015.

REVERSAL,
of judgment, effect of, ii. 437.
restores competency, i. 102.

REVERISON,
particulars of proof in action for an injury to the, iii. 977 reversionary interest, proof of, ib.
variance, iii. 978.
evidence of damage, ib.
reversionary interest, assets, when, iii. 979.
proof necessary as to obligor's interest, ib. grantee of reversion in ejectment for forfeiture, must prove a cause subsequent to the grant, ib.
competency of tenant in action for damage to, iii. 978.
assignee of, debt by, ii. 350.

REVERSIONARY INTEREST, assets, when, iii. 979.
in chattel injury to what, sufficient to maintain trover, iii. 1156.
proof of having a, iii. 977.

REVERSIONER, action by, for not repairing a gutter through defendant's land, iii. 1252.
of mortgaged premises in possession of mortgagor, action by, ii. 180. cannot sue for mere trespass, when, iii. 744.
action by, for not repairing a watercourse, iii. 1225.
proof of title by, ii. 411.

REVOCATION, of authority does not impeach an act done by virtue of that authority, ii. 443.
allegation of revocation imports notice when, ii. 118.
of submission to reference, ib.
bankruptcy of party no revocation, ib.
of authority of arbitration, ib.
of authority of stakeholder, ii. 89.
of will, proof of, iii. 1285.
prescription of, i. 564.
of will, evidence of, iii. 1285.
implied, iii. 1287.

REWARD,
action to recover, iii. 979.

RIENS IN ARRERE,
evidence on issue taken on plea of, iii. 974

RIENS PER DISCENT,
evidence on plea of, ii. 519.
assets, proof of heirs having, ib.
evidence on issue of, ii. 520.

RIGHT,
legal acceptation of the term, i. 1, 2. incorporeal, proof of an, iii. 743.
arises from implication of law, when, ib.
attached to a house remains, although the house be pulled down, when, iii. 908.
legal sense of, i. 1.
popular sense of, ib.

RIGHT TO BEGIN,
rules as to, app. i. 623.

RIGHTS OF THINGS,
meaning of the expression, i. 1.

RINGS, inscriptions on, in case of pedigree, iii. 842

RIOT. See Unlawful Assembly—Hundred.

RITE ACTA, presumption of in case of recovery suffered, iii. 961

RIVER,
presumption as to right of soil of, iii. 1253.
whether navigable or not, a question of fact for the jury, ib.

ROAD,
deviation from proper side of, effect of, iii. 736.

ROGUE AND VAGABOND,
commitment of, ii. 590.

ROLL OF ATTORNIES,
evidence by, ii. 105.

ROMAN CATHOLIC PRIEST,
examinable as to confidential communication, ii. 322

ROMAN LAW, provisions of as to pleading, i. 4.

ROME,
proof of ordination by see of, ii. 309.

RULE OF COURT, iii. 988. proof by, ib.
production of rule to pay money into court does not give right to reply, ib.
rule for committing a defendant convicted of a misdemeanor, evidence of judgment of imprisonment, ib.

RULES OF COURT, iii. 979.

RUSSIA,
navigation laws of, ii. 459.

SALE,
in market overt, proof of, iii. 1227.
proof of contract of, iii. 1195. of goods, contract for when entire, iii. 1200.
contract of may be rescinded by mutual assent, iii. 1212.
election not to rescind, proof of, ib.
contract of by letter requiring assent within a limited time, iii. 1219.
of goods to B., when C., the buyer, is unable to pay for them, with the consent of C. in a new contract, not within the statute of frauds, iii. 1196.
by a broker, evidence of, ib.
where the agent sells, the contract is, in law, with the principal, iii. 1202.
subject to buyer's right of set-off, &c. where the agent sells in his own name, iii. 1203.
principal when discharged by payment to the agent of the vendor, ib.
of goods, proof of performance of condition precedent, iii. 1199.
correspondence with sample, ib.
action by vendee, iii. 1219.
proof of performance of conditions precedent, ib. conditions of, evidence of warranty, iii. 1237.
fraud in, ii. 372.
contract for by one who has not the goods, nor expects consignment of them, illegal, iii. 1216.
bill of, stamp on, iii. 1044.
of goods by bankrupt protected, when, ii. 170.
by a sheriff, effect of, iii. 1032, 1033.
evidence by one who claims under, ib.
where the process is irregular, ib. of ship by master in foreign country, not valid unless necessary, iii. 1225.
contract of in an action by vendor, iii. 1195.
by sheriff, property altered by, although the judgment be erroneous, iii. 1148. of goods vests the property, when, iii. 1221.

SALE OF LANDS, contract for the, provisions of the Statute of Frauds as to, ii. 482.

SALVAGE,
nature of the obligation to pay, iii. 1299.
action for, ib.

SALVOR,
lien of, ii. 649.

SAMPLE,
proof of sale by, iii. 1219.
sale of goods by, action for, iii. 1199.
proof of correspondence of goods with, iii. 1240.
sale by, variance from contract, ii. 61.

SATISFACTION. See Accord and Satisfaction, ii. 16. must be reasonable to bar an action, ib.
by one of several, bars the action as to the rest, ib.
giving security for past, no bar, ib. agreement to take less on a third person becoming a surety, ib.
of bill, proof of, ii. 248.
when a defence, ib.
of bill or note, presumable when, ib.
of bill by taking in execution, ib.
of bond, when presumed, ii. 270.
bill operates as, when, ii. 264.
to one of several when a bar, iii. 802.
of bill of exchange, what, ii. 249.

SCHEDULE,
of insolvent not conclusive against an omitted claim, ii. 240.

SCIENTER,
need not be proved, when, ii. 371.
proof of, when necessary, iii. 734.
though alleged, need not be proved in an action for breach of warranty, iii. 1242.
in an action for warranty need not be proved, ib.
need not be proved when, ii. 372.
in case of bad money, ii. 311.

SCILICET,
averment under, ii. 62.
when it protects from variance, ib.

SCOTLAND,
effect of judgment in courts of, i. 271.
marriage in, of English minors, valid, ii. 703.
marriage in, of English subjects, ii. 704.
proof of law of, ii. 459.

SEA,
right to land relinquished by the, iii. 1254.

SEAL,
of public corporate body, proof of, i. 342.
of city of London, ib.
admission under, effect of, i. 342.

SEALING,
of deed, evidence of, i. 372.
proof of particular custom as to, ib.
by body corporate, ib.
party may be bound without, when, ii. 377.

SEAMAN,
death of, proof of, i. 247.
effects of indictment for obtaining administration to the, iii. 860.
perjury to obtain payment of wages of, indictment for, iii. 857.
attendance of as witness, how procured, i. 81.
suit for wages by, iii. 1305.
forfeiture of wages by, under stat. 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 19, iii. 1304.

SEA SHORE,
title to, app. ii. iii. 1609.
limit of, iii. 1254.

SEARCH,
for lost instrument, evidence of, i. 387.

SEAT IN CHURCH. See Pew.
proof of right to, iii. 862, 863.

SECONDARY,
proof in absence of the attesting witness, app. i. 618.
to prove a will, iii. 1267.

SECONDARY EVIDENCE,
principle of excluding, i. 69.
exclusion of from policy, i. 70.
how it differs from defective evidence, i. 505.
of instrument in possession of the adversary, ii. 56.
entries by strangers, i. 345.
principle of admissibility, ib.

SECRETARY AT WAR,
certificate of, ii. 302.

SECRETARY OF BANKRUPTS, book of, admissible when, i. 248.

SECRETARY OF STATE, order of for bringing up a prisoner of war as a witness, i. 82.

SECRETARY OF STATE'S OFFICE, book of, proveable by a copy, i. 228.

SECRETUM ABBATIS,
held to be inadmissible, i. 239.

SECURITY,
renewal of, effect of, ii. 240.
for advances to partners determined by death of one, when, iii. 825.
giving new security discharges a former, when, iii. 1066.

SEDUCTION,
particulars of proof, iii. 989.
proof of service, ib.
proof of seduction, ib.
damages, iii. 990.
of conduct and character, ib.

SEDUCTION—continued.
defence, iii. 991.
evidence as to character, ii. 307.
seduction of servant, iii. 991.
of servant, effect of penalty recovered against the servant, ii. 300.
proof of good character when admissible, ii. 306.

SEISIN,
evidence of, ii. 458.
in fact, when necessary to be proved, iii. 897.
presumed, when, iii. 898.

SELLER,
what he generally covenants for, ii. 90.

SENSE,
of contract cannot be altered by oral evidence, i. 345
general principle, ib.

SENTENCE,
of expulsion from a college, i. 285.
deprivation by a visitor, i. 285.

SEPARATE EXAMINATION,
when allowed, i. 189.

SEPARATE MAINTENANCE,
adequacy of, a question for the jury, ii. 545.
does not discharge the husband when in respect of goods supplied to the wife, ii. 543.

SEPARATION, of husband and wife no bar to action for crim. con. ii. 356.
of husband and wife, deed of, when enforceable in equity, ii. 545

SEPARATION DEED,
illegal, when, ii. 546.

SEQUESTRATION,
Scotch, effect of, i. 270, iii. 992.
writ of, ib.

SERVANT,
seducing of, recovering penalty a bar to an action for, ii. 300.
action for seduction of, iii. 990.
master liable for negligence of, iii. 737.
authority of to warrant soundness of a horse, iii. 1240.
master not liable for wilful trespass of, iii. 1111.
custody of goods by, when lost or stolen, does not exclude an action by the owner, ib.
has a bare charge of his master's goods, ii. 609.
notice to, when sufficient, iii. 729.
cannot justify a conversion under master's order, although the act was apparently legal, iii. 1168.
proof of good character in action against master for slander, ii. 304, 305.
nuisance by, liability of master for, iii. 737.
acting under authority of master liable for conversion when, iii. 1168.
dissolution of contract with, iii. 1304.

SERVICE,
proof of in action for seduction, iii. 988, 989.
proof of in case of settlement, iii. 1001.
fraudulently procured action lies for, when, iii. 1298.

SESSIONS,
judgment of in settlement cases, i. 294.

SET OFF,
particulars of, iii. 796.
stat. 2 G. 2, c. 22, s. 13, iii. 992.
proof of notice of, ib.
proof of, iii. 995.
variance from, ib.
against assignees of bankrupt, iii. 996.
proof in answer to evidence of, ib.
stat. of limitations, ib.
particulars of set-off, iii. 997.
effect of set-off in evidence, ib.
practice where set-off is proved but not pleaded, &c., ib.
against assignees of a bankrupt, iii. 996.
proof of set-off on the bankrupt's notes, ib.
item of admission in a set-off does not supersede the necessity of proof, iii. 997.
where the set-off exceeds the original demand, an action lies for the surplus, ib.
onus probandi, i. 419.
against an executor, ii. 445.

SETTLEMENT,
proof of birth and derivative settlements, iii. 998.
hiring and service, ib.
presumptive evidence of hiring, ib.
service, ib.
apprenticeship, iii. 1001.
in case of parish apprentices, iii. 1001, 1002.
serving public office, iii. 1003.
estate, ib.
renting tenement, iii. 1004.
order of removal, iii. 1005.
effect of in evidence when unappealed from, ib.
as to what facts conclusive, ib.
when inconclusive, iii. 1006, 1007.
examination of soldiers, iii. 1007.
relief, effect of in evidence, iii. 1008. made on wife, evidence in action for crim. con., ii. 354.
of pauper, parol evidence as to agreement admissible, when, iii. 791.

SEVERAL. See One of Several. articles, sale of at separate prices form but one contract, when, ii. 486.

SEVERAL AND JOINT,
variance in proof, i. 457.

SEVERAL ALLEGATION, averment of fact done severally supported by proof of fact done jointly, when, ib.

SEVERANCE, of tithes, proof of, iii. 1084.
of chattel from freehold, effect of as to property, iii. 1154.

SEWERS,
goods taken under warrant of court repleviable, iii. 969.

SHEEPSTEALING,
proof of, app. ii. iii. 1460.

SHERIFF,
action against for a false return on mesne process, iii. 1009.
particulars of proof, ib.
proof of the writ, ib.
variance, iii. 1009.
of the bailiff's authority, ib.
by the warrant, &c., ib.
by other documents, iii. 1010.
of the sheriff's default, iii. 1011.
of the damage, iii. 1014.
admission by the debtor, ib.
Escape on mesne process.
proof of the writ, iii. 1015.
habeas corpus and committitur, ib.
escape, iii. 1015.
on return of cepi corpus, ib.
of the debt, ib.
evidence in defence, iii. 1016.
false return to fieri facias, ib.
particulars of proof, iii. 1016, 1017.
title to the property, ib.
defence, ib.
bankruptcy of party against whose goods the writ issued, iii. 1018.
escape in execution, iii. 1019.
arrest, ib.
escape, iii. 1019, 1020.
variance, iii. 1021.
evidence in defence, ib.
fresh pursuit, ib.
error in process, when available, iii. 1022.
action against for money had and received, ib.
taking insufficient pledges, iii. 1024.
action by against a surety, iii. 1025, 1026.
action against by a landlord, ib.
stat. 8 Ann. c. 14, s. 1, ib.
particulars of proof, iii. 1026, 1027.
demise, ib.
occupation, ib.
lies on defendant to prove the rent paid, ib.
removal of goods, iii. 1027.
proof of removal of part sufficient, ib.
action for paying year's rent to landlord, iii. 1028.
evidence in defence that rent was due, ib.
competency of landlord, ib.
action against for negligence in losing a replevin bond, iii. 1025, 1026.
trespass against the sheriff, iii. 1028. evidence to connect the sheriff with the act of the bailiff, iii. 1028, 1029. recital of writ in warrant does not prove the writ, iii. 1028.

SHERIFF—continued.
sheriff liable for seizure by bailiff of any other party's goods, iii. 1029.
sheriff liable in case of misnomer, ib. defence by the sheriff, ib.
goods of executrix used as goods of the husband, ib.
trover against the sheriff, iii. 1028.
proof of judgment when necessary to defeat an assignment, iii. 1030.
unnecessary where the assignment is merely colourable, ib.
competency, iii. 1031.
extortion, ib.
particulars of proof, iii. 1031, 1032.
action under stat. 32 G. 2, c. 28, iii. 1032.
action against sheriff for refusing a vote, &c. ib proof of malicious or corrupt motive, ib proof by vendee under sale by sheriff, ib.
assignment of lease, proof of, iii. 1033.
return by, ib.
where evidence, ib.
competency, ib.
inquisition by to ascertain property in goods not evidence for him, iii. 1019.
admission by the debtor. See Admission.
not liable in an action for money had and received, for not paying the landlord's rent, ii. 83.
liability of for goods taken in execution to assignees of bankrupt, ii. 116. liability of in executing process against goods of bankrupt, ii. 118.
actions for breach of duty by under-sheriff to be brought against the high sheriff, iii. 1009.
return of on the writ when admissible, i. 330. guilty of conversion in selling goods of bankrupt after an act of bankruptcy, iii. 1157. 1168.
proof by vendee under in action of ejectment, iii. 1195.
liable in respect of predecessor's tort, when, iii. 729.
false return evidence in action for, app. ii. iii. 1553.
special bailiff effect of appointing, ib.
damages, amount of, ib.
money had and received, ib. 1554.
taking insufficient sureties, action for, ib. action against by a landlord, under stat. 8 Ann. c. 14, ib.
defence by, acting judicially, ib. 1555.
sale by, effect of, iii. 1032. defence by under new rules, iii. 1021.
seizure of goods under a fi. fa. after a secret act of bankruptcy, a conversion, iii. 1157.
action against, property seizable by, app. ii. iii. 1555.
extortion by, ib.
poundage of, ib.

SHERIFF'S OFFICER,
remedy on indemnity when bail above is not put in, ii. 74.

SHIP,
interest in, proof of, iii. 868.
registry of, evidence when, i. 248. transfer of, when void for non-compliance with Register Act, ii. 243.
reputed ownership of, ii. 157.
repairs of, liability of owner to, iii. 1301.

SHIP—continued.
action for repairs of, iii. 1301.
against the master, ib.
against the owner, ib.
a mere mortgagee who has not taken possession not liable, ib.
captain liable for goods, &c. ii. 46.
proof of ownership, iii. 868.
vendee of, proof of title by, iii. 1225.
master of, not liable for negligence of pilot, when, iii. 739.
sold at sea in case of bankruptcy, ii. 159.
contracted to be built, property in whilst building, iii. 1148.
property in, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 156
goods ordered for by the captain, ii. 42.

SHIP-BUILDER,
opinion of, when evidence. See Policy

SHIP-OWNER,
authority from, presumable, ii. 42.
liability of for act of master, iii. 1301.
liability of for mariner's wages, iii. 1302 necessary repairs, iii. 1302.
authority of the master presumed, ii. 42 not registered, liability of, iii. 1302.

SHIPWRIGHT,
lien of, ii. 649.

SHOP-BOOK,
when evidence, i. 360.

SHOPMAN. See Agent.

SHORT
entering of bills, effect of, ii. 165, 166.

SIAM, KING OF,
anecdote of Locke as to, i. 554.

SICKNESS,
incapacity of servant by does not bar his action for wages, iii. 1305.

SIGN MANUAL,
of king, certificate under, ii. 303.
evidence of, when sufficient, i. 242.

SIGNATURE, of memorandum, &c. what sufficient within the statute of frauds, ii. 485. 492.
probable by admission, when, ii. 217.
what amounts to, ii. 485.
in pencil, when sufficient, ii. 492.
by agent, what sufficient under the stat. of frauds, ii. 493.

SIMILITUDE
of handwriting, when admissible evidence, ii. 518.

SIMONIACAL BOND, ii. 965. See Rector.

SIMONY,
not a defence when in an action for use and occupation, iii. 973.

SIMPLE CONTRACT
debts, may be paid before specialties, when, ii. 448.

SINGULAR AND PLURAL,
variance between, i. 488.

SKILL AND JUDGMENT,
opinion on questions of, ii. 313.
reasons of witness for giving an opinion on questions of, i. 548.
evidence on questions of, i. 69.

SLANDER,
character, evidence of, when admissible, ii. 306.

SLIP OF LAND
adjoining highway, evidence of right to, ii. 697.

SOLDIER,
examination of, iii. 1007.

SOLICITOR,
under commission of bankrupt not liable to the messenger, ii. 114.

SOLVIT AD DIEM,
onus probandi lies on a party alleging payment, iii. 818.
proof on plea of, iii. 827.

SOLVIT POST DIEM,
proof on plea of, ii. 270.

SON ASSAULT,
plea of, iii. 1131.

SON ASSAULT DEMESNE,
evidence of, ii. 53,
replication of does not put excess in issue, iii. 1134.
plea of, admits an assault committed, iii. 1135.
proof on issue, on plea of, ib.

SONG,
piracy of, iii. 938.

SORTER
of letters, proof of being, ii. 308.

SOUND MEMORY,
proof of allegation of lies on the party alleging, i. 419.

SPECIAL BAILIFF,
effect of act by in executing writ, &c. iii. 1011.

SPECIAL CHARACTER. See Character.
proof of, ii. 307.

SPECIAL CONTRACT,
evidence under a general count, when for goods, &c. iii. 1204.
effect of failure on, ii. 72.

SPECIAL DAMAGE,
inadmissible when, unless averred, ii. 636.
exceptions to the rule, ib.
resulting from breach of contract, limitations, stat. of, how computed, ii. 661.
allegation of, when necessary, ii. 317.

SPECIAL PLEADINGS, object of, i. 3.

SPECIAL PROPERTY,
what sufficient in trover, iii. 1145.

SPECIAL VERDICT,
not finding an actual tender, but evidence only, insufficient when, iii. 1071.

SPECIFICATION,
of invention, iii. 939.
variance from by an artist, effect of, iii. 1307.

SPECIFIC INTENTION,
when necessary to be proved, ii. 572.

SPECIFIC PURPOSE,
bills deposited for in case of bankruptcy, ii. 166.

SPIRITUAL COURT,
proof of sentence of, i. 300.
sentence of, when conclusive, i. 285.
for what reason, ib.
sentence of nullity of marriage, effect of, i. 288, 289.
depositions taken in, whether admissible, i. 316.
jurisdiction of in case of marriage, ii. 698.

SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS, effect of stat. 24 G. 2, as to demand for, iii. 827.

SPRING GUNS,
action for damage from, iii. 735.
nuisance by placing, ib.

SPURIOUS
facts, detection of, i. 65, 66.

STAGE-COACH,
proof of ownership of, i. 248.

STAKEHOLDER,
authority of, revocable, ii. 89.
liability, ii. 95.

STALLAGE,
assumpsit for, no contract need be shown, ii. 69.

STAMP,
administration, iii. 1034, 1035. agreement, iii. 1035, 1036, 1037, 1038, 1039, 1040. See Assumpsit. appraisement iii. 1040.
apprentice, ib.
award, iii. 1041.
bankers' drafts, iii. 1043.
bills of exchange, iii. 1044.
bill of lading, ib.
bill of sale, ib.
bond, ib.
cognovit, iii. 1046.
composition deed, iii. 1045.
conveyance, ib.
copies, iii. 1046.
deed, ib.
ejectment, iii. 1047.
foreign instrument, ib.
lease, ib.
policy, iii. 1049.

STAMP—continued.
receipt, iii. 1049.
surrender, iii. 1051.
warrant of attorney, ib.
re-stamping of instrument, when necessary, ib.
alteration, ib.
second stamp, when necessary, ib.
several stamps, when necessary, iii. 1052.
stamp of different denominations, iii. 1053. time and manner of stamping, iii. 1055.
objection for want of, when taken, iii. 1054, 1055.
presumptive evidence of, iii. 1055.
effect of want of stamp, iii. 1056.
unstamped instrument, when admissible for collateral purposes, iii. 1057.
proper, when presumed, ii. 56.
presumption that an ancient indenture was properly stamped, iii. 1055.
new one, when necessary, in the case of an altered policy, iii. 867.
on bill of exchange, objection for want of, ii. 254.
on foreign bill, ib.
production of instrument for purpose of stamping, i. 370.
on probate, evidence to assets, ii. 449.
on probate, when evidence, ib.
time and mode of objecting to, app. ii. iii. 1556.
single, when sufficient, ib.
ad valorem, ib.
affidavit, ib. 1557.
agreement, ib.
annuity, ib. 1558.
apprentice, ib.
assignment, ib.
attorney, ib. 1559.
authority, ib.
bill of exchange, ib.
bond, ib.
charge on land, ib.
deed, ib.
lease, ib.
mortgage, ib. 1560.
surrender, ib.

STATE,
acts of, proof of, i. 233.

STATEMENT OF COUNSEL, omission in, will not preclude plaintiff from recovering on cause of action alleged and proved, i. 430.

STATUTE,
mis-recital of, variance as to, i. 479.
provisions of stat. 33 Geo. 3, c. 13, as to date of commencement, iii. 1059. prospective, when, ii. 123.
prospective one, ii. 271.
when compulsory, app. ii. iii. 1560.
proof of, ib.
repeal of, by implication, ib.

STATUTE DUTY,
conviction for not doing, ii. 587.
presumptive evidence as to highway, when, ii. 524.

STATUTE MERCHANT. See Ejectment.

STATUTE STAPLE,
proof of title by conusee of, ii. 408.

STATUTES,
public knowledge of presumed, iii. 728.

STEALING. See Larceny.

STEAM-ENGINE,
in case of bankruptcy, ii. 155.

STEWARD,
of court baron, a judicial officer, iii. 1112.
of manor, proof of title to fees, &c. ii. 696.
entry by, of receipt of money, i. 358. 364.
entries by stewards and other agents against their own interests admissible evidence, i. 357.
of manor, title to fees, ii. 696.

STIPULATED DAMAGES,
proof of agreement for, iii. 852, 853.

STOCK,
action for not accepting, iii. 1200.
evidence in action for not transferring, iii. 1220.
damages in action for not replacing, ii. 269.
title to dividends in the case of tenant for life, app. ii. iii. 1561.

STOCK-JOBBING CONTRACT, when void, app. ii. iii. 1561.

STOCK-JOBBING TRANSACTION, bill given for differences, illegal, ii. 246.

STOLEN BILL,
proof of value given, ii. 243.
of exchange, property in, iii. 1149.

STOPPAGE
of money in illegal transit, ii. 95.

STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU,
proof of in case of bankruptcy, ii. 162.
ground of right, ib.
termination of the transitus, ib.
right divested by delivery of bill of lading, ii. 267.
of goods in transitu, proof of, iii. 1226.
when valid, app. ii. iii. 1354.
right of when determined, iii. 1226.

SUBMISSION,
to award not binding on minor, ii. 117.
or married woman, ib.
agreement to be bound by the opinion of another, effect of, ii. 116.

SUBPŒNA,
writ of, i. 78.
form of, ib.
renewal of, ib.

SUBPŒNA—continued.
service of, i. 78.
tender of expenses, i. 78, 79.
attachment for disobedience, i. 80.
writ of, how used, i. 92.
in one part of the United Kingdom when effectual to procure attendance in another, i. 83.
stat. 45 G. 3, c. 92, s. 3, provisions of, ib.
form of, app. i. 589.

SUBPŒNA DUCES TECUM,
writ of, i. 87.
obligation to obey the writ, ib.
production of instrument under, when compelled, i. 87, 88.
where the instrument is in the hands of an attorney, i. 88.
omission to obey will not warrant the reception of secondary evidence, i. 90.
a clerk to the commissioners of taxes is bound to produce their books, i. 91.
the immateriality of the instrument no answer for disobeying the writ, app. i. 593.
what must be produced under, ib.
objection to produce a document not to be argued by counsel, ib.

SUBSCRIBER,
under Act of Parliament, proof of being, iii. 815.

SUBSCRIBING WITNESS. See Attesting Witness.

SUBSCRIPTION TO ARTICLES, when necessary to prove avoidance, iii. 944.

SUBSEQUENT ASSENT to an act, whether it can make a party a trespasser, iii. 1109.

SUBSTANCE,
what is matter of, i. 443.

SUBSTANCE AND LEGAL EFFECT, proof according to, when sufficient, ii. 62.
what amounts to a variance from, i. 484.

SUBSTANTIVE and Adjective Provisions, i. 1.

SUBSTITUTE,
the product of follows the original, ii. 176.

SUBSTITUTED BILL,
liable to same equities with the original, ii. 255.

SUBSTITUTED SECURITY,
when valid, although the original was illegal, ii. 247.

SUBSTITUTION,
by parol of term in a written agreement, effect of, ii. 491.

SUFFERANCE,
tenant by, ii. 420.

SUFFICIENCY
of common, proof of, on whom incumbent, ii. 317.

SUGGESTION
of breaches, when necessary, ii. 268. of death of co-plaintiff, when necessary, iii. 854.

SUICIDE,
indictment for procuring, app. ii. iii. 1561.

SUIT,
determination of, proof of, ii. 688.

SUMMONS,
essential to conviction, i. 306.
of party essential to a conviction or judgment against him, ii. 590.

SUMS,
variance from, effect of, i. 440. 445.

SUMS AND QUANTITIES,
variance from, when material, ii. 299.

SUNDAY,
contract made on, when illegal, ii. 93.
money paid on, when recoverable, ib.
purchase on, ib.
notice of dishonour of bill upon, ii. 225.

SUPERSEDEAS,
proof of, ii. 81.
writ of, evidence of what, ii. 194.
of commission, ii. 687.

SUPERSEDED COMMISSION, acts done under, ii. 181.

SUPPRESSIO VERI,
amounts to fraud, when, ii. 373.
defeats a policy, iii. 885.

SUPPRESSION,
fraudulent, by vendor, a defence when, iii. 1214.

SURCHARGE
of common, action for, ii. 316.

SURETY,
action by, against principal, iii. 1060.
proof that plaintiff was surety, ib.
payment of the money, ib.
action against co-surety, iii. 1060, 1061.
in action by co-assignee under a commission unnecessary to prove funds, &c. iii. 1061.
stat. 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 52, provisions of as to sureties, ib.
when applicable, ib.
promise of indemnity, when implied, iii. 1062.
action against a surety, ib.
admissions by principal inadmissible, iii. 1063.
where admissible, ib.
after the death of the principal, ib.
giving time to the principal, effect of, iii. 1064. admission by a principal is not evidence against his surety, ii. tit. Admission.
competency of, iii. 1067.
when discharged by giving time to the principal, ii. 250.
reason of the rule, ii. 250, 251.
effect of in case of bill of exchange, ib.

SURETY—continued.
time given to a prior discharges a subsequent party, why, ii. 250, 251.
time given to the acceptor discharges the drawer, ii. 250.
but the acceptor of an accommodation bill is not discharged by giving time to the drawer, ii. 250, 251.
action by for contribution, ii. 76.
in replevin, proof in action against, iii. 977.
notice to of balance due, when necessary, iii. 730.
mode of proof, iii. 731.
action against by the sheriff, iii. 1026.
fraud as to, ii. 17.
is competent in an action for taking insufficient sureties, iii. 1034.
action by when barred by the bankruptcy and certificate of the principal, ii. 186.
for debt of bankrupt entitled to prove, when, ii. 185.
action by, ii. 75, 76.
for bankrupt entitled to dividend, when, ii. 185.
liability of, app. ii. iii. 1561.
discharge of, ib. 1562.
discharged when by release, &c. ib. 1373.

SURETIES,
insufficient, action for taking, iii. 1024.

SURPLUSAGE,
effect of, i. 432. 436.
in description of written instrument, i. 483.

SURPLUSAGE OF CATTLE,
commoner cannot distrain for, when, ii. 318, 319.

SURRENDER,
evidence of, ii. 405.
presumptive, ib.
of tenancy, proof of, iii. 1182.
in law, what amounts to, ib.
presumptive evidence of, i. 362.
by tenant for life, presumed when, iii. 961.
of one for life enures to the benefit of one in remainder, ii. 333.
to use of will, when necessary, ib.
custom to present at indefinite period void, ii.
of an interest in land, effect of statute of frauds as to, ii. 474.
to use of will, how proved, ii. 334.
stamp on, iii. 1051.
copy of need not be stamped, ii. 333.
of lease, actual, iii. 1182.
in law, ib.
in bankruptcy, effect of as an admission, ii. 150.
of copyhold, proof of, ii. 334.
of term, not presumable when, iii. 917.
presumption of, from old cancelled leases, app. ii. iii. 1562.

SURROGATE,
proof of being, ii. 307.
power of to administer an oath, iii. 854.

SURVEYOR,
of highways, not justified in removing fence, when, iii. 1259.
authority of to remove obstructions to public road, ii. 528.

SURVEYS AND MAPS,
proof by, i. 236.
ancient, taken under authority, ib.
domesday book, ib.
survey of the ports, ib.
valor beneficiorum, ib.
survey, stat. 21 H. 8, ib.
survey from first-fruits office, ib.
parliamentary surveys, i. 237.
survey by order of the House of Commons, ib. inquisitions by order of the House of Commons as to fees, i. 237, 238.
inquisitions under public commissioners, i. 237.
ancient extents of crown lands, i. 238.
of a religious house, evidence when, iii. 1090.
of crown and church lands under parliamentary commissioners, ii. 796.
from first-fruits office, effect of, i. 237. 239.
of ports, i. 236.
of ports in Exchequer, evidence by, ib.
of estates, when admissible, i. 354.
of manor, admissible when, ib.
ancient, admissibility of, i. 236.
ancient, evidence when in suit for tithes, ib.

SURVIVING PARTNER,
liability of, iii. 814.

SUSPENSION of right to sue, ii. 104.

SYMBOLICAL DELIVERY,
transfer by, iii. 1224.

TAXATION of Pope Nicholas, iii. 1090. of attorney's bill, ii. 110.

TAXES,
land-tax, distress for, app. ii. iii. 1562.

TECHNICAL TERMS,
must be proved in their technical sense, i. 463.

TENANCY. See Replevin—Use and Occupation. proof of in action for injury to the reversion, iii. 978.
proved by showing the party to be mortgagor, ib.
proof of determination of lies on the tenant, when, iii. 1176.
on question of settlement, proof of, iii. 1004, 1005.
terms of, when explicable by custom, ii. 363.

TENANCY IN FEE,
possession primâ facie proof of, ii. 411.

TENANT,
estopped from disputing landlord's title, ii. 424, iii. 973. 1180. 1280.
declaration by, when admissible, i. 365. competency of. See Ejectment—Reversion.
pauper occupier of a house is not a, i. 437.
proof of title of to use way-going crop, ii. 362.
inclosure of waste by, for whose benefit presumed to be done, ii. 696.

TENANT—continued.
contract of is not discharged by bankruptcy, when, iii. 1176.
estopped from denying his landlord's title, when, ii. 424, iii. 973. 1280.
may show that his landlord's title is expired, when, iii. 1181.
freehold essential to a manor, ii. 695.
deceased, declarations by, i. 365, 366.
incompetent in replevin, when, iii. 976. breach by of covenant to repair, ii. 348.
continuance of liability of, iii. 1181.
estoppel of, iii. 973.
off-going, usage to compensate, iii. 782.
copyhold, right to cut down wood, &c. ii. 696.
liable to reversioner for the wrongful act of his own tenant, iii. 1255.

TENANT AT SUFFERANCE, ejectment against, ii. 420.

TENANT AT WILL,
ejectment against, ii. 420.

TENANT IN COMMON. See Ejectment—Interest—Parties. cannot recover against a co-tenant for waste, iii. 1244.
evidence of plaintiff being, in reduction of damages in trover, iii. 1168.
liable for destruction, iii. 1118.
should join in tort, ii. 297.
avowry by, iii. 973.
conversion by, iii. 1158.
trover by, when maintainable, iii. 1159.

TENANT IN TAIL,
recovery by does not operate as a bar, when, ii. 404.

TENANTS IN COMMON,
goods of, conversion of, iii. 1158.

TENANTS OF MANOR,
right of, ii. 317.
to dig for gravel, ib.
to estovers, ib.

TENDER,
onus of proof, iii. 1097.
general issue as to part, tender as to the residue, ib.
requisites to make a legal tender, iii. 1067, 1068.
actual production and offer, iii. 1067.
when unnecessary, ib.
of what, iii. 1068.
form of, ib.
informality of, when cured, iii. 1069.
to whom to be made, iii. 1068.
subsequent demand, iii. 1071.
proof of commencement of action, iii. 1072.
proof of capias, satisfies averment of an original sued out, ib.
tender to relieve goods from a lien, ib.
must be pleaded, when, ib.
effect of plea as an admission, ib.
when necessary to be proved, ib.
in case of transfer of stock, ib.

TENDER—continued.
of conveyance on contract of purchase, iii. 1073.
of goods to be carried, ib.
of amends, iii. 975.
evidence of, in ejectment for a forfeiture, ii. 425.
of rent before distress reaches it, tortious, ii. 390.
variance from in amount, effect of, i. 441.
of rent before distress, effect of, ii. 300.
of conveyance, when necessary to enable vendee of estate to recover as for breach of contract, iii. 1192.
of amount of bill in a reasonable time after dishonour, ii. 257.
of conveyance in action by vendor, proof of, iii. 1189.
of amends in action against a justice, sufficiency of, ii. 594.
of amends in replevin, iii. 975.
sufficiency of, app. ii. iii. 1563.
pleading of, ib. 1564.
costs, ib.

TENEMENT,
settlement by renting of, iii. 1004.

TENOR,
variance from, i. 480.

TERM. See Time.
relation to first day of, iii. 1074.

TERM OUTSTANDING,
surrender of, when presumed, iii. 917.

TERMINI,
variance from, when material, ii. 61.
variance from description of, ii. 284.

TERRIER,
proof of in action for tithe, iii. 1090.

TERRIERS,
evidence of what, i. 238.
proof of, i. 239.
ecclesiastical, nature of, ib.
where to be kept, ib.
effect of, in evidence, ib.
proof of, as to place of deposit, ib.
imperfect, still admissible, ib.
evidence to rebut presumption of a farm modus, ib.
ecclesiastical, admissibility of, i. 240.
under what circumstances, ib.
ecclesiastical, proof of as to place of deposit, ib.
how signed, ib.
of what authority, iii. 1090.
effect of, in evidence, ib.

TESTATOR, declaration by not admissible to vary the terms of his will, iii. 762.
promise laid to, not supported by evidence of a promise to his executor, ii. 443.

TESTIMONY,
degrees of, i. 16.
immediate testimony by what tests guarded, ib.
administration of an oath, ib.
opportunity to cross-examine, i. 24.

TEST,
variance of, ii. 83.

TESTS,
of the admissibility of evidence, i. 16.
necessity for excluding tests, i. 16, 17.

THING DONE,
under an Act of Parliament, limitation of action for, ii. 659.
variance from allegation of, i. 475.
stat. of limitations as to, from what time it runs, ii. 659, 660.

THREAT,
excludes evidence of confession, ii. 36.
evidence of in case of duress, ii. 397.
indictable offence, when, ib.
indictment for proof under, app. ii. iii. 1564.

TIMBER,
within copyhold, right as to, ii. 696.

TIME OF ENTRY,
custom when evidence of, ii. 362.

TIME. See Date. computation of, iii. 1073.
in temporal proceedings, ib.
ecclesiastical, ib.
mercantile, ib.
where a thing is to be done in a time specified from a particular fact, ib.
month's notice of action, ib.
action against the hundred, ib.
from seizure of goods, iii. 1074.
term, ib.
relation to the first day of, ib.
general memorandum, ib.
judgment signed in vacation, iii. 1075.
commencement and action, ii. 584. 784, iii. 1075.
bill of Middlesex, iii. 1076.
process, how connected with declaration, ib. fraction of day, iii. 1079.
reasonable time, ib.
deed intended to have been delivered on day of date, when, iii. 1080.
time of birth, evidence of, iii. 834.
computation of, noticed by the courts, i. 509.
computation of, in case of lapse, iii. 944.
variance from allegation of, i. 404.
of particular fact, variance from allegation of, material when, i. 487.
given to principal discharges the surety, when, iii. 1064.
of expiration of credit in an action for goods sold and delivered, iii. 1205.
of entry by tenant, proof of, ii. 414.
of making tender, iii. 1071.

TIME—continued.
immemorial, what, ii. 358.
allegation of, how restrictive of proof, ii. 298.
reasonable, a question of law, when, i. 514. 517. 519. 521.
of holding may be explained by parol evidence, when, ii. 416.
giving to principal, effect of, ii. 251.
of making note, ii. 147.
given to surety, effect of, iii. 1064.
calculation of exclusive, when, app. ii. iii. 1564.
day, fraction of, ib. 1566.
date presumed to be correct, when, ib.
of making an appointment, ib.
Sundays and holidays, ib.

TIME OF CREDIT,
provision as to in bankruptcy, ii. 148.

TIPPLING ACT,
provisions of, ii. 247.

TITHES,
debt under the stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6, c. 13, iii. 1080.
particulars of proof, ib.
evidence of title, ib.
direct, ib.
presumptive, iii. 1081.
evidence of perception, ib.
of endowment, iii. 1082.
payment of, iii. 1082, 1083.
lay impropriator, iii. 1083.
lessee, ib.
determination of composition, ib.
evidence of payment within 40 years, &c. iii. 1082.
when necessary, ib.
proof in defence, iii. 1084.
simoniacal presentation, ib.
severance, ib.
composition real, iii. 1085.
mere usage insufficient evidence of, ib.
mere non-payment insufficient, iii. 1086.
in case of lay impropriator, ib.
modus, iii. 1087.
evidence of verdict, iii. 1089.
decree, ib.
depositions, ib.
bill and answer, ib.
king's books, ib.
surveys, iii. 1090.
terrier, ib.
books of account, iii. 1091.
vicar's books, iii. 1092.
custom in other parishes, ib.
reputation, ib.
lands of dissolved monastery, iii. 1093.
exemption by pope's bull, ib.
lands held by privileged order, ib.
barren lands, ib.
custom of tithing, iii. 1094.
competency, iii. 1095.

TITHES—continued.
proof of title by payment of, ii. 24.
receipt of entries, as to, when admissible, ii. 314.
proof of title to, app. ii. iii. 1567.
grant of within a manor, what it includes, ii. 695.

TITLE. See Prescription.
by prescription, iii. 903.
by grant, ib.
presumed, when, iii. 904.
evidence of in ejectment, ii. 399. to land, presumptive evidence of, iii. 1125.
to waste, ib.
to chattel personal, iii. 1146.
of lord of manor to wreck, ib.
to a tree, iii. 1147.
to personal chattel,
by agreement, iii. ib.
gift, iii. 1148.
exchange, ib.
sale, iii. 1149.
by sheriff, iii. 1153.
by agent, iii. 1152.
by a factor, ib.
consignment, iii. 1151, 1152.
to a negotiable security, iii. 1151. to property remains in the owner until execution executed, iii. 1103 to personal chattel, presumptive evidence of, iii. 1221.
to goods by agreement of sale, ib.
what requisite to pass the property, iii. 1219.
capability of delivery, iii. 1219, 1220.
transfer by delivery, iii. 1223.
symbolical delivery, iii. 1224.
conditional delivery, ib.
impeached by fraud, when, iii. 1225.
goods obtained by false pretences, ib.
to a chattel annexed to the freehold, iii. 866.
vendor of estate must show a legal title, iii. 1190.
presumptive evidence of discharge from an incumbrance not sufficient, ib.
equitable objections to, will be noticed by a court of law, iii. 1191. defects in, what may be objected by the vendee of an estate, iii. 1192.
allegation and proof of in an action by a vendor, iii. 1189. of landlord cannot be impeached by tenant, iii. 973.
to a pew, proof of, iii. 862, 863.
variance from allegation of, i. 450.
variance from proof when not material, ii. 316.
variance from in action of tort, i. 452.
cannot be tried in action of indeb. assump. ii. 85.
to copyhold, when complete, ii. 332.
of tenant by devise of copyhold, ii. 333.
things collateral to presumed, iii. 935.
to real estate, proof by vendor, ii. 1190. destruction of evidence of by a tenant, action for, iii. 744.
proof of necessary, when in trover, iii. 1146.
evidence of in trover, iii. 1151.
of bankrupt's assignees controvertible, when, ii. 174.

TITLE-DEEDS,
admissibility of, i. 354.

TOLL,
second, when payable, ii. 85.
thorough, iii. 906.
traverse, ib.
nature of claim to under a canal act, iii. 1260.
on horses, ii. 85.
carriage, ib.
turnpike, app. ii. iii. 1568.
rate on canal tolls, ib.
thorough, prescriptive evidence of, iii. 906.
taking of illegal, when, iii. 1095.

TOLL HOUSES,
illegal mortgage of by trustees, effect of, iii. 1173.

TOMBSTONE,
trespass for wrongful removal of, iii. 1104.

TORT,
waiver of by plaintiff, ii. 71.
waiver of, in case of money obtained by fraud, ii. 83, 84. action of, variance from allegations in, i. 449.
waiver of in action for goods sold and delivered, iii. 1203.

TORTURE,
allowed by the Roman law, i. 10.
not resorted to by the Anglo-Saxons, ib.

TOTAL LOSS,
allegation of, variance from, ii. 299.
action on the case, ib.

TRADE,
custom of, ii. 360.
condition in restraint of, validity of, iii. 852, 853.
exercise of, a nuisance, when, iii. 742. agreement to relinquish, illegal, when, ii. 351.

TRADITION,
traditionary evidence, when admissible in tithe suit, iii. 1092.
may be taken in part and rejected in part, iii. 841.

TRADITIONARY DECLARATIONS, admissible to prove pedigree, iii. 834.
connection with family essential to warrant, ii. 604, 605.

TRADITIONARY EVIDENCE,
when admissible, i. 33.
not admissible to prove a particular fact, ib.
must be supported by proof of acts of enjoyment, i. 33.

TRAINER OF HORSES,
lien of, ii. 649.

TRANSACTIONS,
meaning of, under 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, ii. 170.

TRANSFER,
of account and credit, ii. 100.
of bill of exchange, &c. ii. 218.
to a succeeding sheriff of writ or money, iii. 1017.

TRANSFER—continued.
of goods sold by delivery, iii. 1223.
by symbolical delivery, iii. 1224.
of debt, ii. 80.

TRANSITUS,
of goods, when determined, ii. 163. 892.
proof of determination of, iii. 1226.

TRANSPORTATION, of the husband, effect of, ii. 547.

TRAPS,
placing, nuisance by, iii. 734.

TRAVERSE,
right of, app. ii. iii. 1569.

TRAVERSABLE, act of judge, when, ii. 121.
what is not, ii. 586.

TREASON,
number of witnesses, iii. 1095.
at common law, ib.
by statute, ib.
proof of overt acts, iii. 1096.
of traitorous intention, ib.
acts of others when admissible, iii. 1098.
proof of, app. ii. iii. 1569.

TREASURER,
to trustees of road cannot recover, when, iii. 1172.

TREASURER, PARISH,
proof of his election, i. 245.

TREES,
proof of title, iii. 1126. 1147.
reservation of, ib.
when felled during a lease, iii. 1147.
forfeiture for cutting, ib. trover for, ib. See Trover.
right to, within a manor, ii. 690.
special property in, for shade, &c., iii. 1118.
sale of, by tenant in tail, ib.
cutting down, evidence of right to the soil, iii. 1259.
cut down and sold, time of limitation how computed, ii. 662.
felled during lease, property in, iii. 1147.
felled during the life of tenant for life, ib.
grant of evidence of, ib.
growing, sale of, ii. 99.
contract for when growing, by parol, effect of, ii. 481.
planted by the lord in the waste cannot be cut by commoner, ii. 317.

TRESPASS,
proof of possession of lands or goods, iii. 1100.
in trespass quare clausum, &c., ib. locality of land, iii. 1099.
possession of lands, ib.
mere occupancy, iii. 1100.

TRESPASS—continued.
of mere title, insufficient, iii. 1100.
possession of part in name of the whole, ib.
possession for limited purpose, iii. 1102.
judgment in ejectment, evidence of, ib.
right of chattel from possession, iii. 1102, 1103.
possession of chattel as bailee, iii. 1103.
right of possession essential, ib.
of acts of trespass, iii. 1104.
their time and number, ib.
number of assaults proveable, ib.
with reference to the number of counts, ib.
number of trespasses to land, ib.
where laid with a continuance, ib.
with reference to several defendants, ib.
place of the act, iii. 1106. locality of trespass, qu. cl. fre., ib.
manner of the injury, ib.
distinction between trespass and case, iii. 1108.
trespasser ab initio, ib.
trespass by agent, ib.
legal process, iii. 1110.
proof of agency, iii. 1111.
judicial acts, ib.
intention, when material, iii. 1112.
trespass to the person, ib.
false imprisonment, ib.
damages, iii. 1114.
evidence in aggravation, ib.
trespass to wife, children, &c., ib.
consequential damage, ib.
seduction of wife and daughter, iii. 1115.
defendant's intention, conduct and expressions, iii. 1114, 1115.
damages sustained by plaintiff and another, not recoverable, when, ib.
sustained by one plaintiff only, not recoverable in action by law, ib.
special damage must be stated on record, iii. 1115.
otherwise the evidence not admissible, when, ib.
loss of lodgers, &c., ib.
alia enormia, proof under, iii. 1116.
partial proof sufficient, ib. 1117.
proof of notice,
not to trespass, ib.
of action, ib.
that the defendant is an inferior tradesman, &c., ib.
proofs in defence, iii. 1118.
under the general issue, ib.
freehold, ib.
joint interest, ib.
entry by command of owner, ib.
interest in him as lessee, ib.
special property, &c., ib.
sale under execution, iii. 1119.
judgment to be proved, when, ib.
intention, when material, ib.
injury attributable to plaintiff, ib.

TRESPASS—continued.
arrest by mistake no defence, iii. 1120.
ship taken as prize, afterwards acquitted, ib.
cattle delivered to defendant as pound-keeper, ib.
injury occasioned by negligence of plaintiff's agent, ib.
merger of civil action in felony, ib.
proof of acquittal, ib.
may be rebutted by proof of collusion, ib. evidence under general issue by virtue of particular statutes, iii. 1121.
evidence in mitigation, ib.
not admissible where the matter was pleadable in bar, ib.
evidence not admissible under the general issue, iii. 1122.
a release, ib.
accord and satisfaction, ib.
seizure on a deodand, ib.
heriot, ib.
distress, damage feasant, ib.
right of way, ib.
easement, ib.
defect in fences, ib.
accident, ib.
entry to take emblements, ib.
fresh pursuit of a felon, ib.
entry to abate a nuisance, ib.
recovery by, and payment to another, ib.
leave and license, ib.
interest short of right of possession, ib.
enjoyment, ib.
necessity, ib.
accident, ib.
entry under authority of law, &c., ib.
defect of plaintiff's title, ib.
cutting plaintiff's posts fixed in defendant's soil, ib.
proof on plea of justification in general, iii. 1123.
proof of excuse, although not commensurate with the allegation, ib.
on plea of liberum tenementum, ib.
defendant may elect to what parcel he will apply his evidence, ib.
two closes of same name, ib.
allegation of grant not proved by evidence of partial interest, ib.
plea of inclosure of common for twenty years, ib. sufficient to prove inclosure of part of place in which the trespass was committed, ib.
place in which, &c. means the place where the trespass is proved to have been done, iii. 1125.
evidence in support of the plea of title, ib.
presumption as to title to waste land adjoining a highway, ib.
how rebutted, ib.
acts of ownership in other lands, when admissible, ib.
evidence on issue joined on customary right, iii. 1129.
admissible of custom, which negatives the right alleged, ib.
evidence to support customary right in respect of ancient messuages, where a new one has been built, &c., iii. 1130.
evidence of acts of ownership, cutting down trees, iii. 1125, 1126.
of the right to a hedge or fence, ib.
on right of common, iii. 1130.

TRESPASS—continued.
plea of right of way, iii. 1130. traverse of command, ib.
what put in issue, ib.
proof, on replication of de injuriâ in general, iii. 1131.
proof lies on the defendant, ib.
plea of leave and license, ib. sufficient to prove so much of plea as amounts to a justification, ib.
evidence by plaintiff in answer, iii. 1132. cannot insist on excess, ib. 1133.
new assignment, when necessary, ib.
replication of excess, when necessary, iii. 1134.
to plea of son assault, &c., iii. 1135.
number of assaults proveable, ib.
what constitutes an assault, ib.
the plaintiff cannot justify the first assault under this replication, ib.
justification in defence of wife, &c., iii. 1136.
possession of property, ib.
destroying dogs, &c., iii. 1137.
leave and license, iii. 1138.
the proof lies on the defendant, ib.
partial proof, ib.
plaintiff must reply that which renders the defendant a trespasser ab initio, ib.
plea of justification under process, iii. 1139.
proof of notice and demand of warrant, ib.
on issue taken on new assignment, iii. 1141.
replication of excess, iii. 1143.
admission of cause of action by, ib.
replication of matter to show the defendant to be a trespasser ab initio, ib.
defendant when entitled to notice of action under the stat. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 30, s. 24, ib. complainant under stat. 1 G. 4, c. 56, s. 3, bound to show an actual pecuniary damage, iii. 1144.
competency of co-trespasser, i. 145.
when the proper form of action, ii. 85.
does not lie against magistrates for act within their jurisdiction, ii. 585.
may be waived, when, ii. 301. release to one of several, iii. 966.
limitation of action of, ii. 659.
lies for assaulting and debauching plaintiff's daughter, iii. 988.
for mesne profits, ii. 434.
title proved by judgment in ejectment, ib.
when maintainable by a bankrupt, ii. 182.
lies against a corporation, ii. 338.
son assault, app. ii. iii. 1574.
leave and license, proof under, ib.
justification process, ib. 1775.
defence, former recovery, ib. 1578.
defect of fences, ib.
new assignment, ib.
costs, ib. 1579.
variance, ib. 1570.
possession by plaintiff, ib. 1571.
joint trespass, proof of, ib.

TRESPASS—continued.
assault, proof of, app. ii. iii. 1572.
proper form of action, when, ib.
proof of agency, ib.
damages, ib.
general issue, defence under, ib. 1573.
admission by plea in, ib.
liberum tenementum, proof under, ib.
denial of possession of property, ib.
de injuria, proof under, ib. 1574.

TRIAL,
motion to postpone for absence of a material witness, i. 87.
postponed, when, app. ii. iii. 1579.
new, when granted, ib. 1580. priority of, two records being entered, iii. 1144.

TRIAL BY JURY,
advantages of the. See Jury.
observations on, i. 537, 538.
order of, i. 417.

TROVER,
particulars of proof, iii. 1145.
right of property, ib.
special property, ib.
proof of title, when necessary, iii. 1146.
trees cut down during estate pur autre vie, iii. 1147.
in case of conflicting titles, ib.
direct evidence of, ib.
by executor, ib.
under agreement, ib.
by gift, iii. 1148.
exchange, ib.
sale, iii. 1149.
pawning, iii. 1150.
assignment, iii. 1152.
by carrier, iii. 1151.
possession,
an incident to property, iii. 1152.
proof of, when sufficient, iii. 1154.
presumptive evidence of title, ib.
right of, essential, ib.
at the time of conversion, ib.
variance, iii. 1155.
description of property, ib.
number of owners, ib.
conversion,
what amounts to, iii. 1155, 1156.
seizure by sheriff after act of bankruptcy, iii. 1157.
by one who has constructive possession only, iii. 1158.
mere non-feazance in general insufficient, ib.
by a tenant in common, ib.
presumptive evidence of, iii. 1160.
demand and refusal, iii. 1161.
demand, proof of, ib.
form of, ib.

TROVER—continued.
qualified refusal, iii. 1161.
by an agent, iii. 1163.
demand by one of two parties interested in a deposit, ib.
refusal by agent. ib.
in action by husband and wife, ib.
against husband and wife, ib.
against several defendants, iii. 1164.
damages, conversion of a security, ib.
action by part-owner, iii. 1165. defence, general issue, ib.
denial of property, ib.
previous recovery of damages, iii. 1166.
sale under distress, iii. 1167.
lawful seizure, ib.
denial of conversion, ib.
licence, ib.
within six years, when sufficient, ib.
re-delivery, evidence in mitigation, iii. 1168.
not in bar, ib.
fixtures, ib.
goods taken for owner's benefit, ib.
evidence in mitigation, ib.
that plaintiff was tenant in common, iii. 1165. payments by executor de son tort, ib.
sheriff liable to assignees, &c. although he paid over the money without notice, ib.
judgment in trover, effect of, iii. 1168, 1169.
otherwise where damages are given for a mere temporary conversion, ib.
recovery for lead dug out of mine no proof of possession of mine, iii. 1169.
competency, ib.
by vendee of goods, iii. 1220, 1221. 1223.
by assignees of bankrupt. See Bankrupt.
action of, in what respects different from trespass, iii. 1103.
lies against a corporation, ii. 339.
action of, by assignees against sheriff, ii. 167.
limitation of action of, ii. 660.
evidence in action by a vendee of goods, iii. 122.
plea by assignees, denying property in plaintiff, ii. 182.
when maintainable by a vendee of goods, iii. 1221.
plea, denying plaintiffs to be assignees of bankrupt, effect of, ii. 173.
fixtures, app. ii. iii. 1580. title, proof of, ib. 1581.
gift, ib.
bill of exchange, ib.
factor, pledge by, ib. 1582.
sale, ib.
lien, ib. 1583.
demand, ib.
conversion, ib.
damages, ib. 1584.
not possessed, ib.
fraud, ib.
estoppel, ib.
new assignment, ib.

TRUE OWNER,
meaning of, in bankruptcy, ii. 160.

TRUST,
evidence to show money held in, app. ii. iii. 1560.

TRUST MONEY,
may be described as the money of the trustees, ii. 467.

TRUSTEE,
general principles as to liability of, iii. 1169.
liable in case of abuse of authority, &c., ib.
liable for negligence, when, iii. 1170.
public officer personally liable, when, ib.
commissioners personally liable, when, iii. 1171.
trustees of road liable in private capacity, ib.
trustees when not personally responsible, ib.
action against clerk when maintainable, ib.
contract by, when binding, iii. 1172.
not estopped by lease of tolls, ib.
action against by assignees, ib.
competency of, when liable to an action, ii. 83.
money cannot be recovered so long as the trust subsists, ib.
action by, for use and occupation, iii. 1179.
may recover, though there has been no attornment, ib.
answers and admissions by, evidence when, ii. 28.
compellable to reveal matter of confidence, ii. 322.
in replevin, incompetent when, iii. 977. of road, action against for a nuisance, iii. 745.
liability of, iii. 746.
under Turnpike Act not liable for negligence of workmen, when, iii. 740.
property of, in case of bankruptcy, ii. 160.
public, liable for nuisance, when, iii. 747.
action against maintainable, when, ii. 82.
for specific purpose, not liable, when, ii. 83.

TRUSTEES,
of chapel, ejectment by, ii. 414.
not estopped, when, ii. 438. of money in savings' bank, liability of, app. ii. iii. 1585.

TRUTH,
tests of, i. 13, 14.
ordinary and extraordinary, i. 13.
ordinary tests, i. 16. 23, 24.
obligation of oath on credible witness, i. 16.
cross-examination, i. 24.

TURBARY,
common of, ii. 314.

TURK,
oath taken by, i. 21, 22.

TURPITUDE,
of witness a ground of rejection, i. 94.

ULTIMATE,
motive of trader in assigning, ii. 142.

UNDER-SHERIFF, act or admission of, binding on the sheriff, ii. 30, iii. 1013.
action for default to be brought against the high sheriff, iii. 1009.
liability of, under stat. 3 G. 1, iii. 1021.
admission by, ii. 30.
UNDERWRITER,
liability of, after settlement with the broker, iii. 892.
UNFAIR ADVANTAGE. See Fraud.
UNITY,
of possession, effect of as to right of common, ii. 316.
extinguishes a right, when, iii. 1259.
effect of, ii. 317.
UNITY OF POSSESSION,
effect of, ii. 317.
UNITY OF RIGHT,
effect of, in evidence, ii. 697.
UNIVERSITIES,
privilege of publishing, iii. 938.
UNIVERSITY,
public book in, provable by a copy, i. 228.
public books of, proof of, ib.
UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLY,
particulars of proof, iii. 1173.
what constitutes, ib.
proof of the meeting, ib.
of the intent,
proof under indictment for an, app. ii. iii. 1585.
UNSATISFIED TERM,
may be set up, when, ii. 402, 403.
UNSOUND MIND,
a defence, when, ii. 103.
UNSOUNDNESS. See Vendor and Vendee. of a warranted horse, proof of, iii. 1242.
URGENCY,
effect of, in bankruptcy, ii. 143.
USAGE. See Custom.
mercantile, when admissible in aid of construction of a mercantile instrument, iii. 867.
presumptions from, ii. 361, 362.
USE AND OCCUPATION,
form of action, iii. 1174.
not local, iii. 1175.
proof of occupation, ib.
actual occupation unnecessary, ib.
by lessee, ib.
plaintiff's permission, iii. 1177.
lease, ib.
agreement, ib.
stamp, iii. 1178.
presumptive evidence of agreement, iii. 1177, 1178.
from legal title, ib.
waiver of tort, iii. 1180.
value, ib.

USE AND OCCUPATION—continued.
evidence in defence, iii. 1180, 1181 tenant cannot dispute landlord's title, iii. 1180. determination of tenancy, ib.
insufficient to show abandonment without legal determination, iii. 1181, 1182.
fraudulent demise, no benefit derived, iii. 1183.
eviction, ib.
occupation in mere representative capacity, ib.
illegality, iii. 1184.
contract, if in writing, must be produced, ii. 57.
proof of serving inadmissible in defence, when, iii. 973.
agreement, proof of, app. ii. iii. 1586.
agreement to be stamped as a lease, when, ib. 1588.
defence, ib. 1589.
double value, action for, ib. 1590.
competency, ib.

USER,
inference of right from, iii. 743.
by public, evidence to prove a highway, ii. 522.
long effect of, to explain an act of parliament, iii. 775.
to explain an ancient charter, ib.

USES OF RECOVERY,
proof of, ii. 377.
of fair, evidence of, i. 413.

USING,
of gun to kill game, evidence of, ii. 500.

USURIOUS,
contract, avoided by stat. 12 Ann. st. 2, s. 16, ii. 246.
effect of on bill of exchange, ib.
stat. 58 G. 3, c. 93, provisions of, ib.
exorbitant brokerage, ib.
condition, avoids bill, when, ib.
indorsement, avoids bill, when, ib.

USURY,
stat. of, iii. 1185
particulars of proof, iii. 1186.
proof of the contract, ib.
variance from, ib.
locality of the offence, ib.
taking of usurious interest, iii. 1186, 1187. taken by means of an agent, ib. effect of usury, iii. 1187.
competency, ib.
in making a deed, not evidence on issue of non est factum, ii. 380.
bill of exchange not affected by, when, ii. 246.
stat. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 37, provisions as to, ib.
stat. 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 98, provisions as to, app. ii. iii. 1590.

UTTERING,
of base coin. See Coin—Venue. of forged instrument, what amounts to, app. ii. iii. 1425.

VAGRANT,
provisions as, app. ii. iii. 1591.

VALOR BENEFICIORUM, effect of in evidence, i. 236.
object of, ib.
admissibility of, i. 236, 237.

VALUE,
given for bill of exchange when to be proved by plaintiff, ii. 220.
notice to prove, when necessary, ii. 221. of goods sold, proof of, iii. 1207.
evidence in reduction of damages, when admissible in case of a special contract, iii. 1207, 1208.
when the contract cannot be rescinded, evidence admissible in reduction, iii. 1208.
general rule, iii. 1210.
of goods, notice of disputing, ib.
of premises, in action for use and occupation, iii. 1180.
of goods, proof of, iii. 1207.
when necessary, ib.
may be disputed, when, iii. 1207 of services, proof of in action for work and labour, iii. 1307.
of tithe composition, whether evidence of, iii. 1083.

VARIANCE,
general principles, i. 431.
general inferences from them, i. 436.
surplusage, ib.
cumulative allegations, ib.
averments in aggravation, i. 439.
as to damage, i. 440.
as to number, magnitude, extent, sums, &c., ib.
divisibility of averments, i. 442, 443.
descriptive allegations not divisible, i. 443.
allegations, when descriptive, i. 446.
from the nature of the averment, and subject-matter, ib.
written instrument, ib.
libels, ib.
averments connected with libels, ib.
contracts, i. 447.
sums, magnitude, &c. i. 448.
consideration, ib.
promise, ib.
partial proof of, insufficient, ib.
prescriptions, ib.
tortious injuries, i. 449.
averments of character, i. 450.
title, ib.
inducement, ib.
allegations merely formal, in legal consideration, i. 451.
modo et formâ, in what cases words of form, ib.
where the issue goes to the point of the writ, ib.
conversion in trover, i. 451.
allegation of weapon in homicide, i. 452.
alienation in dower, ib.
avoidance in assize, ib.
title in action for disturbance, ib.
otherwise where a collateral point is traversed, i. 453.
otherwise again, if the finding of part show that no action lies. i. 454.

VARIANCE—continued.
allegations descriptive or not descriptive with reference to the mode of averment, i. 454.
averment under a videlicet, ib.
effect of a videlicet, ib.
redundant evidence, i. 456.
when immaterial, ib.
in case of libel, covenant, &c., i. 457, 458.
when material, ib.
in case of alteration, qualification, or exception, &c., ib.
additional consideration in contract, ib.
secus where the legal effect is not altered, i. 457.
distinction between superfluity of allegation and proof, i. 461.
excess of proof never available to increase the damages, ib.
proof according to the legal effect of an allegation sufficient, ib.
sufficient if the terms be equivalent and convertible, ib.
terms of authorized and legal sense must be proved accordingly, i. 463.
time,
of committing an act usually immaterial, i. 463, 464.
allegation that an act was done in the night-time, ib.
number of acts under a continuando, ib.
priority of several alleged acts, ib.
executory and executed consideration, i. 464.
allegation of term of years, proof of fraction of year, ib.
of demise from a day specified, ib.
of place,
where formal, ib.
substantial, i. 465.
in doubtful cases referred to venue, ib.
prior allegation, when immaterial may be rejected, ib.
robbery alleged in dwelling-house, ib.
secus where it is descriptive of a contract, i. 467.
where a charge is partly transitory, semble, the defendant may be convicted of the transitory part, notwithstanding a variance as to the local part, i. 466, 467.
action for nuisance local, i. 468. sufficient to prove the place to be generally known by the description averred, ib.
parish, ib.
proof that it is usually known by the name averred sufficient, ib.
proof of addition not noticed not material, i. 469.
otherwise where a false description is given applicable to another parish, i. 468.
misnomer, i. 470.
of corporation, ib. See tit. Corporation.
of persons, i. 471.
obligor of bond, ib.
several persons of same name, i. 472.
character of parties, i. 473.
assignees of bankrupt, ib.
allegation of an act done, ib.
parties to the act, ib.
of the consequence of an act, i. 475.
number of agents, i. 476.
allegation of motive and intention, i. 477 of written instruments, ib.

VARIANCE—continued.
where the tenor is averred, i. 478.
that it was presented in manner and form, &c., ib.
variance on oyer, ib.
public statute, ib.
where it is alleged according to its substance and effect, i. 479.
sufficient to prove an instrument which agrees in legal effect, ib.
bond to husband and wife, i. 480.
covenant by husband, ib.
fieri facias, ib.
judgment, ib.
bail-bond, i. 481.
lease, ib.
precept to sheriff, ib.
description of ca. sa., ib.
bill in chancery, i. 482.
mis-spelling of word, i. 484.
description contrary to legal effect, i. 485, 486, 487. omission of that which has no legal effect is immaterial, i. 485.
variance in alleging substance and effect will be fatal, although the allegation be not material, ib.
variance from writing referred to by particulars, i. 486, 487.
by date, ib.
not material where the date is not alleged as descriptive, ib.
as if it be alleged under a videlicet, i. 488.
unless the date be necessarily material, ib.
by name, ib.
variance from writing, used as mere evidence of an alleged fact, i. 490, 491.
immaterial if the substance of the fact be proved, ib.
if record be unnecessarily alleged it must be proved, i. 489, 490, 491.
description of courts, process, i. 492.
of the kind of action, ib.
process, ib.
commission of bankrupt, i. 493.
money, ib.
articles of trade, ib.
variance when reconcileable by averment, i. 494.
in case of arson, ii. 52.
in assumpsit, ii. 59.
bill of exchange, ii. 211.
bribery, ii. 271.
indictment for conspiracy, ii. 330.
attempt to rob, ii. 53.
description of instrument, ib.
in ejectment, ii. 430.
description of highway, ii. 521.
in case of libel, ii. 618. parties, iii. 799, 800.
penal action, iii. 846.
from prescription, iii. 909.
action against sheriff, iii. 1009, 1010. trover, iii. 1155.
warranty, iii. 1241.
substantial proof sufficient, ii. 285, 286.
from description of premises in action against a carrier, ii. 284.

VARIANCE—continued.
in description of ownership on a charge of arson, ii. 52.
as to instrument in case of assault, &c., ii. 54.
from allegation of avoidance, iii. 943.
from allegation of commission of bankrupt, ii. 190.
in description of the party in favour of whom a bribe was given, ii. 271.
between the crime advised and the crime perpetrated, ii. 10.
in description of bill of exchange, ii. 211.
in date, ii. 212.
in names, ib.
parties, ii. 213.
legal effect, ib.
allegation of signature, ib.
direction, ib.
consideration, ii. 214.
delivery, ib.
indorsements, ib.
presentment, ib.
from contract, ii. 62.
time, place, magnitude, &c. ib.
as to contract, ii. 59.
promise, ib.
subject-matter, ii. 60.
consideration, ii. 61.
contract with carrier, ii. 285.
in proof of a contract in a penal action, iii. 846.
from written contract, ii. 59.
in case of deceased partner, ib.
in covenant, ii. 343.
from custom of tithing, iii. 1092.
in alleging debt to be due from a married woman, ii. 113.
in ejectment, from the demise, ii. 430, 431.
from the fractional amount sought to be recovered, not material, ib.
from the title laid, ib.
from descriptive averments in an indictment for forgery, ii. 335.
from description of an highway, ii. 521.
of interest, iii. 872.
in action for a malicious arrest, ii. 689.
for a malicious prosecution, ii. 678.
on an indictment for a malicious injury, ii. 693.
in conspiracy, as to application of money, ii. 330.
from indictment for conspiracy to prevent masters from taking apprentices, ii. 330, 331.
in name of corporation, ii. 338.
from the description of the living in an action for non-residence, iii. 965.
from description of nuisance to real property, iii. 742.
as to parties, iii. 800.
in a prosecution for perjury, as to the taking the oath, &c., iii. 857. matter sworn, iii. 857, 858.
materiality, iii. 859.
from an alleged prescription, iii. 909.
from allegation of place, ii. 298.
as to allegations of presentment, ii. 156. 222.
as to principals in first and second degree, ii. 10.

VARIANCE—continued.
as to continuance of interest, in action for damage to the reversion, iii. 978.
from declaration for an injury to the reversion, ib.
in action against sheriff for negligence as to time of removal of the cause by re. fa. lo., iii. 1025.
in allegation of capture in action for escape, iii. 1021.
in description of the writ in an action against the sheriff, iii. 1009, 1010.
in an action for slander or libel, ii. 618.
from allegation of time, ii. 298.
from description of property in action of trover, iii. 1155.
from description of premises in action for use and occupation, iii. 1177.
in action for penalties for usury, iii. 1186.
in action in nature of waste, iii. 1245.
from warranty, iii. 1241.
from promise, &c. in assumpsit, ii. 59.
from subject-matter, ii. 60.
from consideration, ii. 61.
in names of parties to bill, immaterial when, ii. 212.
in an action for a nuisance, iii. 742.
from allegation of contract, i. 445. 449.
from the description of a right of way, iii. 1258.

VARIANCES,
in testimony, effect of, i. 552.

VENDEE,
action by on failure of consideration, ii. 91.
of goods, when estopped from disputing the amount, ii. 22.
under sale by sheriff, proof by, iii. 1119.
from sheriff under irregular process, iii. 1035.
must prove judgment, when, as well as the writ, ib.
when liable for use and occupation, iii. 1183.
lien of, ii. 649.

VENDOR AND VENDEE,
action by vendor of real estate, iii. 1188.
particulars of proof, ib.
contract, ib.
performance of conditions precedent, ib.
conveyance, ib.
tender, ib.
good title, ib.
evidence of title, ib.
equitable objection to, iii. 1190.
ejectment by vendor, ib.
action for value of crops, iii. 1191.
use and occupation, ib.
by vendee of real property, iii. 1192.
proof of tender of conveyance, ib.
defect of title, ib.
particular of objections to, ib.
proof of defect, ib.
damages, ib.
money had and received, iii. 1193.
by whom maintainable, iii. 1194.
amount recoverable, ib.
auctioneer, liability of, ib.

VENDOR AND VENDEE—continued.
action by vendor of chattel, iii. 1195.
on special contract of sale, ib.
particulars of proof, ib.
contract of sale, ib.
where the price is 10*l.* or more, ib.
acceptance of part, ib.
earnest, ib.
auctioneer may sue, iii. 1196.
but if he sue, his signature not binding under the stat. ib.
he is the agent of both parties, ib.
written evidence of the contract, ib.
entry in broker's book, ib.
bought and sold notes, ib.
variance in the sale notes, iii. 1197.
alteration in, ib.
liability of members of a club, ib.
agent when liable, iii. 1198.
principal, liability of, ib. conditions precedent, iii. 1199.
tender, ib.
correspondence of goods with the contract, ib.
with sample, ib.
contract when entire, iii. 1200.
non-acceptance of stock, ib.
loss on re-sale, ib.
omission by vendee to remove goods, iii. 1201.
vendee may recover for warehouse-room, ib.
action for goods bargained and sold, ib.
where it lies, ib.
maintainable after sale, ib.
for goods sold and delivered, iii. 1202.
particulars of proof, ib.
proof of contract of sale, ib.
of contract by an agent, ib.
implied contract, ib.
sale by means of agent, ib.
the contract is in law between the principals, ib.
question of fact to whom credit was given, iii. 1203.
waiver of tort, iii. 1203.
one who waives the tort and brings assumpsit must prove a clear title, iii. 1204.
notwithstanding special contract, plaintiff may recover on the general count, when, ib.
when the time of credit has expired, ib.
not before, although defendant guilty of fraud, iii. 1205.
delivery, proof of, ib.
may be actual or constructive, ib.
where goods are recoverable, ib.
delivery to a carrier, ib.
under count for goods sold and delivered, plaintiff cannot recover for fixtures, iii. 1207. value, proof, ib.
incumbent on plaintiff, ib.
or lowest will be presumed, ib.
plaintiff in absence of fraud entitled to recover according to the apparent value, ib.

VENDOR AND VENDEE—continued.
where the value is stipulated, the vendee cannot reduce it by evidence, iii. 1207.
where he has neglected to return the goods, ib.
secus, where the contract could not be rescinded, ib.
general rule, iii. 1210.
notice of disputing value, ib.
in case of warranty, ib.
vendee may show the breach of warranty in diminution, iii. 1211.
or may recover damages for the breach, ib.
in case of warranty, notice of the breach is unnecessary, ib.
but the omission to give notice furnishes an unfavourable presumption, ib.
by vendor for warehouse-room, iii. 1212.
trover by vendor where the contract is rescinded, ib.
defence by a vendee, iii. 1212, 1213.
fraud, iii. 1213.
where a bill has been given for the price, ib.
mis-description, ib.
defect of the stipulated quantity, iii. 1214.
concealment, ib.
stipulation that a mistake shall not vitiate, iii. 1213.
knowledge of misdescription, iii. 1215.
effect of, ib.
right of vendee to inspect the bulk, ib.
effect of refusal by vendor, ib.
payment in dishonoured bill, iii. 1216.
waiver of the contract, ib.
negligence of vendor, ib.
illegality of contract, ib.
deceitful concealment of latent defects, iii. 1215.
action by the vendee of goods, different forms of, iii. 1218, 1219.
for not delivering according to contract, iii. 1219.
particulars of proof, ib.
contract, ib.
acceptance of, ib.
condition precedent, ib.
tender of price, ib.
request and readiness to pay, ib.
damages, ib.
where goods are to be paid for by bill, iii. 1220.
not transferring stock, ib.
defence by vendor, ib.
trover by a vendee, iii. 1221.
title by contract without delivery, ib.
evidence of right of possession, ib.
payment or tender of price, ib.
agreement for payment on future day, ib.
existence of the chattel at the time of the contract, ib.
capability of delivery, iii. 1222.
transfer by delivery, iii. 1223.
partial delivery, ib.
symbolical delivery, iii. 1224.
title to fixtures in purchased house, ib.
constructive delivery, ib.
by delivery of bill of lading, ib.

VENDOR AND VENDEE—continued.
order for delivery, iii. 1224.
dock-warrant, ib.
conditional delivery, ib.
delivery obtained by false pretences, iii. 1225.
proof by vendee of ship sold abroad, ib.
action by assignees of bankrupt vendor, iii. 1226.
determination of the transitus, ib.
warehouseman not estopped from denying his principal's title, iii. 1227.
by vendee to recover a deposit, &c. iii. 1228.
rescinding of the contract, ib.
to recover the price, as on failure of the consideration, ib.
competency, iii. 1228, 1229, 1230. action by vendor of real property, contract, app. ii. iii. 1591.
condition precedent, ib. 1592.
usual covenants, ib.
title, proof of, ib.
damages, ib. 1593.
action by vendee of real property, ib. 1594.
by vendor of goods, ib. 1595.
damages in action for not accepting, ib. 1596.
goods sold and delivered, ib.
waiver of tort, ib.
defence by vendee, ib. 1597. defence by vendee of goods, ib. 1598.
payment, illegality, ib.
credit, to whom given, ib. 1599.
trover by vendee, ib.
stoppage in transitu, ib.
competency, ib.

VENUE,
variance as to county when fatal, iii. 1230.
cause of action where it arises, ib.
in case for consequential damage for cutting a trench, ib.
vendor and vendee, ib.
material evidence, iii. 1230, 1231.
what sufficient, ib.
in case of action by assignees, iii. 1231.
action on a patent, ib.
plaintiff, when discharged from his undertaking, ib.
locality of crimes, ib.
primâ facie evidence of commission of a crime within a county, ib.
conspiracy, iii. 1232.
uttering forged stamps, ib.
sending threatening letter, ib. change of in penal action. See Penal Action.
material evidence, app. ii. iii. 1599.
in criminal cases, ib. 1600.

VERDICT,
what is essential to a, i. 4.
compounded of law and fact, i. 417.
special, must find facts, not evidence of facts, i. 511.
proof of, i. 298.
in a personal action, when a bar, i. 262.
evidence when in action for tithes, iii. 1089.

VERDICT—continued.
on issue between A. and B. to try question of partnership, admissible in evidence against both to prove partnership, iii. 808.
in civil proceeding, whether evidence in criminal, i. 261.
between private parties, ib.
when admissible, ib.
identity of fact, i. 262.
admissible to prove boundary, when, app. i. 601.
special, must find facts, not evidence only, iii. 1071.
statement of jury, when surplusage, app. ii. iii. 1600.
admissibility in case of tithes, iii. 1089.

VESTRY.
proceedings on demand of poll, app. ii. iii. 1600.
election by, ib.
rate imposed by, iii. 1232.

VESTRYMEN, liability of on order to defend indictment for non-repair of an highway, iii. 1171.
to be joined, when, ii. 2.

VICAR,
presumptive right of to seat in chancel, iii. 864 right of to nominate a curate, iii. 942.

VICAR'S BOOKS,
evidence when, in tithe suit, iii. 1092.

VICE-CONSUL,
certificate of, ii. 302.

VICINAGE,
claim of common, pur cause of, ii. 314.
right of common of, ii. 320.
will not support allegation of right for certain number of beasts, ii. 317.
common, pur cause of, when destroyed, ii. 314. 320.

VIDELICET,
effect of in regard to proof, i. 454, 455.

VISITATION,
herald's, minute-book of, i. 249.

VISITOR,
sentence by, effect of, 285.

VOID,
sheriff may show that the judgment is void, when, iii. 1022.

VOIDABLE AND VOID,
distinction between, ii. 247.
in case of binding an apprentice, ib.
distinction as to, iii. 1233.

VOIRE DIRE,
witness to be examined on, before he is rejected, when, i. 135.
witness may be examined on the, as to writings, i. 206.
witness examined on, must produce an instrument referred to, ib.

VOLENTI NON FIT INJURIA, illustration of the maxim, iii. 1029.
application of maxim in action for crim. con. ii. 355. application of rule, ii. 85.
exposition of maxim, ib.

VOLUNTARY AFFIDAVIT, evidence, by way of admission, i. 337.
as an affidavit, ib.

VOLUNTARY DEED,
evidence of insolvency, when, ii. 167.

VOLUNTARY PAYMENT,
will not support an action, ii. 87.

VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT,
may be defeated, when, ii. 494.

VOTE,
preferring action for, iii. 1032.
refusal of by sheriff, action for, ib.
for an incapacitated candidate, thrown away, app. ii. iii. 1601.

WAGER,
where legal, iii. 1232.
action on, in what cases the courts refuse to try, iii. 1234.
action to recover stake, iii. 1235.
authority of stake-holder countermandable, ib.
demand cannot be enforced through an illegal medium, ib.
stat. 9 Ann. c. 14, s. 1, ib.
effect of, ib.
illegal, when, ii. 507.
on bygone horse-race, legal, app. ii. iii. 601.
on price of foreign stock, ib.

WAGERS,
on amount of, duties not enforced, ii. 94.
on amount of, duties not enforceable, ib.

WAGES. See Work and Labour. of seamen, fraudulent obtaining of, iii. 857.

WAIVER,
of objection to non-presentment of bill, ii. 238.
may be implied, when, ib.
promise to pay in ignorance of material facts, no waiver, ib.
of an acceptance, ii. 252.
of contract must be in writing, when, iii. 790.
of contract of sale, evidence of, iii. 1216.
of lien, evidence of, ii. 650.
by laches, iii. 1235. See Bill of Exchange.
of notice by carrier, ii. 292.
of notice to quit by acceptance of subsequent rent, ii. 425.
by action of covenant, ib.
recognition of lawful possession, ib.
of privilege as to confidential communication, ii. 323.
of tort by plaintiff, ii. 71.
of tort by owner of goods, iii. 1203. where one illegally avails himself of the labour of another's servant, iii. 1300.

WAIVER—continued.
of tort in case of money obtained by fraud, ii. 83, 84.
of contract, what amounts to, ii. 104.
of trespass, ii. 301, iii. 1235. of trespass, proof on assumpsit brought for value of goods, iii. 1103.
a provision for the party's own benefit may always be waived, ii. 70.
of objection, on purchase of an estate, app. ii. iii. 1602.
of release, ib.
by fraud, &c., iii. 1235.
of forfeiture, rebutted by want of notice, iii. 729.
of tort, in action for services, iii. 1298.
of objection to quality of goods, iii. 1216.
of landlord's right on under letting, effect of, ii. 424.
of forfeiture, ii. 425.
of notice to quit, ib.
of irregularity, by attending before an arbitrator, ii. 117.

WAIVER OF NOTICE,
of dishonour of bill, ii. 238.

WAIVER OF TORT,
in action for goods sold and delivered, iii. 1203.

WALES,
courts of, certificates as to practice, ii. 303.

WALL,
proof of title to, iii. 1126.
party, property in, iii. 1127.

WANT,
of mutuality, effect of, i. 261.
of consideration, proof of plea of, ii. 244.

WAR,
state of, how proved, iii. 1236.
proclamation of, ib.
order in council, ib.
public notoriety, ib.
declaration of war by a foreign government, ib.
articles of, how proved, i. 234.

WARDMOTE,
book of, ii. 331.

WAREHOUSE KEEPER,
may detain goods when they are not the property of the employer, iii. 1166.
receiving goods from consignee may refuse to deliver them, when, iii. 1166.

WAREHOUSE ROOM,
action for, when maintainable by vendor of goods, iii. 1212.

WAREHOUSEMEN, defence of, by claim of property in another, iii. 1227.

WARRANT OF ATTORNEY,
action for preparing, ii. 108.
given as a security does not discharge from liability on bill, ii. 249.
provisions of stat. 3, G. 4, c. 39, s. 2, iii. 1237.

WARRANT OF ATTORNEY—continued.
transfer, when in bankruptcy, ii. 138.
valid, when, app. ii. iii. 1602.

WARRANT,
evidence of, iii. 1237.
executed by a constable ought to be kept by him, ib.
to be kept by a constable acting under, ii. 331.
proof of by a magistrate, &c., in defence, ii. 591.
how connected with the conviction, ib.
form of, ib.
substantial statement of the corpus delicti sufficient, ib.
statement of distribution of penalty, ib.
of the time of imprisonment, ib.
of the authority of the party committing, ib.
of the fact of conviction, ib.
of the identical offence convicted of, ii. 593.
of commitment for a contempt, ib.
recital of authority in, is not evidence of the fact, when, i. 416.
evidence to connect sheriff, &c. with acts of bailiff, iii. 1028.
does not prove the judgment for the sheriff, ib.
proof by constable of acting in obedience to a magistrate's warrant, ii. 595.
when valid, ib.
date of, time, place, ib.
statement of the offence, ib.
requisition of, ib.
general warrant illegal, ii. 595, 596.
where it may be executed, ii. 596.
by whom, ib.
stat. 5 G. 4, c. 6, provisions of as to, ib.
must be shown, when, ib.
duty of constable in execution of, ib.
breaking doors in execution of, ii. 597.
notice requisite previous to, ii. 594.
by magistrate, proof of grant of the perusal, and a copy of, ii. 598.
proof of, on charge of murdering an officer of justice, ii. 716.
defective, when, ib.
alteration of, ib.
to the bailiff, proof of in an action against the sheriff, iii. 1009.
for delivery of goods, not a negotiable instrument, iii. 1149.
of distress, indorsement of, iii. 1257.
of commitment, requisites of, ii. 590.
defective one, ib.
by commissioners of bankrupt, form of, ii. 181.
general requisites of, ii. 595, 596.
execution of, ii. 596.

WARRANTS OF ATTORNEY, general rule as to, iii. 1236.

WARRANTY,
evidence of the contract of, iii. 1237.
what amounts to, ib.
express, ib.
affirmation at time of sale, ib.

WARRANTY—continued.
implied warranty, iii. 1237.
where not implied, iii. 1239.
authority of agent to warrant, ib.
variance in proof of, iii. 1241.
proof of the return of the article not essential, ib.
scienter, though alleged, need not be proved, iii. 1242.
breach of, ib.
consequential damage, ib.
measure of damage, ib.
action for money had and received, iii. 1243.
when maintainable, ib.
avoided by fraud, ib.
evidence of compliance with. See Policy.
on part of vendor, ii. 92.
in general, ib.
in case of mortgagor, ib.
where goods are warranted defendant in action for their value may prove their inferiority, iii. 1210, 1211.
remedy for breach of warranty, ib.
not implied in an agreement to grant a lease, ii. 59.
effect of in action on policy, iii. 874.
compliance with terms of, proof of, ib.
proof of breach of in action on a policy of insurance, iii. 889.
variance from allegation of, i. 455.
by vendor implied, when, ii. 91.
assumpsit, variance, ii. 59.
implied, when, app. ii. iii. 1604.
of soundness, breach of, ib. 1605.
damages in action for breach of, ib.
defence, ib.
breach of, when admissible in action on sale of goods, iii. 1210.

WARREN,
free, ii. 504.

WASTE,
action in nature of, iii. 1244.
particulars of proof, ib.
plaintiff's interest and the holding by the defendant, iii. 1244.
proof of the waste committed, ib.
of the damage, iii. 1245.
covenant to repair, ib. 1246.
not available as defence, ib.
action does not lie for permissive waste, iii. 1245.
tenant from year to year to what repairs liable, iii. 1244, 1245. removal of fixtures, iii. 1245.
inclosure of by tenant, for whose benefit presumed to be done, ii. 696.
land, presumptive evidence of title to, iii. 1125. evidence of title to, by possession of, ii. 413.
possession of by cottager, effect of, ii. 491.
allegation of in covenant must be proved, ii. 347, 348.
proof of as to messuage, app. ii. iii. 1606.
farm, ib.
removal of fixtures, ib. 1607.
presumption as to, ii. 336.

WASTES,
title to, proof of, app. ii. iii. 1680.

WATERCOURSE,
general principles of law as to the right to a stream of water, iii. 1248, 1249.
proof of title to, ib.
right by appropriation, iii. 1249.
to an ancient ferry, iii. 1252.
in case of public river, iii. 1253. proof of title to a fishery, app. ii. iii. 1609.
former verdict, effect of, iii. 1254.
action for obstructing a watercourse, iii. 1251.
locality of, ib.
allegation of title, ib.
variance from, ib.
competency, iii. 1254.
evidence of navigable river, iii. 1253.
title to, app. ii. iii. 1608.
sea shore, title to, ib. 1609.
sea-wall, liability to repair, ib. provisions of stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, as to, iii. 920. 1251.

WATER,
presumptive evidence of right to, iii. 913.
variance as to allegation of diversion of, i. 475.
right of, iii. 743.
provisions of stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, as to, iii. 741.
right of proof of injury to, iii. 747. corruption of, action for, iii. 742.

WAY. See Highway.
right of, whence derived, iii. 1255.
evidence of user, iii. 1258.
right commensurate with enjoyment, ib.
way ex necessitate, iii. 1257. variance as to termini, iii. 1258.
qualified right of way, ib.
allegation of possession by plaintiff satisfied by occupation of part by his servant, iii. 1254, 1255.
traverse of right of way as appurtenant to messuage, iii. 1258.
admits the occupation, ib.
unity of possession destroys a presumptive right of, iii. 1259.
presumptive evidence of right of, iii. 911. 1256.
right of in trespass, iii. 1127.
order of justices for stopping up, form of, ii. 585.
proof of title to, app. ii. iii. 1609.
stat 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, provisions of as to, ib. 1611.
variance in description of, ib. 1612.
public way, action for nuisance to, ib. 1613.
competency, ib.
right, extinguishment of, iii. 910.

WAY-GOING CROP,
custom as to leaving, ii. 358.

WHARFINGER, not an agent within stat. 6 Geo. 4, c. 94, s. 4, iii. 1149.
action against, ii. 101.

WHOLE,
of an entire document to be read, i. 414.
of an entire correspondence to be read, ii. 327.
of an answer is evidence, if part be read, i. 334.
exception, ib.
it is for the jury to decide whether the whole or part is entitled to credit, i. 416.
the rule that the whole is to be read does not make that evidence which has no legal foundation, ib.
the whole of an entire document is to be read, app. i. 622.

WIDOW,
of the heir is dowable, notwithstanding an abatement, iii. 898.

WIFE. See Husband and Wife. cannot sue without her husband, ii. 536.
act of, when binding on the husband, ii. 539.
when considered to be the agent of the husband, ii. 43. 539.
property of, passes to assignees under a commission of bankrupt, when, ii. 176.
debt in right of, subject of set-off, when, iii. 994.
property settled on, when liable to debts of husband, ii. 161.
of co-defendant in conspiracy not competent for another defendant, ii. 330.
when guilty of felony, although acting under the husband's directions, ii. 9. declaration by wife executrix not binding on the husband, ii. 455.
declaration by, when evidence against the husband, ii. 32.
answer in equity, ib.
authority to act for husband, proof of, ib.
confession by, not evidence for plaintiff in action for adultery, ii. 354.
property of in case of bankruptcy, ii. 161.
proof of authority as agent, ii. 43. 204.
letters of, when admissible, ii. 354. 356.
admission by, effect of, ii. 32.
levy on goods of, as executrix, action for, iii. 1029.
proof of title to copyhold, ii. 335. of husband convicted for felony, liability of, ii. 537.

WILFUL
trespass, evidence of, iii. 1117.

WILL,
revocation of, app. ii. iii. 1614.
implied revocation of, ib.
presumed influence, ib. 1616.
st. 7 W. 4, & 1 Vic. c. 26, provisions as to, ib.
signature at foot of, ib.
acknowledgment of signature, ib.
in presence, &c. ib. 1617.
appointment by will, &c. ib.
in case of soldier, &c. ib.
competency, ib.

WILL—continued.
revocation, app. ii. iii. 1618.
alteration, ib.
execution of power, ib.
presumptive evidence of alteration, ib. 1619.
donatio causa mortis, ib.
provisions of stat. 7 W. 4, & 1 Vic. c. 26, as to, iii. 1289. impeachable by subscribing witness, ii. 10.
tenant at, ejectment against, ii. 420.

WILLS,
st. 29 C. 2, c. 3, s. 5, iii. 1260
production of the will, ib.
secondary evidence of, iii. 1261.
signature by testator, ib.
mere sealing of insufficient, ib.
acknowledgment of signature, ib.
making of mark, ib. note (e) where testator is blind, iii. 1261.
attestation and subscription by witnesses, iii. 1262.
need not be in the presence of each other, ib.
manner of attestation, ib.
in the presence of the testator, ib.
sufficient if he might have seen them, iii. 1263.
identity of the attested instrument, iii. 1263.
publication of, iii. 1264.
credible witness, ib.
the stat. refers to the time of attestation, ib.
provisions of the stat. 25 G. 2, c. 6, s. 1, iii. 1265.
proof by one witness sufficient in law, ib. 1266.
against witness who swears against his own attestation, ib.
proof of handwriting when the witnesses are dead, ib.
proof where the witness cannot be found, iii. 1268.
will thirty years old, ib.
parol evidence to apply its terms, iii. 1269, 1270.
apparent ambiguity, iii. 1271.
parol evidence, whether admissible to remove it, ib.
avoids a will, when, iii. 1272.
apparent ambiguity does not always avoid a will, ib.
uncertainty how removed, ib.
extrinsic circumstances, when admissible for purpose of explanation, iii. 1273, 1274, 1275.
in the case of bequest of stock, iii. 1272.
competency of witness, iii. 1275.
proof to defeat a will, ib.
fraud, ib.
incompetency, iii. 1276.
from coverture, ib.
infancy, ib.
mental imbecility, ib.
presumption of law as to sanity, ib.
onus probandi, ib.
of proving insanity, ib.
of proving lucid interval where insanity has been established, iii. 1283.
non compos, who, iii. 1278. et sequent.

WILLS—continued.
insanity a question of fact, iii. 1279.
nature of the evidence, ib.
proving the will in the ecclesiastical court does not estop the heir from proving insanity, ib.
intrinsic evidence from the contents of the will, ib.
extrinsic, ib.
proof of testator's discharge of public duties, iii. 1283.
wisdom of a will not conclusive as to sanity, iii. 1284.
proof of complete restoration of all the testator's former powers unnecessary, iii. 1285.
will of non compos not established by his subsequent sanity, ib.
proof of revocation, ib.
stat. 29 C. 2, c. 3. s. 6, ib.
by second will, ib.
by other writing, iii. 1286.
by cancellation, ib.
where dependent on intention, ib.
cotemporary declarations, evidence of, ib.
by implication, iii. 1287.
nature and grounds of the presumption, ib. operation of will on particular subject-matter, how defeated, iii. 1288, 1289.
republication of, iii. 1289.
proof of by one witness, i. 373.
surrender to use of, ii. 333.
of copyhold, ib.
effect of its terms cannot be varied by extrinsic evidence, iii. 763.

WINDOWS,
case for obstructing lights, iii. 1294.
evidence of the right, iii. 1294, 1295.
condition not to obstruct, when implied, ib.
defence, iii. 1295.
provisions of stat. 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 71, as to, iii. 1294.
action for obstructing, app. ii. iii. 1619.

WITNESS,
attendance of, how enforced, i. 77.
stat. 1 J. 1, c. 15, ib.
49 G. 3, c. 121, s. 13, ib.
6 G. 4, c. 15, ib.
5 Eliz. c. 9, s. 12, i. 78.
where the witness is not in custody, ib.
by writ of subpœna, ib.
notice of writ, ib.
number of names, ib.
renewal of, ib.
subpœna ticket, ib.
service of, ib.
tender of expenses, ib.
the case of married women, i. 79.
foreigner, ib.
not entitled to remuneration for loss of time, ib.
exceptions, ib.

WITNESS—continued.
may maintain an action for expenses, i. 79.
liability of, in case of neglect to attend, i. 80.
on attachment, ib.
action, ib.
mode of proceeding by attachment, ib.
when granted, ib.
process when the witness is in custody, i. 81.
by habeas corpus ad testificandum, ib. power of stat. 44 G. 3, c. 102, ib.
mode of proceeding under, ib.
affidavit necessary, ib.
should show that the witness is willing to attend, when, ib.
in what cases not grantable, ib.
in criminal cases,
process by subpœna, i. 82.
binding by recognizance, ib.
committal of witness who refuses to be bound, i. 83.
in case of feme coverte, ib.
process to compel attendance at sessions, ib.
when the witness resides in a different part of the United Kingdom, ib.
payment of expenses of, i. 84, 85. process against witnesses for defendants in prosecutions, i. 85. 86.
power to summon witnesses in case of bankruptcy, i. 86.
before commissioners of inclosure, ib.
course of proceeding when the attendance of a material witness cannot be procured, i. 87.
where the witness resides abroad or is going abroad, ib.
subpœna duces tecum, writ of, ib.
effect of the writ, ib.
a witness is not compellable to produce documents, which may criminate him, i. 88.
not compellable to produce title-deeds to an estate, ib.
an attorney not compellable to produce his client's title-deeds, i. 89.
in other cases bound to produce the writing, i. 89, 90.
duty of witness to be prepared with the writing, i. 90.
his obligation to produce it is a question of law, ib.
his disobedience does not warrant the reception of secondary evidence, ib.
insufficient notice to produce, i. 91.
obligation of witness to be sworn, ib.
consequence of refusing, ib.
obligation of witnesses to answer questions, ib.
protection of witness, ib.
to what cases the indulgence is extended, ib.
witnesses attending arbitrators under rule of N. P., i. 92.
meeting under commission of bankruptcy, ib.
writ of inquiry, ib.
Insolvent Debtors' Court, ib. court-martial, ib.
not protected from his bail, ib.
objections to competency, ib.
when to be taken, ib.
before the examination in chief, when, ib.
want of religious belief, i. 93.
tender age, i. 94.

WITNESS—continued.
infamy of character, i. 16. 94.
nature of the crime, i. 94, 95.
proof of conviction, i. 96.
competency, how restored, i. 97.
by proof of admission to clergy, ib.
effect of fine, &c. in place of burning, i. 99. pardon, i. 100, 101.
provisions of the stat. 7 & 8 G. 4, c. 28, i. 101.
9 G. 4, c. 32, s. 3, ib.
conditional pardon, ib.
reversal of judgment, ib.
effect of disability, ib.
from interest, i. 16. 103.
nature of the interest, ib.
must be a legal interest in the event, i. 103.
apprehension of interest not sufficient to disqualify, i. 104.
must be direct and certain, i. 103. 105.
may be in the result or in the record, ib.
in the result, when, i. 107.
where the gain or loss is the immediate legal result, ib.
in the case of parties, i. 108.
parties in beneficial interest, ib.
quasi parties, ib.
diminution of joint fund, i. 107, 108.
discharge from debt or liability, i. 107.
privation of interest, &c. ib.
when he would, by reason of joint interest in the subject of the suit, be entitled to share the gain or be liable to contribute to the loss, ib.
in the case of a co-partner, i. 108.
where on the failure of the party for whom, &c., he would be liable over, i. 110.
witness primâ facie liable to vendor, i. 112.
liability on indemnity, i. 114, 115.
general rule on this head, ib.
owner of vessel not competent to prove sea-worthiness in action on policy on goods, i. 117.
captain of vessel incompetent to prove deviation, when, i. 117.
agent incompetent to disprove his own negligence, when, i. 116.
interest in the record, i. 119, 120.
disqualifies, when, ib.
on question of custom, ib.
prescription, ib.
verdict in criminal proceedings, i. 121.
in trover, i. 122.
magnitude of the interest, i. 129.
time and manner of acquiring the interest, ib.
a witness cannot by his own act deprive another of the benefit of his testimony, i. 129, 130.
neutral witness in general competent, i. 130.
preponderance of interest, i. 131.
admission ex necessitate, i. 132.
when estopped from answering, i. 184, 185.
not estopped from averring his own disgrace, i. 97.
barrister, privilege of, i. 186. matters of professional confidence, i. 185.

WITNESS—continued.
matters of political confidence, i. 185.
examination of, in chief, i. 169.
leading questions, rule as to, ib.
what are, ib.
when necessary, ib.
when allowed, i. 170.
as to what examinable, i. 173.
facts within his actual knowledge, ib. belief, i. 173, 174.
perjury for false swearing in matter of belief, ib.
judgment and opinion on question of skill, ib.
conclusion and general result, i. 174.
may refresh his memory, how, i. 177, 178.
as to matter of hearsay, i. 181.
as to matter of reputation, ib.
evidence of reputation admissible, when, i. 181.
where the evidence of hearsay is admissible as secondary evidence, i. 184. political or professional confidence, i. 185.
on trial for high treason, ib.
in case of member of parliament, ib.
privy councillor, ib.
cross-examination of witness, i. 186.
one great test of truth, ib.
reasons for this, ib.
who may be cross-examined, ib.
witness called, but not examined in chief, i. 186, 187.
practice as to cross-examination, i. 187.
cross-examination of friendly witness, i. 188.
nature of questions on cross-examination, ib.
must not assume facts not proved, ib.
must not extend to contents of written document, ib.
witness may be examined apart, i. 189.
cross-examination as to collateral facts, ib.
bound to answer questions, although they subject him to civil responsibility, i. 190.
provision of stat. 46 G. 3, c. 37, ib.
not bound to answer when he may subject himself to penalties, i. 191. ii. 12. 201.
not bound to answer whether he published a libel, i. 191.
nor whether he is the father of a bastard, ib.
may be asked if he has undergone punishment, i. 192.
whether he has stood in the pillory, ib.
whether bound to answer questions to his disgrace, i. 193.
nature of this question, ib.
authorities upon this subject, i. 193 to 198.
the decision of this question not of great practical importance, i. 197.
where the witness may be contradicted by contrary evidence, the question must be put, though the answer may expose him to penal consequences, i. 198.
if witness involuntarily answer such question on his examination in chief, he is bound to answer on cross-examination, ib.
if witness answer where he might have demurred, the answer may be used against him, ib.
answers to questions improperly put may be used, i. 199.

WITNESS—continued.
cross-examination as to the contents of writing, i. 199.
not permitted when the writing may be produced, ib.
time for reading a writing to impeach witness's credit, i. 201.
cross-examination as to contents of writing, whether allowable as a test to try the credit of a witness, i. 199. 203.
re-examination of witness, i. 208.
as to conversation with a party, ib.
with a third person, i. 208, 209.
as to what points, ib.
allowed to be recalled, when, i. 211.
credit of, how to be impeached, ib.
cross-examination, ib.
credit of witness impeachable by general evidence only, ib.
not by evidence as to particular facts, i. 211.
may be impeached by general evidence, ib.
proper question in order to impeach the credit of a witness, i. 211, 212.
by proof of what he has said or done, &c. ib.
opportunity for explanation, i. 213.
where the question tends to criminate him, i. 214.
where the witness refuses to answer, ib.
former statement, how proved, ib.
record of conviction before magistrate, no evidence of the testimony of witness, i. 215.
proof of offer of bribe by plaintiff's agent, ib.
not admissible without proof of authority from the plaintiff, ib.
proof of conspiracy to deprive a party of means of defence, ib.
contradictory evidence to impeach the credit of a witness, ib.
a party cannot discredit his own witness, ib.
reason of the rule, ib.
exceptions, i. 216.
where the witness is called for the purpose of mere formal proof, ib.
where the party is surprised, ib.
evidence in support of witness's credit, i. 221.
of former statements by, ib.
when he may be confirmed as to character, ib.
may be confirmed, although impeached on cross-examination only, ib.
examination of witness on interrogatories, i. 320.
effect of leading questions, i. 316.
bill to perpetuate testimony, i. 322.
this a strong test to try their consistency, ib.
manner and demeanour of a witness, i. 547.
indications of insincerity, ib.
ability of witnesses, i. 548.
on what it depends, ib.
opportunity, ib.
memory, ib.
reason for his statement, ib.
probability that his attention was excited, ib.
evidence of conversations, &c. i. 549.
of particular words and expressions, ib.
number and consistency of witnesses, i. 550.
testimony of one witness sufficient to ground a conviction in a criminal case, ib.
increased credibility of joint testimony, i. 489.

WITNESS—continued.
probability of the truth of testimony, how far dependent on number, i. 489.
consistency of testimony, i. 551. force of coincident testimony, ib.
on what principles it depends, ib.
negation of concert and collusion, ib.
variances in testimony, i.552.
effect of, ib.
increase of the credibility of testimony by the number of witnesses, i. 553.
mere abstract comparison of no use, i. 554.
maxim of law, ib.
in what cases mere abstract comparison of numbers operates, ib.
conformity of testimony with experience, ib.
effect of this principle, ib.
Mr. Hume's position as the credibility of human testimony, i. 555. conformity with collateral circumstances, i. 558. examination of, under a commission of bankrupt, by stat. 1 W. 4, c. 22, i. 323. competency of. See the different heads of Accomplice—Evidence, &c. bankrupt, ii. 132. 190.
uncertificated, ii. 191.
certificated, ii. 192.
wife of, ii. 193.
creditor, ib.
assignee, ii. 194.
of parents in case of bastardy, ii. 199.
of witnesses on bills of exchange, ii. 257.
general principle, ib.
of drawee, &c. ib.
maker of note, ib.
acceptor, ib.
indorsee, ib.
partner, ii. 260.
liability of witness to costs, ii. 259.
as to rights of common, ii. 228. 319.
as to customs, ib.
in ejectment, ii. 433.
on indictment for the non-repair of an highway, ii. 529.
of husband or wife, ii. 549.
of wife de facto, ii. 552.
judgment debtor, iii. 1031.
of partner, iii. 817.
in proof of pedigree, iii. 845.
in a penal action, iii. 850, 851. 1187.
in action on policy, iii. 893.
in replevin, iii. 976, 977.
in action for damage to the reversion, iii. 978.
surety, iii. 1034.
bailiff, ib.
in actions by a vendor or vendee, iii. 1220.
in action for disturbing right of water, iii. 1254.
to a will, competency of, iii. 1275.
may in general testify his own turpitude, ii. 10.
re-examination of, app. i. 605.
laying ground for contradiction of, ib.

WITNESS—continued.
privilege of on cross-examination, app. ii. iii. 1468.
called, but not examined in chief, not subject to cross-examination, app. i. 602.
cross-examination of, by counsel, for different defendants, ib. 603.
of witnesses to character, ib.
separate examination of, ib.
cross-examination as to collateral facts, when allowed, ib.
may be contradicted by collateral facts, when, ib.
objection, that a witness shall not be required to criminate himself, when valid, ib.
cross-examination of as to writings, ib.
tender of expenses to, ib. 589.
expenses of, what allowed, ib. 590.
action by, for expenses, ib.
attachment against, for disobeying a subpœna, ib.
attendance of, before a magistrate, how procured, ib. 591. expense of, in criminal proceedings, ib. 592.
protection of, on attending arbitration, ib. 593. privilege of, redeundo, ib. 594.
leading questions, on examination in chief, may be put, when, ib. 600.
examination of, upon a question of skill, ib.
may refresh his memory, ib.
for a prisoner ib. 593.

WOOD,
agreement that tenant shall have, ii. 696.
does not authorize cutting for sale, when, ib.
limitation of action for, ii. 659.

WORDS,
presumed to be used in statutable sense, ii. 363.

WORK AND LABOUR,
particulars of proof, iii. 1296.
contract, ib.
in case of deviations, ib.
indebitatus assumpsit, iii. 1297.
value of materials not recoverable on count for work and labour, ib.
request, proof of, when necessary, ib.
remuneration at the discretion of the employer, iii. 298.
legal and moral obligation, iii. 1299.
attendance on pauper, ib.
privity between the parties, ib.
waiver of tort, iii. 1203.
performance, iii. 1303.
when a condition precedent, ib.
virtual performance, iii. 1304.
action by servant for wages, ib.
performance of service by, ib.
departure of servant without notice, iii. 1305.
misconduct in service, ib.
value of the work, ib.
defective performance, effect of, iii. 1307.
when waived, iii. 1308.
when it may be insisted on, although the contract be not rescinded in toto, iii. 1308, 1309.
when a defence, ib.

WORK AND LABOUR—continued.
illegality of contract, iii. 1310.
special contract must be proved, app. ii. iii. 1620.
indebitatus assumpsit lies, when, ib.
credit, to whom given, ib. 1621.
performance, proof of, ib. 1622.
commission, proof of title to, ib. defence, proof in, ib. 1624.
order to view work, ib.
summary jurisdiction, ib. 1625.

WORKMAN,
lien of, ii. 648.

WOUNDING,
what is, ii. 692.

WRECK,
proof of right to take, iii. 946.

WRIT,
proof of, i. 330.
evidence of commencement of action, i. 328.
effect of in evidence, i. 329.
as a justification in trespass, ib.
when essential to prove the judgment, i. 329, 330.
in action against the sheriff, ib.
in ejectment by purchaser under fieri facias at his own suit, i. 329.
on plea of plene administravit, i. 330.
sheriff's return on, ib.
when evidence, ib.
proof of writ when returned, i. 330, 331.
when not returned, i. 330.
proof of by record, when unnecessary, ib.
of writ issued by defendant, ib.
of in action against the sheriff, iii. 1009.
variance, ib.
proof of time of suing out in opposition to the teste, iii. 1077.
proof of delivery of to the sheriff, iii. 1009.
effect of in evidence, i. 329.
judgment, proof of when essential, i. 330. return of stat. 1 W. 4, c. 3, s. 2, as to, iii. 1310.
must contain the names of all the defendants, iii. 1311.
indorsements on, ib.
effect if omitted, ib.

WRIT OF EXECUTION,
not proof of a judgment, except as against the party, i. 330.

WRIT OF INQUIRY,
evidence as to the quantum only is necessary, iii. 1311.
does not preclude another action for cause of action, in respect of which no evidence is given, ib.
bill, or other instrument, to be produced, ib.
no evidence admissible on the part of the defendant, but in reduction of the damages, ib.
practice as to appearing by counsel, ib.
cannot supply the omission to find damages on trial of traverse of a return to a mandamus, ib.
proof of evidence on execution of, app. ii. iii. 1625.

WRITING
essential to waiver of contract, when, iii. 790.

WRITINGS,
cross-examination of witness as to, i. 199.
variance from, i. 446.
variance from, where it is used as mere evidence, i. 490.
variance from, legal effect of, i. 480 to 488.

WRITTEN INSTRUMENT,
variance from, allegation of, i. 477.
kinds of, i. 223.
when conclusive, iii. 787.
inconclusive, when, ib.
effect of as to strangers, iii. 790.
ancient writing found among rolls of manor, ii. 359.

WRONG,
legal, in what it consists, i. 2. consists in the privation of right, ib.

WRONGFUL ACT,
does not alter property, iii. 1150.

YEAR,
what, in settlement case, iii. 999.
agreement not to be performed within a. provision of the statute of frauds as to, ii. 473.

LONDON:
Printed by James & Luke James Hansard, near Lincoln's Inn Fields.